CORNER STONE LAID

Of the Divinity Building of the New Catholic University of America.

IMPOSING CEREMONIES OVER THE EVENT IN WASHINGTON.

Miss Caldwell Receives a Letter and the Apostolic Benediction From the Pope. President Cleveland Present.

THE NEW CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY. CORNER STONE LAID.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The corner stone of the Divinity building of the new Catholic University of America was laid this afternoon. Owing to the day being wet there was not such a crowd as was expected. There were, however, over 8,000 present.

The grand procession, which was to have been an imposing feature of the ceremonies, had to be abandoned. Among the distinguished prelates present were Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Williams, of Boston, Ryan, of Philadelphia, Elder, of Cincinnati, Ireland, of St. Paul, and many bishops and priests. A few moments before 4 o'clock President Cleveland arrived and was introduced to Cardinal Gibbons and the other distinguished divines present, who removed their scarlet and violet berettes and remained uncovered while the president was standing. He took a seat between the cardinal and Bishop Ireland on the platform. Secretaries Bayard, Vilas, Whitney and Endicott and Postmaster-General Dickinson arrived soon after.

At 4 p. m. a choir of 150 voices, accompanied by the Marine band, rendered Haydn's anthem, "The Heavens are Telling." After the chanting of a psalm by the choristers, Right Rev. Bishop Spalding, of Peoria, delivered an address. He spoke at length of the Catholic church; its works and the freedom of the church in this country, and the noble edifices erected by that church, concluding with the following tribute to the noble young lady who presented the gift of the university: "And now how shall I more fittingly conclude than with the name of her whose generous heart and enlightened mind were the impulse which has given to what had long been a hope deferred and a dream-like vision existence and a dwelling place—Mary Gwendolen Caldwell."

Bishop Keane, rector of the university, here stepped forward and addressing himself to Miss Caldwell, who was seated at the right and in front of the platform, read a short letter from the cardinal to Miss Caldwell, expressing the profound gratitude of the church for her gift of $300,000, which, he said, entitled her to be considered the "Foundress of the Catholic university." Accompanying the cardinal's letter was one from the pope to Bishop Keane expressing gratitude for Miss Caldwell's munificence and bestowing upon her the apostolic benediction. Bishop Keane then handed Miss Caldwell the medal sent to her by the pope. Miss Caldwell received the gift with bowed head. After the benediction by the cardinal the ceremonies were brought to an end.

The pope sent a cablegram of congratulation for the work just begun, giving the apostolic blessing to all the bishops and asking for full details of the ceremonies.

A Gray Haired Skin Game.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 24.—Last Tuesday a stranger entered the shoe shop of V. Hoffman to buy a pair of shoes. A moment later another man came in and, appearing to know the first, offered him a box of diamonds which he said he was forced to sell. They struck a bargain and the first man paid $100 in cash. They went out together, the first man taking a pair of shoes to try. A few hours later the seller returned and said he had found a jeweler who would pay him $200 for the stones. He would pay Hoffman $140 if he would buy them back when the first man returned to complete the payment for his shoes. Hoffman agreed. The first man returned soon. Hoffman offered him $100 for the diamonds, and after a show of reluctance the offer was accepted. Hoffman has since been looking for the second man with the $140. Hoffman's $100 was the savings of a year.

Of One Opinion.

CHICAGO, May 24.—Chairman Hoge, of the Burlington strikers, denied to-day that there was any truth in the reports that a division of opinion exists among the Brotherhood men as to the policy to pursue. He said his reports from all points on the system are that the majority of the strikers are decidedly opposed to declaring the strike at an end.

Priest Goes to the Pen.

CHICAGO, May 24.—Charles Priest, who was convicted of stealing $2,000 worth of diamonds from Nellie Schock and her mother, has been taken to Joliet. He goes for one year. Priest was arrested at Ironwood, Mich., where he was leading a reformed life and had acquired considerable notoriety as a politician.

THE LOUISVILLE RACES.

Last Day of the Meeting—Egmont Wins the Kentucky Handicap.

A GREAT RACE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 24.—It was a splendid day for the winding up of the spring meeting. The races were magnificent and the crowd immense. Owing to the Kentucky Handicap being run to-day, the grand stand was crowded. There was never a better field in America to face a starter than that which gathered at the post before the third race. In it were two Derby winners of numberless stakes, horses that had made a record, and not one which would have been a genuine surprise had he won.

Terra Cotta was the favorite though Egmont sold well up with him. The race was a beautiful one, being run from end to end. Gallifet started the pace first and after passing the quarter stand quickened his pace. At the first quarter past the stand, Egmont passed Gallifet and won the race. Egmont won by two lengths, with Terra Cotta second and Nick Finzer third. After passing the half, Gallifet let down badly and came in at the tail end. The distance was a mile and a quarter and Egmont made the distance in 2:07 1/2.

This race brings the owner of Egmont $4,000. There were four other minor races. An accident happened to the jockey of Gallifet in the home stretch which most probably prevented Gallifet from finishing better. He fractured or strained his left leg, which proved useless for the time being, and discouraged as well as pained him, so that he was unable to put any life into his horse.

WISCONSIN PROHIBS.

A Full State Ticket Put in The Field—A Row Over Woman Suffrage.

MADISON, Wis., May 24.—The prohibition convention reconvened this afternoon and nominated E. G. Durant, of Racine, for governor by acclamation. A full state ticket was nominated. The platform declares a belief that the liquor traffic is a service of crime; that pauperism is the arch enemy of labor; favors liberal and complete education, a careful and just imposition of taxes, and a vigilant supervision of the use of corporation franchises; opposes the issuing of free passes to public officers and asks for the passage of a law making it a crime for any state officer accepting or using such a pass. In conclusion the platform endorsed the W. C. T. U. The minority committee reported a woman suffrage plank in addition, which caused a debate lasting several hours. The debate grew so warm and exciting that the convention threatened to break up in a row, but quiet was restored and the woman's suffrage motion voted down.

Named a Joint Receiver.

MANISTEE, Mich., May 24.—A committee consisting of W. R. Burt, of East Saginaw, J. P. O'Dell, of Chicago, S. W. Oerthant, of Grand Rapids, Wm. Bowling, of Detroit, and James Kneeland, of Milwaukee, representing the creditors of Michael Enclmann's estate, after considerable deliberation named James Gamble, of Washington, D. C., to operate with Otto Netsinger as joint receiver of the Manistee Salt and Lumber company's business.

THE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS PLAY AN ERRORLESS FIELDING GAME.

A Wild Pitch Their Only Error—The Hoosiers Have on Their Batting Clothes at Pittsburgh.

YESTERDAY'S GAMES.

CHICAGO, 8; DETROIT, 4.

CHICAGO, May 24.—The league champions were defeated by the Chicagoes to-day in a splendidly played game that was decided by the stronger batting of the home club. Baldwin pitched a great game and the sluggers could do nothing with his delivery after the first inning. In the fourth inning he struck out Twitchell, Hanlon and Bennett in succession. The Detroiters played a brilliant fielding game, a wild pitch by Getzein being their only error. Getzein was hit hard throughout. Burns closed the game with a beautiful double play, catching a hot line hit from Hanlon's bat and throwing Twitchell out at first before he could get back to the base. Score: Chicago, 8; Detroit, 4.

Earned runs—Chicago 7, Detroit 1. Two-base hits—Anson, Thompson, Rowe. Three-base hits—Pettit, Anson. Home runs—Pfeffer, Hanlon. Double plays—Pfeffer and Anson; Williamson, Pfeffer and Anson; Burns and Anson. First base on balls—Rowe, Twitchell, Getzein. First base on errors—Detroit, 1. Struck out—By Baldwin, 4; by Getzein, 6. Passed balls—Miller, 3; Dally, 2. Wild pitches—Baldwin, 2; Getzein, 1. Time—1:50. Umpire—Decker.

PITTSBURGH 6; INDIANAPOLIS 11.

PITTSBURGH, May 24.—The Hoosiers had their batting clothes on to-day and as a result Henderson was knocked out of the box in the third inning. He was relieved by Maul, but the visitors continued their slugging throughout the game. The game was marked by wretched fielding and stupid base running. Score: Pittsburgh, 6; Indianapolis, 11.

Earned runs—Pittsburgh, 3; Indianapolis, 5. Two-base hits—Dally, Hines, Healy, Seery, McGeehan, 2. Double plays—Kuehne, Dunlap and Coleman; Bennett and Anson; First base on balls—Miller, Dunlap, Hines, Seery. First base on errors—Pittsburgh, 3; Indianapolis, 3. Struck out—By Maul, 5; by Healy, 4. Passed balls—Miller, 3; Dally, 2. Wild pitches—Maul, 1. Time—2:05. Umpire—Valentine.

TORNADO IN TEXAS

Churches, Schoolhouses and Residences Destroyed—One Life Lost.

AT BROOKSTON.

BROOKSTON, Tex., May 24.—A tornado at this place yesterday afternoon destroyed three churches, a schoolhouse and seven dwellings. The damage was $12,000. One colored woman was killed and eight persons were seriously hurt. The losses in the country to crops will be heavy.

AT COBISCANA.

COBISCANA, Tex., May 24.—One of the worst storms that ever visited this section occurred last night. The storm began at 11 o'clock and continued half an hour. The damage to business and resident property is $25,000. The damage to crops will be very great. Over a dozen buildings were unroofed and a dozen small houses demolished. No lives were lost.

CORN BADLY DAMAGED.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Tex., May 24.—A destructive hail storm passed over the country two miles east of this place yesterday, doing great damage to growing crops and fruit trees. Corn is badly damaged.

SEVERAL PERSONS INJURED.

WELLINGTON, Kas., May 24.—A tornado struck the town of Argonia about 6 o'clock last night. The Methodist church and the Palace Hotel and a number of stores and dwellings were destroyed. No fatalities are reported, but several persons were severely injured by flying timbers and debris.

AN IMPORTANT DEAL.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Scheme To Kill a Rival and Block The Reading's Eye.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—The Evening Bulletin says one of the most important railroad purchases of recent years will soon be consummated, being no less than the transfer by the B. & O. of the Schuylkill River & East Side railroad to the control of a syndicate which will operate in the interest of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and which will at the same time gain the possession of the Philadelphia extension of the B. & O. The purchase will not be made in the name of the Pennsylvania railroad, but a company is now being formed, and it is stated on unimpeachable authority that the money will be furnished by the Pennsylvania company, and that it will practically own and control the East Side. This deal will be one of the utmost importance, and the Pennsylvania will not only crush a possible through trunk line rival, but will at the same time gain a big advantage over the Reading.

TO OVER-RIDE VETOS

Stewart Grows Alarmingly Pro- phetic in Debating His Pro- posed Amendment.

THE POSTOFFICE APPROPRIATION BILL PASSES THE HOUSE.

She South Dakota Admission Bill Taken Up Some Little Spouting and Con- versation on the Matter.

THE SENATE. THE DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Mr. Allison, from the committee on appropriations, reported back the deficiency bill for the expenses of collecting the revenue, and the Indian appropriation bill. He gave notice that he would ask for the consideration of the former to-morrow, and for that reason he hoped the senate would be in session, and of the latter at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. Stewart called up the joint resolution offered by him on the 14th inst., for a constitutional amendment reducing to a simple majority the vote necessary to over-ride a presidential veto, and addressed the senate on the subject. He referred to the large number of veto messages sent in by President Cleveland, and said that they rested solely upon the assumption that it was the duty of the president to nullify every law for which he would not have voted, as a member of congress—an assumption not only of superior wisdom, honesty and patriotism on his part, but of a better opportunity to ascertain the facts than the members of the two houses had. The form of government, he said, had changed from democratic simplicity to a one-man power responsive only to the necessities of a party and the influence of money. The people did not realize the growing power of the executive. The president had more than 100,000 offices at his disposal and a member of congress was not even allowed to give evidence as to the fitness of an applicant for the office. The president alone determined all questions relating to the appointments to office either by himself or by a board, called the civil service commission, appointed by him and removable at his pleasure. The vast revenues of the government were practically used by the administration as a private fund to augment the power of the executive. The result was reached, partly by legislation and partly by a forced construction of the laws. The legislation of congress, no matter how secured or by whom advised, permitted the administration to loan the accumulated funds in the treasury to such national banks as might be in favor with the executive.

WITHOUT INTEREST OR REWARD to the government; and this power had been liberally exercised by the present administration in lanking over $60,000,000 to such national banks as found favor in the eyes of the secretary of the treasury. Mr. Stewart referred in the same connection to the purchase of bonds at the enormous premium of 27 per cent "from persons unknown to the public, but presumably well known to the executive." No one denied Mr. Cleveland's absolute ownership of the bond. Mr. Cleveland's absolute ownership of the bond Grover Cleveland had paralyzed the house so that it could not even utter the word "silver," when the senate sent it the Beck amendment on the bond purchasing bill. At that rate the growing power of "this man of destiny" had but to continue unresisted for another term of four years to so trench Grover Cleveland in the White House that NOTHING BUT REVOLUTION could remove him. Never before, in the hands of one man, had such vast powers and resources been entrusted by a confiding people. It remained to be seen whether the president would be able to fulfill the expectations of the Washington Post by imitating Napoleon, and crown himself, because he regarded all others as unworthy to perform that service. After referring to the attorney-general and the Bell Telephone company, Mr. Stewart closed by saying that the people admired courage, independence, audacity and will; that these qualities were possessed in a high degree by Mr. Cleveland; that while they were guarantees of personal success, they were dangerous to popular liberty, and were qualities which increased the executive authority at the expense of the people. The selection by Mr. Cleveland of the money kings and bondholding aristocracy of Europe and America as his allies proved his sagacity and showed his appreciation of the necessity for the use of money in accomplishing his Napoleonic schemes. If such associations did not arouse people to action before it was too late it would be because the boldness and daring of the "man of destiny" dazzled and blinded them.

The presiding officer announced the appointment of a select committee to examine into all questions touching the meat product of the United States.

The conference report on the pension appropriation bill was presented and agreed to.

After an executive session the senate adjourned.

THE HOUSE.

POSTOFFICE BILL UP.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—On motion of Mr. Catchings (Miss) the senate bill was passed for the erection of a public building at Vicksburg, Miss., to cost $100,000. Mr. McKenna endeavored to secure consideration for the senate bill increasing to $100,000 the appropriation for a public building at Sacramento, Cal., but Mr. Bland (Mo) objected.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the postoffice appropriation bill.

On motion of Mr. Blount (Ga) the appropriation for the mail messenger service was increased from $900,000 to $950,000.

Mr. Perkins (Kan) entered a complaint against the inefficient mail service. He read from a letter received from a postal clerk of the seventh division testifying to the inefficiency of the service between Sedalia, Mo., and Denison, Texas. He said the complaints were not partisan. The people, without distinction of party, were asking for better service in the west. He attributed a portion of the evil to the fact that many inefficient men had been appointed, and instanced the case of a postmaster who sent nothing to the railway station for a week, and when asked for his reason stated that his mail bag was not full and he was waiting until it was. (Laughter.) Another postmaster in Missouri sent to Washington for postage stamps and they were sent to him in a great sheet. He had never seen them in that form before, and thought the sheet was a circus poster. He pasted it on the wall, and calling his wife, said to her: "See what the darned fool in Washington sent me. When I write him for stamps he sent me a circus poster and the darned circus riders all look alike." (Laughter.)

Mr. Dockery (Mo.)—What is the name of that postmaster?

Mr. Perkins—I don't want to give away secrets. I saw the story in the newspapers and, of course, the newspapers never tell anything that isn't true. (Laughter.)

Mr. Cannon (Ill) attributed the inefficiency of the service in the west, not to a lack of appropriations, but to incompetent persons.

Mr. Blount said that the record would disclose the fact that the changes in the railway mail service had been gradual, and to-day the rate of merit was higher than it had ever been. He asserted that nearly half of the clerks in the railway mail service were those held over from the republican administration. The present administration had done more towards the advance of civil service reform than any other in the history of the country. It had gone forward with an iron will, even though sometimes offence had been given to its friends.

A discussion then took place on the question of subsidies and free ships. Mr. Adams stated that there was considerable dissatisfaction among the business men of Chicago with the mail service of that city.

Mr. Enloe (Tenn) read statistics showing that the states which complained the most had been greatly benefited in the service during the past year.

Mr. Symes (Col) criticized the post-office department for the inadequate management of the star route service.

Mr. Peters (Kas) attacked the department on the score of inefficient western mail service.

The committee then rose and the bill passed.

The house again resolved itself into committee of the whole on the state of the union and Mr. Belmont called up the senate bill providing for an international marine conference to secure the greatest safety for life and property at sea. The bill was then laid aside for a favorable report and the committee proceeded to the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill.

Mr. Baker (N Y) argued in favor of the admission of South Dakota into the union.

Mr. Gifford (Dak) and Mr. Kerr (Ia) advocated home rule in the territories.

Mr. Springer (Ill) declared that the democratic party was in favor of the admission of Dakota but opposed the admission of the territory because the people of Dakota were against division.

Mr. Butterworth (Ohio) inquired whether if Dakota was a democratic state and had, as she had done, voted in favor of division, the gentleman would be opposed to that division? "Now, look up, Mr. Springer, and answer," said Mr. Butterworth.

Mr. Springer looked up and answered, "I would," amid applause and laughter, while Mr. Butterworth commented, "Can you say it without a blush?"

Mr. Springer retorted with the question whether if Dakota were democratic in both sections, Mr. Butterworth would be in favor of a division.

Mr. Butterworth—Yes, sir, and I have so asserted. (Laughter.)

Mr. Springer—Would you be in favor of dividing Montana?

Mr. Butterworth—Whenever the like conditions are presented, I will be consistent.

