PRENDERGAST WILL HANG.

Mayor Harrison's Cowardly Assasin Condemned to Death by the Jury.

PRETENSES OF INSANITY DID NOT WORK.

Took the Jury Only Sixty-Three Minutes to Agree Upon Their Verdict of Death.

'TIS A RIGHTEOUS JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Patrick Eugene John Prendergast was found guilty this afternoon of the murder of Mayor Harrison on October 28 and the penalty fixed at death by hanging. The jury refused to believe that the assasin was insane at the time he committed the crime.

When the jurors returned to the court room after being out one hour and three minutes the prisoner was not in the room, having been previously removed to the jail. It was fully five minutes before he could be brought back. When he had reached his seat Judge Brentano, addressing Foreman Sutter, asked if the jury had reached a verdict. "We have, your honor," replied Mr. Sutter. "What is your verdict," asked the court. Foreman Sutter then proceeded to read in a solemn voice the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant, Patrick Eugene John Prendergast, guilty of murder in manner and form as charged in the indictment and fix the penalty at death."

Prendergast, who was fear-stricken and trembling when brought back to court, utterly collapsed when this announcement was read. He sank back in his chair, his chin dropped and he seemed completely dazed by the news of his terrible fate. He looked appealingly at the court and the jury and tears glistened in the eyes from which heretofore only fierce glances of hatred had been shot. As soon as the verdict was announced the bailiffs grabbed the trembling prisoner and started to rush him back to his cell in Murderer's Row. They had nearly reached the door when Judge Brentano ordered them to stop.

"Let the prisoner remain while the jury is polled," he said. Prendergast took his stand behind the chair in which he has jerked and squirmed during the progress of his trial and nervously clutched its back. Then Judge Brentano solemnly put to each juror the question: "Was this and is this now your verdict?" Calmly but decisively each of the twelve jurors answered in the affirmative and each reply added more and more to the despairing look on the trembling prisoner's face. When the last juror had made his answer Prendergast's knees shook, his chin dropped down and he would have fallen had not one of the attending bailiffs lent a supporting arm.

The duty of the jurors was then finished; a just judgment on a cowardly assasin had been pronounced; the murderer had been informed that his life must pay the penalty and he was half dead and half carried back to his cell.

Foreman Sutter was seen after the verdict was returned. He said that an agreement had been entered into by the jurors that none of them should speak of what took place in the jury room.

"I can't tell you how many ballots we took," said Mr. Sutter, "nor how the jury stood at the start. We felt that from the evidence we must find the prisoner guilty of the crime as charged and fix his penalty at death. It was hard task we had to perform and I am glad that it is over."

For the assasin's conviction great credit is due to Mr. Trade. That great lawyer made the effort of his life in prosecuting the assasin. With him it was a labor of love. The high esteem in which he held the late Mayor Harrison prompted him to use every honorable means to bring his murderer to the gallows.

PRENDERGAST WILL NOT TALK. CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—"Please ask the gentlemen to excuse me; I would prefer not to see or talk with anybody tonight." This at 9 o'clock tonight was the verbal response of P. E. J. Prendergast, the condemned murderer, as he sat in his cell, to a written message to the effect that the Associated Press would be pleased to receive and put on the wires any statement Prendergast might be disposed to make.

The reporter who sent in the message followed Night Jailor Foltz into the cage and heard the reply as above spoken in a clear, calm tone, very much as any man might decline to be interviewed. Prendergast occupies cell No. 11, which faces the visitors' cage. Just inside the cell he sat, his chair tilted back against the wall while outside and in front of the open door was posted the death watch, Bailiff Morgan of the criminal court. If the prisoner had any conception of the real significance of this extra watch he gave no sign. He appeared perfectly at ease, with not a trace of excitement, distress or anxiety upon his forbidding features. It was now over five hours since he had heard the judgment pronounced which is to place him on the gallows and he had ample time to regain his composure.

suicide or escape. Tomorrow Prendergast will be given a cell in Murderer's Row and will have for his nearest neighbors Painter and Higgins, two men under sentence of death for murder.

CHICAGO PRESS COMMENT. CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—The Times will say: "Exact and speedy justice has been done by the court and the jury which yesterday sentenced the murderer of Carter H. Harrison to death." Other newspapers will speak in very much the same strain.

IMITATOR OF PRENDERGAST.

Crank Calls on Governor of Oklahoma With a Gun.

GUTHRIE, Ok., Dec. 29.—A long-haired crank giving his name as "Buckley from Perry," called at the executive office yesterday and asked to see Governor Renfrew. Mr. Blincoe, the school land commissioner, occupied the room he entered. Mr. Blincoe became suspicious of his manner and inquired his business. He replied that he wanted to see the governor as he had been promised an appointment and now they were trying to send him to an insane asylum. Mr. Blincoe notified the chief of police by telephone, who placed the man under arrest. He was armed with a six-shooter and a murderous dirk and had arsenic enough in a phial to kill ten men. He admitted that if the governor had not appointed him he would have killed him and taken his own life. He was placed in custody and strict inquiry has thus far failed to disclose his identity.

THE RECORDER'S FAIRY TALE.

It Alleges That Secretary Gresham Will Be Dismissed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—A special to The Recorder from Washington says: "The president's ducking trip may have some very important consequences. It is asserted on the authority of a cabinet official that the apparently trivial diversion had for its object the breaking to Secretary Gresham of the president's conclusion that his services are no longer needed in the cabinet. The president, it is said, feels that he has been subjected to so much adverse criticism on account of his Hawaiian policy that he is in anything but a kindly mood toward the secretary of state, who shares with the odium of that program, and has determined to shift from himself as much of it as is now possible by making Gresham the scapegoat as he has on previous occasions made Carlisle the scapegoat for his financial mistakes. The plan is said to be to appoint Gresham the surrogate in case the nomination of Hornblower should fall through."

BROCKENRIDGE'S VICTIM.

Miss Pollard Collecting Proofs Against Her Alleged Betrayer.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 29.—Miss Madeline Pollard, plaintiff against Congressman Breckenridge, with her brother, J. D. Pollard, is conferring at the Palace Hotel with her attorneys, Carlisle & Johnson of Washington, D. C., and D. J. Oermeir of Cincinnati. They are gathering affidavits from the lying-in houses where Miss Pollard gave birth to three children of which she says Breckenridge was the father, all of whom are dead. They are also interviewing Mrs. Rose, who kept the house where Miss Pollard claims to have been ruined by Breckenridge. Pollard and his sister will leave as soon as they see all parties wanted as witnesses but they will not reveal their destination. Breckenridge and wife leave Tuesday for Washington.

UNTERRIPT OFFICE-SEEKERS.

Even Small Fox Cannot Check Hunger for Public Pap.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—C. W. Severs, a laborer sick with small pox, exposed thousands of people today to the contagion by going from his home in the suburb of Pullman to the City Hall. He was hastily sent to the pest house and the City Hall was then thoroughly fumigated, filling the place with the fumes of sulphur. The odors and small pox scare did not serve to drive away any of the crowds of office-seekers, however, and coughing and sneezing they held their places and awaited the opportunity to approach the mayor.

