JAWING OVER THE INDIANS.

Democrats Emit the Usual Amount of Wind Over the Indian Appropriation Bill.

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE ON BINDING TWINE.

Will Recommend That It Be Placed on the Free List—Amos Cummings' Presidential Boom.

FROM THE CAVE OF THE WINDS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The house has fairly entered upon the consideration of the appropriations and the second bill of importance was today taken up—the Indian appropriation bill. As is usual in the discussion of the bill the Indian agents and their treatment of the nation's wards came in for a good deal of denunciation and to have heard the manner in which the humanitarian of the house arraigned the American government for its treatment of the aboriginal red man would have gladdened the heart of European philanthropists.

But humanity and sentiment soon gave way to practical politics and then the house had a half hour's enjoyment over the lively passage between Representatives Watson, the keen-witted Farmers' Alliance member of Georgia, and Funston, the sturdy republican debater of Kansas. Each gentleman was warmly applauded by his partisans and as Mr. Watson's contest this time happened to be with a republican he also naturally had the encouragement, and applause of the democratic side.

Immediately after the introduction of bills and resolutions the house went into the committee of the whole with Mr. Bynum (Ind.) in the chair on the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. Peel (Ark.) had the opening speech and fully explained the provisions of the bill.

Mr. Stockdale (Miss.) criticized the appropriations for the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., characterizing it as a hundred thousand dollar folly. He protested against taking money out of the pockets of the people to pay for boarding-schools for Indians.

After further debate the committee rose and the house adjourned.

FOR FREE BINDING TWINE.

Report Ready on Bill Removing That Much-Discussed Duty.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The first of the reports from the ways and means committee on the three tariff bills ordered reported to the house has been prepared by Representative Bryan of Nebraska who drew up the bill. It is to accompany the bill making binding twine free of duty and will be presented to the house in a day or two. The present rate of duty on binding twine is seven-tenths cents per pound, this rate having been fixed as a compromise in conference after the senate by a vote of 34 to 24 had placed binding twine on the free list. The report says:

That great industry, agriculture, which lies at the foundation of all others and upon the welfare of which all the interests of the country so largely depend, has been neglected. It has been discriminated against for the benefit of the protected industries and the injury has been aggravated by the imposition of useless duties upon a large number of agricultural products, under the pretense that such a tariff would increase the price of such products, although the farmer has been assured that similar tariff on manufactured goods he buys. A large part of the surplus products of the farm must be disposed of in a foreign market and the price of that surplus, fixed by free competition, regulates the price of the portion sold at home.

If the articles necessarily used by the farmer in the harvesting of his crops are made dearer for him than for his competitors he must bear the burden alone, for there is no one to whom he can transfer it. The tariff on binding twine cannot be justified except from the principle that the taxing power should be used to prevent importations entirely. That principle, besides being unsupported by constitutional authority, would destroy all income from imports and compel us to look to some other source for the necessary revenues.

There are in the United States thirty-five cordage and twine factories, twenty-nine of which are owned and controlled by the National Cordage company of New York. The twenty-nine in the "trust," if it may be so termed, produced sixty per cent of the total output. There were produced and consumed in the United States in 1890 500,000 tons of twine, all but 7,000 tons of which were made from foreign-grown fibres. If the seven-tenths of one cent per pound is added to the price, as is probable, this tax cost the farmers of the United States, in the year 1890 alone, $700,000. And this does not include a large additional sum charged for profits on the increased price by the various dealers through whose hands the product passed. Not one dollar of this large tax reached the treasury. Surely there can be no excuse for allowing this "trust" to continue the exactions of this tribute, especially as the raw material from which this twine is made is already on the free list.

CUMMINGS FOR PRESIDENT.

Some Nebraska Democrats Nominated That Able Newspaper Man.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—It is not often that an American statesman of these days has a presidential boom thrust upon him but such is the enviable experience of Congressman Amos J. Cummings of New York. During the session of the house today Congressman Bryan of Nebraska called Mr. Cummings to the rear of the hall and in the presence of a few admiring members presented to the New York congressman, on behalf of the democrats of Fremont, Neb., a badge bearing the following inscription: "For president—Amos J. Cummings of New York. For vice-president—J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska." Mr. Bryan explained that this badge was worn by the Fremont democrats at Lincoln last Monday at the installation of Governor Boyd and that he had been directed by the Fremont democrats to notify Mr. Cummings that he was their choice for the presidency.

RETURNING MEXICAN FLAGS.

Proposition to Give Back Trophies of the Mexican War.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Immediately after the reading of the senate journal, Mr. Sherman from the committee on foreign relations reported back favorably the joint resolution introduced by Mr. Perkins requesting the president to return to the republic of Mexico 217 battle flags now in the national museum which were captured by the army of the United States during the late war with Mexico. Mr. Sherman said this was an act of courtesy to a friendly power which had been suggested to congress by the American minister to Mexico.

After passing some local bills the Idaho contested election case was taken up and Mr. Gray addressed the senate in support of the minority report that Mr. Claggett not Mr. Dubois is entitled to the seat. Without disposing of the resolution the senate adjourned at 5 p. m. adjourned till tomorrow.

CONSOLIDATED BY CRISP.

Speaker Assures Silver Cranks of a Hearing Very Soon.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The leaders of the contest in the house for the free coinage of silver have received from Speaker Crisp assurances that a special order will be brought in the house in favor of the free coinage bill. The speaker told them that as soon as Mr. Catchings (Miss.), who is at present in New York on business, returns to Washington that the rules committee will meet and will take prompt action upon the Bland resolution making the silver bill a special order. The speaker has assured the silver men that he is in favor of consideration of the bill and of it being finally disposed of within a reasonable time.

FOSTER IS NOT WORRIED.

Treasury is Very Low But Is All Right Anyhow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Secretary Foster said this afternoon that there was nothing in the financial condition of the treasury to cause the least uneasiness and that it was silly to suppose that he contemplated the use of the $100,000,000 gold reserve to meet the current obligations of the government. He said also that while the present net cash balance of $27,500,000 consisted almost entirely of subsidiary coin and money on deposit with national banks it did not include the national bank redemption fund of $3,500,000 and disbursing officers' balances, amounting to $25,000,000, both of which are subject to the action of the department and should not be regarded as "demand liabilities."

FIGURING ON INCOME TAX.

Democrats Looking Forward to Abolition of the Protective System.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The committee on ways and means today devoted its attention to the principle of an income as a means of raising revenue in the event that the reduction of the tariff should ever bring the revenues of the country below legitimate expenses. The committee on labor will ask the house to authorize it to investigate the charges concerning the employment of convict labor upon public works and the use by the government of materials and supplies which are the product of convict labor. The committee after exhausting its present authority for obtaining information on this question, has no information that convict labor is being used by the government in the construction or repair of the public buildings or other public works or that the product of convict labor is being furnished to or for the use of any department of the government or is being used upon its buildings or other public works. The committee thinks that if this practice prevails it should be prohibited; if it does not prevail its non-existence ought to be demonstrated.

PLOT AGAINST THE PRESIDENT.

Alleged Attempt to Assassinate President Montt of Chile.

New York, Feb. 17.—A Valparaiso cablegram to the Herald affirms that plots to kill both President Montt and General Canto have been discovered and thwarted. The attempt on President Montt's life took place last Sunday night. The miscreants engaged in it removed the rails three kilometers north of Maule station. Their intention was to wreck the train which Montt was announced to take. Fortunately Montt stopped off at Chillan and moreover the removal of the rails was discovered by the railroad officials before any damage was done.

When the Santiago express for this city arrived at Llaillai yesterday General Canto, who was one of the passengers, left his seat in the Pullman car to take his breakfast. Upon returning he found that his seat was saturated with kerosene. Burned matches were discovered near by. There was no clue to the perpetrator.

ARE AFTER QUAY'S SCALE.

Pennsylvania Republican Association Will Try to Defeat Him.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—An address will be issued tomorrow by the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Republican association, an organization which has been perfecting its plans for several months past and the object of which is to prevent M. S. Quay's reelection to the United States senate and to secure the choice of some able and loyal republican as his successor. The movement, it is said, is entirely separate and distinct from that which was ineffectually launched against Quay last fall and proceeds from prominent business, professional and working men who have uniformly supported the republican party but have taken no active part in politics.

WILL BUILD AN ORE DOCK,

Duluth, Mesaba & Northern Road to Ship Iron Ore From West Duluth.

NEW ORE DOCK WILL BE THE HIGHEST ON THE LAKES.

Its Estimated Shipping Capacity Will Be One Million Tons—Village Grants Right of Way.

DULUTH'S LATEST INDUSTRY.

DULUTH, Feb. 17.—Contracts have been signed and arrangements perfected for building the big ore docks of the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern road near this city. The West Duluth village council last evening gave the road the right to use Fond du Lac avenue from the St. Paul & Duluth road to the dock front and a site 900 feet wide and 1,000 feet long in the city itself has been offered for $5,000. On one of these the ore docks and terminals will be placed. The docks will be the highest in the world, the floor being 54 feet above water or two and a half feet higher than the docks of the Duluth & Iron Range at Two Harbors, which are now the highest known. The new docks will consume about 3,500,000 feet of timber, will have a shipping capacity of 1,000,000 tons a year and will cost $200,000. It is expected that next year the docks will have to be doubled.

