LAND FORFEITURE.

Some Important Amendments Added To The Bill In Yesterday's Session.

THE ANIMAL INDUSTRY BILL MEETS WITH DETERMINED OPPOSITION.

Wilson, of West Virginia, Wins Applause on His Tariff Debate—A Brilliant and Eloquent Effort.

THE SENATE.

LAND FORFEITURE BILL.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The senate resumed consideration of the railroad land grant forfeiture bill, the question being on the amendment offered yesterday by Mr. Hoar.

Mr. Hoar withdrew his amendment with the explanation that Mr. Palmer desired to offer one which would accomplish what he (Hoar) intended to accomplish and something else.

Mr. Palmer thereupon offered an amendment providing that the act shall not be construed to prejudice any right of the Portage Lake Canal company, or the Ontonagon & Brule River Railway company, or anybody claiming under them, to apply hereafter to the courts or to congress for any legal or equitable relief to which they may now be entitled, or to prejudice any right of forfeiture or recovery of the United States in respect to any of the lands claimed by such companies, nor to prejudice the right of any person claiming adversely to these aid companies or their assigns.

Mr. Berry opposed the excepting of any railroad company from the operation of the bill and therefore moved to strike out of the amendment all reference to the Ontonagon & Brule River Railroad company.

The amendment was rejected—yeas 20—and Mr. Palmer's amendment agreed to.

Mr. Spooner offered an amendment, as a new section, declaring that when any forfeited railroad lands in Michigan have been disposed of by the proper officers of the United States under color of the public land laws, the right and title of all persons holding under such disposals, (and who have purchased without fraud) shall be confirmed.

Mr. Palmer moved to amend the amendment so that it shall not apply to the sales or entries of land upon which there were bona fide pre-emption or homestead claims on the first of January, 1888. Agreed to.

Mr. Palmer moved to amend Mr. Spooner's amendment by declaring that no sales or entries be confirmed to the prejudice of any pre-emption or homestead claims now valid under the laws of the United States and which were existing January 1, 1888.

After a long discussion the bill went over without action on the amendment and will be taken up to-morrow at the close of the morning's business.

One of the last statements made connection with the matter was that in the report of the house committee on public lands, from which Mr. Berry was quoting at the time, was written by Mr. Redington, the Washington lawyer, who has been mentioned during the discussion.

The senate then resumed the consideration of the bill to establish a bureau of animal industry.

Mr. Palmer addressed the senate in support of the bill saying he hoped the bill would pass. If it did not, he would, at least, have the satisfaction of having acquitted himself of his duty.

Mr. Vest spoke against the bill. He said it would be impossible to support the bill. Talking about trusts, Mr. Vest said the cattle pool of Chicago was the most infamous pool that ever existed in the United States.

Mr. Plumb also spoke against the bill. In his opinion the worst combination in the country was the combination of the beef and pork packers having their headquarters in Chicago. There was no trust or combination, Standard Oil trust, sugar trust, copper trust or any other trust, that had so powerful or so baneful an influence as that combination. They regulated prices to suit themselves. He could never think of supporting the bill.

The bill then went over, and after an executive session the senate adjourned until Monday.

THE HOUSE.

THE DAY'S DEBATE.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The house went into committee of the whole, Mr. Springer in the chair, on the tariff bill.

Mr. Wilson (W Va), a member of the ways and means committee, said the opponents of the bill represented the issue to be between free trade and protection. It was rather the effort of the people to recover the right to tax themselves. The time was when the test of loyalty to the country was devotion to the union in the struggle for its preservation. Lately, however, the country had been told that even a McClellan and a Hancock must be ranked as allies of the confederacy because of their disloyalty to a particular party; but in this debate a new test had been set and we heard the name of a citizen who stands before the world as the foremost living representative of American literature, with a long and honorable record in the public service behind him, a poet, whose words in the days of the past like Luther's words had been "battles" for freedom, connected with that of Benedict Arnold because he would not bow down to the fetish of protection. Mr. Kelley had called his democratic colleagues "bourbons" and then almost immediately had said that he would deal with the surplus after the principles of Colbert and his great pupil, Emperor Napoleon. But Colbert was the minister of the

and neither Colbert nor Napoleon were teachers to whom the citizens of a free republic could turn for instruction. It was Colbert who built up his master's navy by chaining to the galleys thousands of innocent citizens, just as protection built up monopoly by chaining millions of farmers and laboring men to its service. It was Colbert who defined the art of taxation to consist in "so plucking the goose as to get the greatest possible amount of feathers with the least possible amount of squalling." There never had been a more apt or complete definition of the protective tariff. In discussing the question of the rates of wages Mr. Wilson referred to the remarks of Mr. Allen (Mass) as to the prosperity of the wage earners of Lowell. He wanted to compare the condition of the Lowell operatives under the Walker tariff and their condition under the present tariff. To show their condition

UNDER A REVENUE TARIFF

he quoted from Dickens' "American Notes" an extract highly complimentary of the prosperity and intelligence of the workmen and women of Lowell, and to show the reverse of the picture he quoted an extract from Pigeon's "Old World Questions and New World Answers" in which the condition of the Lowell operatives is drawn in dark colors. Continuing, Mr. Wilson said the gentleman from Massachusetts (Lodge) had written the life of Alexander Hamilton and he also wanted to bring that gentleman's recollection to the following extract written before politics had taken possession of him: "In the year 1791, Hamilton was a protectionist; at the present day he would probably be foremost in urging a revision of the tariff." (Applause)

Mr. Lodge was glad that the gentleman had read the passage for he had not changed his views.

