Wheels of Legislation Now Thoroughly Oiled Ready to Begin Turning.

NOW READY FOR BUSINESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The first senate session of the Fifty-third congress convened at high noon today pursuant to the constitutional provisions. "The inaudible and noiseless foot of time" had apparently tripped lightly through the lives of senators during the brief vacation period and brighter faces greeted one another than when thirty odd days ago, tired and showing signs of a parliamentary struggle unequalled in the history of the government, the representatives of the states left the national Capitol. All traces of that memorable battle seemed effaced and the greeting amongst senators bore the evidence of warm fraternal friendship and personal regard.

The chamber presented a handsome appearance, arrayed in its winter apparel. A Brussels carpet pleasing to the eye and soft to the touch had supplanted the light chinz matting which covered the floor during the recent extraordinary session. Highly polished desks and chairs awaited senatorial use while the happy owners of sixteen smiling little faces sat on each of the steps of the vice president's rostrum, eager to carry out the wishes of the senators. On some of the desks were floral designs and flowers whose fragrance sweetened the atmosphere and lent an additional charm to the scene.

As the massive clock near the main entrance announced the hour of 12 the blind chaplain was led up to the vice-president's desk and, after an eloquent prayer, while all the senators present in the chamber remained standing Vice-President Stevenson called the senate to order. At the suggestion of Senator Sherman the roll of the senate was called and fifty-six senators responded. The usual resolution notifying the house of representatives of the meeting of the senate and the resolution for two members to join a similar committee of the house to wait on the president of the United States and inform him that congress had assembled and was ready to receive any communication he may desire to make were offered and agreed to. The chairman appointed Mr. M. McPherson (Dem. N. J.) and Mr. Sherman (Rep. O.) as the committee on the part of the senate.

After a resolution had been adopted that the hour of daily meeting of the senate shall be 12 o'clock meridian, on the motion of Senator Harris, a recess at 12:10 was taken for one hour to enable the committee to wait on the president.

At the expiration of the recess at 1:10 p. m. the senate resumed its session and a message from the house of representatives was received stating that a quorum of the house was present and of the appointment of a committee to join a similar committee of the same previously appointed to wait upon the president. Then another recess of twenty minutes was taken upon motion of Mr. Harris (Tenn.).

Promptly at 1:33 the senate resumed its session and Mr. McPherson, of the committee to wait upon the president, appeared at the bar of the senate and announced that the president would immediately communicate with the house in writing.

Secretary Pruden at once stepped forward and delivered the message and it was laid before the senate by the vice president who directed its reading. The secretary of the senate, Mr. Cox, then began reading the message.

Numerous petitions were presented and many bills introduced and referred to appropriate committees. A joint resolution permitting Colonel Anson Mills, U. S. A., to serve as engineer on the commission to survey and fix the boundary between the United States and Mexico was passed.

A message was received from the house announcing the death of Hon. Charles O'Neil and Hon. William Lilly, late representatives from Pennsylvania. Mr. Cameron (Pa.) offered a resolution expressive of the sorrow of the senate at the sad intelligence and Senators Quay, Manderson, Carry, Smith and Kyle were appointed a committee on the part of the senate to attend the funeral. As an additional mark of respect to the deceased, the senate then at 3:53 p. m. adjourned.

HOUSE IS FORMALLY OPENED.

Three Hundred Members Listen to the President's Message.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The encircling galleries of the house, except those reserved for the president and diplomatic corps, which looked gloomy and vacant, were filled to overflowing with eager and expectant persons when Speaker Crisp, dignified and stately, ascended the rostrum at high noon today and rapped the regular session of the Fifty-third congress to order. Fully three hundred members were in their seats. Conspicuous upon the floor were the two vacant seats of Representatives O'Neil of Pennsylvania, the father of the house, and his colleague, Mr. Lilly, the representative at large from the Keystone state. Their desks were draped in black and covered with floral tributes.

Among the distinguished visitors on the floor when the house convened were ex-Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson of Michigan. Rev. Bagby in his invocation, referred feelingly to the death of "Father" O'Neil and Mr. Lilly. According to the rule at the opening of the session the speaker directed the clerk to call the roll in order to officially ascertain the presence of a quorum. The roll call showed 240 members present. General Grosvener of Ohio then escorted H. S. Bundy of Ohio, elected to succeed the late Representative Enochs to the bar of the house and the speaker with uplifted hand administered the oath of office to him.

The formal resolutions necessary to set the wheels of the legislative machine in motion were adopted, the first by Sayers, notifying the senate that a quorum was present in the house and that it was ready to proceed to business, and the second by Mr. Wilson of the appointment of a committee of three to join a like committee of the senate and inform the president that congress was ready to receive any communications he had to make. The speaker appointed Messrs. Wilson, Outhwaite and Burrows.

