AMENDING THE RULES

Several Motions to that Effect Introduced in Yesterday's Session of the House.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE CALLED TO ORDER.

Delegations From Various Cities After the Convention—Chicago Catches the Plum—Work of the Committee.

THE DAY IN THE HOUSE

AMENDMENTS TO THE RULES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The speaker laid before the house the annual reports of the secretary of the treasury and the attorney-general, and of the clerk of the house. The committee on mileage was announced as follows: Mr. Rodgers, of Arkansas; Mr. Belden, of New York; Mr. Hoard, of Indiana; Mr. Burdett, of Massachusetts; and Mr. Felton, of California. Resolutions providing for the amendment of the rules of the house were offered as follows: By Mr. McCreary, (Ky.)—To amend rule 21 by adding thereto the following: And

ALL GENERAL APPROPRIATION BILLS shall be reported to the house within sixty days after the appointment of the standing committees at the first session and within forty days after the commencement of the second session; by Mr. Belmont—to amend rule 23 so as to make privileged, equally with appropriation bills, measures for the reorganization and retrenchment of expenditures in any branch of the legislative, executive or judicial departments of the government; by Mr. Hudd (Wis.)—to amend rule 8 so as to require every member to be present within the hall of the house during the session unless excused or necessarily prevented, and

TO VOTE ON ALL VOTES, and on each roll call, unless personally or pecuniarily interested in the proposition under pain of liability to expulsion; by Mr. Gallinger, (N. H.)—to amend rule 10, so as to create a committee on the public health to consist of thirteen members; by Mr. Springer (Ills.)—to amend rule 23, so as to provide that the committee of the whole house shall consist of one hundred members, which number shall constitute a quorum. When ever the committee of the whole finds itself without a quorum, the chairman shall

CAUSE THE ROLL TO BE CALLED and thereupon the committee shall rise and the chairman report the names of the absentees to the house; also to amend paragraph 6 of rule 22, so as to provide that if after any revenue or appropriation bill has been considered in committee of the whole under the five-minute rule for—days it shall be in order to move in the house to discharge the committee of the whole from the consideration of such bill; to amend paragraph 4 of rule 21 so as to provide that all private bills and bills for the improvement of rivers and harbors, and for the establishment and change of post routes

SHALL BE HANDED TO THE CLERK as in the case of petitions and memorials, for reference to the appropriate committee; when private bills are reported from committees with favorable recommendation, they shall be read a first and second time, printed and referred to the committee of the whole on the private calendar; to amend rule 25, paragraph 3 so as to read: The fourth Monday of each month after the call of states and territories until adjournment on that day shall, when claimed by the committee on territories, be devoted exclusively to the consideration of business presented by that committee, and any unfinished business remaining at the end of the day, shall be in order until disposed of.

All of these resolutions were ordered to be referred to the committee on rules when it shall be appointed. The house then adjourned until Monday.

SPRINGERS RESOLUTION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Representative Springer to-day offered a resolution amendatory of the house rules providing for the abolition of the committees on Pacific railroads, invalid pensions, mileage, militia and improvement of the Mississippi river, and the transfer of their functions to other committees. Provision is also made for a general increase of the membership of the remaining committees and a rearrangement of their duties, to some extent.

Henry E. Williamson, agent of the Crow Indian agency of Montana, has resigned.

Secretary Fairchild has recommended that the salary of the assistant treasurer at San Francisco be increased to $6,000 per annum and the salaries of the assistants treasurers at Chicago, New Orleans and St. Louis to $5,000 each.

THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—After the reading of the journal and the presentation of a few department communications, the senate, on motion of Mr. Farwell, adjourned until Monday.

REPUBLICAN NAT'L COMMITTEE MEETS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The republican national committee was called to order at 11 o'clock this morning in room 159 at the Arlington Hotel, by B. F. Jones, of Pennsylvania, its chairman. In a brief speech chairman Jones stated that the object of the meeting, as stated in the call, was for the purpose of selecting a time and place for holding the next republican national convention, also to consider such matters as may properly be brought before it; as everything connected, however remotely, with the movement of this great country is important, their action to-day might have far reaching results; they should therefore such subjects as might be brought before them that they might decide wisely. Continuing chairman Jones said: "We may congratulate ourselves on the improved prospects of the republican party since the national committee met in this city four years ago for the same purpose that we are now assembled. At that time the majority against the republican party in the north at the last proceeding general state elections counted up into the hundreds of thousands. The great states of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio had democratic governors, New York's elected by nearly 200,000 plurality which was reduced for the same candidate in the presidential election to less than 1,100. Though by accident the democratic party have the presidency and the signs are auspicious for the election of a republican president in 1888. The momentum acquired by twenty-five years of the prevalence of republican principles has not yet lost its force and the material interests of the country are still prosperous as the result of republican industrial legislation. Recent utterances, however, indicate a determination to end this prosperity by adverse legislation forced upon the country by an administration hostile to American industry, and also indicate the necessity of the return to power of the republican party in the national government so that American industry, wool growing and sugar raising, equally with iron making and textile production, may have continued prosperity, and the employes in these industries, constant employment and continued good wages, such as American workmen should receive."

CAREFULLY CONSIDER

THE PRESTIGE OF SUCCESS,

The roll was then called and every state and territory, with one or two exceptions, was represented by a delegate or a proxy. It was then decided that fifteen minutes should be accorded to each delegation of the various cities which are competing for the prize of holding the next republican convention to present their respective claims.

The first committee admitted to the committee room was that from the state of Minnesota. Their spokesman was Senator Windom, who gave his reasons for thinking that Minneapolis should be favored by the committee. He alluded to the hospitality of that city and stated that a hall could be secured gratis capable of holding 9,000 people.

General Henderson, of Missouri, acted as spokesman for a large delegation who were admitted to present the advantages of St. Louis as the convention city. He presented the plans of the grand Music Hall of St. Louis, and explained that in this building the committee might have a choice of halls—one accommodating 1,500, one 6,000 and one 11,000 persons. He argued that the hotel and railroad facilities of that city were excelled by none, and, in behalf of the press, he promised entire fairness of treatment to all the candidates who might be put forward for the suffrages of the convention.

After an hour's recess the Chicago delegation was admitted and Mayor Roche, of Chicago, in a business-like manner detailed the conveniences which could be accorded the members of the convention by Chicago in case that city secured the favorable vote of the committee. Chicago proposed to do as much and more for the accommodation of the convention than she had done four years ago and he claimed that she was better prepared than any other city in the country to care for the visitors to the convention. He, as mayor, would be pleased to have the convention meet in a city which had grown to be what she was under the protecting influence of a tariff. (Applause.)