BLOWN IN FOR BOOZE.

German East Africa Scandals Crop Up Once More.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—Eugene Wolf, the newspaper correspondent whose reports to the Tageblatt on the disaster to the Zelewski expedition and other matters caused Chancellor von Caprivi to order his expulsion from German East Africa in November last, has published an amplified attack upon Baron Soden's administration of the East African colony. It will be remembered that about the middle of September last word was received that in the recent fight between the German corps under Captain Zelewski and a body of natives 300 of his blacks were killed and all the guns and munitions were lost. Wolf's article will form the subject of an interpellation in the reichstag.

Dr. Marselle, the medical adviser of the sultan of Zanzibar, gave two years ago details with regard to the causes of the troubles in East Africa and how the Germans acted towards the natives. He said that the attempts at plantation made by the German company in the vast territory ceded by the sultan were never serious as they were limited to the construction of some huts which were called stations and the planting of some bits of ground with tobacco. In the meantime the Germans lived at Zanzibar a luxurious life and the greater part of the money was spent in champagne.

WOULD A DUCK SWIM?

Elkins Discovers That Harrison Expects to Be Renominated.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—A morning paper states that Stephen B. Elkins, secretary of war, announced yesterday in a letter to a personal friend here in New York that President Harrison is a candidate for renomination. The secretary added that the president would be renominated and, moreover, would be re-elected. This is the first authentic announcement that the president would be a candidate for re-election although everybody was convinced of it. That the secretary had sent such a letter was known at the Fifth Avenue hotel last night. There were various comments, devoted particularly to the prophetic decision of the letter.

MINING COMPANIES COMBINE

Long-Standing Litigation Is Settled by Consolidation.

ASPEN, Colo., Feb. 17.—The long-standing litigation between the Standard Mining company of Kansas City and the Della S. Mining company of Aspen over the ownership of the J. C. Johnson vein has been settled by a compromise. The two companies have consolidated their interests in the Della S. and J. C. Johnson, the Standard company getting in the deal one-quarter and the Della S. three-quarters of the stock. The company will be known as the Della S. Consolidated Mining company and its capital is $5,000,000. David Brown is president and H. M. Holden vice-president.

SHARING PROFITS IN MINES.

Tennessee Company Offers Employee Stock on Very Liberal Terms.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 17.—The mines of the Tennessee Mining company at Bricewille will be worked hereafter on the co-operative plan. The miners are allowed to take stock and have already taken $10,000. A subscriber is allowed twenty months in which to pay for $100 in stock. The company will build residences and allow the miners to buy them on liberal terms.

GARZA SYMPATHIZERS SPOTTED.

General Stanley Has a Little List of Troublesome Mexicans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—General Schofield is in receipt of a despatch from General Stanley giving the names of certain wealthy Mexicans now resident in Texas who are known to have contributed money to the cause of Garza and to have sympathized with and aided him in various ways. It is also represented that most of the Mexican residents of Texas are secretly if not openly in accord with the movement.

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE.

The Detroit Journal prints a timely and sensible article in relation to the selection of legislative candidates in the next election, and one that ought to be thoughtfully considered by the voters of all parties in the state. The article alluded to opens with this "statement of facts," the truthfulness and pertinence of which will not be questioned:

"The last two legislatures of the state of Michigan have attracted a great deal of unfavorable comment. According to democratic testimony, that of 1889 far surpassed all its predecessors in utter worthlessness. According to republican evidence that of 1891 was even worse. The relative excellence of these two bodies will never be satisfactorily determined and it is of no importance that it should be. It is sufficient that the attention of the people this year be called to the fact that there has of late years been far too much carelessness in the nomination of members of the legislature by both parties. The republicans had so long elected a majority of their nominees that they seemed to care little for the quality of them. The democrats had so long seen a majority of their nominees defeated that they filled their tickets with the material most ready to hand. It is not surprising then that the democracy was caught last election with a job lot of misfits on hand.

Turning to the pending election, the Detroit paper sees ground for the hope that both parties will now exercise greater care in the selection of legislative candidates, the democrats because they are now impressed with the conviction that they have a chance of electing their nominees and the republicans for the reason that they are aware that they must fight to regain the state and will be thus influenced to put up the best men available for the legislative as well as state and county officers.

Then, too, the next legislature will have to choose a senator of the United States to succeed Senator Stockbridge, and the hopefulness of the democrats, and the knowledge that they have no "walk-a-way" this time on the part of the republicans, will tend to make both parties more circumspect in the choice of legislative timber, for neither will want to run any risk that can be avoided of losing a seat in the United States senate through lack of care in the selection of candidates for the legislature.

We trust the anticipations of our Detroit contemporary may be realized by the result next fall, for the state has had its full of "hawback" and "squawback" legislatures.

TRADE COMBINATIONS.

The American Manufacturer draws a moral from the disruption of the steel beam pool that we commend to the attention of those whose minds are disturbed by the apprehension that the country is in danger of being brought under the control of a few great interests through combinations among these that will first crush out all competition in trade and then secure domination in political affairs through the corrupt use of money. The MINING JOURNAL is no friend to the "combinations" formed for the purpose of increasing the profits in different lines of production by enabling the producers to be the sole arbiters of what consumers must pay, but what the Manufacturer observes in the article here reproduced from that sheet goes to show that combinations having that as their object are ordinarily very short-lived, and that they quite frequently prove a greater disappointment to those who organize and expect to profit by them than to the public, while those entered into for the purpose of preventing ruinous competition may really conduce to the general welfare:

Among the notable occurrences in the manufacturing and business world during the past few weeks has been the collapse of several business combinations and the proposed formation of numerous others. A few days since announcement was made of the fact the organization for a long time sustained by the steel beam manufacturers had been dissolved. This organization has been discussed at great length, and although it was criticized at times it was not a trust, neither was it a business consolidation, but simply an agreement by a number of firms for the purpose of sustaining the prices of steel beams. For a couple of years the organization answered its purposes and prices were kept up so that the business afforded a fair profit. As is generally the case in such matters, a few nills were left out. In pushing for business these mills reduced prices and the result is that the agreement as to prices has been dropped by mutual consent.

The same may be said of the agreement that existed among manufacturers of barb wire. The depressed condition of business in the south rendered that section unable to consume the expected amount of wire products and the result has been over-production. Under such circumstances an agreement to arbitrarily sustain prices could avail but little. To effect sales, rates were cut and it is said that in some cases they were cut below the line which afforded any profit. The president of the barb wire organization is quoted as admitting that the agreement has been closed and the firms are now working on individual basis.

While these organizations in the iron and steel trade are dissolving it seems that in other lines new combinations are being attempted. Quite recently one line of glass

THOUSANDS OF VOLTS.

STARTLING EFFECTS OF SOME HIGH TENSION CURRENTS.

Electricity at a Pressure That is Simply Wonderful—What May Be Done with a Current of 45,000 Volts Can Hardly Be Imagined—Remarkable Sights.

Several tests have been made with alternating currents of electricity at very high pressures. As only 1,600 volts were needed to kill the condemned murderer in Sing Sing prison, the effect of 45,000 and 48,000 volts on animate and inanimate objects can hardly be imagined. The difficulty of insulating the enormous force is very serious, as an arc will flash across four or five inches of space between the electrodes, and high tension currents have not been used much. The current for the lights and power at the electro-technical exhibition at Frankfurt-on-the-Main was transmitted from Lauffen, where it was generated by water power, at a pressure of 16,000 volts. After the close of the exhibition experiments were made with the wire and insulators at high pressures, and they were among the most interesting of the electrical experiments.

The distance between the cities is about 108 miles, and the wire, one-eighth of an inch in diameter, weighed 132,000 pounds. The insulators were able to preserve the intensity of the current. Each was composed of three sections. The porcelain top was flat, with a deep groove for the wire. Underneath was a saucer shaped receptacle, and beneath that were two more, one of larger breadth and depth than the other, and all were filled with oil. The binding wires ran through the oil, which is a good nonconductor. At Frankfurt a commutator changed the alternating current to a continuous current for light and power. In the experiments the pressure was increased to 20,000, 40,000 and 48,000 volts.

Beyond 27,000 volts the porcelain insulators were punctured frequently. In producing an arc between two carbons at 40,000 volts a plate of glass was pierced very quickly. At 48,000 volts the intensity was so great that the light was not so brilliant as it was at 20,000 volts. It is believed that 50,000 volts can be reached with conductors protected from the effects of weather.