Mr. Griffin, the successor of the late Mr. Chipman of Detroit, Mich., was sworn in and following this various reports of bureau officers were taken from the speaker's table and formally laid before the house. At 1:25 the committee appointed by the house marched down the center aisle and faced Mr. Wilson, the chairman, and announced that they had discharged their duty and that the president had said that he would immediately communicate a message in writing.

At 1:35 p. m. Mr. Pruden from the white house appeared with the president's message and immediately laid the message before the house. Clerk Kerr read it in a clear, firm voice. The galleries remained silent and the members leaning forward in their chairs listened attentively to Mr. Cleveland's views as they fell from the lips of the clerk.

As the reference to the Hawaiian affair was reached the members straightened up and gave the closest possible attention but no expression either of approval or disapproval was indulged in. There seemed to be a general air of disappointment, however, that so little space had been given to it. A roar of applause greeted the conclusion of the reading of the message.

General Bingham who had been selected by the Pennsylvania delegation to make the announcement of the deaths of Representatives O'Neil and Lilly was then recognized and soon after the house adjourned.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Synopsis of the Message Delivered Before Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Cleveland's annual message opened by recommending to congress a careful examination of the detailed statements and well supported recommendations contained in reports of heads of departments.

GENERAL FOREIGN POLICY.

While our foreign relations the past year have not at all times been free from perplexities no embarrassing situations remain that will not yield to a spirit of fairness and love of justice which, joined with consistent firmness, characterizes the truly American foreign policy. The struggle between the established government of Brazil and certain officers of its navy calls for attentive but impartial observation on our part. Therefore it is deemed necessary to disavow the unauthorized action of the late naval commander in saluting the revolting Brazilian flag.

The question of the so-called legation right of asylum was presented anew in Cuba by the unauthorized action of the late United States minister in receiving into his official residence two persons who had just failed in an attempt at revolution and against whom criminal charges were prevailing. Under no circumstances can permission be given to the government to permit under an ill-defined fiction of extraterritoriality to interrupt the administration of criminal justice in countries to which they are accredited. It is recommended that treaties for reciprocal extradition should be concluded with all those countries with which the United States has not already made such arrangements. Negotiations are in progress with Great Britain with the view to such concerted action and will make award and regulations agreed upon by Bering Sea tribunal arbitration practically effective.

The government of Honduras promptly disavowed firing upon an American mail steamer at Anapala and expressed a sincere regret for the occurrence. The Nicaragua Canal company, unfortunately, had become seriously embarrassed financially but generous treatment has been extended to it by the government of Nicaragua. That that undertaking should be accomplished under distinctly American auspices admits of no question.

Trouble in the Samoan islands and the events leading up to it signally illustrate the impolicy of an entangling alliance with foreign powers.

THE HAWAIIAN AFFAIR.

Just prior to the installation of the present administration the existing government of Hawaii was suddenly overthrown and treaty annexation negotiated between the provisional government of the islands and the United States and submitted to the senate for ratification. The treaty was withdrawn for examination and Hon. James H. Blount of Georgia dispatched to Honolulu as special commissioner to make an impartial investigation. After a thorough examination Blount submitted his report showing beyond all question that the constitutional government of Hawaii was subverted with the active aid of our representatives for examination and Hon. THE MINSTREL.

He thought he once could sing A song of love and spring, But stammered, though he held a full-strung lyre;

Because he lacked the art Which later years impart; Because the skill was less than the desire.

And now he seems to know Just how the tune should flow, But misses the young ardor once so strong. The impulse of the heart Is slower than the art; The skill to sing is better than the song.

The sobering touch of time Holds back the hasty rhyme That in the heat of youth once spurred control; For snatched in webs of thought His flying dreams are caught; Age looks beyond the senses to the soul.

Ah, could the singer's art Assume the loftier part As once the lowlier in the realm of song; Ah, could life's grander themes Flow like the early stream!

What minstrel then would say he had lived too long? —Christopher P. Cranch, in Harper's Magazine.

"DEAR OLD FRIENDS."

Delight and Astonishment of an Unexpected Meeting.

I had just come out of the post-office when I caught sight of a face that seemed familiar to me.

It was that of a man about my own age, with bronzed features and a somewhat attenuated figure.

As I was trying to recall when and where I had seen him before our eyes met. I immediately perceived that our recognition had been mutual, for he came toward me with a frank expression of pleasure and held out his hand, saying:

"Hello, old fellow, who'd have thought of seeing you here?" I don't know why he said this, and of course, I don't attempt to defend it; but it is a style of address affected by some men who are as profoundly astonished if they meet you in a restaurant as if they had run across you in the mines of Siberia. I felt a little bit annoyed at his want of originality; however, I smiled pleasantly, and said, as I shook hands:

"Well, if you come to that, old fellow, who'd have thought of seeing you here?" We stood opposite each other for a few seconds, I smirking somewhat empty at the nature of our greeting, and struggling to recall his name; and he, with his head slightly on one side, and an expression of courteously suppressed amusement on his face, as if my presence on the steps of the post-office was one of those inexplicable freaks of chance for which it is hopeless to seek to assign any reasonable law.

