THAT speaker Carlisle is not infallible, however well-intentioned he may be, was shown by his error of judgment in passing over ex-Gov. Curtin, of Pennsylvania, to give Perry Belmont, of New York, the chairmanship of the committee on foreign affairs.

Speculating with the institution's funds got cashier Stevens, of the First National bank of Paw Paw, into a box, and he has been forced to resign. He is now skimming around trying to obtain the cash required to make good a deficit caused by unwise investments of money borrowed from the bank with his own consent.

On the first of the current year there were 420 furnaces in blast and 466 idle in the United Kingdom, this showing a reduction of 36 in the number of working furnaces compared with the first of January, 1886. In this country we started in this year with more furnaces active than one year ago, and others are blowing in constantly.

THURSDAY'S Monomine Range has these items of news relating to mining properties in its district: W. J. Parent and Pete Langis are making explorations on section 23, west of the Ludington mine. They have already sunk a shaft to the depth of 35 feet, and report that the outlook is very promising.

The Detroit Tribune seems to think that Gov. Swinford is still editing the MINING JOURNAL. The editors of the Tribune have not been long in Michigan, but they have been in the Wolverine state long enough to have learned what the upper peninsula of the world isn't a part of the upper peninsula of Michigan, and that when Gov. Swinford assumed his present office it ceased to be a part of the upper peninsula of Michigan.

A FRIEND has called our attention to the following enactment, passed last winter and approved June 12th, with the suggestion that, as but few people are aware of its existence, it would be well to bring it to the general notice of the public by a publication in the columns of the MINING JOURNAL. It will be found on page 258 of the general laws of 1885. As the gentleman who ran across it remarks—"accidentally," he says—slyly remarks—"Marquette county would look like a country graveyard if all pits, shafts, etc., were to be fenced in compliance with this enactment."

AN ACT to provide for enclosing, filling or fencing of any shaft, pit, hole, or trench on any unincorporated or unoccupied lands within this state.

Section 1. The People of the State of Michigan Enact, That any person or corporation who shall sink, dig, or cause to be sunk or dug, any shaft, pit, hole or trench on any unincorporated or unoccupied land within this state to a depth of four feet or more for the purpose of exploring for minerals or making other discoveries, shall file the same or erect or cause to be erected around the same good, substantial fence or enclosure not less than four feet high.

Section 2. Any person or agent of any corporation who shall violate the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail for a period not exceeding three months, in the discretion of the magistrate before whom the conviction is had, and shall in addition thereto be liable to an action for damages resulting from said non-compliance for injuries to either person or property.

The monopolistic character of the company which owns and controls the town of Pullman, near Chicago, got an airing at a meeting of the Chicago Presbytery Tuesday. It was brought out by the appeal of a Presbyterian clergyman located there for aid for his church. The house of worship in which his congregation meet is, it appears, owned by the Pullman company, which exacts an exorbitant rent for its use. An elder from the same town followed the clergyman, saying that he had grown poorer day by day since he had gone there, and had not been able to buy a suit of clothes in two years. A Rev. Mr. Sawyer capped the woeful disclosure, by saying: "I preached once in the Pullman church, but with the help of God I will never preach there again. The world monopolize seems to be written in black over the pulpit and pews. It blazes forth from every window, and seems to burn between the lines in the hymn-book. I thought the organ ground 'monopoly, monopoly,' in all its lower tones." The Pullman company has caused much to be written and printed extolling the beauties of its system of running the town, but the revelations of its rapacity made by the oppressed preachers of the word tend to establish that the corporation named is "soulless" beyond the most grasping of its kind. The public will not pass judgment on the Pullman company until it has been heard in its own defense, but the probability is that it has practiced all the extortions charged up to it, in which cases the best thing the religious public can do is to "boycott" its cars!

The polygamists who hoped much from the new federal judge Orlando W. Powers, appointed by Cleveland to succeed a republican judge who had done all in his power to make things interesting for the upholders of the secular institution, are sadly disappointed. They found that although Judge Powers is from Kalamazoo he doesn't sit around on the fence and pick his teeth with splinters. On the contrary, he has taken up the war just where his predecessor left off, and is crowding the mourners in a way which makes their hearts sick. His decision was so square-cutting in the Hansen case that there was no mistaking his position in regard to the enforcement of the law against unlawful cohabitation, and so the polygamists have since been directing their attention to preventing his confirmation by the senate. Stories have been circulated to blacken his character, and an active Mormon lobby has been working against him. It has been the old game, the same as was ineffectually played in the effort to defeat Gov. Murray's reappointment. Money was spent as freely in the Powers case as in that of Murray, and all the many and powerful resources of the Mormon church were brought to bear; but it has all been without avail, for Powers is among the few nominations of Cleveland which the senate looks on with favor and will confirm. He is the right man in the right place.

We find the above in the Butte, Montana, Inter-Mountain, which is about as slow a paper to say a good word for a democrat, in office or out, as is printed in the United States. All the more, then, does it tell in favor of Judge Powers, and denote that president Cleveland made no mistake when he sent him to Utah to become a terror to the Mormons. If he withstands the threats and refuses the bribes of that nest of reptiles as a judge, the senate ought to confirm him without stopping to think about it. He is the man for the place.

THURSDAY'S Monomine Range has these items of news relating to mining properties in its district: W. J. Parent and Pete Langis are making explorations on section 23, west of the Ludington mine. They have already sunk a shaft to the depth of 35 feet, and report that the outlook is very promising.

The latest development made by Mr. Buell in the exploration of the Cull property consists of four pits sunk to solid ledge, commencing at the "blow out" of ten ore on the north and running south for a distance of 200 feet. The last pit to the south, 734 feet, shows red slates over two-thirds of the bottom, and a blue ore deposit to the north, covering perhaps one-third of the pit. The dip is heavy to the south and strike nearly north-west. Only the surface of the ore is struck at this time of writing. Everything points to a large deposit of Bessemer ore.

The Traders Mining company is the name of a new organization, with Capt. T. B. Rundle as president, and H. McLaughlin secretary and treasurer. The property is located on the south-west corner of 15th, what is known as the old Wheat location. A shaft is sunk which is seven or eight feet in ore of good quality, but at present somewhat mixed with sand overtop, and as a greater depth is attained will improve. We were shown a specimen of the ore which looked fairly well. The property attracted considerable attention in 1880 and 1881, when the Wheat company was exploring there, and one from this same shaft assayed 55 metallic iron with no phosphorus. A small force of men is at work, and developments will be made as rapidly as possible.

THE COPPERCOUNTRY. Will Sink That Refractory Crib—Others Installed—The First Toboggan Accident. Town of Grover Boon.

Lake Linden, Jan. 14.—Mr. Angus McDonald, who had the contract to erect the elegant depot for the Hancock & Calumet railroad at Red Jacket, has just finished the same, which, with a little more extra work, will soon be ready for use. Mr. McDonald has taken the contract from Messrs. Colledge & Co. to sink ten pits and three cribs for the Mineral Range bridge across Portage Lake. Mr. McDonald will use his ingenuity in sinking that crib which has caused so much trouble and expense, and judging from the success he has had with other contracts Ingot opines that he'll perform the work satisfactorily.

The installation of officers of the Gate of Temple Chapter No. 25, F. & A. M., of Hancock, occurred last evening. The following are the officers elected for the ensuing year: Thomas D. Meads, H. P. M. R. Goldworthy, K. Thomas B. Dunston, scribe; Frederick Labran, C. of H.; R. H. Bradford, P. S.; Jacob Henry, H. A. C.; Adolph Ruhl, G. R. third V.; Benjamin Wieder, G. R. second V.; William Dunstone, G. R. first V.; D. S. Kendall, treasurer; George W. Rollison, secretary; Samuel Gillespie, sentinel.

Mr. D. Kloecker of the Quiney mine, met with quite a serious accident last evening while enjoying a ride on a toboggan on the Quiney side. The side is a rough one, the toboggan was upset, and Mr. Kloecker was thrown upon a rock so forcibly that he was badly injured about the back, rendering him unable to walk. He was taken to his home near by and Dr. Downer immediately summoned. Ingot was unable to learn the extent of Mr. Kloecker's injuries, but hopes they are slight.

The Hancock Toboggan club will have their first meet on Tuesday evening, January 16th, and cordially invite any existing neighboring clubs to be present and participate in the sport and enjoy a ride on the finest toboggan road in the copper country.

Nearly all the lots in the town of Grover, which is pleasantly situated about three-quarters of a mile west of Lake Linden, have been sold. We understand that the proprietors intend to draw the remaining few lots from the market at present, in view of the prospective erection of a new smelting works a few rods east of the town, which would greatly enhance the value of the lots in the town.

Lake Linden's musically-inclined people, who organized about two weeks ago. The society promises to fill a want long felt in the metropolitan and refined place. They are now studying the Ontario Messiah with a view of presenting it to the people of Lake Linden in the near future. The society meets at the school-house hall every Monday evening.

Hancock and Houghton may quarrel over the loaves and fishes, but the loaves and fishes are not quarrelsome. The ice and roller rinks are apparently running each other pretty hard, but from what Ingot could learn they both seem to be doing a good business—like everyone else in Lake Linden.

THE MINING JOURNAL can always be found for sale on the upper peninsula, at Lake Simcoe, Lake Linden, and also at Will Cren's.

Mr. Ed. Knight, of the D. M. & M. railroad, is visiting friends in the copper country. Lake Linden has the champion ice skater in the copper country in the person of Charlie Krause, and she intends to make her honors extend over the upper peninsula. As we are informed that Mr. Krause will go to Ishpeming on Friday, Jan. 22d, to compete with Mr. Martin, of that city, for the cup which is held by Martin entitling him to the championship of the upper peninsula. Mr. Krause is a rapid and fair skater, and Ingot would advise Mr. Martin to keep practice if it is his ambition to retain the cup and the championship.

At the annual meeting of the First National bank of Hancock, held on Tuesday, the 10th of directors—with the exception of Mr. Z. W. Wright, who declined reelection, and who was succeeded by Mr. E. Ryan—were re-elected for the ensuing year.

E. H. Tower, Esq., cashier of the First National bank of Hancock, left for Detroit this morning and will be absent about two weeks. Mr. Tower will return to school, and Mrs. Tower will return with her husband.

NEWBERRY STATISTICS. Some Very Surprising Figures As to the Business and Growth of That Burg.

NEWBERRY, Jan. 13.—About four years ago the spot we now call Newberry was an unbroken wilderness. To-day we have a flourishing village consisting of about seventy dwelling houses, one school house, two churches, five hotels, one large boarding house, one roller mill, five general stores, two meat markets, one drug store, one watch and jewelry store, one cigar store, one saloon, and two clerical men, very necessary adjuncts to any well ordered community. The population is about 700, and is very industrial. We have no use here for a man who is unwilling to contribute towards the general welfare of the village.

One of the busiest men in town for about seven months in the year is the agent for the D. M. & M. railroad, as witness the following figures: There was received in Newberry during the year 1885, about thirty-eight thousand four hundred tons of freight, and dispatched during the same time about seven thousand tons of lumber. To handle this necessitated the receipt and dispatch of over four thousand nine hundred cars, all for local business. We would like to make a note of the fact that during the year 1885, about seven hundred and fifty tons of lumber were shipped from Newberry to the coast.

J. C. McDermid, of Grand Marais, C. H. Bradley, and T. W. Hastings, of Bay City, and S. V. Smith, of Cheboygan, were in town today.

IT CREATED SOME GOSSIP. But They "Done by Him in Death Just as He'd 'a' Done by Us in Life."

Chicago Herald "Meddler." "It was funny when the boss baggageman of the 'hole' died. The speaker was talking to one of our regulars in the parlors of the Tremont house a minute or any other to be. The speaker went on: 'He died peacefully and made no more fuss about it than I did about my own. I suppose he was on his back up on the car. We had him out in his room that was up under the flagstaff tower. The head clerk came in and said, 'I guess he's gone to the front for good.' The speaker was exactly suitable to Jim's calling for him to be a hell boy. Then the undertaker came in with the coffin. Then began to fear that the funeral would have a little in it for us."

"I noticed two or three of the boys from the other end, who were in the same line of business as Jim, take a look at the box. One of them lifted up one of the other kind of shell out of the top of it, and another kind of shell it up with one eye. By an 'L' they picked out the top of the box, and they were as good as dead. It was a woman ever out her way in a crate. And then we took a look at him for the last time, and the undertaker said, 'I guess he's gone to the front for good.' It was exactly suitable to Jim's calling for him to be a hell boy. Then the undertaker came in with the coffin. Then began to fear that the funeral would have a little in it for us."

"If the undertaker stepped out to see that the sear was over. We all looked at each other. Then one of the boys picked up one end of the box, and he said, 'I'll show you what I mean.' He took it down to the door. The box was all right. Then two of us took hold of the side of it and rolled it over, and it fell others fell in. We stood it up on end and let it fall, and we were all right. Then we put it on a track and wheeled it to the freight elevator. We had to stand the coffin on end to get it down, and when we opened the door and the coffin came out, it was a woman ever out her way in a crate. And then we took a look at him for the last time, and the undertaker said, 'I guess he's gone to the front for good.' It was exactly suitable to Jim's calling for him to be a hell boy. Then the undertaker came in with the coffin. Then began to fear that the funeral would have a little in it for us."

"I created some gossip around the hotel among some of the boarders, but it was cur. Jim never would have laid still if he had tried to carry him out easy. We don't know in what way he was killed, but we know in life, and that's the golden rule, twelve inches to the foot, every time."

A PLANT TO BE AVOIDED. Peculiarities of the Rhus Venenata, or Poison Sumach—Symptoms—Antidote. (For publication.)

Rhus venenata, the poisonous species, is grown in different localities under the several names of poison ash, poison elder, poison dogwood and poison or swampy sumach, and is commonly found in damp or swampy situations, where it usually grows to a height of fifteen feet in height. It may be readily distinguished from the harmless species. Its leaf stalk bears but from three to six pairs of leaflets, while those of the other species bear from eight to twenty pairs, and its leaflets, like the poison ivy, have many small, white, raised spots, or are serrated or saw-toothed. Its stem is smooth.

The main stem and principal branches are often gray in color, though the roots are not. The leaf, from the base of the stem or purple hue. The leaves are light green in color, with purple veins. The flowers are small, and are usually found in clusters much more numerous than those of the other species named, while the fruit is also of a greenish-white hue, not as in the case of the harmless species. It occurs in clusters of berries instead of in the globose clusters of the harmless species. The plant, as a whole, is more delicate and attractive in appearance than are the other species named.

There is something remarkable about the poison ivy. Some persons may handle the plant, breathe its fumes when burning, or even eat of its leaves and flowers, with impunity, while others are affected with a dangerous swelling and inflammation from the least exposure to its effluvia. Some persons seem to be especially sensitive to its action, while others who were equally affected by its action, were not so sensitive to its action in the future.

Many persons who are employed with more or less success, but I wish here to mention one case, which occurred in July last, in a place to be in a piece of rough woodland near New Jersey, and unexpectedly caught myself in the midst of a thick growth of the plant. I had cut a path through the brush without observing it. Knowing my susceptibility, I was naturally alarmed, and the more so when the next morning I found my face swollen and it itched, with other preliminary symptoms of a severe case of poisoning. Having been of hot water as a cure, I at once began to bathe my face and hands in cold water, and to use a weak solution of potassium permanganate. This treatment, repeated several times during the day, proved remarkably efficacious. The swelling and the feverish symptoms quickly disappeared, and the next day there were only one or two faint indications of the blisters. Since that a friend has tried the same remedy with the same effect. The poison symptoms are at once allayed.

Spalding Rules in Favor of the Casinos. The Joys and Sorrows of a Lumberman's Life.

The Gum Plie at the Casino—Goodale's Lucky Hit—A Change at the Ice Rink.

Not a League Game. As was predicted in yesterday's MINING JOURNAL, Messrs. Spalding & Co. of Chicago decided the matter of the Adelphi goal adversely to the Negeance club, and the game will therefore not go upon record.

When the Casinos arrived at Negeance and learned that the Adelphis intended to use goals four feet six inches, instead of six feet, while they immediately objected, E. L. P. Westmore, the manager of the team, refused to play the game. He was shown a set of rules in a book for rink managers, dated 1886, as the authority for the change, but refused to accept them, saying that he knew of no such rules, and that, as they bore no date, the rules might not be the latest although in a book issued this season.