Mr. Wilson (reading)—"He (Hamilton) would be a moderate protectionist but not one of those who support a heavy duty in order to furnish to industries already firmly established, a protection, which accrues solely to the benefit of the manufacturer and no one else." (Laughter and applause)

Mr. Wilson—That was written since '42, (Laughter).

Mr. Lodge—What is the date of that book.

Mr. Wilson—1883.

Mr. Lodge—The copy right date.

Mr. Wilson—1882.

Mr. Lodge—That was before the revision of 1883. (Renewed laughter).

Mr. Wilson—When that was written the average tariff in this country was 42.65 per cent and now it is 47.1 per cent. (Applause)

Mr. Boutelle asked Mr. Wilson how high the wages of farm laborers were in West Virginia.

Mr. Wilson—Not as high as they would be if they had protection off. (Applause).

Mr. Wilson in conclusion said the fight will go on. There will be no industrial peace in the country until the tax laws are established upon a basis, fair to all. (Applause.) "You may strike down the leaders of this fight as you did in the last and previous congress. Those who hold the standard may fall but other hands will take it up and move forward. The spirit of our intelligence is behind us. The spirit of liberal liberty is behind us. The destiny and greatness of this country urges us forward; and in the language of our speaker: 'Whoever may falter, whoever may fall, the people of the country mean that its glorious destinies shall be preserved, shall be transmitted unimpaired to posterity, and that the country shall not belong to monopolists on the one hand or to communists on the other, but shall be, as it was designed to be, of the people, for the people and by the people.'"

As Mr. Wilson concluded he was rapturously applauded by his party friends, while many republicans joined in the compliment, and amid the cries of "vote" the members crowded around Mr. Wilson and warmly congratulated him upon his speech.

Mr. Dingley (Maine) spoke against the bill and Mr. McKinney (N.H.) in its favor. The committee then rose and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS.

A SECRET SESSION.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The senate in secret session discussed the Chinese treaty an hour and a half. Senators Sherman and Stewart favored it and Senator Mitchell opposed it. No action was taken.

The president has vetoed the bill granting a pension to Emily G. Mills.

Theodore F. Dwight, librarian of the state department, has tendered his resignation to take effect June 1st, and it has been accepted.

Quarreled Over Property.

PORT HURON, May 3.—Fred Kruger and Fred Haar, living at Sandusky, Sanilac county, quarreled over some property. Haar shot Kruger, wounding him so badly that he died shortly after. A young son of Haar was badly shot during the melee. Haar has been arrested.

INDIANA REPUBLICANS WILL SUPPORT HARRISON FOR PRESIDENT.

Two Conventions in Little "Rhodie"—Democrats Everywhere a Unit For Cleveland—A Blaine Resolution.

PRELIMINARY CONVENTIONS.

INDIANA REPUBLICANS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 3.—The republican state convention opened this morning and elected delegates to the national convention. Resolutions were unanimously carried endorsing Harrison for the presidency.

LITTLE RHODIE REPS.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 3.—The republican state convention to-day elected delegates to the national convention.

PENNSYLVANIA PROHIBITS.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 3.—The state prohibition convention reassembled to-day. Resolutions endorsing Christian B. Fiske for president were adopted and the convention adjourned.

NEW JERSEY DEMOCRATIC.

TRENTON, N. J., May 3.—The democratic convention for the selection of delegates to the national convention assembled at noon. The platform reaffirms the principles laid down by the last democratic convention; stands by the tariff plank of that platform and recognizes the wisdom of President Cleveland. The platform makes no mention of the president's tariff message.

IDAHO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, May 3.—The territorial republican convention met here and elected delegates to the national convention. The delegates are not instructed. The platform opposes the effort of the democratic party to place lead on the free list and extends to unhappy Ireland heartfelt sympathy in her heroic struggle for home rule, and urges upon congress the necessity of rendering public aid to the territory of the United States.

UNION LABOR CONVENTION.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 3.—The union labor party held their state convention to-day and nominated S. H. Pierson for governor.

THEY ARE FOR GROVER, ALSO.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—All the counties in the state have selected delegates to the state convention which nominates the delegates to the St. Louis convention. Out of 137 counties only two objected to the president's tariff message. The others specially instructed the delegates to vote, not only for President Cleveland, but for his tariff views as well. Senator Colquhoun was unanimously recommended for re-election.

INSTRUCTED FOR ALGER.

DETROIT, May 3.—The first district republican convention, held to-day, elected H. M. Duffield and John Atkinson as delegates to the Chicago convention. They were instructed for General Alger.

RHODE ISLAND REPUBLICANS.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 3.—The republican state convention met to-day and elected delegates to the national convention. The platform favors liberal pension legislation; declares in favor of protection and closes: "Finally we offer our salutations and best wishes to that sound republican statesman and brilliant leader in the last national campaign—Hon. James G. Blaine, and regret that he decided to withdraw his name as a candidate before the next national convention. We pledge the earnest and undivided efforts of those whom we represent to secure the election of any republican who may be nominated by the convention."

GOING BACK IN DROVES.

The Knights Give up The Fight at the Edgar Thomson Steel Works.

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—The great strike at the Edgar Thomson Steel works at Braddock was declared off this afternoon by district master workman Doyle, of the Knights of Labor.