Senator Manderson spoke for Omaha—that young giant of a municipality situated in the heart of a continent and upon the banks of the greatest river in the world.

The delegation from Ohio was then admitted and Congressman Butterworth presented the claims of Cincinnati as a place favorably situated for holding the convention.

Congressman Dingham (Penn.), and Colonel Elam, of Richmond, Va., spoke eloquently for their respective cities—Philadelphia and Richmond.

Governor Gillette, of Dakota, presented the claims of the people of that territory to the recognition of the republican national committee and said that they would send delegates to the next convention on the basis of two territories and he hoped they would be recognized.

After an informal ballot the committee proceeded to vote formally by ballot, each state or territory representative stepping up to the chairman's table as the state or territory was called, and depositing his vote in a hat.

The result was announced as follows: Whole number of votes cast 47; necessary to a choice 24; of which Chicago received 23, Omaha 4, Cincinnati 9, Minneapolis 18, Philadelphia 3, and St. Louis 1.

The second formal ballot was then taken and resulted as follows: Whole number of votes cast 47; necessary to a choice 24; of which Chicago received 25, Omaha 1, Cincinnati 13, and Minneapolis 8.

On motion of Mr. Morey, of Louisiana, the choice of Chicago as the place for holding the next convention was declared unanimous.

On motion of Mr. Rollins, of New Hampshire, the time for the meeting was fixed for Tuesday, the 19th day of June, 1888.

A resolution was offered and adopted for the appointment of a committee of seven with power to take control of the building for the convention and to make all necessary arrangements for holding the convention. The chairman stated that he would select the committee and announce it subsequently.

Mr. Littler, of Illinois, thanked the committee for having selected Chicago as the place for holding the convention, and said that it would give the Illinois delegation great pleasure to entertain the committee at the Arlington Hotel immediately after its adjournment. A resolution was offered and adopted recommending the committee to push the campaign work between now and the meeting of the convention.

Mr. Gallagher, delegate from the New York workmen's party, was, on application, admitted to present the views of that party. He asked of the committee some recognition of the cause of labor. He wanted the committee to further the views of the labor party in the direction of a high protective tariff, a strong navy, more coast defenses, internal improvements, compulsory education, and other matters; and to use up the surplus, and protect the labor of American workmen. They asked for the liberation of the white slaves, as they had witnessed that of the black slaves.

On motion of Mr. Conger of Ohio, the hearty and full cooperation of the committee was voted to the men represented by Mr. Gallagher.

A vote of thanks was given to the national republican league of Washington for the kindness and courtesy extended to the committee in placing the club house at the disposition of the committee. The committee then adjourned.

TAKES HIS MEDICINE.

Herr Most Sentenced to One Year in Prison. A Dramatic Appeal.

A NEW TRIAL DENIED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Herr Johann Most, who was convicted of a misdemeanor, was arraigned in the general sessions court to-day. His counsel, Mr. Howe, argued in his behalf for a new trial. He contended that Most had not been convicted on any fair evidence, but that an unfair prejudice had been instilled into the case, that the jury convicted him because of sentiments published in Most's books three years ago. Counsel argued on behalf of liberty and free speech. Judge Cowing said he would deny the motion, but that he would grant a certificate to the supreme court general term, when the whole case might be heard. When the clerk of the court asked Most what he had to say why sentence should not be pronounced on him, Most, in

A VERY DRAMATIC MANNER, said: "Your Honor: From a legal point of view, it may appear very difficult to stay a sentence when a jury has rendered their verdict, but there are certain occasions when the court should and must rise superior to a jury finding. No independent judge will, for instance, pronounce capital punishment upon a man of whose innocence he is morally convicted, no matter what verdict the jury has entered. In the present case the issue is clearly not one of life or death to any person, but the issue of a far broader and deeper one. Therefore, with all respect to your honor, I consider it my duty

IN REPLY TO YOUR QUESTION why sentence should not be pronounced upon me, to state that it is your province to-day to decide whether free speech and lawful assemblies should be destroyed in this country. The sentence which your honor is about to pronounce will be engraved upon the history of the United States. Punishment inflicted upon an innocent man and brought about by prejudice and perjury is rather an honor than a shame to the one who suffers for opinions sake. I again protest my innocence of the offense for which I stand convicted and appeal to your honor to make use of such discretion as lies within your power." Judge Cowing's only reply was: "The sentence of the court is that you be confined in the penitentiary for a period of one year without the fine." Then Most was taken back to the Tombs.

Powderly on a Government Telegraph.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 8.—The third in the series of letters addressed by general master workman Powderly to the order of the Knights of Labor, published to-day, is confined to an attack on the Western Union Telegraph company, with a recommendation that the United States government should control all telegraph lines. He argues that the government can do the telegraphing of the country as successfully as it does the mail carrying and ridicules the idea that it would amount to anything as a political factor, because, as he says, there are only about 17,000 telegraph operators in the United States.

Where They Stand.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The World to-day publishes interviews with 210 members of congress on the tariff question, the president's message, and their choice for president. Forty republicans are non-committal on the presidential question, while twenty-five are for Blaine, eight for Sherman, four against Blaine and one for Gresham. Ninety-three democrats and seven republicans favor Cleveland's tariff idea, while fourteen democrats and eighteen republicans are non-committal; sixty-nine republicans and six democrats are opposed to Cleveland's tariff ideas.

MR. BLAINE'S OPINION.

President Cleveland's Message to Congress Reviewed By His Opponent of 1884.

INTERVIEW IN PARIS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The Tribune to-day contains a long interview with James G. Blaine in Paris on President Cleveland's message.

"I have been reading an abstract of the president's message, and have been especially interested in the comments of the London papers. Those papers all assume to declare that the message is a free trade manifesto, and evidently are anticipating an enlarged market for English fabrics in the United States as a consequence of the president's recommendations.

"You don't mean actual free trade without duty," queried the reporter.

"No," replied Mr. Blaine. "Nor do the London papers mean that. They simply mean that the president has recommended what in the United States is known as revenue tariff, rejecting the protective feature as an objection, not even permitting protection to result freely as an incident to revenue duties."

"I don't quite comprehend that last point," said the reporter.

