CONGRESSMAN REED OF MAINE is preparing the minority report on the Wilson tariff bill, and it is given out in advance that it will be a "scorcher."

Just because we had special reason to desire a mild winter, apparently, we are getting an unusually severe one.

GOMPERS has a pretty firm grip on the American Federation of Labor, as his retention in the presidency of that organization establishes.

IT MAY BE that we are all wrong on the point, but it strikes us that some of the papers up here are altogether too previous on their criticisms of those whom they assume to have done nothing for the alleviation of the distress prevailing in the counties of Gogebie and Dickinson.

The counties of this peninsula which are so fortunately circumstanced as to be able to assist those where the bulk of the unemployed men are found in caring for their destitute are doing nobly.

The Duluth News-Tribune questions the reliability of the Minneapolis Tribune as an exponent of sound Republican doctrine because it favors the removal of the duty on iron ore, coal and lumber.

There are Catholic laymen and clergymen, no doubt, who sincerely believe that a portion of the school fund should be used to maintain distinctively Catholic schools, just as there are members and clergymen of denominations of the Protestant faith who believe the same thing with reference to denominational schools which they maintain.

to the consumer to have the duty on iron ore removed, while it will undoubtedly result in allowing considerable foreign ore to come in and take the place of domestic ore along the Atlantic seaboard.

on a fund specially raised and set apart for secular public schools, and they may be depended on to defeat any and every attempt to have that fund drawn on for the support of schools established and maintained by any religious denomination for the purpose of combining sectarian religious instruction with secular education of the young.

The majority of the Catholics of this country are wise enough to appreciate the necessity of having no such irritating cause of contention raised between them and those who are not of their faith as an endeavor to have the public school fund divided among the public and denominational schools would prove.

MINKS ARE BRAVE WITHAL, and May Be Easily Trained as Hunters. Probably the most cunning of all animals is the mink.

There has been some heated discussion of the proposition to have public money appropriated for the maintenance of Catholic schools in New York and Maryland since it became known that an attempt was likely to be made to have this done in these states, and many of the papers and speakers who have taken ground in opposition to such a policy have assumed that the entire Catholic body of the country, clerical and lay, approve of that policy of distributing the money raised by tax to promote popular education.

The school tax is levied for a specific purpose, namely, for the maintenance of the public schools, and for nothing else, and no legislature has the moral or the constitutional right in Maryland to divert a portion of the fund to another and different use.

Watts—Of course women have the most firmness of character. It is very seldom that you see a woman taking a drink to drown her sorrows, while with the man it is the commonest thing in the world.

FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS. Are now being run daily by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad between Chicago and Milwaukee and Green Bay, Iron Mountain, Champaign, etc.

16 WORLD'S FAIR PHOTOS FOR ONE DIME. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway has made an arrangement with a first-class publishing house to furnish a series of beautiful World's Fair pictures of a large size at the nominal cost of one cent.

Mr. S. H. CONKLIN writes from Mt. Carmel, Conn. "Enclosed please find check for your bills of May 2nd and 12th. I regret that your bill for Express before us to the convenience, the economy, and the real artistic beauty of the National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors has proved to me in using them. It would seem as if the old way of trying to produce the desired shade of color by mixing many colors together with much labor and guess-work must be abandoned in favor of your economical, sure and easy method. My painters wish to introduce their use in an adjoining town, and want a couple of your books as guides."

DEATH'S LITTLE GIRL. The little girl who died last night was such a pretty child.

There is a little picture book that grievously is torn. There is a little shoe I know her little foot has worn. There is a little Noah's ark, with painted beasts and trees— If Death desired to please her there, why didn't he take these?

The little girl who died last night, what can she be to him? For Death is pictured black and stern, and pitiless and grim: And she knew nothing of such things, for she was bright and fair: And sweet and tender as the smile that angel faces wear.

And if he will not do these things, oh, tell me, tell me why? He stopped upon his way last night, instead of passing by: And if he loved her less than we, from whom she now is gone, Why didn't he just leave her here and hurry quickly on?

THAT YELLOW CUSHION. Its Contents Gave a Start to a Foolish Couple.

It was a sofa cushion of faded yellow silk, badly stained in half a dozen places and clumsily ripped down one edge. A handsome bull cabinet was its resting place and it stood in the smaller drawing-room.

Nothing more was said then, but afterward in the small drawing room my hostess nodded toward the bull cabinet and asked if I knew the history of its curious contents. I said: "No." She seemed surprised.

"We married very young, Douglas and I. He was just of age and I was only eighteen when our own we set up house-keeping on our own account, and I'm afraid we were both very, very brainless. We'd got plenty of money, and our one idea was to have as good a time as possible.

"We went everywhere, did everything and lived in dual magnificence. The expenses we were let into were something awful to contemplate and our limited income went no way to meet them; but to withdraw from the scene was a thing which we were far too young and happy and foolish even to think of, so we kept on dipping into the capital time after time 'only just for this once.'

"It will complete the sum of our foolishness when I tell you that jewelry was one of our greatest extravagances. I doted on gems, and Douglas loved to see me wear them; he said that I set them off so well, and so they were a good investment, or something usually witty. And we got more and more hard up and had fewer and fewer resources to draw upon; and yet we gave small thought for the future then, so happy was our present.

"One morning a crash came. We woke up to find out that my jewel box had been plundered. By afternoon all London was ringing with the news of the robbery. It was so odd in its details. Nothing but stones had been taken away. The gems had been forced from the settings and the battered goldwork left littered in an untidy heap.

agreed with him. So we started to replace what had been lost. And, oh, what fools, silly, silly fools we were! What's the use of repeating a tale of such follies? We spent all, and then, worse still, were owing money. There was a bankruptcy and a shameful selling up of our stock and stocks at the beginning of the winter season.

"Everything and everybody seemed against us then. At the sale things we had given pounds for went for as many pence; and the proceeds were all snatched up by the creditors. After it our relations wrote plain letters to say that they washed their hands of us.

"Further, he had done a thing that it was not his place to do at all. He had taken upon himself to interfere with our affairs—which was a great liberty—for which he craved pardon, but knew from experience how hard it was to get a new place after leaving an old one without money.

"And so he sent a sofa cushion, bought at the sale, which he would most respectfully beg us to accept. The cover was not worn much, but the inside was valuable. If we ripped up the silk we should see. After which, hoping no offense, he was our most obedient and obliged servant to command.

"A yellow silk cushion came with the letter. Douglas stared at it up and down, not understanding. 'Was the man mad, do you suppose, or drunk,' said he, 'when that letter was written?' 'He's underlined 'rip the silk,'" said I. 'Then ripped it shall be,' replied Douglas, and brought out his knife.

"And then, what do you think? In and among the rest of the fluffy edgewood were some two score of little balls of feathers tied around with fine cotton. Douglas opened one and found a diamond. I took another and a great emerald dropped into my hand.

"But after a bit I pulled myself together again, and Douglas showed me his gleanings. There was a double handful—diamonds, rubies, emeralds and more diamonds and more rubies, and a great opal that gleamed and burnt in the lamplight like a blaze of colored fires.

"Then a thought struck me and I gasped out a faint question as to whether they were really ours. 'Yes,' said Douglas, 'all yours. We paid our creditors to the last penny and it ruined us to do it. Now we must start afresh, and thank Providence and an honest, thoughtful servant, we've got something to begin upon. In the first place, they will provide us with passage money to Australia, and I don't think we shall be quite penniless when we land.'