'THE GRAND OLD MAN.'

Mr. Gladstone Celebrated His 84th Birthday by Hard Work.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The Rt. Hon. William E. Gladstone, who was born December 29, 1809, celebrated his birthday today by working hard in his study. During the afternoon he went to the house of commons and in every other way showed he was rigorously attending to the duties of his position. Mr. Gladstone is receiving many telegrams of congratulation from people in all parts of this and other countries.

NEGRO MURDERER HANGED.

Killed Another Negro Over a Game of Craps.

WARRENSBURG, Mo., Dec. 29.—Banks, the murderer of Isaac Palmer, was hanged today. Just before the noose and black cap were adjusted he lit a cigar and said: "Good-bye to all you people." He shook hands with all on the scaffold. The trap was sprung at 10:53. Banks killed Palmer at Sedalia on Aug. 29, 1892, in a row over a game of craps. Both were colored.

ALEXANDER SULLIVAN.

He May Be Called to Impeach Mrs. Foy's Remarkable Testimony.

WILL BE ASKED TO EXPLAIN THAT CABLEGRAM.

Judge Tuthill Rebukes Attorney Wing for Improper Comments on the Evidence of the State.

WILL HE TAKE THE STAND?

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—The name of Alexander Sullivan was on every lip in Judge Tuthill's court room today and the possibility of his appearance as a witness in the trial of Daniel Coughlin was the absorbing topic of conversation. For the first time in the history of the famous Cronin case the name of Judge Grinnell was mentioned in connection with startling developments that many persons interested in and familiar with every detail of the case expect will come out before the present trial is finished. Alexander Sullivan was mentioned as a possible witness for the defense. Judge Grinnell was mentioned as a possible witness for the prosecution. The prosecution, however, claim no knowledge of Judge Grinnell's being called.

Dr. Cronin's friends produced today the cablegram alleged to have been sent from Paris and repeated from Chicago by Alexander Sullivan to Patrick Egan in Lincoln, Neb., which they think refers to the disappearance of Dr. Cronin. They declare that if he takes the stand to deny Mrs. Foy's evidence they will ask him to explain this cablegram.

Mrs. Jonas Carlson, wife of the owner of the Carlson cottage, was called to the stand today to finish her testimony in the Coughlin case. Attorney Donahue took up the cross-examination and attempted to impeach the witness by asking her in regard to her former testimony. Mrs. Carlson was either more clever or more forgetful than her husband for she did not deny having made certain answers but said she could not remember.

Jonas Carlson was recalled by the defense and subjected to further cross-examination. He said in answer to a question that he wanted to attend Patrick O'Sullivan's funeral but that "some people" would not permit him. He denied that he had said he wanted to see O'Sullivan's body and wanted the dead man to forgive him for what he had said against him.

Judge Tuthill sharply rebuked ex-Judge Wing for intimating by an objection that all sorts of strange and queer testimony was being admitted as evidence for the prosecution. Garhardt Wardell was then called by the state and testified in regard to two men on the night of May 4 entering the Carlson cottage, in which he saw a light. The witness contradicted several times the testimony he had given at the former trial.

The first witness called in the afternoon session was Professor Haines, the head of the department of chemistry in Rush Medical college. He testified to having subjected to chemical tests certain dark stains found on a chip of wood, some cotton and pieces of blue paper given him by the police. By a number of chemical tests he had come to the conclusion that the stains were blood. He could not state positively that it was human blood but was inclined to think so.

The illness of Juror Wedenberger caused some uneasiness today but it is not believed to be serious.

Northern Pacific Receivers Arrange Interviews With Employes.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 29.—While the receivers for the Northern Pacific were going over various matters of business with William C. Cromwell of New York, counsel for the receivers, Attorney Geo. P. Each organization will be given a hearing, the engineers being received first at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

SERVED WITH RESTRAINING ORDER.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 29.—Grand Master Sargeant and Grand Secretary Arnold of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen were today served with the sweeping restraining order of the United States court in regard to the Northern Pacific. The order restrains them from encouraging a strike or even communicating with the men by any method. Sargeant says he will not allow the order to interfere with him in his duties. He says no law on earth will compel a man to work in the absence of a contract unless he is a vagrant.

A PROBLEM FOR POLITICAL ECONOMISTS.

Within a comparatively short period there has been an enormous displacement of what Professor Wilson denominates "natural labor" through the invention, and use in every field of human industry, of labor-saving machinery. In the mine and workshop as well as on the farm machines of ingenious construction and marvelous capacity for doing the work formerly done by human hands may be found in infinite variety, with a small force of moderately skilled operators manipulating them while they accomplish what a large body of trained workmen were formerly required to do. From the crudest work to the finest we find that inventors have devised machines adapted thereto, and the common laborer, as well as the trained artisan, has found his occupation gone, or at least sadly trenched upon, by machines which do the work he was bred to in his youth better than he can do it, and at smaller cost besides.

Now let us see how the employment of labor-saving machinery to so great an extent has affected labor and capital. Who is benefited by it, the employer or the employed? And is the disturbance of former conditions in our industries consequent on the increased use of machinery everywhere in any manner or degree responsible for the world-wide distress among the working people, as well as the stagnation in business which exists in every civilized country of the world today?

It cannot be denied that the use of labor-saving machinery has in the first place limited the opportunities of the workingman for obtaining employment, while it has at the same time vastly augmented the capacity for output in all our producing industries. If these propositions are admitted it must be conceded that the workingman has not been directly benefited by these inventions, for it does not tend to the betterment of his condition to have his means of obtaining a livelihood taken away from him in whole or in part by a soulless contrivance of wheels and levers and pinions which works without thought and without pay, is not susceptible of being influenced by reason or impulse, and which is the property of a master whose will it obeys implicitly until it is absolutely worn out in his service.

The use of labor-saving machinery has enabled us to increase production, while diminishing the working forces of men employed in almost every branch of industry, for there has been no intelligent and sustained endeavor to adjust matters so that the advantage gained by the use of such machinery would go to labor in the form of shorter working hours. Our working day is practically just what it was before, but the output from a given number of men at work in a mine or factory or on a farm is very much greater because the mechanical facilities for doing almost everything enable one man in many cases to do now what ten or a dozen would be needed to do twenty-five years ago.

Instead of shortening the hours of work for "natural labor" the use of machinery has limited the field in which it must find employment, and by displacing manual labor to quite an extent in many lines of industry has increased the competition of labor in all, this in turn bringing about a reduction in the wage rate, for employers pay what they must rather than what they should.

But those who employ the labor-saving machines have come to about as unenviable a condition as the workingmen, though in another way. First they profited greatly, no doubt, by the increased capacity and diminished cost of product on consequent on the substitution of machinery for manual labor, but this soon begot a competition which cut down profits, and in time there was the further difficulty of production far in excess of demand growing out of the augmented facilities for turning out work cheaply. We are now suffering from the condition of things thus brought about, for in almost every line of industrial activity there is over-production and resultant stagnation in trade.

THE MINING JOURNAL does not wish to be understood as decrying the use of improved machinery; it is simply pointing out some results of its universal employment which are not desirable. That it has had much to do with creating the general distress of the working people cannot be gainsaid, and the fact suggests that we need to have some adjustment of conditions that will cure the trouble.

