IN SECRET SESSION.

The Hoar and Riddleberger Fisheries Treaty Resolutions Badly Snowed Under.

MR. HATCH ADVOCATES THE PASSAGE OF THE MILLS BILL.

Symes, Funston, O'Neill, Thompson and Struble Exercise Their Oratory on the Measure—in the Upper House.

THE HOUSE:

MONDAY'S TARIFF DEBATE.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—After the morning hours the house went into committee of the whole on the tariff bill and was addressed by Mr. Hatch (Mo.). He said that he would be derelict to his duty to the people, faithful to his constituents and disloyal to the agricultural interests of the country, if he neglected to speak earnestly and plainly in what he considered the legislative crisis in the history of the country. He extolled agriculture industry as the most honorable occupation of men and contended that that industry had borne more than its just share of the burdens of the government. No system of taxation could be devised to benefit

ONE CLASS OF PEOPLE that would not bear with harshness on some other class. The protective tariff had inured to the benefit of the manufacturers alone, and the farmers and consuming mass had no share in those benefits. This tax enriched the manufacturers and impoverished the farmers, and yet the claim was made by protectionists that the tariff duty did not increase the cost of an article. He regarded this as too ridiculous to discuss. He was opposed to the present system of protection, and regretted that the pending bill preserved a single feature of that system. The measure was simply a proposition of modification and reduction. He wished that there was a bill before the house based on the principle of EQUALITY AND FAIRNESS, broader and deeper than was involved in the pending proposition. But the principles of protection were fastened on the country, and all that could be hoped for to-day, and all that the bill sought to accomplish, was the reduction of the amount of taxation collected by the government and put into the treasury. He read from a table giving receipts and expenditures of the various nations of Europe, and asserted that no one of them was strong enough to dare to do what the United States was doing to-day—collecting $100,000,000 yearly from taxation in excess of the needs of the government for the benefit of favored classes. The protective system had been conceived

IN GREED AND AVARICE and had been kept up by corruption and fraud. If the gentlemen on the other side would learn a lesson from the past legislative history of the country, they had not only to accept the bill presented them, but to be glad to get it; for if the measure was rejected, in less than twelve months protectionists would give millions of dollars to get as moderate a reduction of taxation. If the mill's bill was not passed by this congress, the voice of the people sweeping throughout the length and breadth of the land would place a membership in the fifty-first congress that would take the protective system and, instead of reducing it as now proposed, would bring it down to point where it would do equal and exact justice to all the interests of the country. The gentlemen representing the agricultural districts of the west who opposed this bill would find

A STORM OF INDIGNATION among their constituents when they got home. He spoke for the farmers of the Mississippi valley when he declared that they almost were unanimous in favor of free wool and a reduction in manufactured woolen goods. He believed there was a fair chance of the house passing the bill now pending. He believed that when the final vote was reached, every democrat would be found to favor the bill. As a democrat, believing in the power of democratic principles to relieve the people from oppression he joyed to-day with exceeding joy that the time was coming and coming quickly, with the bright day's of June, when every democratic knee should and would bow to the overwhelming majority of the democratic party and every democratic tongue would confess to reverse reform as a fundamental principle of the democratic party.

Mr. Symes (Col.) said the president had shown an entire want of comprehension of the whole tariff system when he told the farmer in one paragraph that the protective tariff was wrong, and in the next attempted to show the manufacturer that he would be benefited by placing raw materials on the free list. The president had forgotten or ignored the fact that by placing raw materials on the free list he would ruin the agricultural, the mining and the other industries of the country. He argued that it was the capitalist, the monopolist and the importing merchant and those who derived their income from bonds and other investments who were clamoring for free trade; that it was the employer, the workman and those who built up the industries of the country who demanded the protective tariff. He would protect the laboring men of America first from the importation and immigration of convict and pauper laborers as well as from the importation of the products of their work.

Mr. Funston (Kas) declared himself for American interests as against the balance of the world. He was protectionist. He would protect the United States against foreign invasion, whether by armed force to lay waste the land or by the products of pauper labor to destroy the industries and take away from the American laboring man his employment. He maintained the proposition that the farmer wanted neither an English market nor English goods, and would hail with joy the day when he would have neither.

Mr. O'Neill (Ind) argued in favor of putting lumber, coal and iron on the free list, because he believed that in these products the United States could compete with the world without any tariff upon them.

Mr. Thompson (Ohio) said that the democratic party was absolutely hostile to protection. He said that the best way to get rid of the surplus would be to spend it in rebuilding the navy, in restoring the commercial marine to the proud position it once occupied, in the development and improvement of internal transportation, in the payment of liberal pensions to the old soldiers who made all the promise of our future possible; and the people would not complain; they would sanction it all.

Mr. Struble (La.) spoke against the bill. After which the committee rose and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS.

THE TELEPHONE CASE.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The supreme court to-day denied the application for a rehearing in the telephone case. This application was made by the People's and the Overland telephone companies, who claim that Drawbaugh, and not Bell, was the first inventor of the telephone.

CLOSES SATURDAY.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Mr. Mills (Tex), from the committee on rules, to-day reported, and the house adopted, a resolution providing that the general debate on the tariff bill shall close Saturday next.

WILL SUPPORT MILLS' BILL.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Congressman Henry Smith states that he will vote for the Mills bill. He says he does so because he believes the people cannot be made happy by taxation. "Eld our country of the land, transporting and class monopolies," he says, "and the American mechanic can compete successfully with the balance of the globe."

The senate spent three hours in secret session to-day discussing the Riddleberger resolution for an open consideration of the fisheries treaty, and the Hoar resolution for a stenographic report of the debate to be made public at the option of the senate. Both were defeated—the democrats voting solidly against them and the republicans dividing according to individual preferences. The consideration of the fisheries treaty was further postponed till next Monday.

The senate committee on the judiciary did nothing upon the nomination of Melville W. Fuller to-day except to postpone action on it till next Monday.

The house committee on invalid pensions reported a bill proposing to remove the restriction upon the payment of arrearages of pensions in the case of claims filed before the passage of the bill.

THE SENATE.

BILLS AND AMENDMENTS.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Mr. Stewart introduced a bill proposing an amendment to the constitution so as to reduce from a two thirds to a majority vote in each house overriding the president's vetoes.

Mr. Brown gave notice of an amendment to the river and harbor bill, in reference to the channel at Savannah, Ga. (To increase the appropriation from $90,000 to $250,000.)

The house amendments to the senate bill for a public building at Youngstown, Ohio, was concurred in.

Mr. Hoar, from the committee on privileges and elections, to which had been referred certain resolutions of the joint convention of the two houses of the Indiana legislature concerning the election of Mr. Turple as United States senator, made a report asking to be discharged from further consideration of the resolutions and memorials, thereby confirming the title of Mr. Turple to his seat. He asked that the report, which was unanimous, be printed in the Record.

The senate bill increasing the appropriation for a public building at Winona, Minn., to $175,000 was reported and placed on the calendar.

On motion of Mr. Farwell the senate bill authorizing the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad company to acquire real estate for railway purposes in the District of Columbia was taken up and the debate lasted until 2 o'clock, when the animal industry bill was laid before the senate as the unfinished business, and the presiding officer, presumably under an order agreed upon in executive session last Thursday, ordered the galleries cleared and the doors closed, and the senate proceeded to the consideration of the treaty. When the doors re-opened the senate adjourned.

Will Meet To-Day.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The democratic state convention will meet in this city to-morrow. The state committee to-night chose Frederick R. Coudret, of New York, as temporary chairman. The delegates-at-large to the St. Louis convention will probably be state Senator Raines, Hon. R. P. Flowers, Hugh McLaughlin and Smith M. Weed, or ex-Mayor Cooper.

DETROIT-PHILADELPHIA GAME POSTPONED OWING TO WET GROUNDS.

Boston Quits Pittsburgh Even on the Series After a Miserable Game—Indianapolis Wins Easily.

YESTERDAY'S GAMES.

CHICAGO 5; NEW YORK 1.

CHICAGO, May 14.—Chicago played a magnificent game all around game to-day and won with ease. Krook's pitching was too much for the New Yorks. Their one run was earned, however, through Conner's hit over the wall for a home run in the first inning. Farrell made a home run also in the same inning on a hit over Gore's head. Chicago's three runs in the fifth were made on Farrell's triple, a base hit by Sullivan and Anson, a base on balls to Pettit, and a bad throw to first by Slattery. The run in the eighth was due to Anson's base on balls and Williamson's triple. Some fine fielding was done by Pfeffer, Richardson, Slattery and Pettit. Score: Chicago.....1 0 0 0 3 0 0 1 5

NO GAME AT DETROIT.

DETROIT, May 14.—No game to-day, owing to wet grounds.

PITTSBURGH 6; BOSTON 6.

PITTSBURGH, May 14.—Pittsburgh and Boston broke even on the first series after a disagreeable game. It was played under adverse circumstance, the weather being raw and cold, and the game abounded in errors, which with the umpire's decisions made the 500 spectators feel very uncomfortable. The score was a tie up to the ninth innings, when Henderson literally gave Boston the game by his wild pitching. Score: Boston.....0 2 1 0 0 0 1 1 6
Pittsburgh.....1 0 0 3 0 0 0 1 0 5

INDIANAPOLIS 7; WASHINGTON 1.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 14.—The weather to-day was very cold and there was a small attendance. Healy pitched a fine game and was well supported. Hines carried off the batting honors, and Hoy, Bassett and Denny led the fielding. Score: Indianapolis.....0 0 1 0 1 0 1 4 0 7
Washington.....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 1

ASSOCIATION GAMES.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—The Athletic-Baltimore game was called at the commencement of the fifth inning on account of rain, the score standing 4 to 1 in favor of Baltimore.

HIGH WATER IN MICHIGAN.

Many Bridges Swept Away and Much Damage Done at Crystal Falls.

CRYSTAL FALLS, Mich., May 13.—The water in the Paint river, which flows through this city, has never been known to be as high as now. The high water mark is several feet under water. The river has been gradually rising since last Monday, the drive is moving finely and no trouble is anticipated. Many logs which were hung up last year are out.