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—The strike of the Edgar Thomson steel works is at an end, although it has not yet been officially declared off, as was reported. Master workman Doyle says the report was premature, but intimated that such action would be taken at the meeting to be held at Braddock to-morrow. The strikers are unquestionably beaten as the works are running in every department and the old men are going back to work in droves. Fully five hundred made applications for their old positions to-day. Monday the works will be started double turn and will run to their fullest capacity. Everything is quiet and the Pinkerton men will be sent home Monday.

Copper Market Lively.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The copper market was active this morning and one prominent broker took 150,000 pounds, May delivery, at 16.50.

Old Board Re-Elected.

DETROIT, May 3.—A meeting of the Michigan Central railroad stockholders was held this morning. The old board of directors and officers was re-elected. The Vanderbilt party left for the east at the conclusion of the meeting.

By Acclamation.

CINCINNATI, O., May 3.—Hon. Wm. S. Holman was nominated for congress by the democratic convention of the Fourth district to-day by acclamation.

REPORTORIAL PENCILINGS.

Marquette is enjoying her Indian winter. Pencilings has hedged on his Fourth of July first boat bet.

Pile driving on the D., S. S. & A. dock extensions here will be finished to-day.

A Michigan blizzard is toying with the unfortunate Smoky City base ball players.

The U and I club will meet at the residence of Mrs. D. H. Ball this evening for a "musical evening."

The Smith Moore, now loading at St. Ignace, is taking Champion ore, not Republic as stated.

A Marquette man declares that there are only three months in the year here, July, August and Winter.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Blue Iron Mining Co. will be held at the company's office in this city on Tuesday, May 15th, at 2 P. M.

Yesterday was a mid-winter howliday for the people of Marquette, so intense was their disgust at seeing the ground covered with snow again.

M. R. Manhard received a telegram yesterday informing him that his bid on the steam fitting for the new Gobeck county court house at Bessemer had been accepted.

Miss Constance Shier entertained a number of her friends last evening at her home on North Front street, the evening being passed with dancing, music and games.

One hundred ore handlers struck at Cleveland Tuesday, because Pickands, Mather & Co. reduced the wages 10 cents per ton. At Ashabua and Fairport, last season, 7 1/2 cents per ton was paid.

The temperature readings at the U. S. signal station yesterday, 7th meridian time, were: 7 A. M., 34 degrees; 3 P. M., 34 degrees; 10 P. M., 35 degrees; maximum temperature, 39 degrees; minimum temperature, 33 degrees.

The maddest lot of men in Michigan are those who took contracts last fall to keep some of Marquette's sidewalks clear of snow for the season. Since yesterday they have made up their minds that they are stuck on a 12 months job.

In the U. S. district court yesterday Matthias Peterson, of Houghton, tried for trespass on government land, confessed taking timber to the value of $100. In accordance with the law he was fined three times the value of the timber.

Yesterday the steamer City of Duluth began loading at Chicago for points on Lake Superior, and may leave that port for Milwaukee above on Saturday evening. Considerable freight is accumulating for her at Duluth. The J. L. Hurd will follow the Duluth.

A jolly party of friends dropped in at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Green on West Michigan street last night, the occasion being a surprise party for Mr. Green in honor of his birthday. A very pleasant evening was passed, music being present for dancing.

Mr. J. H. Jacobs exhibited in the MINING JOURNAL office yesterday a fine composite photograph showing the full length of his dock at the Portage Entry quarries and his shipping facilities there. The dock as extended this winter is 1,450 feet long and has four immense derricks so that four vessels can load at the same time.

Mr. Charles A. Towne has been notified of the death of Lansing of Charles D. Wiley, aged 22, the cousin of Mrs. Towne, who was called to Lansing by his illness a few days ago. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1886 and was one of the brightest and most popular young men in Lansing.

Through mislaid notes in this office the MINING JOURNAL neglected yesterday morning to refer to a very pleasant social event which took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Ball on Ridge street. It was a quiet, but largely attended reception in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, most of those who take pride in being the "old settlers" of Marquette and who were here at the time of Mr. and Mrs. Ball's marriage, being present. Although no reference was made to the occasion in the invitations there were still many who had kept track of the anniversary and remembered it in silver. Mr. and Mrs. Ball were married by Rev. Mr. Phelps, father of Miss Clara Phelps and P. W. Phelps.

Mrs. J. B. Sweat returned yesterday from a visit to Chicago.

W. C. Brown and W. D. Manness returned yesterday from business trips.

M. E. Wadsworth, the director of the Michigan Mining company, is in the city.

Will Wheatley has returned from his lower Michigan farm to prepare for his season as keeper of the Granite Island light.

THE MILKY WAY.

IT HAS BEEN THE SUBJECT OF MANY STRANGE BELIEFS.

Its Name Among the Earlier Nations. What the Pythagoreans Said—An Old Legend—Some Popular Traditions—Another Class of Names.

Like the rainbow, that beautiful occasional visitor in the heavens, the Milky Way has been the subject of many strange beliefs. It is, perhaps, the most prominent constant appearance in the firmament, and could not fail to give rise to much conjecture as to its origin, its composition and its raison d'etre. Its name among the earlier nations of Europe indicates the popular belief in its fabulous origin, and has descended to many modern languages. It was called by the Greeks "Milk," "Heavenly Milk," "Galaxy" (milky) and "Milk Circle," the two last named appellations being applied to it by the Romans. It was also called "Milky River" in Latin, and "Milky Way." The latter name is its ordinary one in Italian, French, German, Dutch, Gaelic, Welsh, Flemish, Magyar, Romance, Arab and Hebrew. It is called "Galaxy" in English, Italian and Westphalian, and this was its name in France in the Eighteenth century, and in the Lower Latin empire.

