The Galleries of the House of Representatives Crowded Yesterday to See the Show.

THE DEMOCRATS CONTINUE THE FIGHT AGAINST THE SPEAKER'S RULING.

Reed Persists in Counting Every Congressman in Order to Make a Quorum.

Vance Answers Ingalls.

THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The galleries of the house were crowded to their utmost capacity long before noon to-day by spectators anticipating a resumption of the contest of yesterday. Nor were they disappointed, for as the clerk read the journal in the usual manner, omitting a detailed vote by yeas and nays on the question of consideration against the contested election case, Mr. Breckinridge (Ky.) arose and demanded the reading in full of the vote. After a moment's hesitation the speaker directed this to be done. This having been completed, Mr. Breckinridge demanded the reading of the names of those not voting, and the speaker ordered it done. Then Mr. Springer (Ill.) demanded the reading in full of the statement of Speaker Reed giving the grounds for his ruling yesterday and the clerk read it accordingly. The reading of the journal having been completed, Mr. McKinley (Ohio) moved that the journal be approved, and upon that motion demanded the previous question. Mr. Blanchard (La.) was

THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The senate bill instructing the superintendent of the census to collect information about mortgages on homes and farms was passed. Mr. Vance proceeded to address the senate on Butler's bill to provide for the emigration of the colored people from the United States. He criticized Mr. Ingalls' speech, which he characterized as a piece of oratorical pyrotechnics, conceding its variety of ideas. It reminded him forcibly of an astronomer's description of the remarkable tenuity of the tail of a recent comet. The length was described as a hundred million miles, stretched athwart the skies; its breadth was fifty thousand miles; yet the solid matter which it contained could be transported in one horse-car. He had listened, and listened with the greatest entertainment, to that speech. He had searched and searched, and had wondered where the remedy was for the evil that was depicted in such colors. He wanted to see the solid matter of the illumination. Suddenly before the light expired and the senate was left in darkness, the solution was announced as—"justice." Mr. Vance acknowledged that the millennium had not yet dawned on the south; that was not yet a land of perfect righteousness. Just north of Mason and Dixon's line was such a land—a country where there was no suppression of the popular vote by gerrymandering and otherwise; where there was no purchase of the floating vote in "blocks of five"; [Laughter] where there was no ejection of colored children from white schools, no colored men from the theaters or barbers' chairs; and where it was to be hoped that in the progress of time one black man would be chosen to sit in congress, and even some railroad attorney or millionaire would make room in the senate chamber for his colored brother. [Laughter.] He hoped in the course of time might be sent abroad to represent this country in some other land besides Haiti and Liberia. [Laughter.] After a long and very happy speech during which he repeatedly brought forth laughter, he concluded as follows, addressing himself to Mr. Ingalls: "If you cannot help either the black or the white man, common decency requires that you should hold your peace." Mr. Hampton followed Mr. Vance. He quoted from the Atlanta Constitution the following extract: "Unless history is to be a lesson, it is not possible for two distinct races, not homogeneous, to exist on terms of political equality under the same government. One or the other must go to the wall." "And that," said Mr. Hampton, "is signed J. J. Ingalls." After an executive session the senate adjourned.

LAND OF RECONSTRUCTION

ONE ACCOMPLISHED BLACK MAN

TO FREEZE OUT SMALL FRY.

It is Attempted by the Large Stockholders in the Spaulding Iron Company.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 30.—A telegram from Stuebenville, Ohio, says: The filing of a petition, asking for a receiver to take charge of the Spaulding Iron works, located at Brilliant, near here, caused quite a sensation to-day. Many ugly and damaging charges are set forth in the petition. The management is charged with gross mismanagement, selling at a loss etc. The sales of the works, it is alleged, under the Spaulding management, have reached $2,000,000 and have been exclusively controlled without proper accounts being kept by them, or being able to account for the disposition of stock or how much per ton the muck iron cost at any time. A receiver was appointed at the request of Thomas B. Taylor and other stockholders, the plaintiffs against the Spaulding company. There is a feeling of amazement in business circles here that such a serious legal proceeding as this against the Spaulding Iron company, with such astounding accusations, should have been granted by a judge at Columbus without notifying or hearing the other side. It is generally thought among business men that the company will not be financially embarrassed; that the action is ill-judged and entirely too hasty; that it is a quarrel among the stockholders and, possibly, a move to scare and squeeze out the smaller holders of the stock. The petition itself admits that by good management the assets are sufficient to pay the present indebtedness.

Tired of Living.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Charles Lobscheid, the son of a physician living at Youngstown, Ohio, attempted to commit suicide to-night in Central park by shooting himself in the left breast. He was taken to Bellevue hospital, unconscious, and will probably die. Several pawn tickets were found on his person. In a note book was this memorandum: "If anything should happen to me, my father is Dr. W. Lobscheid, of Federal street, Youngstown, Ohio. Address him or my mother, No. 44 North Phelps street." The would-be suicide wrote a letter to his mother asking forgiveness, and another to M. Hagenbach, No. 159 Canal street, saying he would die an infidel. He has been in the city several months and it is supposed he grew discontent from want of funds.

of order, which, if good, will take the gentleman off the floor.

The Speaker—The gentleman from Illinois will be kind enough to take his seat.

Mr. Springer—There are no rules requiring me to take my seat. I can stand up if I desire. I stand up and assert my constitutional rights against the arbitrary ruling of the speaker and in the name of my constituents I protest against it.

The speaker stated that it was a question of recognition, and he had already recognized the gentleman from Ohio. Mr. McKinley then proceeded with his argument. The question, he said, was most important in every aspect, not only to the majority but to the minority.

ALMOST ROBBERY.

Questionable Action of a New York Bank President to Keep His Bank Afloat.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The Lenox Hill bank suspended payment to-day. It was controlled by the same parties who last week bought control of the Sixth National bank of this city, which had already been closed by the bank examiner. The knowledge of the relation of the two institutions caused a run on the Lenox, which it was unable to meet. The president is said to have made an attempt to obtain funds on Wall street to continue the payments but was unsuccessful. The Clearing House association to-day took action on the Sixth National and decided to drop it from the association. All kinds of rumors are afloat in regard to the Sixth National bank, one being that the new officers, who have only been in charge a few days, sold out the securities as soon as they obtained possession.

Wall street this afternoon looks upon the attempt to dispose of $600,000 of the bonds owned by the Sixth National bank as simply a case of highway robbery. It seems President Claassen, after abstracting the bonds from the safe deposit vault, turned them over to George H. Pell, a broker, who attempted to dispose of them on the street, representing them as the property of his wife. Mr. Colsen, cashier of the bank, learned of the action of Claassen and notified the clearing house and the bank examiner. The latter began an investigation yesterday noon. He soon learned enough to cause him to close the bank and call on Claassen for the return of the $622,000 in securities. The examiner, by prompt action succeeded in getting back $200,000 of the bonds. In lieu of, or on account of, the rest of the abstracted bonds, Claassen handed the examiner checks for $486,000. These checks fell short of the market value of the abstracted securities $140,000. None of the checks, however, were paid, all being protested. This morning the controller of the currency appointed a receiver for the bank. All the facts in the case will be laid before the district attorney.

This evening Mr. Hepburn, the bank examiner, who is in charge of the affairs of the Sixth National bank, made a statement as to his examination up to that time. He said the missing bonds had not yet been found. Their par value is $421,000; market value $482,466. Upon that had been paid $50,000, leaving a deficit on account of the bonds of $432,466. He had discovered in the bank a loan of $60,000 secured by $63,000 of Equitable bank stock, which was practically worthless. He cannot see, however, that the depositors are in any danger. The United States marshal and two deputies entered the bank and had a private interview with the examiner. The marshal admitted that he had several warrants, and that he would catch the men as soon as possible. It is rumored that Pell and Claassen are the men the marshal is after.

A deputy United States marshal found George H. Pell this evening at his house on Fifty-fifth street, arrested him and took him before Marshal Jacobs who directed that he be locked up in Ludlow street jail, where he was incarcerated later.