But how shall such an adjustment be reached? "Aye, there's the rub!" It is easier to diagnose a case than to prescribe a remedy in many ailments besides those of the body. Still, it would seem that, inasmuch as the use of mechanical appliances in our industries affords a vast relief to human labor, it is not a bad thing in itself, and should be attended only with good results to all. If this has not been the outcome the fault must lie with those who have obtained and used the advantage thus given them without making proper allowance for the disturbance of conditions which it would bring about. Without attempting to go into the subject deeply, THE MINING JOURNAL ventures the opinion that the trouble has come through the eagerness of employers to gather to themselves all the benefit from the use of labor-saving inventions and their refusal to consider natural labor entitled to any share therein. The cure may be found, perhaps, in what so many workmen now demand, a shorter working day. This would certainly tend to limit production, and would also give the toilers more leisure and a better chance to get some pleasure out of life, while production could be regulated with reference to demand and the stagnant condition of trade of which everybody is now complaining, might be avoided.

THE Portage Lake Mining Gazette is a pretty stiff Republican paper, but it finds its sense of decency outraged by the abuse heaped on President Cleveland by certain papers which do not agree with his policy, and speaks its mind out concerning these in this article:

Many of the prints in certain dailies caricaturing the president of the United States have not been ridiculous in the extreme they have been shameful and disgusting and no high-minded man irrespective of party can regard them otherwise than as intolerable nuisances. While all have a right to differ with the president as to his policy and to condemn such acts of his as they believe hostile to the interests of the state it should be remembered that as the chief ruler of the land he is entitled to respect. He is privileged by his official station to be honored certainly so far as to be above being made the butt of a shameless kind of ridicule. Not all the prints which caricature the chief magistrate of the United States are of this class; some are simply amusing, but many of them are bad in the extreme, and that part of the press which puts them in circulation, to say the least, should be brought to a better mind.

"It is seldom, perhaps," observes the Escanaba Journal, "that Grover Cleveland has received such a truthful and interesting letter as was sent him on Christmas day by Governor Penoyer of Oregon." The calibre of the Escanaba paper's editor is fairly shown by his opinion of the ridiculous communication addressed to the president by Oregon's crank governor, which has put the whole country on a broad grin. No doubt the sheet which publishes Delta county's tax list imagined it was complimenting a Republican governor when it approved of Penoyer's fool letter, but it will be disgusted to learn that it was patting a Populist of the craziest stripe on the back instead.

REPRESENTATIVE STEPHENSON this week placed with the Marinette Flour Mill company an order for fifty barrels of flour for distribution among the needy at Iron Mountain. Mr. Stephenson is doing his full share toward relieving the suffering of the unemployed in his district, and THE MINING JOURNAL takes pleasure in doing its share toward seeing that his liberality is made known to its thousands of readers. If more of those who are financially able to assist in caring for the destitute had hearts like the one that beats in the bosom of "Our Sam" there would not be so much distress unrelieved in this upper country.

Now there will be war in the Populist camp in Kansas. Mrs. Lease has been deposed as a member of the state board of charities. She can now consider herself entirely released from all obligations to the Populists and at liberty to tell all that she knows about leadership of that erratic political organization, and she is just the woman to do it.

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe case of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by H. H. Stafford, Son & Co.

CALUMET. It has been reported that Joseph Toriano, the timber-boss whose right leg was broken Wednesday morning in the Calumet mine, would not receive any benefit from the Calumet & Hecla Aid Fund on account of a rule of the Aid Fund which does not permit any member who has received aid for eight consecutive months, the limit fixed, to again become a member.

Dr. Osborne, senior physician, who has charge of the Aid Fund books, reports that Toriano did not reach this limit and is therefore still a member. The rule referred to above should be changed for it would indeed be a hardship on the poor miner and his family who, after recovering from a protracted illness caused by accident or disease and again exposing himself to the dangers of mining, finds himself debarred from receiving aid in case of an accident or serious illness.

Secretary and Treasurer G. A. Flagg of the Calumet & Hecla, accompanied by Mr. William Hooper, his successor as auditor, and Mr. J. H. Lathrop, who succeeds Mr. Gove as chief clerk of the mine, reached here yesterday.

A representative of the Krupp gun works of Essen, Germany, has been visiting the great Calumet & Hecla and is the guest of General Manager Whiting.

Mike Dooley was found by the officers and compromised his assault on Wilfred Gagnon by paying $100 and the legal costs incurred.

The Calumet township tax roll foots up over $115,000.

RED JACKET. William Walls has decided not to go out of business but during the quiet season succeeding the holidays will sell goods at so close a margin that very few, if any, of the merchants will undersell him.

The weather last evening was cold and stormy but in spite of that a large delegation from here attended the Trainmen's ball at Hancock.

In some of the surface departments of the Calumet & Hecla mine the men are working half time.

FLOWERS OF THE PAST. In some of the Paris museums are to be seen collections of wax models of the flowers of plants of the Eocene age.

The story of how these have been obtained is an interesting one. The growing plants were enveloped in calcareous mud, which afterward hardened to travertine. Then the vegetable matter decaying left delicate molds of their form in the rock. Into these molds melted wax was introduced under an air pump, and the calcareous matter then dissolved by acid. The result was these wonderfully perfect wax models of the delicate organs of the plants which lived in France long ere the advent of man.—Gentleman's Magazine.

From Different Points of View. "And this is the state penitentiary, is it?" inquired the stranger who was strolling about the environs of Joliet.

"It's a pretty fine piece of architecture." "It depends a good deal on how you are looking at it," replied the man spoken to, winking slyly at the bystanders.

"Ah, yes, I suppose it does," rejoined the stranger. "How does it look on the inside?"—Chicago Tribune.

RECOGNITION IS REFUSED.

Foreign Representatives Decline to Recognize Brazilian Insurgents as Belligerents.

REVOLT IN THE BRAZILIAN CONVICT SETTLEMENT.

Admiral de Mello Reported to Have Assisted Convicts and Exiles to Overpower Their Guards.

CIVIL WAR GOES SLOWLY.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 29.—Admiral da Gama, the commander of the insurgent fleet in the absence of Admiral de Mello, made a formal demand today upon the representatives of the foreign powers at the capital, asking that the representatives of the powers should recognize the insurgents as belligerents.

PRESIDENT PRIMO'S SIDE.

Inquiries were made today in government circles as to the cause of the government's inaction in regard to the Nicheyero and America, the two cruisers fitted out at New York and which have been in Brazilian waters for some time past.

WAITING FOR MORE VESSELS.

In reply it was officially stated that the government does not intend to attack the rebel war ships until after the arrival in Brazil of the torpedo boats purchased in Germany, as the government force is not considered strong enough to engage the rebel fleet until these reinforcements arrive.

DA GAMA PROGRESSES LITTLE.

The rebel Admiral da Gama, in command here, has not made any progress worth mentioning since the last dispatches were sent and nothing new of an important nature has occurred here up to the hour this dispatch is sent.