In middle age German and Westphalian dialects the bright band was called "Milk Street," in North Germany, "Milk Road" and "Milk Path," while the name "Road as White as Milk in Heaven" was given to it in Poland. An old Scotch name, the "Milkmaid's Path," would seem to have its origin in some other legend.

The path thus formed across the heavens became, in Greek belief, the celestial road traveled by the gods. Pythagoreans held that souls dwell therein, and that by this road they descended to men in dreams. Manichæans believed that pure souls only abode in the bright path, and by it ascended and descended to and from the earth. Thus the Milky Way, like the rainbow, was a bridge of souls by night, as the latter was by day. Magyars call it "Night Path" and "Milk Path," while the name "Road as White as Milk in Heaven" was given to it in Poland. An old Scotch name, the "Milkmaid's Path," would seem to have its origin in some other legend.

An old legend asserts that the galaxy is the ladder by which Jacob saw the angels descend and ascend in his dreams. In Swabian belief they still use it as a way to earth, but no one sees them. Lattau says many American tribes call it the "Way of Souls." Waltz tells us that the Ojib of Africa name it the "Way of Souls," and say that by it the good will ascend to heaven. Fatagionians say the stars are the souls of old Indians and the galaxy a road by which they chase ostriches.

It is called the "Road to Rome," in Persia, in middle age German, and in Czech. In parts of England it is the "London Road," while in Germany, it goes under the various names of "Frankfurt Road," "Cologne Road," "Nierenberg Road," and "Road to Aix-la-Chapelle." A common Turkish name for the bright track is the "Pilgrim's Road" (to Mecca). It is called the "Wagon Path" in North Germany, and was the "Winter Road" in ancient Rome, while Magyar peasants name it the "Tsigane's Way." A second Turkish name is the "Road of the Trembling Wanderers," and Welsh tradition gives it the appellation of the "Road of the Prodigal Son." In Swabian and Magyar folk nomenclature, the broad way is the "Army Road." Sometimes popular tradition connects the galaxy with animals, instead of men or gods. Thus it becomes the "cow path" and the "fox's trail" in parts of England. Siamese legends, which connect many things with their favorite animal, designate it as the "Road of the White Elephant." Similarly, in Polynesia it is the "Blue Shark," and is thought to be nourished by the clouds.

Naturally, these legends would connect the shining track across the heavens with the flight of birds. It is called "Bird's Path" in the Gallician, Esthonian and Finnish. Wendic legends go further still, and assert that it guides the migratory birds in their flight from clime to clime.

Another class of traditional names characterizes the broad shining tract as a river, flowing through the celestial regions. The great Humboldt recorded the fact that the Arabs designated it, and named it the constellation Sagittarius, "the animal that is going to water," part of that group of stars lying across the Galaxy. Peasants in Cyprus call it the "Jordan River" or the "Shadow of Jordan." An old Greek poem of the Fifteenth century alludes to it by the same name. Siberian Koriks called it the "Broad River," and its name among the Gingsi, an Australian tribe, is "Worambul," signifying a great river flowing by a rich Eden full of fruits, where it is believed the souls of the good go after death. Another Australian tribe calls it "Paracostu," and say it is a stream on whose banks the soul resorts after death to be washed white. Chinese call the starry band the "Celestial River." Ammenses the "Silver River," and its name in Scotch Gaelic was the "White River of the Stars." The natives of English Guiana call the Milky Way the "Sea."—Globe Democrat.

The Amir's Wine Party. It is a general idea that the nations of the east are singularly temperate as compared with those of the west. This is not exactly so, as many travelers well know. A native historian thus describes a little wine party that was given by a great eastern emperor of the Sixteenth century.

"The amir said to Abd-ul-Razzak: 'Shall we drink a little wine?' Accordingly, much wine was brought into the garden and fifty goblets placed in the middle of a small tent. The amir drank ten, Suja Bura nine, and both were borne away. Bu-Nain drank twelve and ran off; when the kwaja had drunk twelve cups he made his obeisance and said to the amir: 'If you give your slave any more he will lose his respect to your majesty as well as his own wits.' The amir laughed, and went on drinking. He drank twenty-seven goblets; he then arose and called for a basin of water and his praying carpet, washed his face and recited the midday prayers as well as the afternoon ones, and he so acquitted himself that you would not have thought that he had drunk a single cup; he then returned to the palace on an elephant."—Philadelphia Times.

What They Did at The Council Meeting Held Wednesday Evening.

Mining Notes—Band Matters—Almost Too Many Immigrants—Personal and Other Notes.

Common Council.
 A regular meeting of the common council was held Wednesday evening.

A petition from Manville Jenks and others, asking that the flag staff on the city square, "which has long survived the period of usefulness and has fallen into a state of ruinous decrepitude," be removed was read, and, on motion, the petition was referred to the purchasing committee, with power to act.

The petition of John Bodin, asking for a free peddler's license, was referred to the committee on finance.

A petition from S. Lavigne, asking for a peddler's license for $20, was granted.

A petition asking for the extension of the water mains from Division street to the end of South Fourth street was referred to the proper committee.

The petition of Ole West, asking to be relieved from the office of poundmaster, was read, and the resignation accepted.

The petition of M. Cassin and others, asking that the road running over Bar-num hill be put in proper condition, was referred to the committee on streets.

