ONLY FORTY THOUSAND PEOPLE. CHICAGO, June 25 .- The radical Sunday openers must have been grievously disappointed at the small number of people who visited the World's Fair to-day. The total admissions free and paid were scarcely 40,000 and the wind-ing paths and broad thoroughfares of the White City had a quiet and deserted appearance. There was little music to speak of and the whole aspect of the fair was as calm and peaceful and Sabbath-like as a New England country between the race being run strictly on the constituencies; the National Liberals powers the race being run strictly on the Richterstand the horse that was best of all pulled down the prize. THEY MET ON FIFTH AVENUE. A Glad Embrace Followed and Gave a Hint of Hidden Roma Redestrians who were passing St. Patrick's cathedral on Fifth avenue the other day at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon were treated to a curious sight. Coming up the avenue was a handsome woman of about 25. She was elegantly dressed and bore herself with a manner and a carriage which were eminently aristocratic. She was walking slowly, as though out for an afternoon airing, looking carelessly at the carriages which were passing along the avenue.

Going down town on the same block and at the same time was a man of middle age. He, too, was dressed faultlessly. He wore a silk hat and overcoat of the latest cut. His trousers were properly creased, and in his buttonhole was a small boutonniere of lilies of the valley. In his hand he carried a neat cane, which he swung as he walked. He looked contented with the world and with himself and as though he had not a care but to enjoy the afternoon sunshine and the luxury of a leisurely stroll. As they approached each other, this lady and the entleman, they arrived just opposite he main entrance to the cathedral.

Suddenly they caught sight of each other, and an instantaneous change came. The lady stopped short in her walk and exclaimed, "Theo!" She dropped the small silk umbrella she had been carrying, stretched forth her arms and sprang, rather than walked, straight into the arms of the man. He, while he did not exclaim, acted in a manner indicating more emotion than surprise. He dropped his cane and folded the woman to his breast with an ardor that showed more than gladness at the meeting. stopped for a moment in view of the peo-ple, who were observing them. He picked up his cane and her umbrella, and together they both disappeared around the corner into Fiftieth street. Who were they? Brother and sister united after years of separation? Their joy at meeting seemed too warm for that. Lovers separated in their youth and mes again after many years? Who can tell? It might have been. But they disappeared around the corner, and they carried their secret with them. And the still lingering pedestrians felt somehow ket as would lead the directors who fathat they had come into contact with something holy and walked again on their repute in Europe. In London it is un-fashionable to play one of these instruments, and in Berlin there is a law against playing one with the windows of the house in which it is located open. The piano makers of the old world have therefore been looking for a new field to exploit, and they hit upon the piano organ London makes them and is sending hundreds of them all over the world. They are taking the places of hand or-gans. In New York and eastern cities you can now hear in the streets as many piano organs, as they are called, as you shades are more common in England than on the continent. The Blounts, for instance, dress their servants in Marengo pepper and salt, and there is to be seen in the parks a well known livery of violet, with amaranthine facings-a rather startling combination. However, as a rule, good form and good taste are on the side of simplicity, and the habitual livery in the best English houses is a black or dark coat, with only the colored or striped waistcoat and the dress white tie. The long white tie fastened with a pin is only allowable to the coachman and the footman who rides on the box.

The butler in England permits him-self or is permitted to inculge in a li-cense which is unheard of abroad. He appears till dinner time in a dress coat, the rest of the costume being emphatically a morning one. Abroad this is never done. Either this functionary does not show, or he is invariably in a full dress suit. On great occasions and in some aristocratic houses this is ex-changed for the black coat "a la Francaise," the black silk breeches and stockings, and sometimes even a slender court sword, sheathed in black. The con-cierge or hall porter on gala days wears a rich, heavy gallooned uniform, shoes and silk hose, his big cocked hat worn straight across the forehead en bataille, and he carries a tall, massive, silver

For coachman and footmen the winter many caped overcoat has been almost entirely superseded by the huge fur tip-pets and long fur cuffs reaching nearly to the elbow. Some of these have been known to cost large sums of money.—

Nodding Off to Sleep.

