will take anything I give them; they believe what I tell them; and I mean to sell them what I make the most on. That is what one grocer actually gives as a reason for selling washing-powders—imitations—instead of the original and best washing-compound—Pearline. If grocers and customers were all like these, the millions of women who are now blessing Pearline would still be doing useless hard work. But when you come across such a dealer, don't let him put you off with anything except Pearline.

GYPSY SIGN WRITING.

An Elaborate Code of Secret Symbols and Sounds.

For an uneducated, half-wild and justly mistrusted people like the gypsies, it is almost a necessity of existence that the several tribes should have some means of communicating with each other which would attract very little attention on the part of outsiders—information, warnings, direction, etc.

Let us give an example. In the beginning of September, 1890, a gypsy family passed through the village of N. in Germany. Not far from the point at which they left the village the road divides into three branches, and any other gypsy or tribe of gypsies following their tracks would look for a "sign" here.

There is a tree at the fork of the roads, and the gypsy's eye is quick to detect four long, flat stones piled one on the other. They are so covered with dirt that the ordinary traveler would hardly disturb them, and it would most likely escape his notice that each stone has a horse hair tied around it.

A small piece of leather is nailed on the tree, and is seen on inspection to have several stitches of red wool, a square hole and two round holes. A small charred elder stick with a straw and two red threads looped together is stuck behind the leather, along with a small birch twig with two loose red threads.

The gypsy, however, in search of a "sign" reads the message without difficulty, and thus interprets it for the benefit of his comrades.

The chief of the tribe of our predecessors informs us that his wife is dead, his son arrested, and that we must all be on our guard, as the authorities charge us with theft.

Each tribe has its own distinctive mark or totem, which, in the case in point, was the horse hair. The four stones bound with horse hair signified that the communication was intended for members of the communicant's own tribe and no other.

The direction of the middle twig indicated the road taken; the long stones, too, were so laid as to indicate the direction of route.

The charred elder twig with straw signified death; the red color is the sign of the chief, and the two knotted threads signify the chief's wife.

The birch branch denotes an arrest, and the two separate red threads signify that it is the son of the chief who has been arrested. Three threads would signify a grandson.

The employment of skin or leather signifies a request to meet for communication on important matters. The stitches give the time. Time is reckoned from the three high feast days and from St. Michael's day as follows:

The long stitches show the number of Sunday's since the first great feast, and the square stitches the week days. The piece of leather in this case had sixteen long stitches and two square stitches. It is, therefore, the Tuesday following the sixteenth Sunday after Easter, that was the 16th of September, which was fixed as the limit of stay.

The square holes in the leather signify towns, the round holes villages. Beyond the next town a smaller piece of leather will be found attached to a tree, but there will be no square hole in it, and the reader knows that the second village on the road will be the meeting place. Any kind of filth is employed to prevent the signs being molested.

As a charred elder stick signifies death, so a green one signifies sickness. Several notches in the twig, with straw, signifies a broken arm; without straw, a broken leg. A fir twig signifies an engagement; a willow twig with a red or white thread the birth of a boy or girl; an oak twig, the return of a messenger to his family. A bunch of dog's hair is an intimation to those following to change their course.

Small glass fragments announce the death of some domestic animal of the tribe; large fragments that a domestic animal has been stolen, or strayed away. Glass fragments denote a horse, dirty fragments a pig.

Of the charcoal marks made by gypsies on buildings, a cross indicates "nothing to be got there"; a double cross that you may look out for harsh treatment; a cross within a circle intimates a desire for revenge on the occupants of the house; a circle alone, that presents were received there; a triangle, that money may be had for fortune telling; two serpentine lines, that the mistress would like children; a triangle including a serpentine line, that the master of the house is dead. In this manner the wanderer manages to communicate a great deal of information to those who come after, which the fortune tellers of the second group can utilize to the astonishment of the people, who little suspect that their affairs are published on their house walls.

On the march two whistles and two owl hoots intimate to the approaching gypsies that he is near a suitable resting place; a whistle alternating with a cuckoo call is a signal of danger. Rapid waving of both arms is equally a signal of danger. Raising the left arm signifies "the road is open," raising the right warns to caution.

In the presence of a stranger, the movement of the little finger of the right hand informs the others that the stranger is looking for stolen goods.

The betrayal of these signs by gypsies to non-gypsies is very rare. Even excommunicated gypsies are very careful neither to betray the secrets of their people nor to destroy their sign-writing, being convinced that they would thus render themselves liable to evil demons and misfortunes.—N. Y. Journal.