In fact the war has settled down to little more than dull, routine business and nothing new can be said about it, as the description of one day's exchanges of shots is about the same as the story of any other day's engagement between the opposing forces.

CONVICTS HAVE REVOLTED.

PERNAMBUCO, Dec. 29.—[Copyrighted]—A report has reached here of a serious revolt on the island Fernando de Noronha, the convict settlement and place of banishment to the north of Pernambuco. It was asserted that agents of Admiral de Mello had succeeded in landing upon the island and that they had corrupted some of the guards, with the result that a number of exiles and convicts gathered together, obtained arms and succeeded in liberating a number of convicts.

The latter, it was added, had entrenched themselves in a secure position on the island and were threatening to capture one of the forts and turn the island over to the insurgents. A number of government troops and convict guards are said to have been killed during the uprising of the convicts.

MELLO TO ENLIST CONVICTS.

It was also reported that one or more of the insurgent war vessels was expected at Fernando de Noronha and it was said that the insurgents intended to liberate all the convicts and exiles, numbering about 1,000 to 2,000, and these men were to be added to the land and naval forces of the insurgents.

It is also stated that the main object of Admiral de Mello in leaving Rio de Janeiro is to obtain a force of men to convey back to the Brazilian capital in order to enable him to effect a landing there.

The government torpedo cruiser Parahyba has been dispatched to the island with instructions to assist the governor in suppressing the revolt and to prepare to defend the island against a landing of the insurgents.

EDITOR JOSE MARIA'S CHARGES.

JOSE MARIA, Editor of The Provincia, a newspaper which was recently suppressed at Pernambuco owing to its bold utterances upon the topics of the day, publicly charges Governor Lima with being an accomplice of the persons who instigated the attempted revolt of the national guard and other troops here in September last.

Editor Jose Maria also charges Governor Lima with betraying his friends in order to save himself. The charges have caused a great sensation and are liable to lead to the arrest of the editor.

FIGHT AT AGUAZ BELLAS.

ST. VINCENT, Dec. 29.—[Copyrighted.]—A dispatch from Pernambuco says that there was a serious fight yesterday in Aguaz Bellas, in the interior. Fifty soldiers were killed and a number were wounded and captured while making an attempt to arrest Constantino Rogoberto, who had sought refuge in a house on a hill and which he had fortified in a very effective manner.

COLORADO DOING WELL.

How! About Silver Repeal Was All a Bluff.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Senator Henry M. Teller spent several hours at the Grand Pacific Hotel this afternoon en route home from Washington. "Colorado is in a better condition today than the eastern states," said the senator. "It is surprising to note the greatness of our resources and energies. The deplorable condition of last July, brought about by fear of the impending silver repeal, has passed entirely away. The mining activities have gone from silver to gold with remarkable results.

"We have no fears about the coming special session of our legislature. Its members are not fools enough to follow Governor Wallace in regard to his ridiculous state silver currency."

SOVEREIGN'S WILD WAIL.

Knows Nothing of Finance and So Howls Against Bonds.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—General Master Workman Sovereign of the Knights of Labor before he left here for his home in Des Moines issued an address appealing to the members of the order to protest against the proposed bond issue. He says:

The sixteenth plank in the preamble of the Knights of Labor reads as follows: "That interest-bearing bonds, bills of credit or notes shall never be issued by the government but that when need arises the emergency shall be met by issue of legal tender non-interest-bearing bonds."

I wish every level assembly of our order in the United States to read the plank above quoted and discuss it at their first regular meeting in January. The reason for asking new agitation on this subject at this time is obvious. The secretary of the treasury, Mr. Carlisle, has asked congress to grant him authority to issue $200,000,000 in interest-bearing bonds.

I am also in receipt of letters from cotton regions of the south and from agricultural districts in the west declaring that the issuing of interest-bearing bonds by the national government will be considered sufficient provocation to justify a call to arms. God forbid that we should ever again feel justified in using bullets in a country where bullets are so free.

I suggest that upon the first attempt of congress to grant the authority asked by the secretary the members of our order from Maine to California hold indignation meetings and send an unequivocal protest to their respective members of congress. The issuing of bonds is an outrage upon a liberty-loving people and an outrage upon a national name every name connected with the disreputable transaction.

IT IS PROBABLY A FAKE.

Letter in Bottle from Lost Member of Carlin Party.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 29.—A special printed here dated Spokane, Wash., says that Sam Ellis of Spokane, while hunting in the Bitter Root mountains on Sunday last, found a bottle floating down the Clear Water river. Ellis caught the bottle, opened it and found that it contained this letter:

November 17, 1893. I am alive and well. Tell them to come and get me as soon as anyone finds this. I am fifty miles from civilization as near as I can tell. I am George Colgate, one of the lost Carlin party. My legs are better. I can walk some. Come soon, for God's sake. Take this to Kendrick, Idaho, and you will be liberally rewarded. My name is George Colgate from Fox Falls. This bottle came to me one day and I caught and write these words to take me out. Direct this to St. Elmo Hotel, Kendrick, Idaho. (Signed) George Colgate. Goodby, wife and children.

The dispatch also says as soon as M. C. Normyle, proprietor of the St. Elmo, heard the news he organized another searching party to hunt for Colgate.

UNKNOWN FIEND'S DEED.

Freight Train Wrecked and Fireman Turner Fatally Hurt.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 29.—Some one drove a bolt into the point of a split switch at McDonough on the Southern Pacific, eighteen miles west of here last night. An east bound special freight left the track. The engine turned over on Engineer Frank Taylor and Fireman N. E. Turner. Both were extricated, but Turner's legs were crushed off and he will die. Taylor was badly bruised. Head brakeman T. J. Weed was severely injured. The engine tender was thrown 150 feet. Six cars of silver ore and beans were demolished.

CLOSING A DISMAL YEAR.

Worst on Record for Commercial Disasters and Depression in Business.

LIABILITIES EXCEEDED SEVENTEEN HUNDRED MILLIONS.

Nearly All Products at the Lowest Prices Ever Known and Millions of Workers Idle.

NEXT CANNOT BE WORSE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Starting with the largest trade ever known, mills crowded with work and all business stimulated by higher prices, the year 1893 has proved, in sudden shrinkage of trade, in commercial disasters and depression of industries, the worst for fifty years.

The year closes with prices of many products the lowest ever known, with millions of workers seeking in vain for work and with charity laboring to keep back suffering and starvation in all our cities. All hope the new year may bring brighter days but the dying year leaves only a dismal record.

The review of different departments of trade exhibits a collapse of industry and business which is almost without precedent. The iron industry sustained for such an unfortunate meal, and was only too thankful that the matter should escape the attention of the other guests.

Not only manufactured goods as a whole, but the most important far products are now low for the farmers and the stock raisers. Official and other reports declared traders with the notion that crops of last year were so short that famine prices could be realized on purchases.

Enormous stocks were bought and held with the aid of banks until heavy receipts in the spring caused a collapse of wheat, pork and cotton pools.

Disasters failures helped to produce the alarm which soon made money impossible to get but even at the worst hour of the panic prices were scarcely lower than they are now.

Wheat has repeatedly sold here and at Chicago at the lowest prices ever known and is but 1/2c above it now. Pork fell 37c in an hour when the speculation burst, but sells lower yet today.