"Well, we went. Douglas became a great squatter, the owner of many miles of country and of a million sheep, and we made happy investments. And what we won was not frittered away in jewelry or in stupid emulation of people richer than ourselves.

HAVE NOT CAUGHT LAKONEN

Murderer of Kosky Believed to Be in Hiding Somewhere About Houghton.

JOHN CLEGG IS REPORTED TO BE IN GALENA, ILLS.

Several People Would Like to Intervent Atlantic Mine Postoffice Looter for a Few Minutes.

[All communications for copper country department intended for publication should be addressed to A. F. Houghton.]

So far the officers have not captured Mat Lakonen but they still have hopes. Many have the idea that he is still in hiding in this city and as he has not had much chance to get away it may be that the idea is correct.

The Houghton Silver Cornet band is making preparations for its annual masquerade at the Armory Opera House just before Lent. These affairs have in the past been always largely attended and the boys offer very liberal prizes.

A telegram was received here yesterday morning from an officer in Galena, Ills., by Sheriff Dunn, asking if such a man as John Clegg was wanted here. The sheriff immediately telegraphed the United States marshal at Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Raskleigh's funeral was held Sunday afternoon from Grace Methodist church, the interment taking place in Forest Hill cemetery.

Sunday evening a few of the toughest gathered at the joints in West Hancock and had their usual spree.

Contractor Bollman is hauling large quantities of cordwood to the Osceola and Tamarack mines.

Miss Pamela Roberts left Sunday morning for the lumber camps in Ontonagon county superintended by her father, Contractor Prosper Roberts.

Contractor Heughens, who is lumbering for Hebard & Son in Keweenaw county, had to send to town about twenty men who were too sick to work.

The railroad employes received their checks Saturday.

It is rumored that the Osceola band is about to break up. Any inducements that the mine authorities can extend to keep it together will undoubtedly be offered.

The Calumet Congregational church people gave an oyster supper last evening in the parlors of the church.

Preston C. F. West, chief engineer of the Calumet & Hecla, left yesterday noon to spend the holidays with his family in Boston.

It has not been generally understood by the public that goods for the Gogebie sufferers will be shipped free from all points along the Mineral Range and Hancock & Calumet railroads.

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during a recent hazy, rainy, and stormy day.

The cash subscriptions to the relief fund now amount to over $2,000.

The News has it the Hecla & Torch Lake railroad is running a night

PARISIAN SIGNS.

The Ever-Appropriate Inscriptions Found on French Shops.

The eternal fitness of things is never lost sight of by Parisians. Even their shop signs are carefully adapted to the character of the wares they advertise.

Probably the most familiar illustration is the great establishment known to all the civilized world as "Au Bon Marche."

The curiosity and the odds-and-ends shops continue the idea in their family appropriate names. Of these are "At the Khic-knacks of Bygone Times."

The chemists rarely have any signs besides the names of the dealers, but here is a rather nice one: "At the Pharmacy of the Pastor."

Another Arctic expedition is to start from the United States next year. It is to be under the leadership of Robert Stein, of the geographical survey.

Attorney Trade Accuses Insanity Experts of Selling Out to the Defense.

WHO IS GIVING MONEY TO DEFEND PRENDERGAST?

Dr. Brower Shown Up as a Professional Deviser of Insanity Dodges for Murderers.

TRYING TO SAVE THE ASSASSIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—In the Prendergast trial today Attorney Wade of the defense announced that Henry George had dodged service and could not be called. Other witnesses were missing and court adjourned for a few hours to allow the defense time to bring in medical experts.

Assistant State's Attorney Todd and his associate, Attorney A. S. Trude, sprung a sensation in the trial today when they announced that the state had been betrayed by its medical experts; that the evidence expected to be used in rebuttal of the insanity evidence of the defense had been carried to Prendergast's attorneys by the doctors. Mr. Trude denounced the experts in strong terms and also stated that certain organizations have raised money for the defense.

Most prominent among the witnesses examined today were Dr. Archibald Church and Dr. D. R. Brower. Both are insanity experts, both were employed by the state to examine Prendergast and both today declared that they considered him insane, both saying he is a victim of "paranoia."

When Dr. Brower was cross-examined Mr. Trude asked: "Is not it true that in the case of Sturletta Stiles you wrote to Mr. Mills, who was then prosecuting, and said you thought you would be able to give some valuable testimony for the state and that later you appeared as an expert for the defense; that according to your directions the defendant had an epileptic fit in front of the jury?"

"No."

"Did not she have an epileptic fit in court?"

"I think she did."

"Did not you swear that that epileptic fit was a genuine and straight out-and-out fit?"

"I believe I did."

"Do you know that right after she had the fit as she passed out the courtroom, while you and I and she was going down stairs, she said: 'Doctor, I did just as you told me and I got even with the balliff. When I got that fit I bit his thumb clear to the bone?'"

"No."

Mr. Trude then asked the witness if he was not a witness in the Dacey murder trial several years ago and if Dacey did not have a fit before the jury according to Dr. Brower's prescription. This the physician denied and Mr. Trude sarcastically inquired, "Don't you give your memory morphine, doctor?"

No answer was made.

The Stiles and Dacey cases were celebrated Chicago murder trials. The Stiles woman was the mistress of Charles Stiles of the Chicago Board of Trade and killed him in the Palmer House. Mr. Trude was for the defendant in the case. Dacey was hanged for murdering Alderman Gaynor some years ago.

HEARD CRONIN'S LAST WORDS.

Defense Is Unable to Shake Mrs. Hoertel's Testimony.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Officer Isaac Robinson took the stand in the Cronin trial today. He testified to having noticed that on the night of May 4, 1889, the shutters on the Carlson cottage were closed and intact. On the night of May 12 he again noticed them and saw that one had been torn away.

The testimony given by the dentist, Dr. Lewis, at the former trial was produced. He had done work on Dr. Cronin's teeth and identified the body by this means. When the cross-examination of Dr. Lewis began Attorney Wing objected. He argued that this reading of questions and answers together with the cross-examination ought not to be allowed, as it was illegal. The court was confronted with a strange question of law and confessed he had never considered it before. Assistant State's Attorney Bottom's advice was asked but as he could offer no support Judge Tuttle adjourned court and went to look up the matter.

The entire afternoon was taken up by Mrs. Paulina Hoertel's direct and cross-examination, the latter being very severe. Her evidence, however, was unshaken in any particular and the defense was rather downcast at the result of the day's work. Mrs. Hoertel swore positively that on the night of May 4, 1889, she saw a buggy drawn by a white horse approach the Carlson cottage. It stopped in front of it and a tall man stepped out and reached back into the buggy for a small box or valise. He then went up the steps and was admitted to the house. Almost immediately there came sounds of blows and fighting and she heard a voice cry, "Oh God! Oh Jesus!" and then more struggling and the sound of a body falling. She then became frightened and went away. Nothing could induce the woman to deviate in any way from her first story. She stuck to it positively from first to last.

POLITICAL ROW IN JAPAN.

Lower House of Parliament Requests Its President to Resign.

