Allis, the well-known Milwaulength, in a temperate statement, declining to make the concession asked for, giving as his reason that the change would be equivalent to a decrease in production of one-fourth, and an increase in cost of twenty-five per cent. In other words, he "couldn't stand it."

Mr. Allis being a very humane and confidence in the confi Siderate employer, it is thought that the men will see the cogency of his reasons tured only by F. F. Adams & Co. for refusing their request, but there is danger of trouble, as outsiders are said to be spurring them on to make a stand for their imagined "rights" in the case.

from Macungie, this state, that the iron ore miners in that district, between Reading and Lumbermen's Tools. Allentown, receive only from 60 cents to 70 cents per day of ten hours. Years ago, it is stated, the men received $1.50 per day. The proprietors say that the cause of this great decline in wages is the decrease in the price of ore from $6.00@6.50 a ton to $2.00@2.50, which they attribute to the importation of foreign Sleighs. Cutters and Wagons, ores. It is singular that miners will work for such wages, when common laborers get twice as much in other parts of the state .- Amer can Manufacturer

The statement that the decline in the wages of miners not all is a result of the importation of foreign ores is more "incredible" than is the intelligence which | Superior Street, is the basis of the Manufacturer's comis the basis of the Manufacturer's comments. Other causes have operated to reduce the price of one more powerfully.

10-28 reduce the price of ore more powerfully than that cited, chief among these being the opening of new iron fields in this country, and a falling off in the home consumption of iron, during the past few years. The Manufacturer makes some strong points for protection now and then, but it failed to do'so in this instance.

The "blood-letting" stage has been reached in the southwestern railroad embroilment, it appears from our news report this morning. In the encounter between the strikers and the officers who were protecting a moving train, two of the latter were fatally and one seriously wounded, and one of the strikers was also wounded. If, as the reports would indicate, the strikers opened fire first, there is nothing to be said in their defense. They are guilty of a cowardly and murderous assault on officers of Plans, specifications and estimates furnished Orders solicited. the law, who were engaged in the transaction of a duty that they could not avoid, and for this they should be hunted down and adequately punished.