I gave him a few seconds to digest his astonishment, and then, feeling that the silence was becoming a little embarrassing, I said, inconsequently:

"Well, what have you been doing all this time?"

"Well," he replied, "I've been in Australia."

"Oh, ah!" I ejaculated, as if it had for a moment slipped my memory; "why, you went there"—and I hesitated, as though calculating within myself the exact day of his unknown departure—

"Three years ago," he put in shortly, "and quite long enough it is, too."

I ran over in my mind my acquaintances of three years ago, but could recall no trace of a recollection of my new companion; so, to gain time and to gather fresh information, I asked:

"And what sort of a time have you had?"

"Oh, much about the same as before," he answered, with a slightly puzzled air.

I candidly admit that the sensible thing for me to have done would have been to own up and admit that I had forgotten my friend's personality. Unfortunately, I am one of those painfully constituted people who shrink with nervous horror from anything in the nature of an explanation, and, in addition, I felt that I had gone too far to cry off without some appearance of insincerity. Besides, he seemed to congratulate himself so warmly upon what he insisted upon looking on as our providential meeting, that my lips were sealed, and I felt confirmed in the idea that if I let things slide a little longer, his name would recur to my mind.

He had slipped his arm through mine as we walked up-town with an easy sense of good-fellowship, and said: "Of course you'll dine with me this evening. Now, don't say you are engaged," he added, as I hesitated for an instant between my desire to have more of my companion and my disinclination to dine under false pretenses; "you know they'll be awfully disappointed if they hear I haven't met you and let you off without a long talk, and I join them too."

I felt constrained to consent against my better judgment and added, in a playfully solicitous manner:

"And how are they all?"

"Oh, they are all tip-top—all except the Colonel," after a pause and with a slightly subdued air—"I don't think he has ever quite got over that affair."

"Ah," I rejoined, shaking my head sympathetically, "one doesn't get over that sort of thing in a day, you know; but the others?"

"What others?" he said, bluntly.

"I hesitated, and rejoined, vaguely: "Were there some others?"

"He pondered heavily for a few seconds before replying: "Yes, I believe there were some others, but they made no difference."

I was just murmuring: "Very likely not," when he turned to me abruptly and said: "I hope you don't think he came badly out of that business?"

His hand seemed to relax its pressure on my arm, as if he was preparing himself for some censure or act of coldness on my part.

I felt touched by this little proof of his sensitiveness to my good opinion, and pressed his fingers as I rejoined, warmly: "I never, never heard any one speak otherwise than highly of his conduct in the matter."

He stopped and said, shortly: "Why, who knows any thing about it?"

"I thought you and I had it all to ourselves."

"Yes, yes," I faltered, and added,

"you know you have been away for some time, old fellow."

It did not seem to fit in very well; but he accepted it as an argument, and said:

"There is something in that, but don't let people talk about it. I know he relies upon you and me."

There was something so touching in the reliance of this unknown, that a glow of sympathetic affection warmed my heart, and I resolved on the spot that his confidence should not be misplaced. Come what might, the secret of that old man's life should never be betrayed by me. Others might make it a subject of club gossip or tea-table tittle-tattle, but no word of mine should add one drop to the cup of bitterness that had been placed at his lips. There are passages in the lives of all of us which we would wish to have buried in oblivion—the thoughtless follies of youth, the unworthy ambitions of manhood, and the selfish jealousies of old age; who is there that can stand up and say there is no episode in his life he would not have expunged, forgotten or condoned?

We had turned into a restaurant for a bit of dinner, and those thoughts passed through my mind as we ate our fish. My companion pondered sadly for a few seconds, and then, shaking himself together as though to throw off an unpleasant train of thought, said:

"Now, tell me about yourself, your wife and family."

Before I had time to reflect upon what might be the result of my disclosure, I blurted out the simple truth:

"I have no wife."

He looked intensely surprised, as he said: "My dear fellow, I am very sorry, I never heard"—He paused, inquiringly, and again I blurted out:

"I never had one."

A look of extreme pain spread over his face as he heard this. He leaned across the table, and laying his hand on mine, said, with infinite sympathy: "I see it all; I ought not to have asked you. Forgive me, old fellow, and forget that I have said these words."

I gave him a clammy hand and turned away, lest he should detect the conscious guiltiness of my face. I had become confirmed in a suspicion that had been gradually dawning upon my mind, that I had never set eyes upon my host before that day, and that I had been carried away by some inexplicable chance resemblance to some remote acquaintance, and by his own apparent cordial recognition of myself. There was no blinking the facts, however. Everybody that he mentioned was a total stranger to me, while every incident that I mentioned with a view to drawing him out seemed to find his mind a blank. My sole object now was to extricate myself from my false position without detection. I got absolutely and hopelessly involved in fable and falsehood, and after having thus lightly taken away the good name of the suppositions mother of my children, a sort of despair took possession of me, and a wild desire to avoid exposure or explanation at any cost.