YOKOHAMA, Dec. 18.—Parliament convened on the 25th of November and was formally opened by the emperor on the 28th. The house of representatives no sooner met on the 29th than a motion was made which in effect was that President Hoshi Toru did not have the confidence of the house. It was alleged that he had become connected with a bill of the Stock exchange and the secret meetings of the political merchants. After a heated discussion the motion was passed by a majority of 47. The house then adjourned to give the president an opportunity to resign. This he refused to do. He states he will

MURDERED HER RIVAL.

Tough Girl of Sixteen Shoots Down Another Tough Girl.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Dec. 18.—Austie Trevis, a girl only sixteen, an inmate of Belle Haskell's house of ill-fame, last night shot and killed Maggie McDermott, formerly of Sioux City, Ia. For some time there has been trouble between them on account of their rivalry for the affections of Frank Debeller, a handsome dark-eyed gambler. A meeting was held last night in one of the rear rooms of the Masco saloon to give Debeller a chance to decide which of the two he loved best. The decision seemed to be going on in Maggie's favor when the Trevis girl drew a gun and with the words: "If I can't have him you can't," shot the McDermott girl. The latter lived about ten minutes, during which time she was unconscious. Debeller was arrested with the Trevis girl as an accessory.

STILL DENOUNCING POLICE.

Federation of Labor Believes in Lake Front Brawlings.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Many of the American Federation of Labor delegates have returned to their homes and but three-fourths of them were present at today's extra session of the convention. A resolution was adopted denouncing the action of the Chicago police in refusing to permit the unemployed to meet on the Lake Front last summer. The prohibition of the meetings was declared a "revival of the tyranny of George III, imposed on the revolutionary forefathers."

PUT AT WORK IN THE PARKS.

PAINS AND ACHE.

We all have pains and aches, but they needn't last long—not any longer than it takes to put on an Alcock's Porous Plaster. The only thing to look out for is that you get the right plaster. There are others, but you don't want them; take our word for it, for when you need a plaster you need it, and there's no time for experimenting and finding out mistakes then. Ask for Alcock's Porous Plaster and see that you get them. If they say that some other is just as good, tell them that only the best is good enough for you. Alcock's Porous Plaster is quick and sure, and so know edges by the highest medical authorities and everybody else to be the best outside remedy for pains and aches of every description.

PHALANXED BY FLAMES.

Kansas City Times Editors and Printers Forced to Scramble Out Hastily.

ALL GOT OUT OF THE BUILDING SAFELY BUT ONE.

He Lost His Head, Jumped Two Stories and Was Badly Hurt—Little Damage Done.

'TAKES' WERE RATHER TOO HOT. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 18.—A fire originating from crossed electric wires at the foot of the elevator shaft in the Times building about 9 o'clock tonight caused almost a panic among the compositors, who were caught on the fourth floor without means of exit except by the fire escapes. The stairway winds around the elevator shaft and could not be used. The fire had gained considerable headway before any alarm was given, the elevator man having deserted his post and ran.

When the compositors and editorial force finally were apprised of their danger, they immediately sought the fire escapes and all succeeded in reaching the street in safety except Tom Calvert, who in his excitement jumped from the second story to the sidewalk and was badly injured. Three lady compositors fainted when they were informed of the fire and had to be carried down the ladders by the firemen. The loss, which is principally by water, will be small.

WHAT IT MEANS.

One of the Results of the Proposed Annexation of Canada.

According to the spirit of our constitutional system, foreign territory should be acquired only with a view to its admission, at no very distant day, into the union as one or more states on an equal footing with the other states. The population inhabiting such territory, and admitted into the union with it, would have to be endowed with certain rights and powers, and the United States would have to undertake certain obligations with regard to them. The people of the new states would not only govern themselves as to their home concerns, but also take part in the government of the whole country through the senators and representatives sent by them to congress, as well as through the votes cast in the elections of our presidents and in adopting or rejecting constitutional amendments. More than this: as the party managers would study and humor their likes and dislikes in order to obtain their votes, the new-comers would soon exercise a considerable influence upon the conduct of our political parties. The United States, on the other hand, would be bound to guarantee to them a republican form of government, to protect them against invasion, and, upon proper application, against domestic violence. In other words, this republic would admit them as equal members to its national household, to its family circle, and take upon itself all the responsibilities for them which this admission involves. To do this safely it would have to act with keen discrimination.

If the people of Canada should some day express a desire to be incorporated in this union, there would, as to the character of the country and of the people, be no reasonable doubt of the fitness, or even the desirability, of the association. Their country has those attributes of soil and climate which are most apt to stimulate and keep steadily at work all the energies of human nature. The people are substantially of the same stock as ours, and akin to us in their traditions, their notions of law and morals, their interests and habits of life. They are accustomed to the peaceable and orderly practices of self-government. They would mingle and become one with our people without difficulty. The new states brought by them into the Union would soon be hardly distinguishable from the old in any point of importance. Their accession would make our national household larger, but it would not seriously change its character. It might take place—and, in fact, it should take place only in that way—as a result of a feeling common to both sides that the two countries and peoples natural y belong together in their sympathies as well as their interests. Nor would the union of the two countries excite among us any ambition of further aggrandizement in the same direction, for the acquisition of the Canadian Dominion would give to the United States the whole of the northern part of the continent.—Carl Schurz, in Harper's Magazine.

When on a visit to Iowa, Mr. K. Dalton, of Lury, Russell County, Kansas, called at the laboratory of Chamberlain & Co. Des Moines, to show them his six year old boy, whose life had been saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it having cured him of a very severe attack of croup. Mr. Dalton is certain that it saved his boy's life and is enthusiastic in his praise of the Remedy. For sale by H. H. Stafford, Son & Co.

For a sore throat there is nothing better than a flannel bandage dampened with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will nearly always effect a cure in one night's time. MAKING READY FOR SEA.

Scenes of Bustling Preparation Aboard the War Ship Ordered to Sail.

There is no more trying season on board a United States man-of-war than the time of pressing preparation for some hurried mission. It is a maxim with subalterns in the navy that nobody knows to-day what will happen tomorrow. For days and weeks before an expectant ship puts to sea there are conflicting rumors touching the day and hour of departure, and even after everybody has been ordered to be on board for sailing at a definite time there is still a skeptical sentiment in the ward room.

When a ship is under orders to make ready for sea as rapidly as possible and to hold herself in readiness to sail upon short notice there is a scene of haste and activity. Only the most trustworthy sailors are then allowed to go ashore, and even officers find their going and coming more closely watched than usual. The paymaster, his clerk, his yeoman, and the Jack of the Dust are busy all day looking after stores, paying such men as are to be transferred to other ships, and caring for this or that detail essential to the proper preparation for the ship for sea.

The mess caterer is busy getting his stores on board, and every officer is making his last purchase ashore. Meanwhile the ship is besieged by the host of persons who have dealings with men and officers. There are tailors with garments to try on, agents for dealers in officer's uniforms and accoutrements anxiously inquiring as to the final wants of this or that officer, bumbost men of all descriptions offering wares, expressmen receiving final orders, laundresses with the very last batch of fresh linen, seeming mountains of starched material that must last the wardrobe perhaps for months. Finally, there are the wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of the sailors standing about on deck or seated ashore, within sight of the marine sentinels, in deep converse with the men. There are all sorts of excuses and devices for obtaining from one to twenty-four hours' leave in those last days, and the women are especially fertile in these devices. There are telegraphic dispatches calling Jack to the bedside of a dying father, or a hysterical mother, stern demands for his instant appearing in court upon important legal business, and requests for leave backed by guarantees from clergymen and civil officers. The knowing executive officer ignores all these things and keeps Jack steadily at work aboard ship until the time comes to weigh anchor.

When Ellis island was still the powder depot of this naval station the agony of departure was sometimes drawn out for days. It was always difficult to reach New York from a ship lying at Ellis island, and officers often lay for days within sight of the city, but were compelled to remain aboard ship, though there was nothing to occupy them. The order to take ammunition was heard with apprehension and followed by long grumbling.

Every naval officer who values his standing is careful that nothing shall detain him ashore beyond the hour of the ship's departure. Wilful delay on his part would be followed by court-martial and even when unavoidable accident detains a man he feels that he has lost something by his failing to report on board ship at the proper time. Even officers on waiting orders take care that they shall not at any time place themselves twenty-four hours beyond the reach of telegraphic orders. The subaltern who serves under an executive officer with whom he is not on the best terms is especially careful to avoid any accident that may bring him aboard ship an hour beyond the expiration of his leave or necessitate his joining the vessel at some port other than the original point of departure. Such a misfortune, however innocent incurred, may handicap the subaltern throughout a whole cruise in his efforts to keep even with an executive officer keen to catch him in fault.

Landsmen do well to pay very brief visits to a ship under stress of preparations for sea. The visitor may not be physically in the way, but as he has no nerving sense by which he may distinguish a busy officer from an idle one, he may unconsciously retard work when there is not a moment to spare. There comes, in any case, a time when all civilians must leave the ship, and a visitor's departure is accomplished more gracefully if it be timed so as to precede at least by an hour or so the promulgation of that order.—N.Y. Sun.

PITH AND POINT.

—Amateur Model.—"Now be sure you don't get my feet too large." Illustration.—"O, they will be reduced one-half in the reproduction."—Vogue.

—Critic (in art gallery).—"I don't see any art in that dandy of yours." Amateur Painter (delighted).—"Aha! You think I have the art that conceals art."

—"Why do you think they were new in the business of robbing?" Passenger.—"Great Scott! they blew open the safe and left five sleeping-car porters unmolested."—Inter-Ocean.

—Good Girl.—"Why did you kiss Mamie so fervently? Are you engaged to her?" Charlie.—"No, but I was, and she has consented to break off the engagement."—Truth.

—A Gifted Woman.—"What expressive eyes your wife has!" said Manchester to Snags. "Yes," assented Snags, with a sigh. "She can express herself very vigorously with her tongue, too."—Indianapolis Journal.

—Aunt Mehitabel has been thinking considerably about finance. "I've concluded," she remarked the other day, "that the sensible way is to take your money out of yer stockin' an' put yer foot in it."—Washington Star.

—Mrs. Fangle.—"Have you secured a lodger for your second floor yet, Mr. Goslin?" Goslin (horrified).—"I haven't been looking for a lodger, madam." Mrs. Fangle.—"Why, I'm certain my husband told me you had rooms to let in your upper story."—Walf.

—Totally Deprived.—The confidence man turned the corner and broke into a run, leaving his trusting victim standing serenely in front of the hotel with a bogus check in his hand. "The gull I left behind me!" he said softly to himself as he ran.—Chicago Tribune.

—Valuable Assistance.—"Madam," said the tramp, "I've got to get to Jersey City to-night. Can't you assist me?" "No, I haven't time; but I'll lend you my dog. He's a great help to tramps when they want to make space. See 'im, 'Tige'!" said the kind lady.—Harper's Bazar.

—A Chronic Kicker.—Mrs. Remsen—"I am sure you can't find any fault with the dinner to-night, Robert. Everything is just as nice as it can be." Mr. Remsen (reluctantly).—"Oh, yes, I suppose so. It quite makes me wonder whether I am at home."—P. & S. Bulletin.

—Doctor.—"Why, Sageman, I'm astonished to see you looking so well. What have you been doing with yourself?" Sageman.—"Oh, nothing more than passing a quiet two weeks in the country." Doctor.—"Don't say! You must have gone to some place where the sanitary conditions are remarkably favorable." Sageman.—"They are; there is no doctor within thirty miles of the town."—Boston Courier.

A Principle involved.

Quirk.—"Didn't you bet me five dollars the Valkyrie would win." Gammon.—"I did."

"Well, the Valkyrie lost, didn't it?" "It did."

"You haven't offered to settle, have you?" "I have not."

"Well, where are you going to settle?"

"Look here, Quirk, I'm not going to pay that five dollars. In the first place, it's wrong to bet. It follows logically, in the second place, that it's wrong to pay a bet. I was weak enough to commit the first wrong, but I draw the line at the second. Two wrongs never make a right. There's a principle at stake in this thing. I've to meet a man round the corner. Good morning."—Chicago Tribune.

—The very newest fashion among the ladies of St. Petersburg is to arm themselves with long canes when they go abroad. Some of these canes measure six feet to seven feet in length and as the ladies stalk along they seem at a distance stalwart amazons who have supplied themselves with small scaffolding poles or plucked up young trees.

—The greatest whirlpool is the maelstrom of the Norway coast. It is an eddy between the main land and an island, and when the current is in one direction and the wind in another no ship can withstand the fury of the waves. Whales and sharks have been cast ashore and killed. The current is estimated to run thirty miles an hour.

Fire Lads in a Blizzard

The fire department was called out last night in the blizzard by an alarm sent in from South Marquette. With a promptness most commendable, considering the depth of snow and fierceness of the storm, eighteen members out of the twenty-two attended and successfully prevented the flames from injuring adjoining property.

The fire was in a house in Mesnard street, well up the hill, occupied as bachelor's quarters by William Maher and his brother. It is not definitely known how the flames started, but the rumor given most credit is that it was from a lamp. The house was of frame, probably worth about $500, and was completely destroyed. Had the department been on the ground at the time of the fire's first appearance they could not likely have saved the inflammable structure.

Over 800 feet of hose was laid through four feet of snow and across a territory without road or path. On account of the height the water pressure was not very powerful so that only one stream could be used to any advantage. But the boys went bravely to work and kept playing on the flames until they were subdued. They came back covered with ice and snow but fully satisfied-and justly so-that they had done all that might be done by men. There was not a great deal of furniture in the house and nothing was saved. The burned-out inmates got shelter among the neighbors.

Ocean of Molten Iron.

Saturday the Lake Shore Iron works made one of the biggest, if not the biggest, castings in the history of its foundry. Down in the sand a pattern had left the impress for a balance wheel twenty-four feet in diameter and requiring more than twenty-five tons of iron to fill it. Naturally there was not a little anxiety over this piece of work and not until the big lake of molten iron was safely poured into the mold and the sand removed, showing a complete casting, did the foreman and Manager Fogarty breathe freely.

Those unfamiliar with the requirements governing a cast of such proportions can form but a faint idea of the task it involves or the anxiety that cannot be wholly banished until the work is done. Picture, if possible, nearly thirty tons-60,000 pounds-of molten iron to be safely transferred from the cupolas to the mold; picture the possibilities of accident and loss should such occur and a faint conception may be formed of the big job done by our local foundry.

A great deal of the work is yet to do before the monster wheel is ready for work. It is for the pumping engines of the Salisbury mine and will be put in position by the Lake Shore people.