Mr. Springer said that for partisan purposes, the gentlemen on the other side resisted the admission of the state. For the purpose of getting four senators they would outrage the voice of the people and keep them out of the union.

After further debate the committee rose without action upon the bill. The house passed the senate marine conference bill as amended by the committee of the whole.

Mr. Gay submitted the conference report on the invalid pension appropriation bill and it was agreed to. The bill is the same as it passed the senate.

The house then adjourned.

THE ROYAL WEDDING

The Marriage Ceremonies of Prince Henry and Princess Irene at Charlottenburg.

THE USUAL AMOUNT OF CHEERINGS BY THE PEOPLE.

Off to Spend the Honeymoon—Emperor Frederick Better—The Emperor of Brazil Improving.

GERMANY. HENRY AND IRENE MARRIED.

BERLIN, May 24.—The marriage ceremony of Prince Henry, second son of Emperor Frederick, and Princess Irene, third daughter of Grand Duke Ludwig of Hesse, was solemnized in the chapel of Charlottenburg castle to-day. All the bells of Charlottenburg were rung at noon to announce that the ceremony had commenced and a salute of thirty-six guns, fired at 12:30, announced that the bride and bridegroom had exchanged rings. Both Emperor Frederick and the dowager Empress Augusta were present during the ceremony. Prince Henry and the crown prince were dressed in naval uniforms. Thousands of people were assembled outside of the castle.

When the aged General von Moltke arrived he was enthusiastically greeted by the crowds. The bride and bridegroom are first cousins, the Princess Irene being the daughter of the Princess Alice of Great Britain, sister of Empress Victoria of Germany.

Henry, who is in his twenty-sixth year, is much more popular than his elder brother, Crown Prince William. The favorable turn in the condition of his father, the emperor, added to the joyousness of the occasion.

The empress and her daughter and Prince Henry met Princess Irene at Charlottenburg station when she arrived yesterday and received her with affectionate greetings. The emperor was asleep when the party arrived.

The emperor rested better last night than he has on any night since his arrival in Charlottenburg.

Prince Henry and bride left the Charlottenburg depot by special train at 3 o'clock for Edmannsdorf where they will spend the honeymoon. They received a continuous ovation from the people all along the route from the castle to the depot.

CANADA.

DOMINION NOTES.

QUEBEC, Ont., May 24.—Lord and Lady Lansdowne and suite sailed for England this morning.

Sir Charles Tupper has resigned the position of minister of finance in the Canadian government and has been appointed high commissioner for Canada in London. G. F. Foster, minister of marine, has been appointed to succeed Sir Charles as minister of finance.

RUSSIA.

REDUCED THE TROOPS.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 24.—The government has reduced the number of troops in the trans-Caspian territories by 1,088 men and thirteen officers.

HAD A GOOD NIGHT.

MILAN, May 24.—The emperor of Brazil had a good night. His condition is improving.

DIDN'T MIND THE BITE.

An Old Chap in Arkansas Who Wasn't Afraid of His Dog.

A Georgia man, while standing in front of a blacksmith's shop, was bitten by a dog. "Gracious alive!" exclaimed the blacksmith, "run home and pray for the salvation of your soul, for your body is lost."

"How so?" the old fellow asked as he rubbed the place where the dog had bitten him.

"Why, that dog is mad. Look how he foams at the mouth. That's the dog the neighbors have been looking for!"

A puff of smoke came from the bushes near by, the "bang" of a gun was heard and the dog fell dead in the road.

"Neighbors been lookin' fur him, eh?" said the old fellow who had been bitten. "Wall, I ain't been lookin' fur him, but it 'pears sorter like he's been lookin' fur me."

"Kin to a doctor, man?"

"No, I ain't afford it. I hired one last spring to cure the chills on my daughter Nan, an' I thought it would break me bodily, but agin I got him paid. Nan, you know, married Abe Slater shortly afterward, an' I says to Abe, s'it, 'Abe, you oughter pay a part of that chill bill.' 'What chill bill says he?' 'W'y Nan's, s'it. 'Oh,' says he, 'I didn't marry the chills too. I only married Nan, an' I natchally expected the chills not to cut no figger in the transaction.' An', s'ir, Abe he never would pay a cent on that chill bill, but putty soon 'long come the yellin' arg, creepin' down the big road. Wall, s'it, it hopped astraddle ov ole Abe an' rid him patty high ter death."

"But that ain't got nothing to do with that mad dog. You'll be a dead man in less'n nine days."

"Wall, I'll wait an' see, an' ef what you say comes true, w'y I'll own up. I ain't no han' ter dispute after the facts have dun gone agin me. 'Tain't thater way with Abe, though. He'll argy when he knows he ain't got no show. I like ter see a man stick up fur what he believes, but then when a feller finds he's wrong, w'y he jest natchally ought to cave. Wall, good mawwin'. I've got a horse trade on han' over yander corner the branch an' I believe I'll fix it up befo' the feller gets outen the notion."—Arkansaw Traveler.

The juice of two oranges added to a pitcher of lemonade greatly improves it.

Rain water and soap will remove machine grease from washable fabrics.

THE COPPER COUNTRY.

Hancock Notes—The Opening Game of the Upper Peninsula League—Telegrams Concerning the Portage Lake Purchase Project—Rhinehart Cets Three Years—A Happy Juror—C. & H. Affairs.

HANCOCK.

HANCOCK, May 24.—Jacob Rohlmann, Jr., has bought out the green grocery kept by Napoleon Ongie. Mr. Rohlmann will keep the place stocked up with the freshest and best of everything in his line.

The Copper Herald will move into its new building to-day.

J. C. Day and company are enlarging their store building.

On Wednesday next, May 30th, the opening game of base ball of the Upper Peninsula league will be played at the driving park between the Hancock and the Calumet clubs. At 2 o'clock there will be a procession consisting of the Hancock City brass band followed by carriages containing the Hancock base ball club, the Calumet club and citizens. The game promises to be a very interesting one. The admission to the grounds will be 25 cents, and the game will begin promptly at 3:30 P. M.

Mr. Charles Linder was yesterday discharged as the assignee of Henry Key, having sold out his stock and fixtures and made his report to the circuit court as required by law.

Mr. Edward Ryan, as president of the business men's committee on the Portage Lake canal business, has received the following telegrams in response to those sent by secretary J. B. Sturgis:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 23, 1888.
To Edward Ryan, Hancock, Mich.:
SIR—We are doing our utmost. Senator Palmer hopes for success in the senate.

H. W. SEYMOUR.
DULUTH, Minn., May 23, 1888.

To Edward Ryan, Hancock:
SIR—Our telegraphed all our senators and congressmen to do all possible to have the general government possess your canal.

Per G. G. Boardman.
CHICAGO, May 22, 1888.

To Edward Ryan, Hancock:
SIR—Have written and telegraphed. Our senators are making every effort to help matters.

LEOPOLD A. AUSTRIAN.
WASHINGTON, May 23, 1888.

To Edward Ryan, Hancock:
SIR—Hope to get Portage Lake appropriation on in the coming session on Thursday.

T. W. PALMER.
Mr. Ryan has also written and telegraphed to the Hon. Don M. Dickinson and other prominent public men in Washington to use their influence in this very important matter.

HOUGHTON.

HOUGHTON, May 24.—Judge Williams yesterday sentenced William S. Rhinehart to three years at hard labor in the Jackson state prison.

Maurice Murphy was sentenced to two months in the county jail.

Superintendent J. H. Moyle, of the Copper Falls mine, arrived here yesterday. He reports the mine looking well. Two heads of stamps are working at the mill, and the percentage of copper obtained is very satisfactory.

This term of court will close next Tuesday evening.

General manager J. B. Whiting, of the Calumet & Hecla, and superintendent J. N. Wright were in town yesterday. They went to the Huron mine to witness a trial of the gates rock crusher.

At circuit court yesterday the jury brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of the People against Gilbert Brule for larceny.

CALUMET.

CALUMET, May 24.—Consulting engineer Leavitt, of the Calumet & Hecla mine, left for Boston this morning.

Capt. P. Kerns, who is serving the county this term of court as a juror, rejoices this morning over the arrival of a bouncing boy at his home.

Four skips will be used in hoisting water from the mine. The four will be able to relieve the mine of one million gallons a day. The four condensing pumps will raise 400,000 gallons a day, so that the mine will be relieved of about 1,400,000 gallons every twenty-four hours.

Notes of Queer Expressions.

A teacher of Mississippi colored folks has been taking notes of queer expressions that she has heard from her pupils and in meeting. The American Missionary publishes them. Here are a few: "Go to the great physicianer." "I use consecrated lye." "She is a crippler." "O Lord, give us good thinking facticals." "The meeting will be in the house of the church." "O Lord, throw overboard all the load we's totin, and the sins which upset us." "Jog them in remembrance of their vows." "I want her to resist me with the ironing." "I want all you people to adhere to the bell." "There will be no respectable people in heaven (God is no respecter of persons)." "It was much discouraging." "It was said at the startment of the meeting." "I take care of three head of children." "We have passed through many dark scenes and unseens."—New York Sun.