The loss of voluntary power in a person sinking quietly into sleep is very grad-ual. An object is grasped by the hand while yet awake—it is seen to be held less and less firmly as sleep comes on, till at last all power is gone, and it falls away. The head of a person in a sitting tween them or themselves and others to preclade a free and unrestricted competition among themselves or others in the sale or transportation of any such article or commedity. Or by away. In additionally loses the support of the muscles which sustain it upright; it droops by degrees and in the end falls partially awakens and restores this pow er, which again raises the head, and this falling and raising, or in other words the nodding, continues as long as the dozing off to sleep while in a sitting posture

At the precise moment when the mind loses its consciousness there results a general relaxation of all the muscles. If | just what we want,' the body be at rest in a lying posture, there is no marked result, but if the body be in an uneasy posture, such as sitting, then the relaxation of the muscles causes the falling of the head and nodding described.—Brooklyn Eagle.

STOP HOARDING PIG SILVER. NEW YORK, June 25 .- Alexander Weill of Lazard Freres, one of the heaviest gold-exporting houses, said prior to his departure for Europe yesterday that he did not look for any imports of gold at present. The shipment of a half million this was reported two days ago did not furnish a precedent which could be depended upon.

Newspaper Workers In Chicago.

Some time ago we took occasion to warn newspaper writers against the folly of coming to Chicago in the hope of finding employment here. We regret that the warning has been neglected by very many. This city has been overrun for several months by reporters (both of speculators in Europe to lay in Am- men and women) vainly seeking work. The Chicago newspapers have for two years been getting ready for the World's fair season, and their several depart-ments are filled with competent men. Therefore others who come to Chicago now in the expectation of securing emthere are no places to be had; in every

These contentions the single tax men | vigorously deny, but their vigor is more in the championship of the single tax as a principle than in the demonstration of a principle than in the demonstration of its workings in this place. Generally they say that it has not been in force long enough yet for a fair trial. The opponents reply with vigor that they opponents reply with vigor that they have had enough of it and that they intend to bring about a change in May when the annual election of town commissioners will be held. Civil Service Reform.

Civil service reform is moving on sv ty. It would be expedited if those v. believe in it would live up to it. As we have said before, one trouble is that people are good natured, and when their friends want places under a new administration, that is, places not vacant and research the tis places not vacant and research the research that is places not vacant and research the research that is places not vacant and research the research that is places not vacant and research the research that is places not vacant and research the research that is places not vacant and research that is placed to the research that it is placed to the research that the research that the research that the resear but positions in the civil service.

There is such a thing as rushing a re-election. But it is the duty of every citizen to do his share in eliminating not only the spoils system, but the spoils idea, from politics; to press upon the authorities the necessity of continually ex-tending the merit system, and of acting according to its spirit outside of the classified service. For it is no exaggerareer in the history of modern American namely: William Adranam, member for Glamorganshire (Rhondda division), who is a Welsh bard, under the title of "Mabon;" William Allen, the member for Gateshead, who is an engineer and ble for his pains.—Chicago News-Record.

The Payment of Insurance Brokerage. The Payment of Insurance Brokerage.

As to the payment of brokerage, there were a few years ago in Boston one or two local insurance companies that declined to pay brokers' commissions upon business that was brought into their office, the belief of the officers of this company being that in this way they might be able to save enough money to ultimately reduce the cost of insurance. Instead of encouraging this laudable effort, the merchants of Boston were so entirely indifferent that nearly all of the business of these two companies went off their books. Even the directors of the two companies sent their own risks in through brokers, and the result was that the corporations referred to were compelled to change their method or accept the only other alternative of going accept the only other alternative of going out of business.

A semimutual fire insurance company

A seminatual fire insurance company began a few years ago to do a mercantile business in Boston, and trusted that the opportunity for a division of the profits among the policy holders would be all that was needed to bring in business, without the intervention of brokers. But after a pretty fair trial of the method it was found that it would not work, and the company was compelled to adopt the brokerage payment plan.

