FASTEST CRUISER AFLOAT.

War Ship New York Breaks All Previous Records for Her Class.

SHE SHOWS SPEED OF NEARLY 23 MILES PER HOUR.

It is Believed That Even Better Results Than This Can Be Obtained With Her.

LATEST ADDITION TO NAVY.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—With the proud distinction of having broken the record of all preliminary trials and the satisfaction of being the fastest armored vessel in the world the cruiser New York returned to Camp's ship yard this morning. From the hour she steamed down the Delaware Tuesday until her arrival today naval experts have awaited with interest the result of the great warship's initial performance. Despite heavy rain, squalls and a biting wind from the southeast fully five thousand patriotic Philadelphians were present to wish the war ship God-speed as she backed out into the stream and stood down the river on her trial trip. When the giant screws began to revolve and the monster vessel was actually under way for the first time the spectators shouted themselves hoarse. Captain Sargent waved his cap from the forward bridge and acknowledged the salutes with his powerful whistle that seemed to shake the mighty ship from stem to stern.

The New York was headed up the stream, which at this point is only a trifle wider than the ship is long. A strong ebb tide was running and the wind blowing half a gale. To turn around in this narrow space was difficult, if not an impossibility, and a three-million dollar ship was not to be played with. As soon as the lines were cast adrift, however, Captain Chambers, an old Delaware river pilot who has handled all of the Cramp ships, directed the tug Newcastle to make fast to a steel bawser from the starboard quarter. Though the powerful little boat steamed away at full speed she had no perceptible effect upon the heavy warship. Another tug, the Frederick K. Munz, was given a line from the port bow and so with one at each end of the lever the New York was turned short around and headed down the Delaware. Now there arose another wild shout as the four powerful engines began to vibrate and the water was churned into foam astern.

The run down the river and bay was made with fires half banked and under natural draught. The maximum pressure of steam carried was 120 pounds to the square inch. Starting with forty-five revolutions a speed of 10 knots was attained and held until Greenwich point was well abaft the beam. After this the new vessel seemed to warm up to her work, the throttle was thrown open and at ninety-five revolutions the speed increased to 17.5 knots. This made it rather uncomfortable for the figures of Liberty and Justice on each side of the stern, for they were deluged with cold spray from held to foot. The vessel seemed to glide through the water as noiseless as a yacht, however, and there was scarcely any vibration throughout the ship.

At the end of an hour's run the steward came aft in a great state of excitement and reported the compartment in which the provisions were stored ankle deep in water. An examination of the forward part of the vessel revealed the fact that the water had been forced in through the forward torpedo tube. At anchor this opening is a few feet above the water line but at a high rate of speed it is almost completely buried in the sea. Constructor Nixon placed a water tight bucket over it in place of the temporary one and the leaking gave no further trouble. The question now arose how the compartment could be quickly emptied, for sea water and mess beef are not the most agreeable shipmates. A small hole was drilled through the steel deck. This drained the compartment into another on the deck below, one that could not be injured by the introduction of a small amount of water. Without further incident the New York anchored at nightfall about seven miles to the northward of Delaware Breakwater.

Wednesday was cold and damp with a fresh breeze from the northeast. The New York lay quietly at anchor in the early morning and the prospect of a run out de looked rather discouraging. At 8 o'clock it brightened up a bit and the cruiser got under way for the purpose of correcting her compass and adjusting the compensating magnets. This accomplished the vessel returned to her anchorage to wait for good weather to begin her trial. By Saturday morning the wind hauled to the westward and the weather was clear. Fires were lighted at daylight and before 6 o'clock the New York was running for the Five Fathom Bank lightship. The race was to be between this and the Northeast End lightship, a distance of 9.8 nautical miles, the depth of water being twelve fathoms. The following summary tells the story of the two trials: Five Fathom Bank lightship to Northeast End lightship, course north-by-east; distance 9.88 nautical miles, start, 8:24:15; finish, 8:53:53; difference, 29 minutes, 38 seconds; speed, 20.03 nautical miles per hour. Second trial: Northeast End lightship to Five Fathom Bank lightship; course south-by-west; distance, 9.88 nautical miles; start 9:13:07; finish, 9:42:58; difference 29 minutes, 31 seconds; speed, 19.87 nautical miles per hour; average of the two trials, 19.55 miles per hour. In the afternoon the cruiser was headed to the eastward in search of deeper water. In a run of four consecutive hours she maintained a speed of 20.38 knots per hour, reaching as high as 20.57 knots as the water deepened. With this satisfactory result the New York anchored for the night and steamed up to the ship yard this morning. She will be ready for her official trip within three weeks.

Captain Redford W. Sargent was in command of the New York during her trial, assisted by Captain George L. Chambers, an old Delaware river pilot, who has steered all of the Cramps' new ships. There were 340 people on board, thirty of whom were in the ward room mess. Two stewards, ten cooks and thirty-nine waiters had charge of the commissary department. Mr. Edwin Cramp, the superintending engineer of the company, was practically in charge of the trial. He was ably assisted by Mr. Nixon, the naval architect of the firm, and Chief Engineers John Patterson, James Young and Nelson Johnson. The following naval officers made the trip: Captain John W. Phillips (who will command the cruiser when she is turned over to the government); Lieutenants T. M. B. Mason, her executive officer, Wainwright Kellogg, her paymaster and Charles O. Allibone of the Columbia; Chief Engineers John Lowe, N. E. Towne and his assistant engineers, E. R. Freeman and M. A. Anderson.

BIBLE SOCIETY'S EXHIBIT

Bibles in Three Hundred Languages Will Be Shown.

New York, March 26.—The exhibit to be made at the Columbian Exposition by the American Bible society was shipped yesterday. Many rare and valuable volumes from the library in the Bible House will be placed on the shelves for the inspection of the public at the fair. Among them will be a copy of the original King James edition of the Bible, published in 1611. There will also be displayed a fac-simile of the first page of the first Bible ever printed, the famous Mazarin Bible of 1450, and a copy of the Biblia Pauperum representing the style of printing from wooden blocks before the invention of movable type. The English Hexapla, showing the six early versions at a single opening, together with the Greek text, will also be exhibited. In order to demonstrate the great advancement made in the publication of the Bible in other tongues Rev. Dr. E. W. Gilman, who has charge of the foreign department of the society's business, has selected a large number of works that are printed by the society in nearly all of the three hundred languages in which the Bible has been published. In one of the cases will be a display of a quantity of curious objects which have been taken in barter for Bibles in far off lands and remain a lasting record of the travels of American missionaries. Perhaps the unique feature of the Bible society's part in the exposition will be a free distribution of the New Testament and to meet the probable demand 2,500,000 copies of the five-cent addition have already been printed. William Foule, the treasurer of the society, has the exhibit in charge.

SWITCHMEN STILL KICKING.

Are Much Disposed to Make a Club of the World's Fair.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—An important meeting of United Brotherhood of Switchmen was held here this afternoon behind closed doors. The meeting was in session for two hours and when it adjourned information in regard to proceedings was refused. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the question of a strike on the Pennsylvania railroad and the roads entering Chicago during the World's Fair or just prior to its opening. Delegates were present from various points along the line of the Pennsylvania and from the local branches of the Brotherhood in Chicago. A number of letters were read, the general sentiment of which was against a strike. The feelings, however, were somewhat more pronounced than those of the writers of the letters and a strong sentiment seemed to prevail in favor of taking advantage of the coming rush of business on the railroad lines to state the men's grievances and demands and to put pressure of some description upon the railroad companies to compel them to grant them.

RAGED IN A DESPERADO.