The entire product of Briar Hill creek, a tributary to the Paint, was hung up until last Thursday, when the cut of two winters moved. There are three bridges within the city limits, two wagon and one railroad bridge. The north end of the latter was hung up in bad shape by reason of the water breaking away a wing dam and going through under the bridge where no water has passed since the bridge was built. The north approach of the upper wagon bridge over the Crystal Falls was also several feet under water. The lower bridge at the foot of Main street for several days has been in a shaky condition. This bridge went out four years ago, and was rebuilt in a way that was thought to resist water and logs, but the great volume of water and the continued pounding of logs against the abutments has rendered it rather unsafe. The wagon bridge at Kirby-Carpenter company's camp No. 25, three miles from the city, went out Thursday forenoon. This temporarily cuts off the supplies to the drivers who are working the Upper Paint and its tributaries. A ferry will most likely be constructed until the water subsides sufficiently to permit workmen to repair the damage. A railroad bridge across a creek at the head of a little lake about one mile south of town disappeared Friday, necessitating the transfer from one train to another of passengers. The dams on the Paint are still holding, but are momentarily expected to break loose and go down stream. The high water does not endanger city property, for the reason that the town is located on a hill several hundred feet above the river.

Their Election Canceled.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 14.—The republican state convention will assemble here Wednesday next. It is accepted as a foregone conclusion that Senator Hiscock, ex-Senator Warner Miller, ex-Senator Platt and Hon. Chauncey M. Depew will be chosen as delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention.

Boat Becomes Unmanageable.

CHEBOYGAN, May 14.—On account of the low water in the river the steamer B. W. Blanchard, in attempting to wind around touched the bottom, became unmanageable and crashed into McArthur's dock doing considerable damage. The boat sustained but little injury and was towed out in the channel by tugs.

Commodore Kittson's Funeral.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 14.—The funeral of Commodore Kittson from the family residence on Summit avenue, this afternoon, was largely attended by prominent citizens from here and eastern cities.

WOLSELEY REPLIES

To the Vicious Attack Made on Him in the House of Lords by Salisbury.

HE REITERATES HIS BANQUET STATEMENT CONCERNING THE DEFENCES.

But Disavows Any Ill-Feeling Toward the Government—Crofters Exiled—Bakers Strike—Unser Fritz Better

ENGLAND.

WOLSELEY REPLIES TO SALISBURY.
 LONDON, May 14.—The house of lords this afternoon was crowded with people who desired to hear Lord Wolseley's defense. Peers and peeresses filled the galleries. Mr. Gladstone, Lord Randolph Churchill, and other members of the house of commons were present. Lord Wolseley, who was seated on a cross bench, rose when the Duke of Cambridge entered, and shook hands with him. Upon the appearance of Lord Salisbury, Lord Wolseley asked leave to make a personal explanation in reference to Lord Salisbury's complaint of his attacking the government. He could not see how an unprejudiced person could construe his remarks into an attack upon the government. He felt that he could not honestly assail the government.

for negligence toward the army and navy. In the position which he occupied in the administration of the army he could not fail to be fully aware of what Mr. Stanhope had done and was doing to render the army efficient. He felt deeply the necessity of keeping the forces efficient, and was convinced that more might be done than had been accomplished. He admitted that the present government had done much toward improving the military defenses. In the banquet speech referred to he had said no more than he did in his evidence before the commission inquiry. He still adheres to that evidence. As long as the navy was as weak as it was, the army could not hold its own, dispersed as it was all over the world.

THE DEFENCES AT HOME and abroad were in a bad condition. The military forces were not organized as they should be. He did not want to create a panic, but he maintained that the condition of the country was such that if a force of 100,000 men succeeded in effecting a landing and were properly handled, there was no reason why they might not take possession of the country. He made this statement with the full appreciation of his responsibility. He had been tempted to resign Saturday after reading what Lord Salisbury had said. The house could not take the initiative in matter, but he placed himself in the hands of the premier. He did not intend to cast a slur upon the government; he had endeavored to the best of his ability to serve his sovereign and his country. Lord Salisbury held that his strictures upon Lord Wolseley's statement at the recent dinner were fully warranted. At the same time he accepted Lord Wolseley's disavowal of any intention to attack the government. He only hoped that if Lord Wolseley had occasion to assail the administration in the future, he would do so in the house. He trusted that Lord Wolseley would not take the matter too seriously. He should regret the general's leaving the service as the greatest blow that could fall on the military administration. Lord Wolseley's statement regarding the weakness of the country's defense would be seriously inquired into.

In the meantime he deprecated the practice of officers' speaking over the heads of the government, and thus destroying their ministerial authority and shattering the administrative machine. (Cheers.)
 The Duke of Cambridge said that every now and then he and Lord Wolseley did not agree, but they disagreed without quarreling. If these matters were to be discussed in the open house between the commander-in-chief and the adjutant-general it would be most detrimental to the public service. (Cheers)

WOLSELEY RESIGNS.
 LONDON, May 14.—It is reported that Lord Wolseley adjutant-general of the British forces, has tendered his resignation in consequence of Lord Salisbury's bitter attack. The cabinet, it is said, strongly oppose the acceptance of the resignation.

Admiral Sir Wm. Hewitt, commander of the channel fleet, died at Portsmouth last night. He was 54 years of age.
MACKENZIE INTERVIEWED.
 LONDON, May 14.—The Pall Mall Gazette to-day has account of an interview at Charlottenburg between Mr. Stead and Dr. Mackenzie. Mr. Stead was received by the doctor in a large well lighted room in the center of the castle. The apartment had three bay windows and three doors. Several diagrams of the emperor's head were on the walls and on the table were sketches of a number of books. Dr. Mackenzie looked worn and anxious and showed traces and the long wearing of his attendance upon the emperor. During the interview, he stated to Mr. Stead that his patient was all that could be desired in the way of temper, patience and cheerfulness. He is

 and as well disposed as a child, he said. He bears his pains bravely, and does not worry. The rumors that he asked the chaplain to pray for his release from his sufferings and that he longed for death, were untrue. "It is by no means certain," said the doctor, "that the emperor has made up his mind that he is dying. He does not suffer much at present." The doctor said that if the emperor's strength improved he hoped to remove him shortly to Potsdam. In conclusion he said: "The emperor is certainly suffering from pericarditis, which with the disease of the cartilages is very dangerous, though not necessarily fatal. If he also has cancer, that will necessarily prove fatal sooner or later."

GOING INTO EXILE.
 LONDON, May 14.—Twenty-five crofter families, numbering 113 souls, embarked at Stornoway for Manitoba to-day. Fifteen played dirges as the crofters left their homes.
BAKERS STRIKE.
 LONDON, May 14.—Hundreds of Jewish and German bakers in East London have struck work on account of the excessive hours of labor. They paraded about the city to-day.
GERMANY.
THE ROYAL SUFFERER.
 BERLIN, May 14.—The emperor had a good night. He arose at 10 o'clock this morning. He walked about his rooms this evening and transacted some official business with the permission of his doctors.
WHAT'S IN THE WIND?
A General Conference of The B of L. E. Lodges of America Called.
GUESSES AT ITS MEANING.
 CHICAGO, May 14.—A great pow-wow of the leading officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen is to take place in Chicago this week. A call has just been sent out from the general officer in Cleveland requesting the chairman of the general grievance committees on all the railroads in America to assemble here on the seventeenth inst. Chairman Hoge, of the Burlington grievance committee, spent Sunday in Cleveland consulting with chief Arthur and returned to Chicago to-day. The chairman of the various districts on the "Q" system are all in the city, and will remain until after the conference.
 Chief Arthur and chief Sargent will arrive to-morrow. Mr. Hoge emphatically denies that the conference is for the purpose of formally declaring the strike at an end.
 It is rumored that the intention is to make a last effort toward securing the interference of the other railroad managers in behalf of arbitration with the "Q" officials and that, falling in this, there will be a renewal of open warfare with the other roads suspected of being in sympathy with the "Q."

A FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION.
A Car of Powder Exploded by a Railroad Collision—Three Persons Killed.
TRAMPS RESPONSIBLE.
 DENVER, Col., May 14.—News reached here to-day that the "Thunderbolt", the fast train on the Santa Fe railway, collided with a freight train near Fountain this morning at 6 o'clock. A car of powder in the freight exploded, completely wrecking both trains, instantly killing three persons, and wounding many more.
 The train known as the "Thunderbolt" arrived at Fountain at 2:41 A. M. and had only been standing a few minutes when a caboose and some cars, the brakes of which had got loose in some way, ran down from a side track and struck the train with terrific force. One car, loaded with naphtha, exploded, throwing oil over everything and setting the train on fire.
 The train men shoved the uninjured cars back from the wreck, trying to save the depot, when it was discovered that two cars were standing on the main track that were not wrecked. The nearest one was burning, and was tagged "powder." Shortly afterward the car exploded, completely demolishing the depot, several dwellings and a number of cars. One dwelling and the depot were consumed. Three persons were killed by the explosion and twelve or fifteen persons wounded, none very seriously.
 There is a hole in the ground where the car stood about thirty feet in diameter and fifteen feet deep. Two cars burned and sixteen, together with the locomotive, are more or less wrecked. It is supposed that a tramp lot of the brakes from the cars.
 Two of the three persons killed were citizens of Fountain and the third was a tramp. None of the passengers or train men were killed.

THE KENTUCKY DERBY.
 Macbeth, of the Chicago Stable, Easily Defeats a Field of Six Good Ones.
RIDDEN BY COVINGTON.
 LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 14.—To-day was a gala day for Louisville; in fact for the state of Kentucky. It was nothing more nor less than the great southern "Derby," which has been looked forward to for months.
 There were six horses entered for the great race as follows: Colonel Zeb Ward, Alexandria, Chevalier, Macbeth, Gallifet and Autocrat. It was exactly 4 o'clock when the horses were called up to the scratch. There was an immense crowd waiting in breathless excitement. After one false start, Chevalier got off first, the others well up. Coming into the stretch out of the chute Colonel Zeb Ward led by two lengths, Alexandria second, Chevalier third, Macbeth fourth, Gallifet fifth and Autocrat sixth.
 Passing the stand, Alexandria was in the lead, Gallifet second and the rest bunched. Up the back stretch Zeb Ward dropped away back, Gallifet setting the pace. Rounding the stretch Macbeth moved forward like a flash, taking the lead, being handled by Covington beautifully. Gallifet was second and being whipped hard.
 Macbeth easily reached the wire first passing under it by a full length without a touch of the whip and looking ready to go another quarter. Gallifet was a bad second and the rest far distant.
 It was stated after the race that Hawkins, owner of Macbeth, had won $20,000. It was a great victory for the Chicago stable. Before the start 8 to 1 was offered against Macbeth. The distance was 1 1/4 miles and time 2:09 1/2.

MISSISSIPPI STILL RISING.
 It Has Nearly Reached the Highest Mark of the Floods of 1881.
KEOKUK, Ia., May 14.—The river is rising at this point. It is now half a foot below the highest mark reached during the flood of 1881. No other damage than that reported has been done.
BERLINGTON, Ia., May 14.—The river is still rising. It is within two inches of the high water of 1881. The rolling and lumber mills have been compelled to close down. It is thought the river will not rise above the mark of 1881. The damage so far is slight.
DUBUQUE, Ia., May 14.—The water in the river reached the highest point Saturday and to-day began slowly receding. It is believed that the worst is over.

A FEEDS WORK.
READING, Pa., May 14.—Some fiendish person evidently one who had a grudge against the Reading company or some of its train runners wrecked a train at an early hour this morning near Shenandoah. A stone was firmly wedged into the frog at Moss creek. At five-twenty a fast freight consisting of an engine and two cars came along at the speed of twenty miles an hour. When the engine struck the frog it bounded up and off the track, and plunged headlong down the twenty foot embankment followed by the two cars. Engineer Houghton was scalded and crushed to death in the cab. Fireman Welch was badly scalded, his leg was cut off and his arm broken. He may not live. McCann, one of the brakemen, was also badly injured. The engine and cars are a complete wreck. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the deed.
 "Into Death's Mystery."
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 14.—The corpse of a young woman was found in the river here to-day. The clothing was of fine quality. She had apparently been in the water several days and the face was unrecognizable. She is thought to have floated down from above here.
Weather Indications.
WASHINGTON, May 15.—1 A. M.—The signal service reports the following as its predictions for the next thirty-six hours: For Michigan warmer followed by cooler fair weather; winds becoming light to fresh southerly increasing in force. The display of wind signals will be resumed on Lake Michigan and Lake Superior on May 15th.

THE COPPER COUNTRY.
Calumet & Hecla Affairs—Some Little Water—The Ladies' Leap Year Party—A Delightful Party—The First Boat—Meeting of the Board of Supervisors.
CALUMET.
 CALUMET, May 14.—President Agassiz, I. B. Whiting, J. N. Wright, Capt. John Duncan and the chief underground captains made a tour of inspection about the mine yesterday.
 Quite a number of persons about here seem to be in doubt as to Mr. I. B. Whiting's duties with the Calumet & Hecla mine. The MINING JOURNAL reporter has been informed at headquarters that Mr. Whiting is president Agassiz's assistant in managing the affairs of the mine and has the same authority as the president. Mr. Agassiz's health has not been of the very best for the past few years, and his trips to this northern country and through the ramifications of the underground channels of the mines, almost a mile and a half long and four thousand feet deep, are becoming too great a tax on his endurance and strength, hence the election of Mr. Whiting to the position of assistant general manager.
 Miners have gone down No. 5 Calumet shaft to the water which is nearly to the twenty-fifth level. The depth of most of the shafts is 3,800 to 3,900 feet, making nearly 1,500 feet of water in the mine.
RED JACKET.
 RED JACKET, May 14.—The ladies' leap year party at the opera house Friday evening was one of the most successful and enjoyable social gatherings ever given here. The elegant opera house hall never before appeared as handsome as it did on that evening. It was decorated by the skillful hands of the ladies. The windows were draped with rich drawing-room curtains with a tulle fringe in front as a centerpiece standing on the sill. The stage was tastefully furnished. Turkish rugs, easy chairs and a profusion of plants adding their beauty to the scene. Nearly a hundred couples tripped the light fantastic to the excellent music of the Calumet concert band, which fairly outdid its record, playing from 9 o'clock, when the first waltz was danced, to twenty minutes after three next morning, giving the merry dances about a dozen pieces not on the program. A special train brought a large party from Houghton, and Hancock, who expressed themselves well paid for the trip. The supper furnished by landlord North of the Calumet Hotel was praised by everybody. There was not a single event to mar the pleasure of anyone who attended, unless it was the rain storm which came on just as the dancers were ready to go home.
HANCOCK.
HANCOCK, May 14.—The propeller Toledo, of Ward's line, was the first boat of the season. She arrived here on Saturday evening and now lies at Hodge's dock.
HOUGHTON.
HOUGHTON, May 14.—A meeting of the board of supervisors was held last Saturday. There was but little business done, the assessors being busy looking over the assessment rolls of the several townships. A number of bills were allowed. On motion the report of Mr. R. R. Goodell, county land agent, was accepted and approved. His report showed that he had received $10,832.72, which amount is principally for timber sold from county lands.
TOWN BURNED DOWN.
PORTLAND, Ore., May 14.—The entire business portion of the town of Goldendale Washington territory, was swept away by fire yesterday. The fire started in a livery stable. There was no fire department to fight the flames; total loss, $175,000; insurance, $50,000.
OIL CITY, Pa., May 14.—The fire resulting from the 20,000 gallon tank last night burned itself out this morning and all cleared away. The first reports were greatly exaggerated and the loss will not exceed $50,000.

NEGAUNEE TOPICS.

Building Operations.

Joseph Kirkpatrick, Jr., has let the contract for the erection of a handsome residence on Main street. The building will be a two-story frame dwelling...

A. Boulson's business block on Iron street is progressing rapidly.

The structure will comprise double stores and offices above, and will cost about $6,000.

W. N. Morse has the foundation bluck for a residence at the corner of Clark street and Teal Lake avenue.

August Olson is tearing down some old rookeries on Gold street, and will erect a brick building on the site soon.

A young man named Hansen, who has been employed to attend chute No. 5 of the Jackson mine, met with a distressing accident yesterday.

It was his business to drop the loaded cars down the incline. In some manner his foot got caught between the bumpers of two cars, and was badly crushed.

C. E. Mason, passenger conductor on the C. & N. W. road has resigned his position.

John Cass, a freight conductor has also retired from the service. John Staiger, well known to Neegaunee people, has been promoted to a main line passenger train run.

Shortly after the city and village elections occurred a vote for George McDonald and another party in Spurr township was announced in this department.

The tie has been decided, Mr. McDonald, who, by the way, is an old Neegaunee resident coming out ahead.

James Kirkpatrick, formerly of this city, has resigned the management of the P. & L. S. Iron company's business at Whitney, Menominee county, and will go into the commission business.

John McDougald, at the water works engine house, shot a fine loon a few days ago. John O'Donoghue, who has acquired some skill as a taxidermist, is preparing the bird for exhibition.

The Johnson saw mill at Teal Lake was started up yesterday. The firm has quite a large amount of pine to cut, and the mill will be kept running for several months.

The roads in town and to the surrounding locations are very muddy, the result of alternate rain and snow.

Water service has been extended into W. E. Paynter's main street residence. Large bill boards are being erected for the mammoth circus posters.

PERSONAL.

James Smith, of Duluth, was in the city yesterday.

A. Kidder, of Marquette, spent a few hours here yesterday.

George J. Sayer and wife, of Chicago, is at the Breitung House.

Theodore Lange and wife, of Houghton, were here yesterday.

Fred Potter now has charge of the freight work in the D., S. & A. yards here and in Ishpeming.

Bathing Pilgrims in India.

Crowds of people are descending or ascending these many flights of steps, and in front of them were hundreds bathing in the sacred stream. Our boat was broad keeled, with a sort of arch roof, on which we sat, while several oarsmen slowly stemmed the strong current close to the shore on the city's side and close to the bathers.

The view of the distance was wonderfully fine. The view of the bathing pilgrims when closely seen was wonderfully strange and interesting. They were of all ages and of both sexes, and of many conditions—the well to do and the very poorest; the most robust and the emaciated and diseased; the most athletic—their half naked forms fit model for a sculptor's chisel—and the deformed and shrunken limbs of ascetics.

Some sprang down the long flights of steps as if fatigue had never been known; others were tottering and leaning upon long staffs, or were supported by friends or servants. Some entered the water with joyous faces, and eyes sparkling with hope; others slowly and reverently, as if they could scarcely be thankful and humble enough for the great boon they were about to enjoy.

After vading out to nearly waist deep, all would place their hands reverently before them, utter a prayer, evidently in great earnestness, and then dip themselves under, generally, I thought, three times. After this they would wash themselves with great care, scraping the bottoms of the feet and scrubbing the inside of the mouth as if doing their best to take some of it out. Many had flowers as offerings; these they would throw in one by one as they prayed.—Carter Harrison's Bazaar Letter.

Scene at the Market.

At one of the stalls a family group were congregated, the head of the household anxious to make a purchase, but finding it a hard matter to reconcile the conditions of a slim purse and inordinate needs. The salesman was growing impatient, for other customers were waiting to be served; nevertheless the group monopolized his attention, and finally, after consuming considerable time, invested the "veriest trifle." The salesman was thoroughly disgusted, and shortly rebuked the customer for taking up his time so unprofitably, whereupon the purchaser rather sadly answered: "Well, sir, if you had so many to feed and only that bit of money to do it with, you'd be as much bothered as I was to know what to do." The salesman's features relaxed before such conclusive reasoning, and, as though to atone for his apparent harshness, he slipped several pieces of beef into the other's basket, a gratuitous offering, and turned away. That act was worth a dozen apologies.—Boston Budget "Saunterer."

IN WISCONSIN LUMBER REGIONS.

Processes of Using Up the Shingles—Girls "Edging" Shingles—Saving Lath.