THE CREEK INDIANS MADE THEIR IMMENSE CATCH AT ROCK FORD.

The biggest fish fry on record in the Creek nation, or perhaps the Indian territory, came off at Rock Ford, on the north fork of the Canadian river, two miles east of Eufaula. About two thousand pounds of fish were caught and about five hundred Creeks from all parts of the nation took part in the grand fish festival.

On the day set all meet and select marshals to conduct the affair. It is their duty to collect all the fishing gigs, spears, etc., and enroll the names of all who are entitled to take part.

Just about daybreak the next day the pounded shoestring is put in sacks and put in the water the entire width of the river. It soon makes all the fish in the stream so drunk that they can easily be picked up out of the shallow water or giggered or killed in the deep water. The command is given to go in and get them, and they are brought to the banks by the boat-load, many weighing as much as eighty and one hundred pounds.

This mode of fishing is practiced a few miles from the Indians and is the best way in the world to catch lots of fish. The way they do this is simple. The day is agreed upon by all the Indians to meet at a certain place at the river and everyone that wants any of the fish is required to bring with him fifteen bundles of "devil's shoestring."

UTAH MAY BE A STATE.

Bill for Her Admission Passed the House Yesterday Without Division.

BLOUNT'S REPORT AGAIN DISCUSSED IN THE SENATE.

Frye of Maine Says Blount is a Liar and Vest of Missouri Opposes Annexation.

FROM THE CAVE OF THE WINDS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The bill for the admission of Utah to statehood was passed without division by the house today at the conclusion of the debate, the only amendments of importance incorporated in the enabling act being one by Mr. Powers (Vt.) prohibiting polygamy forever, and another by Mr. Wheeler (Ala.) reducing one-half the land granted to the state for common school purposes.

Just before adjournment the resolution of Mr. Hitt calling for the correspondence in the Hawaiian affair, amended so as to include the Harrison administration, was taken up and passed.

It was expected that a lively debate would occur when these resolutions were reported back to the house but Mr. Hitt refrained from criticism and there was no explosion. Mr. Boutelle (Me.) manifested a disposition to speak but was taken off his feet by the motion to order the previous question.

The Meyer resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the rank, pay and other questions relating to the personnel of the navy, which has been filibustered against for several days, was finally passed in the morning hour. The house after passing the Utah bill adjourned at 4 o'clock.

FOUR PENSION DECISIONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Assistant Secretary of the Interior Reynolds made four important pension rulings today. He decided that the act of congress prohibiting payment of pensions after July, 1893, to a non-resident of the United States except for actual service disabilities applies to widows who are non-resident aliens; that where a soldier dies leaving a legally divorced wife and minor children over sixteen years old his mother occupies a pensionable status and can apply for and receive a pension as dependent mother of such soldier upon making necessary proof; that where an invalid pensioner dies leaving no increase or retarding claim pending at the bureau, but has accepted the rate of pension received without demurring, the widow cannot file an original claim for re-rating of her dead husband's pension; that the commissioner of pensions has no authority to change terms of contract for pension attorneys' fees where the contract with law, nor can he refuse to issue pension to a claimant because allowance is insufficient to pay the fee contracted for.

SAME OLD STORY IN BRAZIL.

Consul Burke at Pernambuco Unsuccessfully Firing a Revolver.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The navy department received the following despatch today: "Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 13.—In last dispatches Consul Burke (at Pernambuco) wants a vessel as precautionary measure, martial law having been declared, but all quiet. (Signed) Pickling." The state department has received the following from Commander Pickling: "Rio, Dec. 13.—Copus Island and Enchadas in the possession of Admiral Di Gama, the insurgent commander. The former is well fortified and is continually firing upon the custom house and naval arsenal with small arms."

BEHNS AYLES, Dec. 13.—Admiral Mellis flagship Aquidaban is again blockading Rio de Janeiro. Communication between land and the shipping in Rio bay have been stopped.

He says he cannot tell yet what the cut will be but admits it will not be less than 40 per cent. of the total. The wages of the clerical force former is well fortified and is continually firing upon the custom house and naval arsenal with small arms."

"RAKE'S PROGRESS" IS ENDED.

Ed Hanfield Wound Up With Murder and Suicide.

DENVER, Dec. 13.—Edward Hanfield this afternoon shot his mistress Ida Hall, a Central Theatre actress, and then fired a bullet into his own brain. Hanfield died instantly. The woman is lying in the hospital with a bullet wound through her left breast just above the heart and she too will die in a few hours. Hanfield came here from Ashfield, Mass., a few months ago and at one entered upon a dissipated career.