G. A. R. Officers.

Albert Jackson post No. 300, G. A. R., department of Michigan, last night elected the following officers: Commander, E. C. Anthony; senior vice commander, E. M. Beanson; officer of the guard, John Dooley; representative, E. B. Palmer; alternate, C. P. Colwell.

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF.

The new city hall is "a go" at last. Rah!

G. A. R. dance at Armory Hall Thursday night. Refreshments to be served in the hall dining room.

The funeral of the six months old son of J. W. Madden, Jr., who died Sunday morning, took place yesterday morning.

Dr. C. H. Walker and wife of Oakland, Cal., who have been for a few days guests of Dr. O. D. Jones, left yesterday to visit friends in the copper country.

A crowd of kids-some of them wearing whiskers but kids just the same-outrivalled the wallings of old boreas last night by filling the air with a symphony in B horror on fish horns and kazooks.

Superintendent Retallic found his street railway yesterday and managed to make three or four round trips when, about 7 o'clock another fierce blizzard struck town and forced the cars to stop. One stood all night at the top of Front street hill. Mr. Retallic said yesterday: "If Job had attempted to run a street railway up here during the winter his book would never have been written."

Hager Bros., in a new card today call attention to the timeliness of presenting your friends with a handsome picture and easel for a Christmas gift. They are certainly headquarters for framed pictures in this city. The line embraces all qualities of etchings and engravings, in handsome frames and at reasonable figures. This stock is well disposed for examination and it is a treat to view the long lines of works of art hung on the walls of their warehouse.

In Memoriam.

Whereas, In the Providence of the Almighty Chancellor, Iron Cross Lodge, No. 106, Knights of Pythias, is called upon to mourn the death of Brother Knight A. H. Holland; therefore

Resolved, That this lodge express its deep sorrow in the loss of a brother so generally esteemed for his many excellent qualities. Those who best knew him became his staunchest friends; and though in him there were frailties common to our weak human nature, his character was the sum of traits worthy of the highest admiration and emulation.

Resolved, That we tender our sincere sympathy and condolence to that friend who was desared of all on earth, the mother whose home in far distant England made it impossible to be at the bedside of her dying son and for whom Brother Holland felt a filial affection so profound that absence from his side for many years only deepened its intensity and devotion-thus giving proof of the innate nobility of his own character. And we also sympathize with those friends who, though not bound by ties of consanguinity, both provided a home and willingly assumed the arduous duties and attentions made necessary by illness and gave evidence of an attachment as sincere as could well be shown by kith and kin.

Resolved, That the charter of this lodge be draped for a period of thirty days; that this memorial be spread upon the records of this lodge and a copy of the same published in THE DAILY MINING JOURNAL. WEBSTER DOCK, L. G. HALLSTROM, N. A. METZ, Committee.

WIGSBY'S VACATION AT HOME.

How He Managed to Look as if He Had Been to the Country.

Everybody who has seen Wigsby, and especially everybody who has been at his house, thinks that Wigsby must have had a glorious time on his vacation. But everybody aforesaid would find that he had been made a fool of could he hear Wigsby repeat what he told a few of his particular friends under the seal of confidence the other day.

Says Wigsby: "The first thing everybody says is: 'How brown are you!' And, of course, I reply: 'It'll come off!' And so it does when I wash my face. Artificial every particle of it. All came out of that paint box over there on the mantel. Tan is all right for a few weeks in summer, but a man with a good complexion knows when he's well off."

"But how about those mosquito marks?" asked one of the boys; "surely they are the real thing?" "Yes," said Wigsby, "they're real enough. But how d'ye think I got them? Not at the seashore nor at the mountains. No, sir, they are a home production. My own idea, though. I kept a barrel of rain water uncovered in the yard, and then I took the screens out of my windows. That was all I had to do; the mosquitos did the rest. The scratches on my hands look like the work of brambles. Bogus, I assure you. How did I manage them? Sometimes I pulled the cat's tail and sometimes I put my arm around the house-girl's waist. You'd guess these scratches were not made by hikers. Every time it rained I left my clothes and shoes out all night, taking care to roll them in the mud before bringing them in next morning."

"And you haven't been away at all?" "No," said Wigsby; "not a bit of it. And I've had a good time, too. Am well rested and ready to go to work; have lived well, had everything the market afforded; have had a good night's rest every night; have escaped all dangers and inconveniences of travel. In short, have had a fine time, and nobody could tell from my appearance that I hadn't been rusticated. I did come near getting found out by one fellow, though. When he saw my trunk he said that trunk had never been on a journey! It sort o' staggered me for a moment, but I managed to stammer out that the trunk I took was up garret. Next morning I took the precaution to buy a cheap trunk, and after using the ax on it for ten minutes you couldn't have told it from a trunk that had been on a vacation."

"And you really feel as though you'd been in the country?" "Precisely! Of course I haven't that tired feeling a fellow brings back from the country, and I don't feel as though I'd been starved to death; and then I've got fifty dollars in my pocketbook. But, with these exceptions and perhaps a few more I don't think of just at this moment, I feel as though I'd had a fortnight in the country."-Boston Transcript.

INDIAN SAND-PAINTING.

Fac Similes of Two Pictures Made by Moki Priests and Priestesses.

Who ever heard of painting in sand? The Moki Indians understand that species of art. Two paintings of the kind, copied accurately from the originals, have been newly placed on exhibition at the National museum. Perhaps they might better be called mosaics, being done in sand of six different colors on a flat, horizontal surface. The colors are yellow, green, white, black and a mixture. Such pictures are made by Moki priests and priestesses on the floors of their subterranean chambers. The six colors stand for the cardinal points. Yellow is the north, green is the west, red is the south, white is the east, black is the region above, and all colors signify the region below. One of the two sand paintings is a copy of the kind of picture made for the annual ceremonial of the Moki women's festival to the germ god, which takes place in September. The work of art is executed during the progress of the secret rites. It represents two figures in an elaborate frame of different colors. On the left is a likeness of La-kone-ma-na, the patroness of the affair. She is clad in a white blanket. On the right is a portrait of one of the twin gods of war, who carries a zigzag of lightning in his hands.

The other picture is a fac-simile of the one made by the chief of the fraternity of antelopes at the festival of the snake dances. It is highly conventional in its character. Rain clouds are represented by semi-circles. Parallel lines show the rain falling. Four odd-looking zigzag figures stand for the lightning snakes, which are respectively red, green, white and yellow. The green and white snakes are female and the red and yellow snakes are male. Around this sand mosaic are performed the weird rites of the antelope priests, who sing songs embodying the mythological drama of the snake hero.-Washington Star.

Just Now.

A GENEROUS PEER.

A Touching Anecdote Related of the Late Poet-Peer, Lord Lytton.

Many years ago, when the elder Bulwer was in his prime, a laborer on the estate was engaged to do a certain job of hard work. At the end of a week he carried his account to the bailiff, who said a week's work was worth three shillings and sixpence. The man insisted that this was not enough and refused to settle, and every time he met the bailiff he would stop him and ask for his money.

Finally the bailiff became angry, discharged the man and refused to allow any farmer on the estate to hire him.

The man was forced to leave the neighborhood, but he was too poor to move any great distance, so that he was still within the circuit of the bailiff's ill-will. Wherever he went this pursued him, and his life in consequence was a hard one. But all the time he kept telling his family and his friends that some day he would get the money which the Bulwer-Lytton estate owed him.