FREIGHT TRAIN DITCHED.

Conductor and Engineer Killed and the Body of the Locomotive Burned.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 30.—The Times-Democrat's Plaquemine special says: This morning about 4 o'clock a west-bound freight train on the Texas Pacific railroad was passing Seymourville, the engine struck a cow, wrecking the locomotive and thirteen cars, killing John P. Crilly, the conductor; Barney Bliss, the engineer, and seriously wounding Oscar Pennison, the fireman, and one brakeman, name unknown. Almost immediately after the accident the wrecked cars took fire and were entirely consumed. The body of Conductor Crilly was pulled out from under the burning cars by a tramp who was stealing a ride. It is supposed that the death of both Crilly and Bliss was instantaneous and without pain. The body of Crilly was badly crushed and was scarcely recognizable. The body of Bliss could not be found for some time, but was finally located under the engine. Burning cars surrounding it. To extricate it was impossible, and not until the fire was somewhat extinguished could it be reached. By this time nothing remained but the lower half of the trunk.

The Reilly Investigation.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 30.—The uneventful manner in which the members of the auditing committee of the National Land league are proceeding with their labors is a sufficient contradiction of all the sensational rumors circulated since the call for the committee was made public. Today's session was devoid of interest. The work is being confined to checking off the books, which so far are in perfect order. A matter of comment is the absence of several members of the committee. They said they declined to act, considering the committee, as it is constituted, as unusual and irregular. Another incident also which has not passed without receiving a share of attention is a telegram which Thomas P. Tuite received from Luke Dillon, of Philadelphia. Mr. Tuite said this afternoon: "I did get a telegram from Luke Dillon in which he suggested that as the auditing committee had been called informally it would be better for me not to act. Knowing the conditions under which the audit was to be conducted and being fully acquainted with the facts I, however, deemed it my duty to act."

An Attachment Asked.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 30.—A petition was filed to-day in the supreme court by the Mineral Range Railroad company to recover from Ives, Stayner and Deussen $303,990 with interest since August 11, 1887, and an attachment was asked for against the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton company, and the Dayton, Fort Wayne & Chicago company, Julius Dexter, Eugene Zimmerman and R. D. Marshall, receivers.

SECOND POINT. You should read The Chicago Daily News because you have the time to read it. There is a paper published in Australia which is as large as a blanket. This wouldn't suit you. You want a newspaper that is convenient, complete and condensed, and still you don't want to overlook anything of real importance. You don't want your neighbor to say to you, "Did you read so-and-so in to-day's paper?" and be obliged to answer, "No, I didn't see that," and then have him ask you, "What paper do you read?" This will never happen to you if you read The Chicago Daily News.

MARQUETTE, MICH., JAN. 31.

Entered as mail matter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

The squatters who filed on lands in the city of Ashland owned by J. H. Knight, who purchased the property from the Wisconsin Central Railroad company, failed to convince the officials of the land office at that place that they had a right to jump on the real estate. The decision of the land office is that the company acquired the land properly, and that Mr. Knight's title is not assailable. The settlers will appeal, and the matter will have to be finally passed upon by the interior department.

DULUTH'S registration for the purposes of the pending municipal election shows that there are 5,313 voters in that city. At the ordinary rate for estimating population on the basis of the vote, this would give that city 26,565 inhabitants, or a little over twice the population of Marquette. The Duluth papers have been claiming a population of 50,000 for the city, and it is now in order for them to explain how it is that if the place has so large a number of inhabitants so small a proportion of them are voters.

The Duluth News gives these particulars of the organization there of a new iron company among the incorporators of which are J. M. Longyear and J. M. Case of this city.

The Longyear Mesaba Land and Iron company has filed articles of incorporation with the register of deeds. Its purpose is declared to be to carry on the business of mining, smelting, reducing, refining and working ores and metals, working coal mines and stone quarries, marketing the materials, manufacturing brick, stone, iron, steel, copper and other metals, and buying, working, selling and dealing in mineral and other lands in Minnesota.

The principal office will be in Minneapolis. The incorporators are J. M. Longyear and J. M. Case, Marquette; C. C. Bloomfield, A. B. Robinson, D. S. Smith, Hiram H. Smith, Henry H. Smith, W. H. Withington and A. M. Walker, Jackson, Mich.; E. W. Sparrow, Lansing, Mich.; William McPherson, Jr., Howell, Mich.; M. E. Rumsey, Leslie, Mich.; Geo. A. Foster, Detroit, Mich.; C. R. Whiteman, of Ann Arbor, and C. E. King, of Ypsilanti, Mich.

The capital stock is $500,000, divided into 20,000 shares, of which $25,000 is paid up by the conveyance to the corporation of 24,800 acres of land, and the remaining $475,000 is to be called for in assessments.

The officers are: J. H. Longyear, president; A. B. Robinson, secretary and treasurer.

THE NEW TREATY.

The provisions of the new extradition treaty negotiated between this country and Great Britain have been given to the public. The treaty was negotiated in July last by Secretary Blaine and the British minister, and was transmitted to the president in December last. It has not yet been acted on by the senate, but as it will probably be approved interest attaches to the provision that it makes for the extradition of criminals between the two countries, inasmuch as the availability of Canada as an asylum for American "crooks" will be determined by it.

The existing extradition arrangements between this country and Great Britain are contained in the Webster-Asburton treaty of 1842. The crimes therein made extraditable are murder, assault with intent to commit murder, piracy, arson, robbery, forgery or the utterance of forged paper. This is the smallest list of extraditable crimes in any of the treaties between the United States and other countries. By the new treaty the following additional crimes are made extraditable: Manslaughter, counterfeiting or altering money, uttering or bringing into circulation counterfeit or altered money, embezzlement, larceny, obtaining money, goods or valuable security by false pretenses; receiving any money, valuable security or other property, knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen, or fraudulently obtained; fraud by a bailee, bank, agent, factor, trustee or director or member or officer of any company, made criminal by the laws of both countries; perjury or subornation of perjury; rape, abduction, child stealing, kidnapping, burglary, house breaking or shop breaking; piracy, by the laws of nations; revolt, or conspiracy to revolt, by two or more persons on the high seas, against the authority of the master; wrongfully sinking or destroying a vessel at sea, or attempting to do so; assault on board a ship on the high seas, with intent to do grievous bodily harm; crimes and offenses against the laws of both countries for the suppression of slavery and slave trading.

It will be seen that the additions to the list of extraditable offenses are numerous, and according to Mr. Blaine the present convention "extends the list of offenses up to the limits set in our extradition treaties with other powers." The second article of the new treaty contains a provision also found in treaties made between the United States and several other countries, stipulating against surrender for trial for political offenses and the third article provides that a person surrendered shall not be tried for any offense other than that for which the extradition was granted. The eighth article prevents the application of the treaty to any of the crimes specified which shall have been committed or to any conviction which shall have been pronounced prior to the date at which it shall come into force. The enterprising American citizens who have sought shelter in Canada on account of confused ideas of property rights are therefore safe, but those who intend following their example had better be quick, as the treaty will come into force ten days after its official publication, and will remain force until one or other of the governments gives notice of intention to terminate it.

CHANCE FOR A FORTUNE.

The search for a process by which aluminum can be produced so cheaply that it can be used freely to alloy other metals and in its clear state is everywhere being pushed steadily by chemists and others, observes an exchange. Recently it was announced from Pittsburgh that an aluminum company in that city had so cheapened the reducing process that the precious metal can now be sold in ingots, in 1,000-pound lots, at $2 per pound. This is a cut of 50 per cent. on the former price, $4 per pound, and a surprising reduction as compared with the cost of aluminum a year or two ago, when the price was as high as $8 a pound. There is good reason to hope that before long somebody will discover a process of extracting aluminum that will so reduce the price that the metal may be generally and freely used in the arts and sciences.