HE fell in love with Ida Hall and soon gained her consent to marry him. His father who is quite wealthy, learning of his son's acts, refused to send him any more money and in order to secure funds to pay for the marriage ceremony, Hanfield stole a quantity of goods from the room of a friend and pawned them. For this he was arrested about an hour before the time set for his marriage and was given a term in jail. He was released yesterday and immediately renewed his suit for the hand of the girl but her love had evidently cooled. It is supposed he invited her to his room this morning and as she refused to marry him he shot her and himself.

DEMOCRATS IN DIFFICULTIES

They Are Still at Loggerheads Over Internal Revenue Taxation Schemes.

HAVE NOT DECIDED FOR OR AGAINST INCOME TAX.

Customs Part of the Bill Will Be Reported to the House on Tuesday Next.

SOME CHANGES ARE MADE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The ways and means committee just before adjourning this evening ordered the new tariff bill to be reported to the house next Tuesday. At the meeting on Tuesday morning the majority will submit to the Republican members of the committee copies of its report on the tariff bill. The Republicans at that time may have their minority report ready to present or they may want a few more days until they have time to examine the report from a majority. Between now and Tuesday Chairman Wilson will prepare the report and it will be submitted to the majority members of the committee from time to time until approved and ready to present.

The bill which has been completed is the customs portion only. The time of its consideration in the house has not been determined upon but the probabilities seem to be that it cannot possibly be reached before the holidays. The postponement of a Democratic caucus on the ground that the internal revenue bill was not completed indicates that the customs bill will not be taken up until the internal revenue bill is reported to the house.

It is said by the Democratic members that the sub-committee on internal revenue will not work on this portion of the bill until after Chairman Wilson finishes his report. The internal revenue features are now in such shape that the sub-committee does not care to proceed and it is not necessary for the majority members to consider the bill further before progress can be made.

A CURIOUS PICTURE.

The Task to Be Set Before Some Macmillan Readers.

The game of the world is decreasing, and as new lands are opened to civilization it will get less and less; in the struggle for existence there will be no room for the sportsman; his requirements will grow more modest as time advances, but they will not be satisfied. The last British wolf was killed in Sutherlandshire about the year 1700 by a man named Polson. Who will be handed down to posterity as the slayer of the last British rabbit? What a pathetic picture might be drawn of the cock pheasant! Perhaps some Macmillan reader of this nature may astonish his readers by his account of what went on in the rural districts of Great Britain in the nineteenth century.

He would relate how, owing to the scantiness of the population, men used to shoot partridges and pheasants by the thousand on ground then and for generations past the sites of immense towns; telling how the great garden of England, then mapped out into small tenements, each laboriously and minutely cultivated, with no waste of wood or hedgerow, used in those far-away years to be furiously ridden over by hundreds of horsemen in pursuit of the animals of natural history.—Macmillan's Review.

Traveling Stones.

Moving stones are located in Long pond, Me. On the easterly side of the pond is a cove which extends nearly a hundred rods further east than the general course of the shore. The bottom is clay and very shoal. On the bottom are stones of various sizes, which, it is evident from various circumstances, have an annual motion towards the shore. The proof of this is the mark or track left behind them, and the bodies of clay driven up before them. Some of these stones are two or three tons weight and have left a track of several rods, having at least a cart-load of clay before them. The shore of this cove is lined with these stones, which, it would seem, have crawled out of the water.

I repeat the gratification I express before as to the convenience, the economy, and the real artistic beauty of the National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors have proved to me in using them. It would seem as if the old way of trying to produce the desired shade of color by mixing many colors together with much labor and guess-work must be abandoned in favor of your economical, sure and easy method. My painters wish to introduce their use in an adjoining town, and want a couple of your books as guides."

WOMAN'S FEAR OF MICE.