Bids for furnishing supplies were read as follows: From the Deer Lake company, good common 2 and 8-inch plank, 2x4 or 4x4 scantling, or any other piece stuff needed in building sidewalks or crosswalks, at $13.50 per thousand, dressed on one side, or $12 per thousand undressed. From O. B. Robinson, agent for F. W. Read & Co., lumber at same figures.

I. E. Swift offered to supply nails at $2.35 per keg, from May 1st to Dec. 31st, '88. J. W. Joachim offered nails at $2.50 per keg.

Bids were referred to the purchasing committee, with power to act.

New bills were read, and bills referred at last meeting were reported on and allowed.

The committee on streets asked for further time to consider the petition of John Burder and others, relative to the extension of Oak street. Granted.

On request of the chairman of the committee on fire department, further time was granted for the consideration of the matter of appointing special fire police, as there had been no meeting of the fire department since the last meeting of the common council.

The committee on finance reported favorably on the bonds furnished by the city treasurer, and on motion the bonds were accepted and ordered placed on file.

The police reports of justices Kennedy and Lindholm were found correct and accepted.

The special committee on city hall asked for further time to report, and the request was granted.

Moved and carried, that the recorder be instructed to furnish at the next meeting the petitions for the extension of water mains, presented last fall.

Moved and carried, that the recorder be instructed to make his finance report up to May 1st, and present the same at the next meeting.

The committee on fire department reported that a portion of the roof on the fire engine house is in very poor condition, and is leaking badly. Referred to same committee, with power to act.

Moved and carried that the street commissioner appoint a suitable man for pound-master, to hold the position until next meeting of the council.

The following liquor bonds were read and accepted: Nicholas Losselyong, principal, with Joseph Loth and Herman F. Heyn as sureties; Charles P. Sodergren as principal, with Alex W. Myers and Haver Rauchs as sureties; Ingier J. Meelhus as principal, with James Black-ney and William Andrews as sureties.

The council then adjourned.

Closed Down.
 Two shafts of the Mitchell mine have been closed down, and only one shaft will be worked in the one that will be worked. At the Winthrop mine a full force is kept at work. Only one shaft will be wrought at the Mitchell till further sales of ore are made. The mining force at the two mines is being reorganized, and it is hoped to give employment to all of the men within a few days.

Musical Matters.
 Gitchee Gumece band has recently admitted several new members, among whom are Mr. Henry Thomas, late of Patterson, N. J., a cornet player of more than ordinary ability, and Mr. Albert Whitford, who has just returned to Ishpeming after an absence of several months. Mr. Whitford was elected cornet soloist. A new solo alto player has also been added to the band within the past few days, and new red and white plumes, to match the band uniforms have been ordered.

This band is one of the best in the peninsula, and is constantly improving. The members are not only good performers, but cultivate harmony in their relations as well as in a musical way, and maintain an organization that is strong because united. It is an institution of which the city justly feels proud.

Considerable ore is going forward from the mines by way of the C. & N. W. and D. S. & A. railways. Shipping will begin in earnest in about ten days.

Two inches of snow fell in this city early Thursday morning.

Immigrants.
The number of immigrants arriving in Ishpeming is actually startling. This city is apparently the distributing point for the thousands of foreigners who come every year to the upper peninsula. In point of numbers the Finnish immigrants come first, but many Swedes, Norwegians, Canadian-French, as well as representatives of other nationalities, come here. On Wednesday one hundred Finns arrived direct from Europe, and more are to follow. The Finns are now numerous in all of the iron and copper mining towns of the district, and promise to become even more so within the next few years.

The immigration is partly offset by the steady exodus of Scandinavians, who leave here to settle on farms in Minnesota, Dakota and California. These men take from $500 to $5,000 each from the city while the newcomers arrive empty-headed.

A number of Select Knights from Neenah legion, came to Ishpeming Thursday afternoon to attend the funeral of Ingebrigt Wold, but owing to the bad weather and muddy streets, they did not parade in uniform.

Prof. J. Hart, the mighty magician and mesmerist, concluded a three nights' entertainment at the opera house Wednesday evening. Low prices of admission and numerous presents drew crowded houses.

The funeral of the late Ingebrigt Wold was held on Tuesday afternoon as announced, and was largely attended. Deceased was about 28 years of age and leaves a brother and sister.

Members of the "Sir. Humphry" Lodge, Sons of St. George, are talking of building a hall. Their present quarters, in the Temple of Honor hall, Heinemann building, are altogether too small.

The members of the Ishpeming club are getting to feel at home in their new quarters in the Jenks block. The club has very handsome rooms and furniture and ought to feel pleased with its surroundings.

The Kilworth mine, southwest of this city, is looking very well. As the mine is owned by local capitalists, the MINING JOURNAL hopes it will turn out to be the biggest thing in the county.

Nels Nelson leaves to-day for Wisconsin, where he will buy two car-loads of cows. They will be placed on sale next Friday.

Mr. William J. Duzzo and Miss Eliza J. Thompson were married on Saturday, April 28th, at the Presbyterian parsonage, Rev. C. S. Jacobs officiating.

PERSONAL.

Ira G. Edwards, of Marquette, was in town yesterday afternoon.

John W. Joachim will take a trip to Sweden, and expects to start in a few days.

Jos. S. Fay, general manager of the Lake Superior Iron Co., arrived Thursday from Boston, and will spend a few days in Ishpeming looking after the interests of his mine.

RIDING IN MEXICO.

Lighting a Cigarette While Sitting on a Bucking Horse—The Secret of It.