He was well on in years when one day he met a man in the road. It was the same time post Owen Meredith, now come to the title, and English ambassador to France, at home on a visit.

"You are Lord Lytton, I believe," he said, respectfully.

"Yes."

"Then, if you please, I should like you to pay an account which has been due me for a long time."

Lord Lytton looked at the account and at his request the man told the whole story. The poet was very much affected and disturbed. Then he said: "Well, I will do what I can to make it up to you."

He was as good as his word. He built a house at the gates of the park, put the man and his family into it and gave it to them, rent free, with other perquisites, so that he was entirely comfortable for the remainder of his days.-Hartford Courant.

One Way of Unloading Wagons.

Tobacco is brought from Kentucky over the various bridges on long wagons holding five hogshhead. The tops of these wagons are three or four feet above the street, and I was amused at the method of unloading. The drivers don't go to the trouble of using skids. They simply place a cushion, made of gunny sack stuffed with straw, on the street and roll the heavy hogshheads-and they weigh nearly a ton-with a jump on the spring cushion. They bounce a little, but the men say that it is a rare thing for one of them to break.-Cincinnati Tribune.

ISHPEMING'S EMPLOYED.

Goodly Showing of Men at Work in the Mines of the Hematite City.

THERE ARE ALSO MANY MEN AT WORK IN THE WOODS.

Sons of Herman Will Give a Masquerade Ball—That New Swedish Paper Society Elects Officers.

AT THE MINES.

There is some curiosity manifested concerning the number of men now employed in the mines in and about Ishpeming by people outside the city. To satisfy this THE MINING JOURNAL has taken the pains to look the matter up and finds that there are 1,600 men now working in the mines at Ishpeming and its environs.

The Lake Superior Iron company is working 593 of this number, about sixty of whom are employed at the company's Section 21 mine, Winthrop location. During the past ten days this company has increased its force from 563 to the number mentioned above.

The Cleveland-Cliffs company is working 115 at the Salisbury; seventy at the Hard Ore; forty-five at the Lake shaft and 20 at the Cleveland Hematite. At the Salisbury they have been working only one shift since the cave-in occurred near the engine house a couple of months ago. For several months prior to that about 250 men were working there.

At the Lake Angeline there are 400, the force having been reduced a little when the old mine closed down a few weeks ago.

The Winthrop is working 350, a few less than was employed there during the fall, a number of the surface hands having been laid off when winter set in.

There are fully as many more men at work in other industries in and near the city. An unusually large number are employed in the woods about here while many are working on the railroads, in stores, etc.

A Masquerade Ball.

The members of Fritz Reuter lodge, Hermann Sons, are talking of giving a masquerade ball some time between Jan. 24 and Feb. 1. A few months ago when the subject was broached by a few of the members the lodge as a whole was not in favor of it, but during the past week or two it has been decided to give the ball.

This is the only society in Ishpeming that will give a masquerade ball during the winter, and it will therefore be sure to attract a good attendance. The German Aid society, which has given an annual masquerade ball for several years past, does not intend to give one this year, it is said. Last year both that society and the Hermann Sons got up masquerade parties, these occurring within a few days of each other, and both were successful in every way.

In case the Hermann Sons give the party they will engage a number of the young men about town who attend dances regularly to look after the arrangement of the floor. They did this last year and found it a more satisfactory way than to place the floor management in the hands of their own members. One of the officers of the society who has been in favor of the ball has already secured a floor committee and has also made arrangements for the hall. A special meeting of the society to decide definitely on the project will soon be called.

Christmas Services.

At the Swedish Lutheran church Christmas services will be conducted at 5 o'clock in the morning. The choir, assisted by members of the band and orchestra, will render special musical selections. In the afternoon a Christmas tree will be displayed for the benefit of the children. Each child will be given a present and a special program for their amusement will be rendered. All those having presents to give are requested to send them to the committee recently appointed to look after that part of the affair.

At the Norwegian Lutheran church there will be an entertainment and a tree at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. All the children will be given presents and the entertainment will be for their special benefit.

The Ishpeming Tribune.

P. W. Axelson, who was here last week endeavoring to get possession of the Superior Posten, has written to Ishpeming parties stating that the first number of his new Swedish paper, "The Tribune" will be published on Friday next at Escanaba and that on Saturday copies of the sheet will be distributed here. As yet Mr. Axelson has not obtained any items of news from here, which leads his Ishpeming friends to believe that the initial number will not reach here on the date mentioned.

Hermann Sons' Officers.

At the regular meeting of Fritz Reuter lodge No. 11, of Hermann Sons Sunday evening the following officers were elected: President, G. M. Loth; vice president, John Langelbeck; recording secretary, John Bechmann; financial secretary, Carl Eismann; treasurer, J. J. Leffler; trustee, Peter Paulus; physician, G. G. Barnett. The installation will take place on Jan. 11, when the president will announce his selection of appointive officers.

Cheap Handkerchiefs.

Sellwood & Co. announce a fifteen-cent handkerchief sale for the holidays. They have many neat and desirable patterns in these goods which are just right for Christmas presents. Among them are white Swiss, hand-made, fancy embroidered and fancy silk and fancy chiffonette embroidered goods. The ladies are invited to call and see them. The pyramid of oranges displayed in Tibor's window is tastily constructed and very attractive.

Fred Arthur got home yesterday from Illinois, where he held a position with a sewer contracting firm.

F. J. Grip returned to the copper country yesterday. Mrs. Grip as been quite ill the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crabb are rejoicing over the advent of a baby girl, born Sunday, at their home.

The schools will close for the holiday vacation on Friday next and will resume again on Tuesday, Jan. 2.

J. H. Hamill, baggage man at the South Shore depot, will leave today on a visit to relatives and friends in Toronto, Canada.

The Misses Lindquist, corner of Fifth and Vine streets, announce in this issue that they are prepared to do fashionable dressmaking at "panic" prices.

Joseph Trudell, residing at Frenchtown, had his left hand badly injured one day last week while loading logs in the woods for Gil Hodgkins.

The section hands on the Chicago & Northwestern and South Shore roads worked all Sunday removing snow from the principal crossings and side tracks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hall left Sunday evening for Lake Maillard, Florida. Mr. Hall will remain a short time, while Mrs. Hall will stay in Florida for the winter.

The members of the Ishpeming Snow Shoe club and their ladies turned out in force for the tramp last evening, it being the first ladies' night of the season. The tramp was followed by a hot tenderloin supper.

Ambrose Tent of Maccabees will nominate officers at its regular meeting tomorrow night. The election will take place at the following meeting. The installation, which will take place in January, will be public.

Clifford's orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for the charity ball to be given at Michigamme on the 29th inst., under auspices of the Odd Fellows, Maccabees and Ancient Order of United Workmen lodges of that place.

The Swedish Independent order of Good Templars will give a social at the hall of the Young People's society of the Swedish Lutheran church on the evening of Dec. 27. A musical program will be rendered and refreshments will be served by the ladies. Admission, fifteen cents.

A. J. Austin, the butcher, has not been making any soup for the poor the past few days on account of the illness of his father, who attends to the work.

Mr. Austin should be assisted in his good work as the expense of the soup amounts to quite a few dollars in the course of a month.

