One Hundred and Seventeenth Anniversary of the Independence of the United States of America.

IN THE MIRACLE OF THE AGE CHICAGO, June 29 .- All interests in and around the World's Fair just now seem to be centering on the big celetion to be held on the Fourth of July. From this time on there will be no special day until the Fourth. In anticipation of that great event all the employes at the exposition are busily engaged in making extensive preparations. The railways, elevated and surface, and the steamboat lines are making arrangements already for handling the crowd. The Illinois Central is preparing to run its special World's Fair trains into the big terminal station on the grounds and all the other roads leading to Jackson Park are making arrangements to handle a great number of people. If the weather continues as pleasant until after the Fourth as it has been for the last fortnight the World's Fair officials mines and the prospect that the suspensay over half a million people will attend the celebration.

Mr. Steven-son was among the first visitors to the grounds yesterday morning and spent World's Fair last night. Mr. Steven-son was among the first visitors to the grounds yesterday morning and spent the entire day taking in the inferesting sights. When evening came he con-cluded to stay for the electric illumination and open air concert on Adminis-tration plaza. It was after 10 o'clock when the concert ended and the vice when the concert ended and the vice president was weary and footsore from fifteen hours vigorous tramping about the grounds and sight-seeing. He viewed the electric display from the window of Secretary, Dickinson's office and when the show was over remarked that he was tired out. Chief Clerk Poores heard the remarked of the Rogers heard the remark and at on informed Mr. Stevenson that there was a comfortable bed in a small room adjoining the office which was at his service. The vice president at once ac-cepted the offer. He was up bright and early this morning making the rounds of the exhibits in the big buildings.

SOUVENIR COIN MUDDLE.

The World's Fair officials authorize the statemement that there is no truth ment intended to issue this money in souvenir coins, thus practically throw-ing them on the market, the fair officials do not seem to know and the statement is not only authoritatively denied by the treasurer of the exposition but such action would, in the opinion of able lawyers, be entirely illegal, the govlawyers, be entirely lilegal, the gov-ernment having no power whatever to generally issue a special coin mintéd for a special purpose. It is stated that the attorney general has already ex-pressed the opinion that any such ac-tion as that reported would be entirely illegal. illegal.

While coming to San Francisco on the ferry boat Tuesday evening she met O'Neil, with whom she had a slight acquaintance. He is fifty years of age, has a family and has been regarded as a respectable man. He invited Mrs. Griffes to the saloon and they remained there together several hours, during which time they became very much in-toxicated. Mr. Will H. Low's Design for Columbian Exposition Diplomas to Ex-

toxicated. It is not known definitely just how the crime occurred but there is every reason to believe that O'Neil attempted to assault Mrs. Griffes and when she resisted he picked up the bouquet with the wooden handle, the only thing in the nature of a weapon in the room, and made the brutal attack. The woman made no outcry and after O'Neil had completed the horrible mutilation he left the saloon. O'Neil was in a drunk-

WEARING THE TARTAN AND PLAID. An Interesting Phase of Scottish Charae ter Brought Out In Debate.

There was an interesting debate in the English house of commons a few days ago touching what is probably, next to the Roman toga, the most famous article of clothing that has ever been worn by man. It arose out of a plan to consolidate the kilted regiment known as the Seventy-ninth or "Cameronian High-landers" with the Scots Grenadier Guards, a regiment which has nothing Scotch about it beyond the fact that Scott was the name of its first colonel.

This plan was no sooner noised abroad than it excited in Scotland the deepest indignation, being considered a deliberate attempt to blot from existence one of the renowned highland regiments which in kilt and tartan have, under the British flag, filled the world with Scottish glory. It is now nearly a century and a and for fully a century they were, if not highland, really Scotch regiments. As the supply of real highlanders began to run low, either through emigration or dislike of soldiering, the lowlanders be gan to feel themselves highlanders under the magic influence of Scott's novels. Thoseonly who remember the account which Macaulay gives of the loathing with which the lowland Scotch in the eighteenth century looked on the high-land garb and highland manners and customs will be able to appreciate the force of the spell by which Scott succeeded, early in the nineteenth century, in disposing nearly every Scotchman to the notion that the kilt, the tartan, the philabeg and blue bonnet were his original national raiment, in which he looked his best and which nothing but the advance seized in their early married life completed the conquest which the Wizard of the North had begun and converted nearly all male Scots into true highlanders to whom trousers or "breeks" were a genuine incumbrance. Every man who came near Balmoral castle or aspired to deer stalking, grouse shooting and salmon killing, put on the kilt and Assistant Secretary Reynolds of the tried to get his legs browned, as the only costume for a persona grata. A Letter From Naples.