One of the Fair Sex Essays in Vain to A-

As a woman, and I trust a brave one, a lover of animals and a student of natural history, I ask the vexed question in all seriousness, Why are women afraid of mice? says a writer. Why should the sight (I had almost written the name) of a tiny, harmless, graceful little creature strike terror into the stoutest hearts that beat in feminine breasts? Echo answers: "Why?" The fear of mice is an hereditary curse, an inherited weakness, a fatal foe which it is useless to combat, a foolish dread of which we ought to feel heartily ashamed, and yet it is a real and formidable terror. It is never assumed. It may be exaggerated by a fit of hysterics or a succession of piercing screams, but the genuine pure fair femur is there all the same—and why? I remember once reading a story about a coterie of strong-minded women who gave a series of lectures upon female virtues, in an old town assembly room. One of their number was chosen to deliver a lecture on valor and selected for her subject the history of Joan of Arc. But when the evening arrived and she was discoursing upon the valor of her sex in general a mouse ran across the platform and the lecturer and her strong-minded sisters jumped onto their chairs, clutching their petticoats in a manner not altogether picturesque. But I maintain that the fear of mice has nothing whatever to do with the lack of real bravery and that Joan of Arc would probably have clutched her petticoats in precisely the same manner.

MISTOOK HIS MAN.

The Barkeeper Thought the Financier Was a Deadbeat.

"There is plenty of money in the country," he said, pouring out about four fingers of rye. "What we need most just now is the restoration of public confidence. I have just now come from the street." Another gentleman nodded his head approvingly, and the barkeeper listened to him. "Ninety-five per cent. of the public business is done on credit. Did you ever think of that? Only five per cent. is actually based upon cash." The barkeeper glanced nervously up and down the bar and cautiously removed the bottle. "As long as my neighbor has confidence in me things go on all right. As long as I have confidence in my neighbor his word is as cash. Now where is all this currency?" That was evidently what the barkeeper was thinking about, for he slowly pushed a check for fifteen cents towards the speaker. "It is locked up," continued the man, answering his own question. "It is hoarded by the scared banks and the worse scared small investors. Money is getting tighter and tighter every day. It is as much as a man can do to scrape enough together to buy a drink." The barkeeper winked significantly to the other man and began to play with something behind the bar. "Nobody trusts anybody else. Public confidence is completely undermined." At a sign from the barkeeper the boy who was polishing the brass work softly locked the door. "Now, for example," continued the financier, intent on his own ideas, "if I had a certified check in my pocket at this moment for one thousand dollars and had no currency wherewith to liquidate the price of another drink—" "You pay for that drink you've had!" said the barkeeper, savagely, "and we'll talk about another. And, what's more, we don't want no more guff about 'credit' and 'confidence' in here. See?"

How a Boston Man Saw a sun spot.

A Boston man living out in the suburbs has discovered a fact that may interest a good many persons during the present sun spot period. What he found was that it is quite possible to see the larger spots that appear on the sun's surface without glass or lens of any kind. The shutters of the observer's house happened to be closed and through a tiny hole near the top of them a beam of sunlight found its way to the floor. There it left an image clear and round, tinged at the circumference with a fringe of blue and orange. The whole appearance of the beam as projected reminded the spectator of the image of the sun taken on paper through a telescope, and he got a sheet of white note paper in order to test his surmise. The result confirmed it. A beautiful round image of the sun fell on the paper, and near the center thereof could be seen a bluish spot, which moved about with the image whenever the paper was shifted. The bluish-colored object was a veritable sun spot, and the observer watched it by the simple means described for several days until the revolution of the sun had carried it out of sight.—Boston Herald.

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF.

E. F. Douglass was down from Houghton yesterday. T. L. Smythe of Iron Mountain, was a Queen City visitor yesterday. Just keep Monday evening Jan. 1 open for that big annual ball given by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. J. H. Ostrander, the optician, will be at Conklin's all of today, leaving tonight. His stay is somewhat shorter than usual, owing to other pressing matters. Rev. J. E. Whalen, presiding elder of the Lake Superior district, will make his first official visit to Marquette today. He will preach in the Methodist Episcopal church at 7:30 this evening. All are cordially invited. There was no skating at the Casino rink last night on account of the ice. Tonight the doors will be open once more and the Marquette City band will play. Saturday night there will be a game of football on skates. The Girls' Guild of St. Paul's church is anxious that the entertainment it will give in St. Margaret's chapel, South Marquette, tonight, may be kept in mind. The girls will supply tasty refreshments and a pleasant program for a very small price of admission. Saturday noon the bids for the proposed city hall will close. This is the second batch and not a few are wondering if those received this time will fall within the $50,000 limit. It is sincerely hoped they may and that as much work as possible may be promptly done in preparation for spring building. Big preparations are making by the members of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild for the bazaar which they will open Saturday morning in the Harrow block. The store formerly Brown's Pharmacy is being transformed into a fair and fancy work. All day Saturday the ladies will keep the bazaar open and invite all to call and buy of their handsome goods. It would be a good thing if all storekeepers and those in business in Front and Washington streets would follow the example of those who are keeping as near the sidewalk boards as possible. It may mean a little work and some expense but customers prefer to enter a store that presents a hearty welcome in the shape of a well trimmed outside. Besides it is safer for all and the law requires it. When that committee of the Morse Hose company calls on you for a subscription to the charity fund, which the company has started with $50 and will augment by giving a charity ball Jan. 25, put your name down at once for as handsome an amount as your means will stand. If you do not give money give something else that will be of use to those whom it is desired to help in this movement. THE MINING JOURNAL job department has just finished a handsome illustrated catalogue for Alfred Thurlatt, the installment dealer, Third street. It comprises almost everything needed in housekeeping, the illustrations showing silverware, furniture, clocks, rugs, table covers, curtains, wringers, etc. The book is of value to intending buyers, is neatly printed and reflects great credit on the enterprising dealer.