Henry Loth of Chicago, formerly of Ishpeming, will be married today to Miss Louisa Rose, also of Chicago. Mr. Loth holds a responsible position with the Pool Bros. Publishing company. The young couple will spend their honeymoon at Ishpeming, Champion and Stephenson, Wis., where Mr. Loth has relatives and friends residing.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Reudriff, Perry Co., O.

THE FLOWERS WITH FACES. What are your thoughts as you blossom, sweet flowers.

Smiling though dear be the weather and cheerless. Lifting your heads to the rain's chilling shower.

It is That of an Old Head But a Young Heart.

There was a time when little Nellie Harman rode on my shoulder, hunted my pockets for goodies, and escaped her nurse's charge several times a day to toddle down to the mill in search of "her Jack Spencer."

She is the only child of Jere Harman, the millionaire mill-owner, and as gentle and good as she is beautiful.

There was a time when little Nellie Harman rode on my shoulder, hunted my pockets for goodies, and escaped her nurse's charge several times a day to toddle down to the mill in search of "her Jack Spencer."

She is as unaffected and cordial in her friendliness as ever, and sometimes when she lays her hand on my arm and looks up into my face and asks why I come so seldom to the hall, and have I grown tired of old friends, or herthen I find it hard to answer lightly, to smile calmly, and I go away with a headache.

She has her young friends, too, among the country gentility. Young Harry Desmond, that he is the fortunate suitor of Jere Harman's heiress. He is a fresh-faced, good-hearted lad. Love is for youth, and they are young together.

The mill is shut down and the strikers gather in knots along the village street and discuss the situation. The cut-rates have caused the trouble. Jere Harman is a hard man and a hard master. He holds the fate of these people in his hands. A few cents less to them, a few dollars more to him. This seemed to him to settle the question. The times were dull—he would reduce went out in a body.

The first day of the strike Big John, the weaver, who headed the strikers, came to Jere Harman with a delegation to arbitrate the matter.

To them Harman said: "Return to work at my terms or stay out and starve. Monday I hire new hands if you are not back in your places. As long as I own this mill I shall be master here."

This was his final answer, and no words of mine, no warnings of the murmurs and threats that grow and deepen among the men, will shake his will.

There is talk of firing the mill among the mad-brained ones, but Big John shakes his head.

"That were chopping the nose off to spite the face, men. If the mill were burnt how would that help us to work and wages? Nay; it must be other means."

"Aye, we must live; but if we do not get our rights by fair means we will have them by foul," cried another.

The strike is over. The night is ended, and I sit alone in the office in the gray dawn, sick and dizzy with the horrors of the night's experience. I shut my eyes and the picture stands out before me—the dark night, the hall with its lights glowing out through the windows, the gay party of young people in the drawing-room; the gleam of the torches outside, the mob of desperate men the angry, upturned faces. There was a tramp of feet, hoarse shouts, and a stone crashed through a window and shattered the chandelier.

The music stopped with a discordant crash. There was instant confusion, and above it all there were the hoarse cries for Jere Harman.

I sprang through the piazza window and faced the men. They knew me well, and Big John shouted: "We've naught against you, John Spencer. We mean no harm to any, but the master must hear us. Bring out the master!"

"Come, like honest men, in daylight, and talk it over calmly," I urged; "not at night, like a mob of ruffians with stones for armaments."

Jere Harman had come out to them. They greeted him with an angry shout: "We are to be put off no longer. Is it our rights by fair means or by foul, Jere Harman?"

"Your rights—," began Jere Harman in his harsh stern voice. I saw that Nellie Harman had slipped out to her father's side and laid her hand pleadingly on his shoulder. She did not fear the angry men, for willingly not one of them would have harmed a hair of her dainty head. I saw that she would have pleaded with her father to be gentle with them.

"Yes, our rights!" yelled a voice in the crowd, with an awful oath. He was drunken or blind with rage—surely he did not see the girl at her father's side. A stone whizzed through the air. It might have been Jere Harman's death-blow; instead, it struck her. It cut a great, cruel gash just above the temple.

They sprang toward her—her friends, her lover—but Nellie Harman put her two hands out to me with a sharp gasping cry.

"Jack, Jack!" she said, and I caught her in my arms.

I have lived over the agony, the joy of that moment, all through the long, lonely hours of this night.

It was Big John himself who brought the doctor and cried like a child when they told him she was dying. His little crippled child she had loved and cared for, and it had died in her arms. "Aye, and that harm should have come to her, who was more good and innocent of wrong than the angels!" muttered Big John, brokenly, as he went away softened and sorrowful.

Jere Harman sent me out to tell the men that he had yielded, and in the silence of death they went away. The strike is over.

As I sit here in the gray dawn, waiting, fearing, dreading the coming of the morning and the news it may bring, I hear the clatter of horses' hoofs. It is a servant from the Hall riding to the village on some errand.

"What news?" I call out hoarsely, and learn that the worst is over and that she will live.

Nellie Harman hovered between life and death for long weeks, and I worked as I had never worked before. Jere Harman left much of the management of the mill in my hands, and I put heart and brain in the work or I should have gone mad in those weeks with the longing to see her face. When she was well again I spent many evenings at the Hall, talking business with her father, who came seldom to the office in those days. He had broken in health with the recent troubles and had lost energy, but he was gentler and kinder than of old.

Harry Desmond was always there. I was but a dull guest. I could not endure his light-heartedness, the triumph in his eyes, the happiness in his laugh. I could not endure that he should call her by name or smile on her.

I was a mad fool! I told Jere Harman that I must go away; that I must have rest, change—a vacation. Gordon, the young foreman, could take my place, I urged, and he consented, though grudgingly.

The last evening I promised him to spend at the hall and go over the accounts with him.

Never had Nellie been brighter or gayer. I felt a vague pang that my going was so little to her.

It was early when Desmond left, and I immediately rose to go. Jere Harman grasped my hand cordially in farewell, and Nellie said simply "Good-by," and I went down the path slowly and sadly.

Suddenly I heard a light, flying step behind me as I reached the shadow of the trees.

It was Nellie. I stepped back in the darkness. She stopped, as if listening, and then came toward me.

"I thought I should overtake you," she whispered, slipping her arm through mine. "Did you think I could let you go away to-night without a last word?" There was something in her voice, a tenderness, that explained all. Desmond, and mistaken me for him in the darkness. But to have her so near was very sweet. She seemed not to care for speech. She was very still—just clasping my arm and leaning ever so gently against my shoulder. The temptation was great—I was going away—just to take away with me the memory of a moment's heaven!

I kissed her. "Forgive me," I pleaded, desperately. "You thought me your lover, Desmond, and I was cruel, mad, to take that kiss. Nellie, forgive me."

"But I kissed you, Jack," she whispered. "And you won't go—oh, Jack! you won't go when I love you so."

Just the Words for It. They were talking about a man whom they had both known in the west.

CONTRACTOR BRUCE GETS IT

His Bid for the Proposed City Hall Accepted by the Council.

WILL BE BROUGHT WITHIN THE APPROPRIATION.

The Contract to Be Entered Into at Once and All Possible Dispatch Followed.

A GOOD PIECE OF NEWS: Members of the city council last night took action which will undoubtedly be approved by every citizen of Marquette. The second batch of bids for the proposed city hall was opened and one of them accepted. This is something for which Marquette people have been most anxiously looking for weeks and THE MINING JOURNAL feels a peculiar satisfaction in being able to present such a desirable morsel of news.