Unslaked lime is excellent for cleaning small articles in steel, such as jewelry, buckles and the like.

Butter, lard and drippings should be stored in jars and kept in the coldest and driest place.

Sweet milk or cream is excellent for sunburns or chapped feet on the little boys.

The nicest thing to scour knives, brass, tin ware, etc., is sifted hard coal ashes.

If sassafras bark is sprinkled around dried fruit it will keep out the worms.

THE NEWS AT NEGAUNEE.

Contract Let for the D., S. S. & A. Extension to Palmer-School Entertainment To-Night—Items Gathered on the Run.

The South Shore Extension.

The contract for the extension of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway from this city to Palmer has been let to Minneapolis parties, represented by Messrs. H. L. and F. K. Balch, of that city, who are now at the Breitung House. The work will be under the immediate supervision of A. D. Smith, of Rhineland, who is also in town. Yesterday afternoon the party went out to look over the route. The work will be commenced as soon as possible and rapidly pushed, but it will require considerable time to finish the extension.

To-Night's Entertainment.

This evening the musical and elocutionary classes of St. Paul's public school will give an entertainment at the opera house. The pupils have spent much time in practice, and those who contemplate attending may rest assured that an enjoyable evening is in store for them. The entertainment will commence promptly at 7:30 P. M. Admission, 50 cents.

Negaunee folks are so anxious to read the MINING JOURNAL that many of them cannot wait until the carrier delivers it, but come to the depot at train time. The eagerness displayed yesterday morning resulted in one of the party receiving a swollen lip. The reporter, upon receiving the bundle, gave a very forcible jerk to break the string. It broke and the reporter's elbow flew through space until it came in contact with the face of a gentleman who was waiting for his copy. The victim didn't tell his usual quota of stories yesterday in consequence.

Superintendent Beneshek will commence work in a few days on the Lincoln street extension of the water system. The mains are being extended as fast as practicable each year, and new subscribers are added to the list of water takers almost daily. There have been no complaints about the quality of the water furnished since Reau dug the suction pipe out of the mud and fixed it in proper shape.

One of Negaunee's most prominent society young men is to be married early in August to a young lady of Ravenswood, Ill., at which place the ceremony will be solemnized. The reporter is not at liberty to give further particulars at present, but will be happy to extend congratulations when the time arrives.

The halls at the Breitung House have been thoroughly renovated and laid with new carpets, and are now as nice as a parlor. The new furnishings also add much to the appearance of the house. The only thing that troubles Seas now-a-days is to find room in which to store away his goods.

Dr. L. D. Cyr is prepared to take orders for fine California wines, and will have a card to that effect in the advertising columns of this paper shortly. The doctor has of late spent considerable of his time in California, and consequently is able to satisfactorily serve those wanting anything in that line.

An entertainment will be given at the Methodist church this evening by members of the local lodge Royal Templars of Temperance. All those interested in the work of the order are invited to be present. Admission free.

John Gordon, of the Northwestern Hotel, Hancock, has sent mine host Seas a fine exterior view of his hostelry and also one of the dining room. The pictures now adorn the Breitung House office.

Several fishing parties have made excursions to the streams hereabout, but with one accord they report that the water is altogether too high for successful angling.

Joseph Bohrer has the foundation completed for a neat dwelling house at the corner of Mackenzie avenue and Case street.

James Diegman, with the Breitung House, cut his finger so badly Wednesday that a doctor had to take a few stitches in it.

T. M. Wells has the lumber on the ground for extensive improvements on his Case street residence.

The local base ball club is ready and waiting to have a chip knocked off its shoulder.

C. S. Mitchell is fixing up his soda water fountain for the summer campaign.

G. Sporely & Son are out with a neat delivery wagon.

PERSONAL.

John Taylor, the photographer at Republic, passed through here yesterday en route for Omaha, where he will reside in the future.

O. H. Shaffer, D. S. S. & A. agent at Houghton, formerly agent at this place, passed through here yesterday on his way to the southern peninsula.

Miss Kate McCarthy has resigned her position as operator at the local telephone exchange, and is succeeded by Miss Kate Sullivan. Miss McCarthy has given excellent satisfaction and the patrons of the system are sorry to have her leave.

H. E. Richardson, of the Lake Superior Carriage works, Marquette, was in town taking orders yesterday.

James Davidson and John Rose, of Rhineland, are in the city on matters connected with the D., S. S. & A. extension to Palmer.

MARQUETTE, MICH., MAY 25, 1886.

Entered as mail matter of the second class, in the post office at Marquette, Mich.

FRANK HATTON, editor of the New York Press, and ex-postmaster-general, is in the west working in the interest of John Sherman's nomination. He will need a rest badly when he returns to New York.

THE Cleveland Plaindealer of Wednesday states that "Asiatic ore carriers are hard to place at $1.25, but there is a big demand for Marquette and Escanaba boats." It adds that four Marquette charters were made on that date at $1.15.

ARE there no drawbacks to our delightful climate? queries a Duluth paper. Don't know about the climate, but there would seem to be some drawbacks to navigation up there, according to the marine reports? The ice went out several days ago and stayed out long enough to let a fleet of vessels in, after which it drew back into the harbor and imprisoned them there.

The labor party's candidate for president will hardly poll as large a vote next fall as Butler did in 1884, but he appears to be a much more reputable man. His speech at the reception given him at his home the other day was sensible and in exceedingly good taste. His party will not elect him, of course, but it will have no reason to be ashamed of him, if we may take his utterances as indicative of the man.

The Saginaw Herald asserts that "more than 18,000 democrats in the state of New York alone during the past week have taken a solemn pledge to support the political party which puts a protection plank in its platform." And yet there are some foolish people who persist in believing that all democrats are free traders! But is the Herald certain that those alleged democrats took the above-mentioned pledge? It seems almost too good to be true.

It is reported from Washington that Governor Alger, of Michigan, will spend $100,000, and, if the prospects seem at all favorable $200,000, in pushing his boom for either the presidential or vice-presidential nomination at Chicago. The governor should know that republican presidential booms are not quick to fruitage that way.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

If the Chicago convention isn't blind to the welfare of the republican party it will give the first place on the ticket to Alger without compelling him to "put up" for it. He can find lots of places for the contents of a moderately large barrel afterward.

CHAIRMAN WESTON, of the democratic state central committee, thinks Judge Morse would make a strong candidate on the ticket with Cleveland. Maybe, but if he is a "wise judge" he will not be easily persuaded to leave the supreme bench to become a candidate for an office to which so little influence or honor attaches as the vice-presidency. Besides, it wouldn't be prudent for the democrats to create a vacancy on the supreme bench which the republicans would stand the best chance of filling. They should bear in mind that the Detroit Evening News might not see fit to support a candidate for Judge Morse's place as warmly as it did Judge Morse when he ran against Judge Cooley. They had better let well enough alone in Michigan.

The Milwaukee Sentinel of yesterday says editorially: "The Herald of this city published yesterday a dispatch from its Washington correspondent, in which he mentions having already reported that he had discovered a plot to injure General Gresham's chances by publishing 'a campaign chestnut,' the object of which is to influence the Germans, now especially favorable to him, to oppose his nomination. The reference is to the article published in 1866 by an obscure Indiana newspaper, charging General Gresham with having made a speech, thirty-two years ago, in which he expressed opposition to immigration, and especially to Germans. The correspondent says that he has good grounds for believing that the matter has been concocted in the interests of Sherman and Harrison, whose friends see the rapid spread of the Gresham boom."

REFERRING to the president's veto of a bill recently passed by congress, the Detroit Tribune smartly observes that by the act he "again reminds us that he knows more than both branches of congress." Sometimes we can't help thinking it would be a mighty poor president who didn't. The Tribune holds, we take it, that the veto power is vested in executive officials with the express reservation that they shall refrain from exercising it. It may be right in maintaining this view of the matter, but numberless instances can be cited of where it has been exercised with salutary effect. A case of where it was not exercised, but should have been; is furnished by the liquor law enacted by the legislature of this state at its last session. If Governor Luce had been sharp enough to detect the fatal defect in that, and had the backbone to veto it, he might have saved thirty-six counties in lower Michigan the expense and annoyance of as many special elections to pass upon a question that—as it now appears—they had no legal power to decide under the enactment.

THE Evening Wisconsin, of Milwaukee, mildly censures Congressman Guenther for objecting to remarks made about his countrymen by Judge Gresham in a speech delivered over thirty-three years ago. We reproduce what it has to offer in Gresham's behalf:

Mr. Gresham in 1853 was 23 years old, and a member of the American, or "Know-nothing" party. He was a candidate for county clerk and in a speech at Louder's school-house, a hamlet in Harrison county, Indiana, he is represented as denouncing many of the immigrants from Germany as "lazy, lousy, lop-eared, dirty Dutch."