The Pittsburgh company produces its aluminum by electrolysis, which term covers the decomposition of mixed substances by electricity. Aluminum exists in clay, but thus far nobody has discovered a cheap process of taking it from the earth. The best results of the efforts of the chemists has resulted from work upon the fluoride of aluminum and sodium which is found in the geiss of West Greenland. But some of these days some patient toiler will discover a process of successfully treating clay, and then there will be another millionaire, and aluminum will come into general use. A Milwaukeean recently produced a lump of aluminum as big as a hickory nut while at work upon some clay, and now he is patiently endeavoring to reproduce the conditions which resulted in the accidental transmutation.

Aluminum is a very desirable metal. It resembles silver, but has the bluish hue of zinc. It is very light, takes a high polish, and does not oxidize or tarnish. These properties, in connection with its ductility and its tenacity, which almost equals that of iron, make it a metal which will largely increase engineering and mechanical possibilities if it can be brought into general use.

PRESS OPINIONS.

A GOLDEN RULE FOR MUNICIPALITIES. Detroit Free Press: The mayor of Buffalo has been making the extremely sensible remark that "it is demoralizing for a city government to countenance practices which are not tolerated in private affairs."

THAT TOOK THE CURSE OFF. Boston Herald: Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt's announcement that assessments were levied on officeholders in the New York custom house during the last presidential campaign is not exactly new. The contribution was known at the time merely as an offering for the Widow McGinnis' pig.

'TWOULD BE WELL. New York Star: Congressman Burrows, of Michigan, yesterday offered a resolution in the House of Representatives providing for the erection of a monument to Isabella of Castile the patroness of Columbus. Before we determine upon a monument to Isabella, however, it would be fitting to arrange for the fair that is to commemorate the exploits of Columbus.

SEX WILL TELL. Minneapolis Tribune: When Nellie Bly set out on her trip around the world, the Tribune exulted in the fact that she was going to demonstrate to all women the possibility of traveling without a birdcage, a potted geranium, three band boxes and a guitar. Nellie has disappointed us. Her femininity got the better of her and she came home with a pet monkey and a wheelbarrow load of Chinese goods.

THE RAILROADS SHOULD TAKE A HINT. Cleveland Plain Dealer: An eastern lawyer, who stands among the leading corporation lawyers of the day, says that if the railroads do not agree upon some method of controlling themselves the federal government will control them within a dozen years. The first step in this direction was the passage of the interstate commerce law, which does not control, but regulates in a certain measure, yet it is a warning of what may follow.

IT IS SIMPLE ENOUGH. Detroit News: A member of the Dominion parliament has given notice that he will call for the appointment of a secret committee to find out why there is such an "alarmling" exodus of Canadians to the United States. There is about as much necessity for a secret committee for this purpose as there is a necessity for the honorable member having two noses. The reason why Canadians flock to the United States instead of staying in Canada is that it is easier to gain a livelihood in the United States. People go where they can get the most for the least exertion, and as the Canadians can obtain greater results out of a day's work in the States than in the Dominion they naturally come here.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph: The Memphis Avalanche has its little word to say on the race question, and in saying it makes the statement that the negroes are often sullen. It is not right to overlook such an important consideration as this, and we are glad, therefore, that the Boston Transcript discusses it in these words: "That is strange and unaccountable. We know that they were flogged a little, and shot a little, and hanged a little; but we had not dreamed that anything had happened to make the negroes sullen. The same treatment would make white men not only contented, but positively gay."

Seven as a Sacred Number.

Undoubtedly seven is the sacred number. There were seven days of creation; after seven days' respite the flood came; the years of famine and plenty were in cycles of seven; every seventh day was a Sabbath, and every seventh year a Sabbath year of rest. After every seven times seven came the jubilee; the feasts of unleavened bread and of the tabernacle lasted seven days.

The golden candlesticks had seven branches; seven priests with seven trumpets surrounded Jericho seven times during the week, and seven times on the seventh day; Jacob obtained his wife by servitude of seven years, and every seventh year he propounded a riddle to his wife, and he was bound with seven green withes and seven locks of his hair were cut off. Nebuchadnezzar was seven years as a beast of the field; Shadrach and his companions were cast into a furnace heated seven times hotter than it had ever been heated before.

In the New Testament nearly everything occurred by sevens, and at the end of the saved volume we read of seven churches, seven candlesticks, seven spirits, seven scales, seven stars, seven thunders, seven vials, seven plagues, seven angles and of a seven headed monster.—St. Louis Republic

A Street Scene in Cairo.

Some one turns his head and looks. A hundred heads follow suit. It is a couple of Egyptian women in baggy trousers and veiled to the eyes that hurry by, their multitudinous bangles, bracelets and necklaces rattling and jingling.

In a cool corner, under a gayly striped awning, you halt a few moments and drink a tiny glass of fiery raki or a dainty egg shell cup of Turkish cafe noir. A bench invites you to rest a moment. The busy world buzzes about you. A fat old lady from the provinces has just bought a bar of candy from that old bearded Moslem in the scarlet fez and green striped robe.

Once between her teeth, it will neither bite nor break off, but gives her mouth and hands together. Her buccal son, in a big felt hat and high water pantaloons, is so busy laughing at her that he stumbles into a Parisian beauty who approaches, and receives in return a withering scowl from her escort.

On the right stretches a vista of cool arcades, and through the horseshoe pointed arches the shops are seen. Their tempting arrays of all manner of eastern merchandise are surrounded by crowds of onlookers and purchasers.—Boston Globe.

The Man Who Laughs.

Dr. Peppenbrook writes to a St. Louis paper that, contrary to the general impression, wrinkles are caused by laughing instead of worry. It is just as well that this statement should be given as much publicity as possible, because there has been a good deal of sympathy wasted if the doctor is right. A person whose face is all wrinkled up is currently believed to have passed through a sea of troubles. The reason for this probably grew out of the fact that, when the hands are kept under water for any length of time, the skin becomes crinkled. The natural supposition was that at the skin of the face would do likewise when subjected to the waters of adversity. There seems to be reason in this deduction. Yet the doctor cannot be wrong or he would not be right. And the wrinkled ones of the race must now be considered as the people who have had a good time.

The crosses and furrows will mark the rounds of pleasure they have taken, and it will be dangerous for any joker to try any chestnut on them unless he is proof against the chestnut bell.—Herald of Health.

Not So Easy.

Circumstances alter cases in matters of etiquette as well as in the more important affairs of life.

Little Edith, visiting in the country, was much interested in an old lady, who, when a plate of fruit was passed her at an evening party, replied:

"Thank you, I don't care for any now, but I should like to put an apple in my pocket to take home."

At the end of the dinner, a few days afterward, Edith was observed looking hopelessly at a last bit of pudding on her plate.

"Care you to finish it, dear?" asked a sympathetic auntie.

"No," replied she, with a sigh, "not now! But I should like, if you please, to put it in my pocket to eat this evening."—Youth's Companion.

Pronunciation of Dahlia.

We seem to be in a fair way to have definitely settled the true pronunciation of the word dahlia. Mr. Hibbard admits that it should be pronounced dah-lia, but that, on the whole, it is better to adhere to the old style of dalea, omitting the pronunciation of the important h altogether, remembering that the plant is named after Dahl, the Swedish botanist. It does seem obvious that the pronunciation should be such as to impress upon the mind of the listener or learner the idea that the name of the dahlia is supposed to honor that of Dahl and not some one of the name of Dale. To that end I hold that the proper pronunciation should be dah-ya, making it as it were two syllables only, and such as brings into prominence its name parent.—Vick's Magazine.

A Dangerous Book Agent.

There is a certain firm of subscription book publishers in Cincinnati that has an agent who recently took a most wonderful number of orders. "I can't explain it," said one of the firm, "except on the theory that he mesmerizes them. I know that I delivered the books to the parties, and while they all acknowledged the genuineness of the signatures, they claimed not to be able to remember the least thing about giving the order."—Exchange.

Miss Willard on Woman's Dress.

Miss Willard, in a recent lecture on woman's dress, makes the following interesting statement: "Catch Edison and construct him inside a wasp waistcoat, and be sure you'll get no more inventions; bind a bustle upon Bismarck, and farewell to German unity; coerce Robert Browning into Corsets, and you'll have no more epics; put Farnes into petticoats, and home rule is a lost cause."