CURRENTS OF 40,000 VOLTS. Almost at the same time the Siemens Bros., of London, were experimenting with high tension currents, having had at the Naval exhibition an apparatus capable of delivering a current at a pressure of 45,000 volts. This description of a private exhibition of the apparatus with 40,000 volts is from Engineering:

"On a table was an electrode some three inches in length, connected to one terminal of a transformer. Over it was mounted a large sheet of glass three millimeters thick, and above the glass was a second electrode terminating in a sharp point, the distance between the electrodes being three centimeters. When the current was turned on to the primary coil of the transformer there first appeared a purple haze at the upper electrode streaming toward the glass. As the current increased this haze grew in fullness and definition, and began to throw out feelers, which darted outward and as quickly withdrew. As the electro-motive force augmented still further, these feelers gathered power until they beat themselves through it in their mad desire to reach the other electrode. The whole space below the pointed conductor became alive with them, and exhibited a mass of leaping, crackling threads of purple fire, which writhed and twisted in impotent attempts to burst through the barrier, and failing that, spread themselves along its surface, endeavoring to rush over its edges, and so reach their goal by a circuitous route.

"But this was beyond their strength until the electro-motive force approached 45,000 volts, when suddenly the entire appearance was changed. The current overleaped the edges of the plate and flowed completely around it in all directions. At that moment the intense purple color of the spark disappeared, and was replaced by white light of the greatest brilliancy, which glistered and flashed until the spectators had to turn away their dazzled gaze.

REMARKABLE EXPERIMENTS. "A change in the arrangement was then made. The upper pointed electrode was replaced by a brass disk, three inches in diameter. This was laid over the surface of the glass plate with three very thin washers of vulcanite, intervening between the two. The current was then turned on in the same gradual manner as before. The space between the two disks immediately filled with purple light, which had sufficient motion in it to recall the flame of a Bunsen burner, spread out under the bottom of a beaker. Sparks then began to appear at the edges, and, as they gathered strength, to radiate a little beyond them. Gradually they became streamers, stretching out along the surface of the plate in curved, fanciful forms which twined and twisted and weaved themselves into a glistening flaglike, compared by an imaginative spectator to an agitated Japanese chrysanthemum.

"This experiment had not the brilliant refinement of the one that preceded it, but was characterized by a quivering irradiation which wreathed and tossed like a bird beating itself at the bars of its cage. In spite of its less formidable appearance, however, it proved destructive to the glass, which presently flew in pieces with a crash. Several sheets were tried in succession, but each was pierced and broken and allowed the current to attain its object of flowing directly from one electrode to the other.

In experimenting with an arc at 44,000 volts the arc established itself when the electrodes were five inches apart, but the flames, instead of bridging the space, spread out in two thin tongues at right angles to the electrodes and parallel to each other. When the electrodes were pushed nearer together the flames wandered back along the stems, repelling each other.—New York Times.

Underneath was a saucer shaped receptacle, and beneath that were two more, one of larger breadth and depth than the other, and all were filled with oil. The binding wires ran through the oil, which is a good nonconductor. At Frankfurt a commutator changed the alternating current to a continuous current for light and power. In the experiments the pressure was increased to 20,000, 40,000 and 48,000 volts.

Beyond 27,000 volts the porcelain insulators were punctured frequently. In producing an arc between two carbons at 40,000 volts a plate of glass was pierced very quickly. At 48,000 volts the intensity was so great that the light was not so brilliant as it was at 20,000 volts. It is believed that 50,000 volts can be reached with conductors protected from the effects of weather.

CURRENTS OF 40,000 VOLTS. Almost at the same time the Siemens Bros., of London, were experimenting with high tension currents, having had at the Naval exhibition an apparatus capable of delivering a current at a pressure of 45,000 volts. This description of a private exhibition of the apparatus with 40,000 volts is from Engineering:

"On a table was an electrode some three inches in length, connected to one terminal of a transformer. Over it was mounted a large sheet of glass three millimeters thick, and above the glass was a second electrode terminating in a sharp point, the distance between the electrodes being three centimeters. When the current was turned on to the primary coil of the transformer there first appeared a purple haze at the upper electrode streaming toward the glass. As the current increased this haze grew in fullness and definition, and began to throw out feelers, which darted outward and as quickly withdrew. As the electro-motive force augmented still further, these feelers gathered power until they beat themselves through it in their mad desire to reach the other electrode. The whole space below the pointed conductor became alive with them, and exhibited a mass of leaping, crackling threads of purple fire, which writhed and twisted in impotent attempts to burst through the barrier, and failing that, spread themselves along its surface, endeavoring to rush over its edges, and so reach their goal by a circuitous route.

"But this was beyond their strength until the electro-motive force approached 45,000 volts, when suddenly the entire appearance was changed. The current overleaped the edges of the plate and flowed completely around it in all directions. At that moment the intense purple color of the spark disappeared, and was replaced by white light of the greatest brilliancy, which glistered and flashed until the spectators had to turn away their dazzled gaze.

REMARKABLE EXPERIMENTS. "A change in the arrangement was then made. The upper pointed electrode was replaced by a brass disk, three inches in diameter. This was laid over the surface of the glass plate with three very thin washers of vulcanite, intervening between the two. The current was then turned on in the same gradual manner as before. The space between the two disks immediately filled with purple light, which had sufficient motion in it to recall the flame of a Bunsen burner, spread out under the bottom of a beaker. Sparks then began to appear at the edges, and, as they gathered strength, to radiate a little beyond them. Gradually they became streamers, stretching out along the surface of the plate in curved, fanciful forms which twined and twisted and weaved themselves into a glistening flaglike, compared by an imaginative spectator to an agitated Japanese chrysanthemum.

"This experiment had not the brilliant refinement of the one that preceded it, but was characterized by a quivering irradiation which wreathed and tossed like a bird beating itself at the bars of its cage. In spite of its less formidable appearance, however, it proved destructive to the glass, which presently flew in pieces with a crash. Several sheets were tried in succession, but each was pierced and broken and allowed the current to attain its object of flowing directly from one electrode to the other.

In experimenting with an arc at 44,000 volts the arc established itself when the electrodes were five inches apart, but the flames, instead of bridging the space, spread out in two thin tongues at right angles to the electrodes and parallel to each other. When the electrodes were pushed nearer together the flames wandered back along the stems, repelling each other.—New York Times.

Other Explorations That Are Looking Well—Funerals Yesterday—The Firemen's Dance Tomorrow Night.

PROSPECT OF ANOTHER MINE. For some months past Captain John Jeffrey and Captain Peter Ranquist have been working on the east half of the northwest quarter of section 8.

The work done was principally in an old shaft where one had previously been found. This was cleaned out, the lead followed and a fine deposit of good clean ore has been struck there. This property is adjoining the Queen and Blue mines. It was always considered valuable, and mining men now regard it as one of the most promising properties on the east range. Different parties negotiated for a purchase or lease of the same from Mr. Tracy but the deals fell through, but when such mining experts as Captains John Jeffrey and Peter Ranquist got hold of it the people surmised that they knew what they were about, and the result shows that they were not at fault in so believing. A stock company will be formed in a few days for the development of the property under the management of Messrs. Jeffrey and Ranquist. This will make at least another shipper on the east range next summer.

Prospecting Notes.

There has been no work done at the Hawkeye for the past week owing to a breakage of the pumps. Work will be resumed just as soon as the pumps are again in order, which will probably be in a day or two.

The Royal Mining and Exploring company, which is doing work on section 12, is still pegging away at the ledge. They have been working in the ledge for some time past but have not succeeded in getting through it yet. The indications are good, and the property will be thoroughly tested.

Work at the Kirk is progressing quite favorably. At present they are using the diamond drill a short distance northwest of the old pit. The indications are encouraging. The money going into this exploration is all furnished from this city and the good wishes of our citizens are with the prospectors.

CHILD OF THE CITY STREETS.

Well may you sigh for flowers. Child of the city streets! For a leaf from greenwood bowers Where the cooling breeze retreats.

Only a vernal glint Coils the fever of your desire. Only a miser's hint Of the beauty that lifts us higher.

Where you would have butterflies gay. And birds to sing and trill. Falls the shadow of waltz all day Toadden the soul's aspiring.

Not for your feet the clover. Child of the city streets! Stone presses under and over. Your heart in a prison bows.

Where you would have flowers blooming And waters with rainbow spray. A moment of stone is looming To shut the heavens away.

Not for your hot caress Blooms the lily, white and cool. It floats in idleness. A dream on the woodland pool.

Only in sleep for you The fruited bough dips low; You wander dreamland through To find where the violets grow.

Stone walls press back the green God gave for tired eyes. A narrow court would swan Your gaze from the very skies.

Hard is your path of duty. Barren of childhood sweets: Well may we sigh for beauty. Wait of the city streets!

—Mrs. N. B. Morange in Arkansas Traveler.

MR. VAN TWILLER'S ALIBI

The snow had been falling for several minutes in little eddying gusts, and already an appreciable number of flakes were collecting on the cape of Miss Dorothy Dempsey's storm coat as she turned into Forty-fourth street at a swiftness of pace.

On her head, framed by a soft halo of brown hair in which the drops of moisture glistened here and there, a dark English walking hat had slipped coquettishly to one side. Her cheeks were brilliant from the cutting wind, and her eyes shone with exhilaration as she battled against the storm.