The dinner was good, the wine excellent, and my host geniality itself. We sat late and drank freely, and over our cups I blushed to think of the people I married, the old friends I buried and the characters I took away. But he would have news, and what was I to do? Much of my information seemed to afford him matter for astonishment, and often he ejaculated:

"You don't tell me so," as I conveyed some specially startling piece of personal news.

However, the time for departure came at last, and my mind was torn with conflicting desires to escape detection and to ascertain his identity.

"You'll come and see us," he said cordially, as we shook hands preliminary to leaving.

"Yes, certainly," I replied; "but where are you putting up now?"

"Oh, the same old quarters," he returned.

"What is the best way to get there?" I asked, as a last and altogether desperate hope.

"You can't do better than take a cab," he said; and we parted never to meet again.—St. James' Gazette.

WRONGHEADED PEOPLE.

Those with Whom It is Difficult to Get Along.

Among the most unpleasant people one is compelled to rub shoulders with on life's highway are the class whose minds take hold of every thing, as it were, the wrong end foremost. They are usually as obstinate as perverse, and the false inferences they draw from misapprehended premises they adhere to with as much tenacity as if they were Gospel truths. One knows not how to deal with such incorrigibles. Good-humored rallying they are as likely as not to mistake for studied insult, kind words for humbug, endeavors to instruct and convince for airs of superiority; and whatever one may do or say with a view of benefiting them, they mistake for insidious attempts to get on their blind side. Their field of moral vision is filled with a mist of suspicion which distorts every thing, and it is in vain to reason with them; for you can no more do away with their absurd impressions than you can wipe out graven letters with a sponge. Error, we suppose, is to them what truth is to right-headed men and women, and they cling to it because they believe in it. They are objects of commiseration; yet, being unabatable nuisances, it is prudent to give them a wide berth.

It is really a sad thing to be predisposed by nature to misconceive and misconstrue; but it is equally unpleasant to be misunderstood and misconstrued. We, therefore, make it a rule to have as little as possible to do with inveterately wrongheaded people.—N. Y. Ledger.

When the tongue comes out it spreads and the end divides into two broad, flat leaves that are planted flat down on the food that is to be stolen.

But if the food should be hard and the fly cannot get a good hold of it he touches a little muscle spring and the smooth surface of his tongue roughens up like a file.

HE ROBBED THE CHURCH.

Sacreligious Thief Loots the Missionary Boxes of the Methodist Church.

RAID NETTED HIM ABOUT TWENTY DOLLARS.

Poor Committee Formulates Plans for Distribution of Relief—Winthrop Miners Are Still Out.

MISSIONARY BOXES LOOTED.

Some unknown thief gained access to the Division street Methodist church Wednesday night by forcing open one of the doors and robbed the missionary contribution boxes of their contents. The thief evidently knew where the boxes were as the drawer in which they were kept was the only one broken open. The missionary society has heretofore allowed their contributions to remain in the boxes for several weeks at a time. It is estimated that the boxes contained between $18 and $20.

They Are Still Out.

The Winthrop mine is still idle, the miners not yet having decided to return to work. The men held a meeting at the mine yesterday morning but no action with reference to stopping the pumps. It is hoped that a settlement between the men and the management will soon be effected, as every day the mine remains idle means hundreds of dollars lost to the men.

Poor Committee's Plans.

The poor committee appointed by Mayor Osborn held a meeting at the office of the mayor Sunday afternoon, at which a secretary and treasurer were selected and a sub-committee of investigation, etc., appointed. Hon. John Jones was chosen receiver. He will take charge of all contributions and will provide, free of charge, a place for their storing. Those who have clothing, etc., to donate should send it to him. There is especial need of garments for children and the committee will gladly accept anything in this line that the people can give.

The committee suggests that the different churches and societies form committees for relief work, distribution to be made by the mayor's committee. This would avoid duplications and secure the greatest possible good to those in want. The committee will be pleased to meet with those who are interested in the work and to aid in any way to the accomplishment of the greatest amount of good.

Making Good Progress.

The builders of the new engine house at the Salisbury mine have made exceedingly lively progress thus far considering the weather. The side walls of the main building are completed and the trusses are now being put on the roof. The main structure is 131 feet long by 41 feet in width. The wing for the pumping plant will be 24 feet square. The building will be enclosed this week and the work distribution to the engines and boilers will be started. The contractors, Chausse Bros., as well as Henry Swartz, who did the brick work, have labored hard to get the building ready for use as soon as possible. During the recent heavy snow storms they kept their men at work almost steadily. The bricklayers are finishing up the gables at present and will have them ready by the time the trusses are all in place. From present indications the company will have their machinery transferred from the old to the new house and in working order much sooner than they anticipated.