NEGAUNEE EVENTS.

A Young Man Just Misses Getting Under the Wheels—The German Bal Masque To-Night—Secure Seats for the Wedding Lecture.

A Narrow Escape.

As the special train bound for the conductors' dance at Escanaba pulled out of the depot Wednesday night at a high rate of speed a young man named Nicholson tried to board one of the rear coaches. It was dark and he missed his footing. He got hold of one handle all right but was swung around against the side of the car, and in this perilous position he was dragged nearly three hundred feet. Men at the depot saw the young man when he tried to get on, and with their lanterns tried to signal the engineer to stop. The men on the engine, however, did not happen to be looking back and it was not until one of the brakemen had "pulled" the automatic air valve in the coach that the train was brought to a stop. Meanwhile the young man had been helped on the train. It was a very narrow escape for him, and the incident should be a lesson to other rash persons who try to board moving trains—but it won't.

The Masquerade Ball.

This evening the greatly anticipated annual masquerade ball of the German Aid society will take place at the Opera House. The committee is confident that every possible arrangement has been made that will conduce to the comfort and pleasure of the guests, and no pains have been spared to make it the grandest event of the kind ever held here. The fun will begin immediately after supper to-night, when "dot leedle Cherman band" will appear on the corner. Later a tribe of Indians will parade, and doubtless a number of the other "groups" will show themselves on the street for a time before the ball begins. The masks will be removed about 10:30, just before which hour there will be a grand march, during which the judges will award the prizes.

To Ticket Holders.

The sale of tickets for the lecture next Tuesday evening and the opening of the hall program will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at Perkins' drug store. All tickets must be presented at the store for reservations of seats. It will be useless to ask the clerks or anyone else to reserve seats for you—they won't do it. Also those who appear at the store personally will have preference over those who send telephone orders. The subject of George R. Wendling's lecture next Tuesday evening will be "Popular Delusions," it being the latest and most popular of his lectures.

The high school flag was flung to the breeze yesterday in honor of the launching of the Monitor at New York, Jan. 30, 1863, and it will appear on the flag staff again to-day to celebrate the 60th birthday of Secretary of State James G. Blaine. On the day when the flag is raised, the pupils in all departments are told of the incidents and historical events of the day which the raising of the flag commemorates.

Thomas H. Harris leaves by Sunday's train for East Saginaw, where he will represent the local A. O. U. W. lodge as its delegate at the session of the grand lodge, which convenes in that city on the 4th prox.

Sure Cure for La Grippe.

It has been demonstrated beyond doubt that change of scenes and climate is the best preventative and surest cure for the prevailing disease, and that those residing in cold climates are benefited by going to a warmer, and those of a warmer should go to a colder. TO TWO OF THE RIOTERS ARE KILLED AND MANY ARE SEVERELY WOUNDED.

The Cartridge was placed in the cellar connected with a fuse running outside the building where it was lighted. It is supposed the object was to kill Father Fleckenger and he says he believes the attempt was the work of an anarchist. It is known that there are several groups of anarchists in and about Mansfield, but just why they should perpetrate such an outrage, the friends of Father Fleckenger cannot conjecture, as he is universally esteemed by all in the town. The walls of his residence were damaged to a considerable extent. This morning Father Fleckenger notified the Mansfield police authorities and an effort will be made to ferret out the perpetrator of the outrage.

PORTUGAL IS PREPARING AN APPEAL TO THE POWERS—O'BRIEN RECEIVES AN OVATION AT LEEDS—GENERAL FOREIGN.

AUSTRIA.
VIENNA, Jan. 30.—Five hundred glassworkers who are on a strike at Goblentz in Bohemia, made an attack upon the factory in which they had been employed, and forcing an entrance into the building destroyed all the machinery. The police attempted to quell the disturbance, whereupon the strikers turned on them and in the conflict which followed two rioters were killed by the police and many others were severely wounded.

GERMANY.
BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The Calogne Gazette today publishes an interview of its correspondent at Lisbon with Senhor Pimental, the Portuguese prime minister. Senhor Pimental said Portugal is preparing an appeal to the powers, including Great Britain based on the provisions of the Berlin-Congo treaty. The powers, he said, have not directly declined to accept the proposal made by Portugal, that an international conference be held to decide the Anglo-Portuguese dispute. Above everything Portugal will endeavor to arrive at, is an agreement with England. She will prove that all the British demands have been conceded. He earnestly desired to enter into negotiations with England for the delimitation of the frontiers of the territory claimed by both powers in Africa and said that until such negotiations were possible Portugal would act with the greatest prudence and would try to remove any cause of complaint on the part of Great Britain.

ENGLAND.
LONDON, Jan. 30.—Mr. William O'Brien was received at Leeds with an enthusiastic demonstration by the liberal party. He predicted that the policy of autonomy toward Mr. Parnell and the Irish nation would result upon its inventors. The enemies of the Irish cause could perceive, he said, that the conscience of the English people was turning, like a needle to the pole, towards the policy of justice, kindness and peace, wherewith Providence inspired Mr. Gladstone.

PORTUGAL.
LISBON, Jan. 30.—The leading British residents deny that they ever did, or ever intended, to request Mr. Gladstone to intervene in their favor. It appears that the whole movement was in the hands of two British subjects, one of whom was a clerk of a Portuguese firm, and the other a merchant of German extraction. They convened a meeting of some sort to memorialize Mr. Gladstone that the British residents in Portugal were unprotected.

CANADA.
OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—In view of the fact that the distillers are allowed a rebate of the duty upon corn imported for use in the manufacture of spirits for export, Dr. Landerkin intends to move a resolution that it is in the opinion of the house of commons, not just and right that the farmers and stock raisers who import corn to feed cattle or other stock for export shall also receive a similar rebate.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 30.—Burglars entered President Harrison's house on North Delaware street at 7 o'clock last evening. Although occupied by Henry S. Frasier and family, much of the president's property is still in the house. Jewelry, belonging to Mrs. Frasier, was stolen, amounting to nearly $1,000 in value.

Sentenced to Be Hanged.
PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 30.—Pellio, the Indian who was convicted of murder in the first degree for killing Agnes Janson on the night of May 26, was sentenced today by Judge Sabin to be hanged Friday, June 6.

Only a Money Loss.
SIOUX CITY, Ia., Jan. 30.—At 2 o'clock this morning fire broke out in Stanton, a town composed of saloons, gambling houses and houses of ill repute, just across the river. Several buildings occupied as saloons and gambling houses were destroyed. The fire is believed to be of an incendiary nature. The loss is $25,000.

Now the Paper Mills Go.
APPLETON, Wis., Jan. 30.—D. S. Callahan, the agent of an English syndicate, has completed a deal here for the paper mills of the Fox River valley. The purchase price will run near $6,000,000.

A Murderer Succeeds.
NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 30.—John Nawratil, a Moravian, shot his wife Monday morning and had been missing since. He was found dead this morning, having shot himself in an out-house in the northern part of the city.

A Restriction on Trade.
HAVANA, Jan. 30.—The government intends to impose a new duty upon all sales of sugar and molasses made on the island. The chamber of commerce of Havana has presented to the intend-out of the treasury an energetic protest against the measure.

Forecast of the Weather.
WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 30.—The signal service notes the following as its forecast for the next twenty-four hours: For Wisconsin and Michigan: Light local snows preceded by fair in southern portions; winds slightly to westerly; colder with a cold wave in western portion.

TWO OF A KIND.

Two Collisions Between Chicago Suburban Trains Within Two Hours.
CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—The Illinois Central railroad had the record to-day by two serious accidents of suburban trains within two hours. About 6 o'clock this morning an Illinois Central train was going south and a B. & O. train was steaming toward Chicago. The engine of the latter train supposing the switches set properly for him to proceed, went forward at the rate of ten miles an hour. The rails, however, were so placed as to connect the suburban track with the main line, and the trains crashed into each other. The passengers on both trains were thrown about in all directions. The passengers on the suburban train received the hardest shock. Three of the latter struck their heads against the side of the cars and were stunned. A man named Davis was badly hurt about the legs. The locomotives on both trains were badly broken. New locomotives were sent to the wreck to pull the damaged engines apart and take the trains to their destinations.

