These were the words of Senator Palmer of Illinois in his speech in the senate today urging the election of United States senators by popular vote and his arraignment of the upper house of congress as a non-popular body was Campaign Tactics. in language not often heard by the venerable members of that dignified as-the usual decorum and traditions of that august body. But as Senator house. Palmer fought his way to a seat in the upper house by the advocacy of the ponent of some of the restrictions involved in "senatorial courtesy" he probably does not feel constrained to observe with reverence all the barriers of tradition. The resolution presented by Senator Palmer and which is now pending in the senate provides for the formal submission of a constitutional amendment requiring United States senators to be elected by direct vote of the people of the various states instead of by the state legislatures as at present. Due notice of his intention to address the senate today having been previously given the galleries were all filled and many members of the house were pres-ent to hear the Illinois democratic senator advocate the great political prin-ciple of which he has so long been the representative in the west.

HE SPOKE FOR THE PEOPLE Senator Palmer opened his speech by saying that in urging this constitutional amendment he only obeyed the instructions given him in the most impressive manner by the people of the state of Illinois.

"The people of Illinois" said he, "are loyal to the constitution and are devoted to the principles of orderly, constitutional, free government but they

members of the legislature, regarding themselves as electors chosen to regis-ter the will of their constituents, be-representatives who have the election of senators by the direct vote of the people of the several states and on that ballot a senator was elected."

Of course the "two members" alluded to were Representatives Moore and Cockrell of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit association.

PRESENT METHOD UNSATISFACTORY.

The senator insisted that the contestinational mode of electing senators by the states was no the states was no state of nearly every senatorial election by indorsing or repeling any of them. He referred to them that slight manner only to emphasize the statement that the people no longer confided in but were profoundly distrustful of the method of electing senators by the state legislatures. None of the reasons which led the framers of the constitu-tion to deprive the people of the direct control of the executive department and of the senate now existed. Experience had long ago demonstrated the useless-ness of electors for the selection of president and vice-president. They were the John Does and Richard Roes of the political system. If the amend-ment to the constitution which he proposed should be adopted senators could

PALMER'S WORDS OF WISDOM honor of introducing a similar proposition in 1888 and one at the present session. Similar amendments had also been introduced by the senators from Indiana and New Hampshire (Messrs. Turpie and Chandler). All these propositions had been referred to the commit tee on privileges and elections and by that committee to a sub-committee composed of Senators Chandler, Turpie and himself and he was gratified in being able to state that after a consultation a majority of that subcommitte agreed to report in favor of such an amendment to the constitution. It was their heaven and heliof that the It was their hope and belief that at a very early day the full committee on privileges and elections would be able to report favorably an amendment similar to the one introduced by the sentential of the control of th

During the course of general debate Mr. Bland sent to the clerk's desk and Mr. Bland sent to the clerk's desk and had read a circular letter written by Mr. Harter of Ohio to the various Grand Army posts in denunciation of the free silver bill and advising the members of the posts to urge their conmembers of the posts to urge their consessment to vote against it, as it would be suspicious were at once aroused and he gressmen to vote against it, as it would prove detrimental to the interests of the pensioners. The distance was not great, but the fog was so bewildering that we were nearly an hour in reaching the place. At last the cabby drew up in front of the house, and I jumped out and ran up the steps. I was very much excited, but I tried to fight down all dark thoughts, and the antici-pation of seeing Madelaine once more sent the blood tingling through my body.

A servant opened the door and stared at me inquiringly. I asked whether Mrs. Trench was at home. The girl replied that no such person lived there. Miss Madelaine, then? The girl shook her head. "It's Mrs. Forbes' family lives here, sir," she said. And she added, in response to my startled inquiries, that they had been in possession not much over a month.

I demanded to see Mr. Forbes, who turned out to be a portly and respectable British merchant; but he could give me little available information. He had only seen Mrs. Trench once; of Madelaine he knew nothing. The negotiations had been conducted through the house agent. And why had Mrs. Trench, who knew I was coming home, left no trace or clew for me to find her? It had an ugly look.