The great feature of all Mexican riding is looseness of their seat. It is all done by balance. And when I say "all" it means a wonderful deal. I have seen a Mexican named "Louis"—to be sure he was accredited to be the best rider out there, and for my own part I cannot conceive that there can be a better in the world—I have seen that man cross his legs over the horn of the big Mexican saddle, and, throwing the reins on the neck of the horse, calmly roll a cigarette while the horse bucked up and down with him.

I know it is asking a great deal to expect excellence for such a feat as this, but yet, when we consider the pitch of perfection reached by circus riders among our own countrymen, the very much higher degree of excellence attained by one remarkable man out of a nation whose members we may also see are born on horseback, is not altogether beyond the prospect of belief—though there is of course an enormous difference between riding the trained tames in a circus and the mustangs caught wild upon the prairie. The Mexican saddle, with its great stirrups and the horn on which the lasso hangs, gives, of course, very many good points d'appui; but the performances of these Mexicans on bare back are wonderful enough. You see a herd of wild horses driven through the narrow pass of the corral. Your Mexican, with a hair rope in his hand, will drop from the beam above upon the back of the horse it is wished to reclaim to domestic uses.

In an instant he is away, snorting, bellowing, positively shrieking with terror, in the midst of the thundering stampede of his fellows, who are scarce less terrified than himself. He cannot buck, while the herd presses closely upon him. The Mexican leans forward with the rope in both hands, passes it over the horse's head into the wide open mouth, and forces it behind his teeth. Then he takes a turn with it under the lower jaw, and there he has him bit and bridled. After a little over half an hour he comes back with him—broken; not "so that a child could ride him," but so that a Mexican can. Of course they are small horses. I cannot say how the Mexicans would fare with one of these big Australian buckers. They maintain, however, that this loose seat of theirs does not irritate a horse in the way a grip will drop from the beam above upon the back of the horse it is wished to reclaim to domestic uses.

PHYSICAL STRAIN.

PERILS RESULTING FROM EXCESS OF BODILY ACTIVITY.

A Proper Degree of Exercise Necessary to the Well Being of Man—The Jewish Race—Sedentary or Brain Pursuits. Overwork.

Nothing is more absolutely necessary to the well being of man—not only physical, but mental and even moral—than the bodily activity involved in a proper degree of exercise. But, on the other hand, undue strain put upon the physical forces is a potent source of danger. It is a case for the application of the Horatian maxim in regard to moderation. Exactly to define the proper mean is an extremely difficult task. We can, however, offer some suggestions on this point that may prove of use; and we will also touch upon some of the perils resulting from excess. The ancient Greeks have for many centuries supplied the world, among other things, with models of physical culture. The climate permitted them to live largely in the open air; their dress was unrestraining, and they paid great attention to athletic sports and the development and care of the body. They were, as a people, patterns of manly and womanly beauty; their average of health was high, and their longevity good.

The observations made, however, by the physicians of the Greek and Roman schools conclusively show that, wherever physical activity was carried to undue excess among them—as in the case of professional athletes, etc.—the invariable result was premature decay and early death. Excessive physical culture during the age of chivalry furnished the same results. Study of the vital statistics of England, France and Prussia in modern times leads to a similar conclusion. Not only does the point we are urging hold true in the lives of individuals, but it is true of nations and races. Perhaps, as regards tenacity of existence as displayed by a race, the most striking argument in favor of our position to be found in history is the negative testimony furnished by the Jews. This people, since its dispersion, has never in any general, systematic way cultivated its physique. It has never voluntarily borne arms. It has taken no share in the athletic pursuits of the nations among whom it has been placed. It has never exhibited a high physical standard. Its worst persecutions have, probably, been due, more than anything else, to its apparent corporeal feebleness. Yet today this race, for tenacity and vitality, probably stands first on earth, and even at this late stage of its history still shows a capacity for producing results in literature, science, art, politics and commerce that ranks with the best.

Full vigor of intellect is only properly based upon vigor of body, and this vigor of body results only from proper exercise. It is no unusual thing in colleges to find students standing well both in their studies and in athletics. President Eliot has always been a staunch friend of physical sports, and himself when in college pulled an oar in the university crew. No one can ever look at Joseph Cook, or could ever have looked at Agassiz or Bryant, without at once recognizing the development and solidity of the physical man. Such instances are almost innumerable. But one thing is certain: no man can continually use both his physical and mental powers at anything like their full capacity without soon coming to grief. Human nature was not made for this sort of thing. It is burning the candle at both ends. It is not given to one man to be both an Emerson and a Sullivan.

A man should decide which half of his nature is to have the lead, and then exercise the other half just sufficiently to keep the former in condition and to preserve the proper general balance. If he lives by his brain, let him take physical exercise sufficient to keep his bodily faculties, and by consequence his brain at their best—but not too much. If he lives by his body, a certain admixture of brain occupation will make him not only a larger, but even actually a physically healthier man. A body worn should use this and every other possible precaution against undue physical strain. In both and in all cases overwork of the bodily forces must result in serious harm. The outside may be fair, and the external appearance all that could be desired, but inside there will be decay. Wilkie Collins, in one of his stories, most truly showed how delusive are the seeming soundness and vigor of even the trained athlete, when the call upon his vitality has been too prolonged or too great, or when his physical development has been abnormally forced—how suddenly his apparent robustness disappears, and is replaced by morbid conditions, upon any sudden or extra tension of work or emotion. The case of the man who conquers but finally falls, which has lately attracted so much attention, seems clearly one exactly in point.