A seminatual fire insurance company done secretly in a neighboring room by the monks, and the result was immediately announced to the assembly, who proceeded to vote on the next name.

When the whole list had thus been gone through, all those who were elected had their names written together on a large scroll and also each name written separately on a little slip. These ment plan.

This we are informed is a matter of record, and while there are, no doubt, in Bos ord, and while there are, no doubt, in Boston risks where so much insurance is required that no brokerage need of necessity be paid the rule does not hold good with a vast majority of the insured property. Middlemen in insurance, as well as in leather, boots and shoes, real estate, drug and other classes of business, are to a certain extent unnecessary factors, and it would be no doubt a saying if they could would be, no doubt, a saving if they could all be abolished, but it would be difficult to name any class of business in which they do not take an active share, and their ex-

Ignatius Donnelly finds a supporter of his Atlantis theory in Sir Daniel Wilson, president of the University of Toronto, who declares, after a great deal of search, that the lost Atlantis was not a myth, but that it was really the continent of America. He accounts for its disappearance from view in a different way, but that is merely incidental. Donnelly's theory was that the incidental. Donnelly's theory was that the land was submerged by some great volcanic upheaval, and that from those who escaped to the continents of Europe and Asia came the tradition of the deluge. Sir Daniel rejects this explanation as being disproved by the fact that there are no traces of such volcanic action either on the continent or in the ocean bed. He believes that the ancient Egyptians, the most progressive and In the ocean bed. He believes that the ancient Egyptians, the most progressive and adventurous people of ancient times, discovered the continent, but that in the decline both of their learning and power it became lost to view and existed at the time our knowledge of Egypt begins merely as a shadowy tradition.

It is his opinion that traces of the Egyptians of those days are to be sought in the rained cities of Central America, whose origin has never been determined or even been made the basis of any reasonable theory. Such a discovery would furnish a sub-

ory. Such a discovery would furnish a substantial basis for the legend of the lost Atlantis, and the theory invests those wonderful ruins with a new interest for the antiquarians,-Milwaukee Journal.

Intellectual Progress In Boston

It is not unaffectedly pleasant to the average Bostonian of mature years to sit and listen to Professor Drummond's talk about evolution. Those of scientific and of solving the chief difficulty heretofore highly differentiated intellects don't encountered in the cheap production of mind, neither do the young who have been brought up in the nurture and admonition of modern thought. But unscientific men and women, whose hair is lightly streaked with more or less silver, tints and 40 per cent in the brown are a little nervous while awaiting the shades, whereas ordinary clay contains avenings yet to come when Professor on an average only 33 per cent. The ma-terial is always a vexation to those determined to dissociate the natural and he spiritual, and for those it is not agreeable to be taken back into the physical memories of the faroff beginnings of the race, or to make those agile mental jumps which fling a man forward in the upward scale of being.—Boston Transcript.

VOTING SIX HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Safeguards Against Fraud Employed at City Elections In Florence. Nowadays when almost all the na-tions of the world are discussing the adoption of the Australian ballot system people little realize that such ideas are not as new as they seem. Well nigh six centuries ago in the city of Florence was organized a system of voting resembling in its essential principles the ballot recently adopted. This is not mere hear-say either, for a historian who lived at that time, Giovanni Villani, has given us a full account of it,

The city of Florence had begun to tire of the arrogance and bribing methods of the nobles about the year 1938, so it decided to pass laws by which fair elec-tions might be held. The city was gov-each name separately. The votes were collected by six "wise and discreet" monks. They consisted of white and black beans, and it took 68 black beans to elect a candidate. The counting was done secretly in a neighboring room by on a large scroll and also each name written separately on a little slip. These little slips were thrown into a bag. And then comes a quaint custom. The large convent of the Frati Predicatori.