RUPTURES OF THE SKIN CURED. Ed Venney, Brockville, Ontario, Canada, says: "I have used Brandreth's pills for the past fifteen years and think them the best cathartic and anti-bilious remedy known. For some five years I suffered with an eruption of the skin that gave me great pain and annoyance. I tried different blood remedies but, although gaining strength, the itching was unrelieved. I finally came to take a thorough course of Brandreth's pills. I took six each night for four nights, then five, four, three, two, lessening as a time by one, and then for one month took one every night with the happy result that now my skin is perfectly clear and has been so ever since."

Don't Crowd Amateurs on Your Guests, But Let Them Alone Sometimes. The woman whose friends call her a "born hostess" is a person who knows how to let her guests dispose of their own time. She does not overwhelm them with a list of amusements all arranged and planned for their pleasure, and in which they participate or incur her deepest displeasure. She does not look wild-eyed and nervous all the time you are in her house for fear you are not enjoying yourself. She does not hunt you down when you have gone to your room for a nap or a quiet read, asking you if you are not dull and tired of such a stupid house and immediately proposing some gay and festive plan for the evening entertainment. The true hostess has everything studied for the comfort of her guests, even to the quiet and peace of mind. Her house is dainty in every respect, her servants are well trained and respectable, her table is well provided with fruits and vegetables and cream that city people love so well. The bedrooms have an air of home and refinement about them, but do not suggest the family too aggressive. There are no photographs or portraits in the chambers, no knickknacks or personal belongings of the hostess or her children. Everything is fresh and dainty from the carpet to the window curtains, and the beds, mattresses, springs, pillows and blankets are irreproachable. There are always plenty of fresh towels and the hostess puts a cake of soap in your room, although most guests prefer their own particular kind. Then she always has some airy nook where you can write letters and read the current magazines and the newest spley novels. Her piazza is strewn with big rocking chairs, hammocks and a dainty tea table, where you can generally find a "lemonade cup" of some cooling beverage prepared for the weary when they come in from a long walk or a row up the lake. There are pleasure parties on the tapis every day, drives, sails, picnics or a small dance in the evening, but the guests are not made to feel that if they do not attend these parties everyone else's pleasure will be at stake. The hostess leaves it to you whether you care to go or not, and you feel quite as much at your ease staying at home with a book and a restful day before you as if you had gone, for you know you have disappointed no one, and you are really at liberty to know your own mind when you visit the "born hostess."—Baltimore Herald.

RUPTURES OF THE SKIN CURED. Ed Venney, Brockville, Ontario, Canada, says: "I have used Brandreth's pills for the past fifteen years and think them the best cathartic and anti-bilious remedy known. For some five years I suffered with an eruption of the skin that gave me great pain and annoyance. I tried different blood remedies but, although gaining strength, the itching was unrelieved. I finally came to take a thorough course of Brandreth's pills. I took six each night for four nights, then five, four, three, two, lessening as a time by one, and then for one month took one every night with the happy result that now my skin is perfectly clear and has been so ever since."

I have been bothered with catarrh for about ten years; I had lost some of my sight entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get someone to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Reudriff, Perry Co. O.

WORK IS SYSTEMATIZED.

County Superintendent of Poor and Local Committee Will Work Together.

ONLY DESERVING APPLICANTS WILL BE ASSISTED.

Axelsson Says He Will Start Another Swedish Paper at Escanaba to Fight The Superior Posten.

RELIEF UNDERESTIMATED.

In Monday's number of THE MINING JOURNAL in referring to the amount paid out by W. J. Allen, superintendent of the poor, to the needy of Ishpeming during November, the reporter underestimated the amount by over one-half. The actual figures when footed up show an aggregate of over $2,200.