The second wreck occurred at the foot of Washington street an hour later. Two trains, moving eight miles an hour, crashed into each other. The locomotive of the out-going train was driven back by the shock into the first car, tearing away the platform and splitting it into matchwood. In the first car a woman and her child were shaken up, and many of them were cut by the broken glass. When the crash was imminent the engineers reversed their engines, but too late to avoid the accident.

CHEWED A CABMAN'S THUMB.

Alderman McCormick of Chicago. Again Gets Into Trouble.
CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Alderman McCormick, who, Wednesday night, precipitated the row by which Robert Gibbons was fatally shot by Captain Schuetter, is in trouble again. Last night Robert Morris, a cab driver, went to Gibbons' saloon to collect his fare for taking Dr. Henrotin to the place the night before. McCormick was in the saloon and Morris says when he explained the object of his visit the alderman said he was a pretty decent fellow, and ought to be paid. The alderman said: "Let me show you what I think of you" and grasping Morris' left hand carried it to his mouth. Before the cabman realized what was taking place, McCormick's teeth had closed on his thumb, cutting through the flesh and nail, and crushing the bone. He then offered money, but Morris ran away. Morris, who is a quiet inoffensive fellow, will have McCormick arrested for maiming.

Eloped With His Servant.
HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 30.—Last night a well dressed man, 30 years of age, accompanied by a neatly dressed young lady, registered at the Central Hotel as "Robert Gibson and wife, Bradford." This morning they took a train for Toronto. A telegram to the police from Hagersville requests the location of the runaway couple from there, but it was not discovered that Gibson was the party wanted until he had left town. Inquiry developed the fact that Gibson was from Rochester, N. Y., though the name is believed to be assumed, and that the girl was formerly a domestic in his house there.

Almost a Lynching.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30.—A dispatch from Paola, Kas., says: Wednesday night Frank Wilson, a horse thief, and Richard Means, a colored rapist, broke jail, stole two horses from William Bowen and made their escape. Bowen and a companion pursued the fugitives and captured them after exchanging several shots. To-night Sheriff Mathews arrived here with the prisoners. The indignation against the latter has always been very strong and the attempt to escape increased it so that a mob of 1000 people gathered at the jail to lynch the prisoners. The sheriff smuggled the prisoners into the jail through a back door and the mob finding itself powerless against the iron doors, dispersed.

Only Singed His Hair.
FRANKLIN, Ohio, Jan. 30.—M. A. Teasdale, a well-known hardware merchant, while suffering a temporary aberration of mind, fastened himself in an out-house and applied a match to a can of gun-powder. The explosion blew open the door and aroused the neighborhood, but aside from singeing Teasdale and singeing his hair, he was not hurt.

The President's House Robbed.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 30.—Burglars entered President Harrison's house on North Delaware street at 7 o'clock last evening. Although occupied by Henry S. Frasier and family, much of the president's property is still in the house. Jewelry, belonging to Mrs. Frasier, was stolen, amounting to nearly $1,000 in value.

Fifteen Days Overdue.
BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 30.—The steamer Oceanic arrived at this port today from Portland, England. She sailed from the latter port December 31st. She was fifteen days overdue, owing to tempestuous weather.

COUNTERFEIT GEMS.

PRECIOUS JEWELS PRODUCED BY SKILLFUL CHEMISTS.

Not Impossible to Make a $10,000 Gem from $5 Worth of Sparks—How to Detect Frauds—Interesting Facts About Valuable Stones.

"That is a very beautiful stone," said a reporter to a Washington jeweler, calling the latter's attention to a dark purple gem of considerable size, with a vivid red fire, which lay in a satin lined box within the glass show case. "It seems very cheap, too, for its apparent value."

"It is cheap for the reason that it is not a real stone," replied the dealer.

"An imitation?"

"No, it is not an imitation. On the contrary it does not at all resemble, to the eye of an expert, any gem that is known in nature. It is simply a chemical product, that is all. You see, the chemists, having abandoned the manufacture of gold as hopeless, are trying now to make precious stones artificially, and with some success. I dare say you are not aware that actual, bona fide diamonds have been produced in this way. And real diamonds have been artificially manufactured for years. An English experimenter first accomplished the feat, and it has been successfully repeated many times since. The only trouble is that the diamonds turned out by chemical artifice are almost microscopic, and therefore practically worthless. As the experimenter in London made some dozens of them, they were exhibited, gummed on paper, under a magnifying glass. Every effort has been made to increase their size, though in vain. Apparently the production of diamonds big enough to be worth anything could only be accomplished by forces and elements working under conditions entirely different from those when the world was being rendered out of chaos into habitable shape."

ARTIFICIAL RUBIES.

"But other stones can be made artificially of profitable size?"

"A few. No real gem, however, except the diamond, has been fairly reproduced except as is found in nature, though imitations are plentiful enough. The precious stones made by the chemists, if such they may be called, are new inventions to the lapidary. Many of them are very beautiful. This purple one you have asked about, for instance, is lovely. It has been named the 'violane du cap,' and is as attractive a jewel as many natural gems for that matter. French chemists are the great experts in this branch of manufacture, and their inventions are usually kept secret. Some of the artificial gems they make are doubtless pretty costly to produce, as for that matter are the microscopic diamonds, which are as expensive to turn out as good big ones in the market."

"Yes; but not with entire success. Two or three years ago certain French chemists claimed that they had discovered a process for 'absolutely manufacturing big rubies in the laboratory by fusing together small ruby sparks, such as can be bought for almost nothing. If you will remember, the French value of the ruby is nearly double that of the diamond, the color and quality otherwise being first rate, you can imagine what an agitation such an announcement occasioned among the dealers. Now was the announcement altogether without truth, as appeared from the report made on the subject by the celebrated Professor Friedel of the French institute, who said that he found the chemical composition, density, crystalline form and refractive power of the artificial specimens to correspond in every respect with the natural rubies. The only difference he could find was a slight variation in the shape of the tiny air bubbles. However, the dealers threatened to prosecute any one for fraud who ventured to issue the artificial rubies as real ones, and, inasmuch as their combination is very rich and powerful and the laws against selling counterfeit jewels for actual ones is very strict in France, the fused rubies have never got upon the market. It was a great scheme to make a $10,000 ruby out of $5 worth of sparks."

The Sparks you speak of are real rubies, of course?"

"Oh! yes. That is the trouble about rubies. There are plenty of them, but very few good sized ones. The greatest ruby fields in the world are those of Burma, where the natives have for centuries been digging for them in the most primitive and therefore most unprofitable manner. They are found in quantities in successive strata, with layers of earth and clay between at a little depth below the surface soil. But nearly all are so small as to be scarcely valuable. Only occasionally a big one, with the true pigeon's blood color, turns up."

THE RUBIES LAWYER'S JEWELS.

"There used to be wonderful accounts of the jars full of large rubies which King Theobald of Burma had in his palace at Mandalay, but not many were found by the British when they looted the city. Perhaps they were carried off and hidden away by the natives."

"Curiously enough, the anticipation of the finding of these hoards of the king by the English soldiers had quite a depressing effect upon the ruby market, a lowering in the value of the gem being feared as a result of a sudden throwing of great supplies before the purchasing public. Rubies are also largely obtained in Ceylon, where the gem business of hunting for them in the streams that come down from the huge cone of mountains in the central part of the island, where it has been supposed for centuries that a great matrix of rubies existed above the clouds, from whence those found in the rivers are washed down. Nor is such a theory entirely without reason, though nobody has been able to find the matrix yet. When discovered, it will afford a profitable opportunity for the use of a few pounds of dynamite."

THE RUBIES OF CEYLON?

"Are there pearls from Ceylon?"