It was a harsh remark to make, but may have been justified by the appearance of some of the pauper immigrants in southern Indiana. Of course no thoughtful man will regard such an utterance as a disability from holding high office.

Judge Gresham's splendid military and civil record since is sufficient to clean out even a dark spot on the sun. Walter G. Gresham was opposed to indiscriminate foreign immigration in 1855, and after a lapse of thirty years there are millions of his countrymen who concur with him.

Representative Guenther is a bright, active and clear-headed sort of a man, but we fear he has allowed his foreign prejudices as a German to over-balance his better judgment. The next presidential canvass is to be fought not on the dead past, but on the living present.

THE Detroit Free Press prints this special from its Washington correspondent under date of the 22nd:

The senate committee has favorably reported the bill prepared by Postmaster-General Dickinson for the erection of postoffice buildings in towns and cities where the postoffice receipts for the three years preceding have exceeded $3,000 annually. The bill meets the strong support of prominent senators and is received with great favor in the house. Congressman Whiting said to-day: "It is practical, will prove a great saving to the government, and is a matter of justice to the smaller cities and towns. I have thought for several years that the policy of building government buildings in large cities only was wrong. The smaller towns and the country contribute of necessity to the prosperity of the larger cities without being called upon to bear the cost of public buildings for them alone when their own convenience, classification of business and stable property values depend so greatly upon the permanent location of a postoffice building. If the postmaster-general succeeds in this measure he will inaugurate a public policy of the greatest importance. It would revive business by the employment of labor and the purchase of material in every part of the country. It would be worth more than the cost to the people. It would be a just way to spend the surplus, and, in my opinion, be the proper way to use some of the credit of the government in supplying a circulating medium should the surplus, through decreased taxation, become exhausted. It is a greater project than any postmaster-general has had the courage to undertake and if successful will do honor not to the name of Dickinson alone, but to the state of Michigan."

"MAY GOD BLESS YOU!"

A Boston Paper-Hanger's Trouble and How He Got Out of it—Plain Words From the Sunny South.

When we are in trouble we cry for help. When we are relieved we often forget to be thankful but not always. Mr. W. W. Griffin, of Trout Creek, St. Clair Co., Ala., writes: "I had a bad attack of chills and fever. My system was full of malaria. For two years I was scarcely able to work at all. Some times my heart would palpitate for two hours at a time. My legs would get cold to the knees, and I fully expected to die. In September, 1881, I bought a bottle of Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Curative Syrup, of your agent, Mr. R. M. King, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt better, and in a short time was able to go to work. May God bless you for the good you have done."

Mr. Wm. J. McCann, 99 Randall St., Boston writes: "Six months ago I began to throw up my food after eating. I thought I was going into consumption. I soon began to have pain in my chest, stomach and sides. I got little sleep and woke all tired out. I once lost five pounds in four days. I began using Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I could eat three square meals a day, and go to sleep the minute I struck the bed. I am a paper-hanger by trade, and have worked every day since I took the second bottle, and gained eighteen pounds. I ought to be thankful and I am."
This remedy opens all the natural passages of the body, expels the poison from the blood and enables nature to rebuild what disease has destroyed. Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, is sold by all druggists, or send to the proprietor, A. J. White, 54 Warren street, N. Y.

POPOFF'S JOURNEY.

"Well, what think you of my project, my little dove?" "Confoundery," retorted the "little dove," without raising her eyes from the "Life of the Saints," in which she seemed to be absorbed.

The above conversation occurred one fine Sunday at Moscow between Vassili Iwanovitch Popoff, a middle class "notable" and merchant, and his wife, Avdotia Iwanovna. The worthy couple were sitting after mass at a table, on which stood a gigantic "sannovar" puffing out jets of vapor.

Avdotia Iwanovna was a dark little woman, strongly resembling a withered old man, with sharp features and abrupt in her movements. Her shrill voice made her servants tremble and cut her husband's long speeches very short.

For the past ten years, however, an idea had gradually invaded the circumscribed brain of Vassili Iwanovitch, and had at last taken complete possession of that organ.

He had bought a "Guide to Paris," which he read secretly at his warehouse, and became so absorbed and absent minded during its perusal that he made the most absurd mistakes. Not only did he give his clerks wrong directions when under the influence of his Baltic mania, but one day, when a customer had asked him for the address of a merchant in St. Petersburg, he actually replied, "Place de la Concorde."

Avdotia Iwanovna, like a good wife, did all she could to dispel what she called her husband's "madness." She kept her "neuvaines" burned candles before the miracle working Virgin of Tverskaya, consulted three celebrated fortune-tellers of the city; made a pilgrimage to the convent of Troitz, not far from Moscow; prayed, threatened to do many terrible things, but—did nothing.

With the dogged determination of weak natures, Vassili Iwanovitch maintained a stoical silence when assailed by his wife's reproaches; but as soon as the violence of the storm was spent he would hazard a few timid observations on the general subject.

This journey, he would argue, might be the means of opening up relations with France for his business. The great exhibition that was about to take place would give him information regarding a number of matters concerning which he was profoundly ignorant; might, in fact, teach him much as to many industries, etc.

Wearily of discussion, Avdotia Iwanovna had ended by turning a deaf ear to all her husband's references to the unwelcome subject—a policy that caused the confiding Vassili, compelled to make a confidant of some one, to pour out the fullness of his heart into the bosom of his old servant, Anissime.

the admonition, but hurried to his room to prepare for the long wished for journey. The necessary arrangements were soon made. At the last moment Avdotia Iwanovna hung around her husband's neck a ribbon from which was suspended a little image that had been blessed by the priest, and embraced him with many tears, for it was their first separation since their marriage, and the little woman, though abrupt in manner, had still a warm and kindly heart in her breast.

She begged her spouse with advice and cautions. He must avoid draughts of air and must be especially careful not to run to excess in either eating or drinking.

"You will find some excellent prune brandy in your bag that I made twelve years ago," were her last words at the station. "If you have any stomach trouble take one glass, but no more. Avoid foreign brandy. I am told it is made from seawater and fish."

"Oh, are you sure you've got your flannel waistcoats! Don't fail to come back as soon as possible. I shall expect you on the 30th. Until then I shall keep praying for you to the Holy Virgin." Here she paused to wipe away a tear.

"And be sure not to spend more money than you have taken with you. Don't forget me over yonder—among those pagans. "And you too, Anissime," she continued, turning to the old servant, "mind you don't leave your master for an instant, and should you be attacked by brigands, remember it is your duty to sacrifice your life to save his. Do you understand me?"

"Be calm, Avdotia Iwanovna," replied the old man. "Heaven is merciful; I shall return safe and sound."

Vassili Iwanovitch, affected by the many proofs of his wife's affection, stammered out a few incoherent words, and—burst into tears, to the great astonishment of the other travelers.

Our two Muscovites made the journey to Paris without accident, arriving there at 11 p. m. on the 23d. From Berlin Popoff had telegraphed William Spark that he would see him the next day.

At the Gare du Nord an interpreter got them a carriage, that in due course deposited them in the immense courtyard of the Hotel du Louvre, which, large as it seemed, was filled with vociferating travelers and their luggage.

In the midst of the tumult Popoff and Anissime by expressive gestures succeeded in explaining to the hotel people that they were in want of rooms. After some trouble they were ushered into an elevator and carried to the sixth story with a rapidity that caused poor Anissime to cry out in fright. He believed that he was being carried off by the spirit of evil.

Vassili Iwanovitch, scarcely less perturbed than his humble companion, was not at all sorry to get out of the flying machine. They then went along the corridor, as they had been directed—there happening to be no servant disengaged at the moment to show the way—of his own accord, they found themselves in a dark passage. As Vassili Iwanovitch stumbled against a bed, and not being acquainted with the customs of Paris hotels, he undressed himself by the sense of feeling, and, nearly dead with fatigue from his long journey, tumbled in and was soon asleep.

How much time had elapsed since that moment! Mystery of mysteries! Vassili Iwanovitch awoke, and found himself alone, and said, with a yawn: "Art thou asleep, Anissime?" "No, Vassili Iwanovitch," replied the faithful valet.

"Hasn't he been awake long?" "I know not, Vassili Iwanovitch." "Since it is still night, let us try to get more sleep, Anissime." Silence reigned again. Popoff, who had been following his own advice, was awakened by the falling of a piece of furniture.

"Is it thou, Anissime?" he cried. "It is I, Vassili Iwanovitch," replied the servant. "I have been feeling my way round the room, and have found a window. Flocked out, but it is still as black as your hat outside."

"Well, let us sleep again then; it seems to me that the nights are of an extraordinary length in this latitude." Another relapse into the arms of the sleepy god, when Vassili Iwanovitch was suddenly brought to his senses by a very decided and not very agreeable feeling of cramps in his stomach.

"Anissime," he exclaimed, "knowest thou that I am terribly hungry? Look again through the window and see whether there are yet any signs of the dawn." "It is, no, my master," replied Vassili Iwanovitch, but it still might. However, one thing surprises me greatly. Outside the window there is a most overpowering smell of cheese."