Next morning the fog still continued, but I was at the house agent's office almost as soon as it opened. Here, too, my investigations were far from reassuring. The agent had never seen Mrs. Trench at all. A gentleman had called on him and transacted the business on Mrs. Trench's behalf. This gentleman had not given his name, but was described to me as a tall, slender personage, with a dark beard and eyeglasses. More he could not tell me.

From the agency I drove to Mrs. Trench's place of business, in Leadenhall street. I did not expect to find her there, but I could scarcely fail to learn her whereabouts. To my astonishment I found the store in the hands of strangers. Trench & Co. had made an assignment nearly a year before, paying eight shillings on the pound. No one knew where Mrs. Trench was, nor could any one give me the least information about Madelaine.

Such dangers existed in Ireland to an extent unknown in England and Scotland.

In order to prevent extravagance or the part of the councils the bill would provide that land owners should have a deciding voice in permitting capital ex-penditures as distinct from the current expenditures. It was proposed that a committee be appointed which would consist of seven members nominated by the grand jury and sheriff of the county. He could not conceive of any danger of the conneils becoming centers of political agitation to further the views of any political party.

In reply to a question asked by Mr. Healy Mr. Balfour said that the bill would not affect the police system of Ireland and that the incidence of taxation would remain as it was at present.

The whole opposition broke forth into cheers when Mr. Moriey called on the government to go before the people on the measure. In concluding Mr. Morley affirmed that the bill was a grounds for the manifestation of furth | ties. er irritation in Ireland.

At this the whole opposition joined in crying "Shame! Shame!" while the conservatives cheered.

The bill passed the first reading and Mr. Balfour fixed the second reading for March 3.

Conservatives for the most part de-cline to criticise the bill until it has been printed. Some steadfast support-ers of the ministry, however, confess the measure needs much amending.

There was a notable absence of conservative enthusiasm while on the other hand the liberals were exultant, regarding the bill as the final blow to the

TRIAL BY JUDGE.

In one of the valleys to the east of the main spur of the Cumberland I stopped at a "huddle" of houses for the night. I was given a bed in a chamber with a window looking out on to the yard, and | go free.' ten feet from the window stood a large apple tree. It being summer, the window sash was raised.

It must have been about midnight when a sound at the window awoke me, and I got out of bed to see what was the matter. It did not take long to discover that some one was planning a surprise for me. A man had climbed the tree, and from a handy branch had thrust out a plank to reach the sill of the window. It was the end of the plank dropping on crime. the sill which aroused me.

I stood back a little to watch, and presently the fellow, whose color I could not determine, started to creep along the plank. The musical part of the entertainment provided by the committee of arrangements was of an unusually high gave great pleasure to the large gathering. The solo, "Come Back Dearest Heart," by Minnie Sullivan, captured that talented young vocalist's cearers, and she was obliged to respond o an encore, which she did with a oretty song prettily given, "Sweet Heather Bells." George Tucker's solo pleased the audience so well that he had to come on again, and he gave "The Song That Reached My Heart" with a finish and expression that reached the hearts of all in the hall. Mr. Tucker's fine tenor voice was never in better condition than it was last evening, and ne never pleased an Ishpeming audience ily applauded, and so enthusiastically encored that each had to come before the house a second time. A banjo solo by T. Harrington, and a Shakesperian resitation by H. S. Richard Klau, traveling auditor of the Pabst Brewing company, is spending a week in the copper country. HANCOCK.

The brewers and brewery agents in the copper country have sent out the following notice to their customers: "The undersigned have agreed that henceforth all accounts have to be settled monthly and that no credit can be extended under any consideration. They further beg to mention that it is strictly understood by the rules of the ssociation that no loans will be made for license purposes."

