WAR VIEWED IN EUROPE.

Russia Finds Many Friends; Japs Also Have Sympathizers.

By a careful canvass of correspondents in various capitals of Europe it has been ascertained that the European public as a rule favors Russia in the present conflict in the far East. All Europe has been polled through correspondents and the results show Napoleon's prediction that "Europe would be all republican or all" Cossack" has been fulfilled by it being nearly all Cossack, so far as sympathy goes. PROGRESS OF THE WAR

mommenson

HE fogs of doubt and uncertainty hung as heavily last week over the seat of war in the far East as at any time since the beginning of hostilities. No official news of land movements was permitted by either Russia or Japan to leak out, while the operations on sea by the Japanese, with the exception of an occasional attack on Port Arthur, were carefully screened. As a result the war correspondents in the East are forced to send out uncertain rumors, without having the time or opportunity of investigating them, and thus much that is unreliable is finding its way into the history of the present struggle. Were all the reports of Japanese successes true, Russia would scarcely have a boat affoat in the East, outside the Vladivostock fleet, and that, too, according to early reports, was blown up in the Tsugari straits. Some of the Russian vessels at Port Arthur must have been destroyed several times.

Whatever may be the truth of these reports, it seems conclusively established that the Japanese failed to block the harbor at Port Arthur, else the Russian cruisers could not move so freely from the inner basin to the road-

Relative to the immunity of the Japanese vessels under Russian fire at Port Arthur, the reports do not by any means agree. Two separate reports came from Chefoo that two Japanese warships, after the bombardment against the Czar. Popular feeling is also of last week Thursday, were towed in a disabled condition to Susebo for restrongly anti-Russian in Sweden, but pairs, and a paper published at Tien-Tsin states that the battleship Yashima there is a powerful Russian party among and the cruisers Asama and Tokiwa were damaged and that two torpedo boats were destroyed. According to a Chefoo dispatch the Russians discovered a sunken Jananese torpedo boat in the outer harbor. Later the Japanese bombarded Port Arthur again and the cruiser Askold had a gun dismounted and two men injured.

The Russians deny the loss of a torpedo boat in Pigeon bay. They state that a Jananese shot pierced the hull of a torpedo boat, but that the leak was stopped and the vessel returned to Port Arthur under her own steam.

Meantime, according to reports, which neither country confirms, the Japanese have extended their sea operations to the north and are said to be blockading the Russian naval base of Vladivostock. No reports confirming the landing of the Japanese in force at Possiet bay, seventy-five miles south Consternation reigned last week among of Vladivostock, have been received.