"I mean," said Mr. Blaine, "that for the first time in the history of the United States the president recommends retaining the internal tax in order that the tariff may be forced down even below a fair revenue standard. He recommends that the tax on tobacco be retained, and that many millions be annually levied on a domestic product which would far better come from a tariff on foreign fabrics."

"Then do you mean you would favor a repeal of the tobacco tax?"

"Certainly, I mean just that. I should urge that it be done at once, even before the Christmas holidays. Tobacco to millions of men is a necessity. The president calls it a luxury, but it is a luxury in no other sense than tea and coffee are luxuries. It is well to remember that the luxury of yesterday becomes a necessity of to-day. The users of tobacco not only pay the millions of the tobacco tax, but pay on every plug and every cigar an enhanced price which the tax enables the manufacturer and retailer to impose. The excuse for such tax is the actual necessity under which the government found itself during the war and the years immediately following. To retain the tax now in order to destroy the protection which would incidentally follow from raising the same amount of money on foreign imports is certainly a most extraordinary policy for our government."

"Would you advise a repeal of the whisky tax also?"

"No, I would not. Other considerations than those of financial administration are to be taken into account. With regard to whisky, there is a moral side to it. To cheapen the price of whisky, is to increase the consumption enormously. There would be no sense in urging a reform wrought by high license in many states if the national government neutralized the good effect by making whisky within the reach of everyone at 20 cents a gallon. Whisky would be everywhere distilled if the surveillance of the government were withdrawn and illicit sales could not then be prevented. It would destroy high license at once in all states. Whisky has done a vast deal of harm in the United States. I would try to make it do some good. I would use the tax to fortify our cities on the seaboard. In view of the powerful letter addressed to the democratic party on the subject of fortifications, the late Samuel J. Tilden in 1885 I am amazed that no attention has been paid to the subject by the democratic administration. Never before in the history of the world has any government allowed its great cities on the seaboard to remain defenseless."

"But," said the reporter, "you don't think we are to have war in any direction?"

"Certainly not," said Mr. Blaine; "neither, I presume, did Mr. Tilden when he wrote his remarkable letter. But we should change the remote chance into absolute impossibility."

"But, after the fortifications should be constructed, would you still maintain a tax on whisky?"

"Yes, so long as there is whisky to tax, I would tax it, and when the national government would have no use for the money, I would divide the tax among the federal union with the specific object of lightening the tax on real estate."

"The houses and farms of the whole country pay too large a proportion of the total tax. If ultimately relief could be given in that direction it would in my judgment be a wise policy. Some honest, but misguided friend of temperance, have urged that the government should not use the money derived from the tax on whisky. My reply is that the tax on whisky by the federal government with its suppression of all illicit distillation and consequent enhancement of price, has stolen here and there a few dollars from the pockets of the poor, but it has put a million dollars into the pockets of the rich."

"Besides the general and sweeping opposition to the president's recommendations have you any further specific objection?"

"Yes, I should seriously object to the repeal of the duty on wool. To repeal that would work a great injustice to many interests, namely the sheep culture among farmers throughout the union."

JAMES ROBINSON'S TRIAL.

A Jury Secured—The State Opens Its Evidence.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8.—The jury to sit upon the case of James Robinson, the third of the Ravenna rescuers, was secured to-day after four days spent in examining jurors. The first witness examined was conductor Myers of the Cleveland & Pittsburgh road, who said that to the best of his knowledge Robinson was one of the passengers who boarded his train at Bedford, six miles from Cleveland, on the night that the furs were stolen here and shipped to Pittsburgh.

Other testimony related to the arrest of Morgan, Coughlin and Robinson at Alpena, Mich.

A Grocer Fails.

MANISTEE, Mich., Dec. 8.—Thorvald Peterson, grocer, has made an assignment; assets $2,000 and liabilities $3,000.

The case of R. G. Peters vs John Canfield, involving $200,000, is on trial and will last four or five days.

DISCOVERED IN TIME.

Nitro-Glycerine Found in the Rock Chute of the Calumet Rock House.

CALUMET, Mich., Dec. 8.—[Special.]—A package of five pounds of nitro-glycerine powder, wrapped in a German newspaper, was found to-day in the rock chute of the Calumet rock house. The powder is different from that used by the Calumet & Hecla company, and the mine officers think it was placed there with the intention of doing damage to the mine property.

BELLIGERENT FARMERS.

Attempt to Forebly Stop The Construction of a Railroad—Two Men Shot.

CADILLAC, Mich., Dec. 8.—The Toledo, Ann Arbor & Cadillac railroad increase of construction has met with much opposition from farmers whose land it crosses in this vicinity. Last night a farmer named Chapin built a shanty on the grade of the road and when the iron gang reached the place this afternoon they found Chapin, his two sons and four others, occupying the shanty, all armed and threatening to shoot unless the gang desisted in their work. They did not heed the warning and two of their number were shot, one in the hand and the other in the bowels. The farmers were arrested.

A BAD FALLEE.

A Missouri Bank Goes Under With Practically No Assets—The Victims Poor People.

STUARTVILLE, Mo., Dec. 8.—The Stuartville bank of Buck & McCroskey has been closed. It is impossible to learn at the present the full amount of the liabilities, but the assets are practically nothing. The deposits amount to between $75,000 and $100,000. Many depositors are poor people who will lose sums of from $4,500 to $10,000. The county officials, all of the merchants and many farmers are victims to a more or less extent.

Riddlebergers Successor.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 8.—A caucus of democratic members of the general assembly to-night nominated by acclamation Hon. John Barbour for election as United States senator to succeed Riddleberger whose term will expire March 4th 1889. The republicans also held a caucus but made no nomination for United States senator. It is understood that Governor Mahone will be complimented with the nomination for United States senator and that Senator Riddleberger will get some votes in the caucus.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9, 1 A. M.—The signal service notes the following as the predictions for the next thirty-six hours: For Michigan, warmer, fair weather; light to fresh, and along the lakes fresh to brisk, southerly winds, veering to colder northwesterly.

A Lawyer's Good Luck.

A former Harrisburg lawyer who once held a state office, and is now a resident of Philadelphia, was a lawyer by profession, and after leaving the service of the state, he settled in a county which was then greatly excited over the discovery of oil within its borders. He has long been complimented and waited for clients. Sometimes they came, but often they didn't, and his funds grew lower and lower until at last it was a question of bread and butter for him and his family. Sitting in his office one day with his head between his hands, cursing his hard luck and wondering whether it was worth living, not a cent in his pocket and nothing to eat, he was disturbed by the entrance of an acquaintance, who asked him to draw up an agreement relating to the lease of some land and the sinking of an oil well.

"I'll do it if you pay me," said the lawyer.

"Now, see here," said the man, "you know I have no ready money, but if you draw up these papers I'll give you an interest in the well."

"I won't do it," said the lawyer, bluntly; "you have no money and are fast on the road to the poorhouse. No, I won't help you."

"But you must," persisted the man; "you can do it. It won't cost you a cent, and you must do it. Go ahead now. If I lose it is nothing out of your pocket. Draw up these papers, you've nothing else to do."

Well, the lawyer, to get rid of the man, drew up the agreements, and took as his pay an interest in the oil well.

What happened?

The oil well was a gusher, and the thick, greasy fluid poured out over the derrick and made the poor devils who were putting down the well fairly howl with glee. The lawyer was on hand, just as excited as anybody else, and the very first chance he got he sold out for $17,000 cash. With his money in his hand he hastened home and told his wife his good fortune and they both rejoiced.

"And now, mother," said he to his wife, "I've got out of this."

And they lit out for Philadelphia.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Grand Book Sale.
 Christmas is approaching, and M. C. Quinn is ready for it, as he announces in another column. Last year his sale of fine books and various Christmas novelties for the holiday trade met with favor, and this year he has made better arrangements for handling the trade, and has a much larger and more varied stock. Read his advertisement carefully and then drop in at the Negaunee bazaar, 240 Iron street, for your bargains.

Captain George Mitchell has resigned the superintendency of the Buffalo mine, and will be succeeded in that position by Mr. Charles McGregor, of this city, an experienced mine manager. The impaired health of the captain and Mrs. Mitchell has induced him to lay aside business cares for a time, and they will spend the winter in a less rigorous climate. Captain Mitchell is one of the first discoverers of the new iron range east of this city, and has been connected with the Buffalo management since the company now operating the mine was organized. He leaves the property in excellent condition, and takes with him in his retirement from its management the sincere good will of its owners and of the men employed in and about the mine, and their best wishes for the complete restoration to health of himself and Mrs. Mitchell.

"An interested citizen" complains in the local paper that for two Sundays workmen have labored on the new school building, and thinks it ought to be stopped. Beyond a doubt, the practice is hardly orthodox, but doesn't pushing the construction of the new building, on which every favorable day must be utilized, come under the head of a work of necessity?

A citizen wishes the reporter to state for the benefit of saloon-keepers that he has knowledge that certain members of the guild are dispensing liquor in rooms other than bar-rooms, thus evading the Sunday law, and the aforesaid citizen threatens to prosecute if the practice is repeated.

Charles L. Knuckey, who was the first master workman of the local assembly, Knights of Labor, was again chosen for that office at a recent election.

James L. McClear has opened his writing school. He has quite a number of pupils and they are making rapid progress under his tuition.

Yesterday was the "Feast of the Immaculate Conception," and was observed as a holiday by members of the Catholic church.
 Tom Flynn's horse came up from Little Lake yesterday. The nag is a trotter, and can make its mile in 2:38.

The tax roll is now in the hands of city treasurer McDonald. Pay your taxes early and save the penalty.

The local assembly K. of L. will give its annual masquerade ball some time during February.

PERSONAL.

T. M. Blood, of Grand Rapids, is in town.
 W. John Conn, of Norway, was in the city yesterday.

Miss Tillie Lonstorf, of Milwaukee, is visiting in the city, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Joseph E. Suss.

Ed. Gibbon left yesterday for Hurley, where he has accepted the position of time-keeper at the Montreal mine.

Joseph E. Richardson left a few days ago for a visit in Canada, and his friends here hint that while away he will join the army of Benedict.

Jokes on the Credulous.
 "As far back as I can remember," said a gentleman who devotes his leisure to the collection of curios, "every now and then a hoax has appeared and been implicitly believed in by the public. But so many hoaxes have been sprung upon the community of recent years that people are more skeptical than they used to be. The first hoax I remember that was generally believed in was that jewelers would pay $5 a pound for cigar ashes. This craze was in vogue all over the country, and people used to carry little boxes around with them to collect the ashes in. Few ever undertook to find out whether the story was true until he had the pound of ashes collected, and then, of course, it was too late. Many sensible people pursued this fad, although a moment's consideration would show that no jeweler in his sober senses would clean precious metals with a gritty compound. People who wrote to the papers for information as to regard to the non-descript jeweler were consoled with the knowledge that cigar ashes made an excellent if rather disagreeable dentifrice."
 "Then came the story that Queen Victoria would give £1,000 to each person collecting 1,000,000 old postage stamps. This appealed directly to the heart of the small boy, and many an urchin played truant so that he could hunt in the ash barrels in front of the down town offices. Business men had the souls worried out of them by youngsters begging for stamps. When the fabulous generosity of the queen began to be doubted a new story was circulated. It was that of a poor old invalid lady who was offered a nice home for the rest of her life as soon as she had collected the million stamps. Then people went around collecting stamps for the benefit of the mythical old lady. The craze soon died out. It was always supposed to have been originated by dealers who took this way of booming the trade in used postage stamps. The button fad followed. No one seemed to know how many buttons had to be collected on a string before the task was accomplished. It ranged from 1,000 to 1,000,000, according to the success of the collector. While the fever lasted many a fond father went to work in the morning with his clothes pinned on. The last craze was for business cards. It was almost universally followed, but soon died out. Fortunes were made and lost in the manufacture of chromo advertising cards.—New York Evening Sun.

IN A TURK'S HAREM.

WOMEN OF DIFFERENT NATIONAL-ITIES NOT ALWAYS HARMONIOUS.

Domestic Paraphernalia of the Family.
Feminine Coquetry and Masculine Vanity—"Lamb of America"—A Sensational Story.

In the harem of a well-to-do Turk there is a leading lady called the buyuk hanoum.
She is the principal of the establishment—the only wife, perhaps, of the pasha. Her home may be full of female relatives, for the Turk is nothing if not hospitable. Now and then a bufoon is on good terms with the family, and especially with the children. One thing, however, is to be remarked: the very young children do not wear the yashmak or the feridje, but otherwise their costume is almost the same as their mother's, and that of the boy is very comical. Almost before they are weaned they are dressed up in the full uniform of a pasha or military officer—sword, belt, fez and epaulets. Imagine such a child, when tired of his uniform, rushing to his milk mother for his natural refreshment.

Generally a harem is made up of women of various nationalities. Sometimes it is difficult to harmonize them. I should imagine that in the winter season, owing to the peculiar structure of the houses and the insufficient coloring of the people, there would not be very much visiting, and probably not as much contentment, as in spring or summer.
There is something inside the harem which reminds one of the nomadic ancestors of these people. The very beds he sprawls as if about to be picked up, packed and carried off.
Great wicker trunks and camel's hair sacks
are handy, in which the rich stuffs, apparel and furniture may be stowed away in a hurry, so that at the shortest notice the domestic paraphernalia of a family may either be packed in these round wicker trunks, ready for the calpas or the back of a donkey, or in these camel hair sacks, which suggest the wandering Seljukians of six centuries ago. Besides, as fires are common, it is convenient to possess upon the dresses and furniture, put in in portable stoves and saved from the flames. In the larger houses there is a watchman, kept going her or his rounds about the building, so as to prevent and extinguish conflagrations.

In the harem season this life of the harem is much modified. It is correct to suppose that the women are regarded, either in the teachings of the Koran or otherwise,
as soulless persons.
When these inmates take the opportunity of their freedom to move around the city with their peerless beauty half displayed, either upon foot or in the slow progress of their carriages at the grand promenades, there may be chances for some flirtation. A forward girl may make mischief for a whole harem or family. She may not mean it, she may be childish and smile inadvertently on strangers.
Her signs and coquetry really go for nothing,
but the vanity of the other sex is inflamed, and trouble ensues. Existence inside the harem is too rapid for some constitutions.
Some of the harsh allegations about these beauties may have a piquant foundation.
Doubtless there is more smoke than fire in these stories. When we read in an American paper of the fascinating and mysterious beauties of Constantinople, and their harem life,
I fail to find the facts to bear out the romancing.

I have been told by a gentleman, now a leading lawyer of New York, and formerly a teacher of mathematics in the American (Robert) college, upon the hills of Ronnel-Hissar, that when he and the students were accustomed to promenade along the stony quays, even as far down as Becktasch, in the time of Abdul Aziz, the palace was full of the wives and odalisques of this amorous sultan. They could be seen only in dim profile, by our professor and the students, behind the lattices. When they heard they knew who the young men were and who from. They were in the habit of halting them without the fear of emuch, the times being troublous and the ebonny people full of infringe. What do you think these hours call our innocent peripatetics of the quay?
In sweet notes they cry out:
"Kuzi Amerikanee!" Lamb of America!
Sometimes they add:
"Sheker," which is the Arab root of our word sugar. It must have been provoking to hear their salutation:
"Shorhiz hair ols chok kuzi," or, to translate freely:
"Good evening, much confectionated
lamb."
These students still live to make autonomy
in Bulgaria, preach the gospel in Armenia, and practice law in New York. They were not made lamb chops by the breadman of Aziz. These young men were as innocent as the lambs to which they were likened; and the young women equally so. Still, they were playful—lambs are playful.

The most beautiful of the women of the capital are not very closely veiled. They have a way, in the presence of the sternest sex, of revealing, in spite of the veil, the contour of their face, and the exquisite complexion which their incessant bathing bestows. I have in my mind an article in an American paper purporting to have been written last May from Constantinople. It pretends to give a sensational account of the conduct of these beauties in their promenades by the "Sweet Waters."
These stories are born of the sensual pen.
Some writer desires to get his penny a line,
and he represents the hanoum, not as giving her numerous lovers the sack, in our homely phrase, but as actually killing them for self safety. And thus a story goes that a beautiful houri of a pasha's harem in Cairo actually killed 120 beautiful Greek gentlemen whom she had induced by her flirtations to enter her siren home—and all within three brief years! And thus, too, the old story about the sacks filled with such degenerate beauties being sunk in the river where it was deepest. These are the illusions of the romantic. The Moslem cares more than is represented about the defection in his harem.
But is he not a Moslem! What is writ is written, and he can divorce and wed again!

in Turkey."

The Sun's Eclipse in China.
At the recent eclipse of the sun the Chinese authorities, in accordance with the usage of the empire, ordered the Buddhist and Tavisit priests to recite their incantations to rescue the sun from being devoured. It was at the time of the festivities over the emperor's birthday, when all officials were required to wear embroidered robes, but it is also the law that during an eclipse officials who participate in the ceremony must wear ordinary garments until the sun is rescued. An edict had to be got from the emperor to settle it.
He ordered the officials to ignore his birthday and attend to the sun, so they all wore ordinary robes.—New York Sun.

time. Dancing at 8 o'clock. Don't linger at home after that hour.

The Western Transit company, of Buffalo, and the Boston marine insurance company have brought suit in the United States district court to recover the value of the cargo which had to be thrown overboard from the propeller Albany to lighten her when she stranded on Bois Blanc Island, in the straits of Mackinac, Nov. 22. The defendants are the people living along the shore, who took what the waves brought to them as their own.

The city editor of the MINING JOURNAL, discovered upon his desk yesterday an oblong package, carefully wrapped in manilla paper
and mystery, and tied with a stout cord.
Calling upon his associates to take down his last words he prepared to open the affair, while his hair arose and placed his hat on the floor at the awful thought of the dynamite bomb probably concealed within the package. The paper was removed, disclosing a long and narrow box. This was found to be nicely lined with tissue paper, in the folds of which reposed a handsomely turned clock, two feet in length, with a knot of scarlet and cream colored ribbons tied above the handle. Too well, alas, did the c. e. recognize its import. In the old colonial days the Indian tribes declared war against the English by sending them a bunch of arrows tied up with a rattlesnake's skin.
It needed not the card discovered in the box
later to tell the pale and trembling newsgleaner that he held in his hand a declaration of war from a malignant sisterhood. His guilt had found him out. The card read: "Defend Thyself! The 'Societas Snow Shoe Strollers,'" Mr. Pencillings is no longer defenceless. On all snowshoe occasions hereafter he will carry his war club strapped to his side, while as a further and unailing defense he will carry in each pocket of his blanket suit a live mouse.

ISHPEMING NOTES.

Common Council.

A regular meeting of the common council was held Wednesday evening. Bills were read and referred to the committee on claims and accounts. The committee reported favorably on the bills of the water department, and the other bills will be reported on at the next meeting of the common council. The report of Hans Gunderson, justice of the peace, was read and accepted. Bills presented at the last meeting were reported on favorably. The resignation of J. P. Outhwaite as chief of the Ishpeming fire department was read and accepted.