Deputy Sheriff Got the Drop on Carlet Small.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 26.—Advices reached here today of the capture of Carlet Small, one of the most desperate characters of the Texas frontier. Small recently finished a sentence of five years in the Chihuahua, Mexico, prison, for robbing a train on the Mexican Central single handed. A few weeks ago he entered the town of Del Rio about noon. He was on horseback and with a six-shooter in each hand proceeded to depopulate the streets in short order. He then took a shot at every man who dared show his head and kept the town in a state of terror until a few brave citizens began taking shots at him with Winchester. He then rode off and crossed the river into Mexico. He returned to Texas a few days ago and was taken into custody at Nueces Station by a deputy sheriff who got the drop on him. Small is charged with house theft.

LIBERTY BELL FOR THE FAIR.

Historic Relic to Be Taken to the Chicago Exposition.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—It has been decided by the council of the World's Fair sub-committee that the Liberty bell, the ringing of which proclaimed the independence of the thirteen original states, shall be taken to Chicago April 28. The bell will be transported in a special car and four policemen will go along as its special custodians and will never lose sight of their charge while it is in Chicago. On the way to the fair stops will be made in all the large cities on the route so that their citizens may have an opportunity of seeing the bell that rang out liberty to the land.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTION.

Most Important One of Late Years May Be Discussed This Week.

IT CONCERNS THE SEATS OF THREE SENATORS.

Have Governors Right to Appoint to Fill Vacancies Occurring While Legislature Is in Session?

MAY LOSE REPRESENTATION.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The indications are that this week the senate will undertake the discussion and perhaps the decision of one of the most important constitutional questions that has arisen in that body in late years, the right of a governor of a state to fill a vacancy in the United States senate which occurred while the legislature was in session. The report of the two factions of the committee will be presented tomorrow and as the proposition is when once these cases are before the senate to push them to conclusion as rapidly as is consistent with the proper expression of the views of all senators who have examined the question involved and desire to make their sentiments known it is probable that instead of taking a three days recess the senate will sit almost daily.

The unknown quantity in the calculation of the week's work is the disposition of the leaders on either side touching the matter of re-organization. It is expected that the Democrats through Mr. Gorman will present the caucus nominations for senatorial offices early in the week, probably in executive session, and if a serious controversy threatens to follow, the matter may be brought before the public through proceedings in open session.

PRESENTED BY SPAIN.

The Caravel Santa Maria Given to the United States.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The government of Spain has officially tendered to the United States as a gift the reproduced flag ship of Columbus, the Santa Maria, now somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico en route to this country to participate in the naval review and for a part of the Spanish exhibit at Chicago. The ceremonies of presentation will take place on some date near the close of the exposition and it is the intention to bring the Santa Maria to Washington for permanent exhibition.

Rear Admiral Benham with the Newark and the Bennington and the Columbus caravels Pinta and Nina arrived at Fort Monroe yesterday afternoon.

COMPLIMENTS TO GLADSTONE.

Enthusiastic Meeting of Irishmen at the Academy of Music.

New York, March 26.—A message was cabled William E. Gladstone tonight by the National Federation of America pledging him their most vigorous support in his efforts to carry through the home rule bill and expressing alike the sentiments of the thousands who had gathered at the Academy of Music to endorse this action and the tens of thousands of Irishmen throughout America who are loyal to their mother land. The message was as follows:

"We, the citizens of New York in mass meeting assembled, tender you our heartfelt sympathy in your efforts to achieve for Ireland the long sought for measure of justice which we trust God will enable you to speedily carry to a successful termination and we pledge you our vigorous and continued support through the struggle. (Signed) Thomas Adels Emmet, Morgan J. O'Brien, John Byrne."

This was the key note of the great gathering of Irishmen at the Academy of Music this evening. The people listened to patriotic airs by the Sixty-ninth regiment band and cheered enthusiastically when Judge Morgan O'Brien, the presiding officer, and Congressmen Bourke Cockran came on the platform followed by a number of other prominent men. From the governors of almost every state in the union came messages of sympathy with the movement for the freedom of Ireland.

A BARON INSULTS A GIRL.

Lord Astley of the Prince of Wales' Set Fined $250.

LONDON, March 26.—George Manners Astley, who was a seat in the house of lords as Baron Hastings, was arraigned at the Marylebone police court yesterday on a charge of having acted indecently toward a girl in Regent's Park. His lordship, who is about thirty-five years of age, looked very much ashamed of himself. The evidence of his disgraceful conduct was so clear that the court found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of £50. Astley moved in the Prince of Wales' set and the Princess of Wales stood sponsor for his daughter. The baron is a captain of the Second brigade of the Eastern division of the Royal Artillery and a justice of the peace. He is married and has five children.

THREE YOUNG MEN DROWNED.

Their Boat Capsized While Trying to Shoot a Dam.

MARIETTA, O., March 26.—Three young men were drowned at 10 o'clock this morning by the capsizing of their boat at the head of Marietta island in attempting to shoot the dam. They were George Dow, Harry Dow and Frank Ackerson. All were good swimmers but their efforts to save the溺者 were vain. The Dow boys are the sons of Captain David Dow, night mailing clerk of the Marietta postoffice.

be made again today if sufficient coal arrives in the meantime. The numerous storms of late caused the furnace management considerable delay in this respect since starting up. Fred Pleau is again in the bastille. He was arrested on a complaint of his wife Saturday evening. The gay Fred endeavored to clean out his wife's household, which was the cause of his arrest. He will be given a hearing this morning.

A SET OF EMERALDS. We were standing in the Carrera de San Geronimo, and were reading the title of one of Mery's books at Duran's. As my attention was attracted by the singular title, and I mentioned it to my friend, he replied, as he leaned lightly on my arm:

"It is a beautiful day, so let us take a turn around the Plaza Castellana, and I will tell you a story in which I enact the chief part. After you have heard it you will have no difficulty in understanding the title, but will consider it the most natural thing in the world."

"I had plenty to do, but as I am always glad to do a little for my friends, I accepted his proposal, and he went on as follows: "Some time ago as I was roaming aimlessly around the city one evening, I stopped before Samper's show-case. I had examined all the collections of photographs and stamps in different shops, and had chosen in my mind a number of pictures which I would adorn my dwelling, if I should ever have one."

"I had been there some time and had amused myself by conferring, in my imagination, this or that jewel on some handsome woman I knew when I found myself unable to decide on which to buy. I accepted his proposal, and he went on as follows: "Some time ago as I was roaming aimlessly around the city one evening, I stopped before Samper's show-case. I had examined all the collections of photographs and stamps in different shops, and had chosen in my mind a number of pictures which I would adorn my dwelling, if I should ever have one."

"How beautiful those emeralds are!" she had exclaimed. "Did you not see them?" and if so, why? I asked myself, does she not get them? She must be wealthy, for she has a stylish equipage, and I believe I saw a crest of nobility on the carriage door. Undoubtedly there is some mystery in this woman's life. Such were the thoughts that occupied my mind until she was lost to sight. And although her life seemed so enviable, so peaceful, I was quite sure that there was some mystery there. I shall not tell you how, but I finally became acquainted with it.

"She had been married at an early age to a dissipated man who, after squandering his fortune, had sought for other means in a brilliant match. His bride proved to be an exemplary wife and mother, and sacrificed everything in order to save some of her estate for her daughter, and to retain the place in society which belonged to her by right, though her wicked father had deserted her and fled to a foreign country."

"People talk of women's great sacrifices, but I believe that there are none, in view of their peculiar organization, comparable to the sacrifice they make of an ardent desire in which vanity and coquetry have a share. From the time I became aware of the secret of this woman's existence, through the eccentricity of my disposition, my chief desire was to obtain that set of emeralds and give it to her in such a way that she could neither refuse it nor know whence it came."

"Among the busy difficulties before me in accomplishing this ambition was the fact that I lacked funds. But I did not give up my idea. 'How shall I get the money?' I said to myself, and I thought of the marvels of the 'Arabian Nights,' of those magical words to the sound of which the world gaped open and hid its hidden treasures, of the magic wands that were so wonderful that when one touched a rock a stream would issue from it, not of water, but of rubies, topazes, pearls and diamonds."

"Finally I resolved to write a book and sell it. To draw money from a stony editor was a hard task, but I succeeded in writing an original work which did not please the popular fancy, for only one person could understand it, and it was an enigma to all the rest. I called the book 'The Set of Emeralds,' and signed only my initials to it."

"As I am no Victor Hugo, but only a simple writer, I assure you that I did not expect to be the author of 'Notre Dame de Paris' obtained for his last work. However, I had enough to begin to carry out my plan. The set of emeralds was valued at $14,000, and as I had only about $8,000 I had recourse to the lottery. By good luck I won all I needed."

that she still thought of those gems with a faint sigh of regret? "Time passed on. I knew that she had kept my gift, and that she had endeavored to discover whence it had come, but she never wore them. Did she despise my offering? I did not know, if she only knew the sacrifice it had cost me! If she knew that I was almost equal to that lover who pined his winter overcoat to buy a bouquet of flowers for his ladylove! Does she think that it has been sent by some high-born love, who will present himself some day to claim his reward? What a mistake she has made! Even though she were free to love another than her odious husband I was much too far below her in station to think of claiming her hand!"

"One evening, when she attended a ball, I stood outside of the palace to watch for her, and I saw her as she glided from her carriage radiant with beauty, while a murmur of admiration burst from the crowd as she passed by. The women gazed at her with envious eyes, the men admiringly, while an involuntary cry of astonishment burst from my lips. She had on my emerald necklace. That night I went to bed without any sleep, so excitedly so agitated I could not eat, but I felt happy. During my sleep I imagined that I could hear the music from the ball and see her pass before me, and I dreamed that I danced with her."

"The affair of the emeralds had leaked out, and I saw her as she glided from her carriage radiant with beauty, while a murmur of admiration burst from the crowd as she passed by. The women gazed at her with envious eyes, the men admiringly, while an involuntary cry of astonishment burst from my lips. She had on my emerald necklace. That night I went to bed without any sleep, so excitedly so agitated I could not eat, but I felt happy. During my sleep I imagined that I could hear the music from the ball and see her pass before me, and I dreamed that I danced with her."

"My friends were astonished that I had sought a duel for such a simple cause, as well as that I would not listen to any explanation. I fought, but I cannot say whether successfully or not, for though I saw my opponent fall, yet I felt at the same moment that my own eyes were dazzled. My ears buzzed, and I also felt, dangerously wounded in the breast. They carried me to my humble dwelling, where I was seized with a raging fever. I do not know all the time I spent in bed, calling wildly for her. I should have had fortitude to suffer all my life just to obtain a greater look from her on the brink of the grave."

"But it was sad to die without a single word from her. These thoughts troubled my brain, and one night while I was tossing restlessly about on my couch, burning up with fever, the portieres were drawn back, and I saw a woman standing at the threshold. I thought I was dreaming, but no, for she drew near my bed, where I was tossing about in distress, and as she raised her veil I saw a tear gleaming on her cheek. It was she!"

"I raised myself up with staring eyes, and--just at that moment arrived at Duran's jewelry establishment. "What do you mean?" I interrupted as my friend diverged in this manner from his story. "Were you not wounded and lying on your back in bed?"

"In bed? What nonsense! I had forgotten to tell you that this was what I had been imagining from Samper's, when I really saw the set of emeralds and heard the exclamation I have told you of, the Carrera de San Geronimo, where a porter jostled against me and aroused me from my reverie as I was gazing in Duran's shop windows at a book by Mery with the title, 'The History of What Has Never Happened.' Do you understand it now?"

"As I heard the denouement I could not help laughing. In fact I do not know what Mery's work refers to, but I am sure that many books might be written under that title--Translated from the Spanish of Gustavo Becquer by Mehetabel Quincy."

Our Abandoned Farms. To assume that the farmer will farm no more would be a fearful prospect for our race--quite as fearful as to assume that the soldier would not fight for his country against any other country; that the tailor would not make us clothes, or that the shoemaker would not supply us with shoes. Surely it would be great gain, not only to the commonwealth of Massachusetts, but to the national commonwealth, if, instead of drawing greivous and doleful morals from pamphlets with the pathetic title, 'Catalogue of Abandoned Farms in Massachusetts (or New Hampshire or Vermont),' we could infer that the issuing of these catalogues was but a rational and normal detail by way of facility in the progression of that great law which moves communities of individuals back and forward, and back and forward again from one precinct to another, and from one vicinage to another on the map of societies and of states, but always conserving and preserving the equation of prosperity, of tranquillity, and of the general content in and between and around them all--Appleton Morgan in Popular Science Monthly.

Florida's Orange Groves. More and more the plantations, grapevines and orange groves of Florida are passing into the hands of northerners and Englishmen, for an ever-increasing climate will destroy local energies in time. The "crackers," or native population, are improving under education, but they do not grow fast mentally and their farming is confined to a little planting near their cabins. Naturally they are simple and hospitable people with a speech somewhat tinged by negro dialect. Besides fruit, Florida has a vast wealth in her phosphoric beds, which are of unmeasured extent, but one capitalist says that since the investment of $30,000,000 in phosphate in the south the business has been overdone, and there is no demand for phosphate land at present.--New York Sun.

How Salvage Is Awarded. Salvage is generally awarded on all property saved, whether hull or freight. Government property is subject to the same conditions as that belonging to private persons. In some instances there are common civilities expected and offered, which, although unwritten, act as a bar against a claim for salvage. Thus it is said that if a steamboat be stranded on a sand bank in the Mississippi river and another boat draws her off custom prohibits any salvage compensation.--New York Evening Sun.

ASSAULTED KING HUMBERT.

Fanatic and Murderer Hurls Stone at the King of Italy.

NEARLY TORN TO PIECES BY THE INCENSED CROWD.

News of Many Dynamite Outrages Suppressed by Roman Police, Who Seem Bewildered.

HUMBERT WAS NOT HURT.

Rome, March 26.—This city is in a state of great excitement over an assault last evening on King Humbert. The king was returning from the Villa Borghese where he had been spending a portion of the day, when a person, having the general appearance of an Italian working man, threw a stone at the king. There was a considerable number of the people in the streets, it being about 5 o'clock in the evening, and several rushed upon the assailant and seized him. The assailant was promptly taken in hand by the police and conveyed to prison. Otherwise he would in all probability have been killed by the angry multitude.

An immense crowd gathered and cheered the king with frantic enthusiasm and all the way to the palace the scene was like a triumphal progress. King Humbert gracefully acknowledged the ovation and was evidently deeply moved by the loyalty of his subjects. The assailant of King Humbert is, it appears, a religious fanatic named Berardi. The authorities have made inquiries regarding his history and have ascertained that he was sentenced to imprisonment for seven years for a murder committed a number of years ago. In 1892 he was released from prison and emigrated to America, the authorities thinking they had got rid of him forever. Berardi, however, recently returned to Rome, but his presence did not attract attention until today. He has acknowledged since his arrest that his intention was to insult King Humbert because the king declined to be reconciled to the pope. He also claimed that he had been engaged in forming missions for the liberation of slaves in Africa and China. The police are trying to ascertain whether he had any accomplices.

CARNIVAL OF DYNAMITE.