In the thirty-seven years covered by the records of this agency, the number of failures has only once risen a little above 16,650 in a year. In 1893 the number reported has been 16,650.

The aggregate of liabilities in all failures reported has in six years rarely risen above $200,000,000. This year the strictly commercial liabilities alone have exceeded $331,422,959, the liabilities of banking and financial institutions have been $210,956,864 and the liabilities of railroads placed in the hands of receivers about $1,212,317,033.

A total of $1,754,396,836. As all reports hitherto have been some extent erroneous, through inclusion of other failures in the strictly commercial, the classified returns will be found more complete and instructive than any hitherto published.

They show 3,226 manufacturing failures with liabilities of $164,707,440; 10,633 failures in legitimate trade with liabilities of $85,527,896 and 302 other failures, including brokers and speculators, with liabilities of $36,662,785. The average liabilities in manufacturing are $50,000, in legitimate trading $8,000 and in other failures $11,000.

Lloyd Was Weary of Life.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—William J. Lloyd, proprietor of the Lloyd Manufacturing company, hardware, committed suicide by shooting today at his residence on Chestnut street West, Philadelphia.

"I never have any kind of luck," said MAWSON.

"That's luck enough," said Dawson, who had been having nothing but bad luck.—Judge.

The hottest places on the globe are Death Valley in this country and the region around the second falls of the Nile. It never rains in either locality, and the natives of the Nile region do not believe strangers when told that water can descend from the sky. In both places the thermometer often goes as high as 130 degrees in the shade.

Bishop John F. Dalton of Luray, Russell County, Kansas, called at the laboratory of Chamberlain & Co., Des Moines, to show them his six year old boy, whose life had been saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it having cured him of a very severe attack of croup. Mr. Dalton is certain that it saved his boy's life and is enthusiastic in his praise of the Remedy. For sale by H. H. Stafford, Son & Co.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get someone to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Readville, Perry Co., O.

DINED WELL WITHOUT COST.

The Trick by Which a Moneyless Scamp Swindled a Washington Restaurateur.

An unprincipled scamp recently played a game upon a Washington restaurateur that for originality and effectiveness has not been matched in any of the time-honored stories of Beau Hickman or any other "eaters of dinners, you foot the bills." He was a well-dressed, gentlemanly-appearing person—any other would not have secured much attention in the cafe which he worked—and he ordered a dinner that proclaimed him an epicure, if a scoundrel. He commenced, says the Post, by tipping the waiter liberally, which alone would proclaim him one accustomed to secure the best of attention; and as for wines, he would have none but the best vintages, which he picked with the taste of a connoisseur.

The dinner was prepared to please him until the last course. At that point he uttered an exclamation of horror, and beckoned frantically to the waiter. That functionary not being sufficient to vent his wrath upon, he summoned the head waiter, and eventually the proprietor. Then he pointed out the cause of trouble—a dead fly in the dessert. Words could not express his well-feigned disgust, or the regret of the proprietor at this unfortunate occurrence. The cook was called up and "roasted" more effectually than he ever did his meats, and the restaurateur offered every amenity in his power. But the guest professed to be almost overcome with nausea, and could not eat any more—he had probably had all he wanted. Of course the proprietor could not think of charging for such an unfortunate meal, and was only too thankful that the matter should escape the attention of the other guests.

But when the disgusted guest had gone a bystander, who had watched the occurrence, remarked to the proprietor: "Why, didn't you see him put that fly in the dessert?" And the subsequent conversation was unfit for publication.

POWERFUL WAVES.

The Effect of a Gale Over the Great Salt Lake.

A correspondent of the Youth's Companion recently witnessed a most convincing proof of the weight of salt-laden waters of the Great Salt Lake. A strong gale of wind was blowing over the lake and driving its surface into low, white-capped ridges, while along the shore the foam lay like flat banks of new-fallen snow. If it had passed across a lake of fresh water of equal extent that wind would unquestionably have produced such an agitation of its surface that navigation in small boats would have been difficult if not highly perilous.

But the waters of the Great Salt Lake, although driven into ridges as just remarked, showed a curious resistance to the wind and the waves, rising to only a slight elevation, moved along with an appearance of lethargy that the eye could not but notice.

Yet there was an immense momentum stored up in those low, heavy, slow-moving waves. Venturing into the water at a point where the depth did not exceed four feet the observer found that it was impossible to stand against them. Their sheer weight swept him resistlessly along.

The curious buoyancy of the water, containing twenty-two per cent. of salt in solution, increased the helplessness of the bather. He was not submerged, as sometimes occurs in the Atlantic breakers, but was lifted and carried like a cork.

It would probably have been impossible to dive through an oncoming wave after the manner practiced by bathers along the Atlantic coast. In the Great Salt Lake people are not drowned through sinking, but stranded while still afloat. The bitter water may enter the air passages with fatal effect, but the body continues to float until it reaches the shore or is picked up.

BRUIN WAS KNOWING AND BOLD.

It Was Against Orders to Shoot, So He Bled the Soldiers' Camp Victory.

"When I was in Yellowstone Park this summer," said a Wyoming Valley man, "one of the gamekeepers told me about a bear that worried a camp of government soldiers almost to desperation for several weeks. Late one night a bear waddled into camp, ripped open a tent, put the soldiers to flight, got what he wanted to eat, and went away. The next night the bear came around again, smashed down a tent and stole a smoked ham. Under the park rules the soldiers were prohibited from firing at the thievish brute, as well as from jabbing a bayonet into him, and the only thing they could do when the bear appeared and went to helping himself to rations was to get out of his way. Night after night the bold beast made a raid on the camp and ruined a tent or two. My informant said that the bear acted as if he knew that the soldiers weren't fire at him, and that on each visit he became more sassy and destructive than before. When the bear's raids had become unbearable the commandant sent the facts to the secretary of the interior and asked what to do. Word came back to shoot the bear, and that night, when bruin strode boldly into camp, the soldiers put an end to his career by riddling him with bullets."

Points in Palmistry.

An interesting discussion has sprung up among the palmists in regard to the line of the hand known as the marriage line. One recognized authority says that when this line curves upward the possessor is not likely to marry at all. Other experts say they know many married and happy people with such a line. It is also alleged that the transverse line on the "hill of Mercury," which one party says is the marriage line, is not so considered by the Chirological society. "Our opinion," says the editor of the party organ, "is that these lines are signs of attachment, and there is scarcely a hand ever seen without at least one in the hand of either married or unmarried people."

Times Registered by a Clock.

The chamber of commerce of Rouen has erected a clock tower which gives the time on three sides and the height of the tide on the fourth, namely, that fronting the harbor. The tide indicator consists essentially of a float, which, by means of a cord and counter-weight hung on a drum, actuates a series of shafts with bevel wheel gearing, and moves a hand or pointer on a dial like that of a clock, marked with the necessary figures to show the level of the tide. The dials are of opal glass, and are illuminated at night. The clock has an apparatus for distributing the time to the other clocks in Rouen, and also for unifying the time, after the method adopted in Paris.—London Globe.