We now had seen the logs made into lumber, but there remained the interesting process of using up the shingles. As they came along on a sort of roadway furnished with rollers, a small, powerful circular saw was drawn through them, cutting them into lengths for lath; they were then fed through a tiny gauge of saws by boys, and the laths were made. Upon another similar roadway, logs squared on all sides were traveling slowly; these were sawed into "shingle blocks" in much the same way that the lath blocks were cut. The shingle blocks were laid on a frame which held two at a time, adjusted to the action of a circular saw beneath, which dropped the shingles incessantly to the hands below.

Going down, we came upon four girls standing before the entrance of shingles, "edging" them. They worked seemingly as fast as they could, and without looking up. "That appears heavy labor," I said to Mr. Brown. "I don't like to see women in such a place."

"It is hard, but they like it. They'd rather do it than housework. If I want a girl all I have to do is to tell one of these, and there'll be a dozen after the place to-morrow."

"They look young, too, many of them." "They are, but they ought to be in school; so ought those little boys up there sawing lath. But the excitement of working in a mill and of being together in company is what brings them here. They get $1 a day."

Below these girls were the "sorters," who received higher pay, as it requires more judgment to distinguish instances of what grade each shingle belongs. Next these were the "packers," who work by the piece; and wonderfully deft and accurate they were, as with a rhythmic motion they laid the shingles swiftly in the open bays, ready to be bound and marked.

They were, as neatly dressed and looked very attractive amid such rude surroundings. As we stood in the door about to leave, the edgers above began to sing a hymn, its different parts all being sustained. It was strangely thrilling to hear these sweet girlish voices swelling above the distant thunder of the machinery and displacing the ceaseless angry screaming of the saws. It was a lesson to me to hear these little folks thus lightening their labor, with song.—G. O. Shields in American Magazine.

A Public Speaker's Methods.

As to set speeches of the more oratorical sort, I have tried all methods. Sometimes I write and then read from manuscript, which is apt to detract from the interest of the speech and to impair the sympathetic relation between the speaker and his audience. Sometimes I write, commit carefully and repeat from memory, which is the usual and a wise practice with nearly all speakers. Sometimes I arrange a line of thought and illustration, putting headings on a piece of paper, or what is quite as easy, fixing them in my mind and depending on the moment of speaking for the fitting words. Sometimes I speak extemporaneously both as to words and to material.

I have failed with each method and succeeded with each method. I succeeded handsomely (for me) in some of the first speeches I ever attempted, thirty years ago, and have lamentably failed in recent ones. The same speech, delivered so far as I could see, in the same manner, has been at one time and place a success, and at another a dismal failure. I am inclined to think, therefore, that the result depends often largely upon the atmosphere of the particular occasion.

Speaking depending upon the speaker. I have found myself pumping, hot and dry before a small, scattered audience half filling a hall, and hanging back in the rear of it, boys playing a drum beat on the floor with their heels, and stragglers loitering in and out at the doors; and at another time, with the same speech, in a great hall, before a mighty audience, where I was upon the not only the most intense nervous, but the most intense physical strain, I have found myself sailing, it seemed to me, like a ship under full sail before a fresh breeze. I have been indeed led to believe that anything that tends to physical tension and excitement, like the effort to fill a large hall and to hold the attention of a great audience, is a help in public speaking, and gives tension and excitement to the nervous and mental machinery. There are those who also think it important, as a matter of physical condition, to refrain from eating before speaking. This seems to me hardly worth while.—John D. Long in The Writer.

E. SAGINAW, Mich., Jan. 7, 1888.—I have suffered for ten years with what physicians pronounced congestion of the left kidney. I have suffered untold agony for the last six years. Physicians have done nothing for me except to advise me against taking cold. Four bottles of "Warner's Safe Cure" have done me more good than all the doctors I have had in ten years. I shall keep on taking "Warner's Safe Cure," as this is the longest time I have escaped intense suffering for so many years.

SUNFIELD, Mich., Dec. 31, 1887.—I feel unable to express my great joy for what "Warner's Safe Cure" has done for my mother. For twenty-five years she suffered with a "gripping pain" in the abdomen. She tried everything without relief. A neighbor recommended "Warner's Safe Cure." She tried it, and before she had taken three bottles the result was marvelous. The fourth bottle cured her. Before taking "Warner's Safe Cure" she was troubled with nervous dyspepsia, sleepless nights and a series of female complaints. I can never say enough about "Warner's Safe Cure."

THE displacement of iron nails by steel nails has progressed rapidly. In 1884 the production of steel nails in the United States (including 500 kegs of iron and steel) was only 393,482 kegs, or 5 per cent of the total production of nails. In 1885 the production of steel and combined iron and steel nails was 1,832,127 kegs, or 27 per cent of the total production. In 1886 the production of steel nails alone was 2,968,989 kegs, or 36 per cent of the total production; and in 1887 the quantity of steel nails produced exceeded that of iron nails, the output being respectively 3,488,292 kegs and 3,419,578 kegs. In 1886 the production of wire nails was about 600,000 kegs, made by twenty-seven wire nail works; in 1887 the production is estimated at 1,250,000 kegs, made by forty-seven works.

OUR valued contemporary at the Point, the St. Ignace Republican, insists that there is an ore deposit within three miles of that city, but isn't sure that there is enough of it to pay for working. Perhaps it's like the butter that the fastidious little boy was urged to make free use of while taking dinner at a neighbor's. "Don't be afraid to help yourself—there's enough of it," said the lady of the house, noticing that the lad took special pains to make a little of the butter go a great way by spreading it thin. "Thank'e, yes, I know there's 'nough of it—such as 'tis," the confused lad responded with boyish frankness. Joking aside, however, the MINING JOURNAL would rejoice as much over it as the people of St. Ignace were a workable deposit of ore to be discovered in or near that town. But the chances are against any such luck for the city of the Saints.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Chicago Mining Review, writing from Custer City, Dakota, gives a glowing account of the extent and richness of the tin deposits in the Black Hills region. He avers that parties there who have been aware of the value of these deposits have sought to prevent any information concerning them from reaching the general public, their object being to secure as many claims as possible before the inevitable rush came. But the truth regarding them has got out, he claims, and the day is at hand when the tin mines of Dakota will figure largely among the wealth producing industries of the country. Among the valuable of the baser minerals, none enters into a greater variety of common use than tin, and if Dakota can furnish the country with that metal great will be her glory and immense her reward. But we have been hearing of those Black Hills tin mines for years, and can't quite understand why they should have remained undeveloped so long if they are of such richness and can be so easily and profitably wrought.

GRESHAM'S TARIFF VIEWS.
Inasmuch as Judge Gresham has forged well to the front as a presidential possibility, considerable interest attaches to where he stands on the tariff issue, which now is the principal one before the American people. The Evening Journal, of Minneapolis, which is decidedly in favor of tariff reduction, finds his public utterances on the tariff question entirely to its taste, but insists that he is sufficiently committed to protection to assure any reasonable republican voter. It quotes from his speech in New York during the last presidential campaign, when he took the stump in Blaine's behalf, to show that he is a sound protectionist. "We should legislate in the interest of our own people rather than in the interest of mankind" declared he, and the Evening Journal wants to know what objection a low-tariff man can have to that, adding that the protectionists "could not ask for a more candid commitment to the principle of protection." There is no questioning the soundness of Gresham's proposition, but it is not sufficiently to the point to serve as a candidate's platform this year. However, Mr. Gresham was more explicit further along in the same speech, as the appended extract therefrom will show:

There is no necessity for maintaining our present rates of taxation, but in revising our tariff laws and reducing our customs revenues some interests should not be neglected. Protection to our manufacturers and laborers can and should be afforded by taxing only such imports as come into real competition and admitting others free.

Commenting on which the Minneapolisian advocates of his nomination remarks that "there is no intimation there of the Blaine doctrine that the tariff should be increased rather than be reduced, or that tobacco is a necessity. Mr. Gresham's tariff idea is the Minnesota republican idea. No wonder he is a popular candidate in this state where soundness on this issue is so essential to party success." From this it may be inferred that Judge Gresham is the candidate of those republicans who believe in tariff reduction, and a system of taxation under which the revenues of the government will not be much in excess of its ordinary requirements. In that case, he will not be the republican nominee. There are quite a few republicans of that sort, but not enough of them to be entitled to name the party's standard-bearer in the coming election.

FUTURE DEMAND FOR OUR ORE.
The Iron Trade Review has an account of a meeting of English capitalists and parties interested in Lake Superior iron properties, held at Cleveland recently, to consider the project of constructing a fleet of vessels for the ore carrying trade, with dockage facilities, etc. Among the speakers who addressed the meeting was Mr. E. C. Pechin, the well known metallurgist, who spoke as follows regarding the Lake Superior iron field as a source of ore supply for the steel trade:

With a personal knowledge of all the important ore and coal deposits of the country, east of the Rocky Mountains, I confidently maintain to-day, as I have for years past, that, taking everything into consideration, I would rather have furnaces and steel plants on the shores of Lake Erie, or Michigan, than at any other point that could be selected. The tendency of the time is to substitute steel for iron. The extraordinary figures of last year, a make of steel of three and a half millions of tons, conclusively show this.

Now where are the supplies of steel ores to come from? Outside of foreign ores, there are only moderate deposits of Bessemer ores in the east to draw upon, apart from the famous Cornwall mines. It is stated, upon seemingly good authority, that Pilot Knob can no longer be depended upon for supplies to the southwest, leaving only Iron Mountain to fall back upon. A limited development only has thus far taken place, in North Carolina, at Cranberry, and some years may elapse before other southern deposits are made accessible and available for large supplies. Looking the whole field over, the conclusion is irresistible that we must look to the Lake Superior region as the source of our principal and regular supplies.

With stable prices, giving a moderate but remunerative profit to all interested, it is impossible to predict the magnitude of the steel business. The consumption of iron and steel in the United States in 1887 was nine millions of tons, figures far in excess of the largest output in any year in Great Britain. With a population of over 60,000,000, it is estimated that in 1900, only twelve years off, this will be increased to over 90,000,000.

The wants of this vigorous, healthy, enterprising and wealthy people are to be supplied. The Great Lakes are inlets and outlets to an Empire. In my judgment, the business will develop faster than facilities can be afforded for properly handling it. It is in a vitally and profitable field to enter upon, with no doubt of ultimate results.

