SENSIBLE AND TEMPERATE.

The Age of Steel of St. Louis contains the most sensible and temperate discussion of the new Wilson tariff bill that has yet come to hand. That paper believes in protection but thinks there is no use in "calamity howling" because we are to have some experience the other way. Nothing is gained by exaggerating the probable effects of the Wilson bill and something is lost by attacking public confidence and increasing the natural timidity of capital in these trying times. The Age of Steel's article in full follows:

In comparison with the duties levied since and during the greater part of the civil war period, those provided by the Wilson bill are of a radical order. Hence it follows naturally that the sentiment which has sustained a more than revenue tariff through twenty-eight years of peace—founded though that tariff undoubtedly was in the necessities of war—has been shocked in a measure difficult to estimate, and easily beyond the comprehension of those whose sympathies and affiliations, not to say interests, are in opposition. True, it may be said that the sweeping abolition and reduction of duties in the various lists were foreshadowed by the ante-election declarations of the dominant party; that is undeniably true; but the bill as completed and ready for presentation in congress is a much more serious and practical affair than was the mere prospect of tariff revision. The hope of lenient and considerate treatment under the new act, which many of the protected interests were unwilling to abandon, illogical and unauthorized though it may have been, has been rudely dispelled by the certainty that marked tariff changes directly affecting them have been ordered. They are now forcibly reminded that luck and chance have not served them as against the ways and means committee.

In such circumstances, it is entirely within the bounds of truth to say that the new tariff bill has had a disquieting effect on the protected industries, not merely because the system of protection has been badly assailed as a system, but by reason of the fear that the lowering of the tariff barriers provided for in this particular bill will immediately give for eign producers a new foothold in American markets along and contiguous to the seaboard. The measure will not, however, if enacted as a law without modification, "flood the country with foreign goods."

Every student of industrial affairs knows that market conditions abroad so nearly approach those in this country that a deluge of foreign products, and consequent stoppage of American works by wholesale, is altogether improbable. The tendency in this country in recent years has markedly towards the European level of prices for all commodities whose production has been stimulated by improved mechanical appliances and chemical processes. The changes in this direction have gone on regardless of good or bad times, and have been aided in no small degree by the practical existence of a gold standard of values during the past twenty years.

Under such conditions, and with free raw materials assured, a schedule of duties ranging for the greater part from 25 to 50 per cent, on imports of foreign manufactures is not likely to wreck domestic industries. But while this is true, it is apparent that the early operations of such a tariff as is contemplated by the Wilson bill will be disturbing and unsettling to large productive interests and substantially increase imports for trans-Alleghany, Texas and Pacific coast account. Framed as a revenue measure—and yet, strange to say, for it would necessarily imply injury to many vested interests. This is indisputable. Nor will its hurtful effects in the directions indicated be lessened by the fact that it provides for ad valorem duties almost exclusively in the metal and most of the other schedules, thus opening the door to a vast increase of the fraudulent practice of undervaluation of imports.

WORDS OF WISDOM. There is food for reflection for both Protestants and Catholics in the appended letter of Mr. Jeremiah Quin of Milwaukee, which appeared in The Sentinel of that city a few days ago. Mr. Quin was born and bred in the Catholic church and remains a sincere adherent of that form of belief. The present writer, who was neither born nor bred in the Catholic church and does not believe many of its teachings, has the honor of Mr. Quin's acquaintance and knows him to be a patriotic citizen and a broad-minded gentleman of intelligence and culture. Mr. Quin's immediate text is the return of the Jesuit order to the German empire but he tells some wholesome truths both to his Catholic and Protestant fellow-citizens. His letter is much in line with the sentiments expressed in these columns yesterday and is as follows:

The surprise expressed by continental correspondents at the prospect of the Jesuits returning to Germany is strange in the light of past history. Whether from the law of "extremes meeting" or from some other cause, it is an historical fact that the Jesuits have always been popular in Protestant Prussia. It was to Prussia the western wing went for protection when Pope Clement suppressed the order, and that sturdy old landmark of German Protestantism, Frederick, enjoyed being called their general. It must also be remembered that the Jesuit order threw its power and influence upon Germany's side in the war with France. But Bismarck, becoming alarmed at their demand that he should espouse the cause of the "temporal power of the pope" at a time when the unification of Germany was insecure, repudiated the order and, lest it might thwart his policy, drove it out of fatherland. Now that the "temporal power" no longer vexes her statesmen, and treaties offensive and defensive exist between Germany and New Italy, there is no good reason why any arm of Catholicity should be proscribed in Germany, besides the spirit and intelligence of the present age is opposed to intolerance of every kind.

And this suggests a word as to that latest of proscriptive societies in our own country—the "A. P. A." It is perhaps natural that a class of ardent young men, looking only upon the surface of events, after witnessing the scenes of our own Bennett law campaign, in which a Catholic bishop led the hosts of one political party to battle, invoking not alone "the deaf, the lame and the blind," but resurrecting buried monks and dispensing Lutheran heresies to join his banner, get alarmed for the prosperity of American institutions. Even that crusade, though un-American, had the great merit of being open, above-board and seen of all men. Our system rests upon the intelligence and patriotism of all classes, and if the time ever comes when it will be necessary to meet behind closed doors in secret councils to prop our institutions, then is our Fourth of July boast gone and the republic a failure. No, disband your A. P. A.'s, gentlemen; let the ballot, falling quiet as the snowflake, but more potent than rifled cannon, be your weapon, and you will then be truer Americans. Let full and open discussion replace secret and timid counsels, and if ever the republic's exacting hour comes, depend upon it Catholics will be found its strong defenders, even as Carroll of Carrollton was at its birth, and Sheridan, Corcoran and Hughes were when secession and treason assailed its manhood.

It is certainly not very creditable to the people of Augusta, Me., that the movement to erect in that city, his home for many years, a statue to the late James G. Blaine has been dropped per force for lack of support. Opinions differ as to the merits of Mr. Blaine as a statesman but there is no doubt that he was in his day a most striking public figure and easily the most prominent man of his state. Those who but a few months ago extolled him as a god seem to have suddenly lost all interest in their idol.

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN, the well-known poet, essayist and literary historian of New York, sent the following compliment to Eugene Field of Chicago after the recent and almost fatal illness of the latter: Death thought to claim you in this year of years, But fancy cried, and raised her shield between— "Still let men weep, and smile amid their tears— Take any two beside, but spare Eugene."

The Iron World, an allegedly humorous sheet just issued at Duluth by one Will Porter Kibbee, rebukes THE MINING JOURNAL for saying that the English of Mr. E. J. Hulbert's pamphlet on his discovery of the Calumet & Hecla vein is sometimes far from clear. As young Kibbee's paper shows that his own ability to write a single sentence of grammatical English is very doubtful the value of his defense of Mr. Hulbert's language is self-evident.

THE FOND DU LAC (Wis.) Journal makes merry to the extent of half a column or so over the exploit of the giddy and pestiferous Gidday in disfiguring the cliffs of Presque Isle with yellow ochre inscriptions. It omits to mention, however, that Gidday left a deposit of $10 to have the signs removed, being given the choice between that and going to jail. The next fair that disfigures Marquette's public parks will get jail straight.

THE CHICAGO Inter-Ocean tries hard to make out that national issues are involved in the pending election of a mayor in that city. Such rot is enough to give all its sensible readers that historic "tired feeling." National issues are no more involved in the Chicago city election than in an election for directors of the First National bank of Chicago.

THE ATCHISON (Kan.) Champion acknowledges the hard times in that state but finds grounds for hope and encouragement in the fact that there will be no session of the legislature this winter.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

A New Pile Remedy Has created a sensation among physicians by its wonderful effects in speedily curing every form of Piles. It is called the Pyramid Pile Cure. It is cheap and simple to use, but nothing removes the disease so quickly, safely and surely. Any druggist will get it for you.