Life is not a newspaper and certainly not a sensational one, but the following extracts from a personal letter written from Naples and by a person in whom we have implicit confidence impart a bit of news which is of some interest to the American public.

The doctors sent here from the United and emigrants from this port are in a state of despair. They have sent cablegram after cablegram to the home authorities stating that the regulations are not being observed. From different ports that they have inspected there are now being shipped to the United States rags the cholera season there, rags from Jerupatients and rags from Egypt that have been used by people suffering from that dreadful ophthalmia, which is so con-

A Thousand Dollars For a 2-cent Stamp.

There was a notable gathering of phi-latelists at the Real Estate Exchange the other day, it being the second day's sale of the De Coppet collection. Every stamp collector knew that there would be offered some of the rarest stamps of the different issues of British Guiana. The sale opened with rare issues of British Honduras, and though these brought good prices every one was waiting for lot 358-British Guiana, 1850 issue, 2 cents, circular, on rose paper, cut round, ter mornings when the smoke from chimbut neatly mounted on a piece of the neys goes straight up until it is lost in the same paper cut square, used. This stamp is one of six extant. Three were in the Tapling collection and are now in the British museum, one is in a private collection in England and another in France.

The auctioneer, J. W. Scott, hoped that this one specimen, which was yet in and especially through the action of the United States, would remain here. The bidding was begun at $600 and went rapidly upward until it got into $900, and the stamp was at last knocked down to R. F. Albrecht for $1,010, the highest price ever given for a single stamp at au auction sale .- New York Tribune

Tomatoes For Home Use

My method of raising tomatoes for family use I have found quite successful. The first requisite is good, strong, potted plants, so far advanced as to be ready to ground prepared beforehand, making the hills about four feet apart and working up the soil to the depth of eight inches where the plants are to go. I find good soil works as well for tomatoes as for other crops. After the middle of May or as soon as warm weather has fairly come the plants are transferred from the pots, the earth and roots adhering in such a way that transplanting does not in the Professor Falb of Vienna has attained some notoriety from the fact that he predicted the coming of both series of earthquake shocks from which the island of Zante has recently suffered.

Earthquake prognosticationshave been recorded as coming true in not a few in-stances, but there is reason to believe States to look after the shipment of rags that the fulfillment of the prophecies was purely accidental. Seismologists are not likely to give Professor Falb much credit for prescience. They will say he merely happened to foretell what was coming. You have all heard the humming and singing of telegraph and telephone wires as you passed the poles along the streets. No doubt you have concluded that it is caused by the action of the wind on the wires and given it no further thought. But it is not true that the singing is caused by the wind, and if you are at all observing you will notice that often the humming sound is to be heard cold winclouds, and when the frost on the wires is as fuzzy and thick as a roll of chenille fringe

The wind has nothing to do with the sound, and according to an Austrian scientist the vibrations are due to the changes of atmospheric temperature cold, as a lowering of temperature induces a shortening of the wires extending over the whole of the conductor. A considerable amount of friction is produced on the supporting bells, thus in-ducing sounds both in the wires and the

But a part of its enormous good fortune is that although it is a plain city it has the mountains for near neighbors -a long peaked and scalloped line of purple or pink or blue or snowclad green, according to when they are viewed. There are 200 miles or more of the Rockies in sight in clear weather. As there are but 56 cloudy days in the year, and as these mountains elevate and inspire even the dullest souls, I think we can forget that it is a city of the plains and ever associate it with the mountains hereafter .- Julian Ralph in Harper's.

THE "FLY COP'S" BLUNDER.

He Caught the Pickpocket Whe Gave Him the Chills. He was just in from the wilds of the "Umteenth" ward, and the "pull" his alderman had with the chief had secured his promotion to the dignity of a central

"fly cop." The importance of his new position weighed heavily upon him, and he strug-gled bravely to uphold it. The superior-ity of a fly cop over an ordinary patrol-man traveling his beat burned deeply in his brain, and he looked haughtily at those erstwhile acquaintances who still wear the blue coats and brass buttons. One day the new man, with the unfortanate who had been told off as his part-ner, were sent down to watch for pickpockets on the State street cable line. There was little success until suddenly the newly made fly cop grasped his part-ner's arm. "There's a fellow I've had my eye on for some time." he said proud-ly, "and now I'm going to get him. There he is, the tall guy with the soft hat." The experienced man looked and smiled oddly. "Just as well now as any other time," he murmured softly to himself. Then he said, "I don't suppose you want any help."

Fired with visions of glory and the idea of making a single handed capture, the new man answered. "No, siree, I'll take him myself."

Then his partner walked around the corner whistling in a subjued tone and muttering something about "fools having to take their medicine," although there wasn't a doctor or sic; man in sight. The man from the Umteenth boarded the car and flashed his star on the conductor, who, of course, pulled the bell at once. Then the ambitious detective walked up to the tall man and said: "I've got you now. Come along with me." The gentleman turned and said: "I guess you've made a mistake, my friend. $3,000, didn't he?"

A GOLD BRICK TRICK.

N THE ASSAY OFFICE THE PEOPLE HAD LOADS OF FUN.

An Interesting and Mirth Producing Encounter of an Innocent Looking Jayhawker With a Lot of Exceedingly Smart Bank Clerks Who Knew It All.

What a jay he looked! The hayseed was dropping out of his pockets, and his ankempt whiskers were sporting with the wind as he marched into the United States assay office in Wall street and deposited upon a desk a big carpet bag, which he set down with a resounding bang. All the clerks stood around and grinned. It was the old story. "Mr. Assay Man," he said, "I have here a gold brick that I"____

But he was interrupted with a roar of laughter. A young man in a corner nearly rolled on the floor with merri-ment. A banker's clerk who had come in to inquire about a gold shipment gig-gled till he was crimson.

"Sucker born every minute," he said. "Sucker born every minute," he said. "Same old yarn. You jayhawkers wouldn't get taken in so often if you read the papers. Oh, Lord, what a fool you must be!" The old man looked puzzled. "If you will kindly talk English," he remarked, "you and I will be able to understand each other better. What do you mean by calling me a fool?"

"Precisely what I say," spoke up the banker's clerk. "You've been taken in by the gold brick swindle." "Swindle, eh?"

"Yes, swindle. You met a man from California, didn't you, who had a gold brick tied up in a red handkerchief and an Indian with him? Man said the brick

The geness you've made a mistake, my friend.
You don't know me."
"But I do, my boy, and that's the trouble. Come along with me. I've been tooking out for you for the last two weeks."
The people in the car were staring, and a couple of men began looking for their pocketbooks. Then the tall man said:
"Well, you'd better take me to the station."
"Well, sou'd better take me to the station."
"The people in the tall intend to do. 1
"The did."
"Gh, what a larkt" laughed the banker's clerk, and every one in the office was on a broad grin at the mystification of the jayhawker. "The Californian said the Indian knew where there were a lot more gold bricks and they've gone to get them. And then they sold you a lump of lead covered with gold paint that is worth about $4.63, and you've come down here to the United States assay office to the vertice of yourself." And station." "That's just what I intend to do. won't call the wagon either." He looked for his partner, but he was not around. So much the better—he alone would get the credit for the arrest. As they walked over toward the city hall the patrolman on the corners salut-ed, and the Umteenth man was in the seventh heaven. His bravery was recog-mized. As they reached the door of the central station the officers looked up from their game of "cinch" and saluted with a "How are you, chief?" Then they looked at the capturer, and as they took that time was a favorite topic of conversation and a safe conclusion, the young woman thought, in this respect .- New York Press

A Youngster's Quick Reply. In one of the kindergartens the teacher was endeavoring to familiarize the children with the words "cold" and "hot" at sight without spelling them by letters. When she asked them what they would get if they went out of doors in winter without their coats and pointed at the word, they caught the cue at once and answered "cold" instantly, but "hot" proved a puzzler for a moment, "Now, Mary," said the teacher to the little girl in the end seat, "suppose that you were standing right close up in f.ont you were standing right close up in 1-out of a great big fire, just flaming and flar-ing and burning end blazing away—what would you get?" A Scheme That Failed.

A certain young man invented a novel plan for causing his landlady to linger in regard to asking him for her much overdue board bill. He was several weeks behind, and his landlady was ser-ionsly contemplating ejectment. He was painfully conscious of the tardiness. Last Wednesday he addressed a postal to himself stating that $40 was left to his credit in a certain local bank. All would have been well had not the landlady examined the postal closely. She discovered that the missive was written in the same handwriting as that of her de-linquent boarder. He was ejected unceremoniously the same evening the postal was received at the house.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A British scientist recently stated that if a man weighing 140 pounds were placed under a hydraulic press and squeezed flat the result would be 105 pounds of water and 35 pounds of dry residue.