LONDON, March 25.—Mail advices from Rome prove that a very inadequate idea of the dynamite campaign of the Italian anarchists has been communicated by telegraph to the outside world. A strict censorship is exercised over all dispatches and anything likely to create a panicky feeling is suppressed. The seriousness of the situation is shown by the fact that three regiments from northern Italy are on their way to the city, and that furloughs have been suspended among all the troops in the immediate vicinity. Although not a day has passed without the finding of bombs by the police, all the authorities declare that the attempts of the dynamiters have practically ceased, and that all except a few of the most venturesome anarchists have left the city. Much of this deception is practiced merely to allay the growing uneasiness of foreign sovereigns expected to be present at the silver wedding of King Humbert and Queen Margaret next month. Many officials have received warnings that they will be killed before May 1, and in all departments of city and national government the number of guards has been doubled for their protection. The approaches to the public buildings swarm with detectives and nobody who fails to give a satisfactory account of himself can get near the public offices.

The police have shown themselves utterly incompetent. Although searching day and night for the store of dynamite upon which the anarchists are drawing they have accomplished nothing. Since the explosions of a year ago they have paid little attention to the anarchists and therefore do not know which way to turn to arrest the plotters.

QUADRUPLE LYNCHING FEARED.

Brutal Murder of Negro Hotel Porter Philip Garner.

FINE BLUFF, Ark., March 26.—A brutal and most fiendish murder was committed at Searrill last Friday night, the particulars of which, owing to the lack of telegraphic communication, only reached here today. The body of Philip Garner, porter at the Sherrill Hotel, was found in a nude condition in that hostelry yesterday morning. Lacked on the body was a piece of pastebord bearing the inscription "C. O. D. Collect three months' board. Dr. Sherrill, keep your man at home and he won't get lost." The coroner's inquest disclosed the fact that a body had been carried by three men to the hotel Saturday morning. The only persons in the crime thus far identified were two men who had been drinking at James R. Lesser's bar were going to see a courtesan named "Little Nell" and that on the way, after some altercation, the murder was committed. Four arrests were made and a quadruple lynching was barely prevented, as the execution was great.

AFTER THE COAL COMBINE.

Minnesota Legislature Directs the Prosecution of Its Members.

St. Paul, March 27.—Prosecutions will be begun at once against the parties charged with engineering the coal combine. This was decided upon at a conference between Attorney General Childs, Mr. Edgerton, his assistant, and Messrs. Donnelly, Walsh, Horton, Boggs and Bjorge of the investigating committee. One of these suits will be in the state courts and the defendants, E. N. Saunders and J. J. Rhodes, will be charged with perjury. The second prosecution will be in the federal courts under the anti-conspiracy law and will have as defendants all the prime movers in the combination. The prosecutions will be conducted by Messrs. Childs and Edgerton, assisted by County Attorney Butler and such other counsel as may be found desirable. The committee will ask authority to secure additional counsel as it is certain that the defense will spare no expense to obtain the best legal talent available.

Forecast of the Weather.

Butcher Garrison of Anderson, Ind., was fined heavily Saturday for killing pork that had been fattened on the flesh of dead horses. Oren Munger, at whose slaughter house the hogs were fed, has been arrested.

James McCusker of Boston, the champion swimmer of America, has issued a challenge to Joe Nuttal, the English champion, and posted $500 to swim a one mile race over any acceptable course for not less than $5,000 a side.

Patrick Gibbons, one of the doorkeepers of the Illinois legislature, was shot yesterday at Chicago during a brawl by J. C. Koehler. The bullet entered Gibbons' right cheek and produced an ugly but not fatal wound.

William Peterson of Chicago shot himself Saturday noon while kneeling over the graves of four of his children in Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville. He was sixty-five years of age and undoubtedly insane.

The Chicago city hall was burglarized for the third time in two weeks Saturday morning. This time the Health department was the sufferer and the police are as dumbly ignorant as usual. Senator Challemeil-Lacour, recently elected a member of the Academy, has been named by a caucus of the Left as successor to the late Jules Ferry in the presidency of the French senate.

A number of non-union negroes employed at the Suowden coal mines on the Baltimore & Ohio railway quarreled over a game of "craps" and James Totten shot Rolly Marks dead.

The stallion Swigert, whose record was 2:29 and who was the sire of thirty-seven horses with records of 2:30 or better, died Saturday near Racine, Wis., aged twenty-seven years.

Another of the "get-rich-quick" Massachusetts endowment orders has burst. It is the United Order of Equity and its members will get about ten cents on the dollar.

Thieves got into the Sullivan County bank at Milan, Mo., Saturday while the cashier was at dinner. The safe was not locked and the bank is minus $2,000.

The barge Equator was lost off Fenwick islands light and Captain John Feehan of Philadelphia and three colored men were drowned.

A writ of inquiry into the sanity of Colonel W. B. Keamy, ex-judge advocate general of the navy, has been issued.

Ellie Ray, a girl six years old, was burned to death at Marietta, O., Saturday evening by her clothing catching fire.

Cornell University has sold 58,000 acres of its pine lands in northern Wisconsin to J. B. Young & Co. for $700,000.

The yarn spinning mill of the Rivett company at Stockport, England, burned yesterday; loss $50,000.

It seems quite certain that Judge Allan B. Morse will be appointed consul to Glasgow.

MENDING THEIR FENCES.

No Rest This Easter for Members of the German Parliament.

GENERAL ELECTION CANNOT BE LONG DELAYED.

Remarkable Following of Foolish People After the Lying and Disreputable Demagogue Ahlwardt.

LIBERALS FEAR SOCIALISTS.

Berlin, March 26.—The three weeks' Easter recess of the reichstag and landtag is generally passed in absolute quiet. This year the recess sees the transference of political activity to political platforms. The imminence of dissolution sends most of the members to face their constituents. The central committees of the Socialists and the National Liberals have met here and discussed the prospects—the Socialists desultorily and the National Liberals despondently. Dr. von Bennigsen warned the National Liberals that the elections could not be fought by them on a mere platform of the acceptance or rejection of the Army bill. He deplored the want of unity in the party and complained that addresses coming from National Liberal districts declaring in support of the bill had assisted to defeat the arrangement of any compromise with the government. Finally the meeting decided to leave the method of conducting the electoral canvasses to individual initiative.

The Center party, which had been reposing in confidence that the result of a general election would be the return of their party nearly unchanged, has been awakened by the return of Johannes Füssinger, Independent Clerical, from the second Arnberg-Meschede-Oelde district. The entire official mechanism of the Centerist party was employed to defeat Füssinger, but the efforts failed. Füssinger, who is the editor of the Boechumer Volks Zeitung, is a rabid Prussian-hater. One immediate result of this Centerist defeat is that Schloemer-Alst, the old Centerist chief, will withdraw his candidacy in the Dortmund by-election. The element of uncertainty introduced into the Centerist calculations may yet influence the leaders to reconsider their attitude towards the army bill. On all sides the Easter recess will be devoted to probing the constituencies.

DEMAOGOGUE AHLWARDT'S FOLLOWING.

S-etched, but not killed, Ahlwardtism continues to rear its ugly head aloft. If since his exposure in the reichstag and his reception on the streets, and at public meetings which he attended has been like what might be accorded a great servant of the state. Within a few hours after the collapse in the reichstag of his charges against Bismarck and other well-known personages, Ahlwardt had an atom of regard for the contempt heaped upon him in the reichstag or for the universal voice of scorn in the public press he would vanish from political life, but with a front of brass and sustained by the Jew-baiting mob he remains a dangerous factor in public life.

Weather and Meteorology.