The Law Set at Naught. A Railroad Surveyor's Experience with a Suspicious Georgia Moonshiner. "A good many years ago I was building a railroad in Georgia," said a surveyor to a writer for the New York Tribune.

"Good evening, stranger," said the man politely. "Good evening, sir," I said, glad of even unknown company. "Which way are you going?" asked my new companion.

"Over the mountains," I answered. "Reckon I'm going that way, too," he said, and then I had an opportunity to look at my friend's face. It was a strange face.

"Stranger," he said, when my horse's forelegs were in the river, "where are you from?" "Georgia," I answered; "this is my state."

"Who's boy are you?" "Judge S—s." "Is that so?" he said, in a calm voice. "Why, do you know what I took you for? Revenue! Yes, sir, and I came near shooting you, sir. Half a dozen times on that ride I made up my mind you were a revenue, sir, and each time I was just ready to do it. But I hated to do it, sir, you looked so square. I'm glad I didn't."

"So am I," I answered, with a false, jerky laugh, for that emotionless man gave me the chills, and I sent my horse across the ford. "Good-by," I cried from the other side. "Good-by, sir," he answered. Then his horse carried him off in the gray light, and I felt a sudden sense of great relief.

QUAINT MISSION IN CALIFORNIA. Founded as an Indian Retreat Before the March of Civilization. A quaint, isolated spot is the mission of the Pala Indians, situated some ten miles back from the sea coast in San Diego county, California.

It is a mission of the Pala Indians, situated some ten miles back from the sea coast in San Diego county, California. So little is known of this mission that a recent visitor found in refuge there a Chinaman on whom the highlanders of Los Angeles had passed sentence of death.

The building is long, narrow, low and dark, with adobe walls and rough beams set in them to support the roof, under which are layers of canvas and tiles. Rude paintings cover the walls, and other ornaments a life-sized image of Antonio Pala, the warrior and priest, from whom the mission takes its name.

The church authorities came near losing title to the old mission a few years ago, and that it was saved to them through the foresight of the American who has made his home with the Indians.

It is an interesting circumstance that the church authorities came near losing title to the old mission a few years ago, and that it was saved to them through the foresight of the American who has made his home with the Indians.

NEGAUNEE HAS ONE ALSO.

Miss Katie Fitzgerald One of the Heirs to That $1,360,000 Estate in California.

THE MINING JOURNAL GIVES HER FIRST TIDINGS OF HER LUCK.

Quite a Family Gathering Planned by a Negaunee Man—The Dog Race New Years Day.

ONE OF THE HEIRS HERE Miss Katie Fitzgerald, housekeeper for Rev. Father Langner, pastor of St. Paul's church, this city, is one of the seven heirs to an estate of $1,360,000 left by a Mrs. Wallace of California.

Miss Fitzgerald was seen by THE MINING JOURNAL reporter yesterday. She stated that the Mrs. Wallace referred to is a sister to her father, William Fitzgerald. She knew nothing of the death of Mrs. Wallace until her attention was called to an item which appeared in THE MINING JOURNAL Wednesday.

A dispatch from West Superior, Miss Fitzgerald's former home, to the Chicago papers is as follows: Dispatches from California announced yesterday afternoon that the Fitzgerald family, three members of which reside in this city, have fallen heirs to an estate of $1,360,000. The property was left them by a Mrs. Wallace of Mendocino county, California, their aunt.

Miss Fitzgerald has resided in Negaunee for the past year, during which time she has lived with Rev. Langner. For some time prior to her removal to West Superior she lived at Maple Valley in the lower part of this state. She is highly elated over her good luck, but thinks there are several other relatives aside from those mentioned who will come in for a share of the fortune.

The Race a "Go." The dog race on New Years day is a go. Messrs. Trathen and Flynn have raised sufficient money to offer about six prizes. As all the subscriptions had not been collected last evening the amount of cash prizes has not yet been fixed.

The street is not in very good condition for a dog race but an effort will be made to get the street roller down from Union Park. Mayor Anthony has consented to permit the race to take place, also to allow the street commissioner to roll the street provided it is possible to get the roller here. It does not snow any more between now and New Years the streets can be put in fairly good condition if the roller can be got here. The boys are training their dogs for the contest and unless something unlooked for happens to prevent the race will come off per announcement.

Death of Mrs. Remley. Mrs. Remley, grandmother of Joseph Barabec, died Thursday at her home at Maple Ridge, a few miles down the line of the Chicago & Northwestern road. She was seventy-eight years of age and is survived by a large family of adult children. Mrs. Remley was well known here. The remains will arrive here this morning on the 9:30 train and the funeral will take place immediately following, with religious services at St. Paul's church.

They Want Men. W. J. Allen, superintendent of poor, has been informed by three different parties that they want men to work in the woods, and will pay ninety cents per cord for cutting spruce. The South Shore rotary snow plow passed through here Thursday.

Fahey of the Northwestern thinks Thursday was a great day for snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Carmichael spent Christmas with friends in Ishpeming and Negaunee.

C. F. Sandstrom left on Tuesday on a short visit to Detroit. He got back Friday evening.

Mrs. C. T. Andrews and son of Sidna-w were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Johnston this week.

Fred Sundberg, an old and respected resident of this place, died Saturday morning last and was buried Tuesday.

Christmas day passed off very quietly. Not even a plain drunk or dog fight happened here to relieve the monotony.

The Christmas entertainment at the Swedish Lutheran church Tuesday evening was well attended. All present enjoyed it very much.

The election of officers of Mt. Shasta Tent, 344, Knights of Maccabees, took place Tuesday evening with the following result: Past commander, M. D. Kirk; commander, Jas. Carmichael; lieutenant commander, Jas. Donnelly; recorder, Ed. Brophy; finance keeper, Marcus Levine; chaplain, Geo. L. Maker; sergeant, Jas. LeFors; master at arms, Mike Lethur; physician, E. B. Patterson.

REPUBLIC ROUND-UP.

Tom Van Riper and family of Red Jacket attended a family reunion here on Christmas day.

Professor and Mrs. Northmore spent part of the holidays with relatives and friends in Ishpeming.

Superintendent D. T. Morgan of the Republic mine did business in Marquette Wednesday.

While here as the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Kingstedt, Mrs. Vincent of Ishpeming lost her five-month-old child from inflammation of the lungs.

One of our citizens had resolved to clean the snow from the sidewalk in front of his premises, but reasoning that it might again snow, he hung up the snow shovel, remarking, "It snow use."

At this writing Dr. A. E. Lamb is lying very sick with strong symptoms of pneumonia. Dr. N. D. Kean of Ishpeming is at present taking care of him as well as his practice here.

The town hall was well filled Christmas evening, when the children of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school rendered a very interesting program, consisting of Yule exercises, and also received a visit from "Santa."

Pat Whalen, Jr., of Chicago partook of a Christmas dinner with his parents here and left for the Windy City Wednesday. His friends were delighted to gaze upon his beaming countenance once more. Come again Pat.

If the swell hon, given at the town hall Friday evening of last week under auspices of the "Soshal Surkle Klub" is to be taken as a criterion of the proposed series of such affairs, the "Piggy-Faced club" may yet be called on to give the S. S. K. pointers.