He finally consented to play the game under protest, the agreement being made that if the rules were not correct the game was not to go on record, and stopping to the center of the rink, he so announced his protest and the agreement.

After the game the following telegram was sent to the firm recognized as authority on all sporting questions:

MARQUETTE, Mich., Jan. 13. A. G. Spalding & Bro., 105 Madison Street, Chicago:

Do latest polo rules call for six or four foot goal? Answer: E. L. P. WESTMORE.

The following decisive answer was received yesterday:

Six by three. A. G. SPALDING & CO.

This makes the games stand as they did before Wednesday evening, and will necessitate another game between the Casinos and Adelphis. No date has been set for the game as yet.

As announced yesterday the game resulted in three goals to none in favor of the Adelphis. It was admitted by many of the Negeance players themselves that Marquette should have had the first goal. The Casinos drove the ball through the Adelphi goal fairly and squarely and then stopped, everybody calling "goal," but as the whistle did not sound the Adelphis took the ball to the other end of the rink and put it through the Casino goal without opposition, claiming a goal therefor. Referee Barney then decided that it was a draw, as each side claimed a goal.

The MINING JOURNAL was misled by the telephone account Wednesday night, and is pleased to state that referee Barney was not so negligent as to allow goals where the ball passed above the required height, the reporter's informant having been mistaken in saying that goals were made on balls passing over Smith's shoulder.

Next Wednesday night the Adelphis and Superiors will cross sticks in the Superior rink at Ishpeming.

A Disgraced Chopper. The following graphic description of a lumber camp, with the joys of life therein, is presented to the readers of the MINING JOURNAL by a friend and reader now in the woods:

A lumber camp is a place where men congregate to cut, skid and haul logs.

In every well regulated camp there is a foreman whose office it is to turn the men out before daylight and give them a chance to earn from eighteen to twenty-six dollars a month.

Sometimes he carries a little axe and sometimes he doesn't. The axe in his hand is significant of authority; much the same as a full-grown scepter in the hands of an absolute monarch who knows his business and rules as he has a mind to.

To eat, the horses have hay, oats and bran mash; the men have bread, peas, pie, cake, antipasto, and sometimes spoiled potatoes.

The pork is always old enough to vote, but owing to the way it has been salted, salt-petred, barreled, and brined in Chicago, it might keep forever and a day longer and still be as eatable as it is now. When fried it looks crisp, smells strong, and tastes oleaginous; when boiled it looks like old tallow and tastes like cod liver oil highly seasoned with salt, salt-petrate, mustard, and red pepper.

A man who knows a good deal about pork says that none but lumbermen buy that kind of pork; that it is cooked for woodmen only; that boarding houses reject it; that even in prisons and county jails it is never tolerated; and that when the lumber business is played, it is as a thing of commerce, will be played also.

CHRISTOPHER GRIP.

This Afternoon.

In another column will be found the call for a general meeting of all citizens interested in the welfare of the city, at the recorder's office at 2:30 P. M., the occasion being the annual meeting of the Marquette Business Men's association.

The meeting will be an important one, as the annual reports of the various committees will be presented, and it is further announced that subjects of great importance to the city, and which demand immediate action, will be brought up. Every citizen who wishes to see Marquette increase in size and wealth should make it a point to be present this afternoon and put his shoulder to the wheel with the others. Time, 2:30 P. M.; place, the recorder's office.

Chew, Chew, Chew.

A very large number attended the tolu party at the rink last night, and just twice that number of jaws were soon actively engaged, and so continued during the evening. An unusually large number participated in the grand march, which is now one of the most pleasing features of an evening at the Casino. Manager Ross still continues to receive liberal patronage at the hands of the public; his attractions are always well attended.

A Change at the Ice Rink. J. J. Finney has resigned the position of manager of the ice rink to embark in a new undertaking which will soon be made public.

Mr. Nelson regrets the change, for he finds that he needs a good manager to as-ist him in the rink; he is now desirous of getting some one for the position, and the right man can be assured of a good thing there this winter. The sooner he makes himself known to Mr. Nelson the more pleased will the latter gentleman be.

A Lucky Stroke. Some time before leaving Marquette to take up his residence in Florida permanently, Mr. S. W. Goodale purchased a tract of land near the Menominee range for six hundred dollars.

The land was heavily wooded with cedar, and recently Mr. Goodale sold it to parties desiring the timber for $10,000, a very satisfactory return on the money invested. Mr. Goodale has many firm friends in this city, and they will all be pleased to hear of this lucky financial stroke on his part.

The Reedsboro Stage. G. W. Reed will run his stages next week to accommodate those who wish to attend the circuit court at Manistique. Travelers from the east or west can reach Manistique without delay by starting Sunday, the 17th, as the stage will leave Reedsboro Monday morning, January 18th.

Piano Tuning. Mr. O. Marshall is now in the city on one of his regular visits, and all those desiring to have pianos tuned can do so by leaving their orders at Conklin's jewelry store. Mr. Marshall is stopping at the Clifton House, where he may be found if desired.

REPORTORIAL PENCILINGS.

We, the employees of the M., H. & O. railroad company, were paid yesterday.

A new boiler is now being placed in the Thurber block to give greater heating facilities.

J. E. Rean has the contract for filling Messrs. Meeker & Hoch's ice houses at Whiteville and Negeance, and is now engaged in the work.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church want to buy a cheap, second hand cook-stove. They will pay about six dollars for such a stove, and would like immediate possession.

The game of polo at the ice rink Wednesday night was a revelation to Pencilings, for he had not supposed such activity possible on skates as was shown by the contestants. If the Casino rishers could cover as much space in as short a time as do the rishers on ice, the Adelphi and Superior teams would have to hang up their harps in short order.

W. P. Schwalm has assumed the position of manager of the ice rink, vice Finney, resigned, until Mr. Nelson can find someone to take the position permanently. There was a good attendance last night, and manager Schwalm announced that to-night he would choose a polo team to play the Mennie rink team, of Ishpeming, in about ten days. All polo players are requested to be present for that purpose to-night.

A spring lock on the door of one of the city churches got in its work Wednesday night just as the pastor was going in, and as the result he was left out. The congregation just then started up the familiar hymn, "Come to Jesus," and sung it with so much earnestness that the voice of the shepherd entreating them to let him in was not heard. His absence was finally discovered and this led to the discovery that the door was locked.

Pencilings went down to the side of the lake yesterday afternoon and watched in silent expectancy the woodmen who were exercising themselves upon the immature ice. Contrary to all his expectations, however, he did not get an item out of them, but will be on hand to-day; eventually he will get an article with thrilling headlines, telling just how the calamity occurred. Yesterday they ventured out where the tugs had recently broken the ice, but by blind luck did not break through and drown. "The pitcher which goes too often," etc.

The members of the Casino polo club report having received splendid treatment at the hands of the Adelphi team after the game Wednesday night. A lunch was provided for them by the woodmen who were exercising themselves upon the immature ice. Contrary to all his expectations, however, he did not get an item out of them, but will be on hand to-day; eventually he will get an article with thrilling headlines, telling just how the calamity occurred.

A reporter of the MINING JOURNAL had some conversation with a farmer yesterday relative to his crops last season, and elicited the following facts: He planted twenty-seven bushels of potatoes and harvested five hundred bushels. All that he sold last fall brought fifty cents per bushel; about half his crop was buried in pits for which he expects an enhanced price in the spring. From two bushels of peas, which he sowed broadcast and dragged in he harvested thirty-two bushels. These he sold in pool for sixty-four dollars. He raised other vegetables, and a number of different kinds of berries, all of which he sold at satisfactory prices. He is now engaged in hauling manure from town to his farm, which is about two miles out.

Pencilings walked about seven miles yesterday in and about the city, and made it a point to keep track of the number of dogs he saw. The weather was mild and pleasant, and in consequence the dog advantages were excellent. The percentage of resident dogs that were not out must have been small, as there are not accommodations inside for many more than were seen passing the time of day with each other in the yards and streets. No doubt most of the readers of the MINING JOURNAL have seen statements as to how much ground Vanderbilt's fortune would cover if it were all in silver dollars, or how far it would reach if in one-dollar bills. Pencilings saw dogs enough yesterday to swell every dollar in thirty minutes, or if every pound was invested in dog meat at a cent a pound, they would have the most of it eaten and the rest buried where they never could find it in a week.