Hughes Will Retire.

Timothy Hughes, one of Ishpeming's staunchest merchants, will retire from active business as soon as he can dispose of his stock of general merchandise. In order to carry out his plans he will begin tomorrow to dispose of his goods on a strictly cash basis. He will call in his pass books at once and will cease to give credit after today.

Mr. Hughes has been in the general merchandise business here for the past fourteen years. His stock consists of a well selected line such as is usually found in all first-class general stores. All the goods in stock will be sold at reduced prices and will be marked down to the "hard times" note. The price on meats of all kinds will also be reduced. A synopsis of what Mr. Hughes intends doing in the way of reducing prices will appear in tomorrow's MINING JOURNAL.

A Bible Lecture.

Rev. P. Lindquist, who has been here visiting friends during the past two weeks, will deliver a Bible lecture at the Swedish Methodist church next Saturday evening. At the Thanksgiving service at that church Mr. Lindquist extended a very pressing invitation to the members of the congregation and also to his old friends to be present. As Mr. Lindquist is a very able speaker the lecture will no doubt be an interesting one. An admission fee of whatever the attendants choose to give will be asked. They are requested to contribute twenty-five cents if possible, if not a smaller sum will be very acceptable. The money raised will be distributed among the poor of the city.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

the past five days was out yesterday, but was not feeling very well.

Horace J. Stevens arrived from West Superior yesterday morning and will remove his family to that place today or tomorrow.

The annual election of officers of the Division street Methodist church Sunday school has been postponed until next Sunday.

It was sixteen degrees below zero on Strawberry hill at an early hour yesterday morning. The thermometer at the Nelson House registered twelve degrees below.

A regular monthly meeting of the local lodge of Hermann Sons will be held next Sunday. Business of importance will be presented. All members are requested to be there.

A meeting of the Shin Fans Snow Shoe club will organize for the season has been called for tomorrow evening at A. O. U. W. Hall. All members are requested to attend.

Will Northmore, who has been special deputy in the custom house at Marquette until recently, is visiting relatives and friends here but will leave Saturday for Chicago.

William Andrews, who recently sold out his meat market business to John Quayle, Jr., will continue in the grocery business and is putting in a new and complete stock of goods.

Mr. and Mrs. Katus and son Guy of Neenah are in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. Al Smith. Mr. Katus has been sick since last February but is now getting around nicely.

John A. Ryan, who was reporter on the Ishpeming Daily Press shortly before that sheet folded its wings together and fell asleep, is now holding a job on the West Superior Leader, the same paper on which H. J. Stevens is employed.

Charles Schaefer of Marquette was in town Saturday and shipped two cars of Excelsior furnace iron. It is said that the parties who recently decided to start up the furnace have not yet fully formulated plans for the commencement of active operations.

CONCERNING SPECTACLES.

Evidence of the Existence of the Magnifying Glass in Ancient Times.

The late Wendell Phillips, in his lecture on the "Lost Arts," speaks of the ancients as having magnifying glasses. "Cicero said that he had seen the entire Iliad, which is a poem as large as the New Testament, written on a skin so that it could be rolled up in the compass of a nutshell." It would have been impossible either to have written this, or to have read it, without the aid of a magnifying glass.

In Parma, a ring two thousand years old is shown which once belonged to Michael Angelo. On the stone are engraved the figures of seven women. You must have the aid of a glass in order to distinguish the forms at all. Another intaglio is spoken of; the figure is that of the god Hercules; by the aid of glasses you can distinguish the interlacing muscles, and count every separate hair on the eyebrows. Mr. Phillips again speaks of a stone twenty inches long and ten inches wide which contained a whole treatise on mathematics, which would be perfectly illegible without glasses. Now, our author says, if we are unable to see and read these minute details without glasses, you may suppose the men who did the engraving had pretty strong spectacles.

"The Emperor Nero, who was shortsighted, occupied the imperial box at the Coliseum, and to look down into the arena, a space covering six acres, the area of the Coliseum, was obliged, as Pliny says, to look through a ring with a gem in it—no doubt a concave glass—to see more clearly the sword play of the gladiators. Again, we read of Mauritius, who stood on the promontory of his island and could sweep over the sea with an optical instrument to watch the ships of the enemy. This tells us that the telescope is not a modern invention.

Our first positive knowledge of spectacles is gathered from the writings of Roger Bacon, who died in 1292. Bacon says: "This instrument (a planoconvex glass or large segment of a sphere) is useful to old men and to those who have weak eyes; for they may see the smallest letters sufficiently magnified."
—Journal of the Franklin Institute.

EXPERIENCE OF AN EX-CHAMPION.

Athletes and men who take ordinary outdoor exercise such as walking, running, bicycle riding, jumping, swimming, tennis, etc., are often the subjects of acute trouble. The experience of an ex-champion walker will be of interest to all who are afflicted. HARRY B. BOOKS writes: "No. 324 East 14th St., New York, April 2, 1888.

Numerous statements relative to the merits of different plasters having been brought to my attention, I take this opportunity to state that I have used Allcock's Porous Plasters for over 20 years and prefer them to any other kind. I would furthermore state that I was very sick with catarrh of the kidneys, and attribute my recovery entirely to Allcock's Porous Plasters."

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by H. H. Stafford, Son & Co.

OUR DAUGHTER. I see her as a toddling child, Who in the sunshine laughed and smiled, Enjoying life without pretense— A picture of pure innocence.

I see her in her early youth, Her face a picture of pure truth And sweet unselfishness, that strove To lose itself in acts of love.

I see her in her maidenhood, When knowledge of the higher good, The truest life, endowed her face With softer light, more tender grace.

I see her in her later years, Passing through many a vale of tears, And yet withal you'er could trace Peace written on her wrinkled face.

Now, leaning on a daughter dear, And wee Annie playing near, Just as she once had loved to do She passes down the avenue.

And a glad smile is on her face That lights it still with old-time grace. For, lo! she fears no more the night: "At eventide there shall be light!" —G. Weatherly, in Golden Days

A MIDNIGHT STRUGGLE. Two Girls' Encounter with a Treacherous Intruder.

My sister Julia was always very courageous. In our youth the country was wilder than now; but it might truly be said of her that she was not brought up in the woods to be scared by an owl.

When I was sixteen and Julia eighteen, my father hired a laborer named Hans Schmidt, a Hessian, who had been in the British service, and who, at the close of the war, had deserted from his regiment.

He was a powerful man, with a heavy imbruted countenance; and both Julia and myself were struck at the very first with an intuitive dread of him. The feeling in Julia hardly took the character of fear, but was one rather of loathing; yet, if she could have feared anything, I think it would have been that man, for she had an intuitive perception that he was demonic-like, even beyond what his looks demonstrated.

One evening she read of a horrible murder that thrilled our blood, and upon turning her eyes from the paper they encountered those of Hans Schmidt. There was something terrible in his glance, and from that moment she resolved that the villain should be turned away.

His uncle's farm was a mile off, and his own house was about half that distance. The three young men soon appeared upon the road; and, to my surprise, Julia arose and proceeded to meet them. Then she returned to Harry and me, and called us aside from the door.

"Now, Mary, you need not be nervous," she said. "Keep quiet and do not speak above your breath. There is a man under our bed—there!—there!—there!—there!—there!—there!"

"They all provided themselves with heavy sticks; and then, guided by Julia, ascended the stairs. As to myself, I could not follow them, but remained trembling and moaning upon the doorstep. Never did I experience a greater sense of relief than when the assaulting party descended, looking partly ashamed and partly amused, having found nothing to justify their sudden armament.

John Hooper, who has resided here for the past few years, during the greater part of which he worked at the Negaunee mine, has gone to Calstalk, Cornwall, England, where he will remain until business in this country takes a change for the better.

The clock on the mantel piece struck eleven; and then "tick, tick, tick," it went on for the next dreary hour. Julia at length ceased weeping and lay in thought, only an occasional sigh betraying her wakefulness.

"Oh, Mary!" she cried, "quick! quick! He is here! I can not hold the lid—he will get out! Quick! quick!" There was indeed some living thing inside the chest; for, in spite of Julia's weight, the lid was lifted, and then, as the instinct of self-preservation overcame my terror, I sprang to her assistance.

"I was right, Mary," she cried; "they won't think me a fool now, will they? I shan't be ashamed to see Harry Irving!" Poor Julia! Under the circumstances, the idea was really ludicrous; but nature will everywhere assert herself, and Julia hated a coward.

"He can't get out, Mary, we are safe; only keep your full weight on the lid; and don't be nervous either; it's almost morning." She knew it was not one o'clock. But one o'clock came. How I wished it were five! And two o'clock came, and three; and we hoped that our prisoner had finally yielded to a fate which must now appear inevitable.

Suddenly there was a tremendous struggle beneath us, as if the ruffian had concentrated all his energies in a final effort. At my end of the chest there was a crash, and immediately the German's feet protruded through the aperture that they had forced in the board.

To get off the lid, in order to defeat the movement through the chest-end, would have instantly been our destruction; therefore, still bearing our weight on the cover, we caught at the projecting feet. In doing this, however, we partially lost our balance, and a sudden bracing up of the muscular shape below so far forced open the lid, that the head, arms and shoulders of Hans Schmidt were thrust forth, and with a fearful clutch, seized Julia by the throat.

Just then a heavy crash was heard at the door below, the foot-panels springing toward us as if some person were tearing up the staircase with the full conviction that this was an hour of need. The dim daylight hardly revealed its identity, as he rushed into our room, but I had a faint perception that young Harry Irving had come to us in our peril.