A Ladies' leap year party will be given on Friday evening February 26th, in St. Patrick's hall. The committee of arrangements consists of Misses Kate McGrath, Mamie Ryen, M. E. Delaney, Nora O'Brien, Mary Shea, Sophie Funke, Julia Sheehy, Kate McCauley, Mary Looney and Mary Maloney; re-ception committee: Mesdames E. Ryan, E. Scallon, M. R. Redmond, Thos. Coughlin, H. O. other towns on or near this sheet of water, are very important manufacturing centers. The general government recognizing the value of the location for manufacturing purposes built extensive dams, the lake forming a water head of unfailing capacity, hence there is furnished water power practically unlimited in the capacity. The famous Menasha water power is the first of the great hydraulic power, and is made by a ten foot fall of thi river between lakes Winnebago and Buttes des Mortes. The water is carried along two canals, one nearly a mile in length and the other one 1. 700 feet long, which run parallel with the river. On their banks arelocated the many prosperous manufacturing establihments, including five large paper mills, flour mills, stove works and other too numerous to mention. The Wisconsin Centeral Lines is the direct route from Chicago and Milwaukee, affording unequalled service.

A FATAL MISTAKE.

Physicians make no more fatal mistake than when they inform patients that nervous heart troubles come from the stomach and are of little consequence. Dr. Franklin Miles, the noted Indiana specialist, has proven the contrary in his new book on "Heart Disease," which may be had free at H. H. Stafford, Son & Co's, who guarantee and recommend Dr. Miles' unequalled New Heart Cure, which has the targets sale of any heart remedy in the world. It cures nervous and organic heart disease, short breadth, fluttering, pain or tenderness in the side, arm or shoulder, irregular pulse, fainting, smothering, dropsy, etc. His Restorative Nervine cures head-ache, fits, etc.

Ask your doctor what happens to cod-liver oil when it gets inside of you.

He will say it is shaken and broken up into tiny drops, becomes an emulsion; there are other changes, but this is the first.

He will tell you also that it is economy to take the oil broken up, as it is in Scott's Emulsion, rather than burden yourself with this work. You skip the taste too.

Let us send you an interesting book on CAREFUL LIV-ING; free.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN,

There are many of the age of 30 to 50 who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting sensation and weakening the system in a manner which the patient cannot account for. On examination it will be found that the urine deposits a ropy sediment and some-times small particles of albumen will appear or the color be of a thin or milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many who die of this difficulty ignorant of the cause which is the second stage of weakness

DR. SPEER & CO.

Will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases and a healthy restoration of the organs. Examination and advice free to all. Remember the place, 146 West Washington street, Marquette. P. S.—See our testimonials in the different papers from well-known people.

years, Marquette will see a large masked ball. The Masquerade club has made every possible arrangement for the occasion and the Casino promises to be filled to overflowing while the chase in every direction for costumes would indicate that the strife for the $50 in cash prizes will be a hot one. It is even reported that Negaunee is coming down with the intention of walking off even reported that Negaunee is coming down with the intention of walking off with the entire $50. Canvas has been secured from Escanaba for the floor, and the full Marquette City band, after a short street program, will be present to furnish the music. The Casino is a blaze of bunting, evergreens, etc., etc. Nick Ritz was busy there last evening and the speed with which the cavernous interior of the Casino was transformed by him into beauty and light was wonderful Handsomer decorations were never seen in the Casmo unless it were at the O. A Wedding on the Twenty-Ninth.

Cards are out announcing that the nuptials of Mr. Leo Richter, of this city, and Miss Delia Bertrand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bertrand, of Marquette township, will be solem-nized on the twenty-ninth of this month. The wedding ceremony will take place at 9 o'clock in the forenoon at the French Catholic church, and will be followed by a wedding reception in the afternoon at the hospitable home of the bride's parents at Forestville, to which relatives and intimate friends of the wedded pair will be invited.

The groom is a young man of excellent character and habits, who has many friends in this city and county, and the young lady who is to become his bride ranks as a great favorite in the social circle in which she moves. the social circle in which she moves. Her father, Mr. A. Bertrand, is one of the most respected of our citizens and is quite prominent in the affairs of the township. The MINING JOURNAL tenders its congratulations in advance to the young people, and hopes that they may celebrate a goodly number of anniversaries of their wedding day despite the fact that these wall goods but once. office a "confidential" circular just reevery four years.