For the sake of emphasis we again say: In the case of the man of sedentary or brain pursuits, he should employ his body only enough to keep it active and vigorous, and hence his spiritual faculties bright and keen, without taxing his reserve of vitality. The object is not to use himself up as fast as possible. It is a wasteful and fatal mistake to keep the entire endowment at high pressure. As regards the man employed in bodily labor, it is seldom within his power to control its amount. It may, however, be said that, as soon as he finds the equipoise of his system being disturbed—a fit which will generally reveal itself to him through some pain or feeling of strain in some locality, the unnatural action of some organ or some sensation somewhere that he recognizes as not natural—or as soon as he finds that his physical strength is gradually lessening, he may know that he has passed the limit. In all cases, by systematic and severe physical competition—such as either calls for the exertion of sudden and tremendous force or for prolonged endurance, as occurs in prize fights, rowing matches, walking or running races, etc.—is physiologically unsafe, and from the standpoint of health and longevity should be abolished.

The danger in physical overwork is principally to those portions of the body which are concerned in the involuntary acts of life—that is to say, to the muscles and nervous apparatus employed in circulation, digestion and respiration. At the best these never rest; and when undue labor devolves upon them, they become more or less deranged. They belong to vital organs, and injury to those is of the gravest import. Again, when one or more of the vital organs are in any of its parts seriously affected, all the other portions of our complex bodies which depend upon it or them suffer also. Generally, the heart fails first, and, of all vital organs, it, together with the whole circulatory system, is most likely to suffer from undue physical strain; but sometimes the respiratory organs go as soon, or even earlier. Either way, the digestive apparatus soon follows, and when ruin so vital as this has taken place, death cannot be put off.—Boston Herald.

A CONSIDERATION OF THE PROBLEM BEFORE THE COMMISSION.

Butler Wins a Great Match at The Casino Rink—A Resignation Announced. Other Local News.

The Electric Lighting Problem. By an overwhelming majority the people of Marquette have voted in favor of electric lighting and obedient to the wish thus expressed the new city government as one of its very first acts appointed an electric light commission composed of both councilmen and prominent citizens. It is the belief of the MINING JOURNAL, of the mayor, the common council and of probably every man in the city who has studied the subject that the city should own its own electric lighting plant and furnish light both for the streets and for private consumers. Such being the present status of the matter and all conceding the importance of having the problem settled as soon as possible, it is the aim of this article to review the subject in a general way, touching on some points not hitherto brought into prominence.

To begin with, Marquette could have had all the electric light she wanted fully three years ago if her citizens would have consented to give away valuable franchises as others have done. Marquette has pursued a wise course in the matter and in after years will reap the benefits of her conservatism. In order to own and operate her own lighting plant it will be necessary for the city to go to the legislature and have such powers delegated to it for this purpose by a special act, the charter conferring no such right. There will be no difficulty in securing the passage of such an act but it will be some time yet before another session of the legislature and Marquette wants the light at once. A plan has been proposed, however, by which the city can obtain control of a plant as soon as it wishes.

There is one thing to be considered first, and that is the nature of the plant which the city should put in. As all know there are two kinds of electric lights, arc and incandescent, the former being used for street lighting, halls, stores, factories, machine shops, etc., and the latter exclusively for house, office and store lighting. Despite what advocates of some systems may say it still remains an established fact among electricians that arc and incandescent lights cannot be operated successfully on the same circuit in a plant of any size. In other words to furnish both lights there should be separate plants. Such being the case it would seem advisable for Marquette to put in only the arc system at first as it would fill the most pressing need, and later, when the city has acquired more experience in electric lighting, an incandescent plant could be added, though by that time the storage battery system which is making such headway in Detroit may have become the simplest and most economical method of incandescent lighting, in which case an additional plant would not be necessary as the batteries could be charged by the arc current. The MINING JOURNAL is firmly convinced that the city should not "bite off more, etc.," and that it should attempt first only arc lighting for streets, stores, halls, shops, etc.

There seems to be a general impression that all the city will have to do will be to put in dynamos at the water works, using one of the present engines. This would hardly work. To secure a strong, steady light, and no other is worth a rush, the power must be steady and entirely free from connection with other machinery. The latest improved automatic cut-off engines are also adapted to successful electric lighting. But it is a question with many whether, with such magnificent water powers everywhere about the city, it would be advisable to put in steam power. The first cost of the plant would be slightly increased undoubtedly by utilizing water power, but besides the advantages to be gained by developing some of the great water privileges almost within the city, thus making a start toward a greatly desired end, is the fact that this plan would secure for the city indefinitely the maximum amount of clear, steady electric light at a minimum cost of operating; the plant could be increased in size, too, without additional cost for power, to supply Marquette with light for years to come, no matter how fast the city may develop.

The system to be adopted is a further consideration, but a high tension system should be avoided if possible, because of the great danger to the lives of those in charge of it and to others when wires fall or are crossed. The low tension systems give a white light in contrast to the purple or bluish color of the high tension lights, and death or permanent injury rarely results from contact with the wires—in fact the MINING JOURNAL knows of no instance in which a low tension system has caused death. Then, too, forty per cent more dispersive power is claimed for the low tension light, and it does not flutter or "peck-a-boo," something so annoying in the high tension lights. Simplicity in construction and operation, and electrical efficiency are also two very important points, for Marquette wants the best light she can get. The lamps should be hung on mast arms or by cables over street intersections; the tower system is a failure.