"Cheese? We must have been lodged over a creamery, then, Anissime. I wish we could get down to it, but there is no chance of its being open at this hour." "Anissime! Anissime!" shouted the unfortunate Popoff, unable longer to disregard his physical torments. "I believe I have the choice. You must find the door."

ISHPEMING NOTES.

Messrs. Turner and Seaborg, both well known in Ishpeming, have opened the Ishpeming Bottling works, and are preparing to do a large business in the way of making, bottling and wholesaling temperance and carbonated drinks.

Two young men from Gotham, who were evidently not long away from the metropolis, created a great sensation in town yesterday afternoon. They walked several blocks on Main street clad in summer suits and straw hats. Their names are withheld at the request of friends.

People living outside of the delivery limits of Ishpeming should remember that they can have the paper sent to them by mails at 70 cents per month, or $2 per quarter.

The remains of Mrs. J. A. Welch, aged 37 years, who died on Tuesday, were interred in the Catholic cemetery here Thursday morning. The funeral services were held at St. John's Catholic church, the Rev. H. J. Rousseau officiating.

The Scandinavian society will have a picnic in town in a short time. Preparations are now being made for it.

The Browne Theatre company attracted a good audience to the opera house Thursday evening. The play rendered was "Foggy's Ferry," which was very acceptably presented. The company is a good one, and deserves the hearty support of the theatre-going public. To-night "Under the Gaslight," a thrilling drama in three acts, will be produced. Reserved seats sell for 35 cents, and can be secured at Kirkwood's drug store. Admission 25 cents.

John T. Armstrong left yesterday to spend a short vacation in Chicago.

T. J. Dundon was called to De Pere, Wis., Thursday afternoon to the bedside of his dying father.

M. J. Bourke, of Baraga, manager of Thos. Nester's business at that place, dined at the Nelson yesterday.

H. P. Walker, representing Armour & Co., of Chicago, is at the Nelson.

S. P. McIntyre called on customers in this city yesterday.

W. E. Mayhew, of St. Paul, is in town.

W. A. Jones, of Williamsport, Pa., is registered at the Nelson.

PERSONAL.

Life in a Russian Prison.

A Russian army officer who was condemned to "katorga" for an assault committed in a moment of excitement, and who was pardoned by the czar after several years' detention, describes the Omega prison, where he was confined, as follows:

"For smoking and minor offenses of that sort, a prisoner could be made to kneel for two hours on the bare, frozen flag. The next punishment for the same minor offense was the black hole—the 'kazer'—the warm one and the cold one, underground, with a temperature at freezing point. In both prisoners slept on the stones, and the term of duration depended on the will of the director.

Several were kept there for a fortnight, after which they were literally dragged out into daylight and then dismissed to the land where pain and suffering are not. During the four years of my confinement the average mortality in the prison was 33 per cent. per annum. It must not be thought that those on whom penalties of this kind were inflicted were hardened desperadoes. We incurred them if we saved a morsel of bread from dinner for the supper, or if a match was found on a prisoner. The 'desperate characters' were treated after another fashion. One, for instance, was kept for nine months in solitary confinement in one of the dark cells, and came out blind and insane.

"In the evening the director went his rounds, and usually began his favorite occupation—flogging. A very narrow bench was brought out, and soon the place resounded with shrieks, while the director looked on and counted the lashes, smoking a cigar. The birch rods were of exceptional size, and when not in use they were kept immersed in water so as to make them more pliant. After the tenth lash the shrieking ceased, and nothing was heard but groans. Flogging was usually applied in batches, of five, ten men, or more, and when the torture was over a great pool of blood would remain to mark the spot. After every such scene we had two or three days of comparative peace; the flogging had a soothing influence on the director's nerves. Soon, however, he would become himself again. When he was drunk and his left mustache was drooping and limp, or when he went out shooting and came home with an empty bag, we knew that the same evening the rod would be set at work."—Michael Malkoff in Chicago News.

Why Girls Eat Candy.

"American girls eat more candy than the girls of any other nation," said an observing traveler recently to a reporter. "They commence on New Year's day and then continue until New Year's eve. Always candy, sometimes because it is a birthday, sometimes because they must eat a little, sometimes because it was sent to them. They have as many excuses for eating candy as a man has for drinking whisky."

"Don't foreign girls eat candy?"

"Oh, yes; and they are learning very fast to follow the example of the fair sex on this side of the water. In this country the Yankee girls were the first to start the fashion, or habit, as it should be more properly called, and from the east it has spread all over the country. Now I think the western girls can hold their own against all comers. In Europe great eaters of pralines, chocolates a la creme, sugared almonds and crystallized fruits. French women eat fondants, and there a man, when he escorts a lady to the theatre, must carry with him a packet of douceurs. In England candy eating started with sucking caramels or lulling cremes. Now the way to do Britain eats sweets with his wine after dinner. They are fond of fondants, nougat, candied mandarins or tangerines and other kinds. Butter Scotch, barley sugar and chocolate are the ordinary, every day candies. Soldiers suck almond rock while doing sentry duty, the policeman on his beat usually has a ball's eye or brandy ball in his mouth, and the British tar chews an American caramel instead of the quid of pipe-stem that used to distend his swarthy cheek in the good old days of England's 'wooden walls.'"—New York Mail and Express.

THE HAUNTED GUITAR.

It rings no more in roundels. And like the blades of other days: Its voice is hushed that once could lure The love of maid and troubadour: The slender hands that soft did stray Across its strings are dust today. And dust the heart that throbb'd to hear The clasp of the cavalier!

A DREAM FANTASY.

There is no doubt that John Gorham often felt bored when I tried to draw him into discussions that he was pleased to term "purely speculative;" in fact, he often gave very plain and blunt expression to his annoyance. He was a physician, and prided himself on being "practical." This quality no doubt has its uses, but it need not necessarily include an utter lack of sympathy with everything that cannot be absolutely demonstrated.

"No," I replied, with no sign of irritation: "but have you never had a dream that seemed for the time being to be a reality?" "Occasionally; that is a common experience."

"Still further: Have not the occurrences of a dream even been so vivid that you were afterward unable to distinguish their impressions from memories of actual facts?" "Never," replied John, emphatically. "On the other hand, have not actual experiences left such dim recollections that you have afterward confounded them with visions of a troubled sleep?"

"Well," I replied, "you are so excessively matter of fact in everything that you can't be expected to share the experiences of ordinary mortals."

"And you," retorted John, "are so anxious to discover something new and wonderful that you believe everything you hear and read, and then build up the most outlandish theories."

"I am not theorizing; I am simply trying to make you understand that dreams may be so vivid as to be confounded with actual events, and vice versa."

"And I say that a man who finds himself the victim of such an uncertain condition of mind needs to change his diet and take exercise. But don't bother me any longer. I want to finish this report and then go to bed."

"Upon my word," he exclaimed, "she has a surprising amount of nervous strength. Her grip is as strong as a man's. I cannot loosen it without hurting her."

and yawning, John dragged himself from the bed and dressed as speedily as possible. We were soon out of doors and seated in the buggy, with robes drawn closely about our legs, for it was a cold night. I took the reins, but was yet undecided as to what move to make next. I started the horse, however, trusting to luck or some happy thought to determine our further proceedings. Luck settled the matter. We had not driven a dozen rods before a boy came rushing up the street. He halted on meeting us and panting for breath, exclaimed:

"Be you the doctor?" "Yes," I answered, hastily, discerning an escape from the embarrassing situation into which I had so recklessly rushed.

"How lucky! You're wanted just as quick as possible. Drive to —"

"Yes, yes," I interrupted. "You know the way, don't you?"

"Well, then, jump in with us and drive." The boy did as requested, and we rattled through the streets at a lively gait. Thus had a most fortunate circumstance come to my aid, in the form of an actual call for a physician, and we were now proceeding to a definite destination. John seemed to think the proceedings a little irregular, but I managed to quiet his uneasiness by various devices of conversation.

We soon left the lighted portion of the city, and plunged into dark and narrow streets. Nothing could be distinguished in the gloom but the towering shade trees on either side, and an occasional night lamp gleaming dimly from a window.

"Here we are," exclaimed the boy, drawing the horse up so suddenly that we all pitched forward. We alighted, and the urchin conducted us from the street into a narrow alley, on each side of which solid brick walls loomed up. They were barely discernible in the darkness, and I had not the remotest idea of the quarter of the city to which we had come.

Suddenly we turned, in obedience to our small sized guide, and halted before a low arched door set in the brick wall. The boy gave a peculiar knock, which elicited a whistle from within, this in turn being replied to by another and slightly different knock. We were ushered within, and the door was closed behind us.