To insignificant Bertie Carey, advancing from the opposite direction, she appeared like a delightful vision; a delight considerably influenced, of course, by the fact that she belonged to the right "set" of visions, or Bertie, being so little a man, would not have looked a second time. Indeed, it is doubtful whether anything short of Miss Dorothy's genealogy on the maternal side would have induced him to give up his daily game of dominoes at the club and wheel about to join her promenade with such urbane oblivion to the coolness of his reception.

And it is not likely that at any other time Miss Dempsey would have resented his intrusion quite so hotly; but, unfortunately for him, her memory still retained with vigor a graphic description detailed to her only the previous evening by her cousin Jack, during which, excited to unusual emphasis by Carey's last faux pas, he had gone so far as to declare him "a consummate ass, not fit for decent society." Dorothy, having agreed with him in spirit if not to the letter, felt that she was justified in taking strong measures on this occasion.

To walk down the avenue in his company, at an hour when all her dear "Four Hundred" friends would be abroad and glancing curiously from their brougham windows or over their shoulders, was a reflection upon her taste and discrimination which she was not ready to endure. Accordingly, before the preliminary greetings were fairly over, she was racking her brain for some way of dismissing him. In vain she meditated a dozen clever feminine maneuvers that, under any other circumstances or in any other locality, would have been practicable. It was Carey himself who finally provided her with the means of escape.

"Awfully jolly, this unexpected pleasure of a stroll with you," he murmured, ignoring the gait that was rapidly reducing him to breathlessness.

"Yes, indeed," returned Dorothy, with false sincerity; "only it can't be a very long one, as I intend making a call in this block." This with unblinking frontery, although well aware that she could walk on to the North river without finding a name on her list.

"A mutual friend?" inquired Carey. "I think not."

"This must be the house, then, since it is the last one." Miss Dempsey gave a hasty, surreptitious glance at the window curtains and evidently found some reassurance in their design.

"Thanks, yes. I suppose you will be at the Greys' God afternoon?" "Oh, the Greys!" cried Carey, fired to fresh recollections; "haven't you heard? Then, if I may, I will wait and see if your friend is in; if not, we can continue our chat."

Now, Miss Dorothy being an independent and somewhat peremptory young lady, and having gone to all the trouble and risk of this subterfuge, was anything but pleased at a turn which left her unwittingly outwitted. But having gone so far it was necessary to play the farce out, and, ascending the steps with a good deal of suppressed indignation, she pressed the bell. The door was promptly opened by a neat capped maid.

"Is Dr. Robinson in?" she inquired glibly, improvising the first name that came to her.

"I believe so, ma'am: will you walk in?" For an instant Dorothy wavered in total dismay. This was a contingency for which she found herself completely unprepared. Then, as her glances roved from the waiting Carey below to the girl, who had stepped hospitably back, her resolution was taken; to go in and explain, on meeting the doctor, that he was the wrong man, seemed the simplest and most natural way out of the difficulty, and it would rid her of Carey, which was the main thing.

The room into which she was ushered gave her, as a first impression, a sensation of cheer and comfort and good taste. It was fitted up as half office, half library, and a fire on the hearth shed its unstable light on two large chairs, drawn up in a suggestively confidential manner within the seductive radiance. Dorothy had made a mental comment of all this before becoming aware that one of these inviting chairs had an occupant, who had slowly risen and was now facing her with an open curiosity which he did not take the trouble to conceal. He was a tall, broad shouldered, athletic young man, with a fine broad head, and did not in the least resemble the family physician of Dorothy's infantile ailments.

"I have been expecting you," he remarked calmly; "won't you be seated?" "But I called to see Dr. Robinson," explained Dorothy, fully expecting him to claim the distinction.

"I am very sorry," replied the young man, imperturbably; "I am Dr. Robinson's nephew, Neil Sawtelle; he was very uncertain about your keeping this appointment. In fact, he went out, hoping to meet you elsewhere, but left me to receive you if you came, and gave me entire authority to act in his stead."

In the course of her life it is probable that Miss Dorothy had never experienced such a variety of emotions. That it was a case of mistaken identity, appeared plain; but how to account for her presence here, without betraying her name and her reason for ringing the bell, appeared a problem difficult of solution.

"I am sure there is some mistake," she stammered at length; "I am not the person Dr. Robinson expects. I simply wanted to consult him about a slight cold, and will call again."

"As my uncle is no longer a practicing physician, I am sure that cannot have been your object." He drew himself up to his full height, which Dorothy found rather overwhelming, and adopted a sterner tone.

"Do be seated," he repeated; "this is a very serious matter and must be treated seriously. Your acquaintance with my unfortunate cousin is as well known to me in its details as to my uncle. Why try to deceive me?" as Dorothy made an attempt for a hearing.

"But I am not the person you think I am," she declared with spirit. "I am Miss Dempsey."

"Indeed! And to what reason does my uncle, an old bachelor, owe the pleasure of this visit today? You must excuse my ignoring the cold."

He made a quick, convincing gesture as she started, hesitated—and was lost. "You see it is useless," he went on; "I must insist on your remaining until you have answered a few questions, but I beg that you won't force me to be more impolite than you can help."

"When will Dr. Robinson return?" "In an hour or two at the most. If you prefer waiting for that, that will be better," and he drew forward one of the easiest chairs.

"But I can't stay here two hours," cried Dorothy, now thoroughly alarmed and continuing to stand uncomprehendingly.

"Nor is there the slightest necessity for it. Perhaps, if I state the case, it will enable you to see that you can use the same freedom with me as with the doctor, and, also, how little we require of you, provided you are honest, and how unpleasant the consequences may be if you evade. There have been great complications in two of the banks with which my cousin is connected, and actual theft has been committed. It has been proved past doubt that what hour the latter occurred, and suspicion has fallen in the highest places. My cousin will be implicated in the arrests unless it can be proved to the satisfaction of those interested that he was elsewhere at the time. By tomorrow, or at the farthest the next day, all New York may know of it. For some strange reason he refuses to account for himself. Now, all we require is that you shall state under oath when and where you have seen him since Monday last."

"I don't know what you are talking about, and I don't wish to remain here any longer," protested Dorothy, vehemently.

"Nonsense," replied Sawtelle, almost roughly, interposing himself between her and the door; "my uncle gave me a description of you before he left. The idea of your denying that you know Albert Van Twiller is absurd."

At the mention of the name Dorothy gave a little gasp of horror and amazement.

"Why, of course, I know him," she said, unguardedly, and then, seeing too late that she was only strengthening his mistake, she sank into the nearest chair with a pitiful wail of distress, which did not help matters.

"Oh, this is perfectly dreadful!" she sobbed, forgetting her dignity and mopping her eyes with furtive dabs. As for the blond giant on the rug, he looked scarcely less uncomfortable and ill at ease.

"I don't see but that you will have to wait till the doctor comes. If I should let you go it would only mean publicity and an appearance at court and all sorts of complications, which you ought to be as anxious to avoid as we are, Miss McKinney."

"I am not Miss McKinney." "Well, my uncle will know who you are, anyway."

"No he won't," thought Miss Dempsey, and relapsed into a damp and protracted silence.

"I wonder if you would believe me," she said at last impulsively, turning on him a pair of moist, indignant eyes. "If I told you exactly how I did happen to come here."

"I am dreadfully sorry. I presume I have made a mess of it," he replied irrelevantly; "perhaps you had better not try any more explanations till the doctor comes. You see, if I had known that you were in the least—reddening perceptibly—"the least like what you are, I never should have attempted a conversation."

As Dorothy found nothing to reply to this, another half hour passed, reducing her to a state of nervousness that went far toward confirming Sawtelle in his suspicions. At last, to the infinite relief of both, a key sounded in the latch, and bowing politely at her averted head Sawtelle hastened into the hall.

Already the doctor, a hale, hearty man of fifty, was divesting himself of his snowy overcoat, and on catching sight of his nephew he began to speak in a cheery, excited voice.

"Such a day, my boy! The jade escaped me in spite of everything and sailed on a Cunarder this noon. But that isn't the worst of it. No wonder Albert refused to say anything about her. He knew the whole thing would come out, and her testimony wouldn't be worth shucks, for you see he has married her—married her, my dear boy, do you understand?"

As Sawtelle made no response, he glanced up hastily. "Anything wrong?" "Oh, nothing," replied Sawtelle, in a dramatic whisper of despair, "except that I have kept the prettiest girl I ever saw in a state of torture for two hours. She wouldn't explain who she was at first, and seemed so agitated that I never had a doubt about its being the McKinney woman. You said she was dark."

"Black, staring eyes and big as an Amazon." "You didn't say that. This one is small and thoroughbred to the finger tips."

"Well, well, we must see about it." And, accompanied by his anxious nephew, the doctor bustled into the room with an apologetic good will that somewhat disarmed the hauteur Dorothy was trying to assume.

"There has been a great mistake, my dear young lady, and one about which my nephew is deeply annoyed, but you mustn't blame him, because he was only following out my instructions although mistaken in the person. And now if you will tell me to what I owe the honor of this visit I shall be very glad if I can retrieve in any way the discomfort you have undergone."

"Thus brought to bay nothing was left for Dorothy but to make full confession. 'I am Miss Dempsey, of — Fifth avenue,' she began, but was unceremoniously interrupted by the doctor.