Let us illustrate the difference between weather and meteorology. A man sets out from his warm and comfortable suburban home. He finds a thin but vigorous snow-storm beating in his face. The wind is strong and chilling without being tempestuous. The particles of snowing his skin; the wind whistles in his ears. He finds it a rough, wintry day. He says as much to other suburban men who are coming edgewise up to the station, and they agree with him. This is weather or conditions of the air affecting human bodies and

Now, at the top of the cupola on the roof of the postoffice, on the same day, there is a thermometer of extreme nicety of construction, and an anemometer which measures every puff of wind, and a rain gauge or snow gauge or whatever it may be. There is a human observer, only not a door. Everything is automatically recorded, and a man merely comes out occasionally and waits on these machines. They record and record all day, and at the end of the day their records are summed up into figures, which say that the temperature was above the normal, and the wind was from the west, and the precipitation was half an inch! Your rough wintry day has vanished in a column of unmeaning figures.

Now, a "monthly meteorological report" is but an aggregation of such unmeaning figures, and while all these days may have been similar, they are only not so deadly to people who experienced them of unusual roughness and wintriness, the monthly meteorological report tells us that there has been an "excess" of 42.19 plus degrees of temperature during the month! That is meteorology.

The thing that interests them is weather—Boston Transcript.

Science That Advances.

Milk has many peculiarities that are yielding new results nearly every day. Besides being a very nutritious substance it has similar properties, only not so deadly, through which to carry certain forms of disease to possess the peculiar properties of killing microbes, and microbes of the most deadly disease. If the cholera bacillus is put into milk drawn fresh from the cow, it dies within an hour. Fresh goat's milk, by contrast, loses its power to kill the bacillus dies within five hours when put in the latter, but the bacillus of typhoid fever dies within five hours in goat's milk and not before 24 hours in cow's milk. Nearly all of the other microbes of diseases known to science are killed in the same way by cow's and goat's milk, the time required by the process varying in different diseases.

But milk to possess this microbe destroying power must be fresh, as after four or five days it has no effect upon the microbes. Milk that is kept at a temperature of 33 degrees Fahr. also loses its power to kill the germs after an hour, and this fact is of considerable interest to the profession in view of the widely recommended plan of purifying milk by boiling it. There are many things yet about our food and its relation to disease germs that must afford perplexity to all, and none is more important than the relative value of milk—Yankee Blade.

A Hairbreadth Escape.

"A man is not safe from bullets anywhere," was heard to remark Captain Eugene May the other day to a lot of old comrades. "I have reason to believe the truth of this observation when I reflect upon an experience I had at Jackson, Miss., once during the war. Bullets were flying around pretty lively, but we felt fairly safe, as we were behind a high embankment which extended some distance above our heads. Well, there comes a bullet to do just then, so I stretched out beneath a mission with my head just behind a wheel.

"The last thing in the world seemed the coming of a bullet into the shade of that caisson. But while I was lying there taking it easy I suddenly heard a sharp 'ping' just behind my head. It was unmistakable noise of a bullet striking a pane of glass. Well, I turned over and looked at the wheel, and, by George, there was a bullet imbedded in the tire of the wheel just about an inch from where my head had been. If that tire had been a fraction less wide, I'd have got the bullet in the head. I wasn't a question of it, I can tell you, and I'm too far from there quickly."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Popularity of the Soft Hat.

With the advent of the soft felt hat named after Kossuth began the decline of the silk hat. The latter still remains an adjunct of ceremony. It has been pushed almost entirely out of the daily life of the masses. It is a surprise that what is often called the stovepipe hat held its place so long as it did, for it suggested very little of comfort. Perhaps it was simply endured because it was a compromise between the steeple hat of the Puritans and the high but less stiff and formal hat of the later Elizabethan period. It has been estimated that the output of the soft hat industry in this country is almost 5,000,000 hats a month. They are recognized in Europe as the best in material and most artistic in design and finish that can be made. They control most of the trade in South America and Mexico.—Frank H. Stauffer in Philadelphia Ledger.

Vagrancy as a Profession.

"Vagrancy," said Superintendent McIntyre of the Albany penitentiary, in response to a question, "is as much of a profession as burglary, highway robbery or larceny. Of course it is hardly to be classed with those professions, but even as there are professional cracksmen, thieves and bunco artists, so are there professional vagrants. It is not a disease, but some defect in their mental and physical nature which leads them to prefer the careless life of the vag to one of thrift and industry. I have had so many at the institution in my time that I have come to thoroughly understand the class. One man who was with me for three months boasted that he had spent more or less time in every jail and penitentiary throughout New York, New England and Pennsylvania."—Albany Journal.

REPORTORIAL PENCILINGS

Watch the date—April 5th or 6th. Mr. R. G. Wats, the piano tuner has returned and will have his headquarters at Conklin's.

The gold watch given away by the Theatre Royal company on Saturday evening was drawn by Edward Drew, Jr.

Remember the concert tomorrow evening at Fraternity Hall. It will be well worth the attention of every lover of good music in the city.

The hop after the meeting of Hughes' dancing class on Saturday evening was a great success, fully forty couples being present. The attendance at the dancing class hops is constantly increasing.

Notwithstanding the fact that it still seems to be midwinter here it is reported at Cleveland that "the steamer Superior and consort Sandusky are loading coal for Marquette at opening rates." They will have to come up on runners, apparently, if they want to get here before the Fourth of July.

The Ideal orchestra will give a splendid program at its concert at Fraternity Hall tomorrow evening and is entitled to the patronage and support of every citizen of Marquette as the organization is one of which any city might well be proud. Turn out and fill the hall—you will get enjoyment enough out of the concert to repay you.

Mr. J. J. Carroll received a telegram from Chicago yesterday announcing, with Mrs. Carroll's compliments, the birth of a little Miss Carroll (weight nine pounds) in the World's Fair city, so Marquette contains another proud father and this one will have congratulations hurled at him from every town and hamlet on the upper peninsula.

The Theatre Royal company has left the city and a general sigh of relief is registered at the fact as it did not become necessary for the city to help the company out to its no stand. It is to be hoped that it will be a long time before Manager Ross will introduce to the city a company which is the equal of this supposedly royal Scottish aggregation.

Mr. William Becker has moved his boot and shoe shop from his old stand on Rock street to the Hallam building opposite the Hotel Marquette, where his old customers will find him prepared to do their work promptly and well, and where he would like to have as many new ones as possible call and give him an opportunity to show them how well he can serve them. Mr. Becker is a skillful workman and attends closely to business, so that orders given him will be satisfactorily filled.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. M. Carr of Shingleton is in the city.

Mrs. E. C. Williams is home from the east.

C. D. Lawton was a Marquette visitor Sunday.

Ben Samuels of the Dead River Mill Co. is in town.

J. H. Harding of Ironwood is a Queen City visitor.

M. F. Mulcrone was a Queen City visitor yesterday.

Samuel Brady of Detroit is in the city on World's Fair business.

Miss Ropes of Ishpeming visited Marquette friends Saturday.

Mrs. J. W. Stone and daughter, Miss Edith, returned from Grand Rapids Saturday.

Miss Lizzie Sullivan of Houghton is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. J. Osteron.

Miss Anna Hall left for Green Bay yesterday to visit friends for a couple of weeks.

Ira Boyce, scaler for the D. S. & A. R. R. Co., is in town. He will be here to stay Thursday.

Willis McGuire returned yesterday from a visit at the home of his uncle, a Wisconsin state official, at Madison.

Mrs. J. W. Putnam and daughter, Miss Florence, have returned from their extended visit with friends below.

J. J. Conolly returned yesterday from Escanaba, where he went to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, P. H. Torney.

This Requires No Comment. EDITOR THE MINING JOURNAL.—In a communication republished in your paper of this date my name is used by Mr. Webster Dock, the Marquette correspondent of The Detroit Evening News, as his authority for the statement "that Mr. W. B. Cady of the 'Soo' is a candidate for the position of collector of customs of Marquette."