A GIFT FOR ALL.
In order to give all a chance to test, and thus be convinced of its wonderful curative powers, Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will be, for a limited time, given away free of charge. It is a simple, safe, and effective remedy, and shows unbounded faith in the merits of this great remedy. All who suffer from Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, or any affection of the Throat, Chest, or Lungs, are especially requested to call at H. H. Stafford's and Son's Drug Store, and get a Trial Bottle Free, Large Bottles $1.

RENEWES HER YOUTH.
Mrs. Phoebe Chealey, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and rheumatism for many years, could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and removed completely all disease and pain." Try a bottle, only 50c, at Stafford & Son's drug store.

MODEL COFFEE HOUSES.
SUPPLYING CLEAN FOOD AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICE.

A Question Which Thoughtful and Philanthropic Persons Have Studied—A Field for Practical Benevolence—Philadelphia's Model Coffee House.

Thousands of brain and hand toilers take their midday meal in down town restaurants. It is within the memory of most people when this was practically unknown here. The growth of the city and the extension of the limits of residence districts have served to bring this about. In this respect Chicago is merely having the same experience as Paris, London, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and the other large cities of the world.

The great metropolitan centers have also long had to do with the matter of supplying to the people the cleanest and most nutritious food at the lowest price possible. Thoughtful and philanthropic persons have studied the question in its economic and moral bearings, and the experiments made in other cities have generally been very satisfactory and successful. The coffee house of Great Britain is known the world over. The British workman is as familiar with it as with the church or chapel he attends, the vocation he follows or the vernacular he speaks. It is a place where he can get for from three to five pence (from six to ten cents) a substantial repast of good food and coffee, tea or milk, served in a cleanly manner, in a respectable place, to which he could take his wife or daughter, or some one's else daughter. The same conditions and classes are to be found in America as in London or Liverpool, Glasgow or Manchester, Birmingham or Bristol. The cities of the United States like New York and Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, have had growing up the past twenty-five years the same much or restaurant system which has long obtained in the cities beyond the sea.

CHICAGO RESTAURANTS.
Chicago is as well supplied with excellent restaurants as Paris or New York, according to its size. No visitor from the near or far east fails to compliment this city in these particulars. The traveler, cultured and well-to-do classes recognize and appreciate such comforts and conveniences more readily than any other. There is, however, a portion of the community whose members are not often heard of in these matters. They are not the opulent or middle classes, but the wage workers. How many places are there down town where respectable shop girls, for example, earning from $3 to $5 and $6 a week, could afford to go and get a warm noon meal, or even a lunch, suitable to a brain or hand worker? There are restaurants without number where persons earning from $10 to $30 or $100 a week can suit themselves as to the bill of fare, and yet how does the case stand with respect to those who cannot afford to pay more than 50, 75 cents or $1 a week out of their hard earnings for a lunch, and who feel they must have some nutritious food in the middle of the day? The W. C. T. U. has undertaken and maintains a lunch establishment where healthful, plain, nutritious food can be obtained at about cost, but in the nature of the case this coffee house can do no more than suggest what might be done.

In the average restaurant all articles of food cost five cents or multiples of five. There are several establishments where from 3,000 to 4,000 persons are fed daily. The charges are reasonable, the coffee, milk, etc., are excellent, the places scrupulously clean and neat, and the service all that could be wished; and yet many of the working people are unable to patronize them because of the cost of the refreshment, and the strict economy they must consistently exercise. In some of the experiments in Great Britain, Philadelphia and elsewhere, there have been maintained eating houses for just these classes, and they have been successful. Why might not some of our philanthropic citizens find in this a field for their practical benevolence? Is it not worthy of attention?

PHILADELPHIA'S MODEL.
A model coffee house has been maintained in Philadelphia for years. It began in one room. The food was good, well cooked, clean and cheap. A pint of the best coffee, with cream and sugar and a roll, cost five cents. It was no charity. Patrons paid for what they got, and got what they paid for. The idea was not one of profit, but purely of philanthropy. It steadily grew in favor, and its generous founder, a member in the Society of Friends, has had it enlarged time and again. Then a room was opened to women. The workmen were benefited, and working women came to be by the addition of the department for them. A reading room was added in time, and a hall that would seat 300 persons.

Other coffee houses have been established on the same general plan. The original refreshment room, opened in 1874, has grown to accommodate 400 persons at a time, and over 3,000 meals are served daily. The bill of fare provides for some seventy articles, whose cost is from three to ten cents. This will give some idea of expense to customers: Oatmeal, grits, mush, stews, pot pie, codfish cakes, liver, eggs, potatoes, corn, peas, and tea, coffee or milk, with bread, five cents; peaches, frozen custards and melon in season, six cents; beef, veal, mutton, ham, fish or baked beans, eight cents, and sirloin steak, chowder or egg omelet, ten cents. The dishes are large, and are described as ample for all the requirements of the inner man. This model coffee house has no cigar stand, although very high prices have been offered for a corner to sell tobacco. The idea of the Philadelphia coffee house may lead some philanthropists in Chicago and elsewhere to go and do likewise.—Inter Ocean.

The Romans Not Dancers.
It is an erroneous impression that is in vogue in certain quarters that the Romans were dancers or encouraged dancing. That was one feature of the Grecian civilization that the Romans did not adopt. In fact, dancing was always in disrepute among the Romans, who were too practical a people to indulge in such fantastic recreation. A Roman historian refers to this fact in connection with the trial of Claudius, who was charged with having fraudulently got himself elected to the tribune, it was also charged as a further allegation of Claudius' bad character and unworthiness that he had been guilty of dancing. This charge, however, is refuted by Claudius' counsel in an address to the tribune, who stated that his client had too much sense to be guilty of such foolishness as hopping around on one foot and then on another.—Father John N. Poland in Globe-Democrat.

Not a Small Man.
There is a fallacious notion abroad that Lord Randolph Churchill is a very small man. The humorous papers of London, in allusion of his youth, as well in politics as in age, have dubbed him "Little Randy," "The Boy," and such epithets have so constantly been bestowed upon him that most people who have not seen him suppose him to be in reality little. In good sooth, he stands about five feet eleven inches in his boots. He is spare and not very upright, being of a very delicate constitution.—New York Press.

MARQUETTE, MICH., MAY 16, 1888.

Entered as mail matter of the second class, in the post office at Marquette, Mich.

The displacement of iron nails by steel nails has progressed rapidly. In 1884 the production of steel nails in the United States (including 500 kegs of iron and steel) was only 393,482 kegs, or 5 per cent of the total production of nails. In 1885 the production of steel and combined iron and steel nails was 1,832,127 kegs, or 27 per cent of the total production. In 1886 the production of steel nails alone was 2,968,989 kegs, or 36 per cent of the total production; and in 1887 the quantity of steel nails produced exceeded that of iron nails, the output being respectively 3,488,292 kegs and 3,419,578 kegs. In 1886 the production of wire nails was about 600,000 kegs, made by twenty-seven wire nail works; in 1887 the production is estimated at 1,250,000 kegs, made by forty-seven works.

OUR valued contemporary at the Point, the St. Ignace Republican, insists that there is an ore deposit within three miles of that city, but isn't sure that there is enough of it to pay for working. Perhaps it's like the butter that the fastidious little boy was urged to make free use of while taking dinner at a neighbor's. "Don't be afraid to help yourself—there's enough of it," said the lady of the house, noticing that the lad took special pains to make a little of the butter go a great ways by spreading it thin. "Thank'e, yes, I know there's 'nough of it—such as 'tis," the confused lad responded with boyish frankness. Joking aside, however, the MINING JOURNAL would rejoice as much over it as the people of St. Ignace were a workable deposit of ore to be discovered in or near that town. But the chances are against any such luck for the city of the Saints.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Chicago Mining Review, writing from Custer City, Dakota, gives a glowing account of the extent and richness of the tin deposits in the Black Hills region. He avers that parties there who have been aware of the value of these deposits have sought to prevent any information concerning them from reaching the general public, their object being to secure as many claims as possible before the inevitable rush came. But the truth regarding them has got out, he claims, and the day is at hand when the tin mines of Dakota will figure largely among the wealth producing industries of the country. Among the valuable of the baser minerals, none enters into a greater variety of common use than tin, and if Dakota can furnish the country with that metal great will be her glory and immense her reward. But we have been hearing of those Black Hills tin mines for years, and can't quite understand why they should have remained undeveloped so long if they are of such richness and can be so easily and profitably wrought.

GRESHAM'S TARIFF VIEWS.
Inasmuch as Judge Gresham has forged well to the front as a presidential possibility, considerable interest attaches to where he stands on the tariff issue, which now is the principal one before the American people. The Evening Journal, of Minneapolis, which is decidedly in favor of tariff reduction, finds his public utterances on the tariff question entirely to its taste, but insists that he is sufficiently committed to protection to assure any reasonable republican voter. It quotes from his speech in New York during the last presidential campaign, when he took the stump in Blaine's behalf, to show that he is a sound protectionist. "We should legislate in the interest of our own people rather than in the interest of mankind" declared he, and the Evening Journal wants to know what objection a low-tariff man can have to that, adding that the protectionists "could not ask for a more candid commitment to the principle of protection." There is no questioning the soundness of Gresham's proposition, but it is not sufficiently to the point to serve as a candidate's platform this year. However, Mr. Gresham was more explicit further along in the same speech, as the appended extract therefrom will show:

There is no necessity for maintaining our present rates of taxation, but in revising our tariff laws and reducing our customs revenues some interests should not be neglected. Protection to our manufacturers and laborers can and should be afforded by taxing only such imports as come into real competition and admitting others free.

Commenting on which the Minneapolis advocate of his nomination remarks that "there is no intimation there of the Blaine doctrine that the tariff should be increased rather than be reduced, or that tobacco is a necessity. Mr. Gresham's tariff idea is the Minnesota republican idea. No wonder he is a popular candidate in this state where soundness on this issue is so essential to party success." From this it may be inferred that Judge Gresham is the candidate of those republicans who believe in tariff reduction, and a system of taxation under which the revenues of the government will not be much in excess of its ordinary requirements. In that case, he will not be the republican nominee. There are quite a few republicans of that sort, but not enough of them to be entitled to name the party's standard-bearer in the coming election.

FUTURE DEMAND FOR OUR ORE.
The Iron Trade Review has an account of a meeting of English capitalists and parties interested in Lake Superior iron properties, held at Cleveland recently, to consider the project of constructing a fleet of vessels for the ore carrying trade, with dockage facilities, etc. Among the speakers who addressed the meeting was Mr. E. C. Pechin, the well known metallurgist, who spoke as follows regarding the Lake Superior iron field as a source of ore supply for the steel trade:

With a personal knowledge of all the important ore and coal deposits of the country, east of the Rocky Mountains, I confidently maintain to-day, as I have for years past, that taking everything into consideration, I would rather have furnaces and steel plants on the shores of Lake Erie, or Michigan, than at any other point that could be selected. The tendency of the time is to substitute steel for iron. The extraordinary figures of last year, a make of steel of three and a half millions of tons, conclusively show this.

Now where are the supplies of steel ores to come from? Outside of foreign ores, there are only moderate deposits of Bessemer ores in the east to draw upon, apart from the famous Cornwall mines. It is stated, upon seemingly good authority, that Elliot Knob can no longer be depended upon for supplies to the southwest, leaving only Iron Mountain to fall back upon. A limited development only has thus far taken place, in North Carolina, at Cranberry, and some years must elapse before other southern deposits are made accessible and available for large supplies. Looking the whole field over, the conclusion is irresistible that we must look to the Lake Superior region as the source of our principal and regular supplies.

With stable prices, giving a moderate but remunerative profit to all interested, it is impossible to predict the magnitude of the resultant business. The consumption of iron and steel in the United States in 1887 was nine millions of tons, figures far in excess of the largest output in any year in Great Britain. With a population of over 60,000,000, it is estimated that in 1890, only two years years off, this will be increased to over 90,000,000. The vigor and health, enterprising and wealthy people are to be supplied. The Great Lakes are inlets and outlets to an Empire. In my judgment, the business will develop faster than facilities can be afforded for properly handling it. It is an inviting and profitable field to enter upon, with no doubt of ultimate results.

A GIFT FOR ALL.
In order to give all a chance to test, and to convince them of the wonderful curative powers, Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds will be, for a limited time, given away. This offer is not only liberal, but shows unbounded faith in the merits of this great remedy. All who suffer from Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, or any affection of the Throat, Chest, or Lungs, are especially requested to call at H. H. Stafford's and Son's Drug Store, and get a Trial Bottle Free, Large Bottles $1.

RENEWS HER YOUTH.
Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Patterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and rheumatism, but shows unbounded faith in myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and removed completely all disease and pain." Try a bottle, only 50c, at Stafford & Son's drug store.

MODEL COFFEE HOUSES.

SUPPLYING CLEAN FOOD AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICE.

A Question Which Thoughtful and Philanthropic Persons Have Studied—A Field for Practical Benevolence—Philadelphia's Model Coffee House.

Thousands of brain and hand toilers take their midday meal in down town restaurants, and in the memory of most people when this was practically unknown here. The growth of the city and the extension of the limits of residence districts have served to bring this about. In this respect Chicago is merely having the same experience as Paris, London, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and the other large cities of the world. The great metropolitan centers have also long had to do with the matter of supplying to the people the cleanest and most nutritious food at the lowest price possible. Thoughtful and philanthropic persons have studied the question in its economic and moral bearings, and the experiments made in other cities have generally been very satisfactory and successful. The coffee house of Great Britain is known the world over. The British workman is as familiar with it as with the church or chapel he attends, the vocation he follows or the vernacular he speaks. It is a place where he can get for from three to five pence (from six to ten cents) a substantial repast of good food and coffee, tea or milk, served in a cleanly manner, in a respectable place, to which he could take his wife or daughter, or some one's else daughter. The same conditions and classes are to be found in America as in London or Liverpool, Glasgow or Manchester, Birmingham or Bristol. The cities of the United States like New York and Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, have had growing up the past twenty-five years the same lunch or restaurant system which has long obtained in the cities beyond the sea.

CHICAGO RESTAURANTS.
Chicago is well supplied with excellent restaurants as Paris or New York, according to its size. No visitor from the near or far east fails to compliment this city in these particulars. The traveled, cultured and well-to-do classes recognize and appreciate such comforts and conveniences more readily than any other. There is, however, a portion of the community whose members are not often heard on these matters. They are not the splendorous or middle classes, but the wage workers. How many places are there down town where respectable shop girls, for example, earning from $3 to $5 and $6 a week, could afford to go and get a warm noon meal, or even a lunch, suitable to a brain or hand worker? There are restaurants without number where persons earning from $19 to $30 or $100 a week can suit themselves as to the bill of fare, and yet how does the case stand with respect to those who cannot afford to pay more than 50, 75 cents or $1 a week out of their hard earnings for lunches, and who feel they must have some nutritious food in the middle of the day? The W. C. T. U. has undertaken and maintains a lunch establishment where healthful, plain, nutritious food can be obtained at about cost, but in the nature of the case this coffee house can do no more than suggest what might be done.

In the average restaurant all articles of food cost five cents or multiples of five. There are several establishments where from 3,000 to 4,000 persons are fed daily. The charges are reasonable, the coffee, rolls, milk, etc., are excellent, the places scrupulously clean and neat, and the service all that could be wished; and yet many of the working people are unable to patronize them because of the scanty wages they receive, and the strict economy they must constantly exercise. In some of the experiments in Great Britain, Philadelphia and elsewhere, there have been maintained eating houses for just these classes, and they have been successful. Why might not some of our philanthropic citizens find in this a field for their practical benevolence? Is it not worthy of attention?

PHILADELPHIA'S MODEL.
A model coffee house has been maintained in Philadelphia for years. It began in one room. The food was good, well cooked, clean and cheap. A pint of the best coffee, with cream and sugar and a roll, cost five cents. It was no charity. Patrons paid for what they got, and got what they paid for. The idea was not one of profit, but purely of philanthropy. It steadily grew in favor, and the generous founder, a leader in the Society of Friends, has had it enlarged time and again. Then a room was opened to women. The workmen were benefited, and working women came to be by the addition of the department for them. A reading room was added in time, and a hall that would seat 300 persons.

Other coffee houses have been established on the same general plan. The original refreshment room, opened in 1874, has grown to accommodate 400 persons at a time, and over 3,000 meals are served daily. The bill of fare provides for some seventy articles, whose cost is from three to ten cents. This will give some idea of expense to customers. Oatmeal, grits, mush, stews, pot pie, codfish cakes, liver, eggs, potatoes, corn, peas, and tea, coffee or milk, with bread, five cents; peaches, frozen custards and melon in season, six cents; beef, veal, mutton, ham, fish or baked beans, eight cents, and sirloin steak, chicken or egg omelet, ten cents. The dishes are large, and are described as ample for all the requirements of the inner man. This model coffee house has no cigar stand, although very high prices have been offered for a corner to sell tobacco. The idea of the Philadelphia coffee house may lead some philanthropists in Chicago and elsewhere to go and do likewise.—Inter Ocean.

The Romans Not Dancers.
It is an erroneous impression that it is in vogue in certain quarters that the Romans were dancers or encouraged dancing. That was one feature of the Grecian civilization that the Romans did not adopt. In fact, dancing was always in disrepute among the Romans, who were too practical a people to indulge in such fantastic recreation. A Roman historian refers to this fact in connection with the trial of Claudius, who was charged with having fraudulently got himself elected to the tribune. It was also charged as a further allegation of Claudius' bad character and unworthiness that he had been guilty of dancing. This charge, however, is refuted by Claudius' counsel in an address to the tribune, who stated that his client had too much sense to be guilty of such foolishness as hopping around on one foot and then on another.—Father John N. Poland in Globe-Democrat.

Not a Small Man.
There is a fallacious notion abroad that Lord Randolph Churchill is a very small man. The humorous papers of London, in allusion of his youth, and in politics as in age, have dubbed him "Little Randy," "The Boy," and such epithets have so constantly been bestowed upon him that most people who have not seen him suppose him to be in reality little. In good sooth, he stands about five feet eleven inches in his boots. He is spare and not very upright, being of a very delicate constitution.—New York Press.

THE BANNER TOWN

Some Interesting Facts About
 The Iron Metropolis of The Upper Peninsula.

SOME OF THE THINGS SHE LAYS

The Largest and Best Iron Mines—The Only
 Gold Mines in Michigan—The Largest Population—The Most Voters.

Facts in a Nutshell.
 It is an acknowledged fact that during the last few years no other town in Michigan has made such rapid and substantial progress as the city of Ishpeming. Nearly every incoming train brings in new people who come here to find employment and to become permanent residents of our thriving city. As a result real estate has as idly increased in value, every desirable building site has been purchased, and the inhabitants are clamoring for more. Many new and handsome residences have recently been built and will be furnished this spring and summer. It was with this expectation that J. H. Quinn & Co., the firm who lay claim to the title of the only exclusive dry goods dealers in the city, laid in such a magnificent spring stock. Especially in carpets they are showing an elegant stock, embracing all the late patterns in Ingrain, Extra Super, Three Ply Tapestry, Body Brussels and Wilton Velvet. Parties purchasing of them can have their carpets matched, sewed and laid on the floors if they so desire. They are also showing a nice line of lace curtains, Marcellines bed quilts, table covers, calico quilts, blankets, feathers and pillows, in fact all kind of house furnishings. In Smyrna rugs they have just received a choice line. A call at this immense establishment will convince you they are entitled to the title of the only exclusive dry goods house in the city.

ISHPEMING HAPPENINGS.

The Funeral of the Late James Shea Held in This City on Sunday Afternoon.

A Very Peculiar Death—Norway's Fourth of July—To Go to Philadelphia—A Handsome Store.

A Large Funeral.
 The funeral of the late James Shea, who was killed at Calumet on Thursday, was held in this city Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted at St. John's Catholic church by the Rev. H. J. Rousseau. Notwithstanding that the weather was very uncomfortable, and a thin snow falling, the body was followed to the cemetery by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends.

The funeral procession was headed by the Lake Angeline & Scandinavian band. Next in line came some seventy-five members of the various base ball clubs of Ishpeming, Negaunee, Champion and Republic, headed by Mr. James Green, president of the Ishpeming club. Following the hearse were carriages filled by relatives and friends. The services at the church were attended by as large a number as could conveniently be accommodated within the large building, and the funeral procession was one of the largest seen in the city for a long time. Mr. Shea was a young man, but 23 years of age, but his good qualities had made him many friends, and his grave will long be kept green by the tears of sorrowing friends.

A Peculiar Accident.
 A singular accident happened in No. 2 shaft of the Cleveland mine Friday night. Four men were clearing out the bottom of the shaft. On the next level above the bottom, and 100 feet higher, mining was being carried on. Two Finns were tramping the rock. The skip was at the bottom of the shaft, but the two bright Finns who were on the level above dumped the ore from the tram-car directly into the shaft. It fell 100 feet, and E. J. Siffley, one of the men at the bottom, was badly bruised by the falling ore. Another, Alfred Turquest, was picked up dead by his companions, and taken to the surface, where the doctors examined him, but could not find a scratch or bruise.

An inquest was held Saturday afternoon, at which the coroner's jury decided that Turquest came to his death from causes unknown. It is supposed that he died from fright, as he certainly was not struck by even a small piece of ore.

Norway's Anniversary.
 May 17th is the anniversary of Norwegian Independence, and it is customary for the Norwegians in this country to celebrate the day in proper style. In this city the celebration will be held at the A. O. U. W. hall on Cleveland avenue, on Friday evening, May 18th. The exercises will take place Friday evening because it was impossible to procure a hall for the night of the 17th.

To Philadelphia.
 At the annual meeting of the Lake Superior Presbytery, held at Sault Ste. Marie last week, Duncan Gilchrist, of this city, was elected the commissioner of the district to attend the general conference of the Presbyterians of the United States at Philadelphia. Mr. Gilchrist will leave to-day for the Quaker city, and will be accompanied by the Rev. C. D. Jacobs and Mr. C. E. Ely, who will go as visitors.

A Handsome Store.
 The improvements at H. Asgaard's furniture store, corner of Cleveland avenue and First street, are now nearly completed. The wareroom and upholstering rooms, which were separated from the salesroom heretofore, have been thrown into one with the latter, and will be used exclusively for a salesroom. The size of the room is 35x80 feet, the largest furniture room in the city, and it is well filled with handsome goods. Mr. Asgaard now has one of the best arranged, and largest furniture, upholstering and cabinet-making establishments in the peninsula. His success in business is deserved, as it has been brought about by faithful work and square dealing.

There is an engineer on the C. & N. W. who is passionately fond of dogs; in fact, whenever he sees a handsome specimen of the canine race he always feels like stealing the dog. A day or so ago the inclination was too strong for his power of resistance, and he laid violent hands on a fine Newfoundland. The engineer was leading him home in triumph, and all would have been well had not the dog stopped in front of a meat market and declined to go further. As it didn't occur to the abductor that the dog was hungry, he was compelled to release the brute after pulling on him with a rope until he became discouraged, and creating the only excitement caused in town that day. Next time he'll steal a poodle, or a pup that he can carry in the tool-box or his pocket.

The board of review will hold its first session on Monday. Assessor Arenander has nearly completed his work, owing to the new registration regarding the assessment of personal property (especially mortgages) there will be a number of changes in assessment, and it is reasonable to suppose that the Monday session of the board of review will be an interesting one.

It was the intention of the Hancock base ball club to come to Ishpeming on Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. James Shea, but as the train could not get here in time the members of the club had to abandon its purpose.

One of the city's fire steamers was brought out Monday morning, to pump the water out of the basement of the Jenks block.

It snowed on Saturday, on Sunday, and again on Monday. Bets are freely offered that it will snow again to-day, with no takers.

"The Turf Exchange" was formally opened, last night.

The common council will meet to-morrow evening.

ALL ABOUT MUSTARD.

How the seed is made to furnish Oil and Flour—The Different Varieties.

"Where does mustard come from?" replied a wholesale spice dealer to a reporter's inquiry. "Most everywhere. It is of two varieties. One is white and the other is black. The first is called English, and the other makes under a name of other titles. The English is full of flour, lacks pungency and is seldom used alone. The other kind contains a large amount of oil, said to average 25 to 30 per cent. The best variety comes from Italy and is known as Toiste. There are many varieties of this kind grown in California, of every shade of quality; in other states. That known as Kentucky is very pungent."

"Do farmers generally raise it?"

"If they don't it is their own fault. They require little or no cultivation, but if it is not worth handling."

How is it prepared?"

Usually by compressing the seed to extract the oil, because the seed is much more easily worked when the oil is out, and because there is now a ready market for the oil as salad oil, it being in many respects equal to the best olive oil. To extract the oil requires very powerful hydraulic pressure, a suitable press would cost from $1,500 to $2,000. Large dealers in the principal cities operate in the seed or crude stock and it and supply the trade with what is known as mustard cake, formed by the process of extracting the oil, and which contains nothing except the oil—the same precisely as seed cake. After this the pressed seed is separated from the bran to extract the pure mustard cannot be ground in a mill unless it is very much adulterated and not be ground at all, on account of the oil contained in the cake. The usual process, therefore, is to take say 100 pounds and put a quantity of the broken cake in a pot or mortar and pound and sift it so as to extract 50 per cent. The machinery used for grinding the mustard is a simple contrivance, called sometimes a stamp mill, being a heavy of pounders ranging in number from six to sixteen. The process is slow, but simple. After passing through the millers the mustard cake—now reduced to consistency of soft middlings, is transferred to a series of sieves, the fine falling to a receptacle below. This bolted flour of mustard is strictly pure, and is as pure as it is possible to make it from the stock you use, whether it is good or bad."—New York Mail and Express.

Why Actors Hate Matinees.

"I hate matinees," said an actress to me at the close of a performance, as she walked to the lobby.

"And why particularly?"

"I hate them for a lot of reasons. You'd think it very hard to put your hand on the head of a woman in the profession today who hates matinees. Everybody hates them. I'm ashamed to say it, but I don't like to go to a matinee. I don't like to see a woman who looks well under daylight and is as good as dead."

"When Emerson's Library Burned."

Those who are fortunate enough to have the entrance to Theodore Parker's famous reception in Boston, where congregated a galaxy of brilliant men and women, such as Emerson, Sumner, Phillips, Garrison, Mrs. Howe, may remember the tall, vigorous girl, with a mass of dark, soft hair framing a strong, resolute, frank, earnest face, with bright, eager gray blue eyes and firm, tender lips, sitting quietly in some corner listening with animation and interest. Her world the host invariably seek out, and with a hearty hand shake and kindly smile, would ask, "Well, how goes it, my child? Keep your heart up, Louise?" and the Concord dreamer, Emerson, would eventually find himself drifting into the retired corner for a little chat with this shy girl, for the friendship between them was beautiful and touching. He it was who helped her find Goethe, her life long admired author. "When Emerson's library was burning in Concord," relates Miss Alcott, "I went to him as he stood with the freight on his broad, stern face, and endeavored to express my sympathy for the loss of his most valued possessions, but he answered cheerily, 'Never mind, Louise; see what a beautiful blaze they make! We will enjoy that now.' The lesson was never forgotten, and in the varied losses that have come to me I have learned to look for something beautiful and bright."—New York Sun.

The Well of Blood.

We gave a day to Cawpoor, thirty miles further on. This is a city of 140,000 souls, has a large native leather industry and some fine rice mills, and a jute manufactory which was very interesting.

We drove over the vast military cantonment, admired its comfortable officers' bungalows, and its long line of large two-story barracks, arranged on an echelon on one side of the great parade ground. Here the fury of the military was marvellous, and the tiger-like heart of Nana Sahib had an opportunity to exhibit its ferocious quality. I stood by the monument which covers the great well into which he hurled 700 men, women and children—unoffending non-combatants, butchered in cold blood—and many thrown in while yet alive; some of the children as yet unborn. I then passed to view at the bitter feeling so many English here have for the natives. The memory of the butcheries of '57 is yet fresh in their hearts. A colossal winged angel in pure white stands over the spot and in marble beauty looks down with touching pity, which every one must feel who recalls the horrible massacre.—Carter Harrison's Letter.

United States Postoffice.

There is now a postoffice for every 1,000 men, women and children in the United States. If the expenses of carrying the mails were paid direct from the pockets of the people pro rata, each citizen would pay an average of eighty-five cents a year for having his mail carried.—New York Evening World.

SUNSET.

Shadows are falling on a glorious day. As shadows fall at length on all things fair. The chirping sparrow to its nest has flown, And life seems like one sweet and silent prayer.

The western sky is but one mass of gold. With streaks of red that soften with the gray. It is that gate of heaven open thrown, To welcome souls, whose tears have ceased this day.

The golden light is what our crowns shall be; The red, the blood that gages us entrance there; The gray, the sorrows that are left without, Now quickly fading in the golden glare.

The music that steals softly o'er the soul, Soothing the troubled, agitated breast, Is but the echo of the heavenly choir, Welcoming at eventide the souls at rest.

—Eleanor H. Abbott.

Water Proof Book Bindings.

A composition has been produced which may prove valuable to book binders, having for its purpose the rendering water proof of leather, cloth, paper, etc. It is a mixture of water, silicate of soda, resin, alum, potash, fish glue, sulphate of zinc and sulphate of copper in various proportions. The application is said to render the material impervious to the influence of oil or water, and, if a variety of ingredients increase practical utility, should be very valuable.—Chicago Times.

Market for Red Oak.

A profitable market has been found for the poor, despised American red oak, that has been considered of no value at all. American dealers are buying up all they can get hold of and shipping it to Liverpool. There the lumber is manufactured into fancy furniture and shipped back to New York, where it is sold to wealthy people as the real English oak, and at pretty stiff prices, too.—Chicago Herald.

She Thought So Too.

He—Do you know, Miss Mabel, I have discovered why my brain is so active? She—No, Mr. Minuswit, what is your theory? He—It is because I so often start a train of thought. She—Ah, yes! The "Limited."—Tit-Bits.