"Not Miss Dempsey's daughter? I knew he left a widow and child. Bless me, what a coincidence! We were chums—old chums at Yale, years ago—but go on, my child."

And then followed the whole ridiculous, mortifying tale, to which the doctor listened with open interest.

"I am glad you happened to come here," he said, not quite approvingly, when she had finished.

"And I hope you are going to exonerate me partially," entreated Sawtelle, who had been preparing his line of defense during the recital; "you can't fancy how humiliated I am or how tempted I was to believe you. If you hadn't acknowledged your acquaintance with poor Van Twiller I should have weakened at the end."

"I do know Mr. Van Twiller, but the acquaintance is only a superficial one. I saw him last at Mrs. Lyle's ball, Wednesday evening, and sat with him some time in the conservatory. I was upset because what you told me seemed so terrible."

"But Mrs. Lyle herself mentioned to me that he was not in the house ten minutes," interposed the doctor; "I think she was misled. She fancied him for one of her girls, and now he has thrown himself away—poor Albert!"

"Oh, I know how that happened. He told me all about it. He was going home with a Mr. Green, and after he had made his adieux Mr. Green decided to remain, so he sat out a dance with me, and finally went off without waiting for him."

"And do you know what time that was?" inquired the doctor, eagerly. "About a quarter or half after 1, when my partner for the cotillon came up. We began to dance it about that time."

"Could you swear to it on paper?" "Why, yes; certainly."

"Then," shouted the doctor, triumphantly, "he is vindicated, whether he explains or not. This will satisfy the directors so they will drop proceedings where he is concerned. They know already that he is not guilty. It is as plain as daylight to me now. He didn't remember the exact time he left the Lyles', and thinking he was with this woman he has married, didn't want to attract our attention to her."

"And now, if you please, I should like to go home," remarked Miss Dempsey in a pathetic tone.

"Of course, my poor child, immediately. Neil, call a carriage. I will go with you myself and see your mother; also get your signature, if you will be so kind. It will straighten the affair out wonderfully. Verily, truth is stranger than fiction!"

As Dorothy swept from the room, Sawtelle made a brave, if ineffectual, attempt to attract her attention, but, as she steadily refused to be aware of his presence, his conscience permitted him to retain a small, soaked wad, which was easily concealed in the palm of his hand. Subsequent events have led us to believe—so tender were his ministrations and pressures between the volumes of a new set of Ruskin—that in course of time it became less like a rag and more like a respectable handkerchief.

It is now over a year since these events occurred, and we hear that the article in question, together with a number of other worldly goods, is to be delivered to its rightful owner. How it all came about, those who have not begun their love affairs with a little animosity will never be able to conjecture, but we have it direct from the lips of the round and ever rubicund Carey himself:

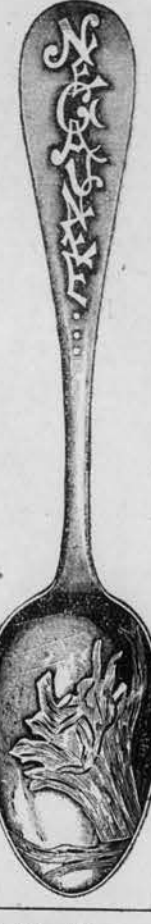

"The latest engagement, my dear fellow, is Miss Dempsey's to a person named Sawtelle. Why, they say he has never been to a Patriarchs in his life!—Mary Golding Lanman in Epoch."

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

WOOSOCKET, R. I., Feb. 17.—Erastus Wiman of New York addressed the Business Men's association here this evening. BALFOUR STILL HOPEFUL.

Not Yet Convinced of Failure of Land Purchase Bill.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Mr. Nolan, member for North Galway, today moved the second reading of the bill to enlarge Irish laborers' allotments and to empower local authorities to purchase land for the erection of laborers' houses. In making the motion Mr. Nolan said the bill would enable the laborers to improve their position as they had done in the colonies and in the United States.

Mr. Balfour opposed Mr. Nolan's motion. He said the bill would take the money provided by his own (Mr.

Balfour's Irish land purchase act for the creation of small holdings in order to purchase cottages a very little cheaper than they could otherwise be obtained. Mr. Balfour denied that his land act was a failure and declared that it was yet too soon to judge of its operation.

Mr. Sexton said he did not see why a small portion of the land act funds should not be devoted to the present scheme.

Mr. Redmond demanded the application of the clause but the speaker refused to close the debate.

"LOST WITH ALL HANDS."

Such Seems to Be the Tale of the English Bark Cavour of Greenock

WENT DOWN IN THE HEAVY GALE OF TUESDAY NIGHT.

Fragments of Her Wreckage Come Ashore on the Connemara Coast. Traces of Other Wrecks.

SHIPS GONE TO THE BOTTOM.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—It is believed that a number of vessels were lost in the storms that prevailed yesterday and the night before. Wreckage has come ashore at Round Stone, Connemara, county Galway, Ireland. On some of these pieces of wreckage is the inscription "Cavour, Greenock," and this is taken to indicate the loss of the British bark Cavour, commanded by Captain McMurtry, which sailed from Pensacola, Fla., U. S. A., December 5, bound for Greenock, her home port. There has also drifted ashore at Round Stone a box of books with the initials "S. F. N. Y." A large timber laden vessel upside down is floating shorewards. Some fishermen report that they passed at sea the body of a woman on which was a life belt. They were afraid to bring the body ashore.

If any hope was entertained that the Cavour had not been lost and the wreckage that came ashore at Round Stone showed only she had been damaged in the storm and would probably reach port in safety that hope must be abandoned now. A life boat from the ill-fated bark has been washed ashore on the Irish coast and to make assurance of her loss doubly sure there has also come ashore a model of a ship on which is the name of the captain of the Cavour. It is believed that the only way this model could have got adrift from the cabin of the Cavour was through the capsizing or foundering of the bark.

It was claimed. It was decided to ask for a stated increase for all the operators and an extra day's pay for Sunday work, whether night or day men.

ENRICHED BY A PANTHER.

In a large mining town in the far west there lives George Randolph, a mining king, who by nature is as stern and arbitrary as men are apt to be when they acquire sudden riches. In addition to his gold he possessed a rare treasure in the person of his daughter Bessie, as sweet a seventeen-year-old maiden as ever lived.

Pretty Bessie did not lack for lovers, and as she naturally favored one was the very one that her father objected to. Clyde Brown was frank spoken, with an honest, manly face, a true, loving heart, and little else.

"Why, Elizabeth"—her father always called her that when displeased—"how can you forget that when descended from the Randolphs of Virginia? Just a little longer, daughter—a year or two at the most—and we will go east and live as other people do. Then my jewel may find a worthy setting."

"I want no one but Clyde, papa," protested Bessie tearfully.

But tears made no impression upon the hard heart of George Randolph. However, he condescended to give a conditional consent to their union—such an absurd condition that people laughed and shook their heads and Bessie's merry face grew grave.

"When you can show the possession of $100,000 you can have her," he said grimly, in answer to Clyde Brown's manly petition. "Until then I'll hear no more about it."

"You can never do it," sobbed Bessie when they stood alone in the moonlight by the road a few moments later, while her father watched angrily from the window. "Fortunes are wonderfully made in these mines sometimes, but none will fall to us."

"Don't be discouraged, my precious Queen Bess," Clyde returned, with all a lover's unreasoning fondness. "Only trust in me through all and wait for me, no matter what may happen. Will you promise me that?"

"Indeed I will, dearest! You know that I would before you asked," she murmured. "But do not try me too much, for father is as hard as a rock."

"I must go away for awhile, my darling. Somewhere in yonder endless chain of mountains a fortune is waiting for me. I feel it—I know it as well as if it were already in my grasp," he answered, in solemn earnestness. "God grant that it may be so," she added.

And then she walked slowly to the house, to her father's great relief. The next morning Clyde left the town, fully equipped for a prospecting tour, and quite alone excepting the three large dogs which followed sedately at his heels.

For some time the prize which he sought eluded him, but it came to him at last in a strange manner. One day, after following the course of a noisy, shallow stream into a narrow valley hemmed in by lofty mountains, he camped at the foot of a gigantic tree near the water.

The dogs whined uneasily and sniffed at a hole among the roots of the tree, but he called them away and went on building a fire to cook supper from the loose wood and branches around.

"Now that the fire is ready," he mused aloud, "I wonder if I'll find any game hereabout."

As if in answer, a half grown deer came down to the stream on the opposite bank not many rods away.

It stopped, with one foot upraised, and looked at the dogs with startled eyes; but the next instant the report of Clyde's rifle rang out, the deer leaped into the air, sprang forward and fell into the stream, from which it was soon dragged by the dogs.

But the echoes made by the report had not died out among the hills before another sound aroused them again.

It was the scream of an angry panther from the mountain behind him, and it was instantly answered by another on the right, and yet another far down the valley on the left.

Clyde heaped the dry limbs upon the fire, and the dogs, usually as brave as lions, whined piteously as they skulked close to his feet.