The council met in special session, Mayor Kaufman presiding and nearly a full representation of aldermen present. As the opening and consideration of the city hall bids was the chief reason of the meeting there was not much time lost in general business. After the reading of the street commissioner's report for November—showing a total expenditure of $390.53—by the controller, the following bids for the city hall were opened:

From Emil Bruce of Minneapolis, who offered to build the hall complete for the sum of $32,437 with the modification that if steel roofing were used $1,500 be deducted from the total.

Also a bid from Chaussee Bros. of Negaunee, for a total of $54,000, deducting $1,300 for steel or Spanish tile roofing.

A motion was immediately before the council that all bids be rejected as exceeding the appropriation. To this motion an amendment was offered that the mayor appoint a committee of two, with himself as chairman, to confer with the architects and Mr. Bruce, the lowest bidder, to see if certain modifications might not be made by which the contractor might bring his bid within the $50,000 limit. This amendment created not a little warm discussion, a few of the aldermen objecting strongly but the majority holding that no unnecessary delay should be indulged in in getting this city hall matter settled as soon as possible. Finally, on roll call, the amended motion was carried by a big majority. The mayor appointed Aldermen Putnam and Pearl to act with him and a recess was taken to admit of a conference.

After an absence of twenty minutes the committee returned, the council was called to order and a report presented that the bid of Emil Bruce for $50,337 be accepted and a resolution was offered to the effect that the contractor be at once requested to furnish the necessary bonds and enter into a contract with the city for the work. The report was accepted and the resolution adopted without a dissenting vote. Then a resolution was offered that the mayor appoint a committee, with himself as chairman, to confer with the contractor and the architects to the end that certain minor modifications might be made in the plans and specifications to enable the contractor to build the city hall for the appropriated $50,000. This also went through with a rush.

The mayor then appointed Aldermen Putnam and Pearl to act with him as the special committee. This committee also has power to assist the city attorney in drawing up the necessary papers for the contract. The prayer of the dwellers in High street that the council refund the money already collected toward a sewer in that street and of which the necessary three-fourths could not be collected; also to permit them to build their own sewer under the direction of the city engineer, was granted on roll call.

The council then adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, Dec. 26.

It is not known exactly why certain of the aldermen objected to the action of the council last night in taking the best way presenting itself to close the contract for the city hall and get the matter on the way so that something definite might be accomplished before the snow leaves the ground. The action of the objecting aldermen was doubtless prompted by a desire to be eminently fair to all bidders, but a moment's thought would have convinced them their first duty was to the city and as the only bidders were outsiders they need not have had such a tender feeling for them. Chaussee Bros.' bid was so much above the appropriation that it could scarcely have been expected they could have caused it to shrink, particularly as the modifications made must be of a slight character.

The council has ample precedent for the course taken and it will certainly have the heartiest approval of the citizens of Marquette who voted for the appropriation, not only because we sadly need a city hall but as a means of creating employment for our laborers and artisans during the depression at present bearing not lightly upon us. There is not the slightest doubt the modifications made will be of an immaterial nature; that the city will have practically as good a city hall as though the bid had been accepted without proviso. On the other hand the people are assured their representatives in the council are keeping an eye single to the general interest. The action taken is most gratifying and though not a great deal of work may be done while winter lasts there is a certain prospect of all summer employment for a considerable number when the spring comes. Already half the amount of city hall bonds has been taken and the rest will be comfortably and advantageously placed.

A Midwinter Fair.

A. I. McDonald, the grocer, corner Third and Michigan streets, shows as good a display of Christmas groceries as may be seen anywhere in the city. His windows are marvels of the dresser's art and cause all passersby to pause and admire them. The attempt is made —and very successfully—to represent in miniature the California midwinter fair. There are mosques, palm trees, artificial lakes with water fowl floating on their surfaces, fruit, candy and nuts and to cap all a genuine juvenile Ferris wheel which is kept revolving by a small electric motor. At night when lit up, the windows present a really charming effect.

Mr. McDonald has made special preparations to look after the demands of the holiday trade and his stock shows the judgment that results from long and careful training and experience. It is worth a tramp to his store just to take a glimpse of the well-dressed windows and judiciously disposed stock.

"Delays Are Dangerous."

This old and true saying applies with a good deal of force, at this season of the year, to the sending of presents to friends, and in this connection a few timely hints may not be taken amiss. Many wait until the last moment before delivering packages at the postoffice and express office forgetting that if all followed their example the rush would be so great that packages could not be sent on the first train thereafter even with the extra help usually furnished by the postoffice department and express company, and annoying delay is the inevitable result in delivery when presents reach their destination.

Mr. Hughes, agent of the American Express company here, who has had years of experience in the business has been interviewed and he suggests the following: Presents should be well packed in boxes if liable to be broken or damaged, or in strong wrapping paper well tied with strong twine plainly marked with ink with the name of the person to whom sent, name of the town or city and street number whenever it can be done, also the name of the sender and the town where he resides. Where this is done delays, loss of packages or wrong delivery are not usual.

Trains carrying express leave Marquette as follows: Nine a. m. for all points between Marquette and the copper country, Duluth South Shore & Atlantic railroad; 1:50 p. m. for points on South Shore east of Marquette, points in lower Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, the central, eastern and southern states and Canada; 2:35 p. m. for Chicago, Milwaukee, points in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, and all points in southwestern, western, northwestern and Pacific states; 11:40 p. m. for points on South Shore to Duluth and other points in northern Minnesota and Wisconsin; 5:05 a. m. for points on South Shore to Sault Ste. Marie.

A Flea in Your Ear, Mike!

A MINING JOURNAL man chanced to overhear a few remarks by a contractor from Manistig yesterday that will be made public for the benefit of the deputy and special deputy game wardens. The contractor was offering excuses for the nondelivery of some wood he had promised and among other things said: "I tell you the snow is so deep down there that we can hardly get into the woods. Often in breaking a track our men come upon fresh deer tracks and putting on their snow shoes follow the trail. I have seen them come back in half an hour, and less, dragging a dead deer. Snow so deep it could not get away from them and they simply killed it with an axe."

This is of course a flagrant violation of the state game laws and heavily punishable and if the class of people live about Munising, or any place else, who cannot obey our laws then the game wardens of the county and state would do well to look closely down in that direction and make a deserved example of some of the lawless ones.

She Found the Place.

Mrs. Moriarity started out shopping yesterday with a not over plethoric purse and a long list of wants. She started a round of the dry goods stores and, while they were offering good qualities at fair prices, they did not seem to strike her ideas as bargains. At last she entered the store of Kassel Oshinsky and her heart warmed within her. Kassel was offering the same quality of goods as his competitors but at such ridiculously low prices as to fairly take the good woman's breath away.

The result of Mrs. Moriarity's call was that she went home with all her wants supplied and her purse not entirely empty. Now, ordinarily, Kassel could not have offered his customers any better figures than his brothers in the business, but as he wants to get out and go into manufacturing in New York he is selling goods at almost any price offered. Mr. Oshinsky asserts positively he is not going to remain here any longer than it takes him to dispose of his property. As he keeps a good stock and pleasing variety he naturally expects that the prices offered will draw a goodly share of customers to his counters. Mr. Oshinsky's object in quitting business here is to join a brother in shirt manufacturing in New York. He has been fifteen years in business here, has always kept faith with the public and this should be a guarantee that he means business now and will do just what he promises.