At a regular meeting of the fire department, held on Monday evening, the resignation of J. P. Outhwaite as chief was accepted, and W. O. Tislov was elected to succeed him. The common council confirmed the election of W. O. Tislov as chief of the Ishpeming fire department. Alderman Routhier addressed the council, stating that Dr. E. W. Flske, city librarian, had recently bought, and paid from his own pocket, for some books which were much needed in the library. The amount expended by Dr. Flske was $32.57. A. W. Myers had also expended $16 in a similar way. Mr. Routhier recommended that the city reimburse Mr. Flske and Mr. Myers for the outlay. On motion, the matter was referred to the committee on claims and accounts, with power to act.

The reports of the recorder and treasurer, showing a balance on hand in the treasury, of $15,106.24 was read and referred to the committee on finance.

On motion, Mayor Donahoe was empowered to notify the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic and Chicago & North-western railways that they must keep the same number of flagmen in winter as in summer.

No further business appearing, the council adjourned.

Holiday Advertising.

The business men of Ishpeming should remember, when preparing their holiday advertisements, that the DAILY MINING JOURNAL is the best advertising medium in the county, and act accordingly. A number of holiday advertisements already appear on the Ishpeming pages of the paper, and more are coming. The new advertisements of the Anderson estate, S. P. Sandmark, and others which appear in this morning's issue, will bear reading. The merchants of the city have laid in an unusually large stock of holiday goods, and there is every prospect that the season's business will be a good one.

A Lecture.

The Rev. W. A. Masker, rector of Grace Episcopal church, has announced that he will deliver a lecture on the subject: "The Hell of Fiction," Sunday evening. The lecture will begin at 7 o'clock. The title of the lecture indicates that the speaker is not in accord with all the notions which have been current on the subject of hell; the lecture itself will best show what his belief is, however.

Where are those sewerage plans that Mr. C. B. Davis, of Chicago, was to prepare for Ishpeming? They were to have been delivered several months ago.

Taxes are due and are payable at the Ishpeming National bank. They are about the same as last year.

How Men Buy Overcoats.

A salesman in a State street store says that the overcoat season is the worst in the year. "Men are worse than women when it comes to buying overcoats." By which he meant that men are more particular in that kind of shopping than women are in theirs. "A man," he continued, "never knows what sort of an overcoat he wants. If his strength lasts him he will try on every overcoat in the house. It is vain to reason with him. I have been in the business fifteen years, and I can't make a customer believe that I tell the truth when it comes to selling overcoats. I have watched the perversity of customers in this respect, and it is my observation that nine men out of ten who come in and buy will never take the coat you recommend. Six men out of eight who come in and pull and haul at every coat will go and buy elsewhere. I have heard it said that a man ought to be a good judge of human nature to be a successful salesman. There is no rule that will apply to such customers as I have for several seasons. He always came in, and was just as much troubled the last time as the first. I asked him why it was. He said he always felt mean when he came to buy an overcoat, for he knew that an overcoat was a pawnbroker's delight. He never pained one himself, but he couldn't rid his mind of the notion."—Chicago Mail.

A Choice of Terns.

Dr. M— is a very enthusiastic surgeon and delights in cutting up the defunct in the cause of his profession. He was lately called upon to attend a case at St. Mary's hospital. A poor fellow had his face filled with lead shot and one arm nearly taken off. The doctor had come directly from the dissecting room and his head was full of his work there. Walking into the ward with both hands in his pockets, as was his way, he approached the bed.

"Is this the subject?" he asked briefly. "No, doctor," the poor fellow answered, "I'm not a subject yet; I'm only an object," and he smiled comically.

The doctor nodded grimly like a joke, even at his own expense, but he gave an extra touch to the professional care for the witty patient.—Detroit Free Press.

How the Old Egyptians Worked.

Arnaudeau publishes in The Revue Scientifique an essay upon the question how the ancient Egyptians managed to transport and lift the immense rocks found on top of temples and how they raised their obelisks. He thinks they took advantage of the rise of the Nile. Clothing a block with as much wood as was necessary to raise it a little from the ground they pushed it forward to where they wanted it to lie and held it in position while they removed the wood, which left it in the exact place it was to occupy. An obelisk was lifted horizontally and pushed to where they wanted to erect it. There they took wood away from the base and fastened it to the top, which caused the foot to sink and the top to rise.—Chicago Herald.

SARDINE INDUSTRY.

HOW NIMBLE FINGERS FIX THE LITTLE FISH FOR MARKET.

A Secondary Industry Which Grew Out of Herring Fishing—Scenes at the Weirs—The Factories—Cutting, "Flaking," "Frying" and Packing.

Aside from the pleasure one finds in studying the incidents of herring fishing and the lives and ways of herring fishers there is extraordinary interest attaching to the great secondary industry growing out of herring fishing itself. Years ago the millions of us living away from this little reach of shore—but a speck upon the enormous distances of American and Canadian coast lines—had no better notion of the herring's importance to the affairs of life than that gained from glimpses into an every-day tale of pickled herring for the pungent aroma insinuating the presence of the pickled herring in the corner groceries of our youth. What- ever and however large that trade formerly was, it has almost disappeared. In place of it has come an industry of immense importance, of which there is no general knowledge what- ever.

At Eastport, Lewis Cove, Robertson, La- brec, Peninsula, Southwest Harbor, Jones- port, Mill Bridge and Oulter are located be- tween thirty and forty of these sardine fac- tories. They employ, or partially employ, from 2,000 to 3,000 hands from the middle of April to the middle of December. Every fac- tory is located on the Maine coastwise shore. In Maine on the shores of Casco Bay, Punc- tick and Passamaquoddy bays, or upon the Maine shore of the St. Croix.

SCENES AT THE WEIRS. Here, then, is the herring fisher's home, and his market at home. While the latter gives an ever changing reward, it is never changing itself, and the fisher, after all, re- ceives his own compensation. If the catches are beautiful he will sell his fish for more than profit. If they are light he will often secure exorbitant compensation, for the competition is always brisk, and the fac- tories must be kept running. In the year all this, as to labor and factory, adjusts itself fairly enough. The factory has its "boss- men." These men, who principally live at Eastport and LaBrec, are graduate quoddy fishers. They have their quoddy boats and crews, and their duties are to scurry about among the weirs and keep their factories sup- plied with herring at the lowest possible price, but always supplied.