Inky darkness was all about. A voice commanded us to move forward, and we did so cautiously. The dark passage was not of great length. It led to another door, which, on being opened, led to a dimly lighted apartment. Into this we proceeded, and peered cautiously around, at first being unprepared to discern the contents of the room. Becoming accustomed by degrees to the semi-darkness, we at length observed that the place was one where poverty, if it did not actually reign, at least had obtained a strong foothold. The furniture was scanty, the walls were dingy and hung with cobwebs, and a sickly flame from a tallow candle sent forth faint and uncertain rays of light.

"There's no money in this job," growled John. Then came, in a sorrow laden voice, from an obscure corner of the room:

"Oh, my daughter!" The place had been profoundly quiet up to this point. It was indignant at John's heartless remark. It was not at all like him. I also was somewhat disturbed in mind, for there was something so decidedly real about our night adventure that I began to fear it would be impossible to pass it off as a dream.

"Oh, my daughter!" The words broke on the silence with startling distinctness. John advanced to the quarter from which they proceeded, and I followed him.

"Bring the light," he said. The tallow candle was set in an old bottle, and this I seized and carried with me. The light disclosed an aged woman, on whose face were the unmistakable lines of struggle and hardship. She was miserably clad. She sat in a rocking chair by the side of a cot. On the cot, covered with an old shawl, lay a girl whose age might have been 10 years. Her face was in startling contrast to its surroundings, for it was fair and excessively white. Her eyes were large, dark and brilliant and her hair was jet black. She took no notice of our presence, but seemed to stare into vacancy.

"Is this your daughter?" asked John. "Yes, sir; can you save her?" The sharpness of an intense anxiety was in the woman's voice.

John, without replying, placed his hand on the child's brow. He was always very deliberate, and for a moment his touch lingered while he studied the young face.

"She can make so much money for me if she lives," whined the old woman. This surprising remark caused both John and me to look at her inquiringly.

"She is my seventh daughter, and I am my mother's seventh daughter. She can look into the future and tell all you want to know!"

"Yes," responded John gravely; "I thought there was something peculiar about her."

"Ho, ho! John Gorham," thought I, "do you believe in any such nonsense as that—you, who are so very practical and level headed? But I kept my thoughts to myself."

"Tell me, can you save her?" repeated the mother.

"I'll try," replied John. "When did you first observe her peculiar gifts?"

"There was no need to observe them. She's the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, and that's enough. Why don't you give her some medicine to bring down the fever?"

"She has very little fever. Her trouble is a low state of vitality. I will not conceal from you that her condition is serious."

As John spoke he took the child's hand in his own.

"Upon my word," he exclaimed, "she has a surprising amount of nervous strength. Her grip is as strong as a man's. I cannot loosen it without hurting her."

At this juncture the child looked at him attentively and intelligently. I was still standing slightly in the rear, holding the candle over John's shoulder.

"Hush!" exclaimed the old woman, in a warning whisper. "She is going to speak."

A faint voice from the bed now spoke these words: "Beware of the man with the light! Let me think. He does not seem to be your enemy, and yet he is trying to deceive you. But he will not succeed!"

fully bridge over this period of depressed vitality." The old woman thanked him, and then to my astonishment produced a shining $10 gold piece from some recess of her fathered garments, and tendered it to John. He accepted it gravely, and then we withdrew from the apartment. Once in the open air, the voice of the small boy was heard:

"Jump in," he said, "and I will drive you home."

We obeyed, and were conveyed through the streets at a rapid rate.

"What do you think of the case, John?" I asked.

"The child may not live until daylight, or she may grow to womanhood and have a brilliant future."

"What do you really believe in that nonsense about her gifts as a fortune teller?" "Don't you?"

I could not answer. I recalled the strange speech which seemed to indicate that the girl had penetrated my designs on John, and was abashed. The ride was continued in silence, and in twenty minutes we had reached our destination. The boy volunteered to take care of the horse, and in another moment John and I were in our own apartments.

John immediately proceeded to undress. In five minutes he was ready for bed. Without delay I prepared for the further execution of my plot.

"John," said I, "there's a pint of champagne in my closet. It strikes me that it would be just the thing with which to top off this night's adventure. What do you say?"

"A most excellent idea," was John's reply. "How smoothly everything was working! I opened the closet, drew forth the bottle and wrenched off the wire with which the cork was bound. I glanced furtively at John. He was winding his watch, with his back turned toward me.

I quickly filled the glass which contained the drug and extended it to John. He quaffed the contents with great relish, I meanwhile watching him over the rim of my own glass. He smacked his lips critically after his glass had been drained.

"It seems to me that there is a singular flavor to that champagne."

I felt a guilty thrill and affected not to hear him.

"How sleepy I am," was his next remark. "It must be the effect of riding in the cold." The boy tumbled into bed, and the next minute had sunk into a deep sleep. The drug had taken effect with surprising, not to say startling, promptness, and I listened to his heavy breathing with satisfaction.

I now began to give serious thought to the situation, and to deliberate on the necessity of removing every trace by which the reality of my night adventure could be proved. I knew that John could, by no possibility find the place we had visited, for the route was a long and circuitous one and had been traveled in darkness. Ah! There was the $10 gold piece which the woman had paid him. Without hesitation I removed it from his pocket and hid it in my own. Was the "rail road" I thought so. In the morning I would declare that he had not stirred from the house during the night, and after persuading John that the whole thing was but a dream—making him commit himself fully to that view of the case—tell him the truth and thus confront him with a demonstration of my treachery.

I smiled with satisfaction. But hold! There was the boy! Suppose he should turn up. I must find him and purchase his silence. I was so intent now on the success of the plot that I was now expending a hundred dollars rather than see it fail. I decided to go to the city and find the boy who had driven us to the abode of the sick child.

First, I approached the bedside to make sure that John's slumber was so sound that he would be sure to take no notice of my departure and return. He lay perfectly quiet, and there was something singular in his appearance.

I gazed at him more closely, and was horrified at a change that had come over him. He no longer breathed deeply, but in a quick, convulsive and exhausted manner. His lower jaw hung down, his eyes were half open, and he looked like one vainly struggling for a hold upon life.

I was paralyzed with dismay, and stared at him in an agony of fascination. More faint, rapid and spasmodic grew his breathing; more distressing the heaving of his chest; more ghastly the pallor of his countenance.

Spellbound, as if in a nightmare, I still gazed upon him. The sound of vitality proceeded with frightful rapidity; there was at length a mere flutter of breath; and then came that awful repose, that unspeakable silence, that dreadful calmness of the untended clay!

Then the full horror of the situation burst upon me. The drug had done its work too well. John Gorham was dead! I was his murderer!

"John!" I shrieked. And then, with rapidly scattering senses, I staggered and fell heavily to the floor.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!"

What mocking laugh was that ringing through my ears! Consciousness was returning, and with it the sound of harsh, discordant merriment.

Again came a peal of laughter. Was it my own voice, and was I a lunatic? I opened my eyes and looked about. I was still lying on the floor, but not by John's bedside. John seemed to be sitting in a chair with a book in his hand. I stared at him in a state of bewilderment.

Again he laughed. It was his voice. Then he spoke: "Do you want me to come and help you up?"

"Where am I, and what has happened?" I asked.

"You appear to be sprawled on the floor, and it is quite evident that you fell asleep and rolled off the couch," he answered.

At these words I hastily rose and pulled my wits together. The truth was soon apparent. Following our discussion of dreams, I had read "Zanoni" until sleep had stolen upon me, and both the conception and return of the plot to convince John were but the visions of a dream. I was somewhat mortified, but at the same time immensely relieved, for John was alive and well, and still held in his hand the medical report which he had been perusing when our discussion began.

CALLED BACK.

The Telegraph Used for That Purpose in the Case of Eugene Bateman,

WHO STOLE A SUIT OF CLOTHES AND SKIPPED TO SAULT STE. MARIE.

The Electric Light is Here—Nipped in the Bud—An Important Meeting of the Common Council.

Captured at the Sault.

Eugene Bateman, a young man not yet out of his teens, who has been employed as brakeman on the D. S. S. & A. for a couple of weeks past, was the central figure in justice Cray's court yesterday afternoon. Francis W. Hathaway, the gentlemanly butcher who wields the cleaver and saw in Coles & Son's front street market, was also present to identify the contents of a large grip sack as the same were taken from it by deputy sheriff Dolf, who arrived on the 4 o'clock train from Sault Ste. Marie with young Bateman in custody, having caused his arrest in that place by telegraphing an officer there. Bateman, who has been boarding at Stuart's on Washington street, left Monday morning after the other boarders had left the house, taking with him the satchel and contents, all of which, with the exception of a gingham shirt and a pair of overalls, was the property of two or three fellow boarders. There was a brand new $40 suit of clothes, a pair of shoes, silk wipe, and a pocket-knife which Mr. Hathaway identified as belonging to him; a pair of shoes and the valise, and several other articles belonging to a couple of railroad men, all of which Bateman acknowledged having stolen. When questioned in regard to the theft the young man broke down completely, crying and talking like a child. He could scarcely talk so great was his grief, but he managed to tell a rambling story of how he was led to commit the robbery, and prayed that his mother and sister would not hear of his downfall. He was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of $300 bonds, and was taken to the county jail to await his trial.