The city's relief committee has devised plans of assisting Mr. Allen in his work. Every case of destitution in the city will be investigated by the members of the committee, assisted by the supervisors, before an order will be issued. If in the judgment of the committee the applicant is deserving an order on the superintendent of poor will be given, but not until the supervisor of the applicant's ward is satisfied that the applicant is really deserving and in need of aid. In cases where Mr. Allen is positive that the applicant is deserving he will use his own judgment with reference to extending aid. In this way none but the needy ones will receive county aid, and much trouble and work on the part of the superintendent will be avoided, besides a more satisfactory distribution of the funds will be made.

The Swedish Papers.

P. W. Axelsson, who was here Tuesday endeavoring to obtain possession of Superior Posten, returned home yesterday and stated before leaving that he would soon launch his new Ishpeming paper, but that it would be printed at Escanaba for the present. He said that A. Arlandson, who conducted a Swedish paper at Ironwood until a few weeks ago, when the sheet suspended publication, would be here to look after the interests of the proposed new paper.

Mr. Sandberg thinks that Axelsson has no intention of starting a paper; that the threats made here were more to induce him to give up the Posten than for any other reason. In the meantime Mr. Sandberg will continue to "grind out" Republican editorials and wield the shears in a manner that would make an old-time editor blush.

For the Children.

On Christmas night an entertainment will be given at the Division street Methodist church. A committee was appointed at a meeting Sunday last for the arrangement of a suitable program. A Christmas tree will be provided and all the children will be given presents. No admission fee will be charged and all who attend will be made welcome. The Swedish Lutheran church Sunday school will give a festival at the church on Christmas day. A program consisting of musical selections, recitations, speeches, etc. will be rendered and a pleasant time is anticipated. No admission fee will be charged.

Mr. J. P. Blaise, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaise had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaise sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaise regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by H. H. Stafford, Son & Co.

DAHOMY WIVES.

They Are Obtained by Purchase of the King.

All the female population of Dahomey belongs to the king, who sells a few, once a year, to any subject who may be in want of a wife, or sometimes, if a man has performed an act of bravery or pleased the king in any way, a wife is bestowed upon him free as a special mark of favor. The price for a wife is fixed, but there is no choice allowed.

The candidate, says Waverley Magazine, lays the sum of money at the king's feet and he may receive in exchange a young girl of eighteen or a toothless old hag of sixty. But he dare not grumble or complain and can only leave the palace with his bargain. If any wife quarrels with her husband and wishes to leave him, according to an old custom, she has a right to return to the king's palace. The present monarch is said to possess only a few hundred wives, but there have been kings of Dahomey who possessed three thousand consorts.

All the officials at the court, when they enter the king's presence, lie flat on the ground and strike their foreheads on the floor, as a sign that they humble themselves to the dust. Even Themigau, the chief minister, is compelled to crawl toward his sovereign's feet when he has a communication to make.

The women of Dahomey, after their marriage, lead a miserable life. They are never allowed to eat with their husbands and receive any instruction he may wish to give them on their knees. No wife would dare to stand in her husband's presence without his special permission.

Arab Lion Hunters.

Among the Arabs of the Atlas mountains, where the lion is hunted with success, the hunter studies his beast before engaging in battle. If he is very fat there is little danger in pot shots. If he is lean and sly the Arab will maneuver for a coign of vantage from which he can pour in three or four shots before coming to close quarters. If he is so enamored that you can count his ribs the rule is to shoot boldly; the brute can not retaliate.—Chicago Herald.

A CHAPTER FROM HISTORY

Excellent Presentation of "Paul Kauvar" at the Marquette Last Night.

VIVID PICTURE OF REVOLUTIONARY FRANCE.

A Good Play by First Class Players Serves to Reopen the Opera House.

THE AUDIENCE DELIGHTED.

Those who were fortunate enough to be in the Marquette Opera House last night were treated to one of the best presentations of melodramas seen here in many a day. For the first time in this city Steele Mackaye's masterpiece, "Paul Kauvar," was produced in a superb manner by Eugene Robinson's company.

For two hours and a half the attention of the audience was held as by a spell while the players cleverly unfolded a story in which patriotism, anarchy, love and devotion were strangely blended yet forming no fancy picture. The France of '94 saw far worse in reality than was depicted on the mimic stage last night. The plot of the play is not only strong but natural—at least such things did happen in the France of 100 years ago—and the fascinating story of the love and constancy of Paul Kauvar and his beautiful wife, Diane, shone like a cheering, hopeful ray of light through the gloom of revolution and the blood red cloud of anarchy.