Mr. Dock is certainly mistaken in his statement of "this authority" as I have never mentioned or consented to the name of Mr. Cady with the candidate for any office to anyone, notwithstanding the fact that I think he would do credit to himself and party in any position in which he might be placed, and I hope that Mr. Cady and others interested will accept "Mr. Edward's" advice and repeated assertion—that he was not such authority.

Respectfully yours, JAMES P. EDWARDS, HOUGHTON, March 24, 1893.

A BALLAD OF WOOING.

When pleasure's paths no more allure, And victuals cease to fascinate, Then 'tis in love past mortal cure, In short—I've met another fate: But long I do not hesitate: I flourish up my lover's art And on this question ruminate— How shall I win the maiden's heart?

I know love's path is insecure, And many a heart has been sedate, But I, in sooth, could never endure To travel at an ambling gait: I do my utmost, early, late, To make her fancy take my part, And on this question meditate— How shall I win the maiden's heart?

I send her roses, fragrant, pure, And loving songs I perpetrate: I sit upon her furniture And tell her of my woeful state; In hope that signs may indicate That in her breast a shaft doth dart, And give me cause to jubilate— How shall I win the maiden's heart?

L'ENVOI. Prince, thou art rich, pray liquidate The bills I owe in every mart For flowers and sweets, gems small and great, With them I win the maiden's heart. —P. McArthur in New York Sun.

A BAFLED CRIME.

Sadie Ransstead was my cousin, and an angel, in my eyes, at least. I was an orphan without kith or kin in the world save Sadie and her mother. I was a child in short frocks and pinafores, and Sadie was a lovely young lady. I was not so young but that I knew she was an angel to at least one pair of eyes besides mine. I believe Colin Balfour could have kissed the ground she walked on. I did not like Colin Balfour myself. He was too big and black brooded to suit my childish fancy.

He was very humble until she had promised to marry him, and then he began right away to be so unreasonable that he made her life just as miserable as could be. Well, one day Colin Balfour went off in one of his rages and enlisted. Six months, a year passed, and no word from Colin Balfour. Other fellows came home on leave to see sweethearts and mothers, but Colin neither came nor wrote, though we heard of him through other's eyes, and at last that he had married a pretty southern girl.

Sadie gave one moan when she heard it, and she took hold of me and shook me in a sort of passion of pain and outraged love. "He is a wicked man, Greta. He has no more heart than a stone. We will forget the next day she had promised Gran'ther Mayhew, who came often to the house—little dreamed I what for—that she would be his wife. Child as I was, and little comprehending the holy mystery of wifehood, I was afraid of Sadie when I knew what she had been promised and would not let her kiss me.

However, the kind old man was a great favorite of mine at bottom—a genial, gentle, good man, who thought he was doing right and best in marrying a girl young enough to be his grandchild. Mamma Ransstead (as I always called my mother, and in great trouble, and was proud to receive that aid from Gran'ther Mayhew which she would not refuse from her daughter's husband. I suspect that Mamma Ransstead was more than a little plighted.

He and Sadie were married very shortly, and he was built just the way the old one and on a site of Sadie's choosing. Gran'ther Mayhew was very kind and very patient. I think he never said an impatient word, though Sadie must have tried him sorely with her whims sometimes. One day, when Sadie had been married about a year, Mamma Ransstead fell suddenly ill, and while Sadie and I stood aguish with fear of what might happen, the worst happened that ever could—Mamma Ransstead was dead.

Six months after came the news that Colin Balfour had been killed. Sadie had not seen him for near three years now, and she had not heard from him since he had but she shrank under the shock of hearing that he was dead, as though she had been his plighted wife and he the hero of her wildest imaginings. Fortunately or unfortunately, Gran'ther Mayhew was away from home on some important business matter just at the time that the news had come of Colin Balfour's death, little parlor looking upon the garden, which Sadie called her garden room. I opened the door cautiously, thinking it must be a servant, and lo! there was Colin Balfour in the flesh.

He shot by me like a flash and caught the drooping figure upon the sofa in his arms. "My poor darling," he cried, kissing her amazed face between the words, "that it should ever have come to this."

she had not parted with her senses during

That night, try as I would, I could not sleep. I was always a nervous child, and the past week had wrought upon my sensitive organization disturbance that forbade sleep. It was not unusual for me at such times to get out of bed, and slipping past the sleeping maid who watched me, go wandering over the house in my night-dress; my feet were bare, so I made no noise.

Somebody else was alone. Just as I entered the long hall that passed Gran'ther Mayhew's chamber, a door which led from this hall to a terrace, from which you descended to the garden, opened and Sadie crept through it and down the hall toward Gran'ther Mayhew's room.

The moon shone down the passage but dimly, so that I could not see her face, but I knew it was Sadie, and in another moment she might have seen me, but another door half-opened through the partially open terrace door drove me back into shadow.

It was Colin Balfour, and after hesitating briefly he came slowly down the hall. Sadie stood by Gran'ther Mayhew's door still; she seemed to me to be holding herself up by the doorpost. She turned swiftly as Colin Balfour approached, and dropping upon her knees extended her hands clasped as if imploring.

For answer he turned shortly on his heel and moved noiselessly toward the terrace door. Sadie drooped an instant and followed him.

They stood in the full moonlight now, and I could see Colin Balfour's scowling brows and Sadie's uplifted glittering eyes. She shook her head, and clasping her hands across his shoulder laid her cheek upon them. Colin Balfour put an arm around her and bent his face a moment to hers; then he let her down the hall again toward Gran'ther Mayhew's door, released her and stood while she slowly advanced.

I can give no name to the sensations that were mine while I watched these two. It was something worse than terror, yet akin to that—something that made me long to put my arms around Sadie and hold her fast—faster than any baby's arms had strength. She opened the door of Gran'ther Mayhew's room and vanished within. Suddenly, swift as thought, I ran back to my own chamber, which opened upon a piazza which ran by Gran'ther Mayhew's window. My own windows were open. Her's might be.

Stepping out I ran quickly along Gran'ther's windows were open, and as I dropped lightly over the ledge into the chamber, the old man lay peacefully sleeping, and Sadie stood before his bed, a small, dark vial in one hand, the water goblet from which Gran'ther drank through the night in the other. But she was shaking so that she could not hold the goblet, and setting it down again, she stood quaking and awfully white.

Heaven knows what guided my childish steps to her side, or put simple and most natural words in my mouth at such a time.

"Sister Sadie," I said, throwing my arms around her, "what scares you?" She stared at me a moment, then caught me to her, and dropping upon the floor, strained me in a frantic embrace.

"Oh, Gran'ther! what God you have come! Oh, Greta, save me!" Was she afraid of Colin Balfour? I fancied so, and trembling at my own daring ran and turned the key in the door. Then I went back to Sadie, and she opened her arms eagerly, and I fell asleep so, and waked up so, just as morning was breaking. Sadie assured never to have closed her eyes, and her face was still very white, but it was the old sweet, kind face again, sad, but something in it that made me whisper wonderfully:

"Are you good again, Sadie?" "I'm not so bad as I might have been but for you, darling," she returned with a strange look, and leading me out into the hall, where was now no Colin Balfour, she went with me to my bed and lay down beside me till the servants were stirring. I slept again and was awakened by hurrying steps and alarmed exclamations.

Gran'ther Mayhew was dead! A small vial of laudanum was found on the carpet beside the bed, and it was at first supposed that he had died from an overdose of laudanum. But a medical examination showed that he had come to his sudden death by perfectly natural causes. An acute disease which had long preyed upon him, without his knowledge of any save himself and his physician, had suddenly set its fangs in his heart while he slept.