The house was dark and dismal and he went out every night and remained away until bed time, but his wife broke him of this habit by getting one of those electric lamps at Munson & Peterson's. He is home regularly now, and reads THE MINING JOURNAL to a happy family group.

Republic is not far behind Ishpeming now. They have electric and legal lights, and while our electric plant has not yet materialized we have a legal light in the person of Mr. D. P. Quinlan, whose office is in Brown's block and who is prepared to furnish legal advice ad libitum.

The Local Talent Amateur Dramatic company, under auspices of the Phoenix fire department, is getting ready to produce the two-act comedy-drama entitled "Handy Andy" in the town hall very shortly, the proceeds of which will be applied to relieving the needy of Republic. Look out for bills and programs.

The holiday closing exercises of the Republic graded schools were liberally attended by parents and others interested, and the efficient manner in which each room carried out its program plainly showed that the pupils are making marked progress under the present excellent corps of Normal teachers.

Barney Levine claims to be a staunch Republican, and as wishing to appear unusually devoted to his party during the holidays he placed what he supposed to be a "Harrison" button on his coat lapel. Just imagine his mortification when his attention was called to the fact, after three or four days slogging around town with it, that it contained a very good portrait of "Grover!"

The O. N. O. club met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Tyler Wednesday evening of last week, where they carried out a very pleasing program. The alphabetical poetry by Miss Card and two or three college songs by the Misses Card, Coyert and Norton, dialogues by several other lady members of the club, and last but not least the guitar solos by Professor Anshulwa were all capably rendered and brought forth deserved applause.

DICTATING TO THE TYPEWRITER.

A Chapter From the Early Experience of a Man Who Tried It.

"When I first began dictating to a typewriter," said a man who writes for the papers, "I thought that I must dictate all the punctuation complete, and my dictation ran something like this: 'You, Adolphus von Gwilt leaned back upon the blue plush seat of the palace car and looked out upon the feeble panorama period. He had loved the fair Adeline Oville comma and she loved him comma but the old man had kicked Adolphus comma but he kicked figuratively speaking semi-colon and the disconsolate Adolphus was now traveling to assuage his grief semi-colon he was on his way to the World's fair period paragraph."

"Just now he felt hungry semi-colon thanks to youth and good health his appetite never deserted him period. So Adolphus went forward into the dining car to breakfast period no semi-colon and he ate a good square meal comma and he generally did semi-colon and then he went back to his section in the sleeper period paragraph."

"As he entered the car he saw something that made him almost doubt his eyesight period no semi-colon it was the form of Adeline Oville period. And she was in the next section back of his comma and had been ever since the train started comma and he hadn't known it which was not very remarkable comma after all comma for the train had started very late the night before comma and he had not come aboard until the last minute period. It seems that Adeline that is I mean Miss Oville was traveling for her health comma too period. She comma like Adolphus comma had been very much torn up by this misapprehension of Adolphus on the part of the old man comma and her father had thought that it would be a good thing for her to travel semi-colon and by the commonest accident in the world she and Adolphus had met on the train semi-colon it was just one of those things that happen every day comma but it did not strike these young people in that common-place way semi-colon to them it was the most delightful thing they had ever heard of period paragraph."

"Quote Adolphus scare-mark close quote rising to her cheek and she herself risked from the blue plush seat. Quote Adeline scare-mark close quote cried Adolphus comma hurrying forward to meet her semi-colon and then they sat down together and looked out at the flying panorama comma or more strictly speaking comma I fancy they looked at the feeble panoramas in each other's eyes period. And then they set about seeing if they could not in some way fix things up with the old man period. Quote You know comma Adolphus close quote comma said Adeline comma quote he said comma single quote Adeline comma you shall never marry Adolphus close single quote comma Adeline comma you single quote comma papa is gentle hearted comma you know comma and I think we can bring him around after all close quote period paragraph."

"It seems that the old man was at that minute in the smoking room talking a cigar after breakfast comma and Adolphus followed him boldly period. The old man gave him the grand bluff at first comma but Adolphus was persistent comma and finally he got the old man. I guess you'd better make that gentleman out into the car where Adeline was sitting period. He was not proof against the combined attack of the young people comma and it need only be added that at last he consented to make them happy semi-colon and so this trip which had begun in brief comma ended in joy semi-colon when they got to Chicago they were married period. That's all."

"But I soon discovered that this was all unnecessary; that all I really needed to do was to indicate the paragraphs; that if I dictated intelligently the typewriter would do the rest."—N. Y. Sun.

The Burglar Came.

It was an agent for a big manufacturing concern who was talking. "I once got into a poster," he said, "which started in: 'Keep your eye on this; a burglar is coming.' This I distributed broadcast in the towns in the northern part of the state. Among other places, it was hung conspicuously in a small grocery and dry goods store in one of the towns in that section."

"One morning the proprietor, when he opened up shop, found that my notice had been amended to read: 'Keep your eye on this; the burglar has come.' The correction was made in pencil marks."

"And sure enough, the burglar had come. And he had carried off about six hundred dollars in money and goods."—N. Y. Sun.

Old-Fashioned Neck Chains.

The old-fashioned chains, slender and fine, that our grandmothers wore are wearing now, at least those of us fortunate to have had a grandmother of such elegant tastes. And we wear them just as she did, passed twice around the neck, so that they display a heart-shaped locket at the throat and another at the waist. The watch is not worn on these chains, which have been christened by the unpoetical name of "dangles," but pinned on the shoulder, or, the latest wrinkle, inserted in the left-hand glove, as formerly it was set into the purse or card case.—Chicago Tribune.

Queer Cats in a Church Spire.

Three cats of a species said to be unknown were discovered recently in the spire of a church at Brighton, Mass. The cats are covered with a coat of long, shaggy fur; their teeth are long and are almost like tusks. On the nose of each is a large tuft of hair resembling a tuft. They are very agile and spring from rafters to rafters with the ease of a squirrel. It is not known how they got into the spire, or how long they have been there, but it is believed that they have been confined in their aerial abode for many years.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SIDEWALKS IN THEIR MINDS.

Some Kicking Citizens Demand Clean Pavements Whether They Exist or Not.

GOOD WORK DONE IN CLEANING SNOW FROM FRONT STREET.

A Small Freight Wreck Slightly Delays Trains—Idle Curiosity Will Not Be Satisfied.

NIP AND TUCK WITH JOHN FROST.

Street Commissioner French and his gang of men and teams did a good day's work in front street yesterday. From Superior to Spring the street is clear of snow banks and almost level with the street car tracks, while the east side of the street is cleared nearly to Washington. This is the second time the city has cleared the accumulated snow from this street, the electric railway company having done so twice. So much snow has fallen that the work of clearing streets and sidewalks has, thus early, almost equaled the entire work of last winter.

When the amount of work necessary to keep the streets passable during such weather is considered it excites surprise that persons would find fault either with the city or street railway company for not accomplishing the almost impossible. From grumbling remarks made by some citizens it might be inferred they expect the street commissioner and Superintendent Retaille to keep a sufficient number of men constantly in the streets to catch snow flakes as they fall and carry them out in the country. Instead of such unthinking criticism a decent amount of credit should be given them for doing so very well under unusually trying circumstances.