In the hands of H. Coulter Brinker the character of Paul Kauvar was depicted with strength, rare taste and good judgment. Possessed of a face naturally strong and mobile and a full rich voice, Mr. Brinker presented one of the most pleasing Kauvars it is ever been the writer's pleasure to see. His portrayal did not suggest any of the other well-known stars who have played this part for Mr. Robinson. He seems to have gone independently to work, made a close, careful study of the character and times in which he lived and from this deduced a Paul Kauvar at once unique and symmetrical. Mr. Brinker showed strength and discernment always but particularly in those parts requiring a manifestation of suppressed emotions, did his work rise to the plane of true art. It would be carping to offer adverse criticism of details of a picture presenting such an admirable whole.

What a charming heroine was Miss Esther Lyons as Diane, daughter of the Duc de Beaumont and wife of Paul Kauvar! Charming not only in her own personality but in her portrayal of the beautiful character of this daughter of the nobility and wife of one who stood opposed to all but the republic. Tender in her accents, natural in every movement and gesture, she won from the first the sympathy of her audience and held it till the last curtain fall. Miss Lyons showed a rational grasp of the requirements, never for a moment going beyond the bounds of naturalness nor forgetting the demands of art. In the strong work demanded by the closing scene of the third act when she learns that the man who went to the scaffold in her father's stead was her husband, she was very effective, her handling of the difficult passage eliciting storms of applause.

John F. McArdle took capable care of the part of the Duc de Beaumont and while the character does not make any decided call for special dramatic ability, it was handled with good judgment from first to last. Almost as much may be said of Max von Mittel as the Marquis de Vaux. If any criticism were offered regarding his work it would probably be in the portions demanding an assumption of passion. It cannot be denied that he approaches somewhat closer to ranting than is desirable and thus slightly mars an otherwise capable characterization. In the guise of nobleman he was excellent, but when masquerading as Gourco he inclined toward over-coloring.

What little humor exists in the play was supplied by John W. Rose as Dodothe Potin and Miss Lizzie Conway as Potin's wife. Each acted the part to the satisfaction of the audience and at times caused considerable laughter but not at any time making their comedy obtrude on the more serious phases of the drama.

George Conway, as Colonel La Hogue filled satisfactorily his old part. He has been over five years with the company and does not appear to have lost any of his old grip.

Eugene Powers as General Delaroché was an able companion for the bluff colonel and in their handsome royalist costumes made a brave showing indeed. Of the remainder of the cast it may be said they filled their respective parts in such a manner as to present a finished, strong and exceedingly enjoyable play, such a one, in short, as does not often visit Marquette.

The staging of "Paul Kauvar" is deserving of particular notice. The company carries all its own scenery and in each act presented a decidedly realistic picture of the original prisons, tribunals, palace, etc., where the real drama of life had been enacted. The stage setting for the third, fourth and fifth acts was as delightful as one could well wish to see.

The orchestra must not be forgotten on this reopening night. It played some delightful selections, especially two descriptive pieces and furnished the necessary music incidental to the unfolding of the play in a manner that might give pointers to many a larger band of musicians.

And so the Marquette Opera House is reopened, and with a first class play. It will remain to be seen whether the enterprise of the new management in continuing the course so well begun will meet a merited appreciation or whether the people of Marquette will say by their actions they do not care to have our handsome play house kept open, at least during this season.

He Keeps Everything.

One of the most interesting places to visit in the city at present is A. H. Palmer's Bazaar. It is just close enough to the holidays to make Mr. Palmer's goods particularly in demand and in consequence it is a rare thing to enter his store and find any of the clerks standing idle.

To particularize this stock would be almost an endless task. Where such a vast display is made of all sorts and qualities of fancy and holiday goods from a cent up to $100, the best description is a general one.

The most noticeable feature of the Bazaar is the complete assortment of chinaware and bric-a-brac. Choice specimens of Royal Worcester, Dalton's, Tipton's Bohemian ware, Crescent china and Haviland's are shown in abundance and of the latest patterns and rarest designs. Neat and artistic decoration appears to be one of the chief features of the better specimens of china now being offered. It is not easy to describe these in all their daintiness and the best advice, therefore, is to call and judge of them for yourself.

Down at the back part of the store are Palmer's bargain counters. On one may be found almost any kind of toy and many a useful article which may be carried away for a dime each; and just beside this table full of bargains is one equal y filled where the limit is five cents. From these selections are being made almost every minute of the day and they appear to constitute a drawing card of the Bazaar.