That night when they had dressed Gran'ther Mayhew for his last rest, Sadie took me in to see him. There, with my hand in one of hers, and the other laid upon her dead husband's breast, she vowed a vow never more to look upon the face of Colin Balfour.

He tried to see her when all was over, but it was in vain. She sent him by my hand the vial of laudanum, and by my lips the witness to her vow.—Buffalo News.

Whittier's Poetic Character.

It has been said till it says itself that Whittier was the people's poet. This is true; but he was more than that. He was the poet of a broad humanity, and his songs of freedom, which perhaps in his heart's depths he cherished more than any other phase of his life's work, were superb outbursts. He sang them as the prophets of Israel spoke in their holy trances. The spirit of God constrained him. He was a literary Hebrew. Of course it scarcely need be said that he was no Hellenic. The Hellenic does not trouble himself about "causes." In Whittier the sense of moral responsibility awoke his genius.

His "artless art," as it has been well called, was best developed in his later years, when the freed slave and the saved country gave an interval of rest to that uncompromising New England conscience which is vaguely labeled Puritan by the outside intelligence of London, Paris or New York, and which is able to make the greatest failures and the greatest successes in American literature.—Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in Century.

MOTHERS' RECOMMENDATION.

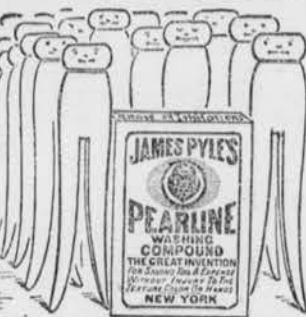

We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day. "On or off the line, we're with the majority—'stuck' on Pearline!" And they're right—you will observe that their heads are level. Millions of women sing the same song as the clothes-pins. They may express it differently, but they mean the same thing. They mean that their work is easy and sooner done—and better done.

No clothes worn out with the endless rub, rub, rub on the washboard. No backs tired out with it, either. These millions of women mean that they're using Pearline, saving labor, time, and money with it, and have proved it to be perfectly harmless. Now, what do you mean? Surely you don't mean to try to do without it?

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back.

PREPARING FOR ELECTION.

Ishpeming's Council Holds a Special Meeting to Select Registration and Election Boards.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE LAKE ANGELINE MINE SATURDAY.

Hurt by a Fall of Frozen Ground—John Manley Chosen Division Major U. R. Sons of St. George of U. P.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING.

The common council held a special meeting Saturday evening for the purpose of selecting registration and polling places and other business pertaining to the charter election to be held next Monday.

The boards of registration and election for the new wards were selected as follows:

Eighth ward—Messrs. A. P. Wahlstrom, Chas. Regstrom, John Bowden and John Skoglund.

Ninth ward—E. G. St. Clair, J. S. Mennie, H. F. Heyn and C. T. Hampton.

Tenth ward—Joseph Story, Frank Jenkins, Joseph St. Antoine and Wm. Coombs.

The old wards will have the same boards as last year.

On motion the committee on charters was instructed to pay all bills incurred in the passage of the bill amending the city charter, such as telegrams, etc.

The recorder was instructed to order the necessary registration records and poll books.

Second ward—The band room near the Lake Superior office for registration and the City Opera house for election.

Third ward—Alexander's building, (J. D. West's printing office), for both.

Fourth ward—No. 2 hose house for both.

Fifth ward—No. 4 hose house for both.

Sixth ward—Erick Anderson's store on North Third street for both.

Seventh ward—Lake Angeline mine office for both.

Eighth ward—Basement of the Division street school house for both.

Ninth ward—Basement of the Ridge street school house for both.

Tenth ward—No. 3 hose house for both.

On motion, the above places were adopted as the official registration and polling places for the coming election.

City Attorney H. O. Young drafted an ordinance relative to the manner of registering and voting at this election.

The registration board will meet from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. The polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. Every voter in the city will be required to register whether his ward has been changed or not.

A new registration in full is what is desired. On motion, the ordinance was adopted as read by Mr. Young.

The city recorder was instructed to have 3,000 hand bills printed and distributed in every house in the city, giving the boundaries of wards, the registration and polling places, etc.

Alderman McNamara moved that President Johnston, Aldermen Rood and Routhier be instructed to draft resolutions returning thanks to Representative Jones and others at Lansing who assisted in securing the passage of the bill providing the amendments to the city charter and to forward a copy of the same to Mr. Jones.

The motion was supported and was unanimously adopted.

The council then adjourned.

Severely Injured. Joseph Gill was severely injured at the Lake Angeline East End mine Saturday morning about 11 o'clock.

He was engaged on the surface removing dirt for the foundation of the new engine house. Over his head hung a crust of frozen earth, a part of which suddenly fell away and struck him, fracturing his leg.

He also sustained a painful scalp wound. Mr. Gill was taken to his home, where an Ishpeming hospital surgeon reduced the fracture and attended to his other injuries.

A Sad Fatality. John Henry Richards, a miner employed at "C" shaft, Lake Angeline mine, was instantly killed Saturday forenoon about 11 o'clock.

Mr. Richards and his partner were engaged in putting in a set of timbers, when the ground above came down and crushed the life out of the unfortunate man.

The circumstances connected with the fatality are quite peculiar. A few seconds before the ground came down Mr. Richards' partner was working alone at the timber, it being the custom to take turns at the work as both men could not work to good advantage at the same time.

Presently Richards told his partner to step out and let him work awhile, which he did. Just as Richards stepped into the place to begin work the timber and ground began to fall and he was entombed under them.

Assistance was soon at hand and the work of removing the ore and timber was begun. It took between two and three hours to recover the body.

His face was badly bruised and lacerated, his skull was fractured and his body was also considerably bruised.

Coroner Samuel Rogers was notified and empanelled the following jury: Sam Blumenthal, James Heard, J. B. Tibor, J. D. West, Ole Walseth and Joseph Gregory.

After viewing the body about 4 o'clock the jury adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock this morning at Mr. Roger's office in the McKay block, when testimony in the case will be taken.

Mr. Richards was thirty-six years of age, married, and leaves a wife and two small children. He was born in Cornwall, England, and had been a resident of Ishpeming for a number of years. He was a sober, industrious man, well known and highly esteemed by his friends and acquaintances. He was a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters of America and the Sons of St. George of this city. The funeral will be held this afternoon, leaving the late residence, 182 Summit street, at 2 o'clock. Both offices will turn out in a body, the Foresters having charge of the funeral. The religious services will be held at the Division street Methodist church, after which the interment will take place in the Ishpeming cemetery.

John Manley Honored. For several weeks past a struggle has been going on among the officers and members of the Upper Peninsula Division of Uniform Rank of the Sons of St. George for the election of a division major.

The candidates selected were John Manley of Ishpeming, and John Redfern of Negaunee. The friends of these two gentlemen have been working hard in behalf of their respective candidates. Each member of the Uniform Rank in the district was entitled to a vote. The votes were sealed and forwarded to a committee consisting of George Tucker and William Andrews of this city, and J. A. Goodman of Negaunee, who met here Saturday evening and counted the ballots. Mr. Manley was the victor but the contest was a close one, as he received only five more votes than Mr. Redfern.

Will Open Today. George Hageman, whose restaurant and saloon business on First street was closed up Thursday last by Schuckman & Seligman, who held a chattel mortgage on the furniture, stock and fixtures, has adjusted matters and will open the saloon again today.

Mr. Hageman says he is going to start at once to remodel the interior of his restaurant and put in new furniture on both floors. He will also fit up the rooms upstairs into lunch and sample rooms. He expects to be able to open up his restaurant in about two weeks, when everything connected with it will be up to the times in every respect.