He waited in breathless anxiety for several minutes, but could hear nothing except the crackling of the fire, which now threw a wide circle of light, and the night wind among the trees.

Soon, following a magnetism which he could not account for, he fixed his gaze upon a tall tree near the base of the mountain and encountered the glare of two fierce, yellow eyes.

A panther was crouching there upon a long limb, every nerve of his body in motion as he prepared for the fatal spring.

To aim and fire at him was the impulse of a second, and the tawny brute sprang outward with a snarl of rage and pain, and fell squarely into the fire.

There was an unearthly shriek, a smell of burning hair, a shower of coals and lighted wood, then the brute stood wounded and blinded near the tree.

"At him, boys! at him!" cried Clyde. And the dogs closed on him, but, wounded as he was, he was more than a match for them.

He was not an instant too soon, however, for there came another terrific scream, this time from the tree directly over his head.

"I'm ready for you now!" he cried, coolly sighting another panther directly between the scintillating eyes.

He fired and sprang aside, while the animal fell, struck the ground with a heavy thud, clawed the earth and air convulsively for a few seconds and then lay quite still.

"This is getting interesting," muttered Clyde grimly eying the two huge, tawny bodies, the dead dog and the skulking living ones, while he threw fresh wood upon the scattered fire and peered in every direction.

"Meow! Meow! Set-t-t!" He turned sharply to see the heads of two panther cubs thrust out of the hole near the tree, their ears laid close to their round heads and their eyes sweeping the scene in fierce inquiry.

"Ha, ha! A regular family party I've stumbled on," laughed Clyde. "See! Seek 'em boys!"

And the dogs pulled one kitten out to his death, while the other scrambled back in the hole.

Suddenly there was a slight noise in the edge of the forest, and two half grown panthers came cautiously into the circle of the light, sniffing the air uneasily and evidently afraid of a trap.

The smell of the scorched hair and the blinding glare of the fire puzzled them. But Clyde did not wait for them to become satisfied of the safety of an attack. He fired two shots in quick succession, killing one animal and badly wounding the other, which the dogs attacked at once.

When the sharp, short fight was over, one dog limped back to receive the praise of his master, while the other lay dead beside its dead foe.

"You and I are alone now, Brave, my boy," said his master, patting the dog's head. "Well, when daylight comes we'll see after that little varmint in the hole."

The night passed without further molestation, but Clyde kept the fire burning brightly while he busied himself in skinning three of the panthers—the one which had sprung into the fire being worthless.

Two were monstrous brutes, male and female, evidently the parents of the smaller pair as well as the kittens.

After a generous breakfast of roasted venison he enlarged the hole with his pick and shovel, and, after examining his revolvers, crept in cautiously with a lighted torch, while the dog remained outside protesting against such foolhardy conduct by dismal yelps and whines.

The cavity under the spreading roots was deserted, but a larger opening led into the rocky mountain side, and through this the astonished young man crept, to find himself in a natural cavern.

He soon discovered and killed the kitten, but could find no signs of any more.

The floor of the cave was covered with bones, and a neatly made nest of sticks and leaves was in one corner.

But Clyde did not notice these; he was examining the rocky sides, which were of a peculiar veined grayish stone.

There was a smile of satisfaction on his face when he had finished this examination, and when he crept forth into daylight again he muttered, tweaking Brave's ears until the dog yelped in pain and wonder:

"Queen Bess is mine, Brave! There's gold enough there to satisfy even George Randolph, I should say, and I claim it as the panther's bequest."

George Randolph could say no more, although he insisted on visiting the panther's den to see for himself.

"Some folks are lucky," he admitted, reluctantly. "If that mine is worth $100,000 you can have her, for a Randolph never goes back on his word."

That was only a year ago, and the mine has already netted its owner over $500,000.

But he regards as a dearer prize the loving wife who rules his heart and home—his Queen Bess.—Saturday Night.

IN A FEMALE SCULPTOR'S STUDIO.

Miss Louise Lawson Has Won Fame by Welding the Chisel Like a Man. "So you don't think it's necessary to wear trousers and look like a man just because you model in clay?"

"Well," said Miss Louise Lawson, a bit reproachfully, "I do wear trousers and look like a man sometimes when I have to climb around a great, high statue with a ladder. I can't get along with skirts at all then, so I wear a page's dress—a long blouse and trousers buttoned just below the knee."

The well known sculptor is a little bit of a woman, with beautiful dark blue eyes that look at you with a direct, almost childlike confidence, and light brown hair clustering about her face in all sorts of wayward rings and tendrils. But she is not the kittenish woman by any means. There is endurance and pluck in the eyes, and energy in the rather prominent chin. You instinctively feel that she is fitted out with a good share of the indomitable spirit without which nothing great in art is ever achieved. She wears at her work a white cotton jacket and skirt, and a broad lace collar is fastened at the back of the neck with a knot of light blue ribbon. Some new commissions are keeping her busy, especially an important one which is to adorn the public square of another city.

Miss Lawson's studio is an interesting spot to visit. Against the warm lines of oriental hangings the snowy forms of the marbles come out finely, and here and there are bronzes or clay studies on smaller pedestals. Near the center of the studio is a full length life size statue of the "Ayacantara" of Kingsley's "Westward Ho!" The sculptor has taken the moment when the beautiful Spaniard first sees a white man, when "quick as light she caught up from the ground a bow and held it fiercely to ward him." It was this statue that gained for Miss Lawson a diploma and medal from the Academy of Fine Arts in Perugia, Italy.

"It was all so unexpected," explained the little sculptor. "I was just on the point of leaving for Rome when I was told that the president and some of the directors of the Belle Arts would like to visit my studio. The gentlemen looked around among my work—I had just then finished modeling the 'Ayacantara'—and I supposed that was the end of it; but after I arrived in Rome I received the diploma, medal and a most complimentary letter from the president asking for a marble bust of myself to be placed in the academy."

"And how about the bust?" "Oh, I haven't time to do that."

One of the best things in Miss Lawson's studio is the bronze bust of an athlete, called "On the Start," representing a runner, just about to begin the race. It is a spirited, strong head of the best type of American college boy, severe and almost classic in the treatment.

A charming thing in the lightness and grace of the pose is the marble statue of the "Rhodian Boy." The subject was suggested by an old Greek poem, celebrating the festival in honor of the return of the Argonauts, when it was customary for the children to ask for offerings to feed the birds.

Louise Lawson is an indefatigable student. She studied under Otto Grundenmann in Boston, was four years in Cincinnati and was afterward in Paris, a pupil of Rodin, who came twice every week to her studio to instruct and criticize. She does what so very few sculptors in these days attempt, that is to chisel work out of the solid block and Louise Lawson can take the very first stage of the work as well as any old cutter in the business. She generally leaves the blocking out, though, to her workmen, but has herself finished every piece of work now in her studio.—New York Advertiser.

Why Dr. Price's Baking Powder is Superior to all others.

No great efforts are made by other manufacturers to procure and use pure materials.

It is true that one other company has the facilities, but its greed and cupidity induced it in an evil hour to use ammonia, in order to swell its profits. Hence the Price Baking Powder Company stands alone in its fight for a pure baking powder.

No other article of human food receives greater care in its production, or has attained higher perfection. Price's Cream is surely a perfect baking powder. Free from every taint of impurity. No other article used in a kitchen has so many steadfast friends among the housewives of America.

To Keep Plants from Freezing.

They whose houses are cold may be glad to know how to protect their house plants through the winter. I can offer a suggestion which is very good where one does not have a great many plants to care for. I will offer it, believing that a few are much better than none. Procure a box large and deep enough to hold your plants; provide it with strong legs, paint it, and add a cover with hinges. Line it with several thicknesses of paper and old cloth, to keep the paper in place. Put castors on the legs for convenience in moving about the room.

This box may be used as a stand for the plants during the day. At night, put the plants inside the box with a large dish of water, shut down the cover and throw a heavy blanket over all and your plants will keep nicely in very cold weather. One having an old wardrobe or cupboard may make a place for their plants at night with very little trouble. Line it with paper and put its shelves. The plants can be easily placed in it at night.—Cor. Housekeeper.

Two Women and a Snake.

Saturday a friend and myself boarded the Philadelphia express for Latrobe. There were but few vacant seats. I found one woman inclined to be piggyish, with her satchels and wraps piled up beside her. I asked if the seat was engaged, and she said it was. I took one opposite, and had just been fairly seated when there crawled out from beneath this woman's feet a huge snake, I screamed, "A snake!" and jumped onto the seat just as we women do when we see a mouse.

In an instant my neighbor picked up the monster, very deliberately made it into a coil and placed it in her satchel. She told me not to be alarmed, that it was a pet. The pet was an African species, so she told the gentleman behind her, 5 1/2 feet long. She had opened the satchel to give it air, and it crawled out without her knowledge.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE DEDICATION TONIGHT.

Ishpeming's A. O. U. W. Lodge Will Take Formal Possession of New Hall With Due Ceremony.

READ THE BIBLE UNTIL HIS MIND BECAME UNSETTLED.

Work Done by the Council at Last Night's Meeting—Brakeman Baubone to Be Buried Here—Other Jottings.