Wherever factories are located old and young are employed without distinction in the various processes of the work. Regular employment "by the day" is furnished to but few, nearly all being done "by the piece." The arrival of the herring sloops at all hours of the day and night—for the "catches" and consequent buying of the herring are dependent on the ever changing tide—is announced by the shrill whistle of the factory. Then the boats, which is at every other hour an apparently deserted village, seems suddenly repopulated. From every quarter, and almost from miles away, sud- denly appear erst invisible hosts. The place seems hushed and as though all its folk were dead. Half dressed, frowny women, bold, bad boys, haggard men, and some leg- gedy girls you ever behold, all join in a wild endeavor for precedence. As if by magic the old shoal of a factory swarms with paint- ing, merrers and sounds with the hum of voices and the merry chatter and clamor of welcome toil. From the sloops the herring are unloaded by rope and tackle upon the wharves, one basket at a time, "tally" being kept by both the boatman and the "boss" of the cutting shed.

FILLING THE BOXES. Under the cutting shed are a large number of cutting tables, around which are gathered old and young of all sorts, those men and lads are in the majority. The herring are dumped upon these tables promiscuously, and the cutters spring to their work with wonder- ful celerity, their knives flashing savagely, and every "click" upon the raised edge of the table completing its work upon one fish. To the right of each is a box, holding about one-third of a bushel, and to the left a bar- rel. Every time the knife descends the tail end of a herring flies into the box and the head and entrails into the barrel. Cutters are paid about five cents per box for this work. The activity, however, is remark- able, and there is no cessation of effort until the last herring is disposed of. As fast as the cutters' boxes are filled the fish are sorted. There are two sizes, "oils" and "mustards." The former are the smaller, delicate fish, packed in oil, 100 boxes to the case, and the latter comprise the large herring, preserved in preparations of French and German mustard, fifty boxes to the case. The fish are now transferred to the "pickling room" and placed in half bushels of brine, where they remain for a half hour, and are then "flaked," "flaking" consisting of partially drying the fish. This is done by placing the herring in single layers upon "flakes," about four feet square, made of tri- angular white hesh slats held together by light wooden ribs. This is done either in the sun or in electric ovens. After the flak- ing comes the "frying" process. The fish are piled upon perforated iron or wire screen like pans two or three tiers deep, when about a half dozen of these are lowered into great cauldrons of boiling oil. Here they remain for perhaps half an hour, they are then "drained," thoroughly cooled and then con- veyed to the packing tables. Beside each packer are great piles of shining boxes with loosened lids. Small boxes con- stantly pass from table to table sud- denly squirting a portion of oil from great cans into each of the open boxes. Pans of fish are continually being set before these women and girls, who handle the delicate morsels with marvelous dexterity and care, filling a box and adjusting the lid—in an age-old way or the wink of an eye, as the Germans would say, for which the average price paid is ten cents per case of 100 boxes. From this room of chatter, laughter and toil they are passed to the sealing room; 5,000 to 10,000 boxes at a time are then subjected to a steam, or boil- ing water "bath" of about three hours' dura- tion; they are again cooled, then "steamed," then shoveled back and forth in great banks of clean sawdust until the boxes shine like polished silver and are then eased ready for the market, good enough for anybody for what they really are, but under the more palatable guise of superior and superior and superior "French" sardines.—Edgar L. Wakeman in New York Mail and Express.

DOCK THINGS OF NEW YORK. A trick of the dock things which is liable to succeed with the shrewdest of travelers is practiced in broad day. As he passes the most attractive approaches to most ocean steamer wharves, a ragged and vicious looking youngster runs up behind him, whips off his hat and is away with it in a jiffy. The most nat- ural thing in the world is to turn and run after him. He leads his victim a smart chase into a wood yard or rough corner, from whose recesses in an instant the gang is out to knock the stranger down, rob him and, perhaps, toss him over the edge of the wharf. —New York World.

LANSSE ITEMS.

The "Cooler" Received Him—Officers of the A. O. U. W.—Hiner Painters Picked Up.

LANSSE, Dec. 8.—Marshal Bechler was encountered by a young man from Calumet last evening who sought a place for a night's lodging. He was immediately conducted to the county's "iron cooler."

THE NEW CLIFTON.

Mr. Volk's New House Opened to the Traveling Public Last Evening.

A MODEL HOTEL IN DESIGN, FINISH AND FURNISHINGS.

Elegant Furnishings, All of the Latest and Handsomest Designs—A Fine Corps of Servants.

The New Clifton. Last night the register of the New Clifton, W. H. Volk proprietor, was opened for the first time, the name of Mr. George E. Lewis, of Grand Rapids, being the first to adorn the book. To-day the house will be fully open to the public, and meals will be served at the regular hours. Last evening a representative of the MINING JOURNAL went through the house from top to bottom. He found it a gem in the hotel line in arrangement, finish and furnishings. It is the best built and most handsomely furnished house on the peninsula, though several others may surpass it in size.

The basement, which lies on a level with front street, is given up in front to handsomely finished, well-lighted sample rooms entered from the street, while in the rear are the furnace and fuel rooms, the laundry and cellars. The second, or main floor of the hotel, is laid in the finest maple throughout, with hard oak finish. All of the interior woodwork is natural finish, and either pine or oak. The office is at the right of the main entrance, and is one of the largest and handsomest rooms in the house. It has a fire-place and marble mantel, and is very well lighted. The counter encloses one corner and is of oak, while the other furniture is antique oak, which is used throughout the house except in two or three rooms on the top floor. Off from the office is the wash room.

Across the wide hall from the office is the reading room, carpeted with Brussels; the writing table is a beautiful piece of work in polished oak, and the chairs are finer than those found in most of the private residences in any town. Next to the reading room, and on the same side of the hall, is the ladies' ordinary, or private dining room, large enough to accommodate a party of twelve or fourteen.

The main dining room is at the end of the front hall and extends clear across the building. It is a handsome room; the floor is polished until it is as smooth as glass, while a mantel and fire-place at one end and an elegant sideboard at the other, with the antique oak tables, tall high-backed chairs and oak "dinner wagons" make it the handsomest room of the kind in the peninsula. The room is 30x45 feet in size, and is unbroken by pillar or post. The tables were set for sixty places last evening, and more could easily be provided.

Entering the rear part of the house from the dining room the first room is the washroom for silver and glassware, the next the washroom for china. Next on the north side of the building is the pastry room, provided with one of Reid's patent combination bakers, manufactured at Buffalo. The thermometer, which is affixed to the baker like a water gauge, showed a temperature within the ovens of 300 degrees Fahrenheit at the time of the reporter's visit and the four ovens are heated with only one hod of coal per day. Hot and cold water faucets are placed in the pastry room as well as in the washrooms.

The kitchen is 18x25 feet in size and contains the big hotel range and broilers which did such excellent service in the old Clifton, a large steam table with its own heating apparatus, the covers working from pulleys in the ceiling, and a large plate warmer. In the arrangement of the kitchen, the most important corner of a hotel, Mr. Sweat, the architect, has achieved a splendid success, everything being planned for the easy and economical preparation of food for a large household and no convenience being wanting. Off from the kitchen is the servants' dining room, a well-lighted room, nicely carpeted and furnished, while further back is the servants' parlor, carpeted with Brussels and finely furnished for use as a sitting room or visitors' room for the servants. Three rooms for the cooks and house servants are arranged in the northwest corner of the building, connected with the kitchen by a passage way. Just off the kitchen, by the rear entrance, is the refrigerator room, with storage for ice above. The room is 11 feet long, 4 wide and 7 feet high, with ventilators in the ceiling.

There are thirty-two sleeping rooms in the house on the third and fourth floors besides the rooms for Mr. Volk's family and for the help. The two smallest rooms in the house are 10x17 feet in size. The rooms are all furnished alike, though of course the furniture in the large front rooms is richer than that in the small rooms, while the design is the same. Each room contains a large double bedstead, a dresser and a commode with marble tops, a wardrobe, center table, a comfortable couch, a rocker and three chairs, every piece being of antique oak, handsomely designed and finished. Every room is carpeted with Brussels, as are all the halls and, in fact, the entire building, no other carpeting being used. Each room on the third floor has its separate radiator, while the halls have radiators. Every window in the building has inside blinds, and in all the sleeping rooms there are besides handsome curtains hung on rods. The chamber sets are all of finely decorated ware.

All the rooms on the third floor are in suites. The parlor is a large room on this floor in the northwest corner of the building and connected with the hall by a curtained arch. The room contains a fine mantel and grate and is all in its finishing that could be desired in a model hotel like the New Clifton. The family rooms of the proprietor are farther back on the other side of the hall, the suite consisting of three large rooms. The large stairways are among the handsomest features in the building and lead from the basement, floor by floor, up through to the fourth floor.

The house is built of solid brick, and in its construction the builder, Mr. J. B. Sweat, has surpassed himself. The interior finish cannot be excelled, while the admirable arrangement of the building, every inch of space being utilized, has already been mentioned. The hotel is heated with the Haxton apparatus so popular on the peninsula, I. E. Swift, of Ishpeming, having put in the boilers and steam fixtures. E. T. Drow, of this city, attended to all the finishing and decorating, and the plumbing was done by H. J. Hopkins. The house has bath rooms and every convenience in that line. A fine and thorough system of electric bells and fire alarms was put into the house by Mr. Healy, the Marquette representative of the Detroit electrical works. The fire gongs in the hall would awaken every inmate of the house instantly if a fire alarm was sounded.

The furnishing of the house is splendid throughout. All of the furniture is of the latest design and finest finish. It was supplied by the New England Furniture company of Grand Rapids, and set up by the vice-president of the company, Mr. G. E. Lewis. Not a single piece was scratched or marred in the shipment from the factory to the hotel. The carpets, bedding, table linen, etc., are from Mandel Bros., Chicago, and the chamber sets, dining room outfit and all the china from W. K. Stafford & Co., of Milwaukee.

Mr. Volk has a fine corps of servants already on hand. The cooks are from Milwaukee and have the best of reputations, while many of the other servants are known in upper peninsula hotel circles as the best to be found. James H. Baker is the porter and runner for the new house, and Mat. Fay, the faithful nightwatch of the old Clifton, holds the same position in the New Clifton. The citizens of Marquette are cordially invited by Mr. Volk to call and look through the house for themselves at an early date. They will find it an elegant hotel in every respect and will probably decide that the MINING JOURNAL has not succeeded in doing it full justice. May the new hotel prosper and its years be many.

A Marquette Author. The manuscript of a book to be entitled "Life and Public Papers of Joe Du Flote," by J. J. Finney, of this city, has been completed and the work goes upon the MINING JOURNAL presses tomorrow. The book will be a handsome volume of 300 or 350 pages and will be out in January. It will deal largely with the early history of Marquette with many sketches of French-Canadian life and character, introducing the personal recollections and philosophical musings of the noted Joseph and making the public more fully acquainted with the traits of the "tween babbe."

The articles in the French-Canadian dialect which have appeared from time to time in the MINING JOURNAL over the signature of "Joe Du Flote" have been widely read and widely copied, furnishing a vast fund of amusement for those acquainted in even the slightest degree with the dialect in which they were written. Their author, Mr. Finney, has been repeatedly urged to either collect them into book form or else to write a book in the dialect of which he is such a master. This has finally led to the work which is now ready for the printer's hands and upon which Mr. Finney has been busy for several months past. An edition of 5,000 copies will be issued, handsomely printed and finely illustrated, and the book will surely meet with a ready sale not only in this part of the state but wherever the French-Canadian dialect has made itself known and appreciated.

The following program will be presented by the C. L. S. C. in the Y. M. C. A. chapel this evening. As it is public a very hearty invitation is extended to all interested in such work to come and enjoy a profitable evening. The evening will be a memorial of the poet Milton:

Death of Fred Taylor. John F. Taylor, son of H. C. Taylor, died at his father's residence on Washington street this morning at 1 o'clock, aged 32. Mr. Taylor had been in poor health a year or so, his trouble originating in a disorder of the throat, leading to consumption. He was seriously ill after the Clifton House fire last Christmas from exposure, but recovered sufficiently to go to Texas in February for his health, returning in June. He could not stay the progress of the disease, however, and for the last few months suffered severely. He leaves a wife and three little children. Further announcement will be made to-morrow.

A Canadian Bottom Wanted. It is now stated that the big ferry boat being built for the Straits of Mackinac in connection with the South Shore railway will not be finished in time for use this season, and according to the reports president McMillan has telegraphed Senator Stockbridge to the effect that he can find no boat suitable for the work which he can substitute except a Canadian bottom, and he asks the senator to secure a permit for him from the treasury department for the use of such a vessel.