The Van Dyke Light.

True to his word, Mr. Colgate gave the people of Front street, or at least those who were out at 10 o'clock, the first lighting of that thoroughfare by electricity. In anticipation of its appearance quite a number were on the look out for it, which made it all the more interesting. Four lamps were in use last night, of the arc pattern, and although the machinery is not yet in good working order, and the further fact that the lamps were connected and placed in position after dark last night, the effect produced was brilliant, and the street was handsomely illuminated.

Nipped in the Bud.

Yesterday master builder Sutton put a gang of men at work tearing down the old freight depot, but before they had time to accomplish the good work, he was compelled to suspend operations and send the men up the line of the road to do some needed repair work. Shortly after the men had quit work a passing locomotive with a philanthropic turn of mind, threw sparks enough on the old roof to complete the good work of annihilation in short order, but as usual the man and his bucket of water got in his work, the fire alarm sounded, the pouncing black hose cart steeds went flying through the streets—and returned to the hose house again. Hats!

Last Night's Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the common council was held last evening and a large amount of business was transacted. The petition for a sewer on Arch street, from High to Front, was referred to the street committee. A petition from the citizens of the First ward, asking the city to furnish them with a night policeman, was referred to the committee on police, claims and grievances. A communication was received from Cecil Patenaude, offering to give the city a strip of land from the rear of his property for a boulevard on Prospect street in lieu of the piece on Hewitt avenue, which is desired, but for which he asks the sum of $1,000, was ordered placed on file. The petition of Smith & Wilson for the privilege of using a portion of Third and Washington streets for building purposes in connection with their custom house contract was granted. The petition for the grading, macadamizing and curbing of Hamilton street was referred to the street committee. The communication of John Flynn, asking that the council pay him the balance due on his Rock street sewer contract, was referred to the street committee. The liquor bond of Gilbert Goulet was approved. On motion Berg & Munson were allowed the sum of $500 on their Superior street sewer contract. The profiles of Hewitt avenue and estimate for Carp river bridge improvement were referred. The special committee appointed to examine the accounts of the ex-city treasurer reported that everything was found to be correct and that the balance of $1,469.05 in the treasury had been turned over to the incoming treasurer and receipts exchanged on the same. The finance committee reported that the floating indebtedness of the city was all paid up to date and that there was found to be a balance on hand of $900.30. On motion sundry bills were laid over until the next regular meeting on June 4th.

The time for holding regular council meetings was, on motion, changed from the first Saturday to the first Monday in each month.

The being no bids received for grading, macadamizing and curbing Second street, the recorder was authorized to again advertise for bids for the same.

A preamble and resolution was adopted in reference to the movement on foot for the opening and widening of Hewitt avenue from the shore to the west line of Fourth street, etc., in that certain pieces or parcels of land are required for said purpose, and that the common council having been unable to agree with any of the several owners for the taking of the same, or upon the price to be paid therefor, it was resolved that the recorder issue a venue facias commanding the marshal to summons and return a jury of twelve disinterested freeholders to appear before him and at such reasonable time as said recorder may designate, to inquire into and determine the necessity for using such ground and the just compensation to be paid to the owners or parties interested therein.

Special Meetings.

A circular issued by the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, Northern Masonic Jurisdiction of the United States, upper peninsula of Michigan, Valley of Marquette, notifies the members that the Marquette Grand Lodge of Perfection (M. D.) and Lake Superior Council of Princes of Jerusalem (M. D.) will open as follows: Special meeting for regular business today at 3 p. m., and a special meeting on Wednesday, May 30th, at 2 p. m., for conferring of the grades, 4 deg. to the 16 deg. inclusive, upon all who have been previously elected. The circular is signed by F. M. Moore, T. P. Grand Master; W. F. Swift, M. E. S. P. Grand Master; A. S. Parks, Grand Secretary.

An Agent on Wheels.

P. H. Sercombe, proprietor of the Milwaukee type writer agency, has been in the city for the past two days and will leave for Ishpeming and the copper country to-night. He has convinced both Knapp & Joslin, and the Iron Bay Mfg. Co., of the poor quality of their handwriting and sold them a Remington and a Hammond type writer respectively. Mr. Sercombe is a "hustler", and by taking with him his favorite bicycle is able to get around and do double the work of the ordinary agent. The young men of Marquette have shown a great interest in bicycling, and as Mr. Sercombe is also interested in the bicycle business in Milwaukee, he will probably secure orders for some ten or twelve wheels here.

Quick Work on the Drive.

Notwithstanding the danger incident thereto the freshet caused by high water in the Menominee river and tributary streams was not without a decided advantage to lumbermen, as the following dispatch relative to its log drives there to a Milwaukee paper will show:

The log driving on the neighboring streams tributary to the Menominee river will be completed this week. Men are being discharged every day, and Florence is rapidly filling up with river men. This is one of the shortest driving seasons ever known, owing to the remarkable high stage of water. Millions of feet of old logs, which have been "shang up" for one, two and three years, have been started, and the Menominee's feeders will be comparatively free of logs at the close of the season. Although a good thing for jobbers, the high water experienced this year has been disastrous to the drivers, as not half as many men were required to do the work as in previous years, and those fortunate enough to get work were only needed two or three weeks. The driving on the "main river" will be commenced soon, but only one-half the usual number of men will be required this spring to start the logs on their way to the mills at Menominee, etc.

Don't Like It.

The carpenters union of this city complain that a large number of carpenters have lately arrived here from Ashland and are accepting work at a lower rate of wages than that established by the union, and also that by their coming the supply of carpenters is greater than the demand at present.

While Splitting Kindling Wood.

Will Doerr, the painter, who resides at 501 Washington street, is confined to his house with a foot which he cut quite severely while splitting wood a day or two since.

REPORTORIAL PENCILINGS.

This is the night on which the City band will give their open air concert at the Ridge street school grounds.

Paste this in your hat. Yesterday, the 24th of May, 1888, was a genuine up-and-up summer's day.

Recorder Meads sentenced a couple of drunk and disorderlies yesterday to ten days each in the county jail.

Drayman Archambeau rejoices in the advent of a baby boy. The recent addition to the Archambeau family takes the place of a 15-year-old baby, and the old gentleman is as proud of him as a boy with red-top boots.

Fred Maynard and family will soon move into the residence now occupied by H. F. Handford on Pine street, as soon as Mr. Handford removes to his new residence on Michigan street.

The Queen City brass band was out on parade again last evening, and took occasion to serenade the MINING JOURNAL force. The boys look quite nobby in their new caps and uniforms and are improving rapidly with their music.

The temperature readings at the U. S. signal station yesterday, 75th meridian time, were: 7 A. M., 55 degrees; 3 P. M., 70 degrees; 10 P. M., 62 degrees; minimum temperature, 70 degrees; maximum temperature, 54 degrees.

The latest addition to Martin Vierling's saloon furniture is a very handsome black walnut bar screen with diamond-shaped French plate mirror and set with stained cathedral glass. The new screen is the finest that could be found in the city of Chicago, being an exact pattern of one used in the "Imperial" of that city.

The item in yesterday's MINING JOURNAL relative to the resignation of conductor Johnston was incorrect so far as related to that gentleman's future employment. Mr. Johnston will remain in the county and engage in other business on side of railroading.

Officer Hogan had a tussle with a drunken Finlander last night before he could lodge him in the cooler. The scrapping match took place just after the new electric light was started up, and was witnessed and enjoyed by a large crowd.

The county board of review was in session yesterday afternoon at the council chambers for the purpose of adjusting the assessment rolls. In accordance with law the rolls will be open for public inspection and review on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next at the council rooms from 9 o'clock to 12 in the forenoon and from 2 o'clock until 6 in the afternoon of each day.

Peter Rasmussen has lately made some much needed repairs and additions to his sidewalk along the front of his property on Washington street, and now has the best piece of walk on the whole street, west of the Nester block. The street commissioner has also improved the appearance of the street in front of Mr. Rasmussen's place by putting down a quantity of broken rock and leveling the same off to conform with the proper grade of that thoroughfare.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Charles F. Schaffer, of Onota, is in the city. Attorney E. E. Osborn, of Ishpeming, registered at the Hotel Marquette yesterday.

Lee Burt, of Detroit, arrived in the city yesterday, and is registered at the Hotel Marquette.

Mrs. Addison Cole, who has been spending the winter in New York state, returned home yesterday.

C. M. Gooding, inspector of boilers, and Capt. Blanchard, inspector of bulls, returned yesterday from Sault Ste. Marie where they have been inspecting steamboats.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Merritt expect to leave the city soon for Cleveland, where they will take up their residence. Mr. Merritt having accepted the position of auditor of the Cleveland Stone company in that city. Ed and his estimable wife will be greatly missed by their many friends in Marquette, and will take with them to their new home the hearty wishes of a large circle of friends and acquaintances for health, wealth and prosperity.