BIG TIME TONIGHT.
Tonight the dedication ceremonies of the new and beautiful A. O. U. W. hall in the Anderson block will occur, and it is safe to say that this effort on the part of the members of the lodge will surpass all previous ones in the enjoyment it will afford and the proof it will give of the ability of the order here to do whatever it undertakes thoroughly and well. The musical and literary numbers on the program will be rendered as follows:

PART FIRST.
Overture, "Belle of the Village"..... P. Bouillon
Prof. Crim's Orchestra.
Solo, "Hush a Baby Bye"..... Harry Preston Coffin.
Piano Accompaniment by Will Miller Farnum.

Overture, Festival, "Love's Sorrows"..... Will Miller Farnum.
Quintette Orchestra, Violin, Grace Johnston; Piano, Mrs. Wm. Johnston; Clarinet, Wm. Johnston; 1st Cornet, Geo. Johnston; 2nd Cornet, Geo. Johnston.
Soprano Solo, "Come Back Dearest Heart"..... Miss Minnie Sullivan.
Piano Accompaniment, Miss Minnie Collins.

Baritone Solo, "Love's Sorrows"..... Will Miller Farnum.

Address, Rev. C. M. Brown, Negawanee Overture, "Bridal Rose"..... Quintette Orchestra, Violin, Grace Johnston; Piano, Mrs. Wm. Johnston; Clarinet, Wm. Johnston; 1st Cornet, Geo. Johnston; 2nd Cornet, Geo. Johnston.

Piano Solo, Selected..... Will Miller Farnum.
Tenor Solo, Selected..... Will Miller Farnum.
Piano Accompaniment, Miss Ada Mildon.
Waltz, "Love's Dream Land"..... Otto Roeder Prof. Crim's Orchestra.
Dedication Ceremony..... Deputy Grand Lodge Officers Address..... Prof. John Northmore, Republic

Part second of the evening's program will consist of dancing. There are fifteen numbers on the dance program. Prof. Crim's complete orchestra will furnish music for the dance, and Mr. Jas. Gaynor will do the prompting. The reception committee consists of the following gentlemen: Jas. McDowell, J. Bowden, D. Maloney, Ed. Johnson, F. A. Rosier, W. T. Cole, A. W. Lindholm and T. E. Wood, while the floor will be managed during the dancing portion of the program by Messrs. H. A. Jaccotte, J. F. Schweitzer, J. L. Zoberlein, T. McNamara, J. B. Tibor and J. S. Mennie.

The committee of arrangements has left nothing undone to make the dedication affair the best and most interesting affair of the kind ever held in Ishpeming, and the expense incurred will be quite large, as the whole affair is gratuitous to the lodge members and their friends. The lodge pays all the bills and those invited will be expected to do the rest—i. e., enjoy themselves to their utmost.

Not Very Desperate.
A man by the name of John Roekberry, who resides at the Winthrop mine, was reported to Marshal Peterson on Tuesday as being insane. It is stated that he made an attempt to shoot himself with a shot-gun. Yesterday morning Marshal Peterson, together with Deputy Marshal Nolan, went to the boarding house of Roekberry, kept by Christ Johnson, and found him reading a bible. One of the officers told him he was wanted on some business down town, and he made no objection to accompanying them here. He was taken before Justice Kennedy for examination, when it was learned that he had been a very hard drinker, and that at Christmas last he had "sworn off"; that he had been out of work for the past four months, during which interval he had done nothing but read the bible. It is supposed that his mind became affected and that his attempt to kill himself was due to mental derangement. Roekberry is of Swedish descent and is about 55 years of age. He looks as though he were undergoing some trouble. Christ Johnson, proprietor of the boarding house where he lodged, states that he had noticed Roekberry acting strangely on several occasions during the past week. Justice Kennedy sentenced the man to ten days in the county jail, and on hearing his sentence he asked if he could get work at the jail, as he was tired of doing nothing.

The Council Meeting Last Night.
A meeting of the common council was held last night, with Mayor Donahoe presiding. There was no business of special interest before the meeting, most of that to be disposed of being of a routine nature, and the session was devoid of particular interest.

After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved a communication from Benjamin Wilson, of Memphis, Tenn., enquiring as to the capacity of the city crusher and the price the city would be willing to sell it for, was read. The communication was referred to the street committee with instructions to furnish Mr. Wilson with the information asked for regarding the condition and capacity of the machine and to ascertain what he would be willing to pay for it.

Alderman McNamara, from the committee on claims and accounts, reported on the bills submitted to that committee at the last meeting recommending payment of the same, which recommendation was concurred in.

Alderman Samuelson, from the fire committee, reported that fire engine house No. 1 had been wired for incandescent lights in accordance with the directions of the council and that the bill for the work was $65. The bill was ordered paid. The same alderman reported favorably on the report of Justice Kennedy, referred to his committee at the last meeting, and the report was accepted and ordered placed on file.

Alderman Beerling, from the purchasing committee, informed the council that Richard Barney had placed a 10 1/2 foot boiler, instead of one two feet longer, in the city building, and was willing to make a reduction of $70 on the contract price because of the difference in size. The council voted to accept the boiler on these terms.

Alderman Routhier informed the council that the new team purchased for the fire department was now kept at the engine house where new stalls for it had been built and that the old team was being used on street work. He suggested that the street commissioner be given charge of the old team, which suggestion was concurred in by the council.

IMPORTANT IN SPRING.

Advise What People Should Take.
In the Spring every body begins to think of taking a Spring medicine. Not only is this a very common practice, but a very necessary and healthful one. It is a fact which physicians acknowledge, and the people recognize generally, that a Spring tonic taken during the months of March, April and May is absolutely necessary.

In the Spring there are great and important changes going on in the body. Perfect health cannot be maintained when the nerves are weak, the system clogged and the organs sluggish. There will be a weak, tired, languid and nervous condition, with sleepless and restless nights, a tired waking in the morning, no appetite for breakfast, a bad taste in the mouth, malaria, dull head, biliousness, constipation and a general dispirited feeling.

For such cases as these be sure and use Dr. Greene's Nervura the great nerve, brain and blood invigorator. It is pronounced by everybody, doctors as well as the people, to be the best Spring medicine in existence, and has taken rank as the greatest and most important medical discovery of modern times. Under the use of this wonderful remedy, the nerves become strong and steady; the sleep natural and refreshing; the appetite returns, good digestion and regular action of the bowels are established, the kidneys and liver are restored to healthy action, and the vital energies, strength and vigor of the system perfectly built up.

This greatest of all health restorers is purely vegetable and harmless. Druggists sell it, $1.

HOW TO SUCCEED.
This is the great problem of life which few satisfactorily solve. Some fail because of poor health, others want of luck, but the majority from deficient grit—want of nerve. They are nervous, irresolute, indecisive, easily get the blues and "take the spirits down to keep the spirits up," thus wasting money, time, opportunity and nerve force. There is nothing like the Restorative Nervura, discovered by the great specialist, Dr. Miles, to cure all nervous diseases, as headache, the blues, nervous prostration, sleeplessness, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, fits and hysteria. Trial bottles and fine book of testimonials free at H. H. Stafford, Son & Co's.

A REMEDY FOR THE GRIPPE COUGH.
A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the grippe is Kemps' Balsam, which is especially adapted to diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease, but get a bottle and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If neglected the grippe has a tendency to run on pneumonia. All druggists sell the Balsam.

"Pull down the blinds," boys, before beginning to disrobe preparatory to retiring for the night. The admonition is especially intended for some young men who lodge on North First street.

A great many who have received invitations to attend the dedication ceremonies at the A. O. U. W. hall tonight have asked what the price of tickets will be. For the information of those who have not been otherwise informed, the MINING JOURNAL will state that the affair will be complimentary to all those who have received invitations and all A. O. U. W. lodge members.

Otto Egar, manager Anderson & Co., jewelers, Ishpeming, has concluded a contract with J. H. Ostrander, the expert optician, who will be in Ishpeming tomorrow for a stay of a fortnight. All who have come in contact with Mr. Ostrander know him to be a thorough master of his profession. He holds a diploma from the Chicago College of Optics, is thoroughly reliable, and reasonable in his charges. As he will examine the eyes free of charge, he will doubtless have the liberal patronage which he deserves. Readers of the MINING JOURNAL will recognize Mr. Ostrander as the party who has visited Marquette at intervals for the past year and a half with headquarters at G. N. Conklin's jewelry store.

To the Public. I have great pleasure in adding my testimony to that of others as to the ability of Dr. Speer, and I do so voluntarily, believing it my Christian duty as a member of the "Young Men's Christian Association," and also of the "Epsworth League," to give due credit to a physician of such marked ability as Dr. Speer, that others may be benefited by his skill.

WELL WORTH READING. I am glad to write you that I am entirely cured of the distressing disease that has long made life a burden to me.

Several physicians whom I consulted could do nothing, and I thought that earth had no cure for me. In my despair I consulted Dr. Speer, whom a friend of mine described as one who had skill, discretion and a wonderful power of healing.