"Yes, the waters thereabout are a great pearl fishing ground. Between the harvests the natives wait patiently for the oysters to grow. Pearls are largely contemplated, and you know, the best imitations being made of hollow glass beads lined with transparent wax and sealed back from living fish. The pearl is chiefly composed of carbonate of lime, with films of animal membrane between its many layers. These membrane films become dry and give the pearl its hardness. The substance of the pearl is a slimy secretion of the oyster, which is ordinarily deposited upon the interior surface of the shell, forming what is called 'mother of pearl.' Grains of sand or other foreign bodies, lodged within the shell, produce an irritation of the tissues which causes the deposit of a pearly matter around them for their greater protection. This matter is deposited, layer after layer, until the pearl is formed. By the artificial introduction of flinty particles pearls can be made to grow. The Chinese in this manner compel a certain kind of fresh water mussel to produce pearls in great numbers, though of small size. Sometimes they introduce diminutive images of their gods and other things within the shells and have them turned into pearls by a sort of oyster plate process."

Work the Source of Happiness.

If thou workest at that which is before thee, following right, reason, modesty, vigorously, calmly, without allowing anything to distract thee, but keeping thy divine part pure, as if thou shouldst be bound to give it back immediately, if thou holdest to this, expecting nothing, fearing nothing, but satisfied with thy present activity according to nature and in accordance with the truth in every word thou utterest, thou wilt live happy. And there is no man who is able to prevent this.

More Trouble Between Whites and Blacks.
MACON, Ga., Jan. 30.—Seven thousand and five hundred negroes gathered yesterday at Morgan to witness an execution, which was postponed. The crowd, however, did not disperse, and there was much drinking. In the afternoon a riot occurred between the whites and blacks, caused by a drunken negro striking a white child. Many shots were fired. One white man was fatally and three others were seriously wounded. Several negroes were wounded but no one was killed.

Dangers of Electricity.

It would not surprise me to see some fearful catastrophe happen in the near future by reason of the general, I might say pernicious, employment of electricity as an agent of civilization. I think we have roused up a force that we may be unable to control. Take the electric overhead railroads. They are driven by a power impossible to compute, and yet the forces sometimes subsides for hours together, and the ablest electricians are neither able to awaken it again or tell why it ceases to operate; and yet it will start again as suddenly as it stopped, apparently independent of human control. Within a few days I have seen an electric light wire set on fire by a common wet, and burn as brightly as a candle, and some such accident happens during every rain. The laws governing this mighty force are but little understood, and there is reason to fear that it may yet become dangerously defiant of control.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Big Fiddle.

The bass viol is the most expensive of all musical instruments to its owner. Its first cost is not the greatest expense. It is so large and awkward to carry around that it is continually getting injured by accidents which would not happen to smaller instruments. Somebody may kick a hole in it by dancing against it in a room, or it may be knocked against something while carrying it around. The most frequently injured on street cars while the musician is carrying it to the place where he has to play. After a man has had an instrument for a long time he becomes so used to it as actually worth all the money that it has cost him, and in this way a bass viol sometimes is valued at $1,000 or so by its owner. In fact, I really know a musician who had a bass viol for company for $5,000 for a viol snatched in an accident, and he actually got $2,800.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An Object Lesson.

A doctor prescribing for a baby was really vexed by the obstinateness of the child's feminine relatives, who tried all sorts of home remedies for it, saying in apology:

"We thought if it did no good they would do no harm, doctor."

At the end of his patience the doctor one morning called for a bowl, a spoon and some butter, and began stirring the latter round and round with an air of grave importance. The ladies gathered about him inquisitively, but he gave them no attention until, at last, curiosity becoming rampant, they cried in chorus:

"Oh, doctor, do tell us what you are going to do with the baby?"

Here was his chance. Facing them solemnly, he said: "I am going to grease the baby's elbow with it. It may not do any good, but it won't do any harm."—London Tid Bits.

The Czar's Luck.

The czar of all the Russias still lives, but it is only by the merest good luck. The latest attempt to make him shuffle off consisted of the explosion of a chest of dynamite at the railway station of Peterhof, a small place near St. Petersburg. The stuff went off a little too soon and killed a signman. In the meantime the czar was far enough away for safety, as he nearly always contrives to be when anything unpleasant is taking place. It is evidently unnecessary for him to remain shut up within the stone walls of Gatchina now. He can walk and run about in the open world without having the least fear of injury, unless, indeed, some of these infernal machines happen to go off at an unlucky moment for him some day. But the chances of such a catastrophe are very small, apparently.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

The Sacred Concert.
The delay in rendering the sacred concert at Marquette for the benefit of the cathedral fund has been a vexatious one, and no one has regretted it more than those connected with its management. But the concert will lose none of its excellence thereby. Professor Fohrman, of this city, is now confident that he can render the concert in about two weeks. The rehearsals are continued without interruption and the choruses have received much drilling and practice that they could not have obtained had the concert been given in December, as was originally intended. Stecher & Voelker's orchestra, of this city and Negaunee, has been engaged to give a few selections, and also to provide the accompaniment for the choruses. Between each chorus there will be organ solos that will bring out all the stop and pedal effects that the grand organ can produce.

Just as soon as the date is determined large posters will be issued, and tickets will be placed on sale in all the cities in the county.

A Bad Accident.
As C. & N. W. switch engine No. 272 was going down toward the passenger depot yesterday morning the sideroads broke. Before the engine could be stopped she had run about 100 feet, and the rods were bent in every conceivable shape. The engine was also lifted from the rails by the broken rods and was placed in such a position that it was a very difficult matter to get her on the rails again. On the left-hand side the rods in turning over had crashed into the steam chest, breaking some portions of it. The left side of the engine had to be taken down before any attempt could be made to get her on. It took an engine and a number of men all morning to get the engine on the track again, and then the track had to be repaired, a portion of it having been sprung.

A Grand Affair.
A well loaded special train left here at 7 o'clock Wednesday night, having on board several hundred persons who were bound for the third annual ball to be given at Escanaba by Delta division No. 86, Order of Railway Conductors. The opera house had been elaborately decorated for the event, the music furnished by Green Bay's large orchestra was splendid, and the dance went through on schedule time, the conductors clearly demonstrating that they can run a dance through to a successful conclusion as well as bring their trains to their destination on time. The train returned at an early hour yesterday morning, bearing a tired but happy lot of people.

La Grippe Abating.
The influenza epidemic which visited this city, in common with thousands of other places in the country, has nearly spent its force here. There are now comparatively few cases, and these are of a very mild type. There have been seven deaths here which were almost directly caused by that disease. Hundreds of men were laid up with it and the amount of money lost by laborers who were prostrated by it would foot up quite a large sum. While the epidemic might have been worse, it did damage enough and it is to be hoped that it will never appear here again.

The west bound Houghton passenger struck a sleigh load of logs on a crossing near L'Anse, Wednesday. No one was hurt and but little damage was done.

An accident in the MIXING JOURNAL's press room occasioned a delay yesterday morning and the papers did not reach here until the afternoon train brought them along.

The following are the numbers that drew prizes in the distribution of smoking sets at Lindholm's bazaar: 1601, 647, 2918, 1078, 1693, 4457, 75, 2869, 3001 and 2388. Holders of these tickets are requested to call at once and get their prizes.

Henry Powers, of the Ontonagon Herald, acknowledges the corn in regard to the little story told at his expense in this department recently, and says he will explain matters more fully at Iron Mountain next summer. The reporter trusts that he will be able to meet Mr. Powers at Iron Mountain, but you know, Henry, that sometimes the "boss" wants to go himself and then the "kids" have to stay at home.

The reporter would suggest that all young men who are so unfortunate as to be homely enough to resemble the local representative of this paper keep in hiding for a few days. Yesterday a young man whom an irate individual thought was the reporter barely escaped a thrashing by explaining that it was a case of mistaken identity. There are a number of parties looking for the reporter's scalp, and unless his "doubles" take the hint some of them are apt to lose their locks.