"We are safe, Mary," she said. "Harry Irving was near the house all night. He returned after seeming to go home. It was not right, he said to himself, for us to remain alone here all night, especially as our father was kept out of sight, but remained near. The least scream he would have heard as he last heard yours; but I am glad you did not scream before, for now we have had an experience, and know what we can do."

Julia became the wife of Henry Irving, and a most excellent wife she was. Magnanimous and unrequited, she was perhaps the only one who felt no gratification at the fate of old Hans Schmidt, but rather a pity for the ignorance which had steeped him in crime.—N. Y. Evening World.

TEN DAYS MORE TO BID.

City Controller Will Advise for Further Bids on the City Hall Plans.

ST. MARY'S PETITION FOR FREE WATER GRANTED.

Condition of the City Walks Criticized by Alderman Moore-Alderman Hennessey Epigrammatic.

ALL BIDS REJECTED.

Whether it was on account of the storm last night making it more pleasant inside than out or because more persons had less to do than usual is not clear but the restricted quarters of the city council were crowded to the doors.

When this feature of the proceedings was reached, however, it was very promptly disposed of. Mayor Kaufman stated that he had had a talk with Lovejoy & Demar, the architects of the city hall, and they explained that several of the contractors who had handed in bids had held a wrong idea of the cost of some of the material to be used in constructing, specially stone and some of the iron work.

They—the architects—asked that the council advise for bids on the accepted plans for ten days longer and they had no doubt the bidding would come within the appropriation when these features were more fully explained. Upon the strength of his honor's remarks Alderman Hennessey introduced a resolution to the effect that the controller advise ten days longer and that the bids be required to be in the controller's office at noon Dec. 16. This was unanimously adopted.

A petition from St. Mary's hospital praying that the city grant that institution free water on the grounds that it was a charity hospital and took care of the city sick without expense to the city, was unanimously granted and on the strength of the prayer Alderman Brown introduced a resolution to the effect that the council request the water board to rebate to the hospital the amount of water rates due to date and allow it free water in the future. This was also unanimously adopted.

Alderman Moore was of the opinion that the county should be responsible for this water bill. He was perfectly willing St. Mary's should have free city water, but he did not think the city should pay for it. Alderman Jamerson explained to what extent the county already paid for patients in the hospital and there the discussion dropped.

The city treasurer's report, which had been submitted to the finance committee, was reported back to the council with a motion that it be adopted which was readily done.

Upon motion of Alderman Putnam the provision in the requirements for bids for the new city hall demanding that a bond accompany the bids as well as a certified check for $500, was removed, and the bids which will follow the new advertisement will only require the certified check.

Alderman Brown introduced resolutions of respect and the resignation of Alderman Desjardins speaking highly of that gentleman during his aldermanic term and expressing the regret of the council that he should have found it necessary to resign. The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The controller presented his monthly list of audited bills the total amounting to $2,050. He also reported that almost the required three-fourths had been collected on special assessment for the projected Ohio street sewer. The remainder would be paid in a few days.

The city attorney reported he had been successful in securing a deed of a half portion of land necessary to the opening of Altamont street in the rear of St. Mary's hospital and that the other portion might be secured from the Sisters of St. Francis, each strip to become the property of the city on payment of $25. Alderman Putnam moved that orders be drawn on the city treasurer for those amounts and the matter was promptly settled.

Mr. Sherwood also stated he had had under consideration the petition of Ball & Ball for a refund of taxes which had been paid into the city treasury upon the property known as the Bradley shingle mill. The attorney was of the opinion that the property should have paid the tax. He found it had paid it and he thought the city should keep it. He hoped the council would not instruct him to enter into a friendly suit to settle the matter, as suggested by the petitioners. Alderman Hennessey said, "Your honor, I don't see as the council has any instructions to offer the city attorney. The only thing I see is for the city treasurer to be instructed to hang on to the money." This seemed to fully and tersely express the opinion of the aldermen.

Upon motion of Alderman Brown the bids for the city hall, upon which action was deferred at the last meeting, were rejected.

Alderman Moore remarked that some prompt action should be taken to see that the bad condition of our sidewalks, particularly throughout the business portion of the city, should be remedied. He said they were a constant menace to life and limb and the city might go on neglecting them until it was saddled with a few cases for damages. The street commissioner or whoever was the proper person should be instructed to at once see that they were properly cleared of accumulated snow and ice.

Adjournment was then taken until Thursday night of this week when the vote in the special election held Saturday will be canvassed.

Duluth Still Dreaming.

If there is any one thing the people of Duluth, and particularly the Duluth newspaper reporters, like to get hold of or on the mere track of, it is a South Shore road official. If the general passenger or commercial agent drops into the ambitious city they glow with pleasure. When the general freight offices went there they were excited with joy but when they see the well-known face of General Manager Fitch in their burg they are fairly ecstatic with a supreme delight which more sophisticated persons cannot understand.