After several weeks' treatment I AM CURED, AND AM IN FULL ENJOYMENT OF MY NATURAL VIGOR. I feel like working full time; eat well, sleep peacefully as a child, and have that grateful sensation that only a man can have who is conscious of being literally snatched from the very jaws of death.

The skill displayed by Dr. Speer in the diagnosis of my case was simply—astounding, my ailment seeming to be to him as clear as day.

THE SIR KNIGHTS RECEIVE.

Lake Superior Commandery's Reception and Dance Last Evening a Brilliant Success.

MASONIC HALL WELCOMES OVER THREE HUNDRED DANCERS.

A Whole Coach Load of Society People From Negaunee Present—Other Up-the-Road Places Represented.

TWAS A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

The first reception and dance given by Lake Superior Commandery No. 30, Knights Templar, in the new Masonic headquarters in the Opera House block was the most brilliant party ever given in Marquette under Masonic auspices. The entire Masonic floor of the building was thrown open for the occasion while on the second floor card rooms and smoking rooms were opened. At 7:30 o'clock the special train arrived from up-the-road bringing a number of the members of Lake Superior commandery resident in that part of the country, twenty-five couples coming down on the train from Negaunee and one couple from Ishpeming while on the regular trains in the afternoon a number of Knights from Champion and Michigamme come down as well as a few ladies and gentlemen from Ishpeming.

The scene in Masonic Hall was a most brilliant one. Early in the evening there was a crush but the banquet hall was thrown open at an early hour, relieving the main dancing hall somewhat and the Red Cross and Scottish Rite rooms were also pressed into service for dancing so that in spite of the fact that over three hundred and fifty were present all got along comfortably. The electric lights flooded the rooms with their mellow radiance and the rich costumes of the ladies made the scene a most attractive one. Negaunee's fairest daughters were present and rivalled in beauty and elegance the foremost belles of the Queen City, the latter being present in full force.

Hughes' Opera House orchestra furnished the music and fairly excelled itself while Mack won now honors as prompter. The grand march, limited to Sir Knights only, showed that thirty-five swords from Lake Superior were present in uniform. It was led by Past Eminent Commander Frank Moore and Eminent Commander Lefroy W. Midam.

The banquet was served by Sir Knight J. H. Lewis and won for him the golden opinion of every one present. Eighty-six plates were set at a time and four times were the doors of the beautiful Masonic banquet hall thrown open to receive the hungry host. The menu was elaborate, the viands splendidly prepared and the service, even with such a rush, was beyond reproach, while the tables were beautifully dressed.

Every care had been taken by the officers and members of the commandery to render the occasion perfect and make the reception a notable one in the social annals of the city. A telephone had been put in for the convenience of the guests in summoning their carriages and the smoking rooms and card rooms below stairs were also beautifully appreciated, the six card tables being constantly filled from the ranks of the older Masons.

The up-the-road guests left for their train at a few minutes of 2 o'clock, delighted with their evening, but the Marquette contingent kept bravely at it until the program had been finished—then turned over and started in again.

The reception was a grand success—so pronounced in fact that it would not be surprising if the eminent commander and his able co-laborers found it difficult to recognize their acquaintances on the street for a few days at least until they have had time to recover from the compliments showered upon them last evening.

Rules Governing Examinations.

The MINING JOURNAL has received from Commissioner Montgomery, of the Marquette county schools, a copy of rules for county teachers' examinations issued by the state superintendent, and in accordance with which hereafter examinations in this county will be conducted. In his circular sending out the rules, Superintendent Fitch, of the department of public instruction, says: "In regard to special certificates there is a great variety of opinion and practice among the commissioners. It is not the intent of the law that special certificates should be used to tide incompetent teachers through the year, but rather to avoid working hardship to those who, for some good reason, could not attend the examination. Accordingly, I would suggest that no special certificate be given to an applicant unless he can give some good reason for having been absent from the last examination, and in no case should such special certificate be granted to an applicant who, according to the best judgment of the commissioner, is unable to secure a third grade certificate."

The following are the rules:

1. The package containing the questions will be opened by the commissioner and he will direct the distribution.
2. The questions upon a given subject will be distributed at the same time to all applicants, and no recess will be allowed until the subject is finished.
3. Applicants when absent at its opening will not be admitted the examination, except by the unanimous consent of the board of examiners.
4. No candidate must leave the room or communicate with any other candidate or any visitor during the examination except by permission of the commissioner.
5. All papers must be written on legal cap paper unless the commissioner prescribes some other uniform size.
6. The commissioner shall be the custodian of the completed examination papers, and they shall be kept on file in his office for a reasonable length of time after the examination.
7. In arithmetic a knowledge of principle and general accuracy in method will be considered not less than three times as important as obtaining a correct answer.
8. In grammar allowance will be made for different authorities.
9. The candidate's handwriting will be judged from the answers to the questions on penmanship.
10. Applicants for third grade certifi-

ates will be examined in writing, orthography, reading, grammar, arithmetic, geography, United States history, civil government, theory and art of teaching, and physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the effect of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system. Applicants for first grade certificates will be required to pass an examination in natural philosophy, botany, general history, geometry and algebra in addition to the above branches. Applicants for second grade certificates will be examined in algebra and natural philosophy in addition to the third grade branches.

The February Term.

The list of jurors as drawn for the February term of circuit court which opens one Tuesday next, the 23rd inst., is as follows:

George W. Freeman, Fred W. Gillett, Henry Hoch, Timothy Nester, Wm. H. Clark, Thomas F. Follis, Myron E. David, James Babcock, and James Hurd, Marquette city; Peter E. Gingrass, A. W. Gibbs, Wm. Smith, Samuel Blumenthal, John Farm, William Rogers, Charles Johnson and Wm. T. Cole, Ishpeming city; Ira A. Clark, John Allen, Thomas Bates, John Mulholland, John Stickney, John Dunston and W. E. R. Perry, Negaunee city; Daniel McCombie, Marquette township; Lochain Johnston, Choccolay township; Thomas Pascoe, Republic township; Jaest Gottliebson, Michigamme township; Charles Brunell, Eldon township; John Waters, Ely township; Harry Taylor, Turin township; Samuel Garrett, Forsyth township; Charles Robn, Champion township; Henry King, Richmond township; Richard Bray, Humboldt township; William Mills, Ishpeming township.

There are seven criminal cases on the docket, No. 1 being the case of the People vs George C. Jackman for criminal libel; No. 3 the case of the People vs Harriet Pearse, the perjured witness in the first mentioned case, and No. 7 the case of the People vs Oliver A. Terrio, the embezzling Ishpeming representative of the MINING JOURNAL.

Among the civil cases is one in which Marquette is greatly interested. It is that of W. O. Butler, agent, vs the Iron Cliffs company, to compel fulfillment of contract. The action grows out of the big purchase of lands made west of the city by Mr. Butler for parties unknown. He had an option in which no reservations were stated and accepted the option by delivering to the Iron Cliffs company at Negaunee a certified check for $25,000. The check was accepted from the special messenger, but when the company came to give a deed it reserved practically everything but the air over the land in question. That didn't go and since then deeds of various nature have been presented to Mr. Butler and refused, nearly every week at least one being sent him by registered letter.

The Marquette County Bar.

In the docket for the approaching term of circuit court six new names appear on the roster of the Marquette county bar. The new names are those of J. E. Ball, George Arthur Brown, John R. Rood, Belmont Waples and Milton D. Bryce, of Marquette, and Frank Bell, of Negaunee. There are now twenty-nine names on the bar list, of which twenty are credited to Marquette, five to Negaunee and four to Ishpeming. Marquette's twenty will become twenty-four before another term of court, two new firms having completed preparations to open offices here, Peters & Todd and Black & Corcoran.

Emmons Bros. Opening.

The new and spacious hardware store of Emmons Bros. & Co. will be opened for business today with one of the largest and most complete lines of stoves and general hardware in the upper peninsula. The late styles of stoves just received are worthy of special mention and those who anticipate purchasing a fine cooking range would do well to call and look over this stock. Friends who call may run up against a fine Havana cigar. The MINING JOURNAL extends to Emmons Bros. & Co. the hearty wishes for their success and prosperity.

Buried Yesterday.

Frank W. Clark, the convict who died at the branch prison on Sunday, was buried in Park cemetery yesterday afternoon, Rev. F. C. Pillsbury conducting the exercises. He was sentenced from Traverse City for one year for larceny and had served four months of his time. Death was caused by an abscess of the brain.

Thinks of it.

"While in Chicago I had the pleasure of hearing one of your Aeolians, and the melody is still ringing in my ears. If you could see me since I heard that wonderful and accurate music, you would see a different man. I am more hopeful. My victuals and my wife both agree with me, and in my once sad heart the little pee wees are singing. Seriously it is the most wonderful instrument."

Mr. Nye is only one of the many who are surprised by this wonderful instrument. If the Aeolian had no other qualities than its beautiful tone and wonderful orchestral effects, it would be a marvelous instrument, but when to these are added that simplicity of operation that enables anyone to play it with a few days practice, it becomes phenomenal.

Herr Anton Seidl, leader of the German opera, New York city, has an Aeolian for his personal use and endorses it highly.