The World's Way.

My friend, don't forget this—if you lie down, the world will go out of its way to drive over you; but if you stand up and look severe, it will give you half the road at least.—Uncle Ezek.

The early bird catches the worm, and it is the early crocus that catches the nipping frost. Earliness is occasionally a bad habit.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

FOR HOMESTEADERS.

An Important Letter From the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

THE STATUS OF THOSE WHO HAVE SETTLED ON O. & B. LANDS.

Mr. Sedgwick as Superintendent of Motive Power—Expert Bill Hangers Painting the Town.

Just What Has Been Wanted. Hon. S. M. Stockslager, the commissioner of the general land office, has prepared the following full and authoritative statement of the rights of settlers on the lands of the Ontonagon and Brule River grant, and the MINING JOURNAL receives it for publication from Mr. S. E. Byrne, register of the Marquette land office. It is the most valuable article concerning homesteaders rights yet published:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, GENERAL LAND OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11, 1888. REGISTER AND RECEIVER, Marquette, Michigan: GENTLEMEN:—This office is daily in receipt of letters from residents of your district relative to the rights of settlers on the lands known as the Ontonagon and Brule River grant.

The questions asked by the correspondents are numerous and varied, embracing, it would seem, every point that can possibly arise in regard to the rights of settlers upon these lands.

I therefore deem it necessary to give you such information in the matter as will enable you to advise the residents of your district (by publication or otherwise) of the status of these lands as regards settlement thereon.

The grant for the benefit of said company was made by act of June 3, 1856, (11 Stat., p. 21), and embraced the odd sections within six miles of the road, with indemnity from odd sections within fifteen miles of the road, for such lands as might be lost to the grant within the six mile limits.

All lands within limits were ordered withdrawn for the benefit of the company May 30, 1856, and the road was definitely located Nov. 22, 1857.

The lands (outside the limits of the M., H. & O. R. R. Co's grant) withdrawn as indemnity on account of this road, were "restored" on June 15, 1848: the lands within the six mile, or granted limits, being still withdrawn on account of the grant, being still within the time required by the granting act, and that but twenty miles of it have since been constructed.

Various bills have been presented in congress looking to the forfeiture of this grant and to the restoration of the lands to the public domain. None of said bills, however, have been finally passed by both branches of congress, and, as this office is without authority to restore the lands either settlement or entry in the absence of legislative action, said lands are as completely withdrawn at this time as they were upon the day when the withdrawal took effect.

It being the case, therefore, that the lands are still withdrawn from settlement and entry, parties who settle upon the same prior to restoration do so upon their own responsibility, such settlement conferring no rights upon them.

As to the homestead and pre-emption applications for these lands, now on file, will say that as they were made at a time when the lands were not subject to entry, they may be considered as notices to the United States, and other applicants, of an intention by the parties filing them to enter the lands applied for—should the same be restored—and afford no protection whatever, but will, in the event they have not been previously disposed of, entitle the parties to special notice should the land be restored, in order that they may file new applications.

Thus it will be seen that present settlement confers no rights, and application at this time affords no protection beyond that mentioned.

This office will not undertake to decide in advance of the restoration, should one be ordered, questions as to which of two or more applicants has the superior right under various circumstances, as such questions must wait until action on actual cases involving the same can properly be taken, nor will it express an opinion upon the probability of the forfeiture of said grant, or of settlers acquiring title to lands upon which they have settled.

Respectfully,
S. M. STOCKSLAGER,
Commissioner.

Assumed his Duties.

Yesterday, in accordance with the following circular, of same date, Mr. E. V. Sedgwick assumed his duties as the successor of Mr. J. B. Wilson, on the D., S. S. & A.:

DULUTH, SOUTH SHORE & ATLANTIC RY., OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT, MARQUETTE, Mich., May 14, 1888.

TO ALL CONCERNED: Mr. E. V. Sedgwick has this day been appointed superintendent of motive power and machinery of the Mackinac and Houghton divisions, vice Mr. J. B. Wilson, resigned, and as such, his orders must be respected.

Approved: GEO. T. JARVIS, Superintendent.
A. WATSON, Gen'l Supt.

He's All Right. Murphy, of the Sentinel, need not borrow any foats for Dingwall, the new partner in the Sault News, for according to last sentence of this extract from Yenowine's News, he's the right kind of a man for the Lake Superior country:

A. W. Dingwall, for many years past a trusted employe of Mitchell's bank, bade good-bye to his Milwaukee friends on Wednesday and departed for the Soo, where he will in future live. Mr. Dingwall resigned his position in the bank and closed his other local interests to form a partnership with Osborne & Hoyt owners of the Sault Ste. Marie News. They will publish the paper, deal in real estate and open a coal depot to supply soft coal to the fleet of vessels that annually pass through the canal at the Soo. Mr. Dingwall thinks the outlook is excellent. "Good-bye, old man," he said to me cheerily before departing. "I hope I will come out all right. In about a year from now if you happen to see a bearded, ragged, dirty-looking tramp enter your office and have him tell you that he has just walked all the way from the Soo, well, you will recognize in him—Hoyt or Osborne—it won't be me," and with this parting thrust at his new partners "Sandy" was gone.

Goods Here. A large and full stock of groceries for the new firm of C. Kellan & Sons arrived from Chicago on the steamer Peerless yesterday, the first boat on the L. M. & L. S. T. line to reach Marquette. The new firm will open for business in the old postoffice stand just as soon as the goods can be unpacked and arranged in the store.

COMING IN JUNE. Sells Brothers' Royal Hippodrome, Elevated Stage, Three-King Circus and Five-Continent Menagerie.

The advertisers of this justly celebrated show are "painting the town red" with splendidly executed pictorial announcements of its coming. No exhibition in the world is better, if as well, advertised, and none so completely and to the letter fills the bill. Its reputation of being among the best tented displays on the road is cosmopolitan, and wherever its immense volume of mighty canvas is spread the patronage is sure to crowd it to its capacity. It comes to us this year with numberless added features, all strong drawing cards, and many of them never before presented to an American audience. Their bareback equestrians, both male and female, are marvelous performers, and the hippodrome attractions are as exciting as they are realistic. The show will be here Monday, June 4th.

REPORTORIAL PENCILINGS.

The advertising car of the Sells Bros' show is in the city and their "paper" is going up on all sides.

The Dickens club will meet at the residence of Mrs. E. B. Palmer this evening, the play being "The Cricket on the Hearth."

Among the "For Sale" advertisements on the fifth page will be found the announcement of a lot of household goods offered at 201 West Ridge street.

Brown's Theater company begins an engagement at the Casino Thursday evening "Little Maudie" was a great favorite here last season.

Icebergs nearly a foot long formed on some of the waves in town yesterday. Pretty hard to have to tell of it on this 15th day of May but still it's the truth.

The temperature readings at the U. S. signal station yesterday, 7th meridian time, were: 7 A. M., 38 degrees; 3 P. M., 28 degrees; 10 P. M., 25 degrees. Maximum temperature, 32 degrees; minimum temperature, 27 degrees.

The St. Ignace Republican states that Robert Dollar, of this city, has 2,500,000 feet of logs in boom at that place and has made a contract with the D., S. S. & A. for 2,500,000 feet more to be brought in by rail. The five million are to be sawed at Bay City and will be towed there by the Reid tug.

A rousing big house greeted the Beach & Bowers minstrels at the Casino last evening on the occasion of their second visit to Marquette. They gave a good show, too, and one entirely free from low gas or other objectionable features. The contortion act was immense, the juggling good and Gleason's trained dogs first-rate, while Otis Bowers owned the house whenever he appeared.

J. H. Brown's Theater Co. have been playing to full houses this week. On Monday night a new piece here "Foggy Ferry," was put on and was well received. On Tuesday night "Under the Gaslight," held the boards. Mr. Browne, in his great character of "Smorkey, the One Armed Messenger," surpassed any of his previous efforts here, and was well sustained by the company. Little Maudie in her songs and dances is a greater favorite than ever, and is nightly received with rounds of applause. The company is the peer of any that visit this part of the country, and those who fail to attend their performances will miss a rich treat.—St. Ignace Democrat.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. Mathews has returned from Washington, highly gratified at the action of the senate in passing the forfeiture bill.

In railroad circles it has been noticed that since his connection with the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Supt. Geo. T. Jarvis has not yet made a trip over the road without a snow storm taking place at the time. It is to be hoped, for the credit of Lake Superior weather, that Mr. Jarvis will not make a trip over the line on July 4th.

VESSEL MOVEMENTS.

THROUGH THE SAULT. SAULT STE. MARIE, May 14.—Passed up—Sam'l Mather, Japan, Ohio, Nahant, Gladston, A. Cobb, Anna Smith, Redwing. Wind northwest, light; cloudy; cold.

PORT LIST. Arrived—Continental and Magnetic, Specular and Grace Holland, Forest City and H. H. Brown, light for ore.

Passed up—Winslow, Nyack, Peerless.

PORT PICKINGS. The W. U. & Co. dredge here is working sixteen hours a day in eight hour shifts.

The Winslow unloaded 40 or 50 tons of freight, the Nyack 80 tons, about half of which went up the road, and the Peerless 150 tons, almost all of which was for Marquette merchants.

The Continental and Magnetic, of the Republic Iron company's fleet, were the first carriers to arrive here this season. The Colonial, of the same fleet, was the first boat of the season last year.

The Specular, of the Republic Iron company's line, is here on her maiden trip as a steamer, machinery having been put in her during the winter. She makes a fine-looking steamer, and if successful her sister boat, the Magnetic, will receive machinery next winter. Captain Landfair, who has sailed the Colonial since she was first out, leaves her for the Specular, and Capt. Tower, who was in command of the Specular while a barge, now pulls the bells on the Colonial.

MILLINERY.

Miss H. Howard has just returned from the east, where she has made extensive purchases in the millinery line. She can now show the ladies the largest and finest stock of millinery ever brought to the city of Marquette. Miss Howard has had a long experience in the millinery business, as any one can see by the taste and judgement shown in selecting her goods. She has also the most experienced trimmer in the city, as the ladies can well see by her work. Ladies are invited to call and examine.