Mr. S. H. CONKLIN writes from Mt. Carmel, Conn. "Enclosed please find check for your bills of May 2nd and 12th. I repeat the gratification I express before as to the convenience, the economy, and the real artistic beauty of the National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors have proved to me in using them. It would seem as if the old way of trying to produce the desired shade of color by mixing many colors together with much labor and guess-work must be abandoned in favor of your economical, sure and easy method. My painters wish to introduce their use in an adjoining town, and want a couple of your books as guides."

A YOUNG GIRL'S ROOM. It Is Usually Her Particular Pride and Hobby.

There is nothing that a young girl considers to be so much her own individual property as the one room in the house that has been given over to her, in which to do as she pleases, and which she can fix up according to her own taste and inclination.

To begin with there is an individuality about it that appears to be part of the girl herself. Into this particular space of her own she has collected souvenirs of every event of importance to herself, and has arranged all around its walls and on stands and tables photographs of those nearest and dearest to her, and in every nook and corner where her eyes may turn she is greeted by something that tells her a history, though to outsiders it may appear meaningless and trivial.

There are certain bits of furniture that are always necessities in a girl's room--of these the little tea table, couch, desk and mirror are the most prominent. The couch is heaped with cushions. If she is wise she never attempts to buy any of her couch cushions until she has passed through her economical mood.

So the wise girl buys her cushions, and in their cozy depths she nestles for solid comfort of an afternoon, either to read or study, or in sickness when no other place seems quite so comforting to the aching head and tired body.

The desk in a corner near another window, with a tall lamp standing by for use when daylight fails, is generally filled with an endless supply of notes and invitations, which she hoards until for lack of space she is obliged to have a regular overhauling and destroy all but the most precious of their contents, which clutter up every pigeon hole.

The mirror, whether round or square, is made to do duty as a photograph holder, and is usually draped with some pretty bit of silk. There are a few books, old favorites, but there are not apt to be many unless the girl is particularly studious, but German favors, encheiridion, grasses from the woods, and dozens of other mementoes of pleasant happenings in the past find place in the room of every girl.

She--Isn't that the woman who worried the life out of her husband and killed him by inches?

A New Certain Cure for Piles. The following letters speak for them selves:

Mrs. Mary C. Tyler, of Heppner, Ore., writes: One pkg. of Pyramid Pile Cure entirely cured me of piles, from which I have suffered for years, and I have never had the slightest return of them since.

Mr. E. O'Brien, Rock Bluffs, Neb., says: The pkg. of Pyramid Pile Cure entirely removed every trace of itching piles. I cannot thank you enough for it.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is a new, certain, painless cure for every form of piles. For sale by all druggists, or sent postpaid for $1 by addressing Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich. Any druggist will get it for you if you ask him.

A LEADER. Since its first introduction Electric Bitters has gained rapidly in popular favor, until now it is clearly in the lead among pure medicinal tonics and alteratives--containing nothing which permits its use as a beverage or intoxicant, it is recognized as the best and purest medicine for all ailments of stomach, liver or kidneys.

GUARANTEED CURE. We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds upon this condition. Bogus! Bogus white lead would have no sale did it not afford makers a larger profit than Strictly Pure White Lead.

Strictly Pure White Lead. This market is flooded with spurious white leads. The following analyses, made by eminent chemists, of two of these misleading brands show the exact proportion of genuine white lead they contain:

Misleading Brand "Standard Lead Co., Strictly Pure White Lead, St. Louis." Materials Proportions Analyzed by Dumas: 99.95 per cent. Regis Chauvenet: 99.95 per cent. White Lead: 99.95 per cent. St. Louis. Less than 7 per cent. white lead.

Misleading Brand "Pacific Warranted Pure (A) White Lead." Materials Proportions Analyzed by Dumas: 41.8 per cent. Ledoux & Co.: 43.84 per cent. White Lead: 43.84 per cent. New York. No white lead in it.

You can avoid bogus lead by purchasing any of the following brands. They are manufactured by the "Old Dutch" process, and are the standards:
