Leading Washington Women Pass Resolutions Which Virtually Call for Such Action by Congress.

VERDICT FOR MISS POLLARD. WASHINGTON, April 15 .- The jury in the Pollard-Breckinridge case rendered Staple Groceries at lowest a warding the plaintiff $15,000 damages. a verdict at 4:43 yesterday afternoon. The jury was out an hour and twentyeight minutes. Fifteen ballots were taken, chiefly as to the amount of damages to be allowed. One juryman voted for the defendant on the first few balwished to make the damages nominal. Judge Bradley requested that the spectators make no demonstrations and were none. Miss Pollard burst into tears when the verdict was announced. Breckinridge showed no emotion and himself moved for a new trial.

> As might have been expected with a woman of her temperament, the long strain of the trial culminated in a nervous collapse and today Miss Pollard is suffering from nervous prostration. She was taken last night to Providence Hospital, but the attending physicians do not anticipate any serious effects from her illness. Since the verdict was rendered yesterday afternoon theatrical managers have redoubled their importunities and several telegrams have come to Miss Pollard offering her astonishing sums to go upon the stage.

WILL NOT GO ON THE STAGE. An Associated Press reporter called the Providence Hospital today and was police protection from the city, Experience showed that it was enat Providence Hospital today and was told that Miss Pollard was unable to receive callers. The reporter sent her a note inquiring about her plans for the future. The note was answered in person by her brother. J. D. Pollard, who said: "My sister has made no plans for the future, She asks me to say to you most emphatically that she has never entertained any intention of going on the stage. Nothing could be farther from her thoughts or intentions."

ITS EFFECT ON BUSINESS

Henry Clews & Co., in their weekly review of the business situation, report, signs this cause for the inaction noted

Perhaps the most influential cause of the prevailing dullness comes from the condition of legislation in congress. The tariff bill, from having been apparently certain of enactment, is now thrown into much It is quite uncertain whether the senate will accept the income tax appendage to the tariff; and it is equally doubtful whether the house would consent to the question among congressmen whether even the president might accept the bill, provid ed it came to him with the income tax clause annexed. It thus seems possible that this measure may remain unsettled until the beginning or middle of June, and on Mr. Jochim, who has already been there is no judging whether in the end the a heavy sufferer financially by reason bill will be defeated or enacted. This unof his having unfortunately consented certainty brings new confusion into the and the interest range of home industries. There is no longer any sufficient basis of which accounts for the immunity in that respect enjoyed by the editor of the 'Scnaba paper, despite the racket he persists in keeping up.

The editor of the Escanabe Mirror avers that he "is not, or at any time has not been," sore over his defeat in the late election for supervisor of his grammar, but we presume that what he means to say is that he "is not, and has not at any time been, sore," etc. But if he isn't sore over that what in the would hardly keep on snarling as he would have the would hardly keep on snarling as he wo probability to warrant the undertaking o

The tanks are cleaned after the molasses has been pumped out by turning in a powerful steam jet, which washes down the sides and liquefies whatever molasses may be left in the bottom of the tank, and the suction pump finishes the work. A cargo of molasses, which formerly required ten or twelve days, can now be unloaded in forty-eight hours, while the difference in the cost of handling, to say nothing of the saving of time, amounts to a large sum.

The first attempt at handling mo-lasses in bulk was made by the brig Novelty in 1877. She was fitted with a lining and her whole hold was used without partitions. She made several trips between Matanzas and Boston, but was not successful as a dividend earner. Since the present system of dividing a vessel's hold into tanks was devised and put in practice on steamers the profits of the trade and the steamship companies have largely in-

ORGANIZATIONS ARE AT ODDS
St. Paul. April 15.—The strike on the Great Northern is gradually working east, having taken in Grand Forks, N. D., last midnight and if not settled soon will probably reach this end of the line in two or three days. The strike was ordered by the American Railway union and is more actively an tagonized by the railroad employes belonging to the Brotherhoods than by the railway company itself. There can be no doubt that individuals of the various Brotherhoods are privately somewhat dissatisfied, but they recently accepted revised schedules and are standing by their agreement with the company. Owing to his advanced age he lacked the vitalsurprise among those who knew of his condition.

Henry W. Slocurs was born in Delphi, Onondaga county, Sept. 24, 1827. Upon graduation from West Point in 1852 he was appointed to a lieutenancy and ordered to Florida. He was soon promoted to be first lieutenant, but resigned, and returning to New York, engaged in the practice of law at Syracuse and was elected to the legislature.

Upon the outbreak of the rebellion he was one of the first to respond to President Lincoin's call for troops and his military education gave him early prominent rank. He was appointed colonel of the Twenty-seventh New York Volunteers and commanded his regiment at Bull Run, where he was severely wounded. Less than a month later he was commissioned brigadier-general of volunteers and assigned to the command of a brigade in General William B. Franklin's division of the Army of the Potomac.

liam B. Franklin's division of the Army of the Potomac.

In the Virginia peninsula campaign of 1862 he was engaged in the siege of Yorktown and the action at West Point, Va., and succeeded to the command of the division on General Franklin's assignment to another field of duty. At the battle of Gaines' Mill he was sent with his division to re-enforce General Fitz John Porter and rendered important service, as he did also at the battles of Glendale and Malvern Hill. He was promoted to the rank of major-general, engaged in the second battle at Bull Run, at South Mountain and at Antietam, and in October was assigned to the command of the Twelfth army corps.

In the battles of Fredericksburg, chancellorsville and Gettysburg he took an active part. At Gettysburg he commanded the right wing of the army and contributed largely to the victory. He was subsequently transferred to the west and served in the department of the Cumberland. In August, 1864, he succeeded General Joseph Hooker in the command of the Twentieth Corps, which was the first body of troops to occupy Atlanta. In Sherman's march to the sea and invasion of the Carolinas he held command of the left wing of the army and participated in all its engagements from Atlanta until the surrender of General Joseph E. Johnson.

He resigned from the army in September, 1805. In the same year he was the unsuccessful candidate of the Democrats for secretary of state. In 1808 he was choses a presidential elector, was sent to congress the same year and re-elected in 1870. In 1876 he was elected president of the Brooklyn board of city works, which post he afterward resigned, and in 1884 was again elected to congress. He was one of the commissioners of the Brooklyn bridge and was in favor of making it free to the public.

from the Lake Superior Iron company's mines, are increasing daily. Up to and including Saturday something over two cargoes had been loaded on cars from the Lake Superior mines for Escanaba and Marquette. The greater part of this has been standing on the sidetracks here awaiting the opening of the pockets at the docks. It is reported that the South Shore company will begin dumping ore at Marquette today. An extra switch engine and crew will be set to work in the South Shore yards on the south side today.

The Lake Superior company has baded about seven hundred cars to ate. In this amount there three grades of ore-first and second class and Lake Superior No. 1. About thirty men are employed on the stockpile at Section 16 and several cars a day are being loaded from the pockets at that mine and also at the Hematite and No.

He said that in case the salaries are reduced below the standard some of the best teachers will find employment else-where, in which event the schools, pupils and people generally will be the losers; that Marquette county has more teachers from the University of Michigan and the Normal school than any county in the lower part of the state and in order to keep them here reasonably fair salaries must be paid. Speaking of the convention Mr. Pattengill said it was the most successful ever held in the upper peninsula, and as uccessful as any ever held in the lower

At the business meeting following the exercises in the afternoon officers of the association were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Superintendent John Northmore of Re-public; vice president, Miss A. F. Ol-cott of Ishpeming; secretary, Miss Cole of Negaunee. The executive commitee is composed of Superintendents Montgomery of Champion and Davis of Negaunee, Principal B. F. Farrah of Michigamme, and the Misses Reeves of Ishpeming and Campbell of Marquette. On motion of Superintendent Davis a committee, consisting of Messrs. Mont-gemery and Davis and Miss Chandler, was appointed to draft resolutions of regret on behalf of the teachers of Mar-teachers, and especially those from Ish-peming, to use their handkerchiefs. Mr. Olcott responded, expressing sor-row in severing his relations with those with whom he has been associated and has labored in school work for so many years. He said he had been engaged in