As to cost, the MINING JOURNAL believes that for $35,000 one of the water powers near the city can be utilized and a first-class lighting plant be put in. At this figure it is estimated that the plant would pay for itself in eight years and become a source of income to the city, while at the same time giving the private consumer a cheaper and better light than he could ever obtain from a private corporation. The cost of operating the plant should not be above $3,000 per annum if water power is used, and probably considerably less. Bonds for the full cost of the plant could be placed for twenty years at not above 5 per cent, and long before the bonds matured the plant should have earned enough to redeem the bonds, interest and principal.

At the outset it has been stated that Marquette wants the light at once, also that she must own the plant, but that she will have to await the action of the legislature before having power to own and operate it. There will be a way offered of avoiding this difficulty for the MINING JOURNAL understands that a company which has a system rightly regarded as first-class in every respect, and which concedes that Marquette would be foolish to grant a franchise and permit a private corporation to make money out of her lighting, will make a proposition to the city to the effect that it will go ahead and put in the plant complete on contract, the plant to be accepted by the city when its success is fully demonstrated and the city to purchase it when given power so to do by the legislature. The proposition if so made would appear to be perfectly fair and straightforward and if accepted would be a very successful solution of the problem now puzzling the commission.

Butler's Match.

A small crowd of spectators at the Casino last night witnessed the finest wrestling match ever seen in the city. If the wrestlers had had a house worthy of them the Casino would have been crowded to suffocation. The first event of the evening was a musical effort by two of the Hogan boys, which was pronounced very good. Eddie Hogan, who was matched to wrestle Billy Hicks for a silver cup and the amateur championship, catch-as-catch-can, then appeared with Will Vandenberg as his rival, Hicks being out of the city. The contest that followed was a fine one, both boys showing unexpected science and strength for their age. Vandenberg won the first fall, and the second was given to Hogan, though a fall was claimed for Vandenberg. A long struggle ensued for the third and decisive fall. The referee, Miles Doyle, of Negaunee, finally declared that if neither laid got a fall within ten minutes he should declare the match a draw and at the end of ten minutes he was forced to do so. The match will be decided later.

The long-talked-of match between Ed Butler, the well-known Græco-Roman wrestler, and John McPherson, all-round athlete and champion shot-putter of America, was then called. Butler appeared with Prof. A. K. Roulo, his trainer, as second, while Miles Doyle acted as McPherson's second. W. M. Kelly, who met Butler in a glove contest here a short time ago, was chosen as referee. The toss was won by McPherson, who chose catch-as-catch-can for the first bout. Time was called, and the men entered the contest with a spirit of earnestness which prophesied a great match. Butler acted on the defensive in this style of wrestling until he touched the floor each time, when he was constantly on the alert to get a good hold and try for a fall. His bridging was excellent. Time after time it looked as if one second more would give McPherson the necessary points down, but each time there was a bridge, then a quick twist, and McPherson would be doing the bridge act himself. The bout was not a very long one, for Butler, in one of these plays, rolled Jack down winning the first fall.

The next bout was Græco-Roman and here Butler was at home and McPherson on the defensive. It was a short bout but a very pretty one. Butler ended it by a half Nelson. He was on his knees and the huge muscles of his back could be seen to stiffen and strain until slowly inch by inch McPherson's head was rolled under his body and still under by the gripping arms of his antagonist until his shoulders touched and the fall was Butler's. Both men were heartily cheered, and the spectators were alive with interest for the match was evidently in dead earnest.

The third bout was catch-as-catch-can again, and McPherson went at it wickedly. He worked like a tiger and had evidently made up his mind to win the fall or break something. Time after time Butler bridged successfully, and this seemed to make McPherson's attacks all the hotter. Finally he got a good hold, and raising his 160-pound opponent from the floor, lifted him high above his head by main strength and dashed him to the floor like a log. Butler struck square on the top of his head without a thing to break the terrific force of the throw, but he seemed made of iron, for though he was evidently badly dazed and hurt, he rolled on his face and there was no fall. A great cheer went up at this pluck; there was not a spectator present who would have taken that fall on the hard floor if paid a thousand dollars for it. Two or three times McPherson tried the same thing, but Butler took the other falls on his shoulders, and was not hurt by them though apparently still feeling the effects of the first. Finally as he was rolling over on his face after one of these throws the referee gave McPherson a rolling fall. In the opinion of the majority of those present it was an error, for light could be seen under Butler's hips as he made the turn quick as a flash. He started to protest but seemed to reconsider it and took his corner quietly.

The fourth and decisive bout was Græco-Roman. McPherson made a hard fight for it, but Butler was more at home in that style of wrestling and when Jack had him down saved himself by a bridge and during the struggle managed to fasten to McPherson's left arm. When he began to tighten on it something had to give or a broken arm would have been the result. McPherson didn't want to go but he rolled slowly and soon the referee's rap told that both shoulders had touched in spite of his attempt to bridge. Butler had won his third fall and the match.

After the announcement he stepped to the footlights and challenged any man in Michigan to a Græco-Roman or mixed match, the latter to be two falls his style, two falls the other man's style and the fifth to be named by the one taking the quickest fall. The challenge was immediately accepted by Doyle, of Negaunee, who named catch-as-catch-can and Græco-Roman. The match should take place in Marquette, and it is hoped Butler will ask to have it here. It will be a long time, however, before a better and straighter wrestling match is seen here than that of last night.

Resigned.

Mr. J. B. Wilson, mechanical superintendent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway, announced yesterday to the MINING JOURNAL that he has resigned his position, the resignation to take place thirty days from date. If Mr. Wilson retires permanently from railroading he will probably still remain in Marquette as he has extensive business interests here and at other points on the peninsula.