More "Fake" News. The Ishpeming "fake" news correspondent is at it again. This, which appeared in some of the larger city papers during the week, is one of his latest:

ISHPEMING, Mich., March 23.—[Special.]—The ore market remains unchanged, and no sales of any size are reported. The mines have really been driven to the last ditch in the matter of price, as is easily proved by the suspension of work at a number of promising properties, and even old and strong mines, because the price of ore allowed no margin of profit.

The larger mines do not propose to exhaust their stores of ore without making money, and would prefer closing down as doing so. However, there is little danger that the big mines will close down wholly. The ore must be supplied and the furnaces will be forced to elevate their offer, though the prices may in cases run a trifle lower than last season.

RESUME OPERATIONS TODAY

The Street Railway Plans to Begin Running Cars Again This Morning.

MAY GET ROUND TRIP TICKETS FOR SIX PENCE

Improvements at St. Paul's Church. Will Protect the Corners of the Docks—Other Local Notes.

WILL OPEN UP AGAIN TODAY.

The street railway company after encountering an embargo from the sleet and ice Friday was laid up all day yesterday by an accident to the snow plow Friday afternoon which could not be repaired until Saturday evening, when the line was cleared of snow although the heavy coating of ice still remained upon the rails. As it was necessary to thoroughly overhaul the power plant and "turn down" the commutator was deemed advisable not to start the cars yesterday but to put in the day in preparation for a resumption of operations today, when it is expected that the track will be opened in time to start the cars on time in the morning, the operating force commencing work upon the track at midnight.

Pleasing Prospect for Tourists.
The Buffalo correspondent of The Marine Review has the following notes in the last issue of that paper regarding the outlook in the Lake Superior passenger business: his closing prediction, if verified, will cause no tears up this way:
The members of the pool once known as the Lake Superior Transit line are fighting. When the Union line pulled out in 1889 it was found that there was $7,000 in bank to the credit of the pool. This amount was claimed by the Union and Western lines on the ground that the Anchor line had violated the terms of the pool. The Anchor line sued the bank, which had been cautious enough to obtain indemnity of the other lines, and on Saturday obtained a verdict for the full amount, the judge holding that the violation was not such as should invalidate the agreement.

The Anchor line is preparing to add the propeller Commodore to its Lake Superior fleet, retaining the India, China, Japan, Philadelphia and Gordon Campbell as before. The only repairs beyond the most ordinary ones, which the Anchor line is making this winter, is giving new upper works to the Clarion.
The Lehigh line will send some of its vessels to Lake Superior. Manager Gordon is looking for an extra late spring opening and said to me today that he wasn't expecting to get out of here before May 5.
Fred S. Doty, formerly with the Chicago & Great Western Railroad line here, has been appointed general passenger agent of the Western Transit line. Every lake line running passenger boats to Lake Superior has now its separate agents all along the line and if people don't go to Duluth for sixpence before August it will be strange.

At St. Paul's Church.
The painters are through with their work on St. Paul's Episcopal church, and it is now receiving finishing touches. The coloring of the walls is of a pale old rose tint, relieved by a darker shade, the roof being paneled with sky blue and over the chancel arch is a text in gold letters. The new carpet is in harmony with the walls and makes a good effect. The organ has been thoroughly overhauled by O. Marshall, the well known organ builder, the pipes having been revoiced and tuned and the action also greatly improved. The front pipes have been shaded with bronze which has materially heightened the effect, indeed the whole work reflects great credit upon the ladies of the congregation who have had the changes in hand.
The church will be opened for the first time on Good Friday, when Stainer's "Gracifixion" will be sung by a specially augmented choir, the solos being taken by Mr. A. O. Jopling, baritone, Mr. Ivar Lilygren, bass (of Ishpeming) and Mr. H. S. Blankley, tenor. The work is one of Dr. Stainer's finest, and the choir has been holding frequent rehearsals so that it promises to be the best musical service ever held in the city. All seats will be free and a collection taken up towards providing new music for the choir. It should be well attended.

Will Protect the Corners.
At the request of a number of masters, notable among whom was Captain Chris. Allen, of the Castalia, a letter was written to Mr. H. B. Bell, agent of the Duinith South Shore & Atlantic railway at Marquette, Mich., asking that piles be driven on the corners of the docks, where, up to the present, bars of railroad iron have been used to protect the ends of the wharf. Captain William Mack has just received a reply from Mr. Bell stating that piles would be driven. Hereafter the shell plates of iron and steel vessels need not be indented by breaking under the corner of the docks at that port. Mr. Bell's courteous attention to the request of the masters is highly spoken of here.—Marine Record.

Death of P. H. Torney.
Patrick H. Torney, of Escanaba, a brother-in-law of Mr. J. J. Conolly of this city and the late Nick. Barth died Thursday of brain fever after a short illness, the end coming very suddenly. Mr. Torney had many old friends in Marquette and became pretty well known here through his frequent visits during Mr. Barth's life time and through his long stay here immediately after the latter's death though at that time he had every appearance of being in very poor health.
The Mirror spoke of him as follows:
He was born in October, 1857, thus being a little over thirty five years of age, the period not marking the prime of his manhood. On Thursday, May, 1888, he was married to Miss Lena Hamacher and to them have been born two daughters, who, with the sorrowing wife and mother, are left to mourn the loss of a kind, indulgent, loving husband and father.
Mr. Torney had lived in Escanaba since his childhood. His first work was done in the office of The Iron Port, where he became a good printer. Later he engaged as clerk in a grocery store but soon left this branch of industry to enter the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern railway. During his connection with the company he held many responsible positions and was esteemed one of their most valuable and efficient employees. In the city he held for two consecutive terms the office of city clerk and for a period of two years as a member of the board of education in the capacity of secretary.

The funeral services were held at St. Joseph's church this morning, the church being filled with friends of the deceased. A large cortege of sorrowing relatives and friends followed all that was mortal of poor P. H. to St. Joseph's new cemetery.
Among the relatives from outside in attendance at the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Conolly, Mrs. N. Barth, Mrs. Hamacher, John Hirt, Jr., of Marquette and Thomas, Willie and Larry Torney, who were called from Nebraska.
The afflicted widow and babies have the sympathy of the entire community in the sad loss they have sustained.

Citizen's Convention.
A citizens' convention will be held at Armory Hall, Front street, on Tuesday evening, March 28th, at 8 o'clock for the purpose of nominating candidates for city offices to-wit: Mayor, recorder, treasurer, one justice of the peace for three years, one justice of the peace for four years and two constables.

Ward caucuses for electing delegates to said city convention and nominating candidates for ward offices will be held on the same evening at 7 o'clock as follows: First ward, four delegates, Ryan's store; Second ward, five delegates, Recorder's office; Third ward, five delegates, Hodgkins' livery office; Fourth ward, four delegates, vacant store Opera House block; Fifth ward, four delegates, Northwestern hotel, Washington street; Sixth ward, four delegates, Martin Fowd's store building, Third street; Seventh ward, three delegates, John O. Lewis' store, Third street; Eighth ward, two delegates, George Reese' house, Park street.
Can dates for the several ward offices will be nominated by the ward caucuses as follows: One supervisor in each ward, one alderman for long term in each of the First, Second and Third wards and one alderman for long term and one alderman for short term in each of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth wards.
By order of the city committee:
F. M. MOORE,
Chairman.

There is no one instrument, unless, indeed, it be a large pipe organ, capable of the variety of effects that are obtainable on the Aeolian. Unlike the pipe organ, however, the Aeolian is adapted to all classes of music; overtures and symphonies can be rendered on it with all the softness and delicacy of the flute and violin and cello and, all the snap and brilliancy of the piano. See and hear them at Conklin's.