What interesting little creatures, for instance, are the crabs! And the most curious family of crustaceans are the so-called hermit crabs. These in-genious little creatures, as they grow up seem to learn by instinct that, on account of their soft, pulpy abdomen and their boneless and defenseless bodies, they will never be able to reach old age or to offer defiance to their rapacious enemies, so they go househunting. All they need to render them proof against the attacks of more powerful adversaries is a hard-shell domi-cile into which they can take refuge at the approach of danger. It is not always so easy for them to find sub-stantial vacant shells or calcareous residences to let. When an empty shell is found, well and good, but when they are in a strait they do not hesitate to force their nippers into occupied univalves when they will kill the mollusk and occupy the prem-

These facts can readily be verified by any one who will examine the small and large shells on the seacoast. Snails of all sizes must vacate their houses for these long-legged maranders, be-coming helpless victims of their powerful prehensile weapons of offense.

The crab attacks the in-mate of a larger shell, devours the luscious meat and settles in the new house. Meanwhile the anemone is not idle, but glides and creeps at the rate of an inch an hour from one roof to the other, when the happy companionship s continued.

Not all crabs are subject to such wonderful transitions and acquire such The strange formations, but all undergo certain metamorphosis. On emerging from the egg they are provided with long tails, swimming appendages, and sessile eyes, and bear so little resemblance to the parent form that until half a century ago their connection with the crab was altogether unsuspected. They were known as zoeas After moulting, the eyes appear on stalks and nippers on the anterior pair of legs, but this form is still sufficiently uncrablike to have deceived early zoologists, who described it as forming distinct genus, and it is not till a further casting of the skin that the creature assumes the perfect form. ts internal parts continue to grow its external shell soon becomes too small and is cast off, the crab generally concealing itself until its new and greatly enlarged covering becomes sufficiently ardened. This process of moulting say the naturalists, takes place very frequently in the young crab, and gradually becomes rarer as the creature approaches its full growth, crabs being often found with oysters at-tached to the carapace, which, judging from their size, must have grown there for three or four years. A still more remarkable power is that possessed by rabs of reproducing limbs which have been voluntarily thrown off or have been lost by accident. It must be conceded that the nu-

"I have looked carefully into this matter of wages and find the different sub-contractors are paying as high or higher than the prevailing laborers' wages throughout the country; certainly higher than are being paid at present in Chicago. The same may be said regarding the wages for skilled labor. This Evans heard of and, as he considered he had done more work than Young, he was worth at least as much if not more money. So firmly did he become convinced of this and also the injustice of having to pay for the lost bob, which he claimed was purely accidental, that he asked Peters & Shaull to bring action against Mr. Stewart for $70 as wages and relief from the payment of $20 for the lost bob.

I have noticed that the man who talks the most about other men receiving small pay is usually out of work interest an expensive of the work and was forced to suggest that the subject was one on which no mere man could safely express an opinion. "That is a familiar and pleasant as those prevailing when times were sound," remarked a citizen Saturday as brisker, but they are as high in proportion to the amount of business being done as have ever been paid in this as it told the fish tugs through the city. what I have said on this matter may be taken as conservative and I am sure will be endorsed by every sensible working man in Marquette who is honestly doing all he can under the circumstances."

Worth All He Earned.

During last winter William Evans secured employment from William Stewart as a laborer in his livery stable. Evans' work was to attend to the night calls, take charge of the horses and rigs and sleep in the barn, for which he was to receive at least enough to pay his board or as much more as Mr. Stewart thought he was worth. One day, while driving a team for Mr. Stewart on the breakwater, Evans was unfortunate enough to allow part of the sleigh to slip over the edge and lost the hind bob in the water. As it could not the season of contentment, happiness and hope. In these bright and pleasant months the season of contentment, happiness and hope. In these bright and pleasant months the country should enjoy its highest degree of tranquility and prosperity. But spring, it is well known, is often a period of discomfort and disturbance in the physical system. Important organs of the body become torpid or irregular in their action, and the fact is instantly reflected in the mental condition of the individual. A disordered liver means disordered nerves and a dull and unsteady brain. Anything which will bring the physical system into harmony with budding Nature confers an enormous benefit upon the nation, besides the mere allaying of physical discomfort. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this, as thousands of grateful and happy men and women can testify, an increased use of this standard spring medicine is of more real practical importance in promoting health and quiet in the business world than reams of abstract theorizing.