The bags, one for each office in the government, were put in a strong chest that was locked, and the three keys that could open it were given, one to Frati Conversi di Settimo, one to the capitano

Florentine, no matter how much he hated the monks, would dare to commit such a crime in the sacristy of a church. He did not feel anxious to be burning in a hell fire after he died. But to go on with the election, for as yet no officer had been elected, he had only been de-clared eligible to the office.

When election time came around, the thirteenth day of every other month, the priors, with the general council of the people, would assemble and cause the chest to be brought forth. Then, in the presence of the entire assembly the bags containing the slips were taken out, and after being carefully mixed one slip was taken out from each, and the person whose name was on that slip was declared elected. Thus an entirely new set of officers, was chosen every time.

This mode of election, Villani tells us, "was ratified in a full parliament in the place of the priors where many people were congregated and where many speeches were made, praising the law and condemning to severe punishment those who might oppose it." And yet And yet we say socialism is essentially a thing of the present century.—Pittsburg Chronifield in the legislature, passed around the other day among his fellow solons a card which he found on his table upon returning to his law office. He had left the card bearing two words-"Return soon." During his absence a client had written underneath it, "This is a d—d lie." A second visitor to the office during the interval had been a worthy dea-con who had called to see Mr. French on church business, and apparently not noticing the language already inscribed had added his own message and signed his name. Fortunately Mr. French was able to distinguish between the two handwritings, and the deacon's standing remains secure.—Springfield (Mass.) Homestead.

> The Deacon's Reputation Is Safe. Lawyer French, who represents Pitts

An Oppressive Feeling. Johnny had been misbehaving while his mother was away, and on her return she talked very soberly to him about it, telling him that God was always with him and saw all he did. Johnny left his mother's room with a depressed look on his face and was going away from home when his dog ran after him. Johnny turned around desperately on the dog, crying out: "You go back—it's bad enough to have God tagging after me all the time."—New York Tribune.

How Flies Are Able to Taste.

The proboscis of the fig and the tongues of bees and ants are furnished with numerous delicate hairs set in minute pits. These are perhaps connected with the organ of taste, but though the exact locality of this sense in insects is uncertain, we know that the groups of cells in the tongues of animals, called taste bulbs, form in part the ends of the organ of taste. These vary in number, increasing in the higher animals. They are very close and exceedingly numerous in man, while the tongue of even the cow has some 35,000 taste bulbs. It would be interesting to know whether ach special taste excites a special group of nerves, and that only, thus corresponding to the auditory nerves. These taste bulbs were discovered in 1867. Each one consists of two kinds of cells, one set forming an outer protective covering, through an open-ing in which project from 5 to 10 of the true taste cells. Though important, they are not apparently any essential part of the are not apparently an essential part of the organ, for birds and reptiles have none, but neither have they a keen sense of taste, except perhaps the parrot. — Chambers' Journal

They are as strong as steel and can be made of any reasonable length, per-fectly uniform in diameter and so fine as to be beyond the power of any microscope yet made. The tail ends of these threads must be at least 10,000,000 times smaller than or dinary spun glass. Of course it is impossi-ble to manipulate these minute filaments, although there is no difficulty in measuring threads less than the one-thousandth part of an inch in diameter."—St. Louis Republic.

How Mountains Were Formed. How Mountains Were Formed.

Geologists agree that many thousands of years ago—they do not agree on the number of thousands—great icefields, like immense, glaciers, moved slowly out of the north over a large part of the United States and Europe. These glaciers were so thick that they have left on the top of the White mountains bowlders which they had carried hundreds of miles, and they had much to do with shaping the hills and valleys of New York, Pennsylvania and New England. The marks made by these glaciers land. The marks made by these glaciers as they ground and crushed their way over the rocks are still plainly visible in many places, and it is easy to trace the large bowlders they carried northward to regions where such stone occurs in large quanti-ties.—Harper's Young People.

A Close Call.

Edwin Anderson, who lives in the northern part of towm, near the old base ball park, narrowly escaped being burned alive in his room Friday night. At ten minutes past twelve o'clock he awoke almost suffocated by smoke, and found a stand and the wall at his bedside all ablaze, the lamp having exploded. In the stand was $120 dollars in cash of Mr. Anderson's money. His first thought was to get that, which he succeeded in doing with some difficulty. He then ran down stairs for water. He applied about fifteen pails of water to the blaze before he succeeded in extinguishing it. The stand was completely destroyed, while the wall received a very blaze before he succeeded in extinguishing it. The stand was completely destroyed, while the wall received a very severe scorching. Mr. Anderson was greatly excited over the affair, but he certainly did well in putting out the fire without the aid of any one.

SUCCESSFUL CELEBRATION. The celebration and pienic of the Scandinavian societies of the upper peninsula, held in Negaunee Saturday, was a success in every way. The atirom attending principally by the typhoid epidemic prevailing there at present, but the local lodge and all its friends were out in full force, while hundreds of people were down from Ishpeming.

The line of march was formed on the city square with five lodges, accompanied by three bands. The principal streets of the city were traversed, after which the societies marched to the picnic grounds at the Teal Lake grove.

Andrew Sandberg, a member of the Swedish Home society of Ishpeming, delivered the oration at the grove. After speaking briefly in his native tongue Mr. Sandberg concluded his remarks in English, explaining why the Scandinavians celebrated Midsummer Day and also extending a cordial welcome to everyone present.

Day and also extending a cordial welcome to everyone present.

The attendance at the picnic grounds during the day numbered over 1,000 people. The time was spent in dancing, swinging, boat riding, etc. An excellent dinner was served on the grounds and refreshments were procurable at all hours during the day.

The street railway line reaped a benefit from the affair, all the motor cars on the line being in use during the entire day. Round trip tickets from Ishpeming to Negaunee were issued to the members of the societies and their familes at fifteen cents each, and a great many of them were disposed of.

spared no pains to make this celebration an exceptionally fine one. At 9 o'clock 83 hard bat. the members of the society, headed by the English Oak band, will march to St. Paul's church where they will hear mass. After the services at the church they will march to the Adelphi rink, where dinner will be served to the members and all others desiring it.

The tickets will sell at thirty-five cents for reserved seats, twenty-five cents for general admission and fifteen cents for children under twelve years of age.

Will Not Be Moved.

Mr. Driscol! has finally decided to let the postoffice remain where it is, having come to that conclusion yesterday. He flew at the officer like a wild cat and had not the "limb of the law" been made of the right stuff he might have got the worst of the racket. The officer and his assailant fought several rounds, in which both took and gave some very hard raps. Finally the officer downed the man and succeeded in getting the "come-alongs" on his wrists. The fellow then refused to jail, but the officer downed the man and succeeded him along the sidewalk for a considerable distance, when Marshal Pauli came to his assistance and between them they got the man to the cooler, He will appear in court this morning.

Low Sunday Excursion Fares Bring Up-the-Road People Down in Full Force.

MARQUETTE RIFLES GO TO PIC-TURED ROCKS FRIDAY

A Boy's Close Call From a Rifle Ball. Unbroken Record for a Year. Other News Notes.

THE BALTIMORE A FAVORITE. The cool and decidedly threatening day did not prevent the first offer of low Sunday rates to Marquette by the D., S. S. & A. from bringing out the np-the-road people in large numbers. A couple of carloads came down from Ishpeming and Negaunee and other points were also well represented and this, too, notwithstanding the fact that D., S. S. & A. from bringing out the Saturday was a holiday for both French Scandinavian citizens.

The excursion steamer "City of New Baltimore" also scored a great success when it came time for the train home when it came time for the train home at 11:15 the depot platforms were densely crowded. The train pulled out on time with ten coaches and two engines. Part of the coaches were to be dropped at Ishpeming but as there were three carloads of emigrants on it will be a heavy train clear through.

Everyone who came down appeared to enjoy the day greatly and it is safe to say that if next Sunday dawns with the promise of being a hot and uncomfortable day up-the-road "the Marquette route" will have its hands full getting the crowds down here.

To the Pictured Rocks.

The Marquette Rifles have decided upon an excursion to the Pictured Rocks Friday on the steamer City of New Baltimore, taking this trip instead of giving their annual ball as usual. Invitations will be issued for the excursion just as if one of the usual armory parties was on the cards. The invitations will be issued today and the charge will be $1 per couple, extra ladies 50 cents each. The affair will have something the nature of a basket picnic, the ladies furnishing the refreshments. Music will be provided and all anticipate a grand time. The start will be made from the steamer's berth at the foot of Main street at 7:30 a. m. sharp and it is expected that the harbor will be reached on the return early in the avening. on the return early in the evening.

A Very Close Call.

A lad named Grant, living on South Seventh street near Fisher, had a very narrow escape from death Saturday morning. He was out with another boy who had a 22-calibre rifle and who gaage 2 foot 3 inches.

| Some of the control of the gun while he was a sked him to hold the gun was a sked him boy who had a 22-calibre rifle and who asked him to hold the gun while he lowered the hammer. In passing it from one to the other both boysdropped the rifle which struck the ground so heavily that it was discharged by the shock, the ball cutting through Grant's thumb and then striking him in the forehead at such an angle that it ploughed a furrow along the bone straight up from the bridge of the nose. Dr. Dawson was called and says that the youngster will speedily recover from both wounds. Had the ball struck him squarely in the forehead death him squarely in the forehead death would have been certain.

A Year's Unbroken Record

The following pupils in the Marquette public schools were neither absent nor tardy during the school year absent nor tardy during the school year inst grade: Ida Berry, Mary Wiseman, first grade: Hattie Mitchell, fourth grade; Nellie Christenson, Ella Lawrence, Lottie Pendill, fifth grade; George Preston, Ellen Erickson, Ben-George Preston, Ellen Erickson, Ben-George Preston, Sixth grade; ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNERS, And all others at nie Gill. George Beanston, sixth grade; Fred Molitor, Lonie Byrne, Mabel Grant, seventh grade.

The best average of attendance for the year was in the room of Mr. Richardson and Miss Carsey, 95.4.

Strange Business Methods.

The Lake Superior and Lake Michigan Transportation company has a strange way of treating patrons, it would seem. Some of the lady teachers in the Marquette city schools had LANDLOOKERS ALWAYS ON HAND. engaged staterooms on the Jay Gould over two weeks in advance but when they went down to take the steamer they were notified that at Mackinaw they were notified that at Mackinaw they must be prepared to give up their staterooms as a large party of Elks would come on board there. They declined to take their chances in any such manner and were very indignant at their treatment. Passengers who had secured staterooms at Duluth for the round trip were also notified that they must give up their berths at Mackinaw and this made things even more sultry. Some of the ladies who took the steamer at Duluth left it here and compelled the company to buy them tickets through to Chicago by rail.

Another Washout.

Saturday night the bridge on the Presque Isle road at the break made by the Dead river freshet was practically complete. During the night a dam up the river was opened and as all the the river was opened and as all the sluice gates at the mouth were closed the water rose so high that it washed out the road on the farther side of the bridge, once more cutting Presque Isle off from approach by carriages. Only the road and approach to the bridge suffered but it will take some time to fill the gap. The street committee will go out this morning to examine the washout, determine the responsibility and decide termine the responsibility and decide what is to be done about it.

Rivals Defeat Setters.

The Rivals defeated the Setters of Ishpeming yesterday afternoon by a score of 18 to 7. The batteries were Holmes and Martin for the Rivals and Lynn, Webb and Weimer for the Setters. The Rivals fell on Lynn hard ane he had to be taken from the box.

J. E. TRET

The batting became a regular cannonade, Barth and Holmes getting three-baggers. The star feature of the game was Tom Pfice's wonderful one-handed stop of a red-hot liner at short in the fifth with a resultant double play. The battery work of the Rivals was also worthy of praise.