Window Strips.
Very frequently window sashes are loose enough to admit quantities of cold air into what would otherwise be a warm room. To remedy this, cut strips of felt, wooden cloth or flannel about an inch and a half in width. Fasten the lengths together by lapping the end of one strip an inch over the end of another that it may lie flat, and sewing the two pieces together. Use very slender, small tacks to fasten the list on the window frame. Do not tack the strips to the window sash, but place the strips so that half their width will lie over on the sash, while the other half is tacked on the edge of the window frame.

In this way the cracks will be covered, and the window can be opened and closed without difficulty. Should the cold air come in between the upper and lower sash, a strip of felt cut the length of the width of the sash can be tacked across on the top edge of the lower sash so that the list will extend over on the edge of the upper sash, and cover the crack, while it will not interfere with the moving of the window sashes. A room protected from the cold by means of these weather strips is always appreciated during the winter months, and with the coming of spring the small tacks can readily be removed, and the strips taken off and packed away for the next season.—Montreal Star.

A VERY LARGE PERCENTAGE
Of the American people are troubled with a most annoying, troublesome, and disfiguring complaint called "Catarrh." It is not necessary to be so troubled. EXILED.

At yonder casement, wide and low,
Where soft the rosy lamp-light glows,
Across the curtain's flimsy web
A drowsy, like shadow comes and goes.

And while entranced I watch it pass,
The fair head bent with gentle grace,
In rippling lengths of golden sheen
The loosened tresses veil the face.

And now the shadow takes the shape
Of one who prays on hended knee—
Ah, well I know whose name it is
Makes up the burden of that plea.

Without, beneath the darkening sky,
The wild wind moans among the leaves;
Within, where you pale shadow droops,
A surely quiet wail and grieves.

Like one from paradise shut out,
I lift my eyes with longing gaze—
Would God I too were kneeling there,
As in the blessed by-gone days!

Between the parted curtains now
Shines forth a tender star-like face,
Flash, hungry heart! He still! be still!
Back, haunting memories, to your place.

The vision fades; the night waxes on;
I turn with slow unwill to bed,
My sin the angel with the sword
That drives me from that Eden sweet.

ROAD TO HER HEART.
Some of the Things the Poets Have Said
Both For and Against Woman.
How shall woman be wooed? Let no random counsel guide her. Women are as various as the leaves in the wood, and each leaf has a mood for each hour of its life from swelling spring to the craggy autumn. Devours that would be most agreeable to one might be repulsive with stinging force by others; and addresses that were welcome at noon, even though clothed in identical garments, may pall at night. No man can tell. Arrows shot at a venture often find joints in the harness of a heart as well as of a king. Some women were made to be taken by siege, and all the storming of Mars Antony could not compel surrender; and some would rush to capture in the swift assault who could defend walls, gates and circling moats forever and a day. But mark your lady! She who would capitulate to the stubborn woe may change her liking with the flying hours and change it back again—no rule is sure to win. But however mundane should be wooed, she demands at least that she be loved, and reads in her article of faith that constancy is part of vows. She wants no wandering and will threaten none. Shakespeare's advice is:

That woman's are
Most of which is a piece of frankness that approaches slander on a sex not often accused of frailty. The idea of men being charged with a guileless greater than that found in women is amazing in the memory of Hamlet's mother, Cleopatra and a score who illustrate the charming line: "Frailty, thy name is woman." The singleness of devotion granted and demanded more Anna Proctor to the following passage:

I break all slighter bonds, nor feel
A shadow of regret.
Is there one link within the past
That holds thy spirit yet?
Or is thy faith as clean and free
As that which I can pledge to thee?

Tenderness is always most welcome, and he who can remember a love that has vanished with crumbling clay wins grace from all her surviving sisters. This from C. G. Halpin:
Oh, loosen the snood that you wear, Jeannette;
Let me tangle a hand in your hair, my pet,
For the world to me had no daintier sight.
Than your brown hair veiling your shoulders white.
Your beautiful dark brown hair.

Thus ever I dream what you were, Jeannette,
With your lips and eyes and your hair, my pet,
In the darkness of desolate years I roam,
And my tears fall bitterly on the stone
That covers your golden hair.
That covers your golden hair.

George D. Prentice has caught the beauty in a reverse side of a sad picture. As a rule, snitten ones mourn a presence lost, and only kind dreams grant them the boon that waking hours deny. The vision is a glimpse of heaven, but consciousness is the punishment of Tartarus. The poet of the Louisville Journal once paid his living tribute to the honor to miss her during a temporary absence, to dream of her presence and to greet her return:

'Tis midnight, with a soothing spell,
The far-off tones of the ocean swell,
Soft as a mother's cadence mild,
Low bending o'er her darling child;
And on each wondrous breeze are heard
The rich notes of the mocking bird
In many a wild and wondrous lay,
But I am sad—thou art away.

I sink in dreams, low, sweet and clear,
Thy own dear voice is in my ear;
Around my cheek thy tresses tangle,
Thy own loved hand is clasped in mine.
Thy own soft lip to mine is pressed,
Thy head is pillowed on my breast;
Oh! I have all my heart holds dear,
And I am happy—thou art here.

Queer old Prentice—ill-clad, slumbering, rough spoken—had one of the warmest of hearts and the rare faculty of twining bright thoughts about strong lines.

Sometimes the being licensed to have his predictions printed in small type and to call them poetry has drawn a worse than blank in life's lottery, and thereupon sets out to berate the sex in general. For him there may be excuse, but for Lord Lytton, whose wife was to him all Claude Melnotte could ever hope for from Pauline, there was little apology for the following from "The Lady of Lyons":
The man who sets his heart upon a woman
Is a chameleon and doth feed on air.
From air he takes his colors, holds his life,
Changes with every wind—grows lean or fat.
Reed with hope or green with jealousy,
Or pallid with despair, just as the gale
Varies from north to south, from heat to cold.
Oh, woman! woman! thou shouldst have few sins
Of false love to answer for! Thou art the author
Of such a book of follies in a man,
That it would nest the tears of all the angels
To blot the record out.

It has been said the sex sinks deeper when they fall than any level reached by man. If this be true it must surely be because women occupy a greater height when both are at their normal altitude, and that, descending, woman, by a sort of moral momentum, reaps her near relationship to angels with a severer degradation. The motive spring of all emotions, the ocean into which all rivers of purpose run, the fertile soil from which all progress springs, fairer than man and with emotions more varied, the receptive to his impressive side of life, no words can be too kind, no services too costly, no fealty too true. From the time when girlhood carols the love song till the time old age lays down its burdens, love alone can win and love alone retain all that is best in woman.—Chicago Herald.

The Art of Milking.
Successful Resident—Yes, I want a useful man about my country place. Can you milk? Applicant—Yes, sir.
"Which side of a cow do you sit on when milking?"
"Well, sir, I never milked but can cow, an' she was a kicker, sor; an', bedad, a good dale av the town Ork was on both sides av her, sor."—New York Weekly.

LAKE LINDEN. At a council meeting held Tuesday evening it was decided that the volunteer fire service was not as efficient as is necessary for the safety of property in the village and that a good paid fire department would render better service. Senecal, secretary and treasurer; members: Aaron Hanauer, Henry Meder, Leon Gillet, J. W. Ed. Koepel, P. C. Bailey, John Owens, Edwin Stehlin, Jerry Corbett, Ovidian Perreault, Henry La Rose and Hornadose Aubin. The company will meet for practice once a month and hold monthly business meetings. The council voted the members $5 per month each as compensation. The company is composed of capable and energetic men and its efficiency will undoubtedly be great.

CARD OF THANKS. If the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam should publish a card that contains the expressions of gratitude which come to him daily from those who have been cured of severe throat and lung troubles by the use of Kemp's Balsam, it would fill a fair sized book. A Living Cyclops. An Oregon newspaper states that an Indian child of the Nez Percé tribe with but one eye, situated in the center of its forehead, like those of the fabled Cyclops, was lately seen at Pendleton, in that state. The child was able to see with ease, and ran about with as much freedom as any of its two-eyed companions. When the child's mother was asked for an explanation of the mystery she replied in an earnest and elegant Nez Percé that she could account for its strange peculiarity only by the fact that she had looked at a one-eyed cayuse shortly before the infant's birth.