Nothing further has been heard from the South Marquette "taxpayers" who sent a communication to THE MINING JOURNAL complaining that the street commissioner had neglected their streets and walks. A man yesterday ventured the speculation that the "kick" had come from a certain district in that portion of the city only recently opened for building and where the streets were ungraded and innocent of walks. This may not be a wild guess after all, especially as Mr. French has paid a good deal of attention to the graded streets and sidewalks of South Marquette. Citizens who have not had the enterprise to lay sidewalks do not show much sense in demanding that they be kept clean by the city. It would take a very clever person and magic snow plow to scrape the snow off the sidewalks which only exist in the imagination of some few recent property owners.

If the elements only act with a modicum of reason and fairness for a week our streets will be in splendid condition. It is the uncertainty as to how soon the work may be under another foot of snow that takes the "ginger" out of clearing the heaps away.

Cars Jumped the Track.

The early morning South Shore express does not seem to be playing in very good luck of late. Wednesday morning it was four hours late on account of the accident at Saxon and some derailed freight cars in the yards here caused another delay of almost an hour yesterday morning.

As a freight train was being backed down the yard about 3 o'clock a. m. one of the box cars jumped the track, twisted almost directly across the rails and managed to throw two other cars off to keep it company. All three were loaded, which greatly increased the task of getting them back in place.

The wrecking gang and train was promptly on the spot and by daylight had things in usual shape and the track in good condition. The mishap is said to have been caused by a broken flange on one of the freight car wheels. These slight delays are very annoying to the railroad men and particularly trying to their temper. Not only does the winter bring a quantity of snow which doubles the work and greatly adds to the expense of operating, but the attendant cold renders wheels and axles more friable than during warmer weather. Thus the men are kept constantly on the alert and notwithstanding the utmost care accidents will happen and delays to travel and transport result.

The South Shore has had its full share of these late and not only its officials but the general public hope the end of the list may have been reached. The west-bound freight was also considerably delayed yesterday morning by the derailed cars. The damage was trivial, the chief loss being that of time.

Curiosity Not Satisfied.

THE MINING JOURNAL was plying with many questions yesterday as to the identity of the boy who had been practicing illegal penmanship. The name was purposely kept out of the item yesterday morning so as to give the lad all possible chance to mend his ways and for that same reason the writer refused to mention in conversation who he was. The same course is being followed by the police and with the same object. It was thought that making public a recital of the boy's misdeeds would perhaps frighten or persuade him into behaving himself and also warn other youths against the seductiveness of having their wishes gratified by such apparently simple methods.

As this youth is clever beyond his years he is looked upon as a kind of leader by companions much older than himself and there may be grave danger of such hero (?) worship developing a gang of youthful lawbreakers that would before long cause much trouble. That the police would permit them to go so far is by no means likely but it is hoped the warning thus kindly given may be taken sincerely to heart by any youth in Marquette who may feel himself drawn to admire shady acts as clever, and thus avoid the necessity of being forced into proper paths by the stern logic of the city bastle and police court.

It must not be inferred from the foregoing that the boys of Marquette are any worse than those of cities of equal size, other activities being similar. The only difference here is that we possess a police force much superior to the average and that THE MINING JOURNAL is outspoken and opposed to lawlessness in any form and will unhesitatingly denounce the offender no matter what his age or position. It is not, therefore, that we have more lawless youths than sister communities but that their misdoings are quickly known and promptly punished and published as a warning to others.

More Charity Efforts.

The Queen City Lyceum League is in a flourishing condition as is well evidenced by a decision to give, before long, an entertainment, the proceeds of which will be entirely devoted to charitable purposes among those deservingly needing assistance in our city. The nature of the entertainment and the date will be announced later. It is also the intention of the league to invite prominent local speakers to address its meetings on current topics, the series to extend throughout the winter. This is expected to prove one of the most popular and interesting features that this worthy league has yet introduced.

Cops Should Have Buttons.

There appears to be only one point at which our efficient police force is open to criticism and that is that they are not uniformed. Cities and towns of much inferior standing to Marquette have well uniformed police and their is no good reason why we should be behind in this particular. This is not thrown out as a suggestion to be acted on now but that the council and police may take the matter into consideration and make such arrangements as may place a handsomely uniformed police force in our streets when the fine spring and summer weather again visits us.

Trainmen's Annual Ball.

The fifth annual ball of L. L. Hood lodge No. 10, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, will take place Monday night in the Casino rink. The different committees have worked hard to make this the most successful social event in the history of the organization. The rink will be appropriately decorated and made attractive and comfortable. Hughes' entire orchestra will furnish music and supper will be served at the Hotel Marquette. Of course Joe Mack will act as prompter.

No Paper Monday.

Monday being the first day of the New Year THE MINING JOURNAL will follow established custom and not issue a paper that morning. This will enable the "forces" to drop in line with the rest of the public and tabulate resolutions for the coming twelve months and take about nine hours practicing "1894" so as not to keep dating letters a year behind during the month of January. By the way, a very good resolution is not to resolve at all.

For New Year's Night.

Miss Olive Martin, a young and beautiful actress is the leading lady of the "Ole Olson" company this season. Miss Martin is a native of California and is considered one of the handsomest women on the American stage. Although she has had but four years experience, Miss Martin possesses the true spirit of dramatic art, and her advancement has been rapid. Her rendition of Mrs. Jordan is entirely satisfactory, both to the management as well as to the public. "Ole Olson" will be presented Monday—matinee and evening—in the Marquette Opera House. The play is known here and has been enjoyed by many of our theater goers and so requires no special commendation. The plan of seats is now open at Bigelow's and there is a promise of good attendance.

There Was a Limit.

"Is this the express office?" asked a mild mannered youth as he stepped up to the American Express company's counter yesterday.

"It is," politely responded the clerk. "I suppose you can handle anything a person may wish to express," continued the young man, absent-mindedly dropping the ashes from his cigar into the ink well, "don't set any special limit?"

"None whatever. You may express anything from a cambric needle to a house and lot."

"What would it cost to express my feelings?"

"Just about 'steen dollars for funeral expenses," exclaimed the clerk as he reached for his Winchester, and the quiet youth made a dash for the door and did not stop running until he reached Ishpeming.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

Whereas, It has again fallen to the lot of our brother Knight, Thomas Dwyer, to pass under the rod of an affliction that must be a sore trial to his strength and fortitude; therefore Resolved, That we, his brother Knights of Iron Cross lodge No. 106, Knights of Pythias, do in this manner extend to Brother Thomas Dwyer our sincere sympathy and commend him to the consolation of the Divine Chancellor, who alone can be able to fully sustain and comfort his children in the hour of their bereavement.

There is no one instrument, unless, indeed, it be a large pipe organ, capable of the variety of effects that are obtainable on the Aeolian. Unlike the pipe organ, however, the Aeolian is adapted to all classes of music; overtures and symphonies can be rendered on it with all the softness and delicacy of the flute and violin and cello and all the snap and brilliancy of the piano. See and hear them at Conklin's.