Toys of all descriptions line the shelves. Silverware, plush goods and useful and handsome household goods fill the long line of cases. Lamps of all kinds, sizes and prices depend from the ceilings, grace the windows and adorn the tables. A display of dolls that cannot be found elsewhere in the Queen City is shown here and apparently every effort has been made to look after the wishes of the little ones.

As you pass out of the store, or before entering take a good look at the handsome and expensive things displayed in the windows, especially two artistic banquet lamps and a beautiful pair of French bisque figures, excellent representatives of their dainty class. Visit Palmer's by all means if you love the beautiful and are not yet decided as to what you need to round out your list of Christmas gifts.

Made A Duke of Him.

"Say, do I look like a dock walloper, ore trimmer or tramp?" he exclaimed as he pulled a MINING JOURNAL man into the stairway entrance of the Harlow block yesterday.

"Would you take me for a man who ever wore cowhide boots, blue overalls and a red flannel shirt?"

To this the reporter was bound to give an emphatic negative answer for the man was as well dressed as any person one might wish to see. There was a certain newness, however, about him that did not seem to sit with easy grace upon him, but the cut and fit of his garments were faultless.

"The thing was done so quick I can't hardly catch on yet", he continued as he pulled a thread out of his coat sleeve; "I worked all last summer ore trimming down on the docks yonder and managed to lay up a few dollars. 'Bout an hour ago I took it into my head to draw all that money—not a great heap—and get myself togged out like a New York dude. Y' see I wanted to cut a wide swath once in my life and make the boys' eyes buldge. Well I pulled my rocks and went into Gooding & Ormsby's over yonder as roughly dressed a chap as you could find in a day's tramp and they shoved me out the other door half an hour after as you see me now."

"Every bit of me is new. This is a Stein-Block suit. They are the agents for that leading make. Those are Han-nan shoes and inside of them are fine cashmere socks. My head is decked with a genuine Knox hat, I have on a Wilson Bros. white shirt, a dandy necktie—by the way, you never saw such a big layout of neck ware in your life as they have. Enough to supply the whole upper peninsula. These trousers are held up by an elegant pair of embroidered suspenders and I am keeping the cold out with a full suit of Jaros' hygienic underwear. This pair of gloves did not cost a great deal and they threw in the umbrella, seeing I bought a full outfit. What do you think of this overcoat? Good enough for Gould and warm enough for a Laplander."

"Now I ain't going to tell y' what this outfit cost but I will say that I had $75 when I went in and I can jingle a good deal of it yet. I tell you Gooding & Ormsby can fit anything human from a kid a foot high to man weighing 300 pounds. It don't matter what shape he is they will get onto his curves and make him look like a new person. You just drop in and try them. If they can make a man like me look like Ward McAllister in half an hour, what couldn't they do with some of you chaps who usually dress slick anyway?"

A Light Day.

There was not a very heavy grist of business ground out in the circuit court yesterday. The case of George Anderson and Lincoln Betney against the city of Marquette and that of Frank Wallace against the city of Marquette were argued before the court and submitted. No decisions were given.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder Most Perfect Made.

Overcome by the unforseen.

The man with kidney disease may first apply for relief from dropsy or skin eruptions, or the woman with kidney disease, or female weakness may first apply for treatment for lame back or fullness about the eyes, or moth on the face. People often find themselves in the situation so aptly figured by the Hon. John Allen of Miss., the wit of the 5th Congress. Here is his celebrated rhyme "let it be" on the floor of the House to the great amusement of that body.

"There's Wanny runs the post office And Levi runs the bar, While baby runs the White House And—n here we are." Well, it's so with the afflicted. To avoid those ills, or to cure them, Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure will not disappoint. The Rev. A. J. Meachant, late presiding Elder, Grove City, Pa., Apr. 4, 1882, writes: "For 25 years I suffered with kidney difficulty and used only 3 bottles of Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure. I have had less backache in the last 10 years than I formerly had in 10 minutes. I feel entirely cured." Money refunded if satisfaction not given. Take home a bottle to-day. It means happiness and prolonged life.

There is no one instrument, unless, indeed, it be a large pipe organ, capable of so many varieties of effects that are obtainable on the Aeolian. Unlike the pipe organ, however, the Aeolian is adapted to all classes of music; overtures and symphonies can be rendered on it with all the softness and delicacy of the flute and violin and cello and all the snap and brilliancy of the piano. See and hear them at Conklin's.