A Wise Young Man. Wilbur Blair, a young man of Woodland, was returning from a hop the other night, and as footsteps were known to infest the town, he took $30 which he possessed from his pocket and carried it in his hand. He had not walked far when he was astonished to see a menacing figure emerge from the gloom and demand that he throw up his hands. As the man did, a pistol pointed at his breast, Blair elevated his hands without parley. The footpad then searched his pockets, but was unable to find anything, so he allowed Blair to pass on.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Little Irving's Funny Speech. Little Irving is only 5 years old, and he wasn't that within three months when he made the funny speech about the Limb Bone. His mother had a pan full of them on her lap and had begun to snail them when the small, fair-haired, blue-eyed boy jumped from his rocking horse and came to help. He took one of the largest, of course, but although he tried and tried he could not burst the pod. It was too much for his tiny fingers, and at last, throwing it down in great vexation, he said, "Oh, mamma, I can't unbutton it!"—Detroit Free Press.

ATTEMPTED A FOUL CRIME.

Fiend in Human Form Tries to Burn Alfred Field's House and Its Sleeping Inmates.

DISASTER LIKE HURONTOWN HOLOCAUST NARROWLY ESCAPED.

No Clue to the Villain—Escanaba Ball-Goers Have to Pay Fare—Disgusted Pleasure Seekers.

Work of a Midnight Assassin.

Seven human lives were in grave danger of a horrible death when some fiend in human form attempted to burn the house occupied by Alfred Field, 111 Genesee street, early Wednesday morning. That Mr. Field and his family were not roasted in their beds, or at least driven forth into the darkness and snow in their night clothes is due only to the providentially early discovery of the scoundrelly attempt and to the presence of mind of John Field. The villain's intention was to make his crime a complete success. His rascally plans were well-laid and his diabolical work well done. Only the fact, unforeseen by the would-be assassin, that one of the household happened to be awake unusually late, thwarted the murderous plot.

Alfred Field is a hard-working barber who runs a little shop on Superior street east of Front. He lives at 111 Genesee street in a house owned by Patrick Clarey. The structure is the ordinary eight room two-story frame house with a lean-to kitchen. On Tuesday night there were in the house Mr. Field, his wife and child, his wife's sister, Miss Haas, his brother, John Field and a friend of the latter, William McDonald. Alfred Field did not leave his shop until 10 and by the time he got to bed it must have been something after 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Field slept off the sitting room while McDonald and John Field were in a room off the kitchen. The two latter had not seen each other for some months and lay awake talking until after midnight.

About 12:30 o'clock John Field smelled smoke with a strong order of kerosene. Investigating he found that it came from the trap door leading from the kitchen to the cellar below. He quickly roused the household, the smoke all the time increasing in volume and pungency. The fire seeming to be in the cellar, Alfred Field took a lamp and went down. He found the cellar so full of the oily smoke that he could scarcely see the flame of his lamp. He could not discover the fire and so started at full speed for the railroad shops to alarm the fire department.

Just as he got fairly away John Field, who had been examining the outside of the house, located the origin of the smoke. Under the front steps he found a large mass of paper and cotton rags, rolled into a sort of ball and saturated with kerosene. Just behind the steps was a hole in the stone foundation, apparently made for a window. The wind setting fair against the front of the house had driven the smoke from the fire fiend's torch under the building into the cellar and so up into the kitchen. John Field at once seized a pail of water and soon extinguished and pulled out the bundle of oil-soaked rags and paper.

Meanwhile Alfred Field had reached the railroad shops and given the alarm. Several men went at once to the scene but found the fire out when they arrived. The whistle had been turned loose to call the fire department, but its shrill blasts were unheard, or if heard, unheeded at the hose house. The whistling was plainly heard in the MINING JOURNAL office and there taken for that of a runaway train, but as none appeared, no fire alarm struck and the blasts soon ceased, no further attention was paid to it.

Neither Mr. Field nor Mr. Clarey, the owner of the building, have the faintest idea who the fire bug could have been. Both say that they know of no enemy who could have done such a deed and are at a loss to explain the attempt. Officer Imeson is alleged to have said that he passed the house about midnight and saw nothing suspicious. He either did not report the attempted felony to Marshal Maloney or if he did the latter preserved a most profound silence about it all day Wednesday and Thursday. If the authorities are still in ignorance that a most dastardly crime was attempted in the usually orderly city of Marquette the MINING JOURNAL'S now informs them of the fact.

That a most foul crime was attempted there is no doubt. Not without human hands, directed by a malicious mind inspired by a devilish purpose, could that mass of oil-soaked paper and rags have been placed under Alfred Field's front steps. Only the providential circumstance that John Field lay awake late that night talking to his old friend saved property from destruction and sleeping men and innocent women and a helpless child from the greatest danger of horrible death. Had the fire gained the headway that its cowardly kindler intended it is probable that not an inmate of the building would have escaped without serious injury or even with his life.

There has been something too much of this kind of work in Marquette of late. Several fires in the last few months have been attributed to incendiaries. Mr. William Parker firmly believes that the burning of his fish house last Saturday evening was due to a fire bug. Other citizens agree with him in his conviction. On the heels of that fire comes this other dastardly crime. By the laws of Michigan the burning of a dwelling house in the night is deemed murder. Arson is notoriously an easy crime to commit and a hard one to prove but unless the authorities bestir themselves some fire-fiend will be caught in the act one of these days and then an enraged people will take a summary vengeance.

Had to Pay Their Fare.

The thirty odd Marquette people who went down to Escanaba Wednesday night to the conductors' ball are feeling pretty sore over the way they were befooled. They have no fault to find with the ball itself which is described by all present as a very enjoyable affair. The boys down at the Lake Michigan town also did everything in their power to make it pleasant for the visitors. The kick, and it seems a very just one, is over the matter of transportation from here to Escanaba and back. There was a misunderstanding that seems to amount to positive misrepresentation on the part of some one.

A number of tickets were brought here, chiefly by Nolan, a conductor on the Chicago & Northwestern, and by him or others left in several places to be sold. All the Marquette people who went down to the ball allege that their tickets, at $1 each, were sold them with the distinct understanding that they were good both for admission to the ball and for passage to Escanaba and back. In view of the arrangements made by the brakemen for their ball last year this supposed providing of free passage was not deemed extraordinary. Great was the surprise of the crowd of pleasure seekers, among whom were some ten ladies, when as the train rolled out of the city the conductor asked for their fare. Of course they protested but as the conductor, insisted with evident sincerity, that he had no authority to accept the ball tickets, they had to chip up their little half dollars.

At Negaunee the special train for Escanaba was waiting. Warned by experience the ball-goers made inquiries and found that each had to put up $2.45 more for the round trip. This with 50 cents more back to Marquette made the unlooked-for cost of the trip $3.45, and those who went from this city are out just that much by somebody's misrepresentation.

On arrival at Escanaba the visitors naturally registered an immediate and justifiable kick with the managers of the ball. These gentlemen most earnestly protested that they knew nothing of the matter and that no one had any authority to make such promises.

In justice to Mr. Nolan it should be said that a MINING JOURNAL reporter met him here last Saturday evening and saw him selling tickets, but that he made no promise of free transportation, in the reporter's presence at least. But in places where tickets were left for sale, such promises were certainly made. The whole affair seems to demand an immediate explanation from the managers. Unless such full and satisfactory explanation be given and the blame placed where it belongs it will be a very frigid day when Marquette people can again be induced to buy tickets to a conductors' ball.

The Gooding Quartette.

For some time Messrs. D. W. C. Gooding, G. N. Conklin, A. O. Joplin and Grant Thomas have formed an excellent quartette whose work has been much appreciated by music lovers of this city. Until yesterday the organization had no name. It has been decided by the remaining members, out of compliment to Mr. Gooding, to call it "The Gooding Quartette." Though 64 years of age Mr. Gooding is as hale and active an old gentleman as one could wish to meet and is said to possess the best tenor voice in the upper peninsula. He appreciates very highly the compliment his younger associates have paid him.