Mr. Fitch had some railroad business up there a few days ago and the papers of Duluth came out with whole columns of speculative fancies and fond dreams as to the possible or probable cause of his visit. After devoting nearly a column to more or less guarded statements as to what might have been in Mr. Fitch's mind during his visit, The News-Tribune of Saturday morning closes with the following significant paragraph, in which it evidently fails to see the grim humor which strikes any person outside of Duluth:

The picture is rather a pretty one and some considerable portion of it is likely to be realized, but Mr. Fitch was the only man in Duluth last night who could say whether any part of it was true and Mr. Fitch was not doing much talking.

That paragraph should have begun as well as ended the speculative nonsense that characterized the rest of the "write up." In sending out despatches to the larger city papers the correspondents at Duluth did not do as much qualifying as the News-Tribune and consequently they convey a greater semblance of truth and are more misleading. The following, clipped from the Chicago Inter Ocean, is offered as a sample of one of Duluth's periodic yells about the moving of the South Shore general offices from this city to that place:

W. M. Fitch, general manager of the South Shore, is in Duluth this evening making arrangements for the transfer to this city of the general offices of the road, which are now in Marquette. The Duluth & Winnipeg, which about a year ago was purchased by the Canadian Pacific to keep it out of the hands of Jim Hill, is to be absorbed by the South Shore and the general offices consolidated. Mr. Fitch, who is now president of the Duluth and Winnipeg, will be manager of the consolidated lines. The interest of W. H. Fisher, who has been manager of the Duluth & Winnipeg, will be purchased by the Canadian Pacific, and Mr. Fisher will retire. This step probably means the completion of the Duluth & Winnipeg to Winnipeg, where it will join the Canadian Pacific line, but this cannot be confirmed. No announcement is made of the date of the consolidation but it will probably be made in a few days.

Now in the face of the statement that Mr. Fitch was the only man who could throw light on this matter and he refused to talk the foregoing "special" looks very much like an adult cannard. A MINING JOURNAL reporter called at the South Shore offices yesterday afternoon and submitted the different despatches to several of the officials and one of them who is generally pretty well posted on the affairs of the road said: "You may write 'chestnut' over the face of every one of those despatches sent out from Duluth. Even if there were any truth in the matter Mr. Fitch would not have made it public. The statement that he 'did not talk' is the only plausible thing in the whole list of speculations." Mr. Fitch was in St. Paul and could not be seen although there is not much conjecture as to what he would answer regarding the clippings noticed.

News must be scarce in Duluth when the papers are forced to give their readers so much unreliable twaddle and palm it off for simon pure facts. If the people up there keep on dreaming about the South Shore offices removal and coveting them so much they will become genuine cranks and may come down here some dark night and try to steal them seeing they are not likely to get them through talking and taffy.

THE MINING JOURNAL thought it had disposed of the matter of vandalism on Presque Isle when it last week gave the entire facts to the public. It was not severe on Mr. Giddy because he told the city attorney he was not directly responsible for the objectionable advertisement appearing on the rocks. It now appears from his own statement to an acquaintance here that he did intend having his yellow plaster put on the island, only he thought the place selected was the government reserve acre.

Before leaving last week he gave Mr. Emmons an order to pay ten dollars to some person for removing the paint. Had he left this order with the city attorney or the park commissioner, as any person of sense would have done, THE MINING JOURNAL would have said very little about the matter and have given him the credit of keeping his word. But such a course did not suit him and he wished to still be somewhat secretive about the affair and not let it be known he had done anything toward removing the daub until such was done. He possibly wished to do some more laughing over his outness. Mr. Emmons has the order and it is presumed will have the thing taken off as soon as may be but that need not prevent the park authorities looking to Mr. Giddy until he gives them a satisfactory pledge that he will remove his sample of very primitive art. Mr. Emmons is not responsible for the care of our public parks any more than any other private citizen and the sooner Mr. Giddy's order to pay ten dollars is placed in the hands of Commissioner Smith the better for Mr. Giddy.

Things are different. Child could just jump on a little, unarméd hand of American sailors, on shore to avoid scurvy, and "mastic" been with her military prowess. But when it came to the American nation, the first, the slow to anger, but ferocious when aroused, UNCLE SAM was there and there was no question but what he "mastic" it. It is worth something, after all to be an AMERICAN CITIZEN. It means a GOOD DEAL. The same is true of Dr. Fenner's Kliney and Brantley Cure. It means everything when it is known and used by those who are in need. If you are bowed down with kidney disease, female weakness, or blood impurities, together with their results of backache, haggard looks, skin eruptions, scrofula, dyspepsia, constipation, the blues, weariness, headaches, erysipelas, salt rheum, or any kindred affection, as well as heart disease, rheumatism, dropsy, etc., its use means a restoration to health, an elastic step, "bird cheer", strength and happiness. In short it means "in 'em" again. If you are in need take a bottle home to-day. If satisfaction not given money refunded.
