KELLY'S ARMY IS DIVIDED.

Colonel Speed and His Followers Disobey Orders and Separate From Kelly.

THE MEN ASK TO BE PERMITTED TO STEAL A TRAIN.

The Disciples of Coxe in Montana Capture a Train—Preparing for Their Reception in Washington.

MANY ARE DESERTING DAILY.

ATLANTIC, Ia., April 24.—Kelly's Industrial army reached Atlantic at 6 o'clock tonight. The day was an eventful one. Speed having been deposed and a separation of the Sacramento and San Francisco divisions having been effected during the march with a narrowly averted internal war. Speed refused to obey orders issued by Kelly, was promptly court-martialed and reduced to the ranks. The Sacramento division at once declared it would desert Kelly and follow Speed and the temporary camp, just east of Butler, was soon the scene of wild disorder. About three hundred men declared for Speed and the men argued their differences with a liberal show of clubs and stones. The fight was averted, however by Kelly's coolness and the army moved on with the general's forces in advance of Speed's following.

Before they reached Atlantic the Sacramento division elected Speed general and tonight the men declared their intention to follow no banner but his. They openly denounce Kelly as having appropriated to his own use the army's funds and that they will obey his orders no longer. Speed accepted the leadership but says he will march to Washington with Kelly but not under his guidance.

The twin armies camped tonight in the fair grounds and were supplied with food and fuel. Their reception here was not so flattering but much aid was given them. Kelly believes Speed and his men will apologize and return to his army and announces that no action will be taken for several days regarding the mutiny. Kelly said to a Associated Press representative tonight that he can and will account for all funds he received and denied he had ever been given more than $1,000.

The two armies will camp in Atlantic until Thursday morning, when they will move to Adair, twenty miles away. Des Moines is expected to be reached by Sunday noon.

WALNUT, Ia., April 24.—The army arrived here at noon today, having left Avoca at 8 a. m. The wagon train which brought them from Neola returned last night. This morning the surrounding farmers furnished sixty teams which held about half of the army and shifts between riders and walkers was made every five miles as Kelly's army is beginning to divide and the men becoming very much dissatisfied with the march across the country. After leaving Walnut this fact showed itself by large numbers dropping from the ranks and giving up the struggle. In all a hundred men deserted. The army left Walnut with 1,118 men. At one point today a man stepped out of the ranks as spokesman for part of the body and asked Kelly to allow them to capture a train. Kelly sternly refused, pointed out that it would ruin the cause if they attempted such a thing.

Detectives from Chicago and Omaha are following the army claiming there are criminals among them. The army will reach Des Moines Friday or Saturday and if there is lawlessness in the body as expected it will develop there.

MONTANA COXEYITES KIDNED.

They Take an Entire Northern Pacific Train from the Yards.

ST. PAUL, April 24.—Coxeyites at Butte, Mont., broke into the Northern Pacific roundhouse last night, seized an engine and train, manned them from their own number and started east at the rate of forty miles an hour. Officials of the Northern Pacific here say there is nothing to stop them until they reach Livingston, where there is a washout. The army aboard the train numbers between four and five hundred. They had been waiting at Butte several days while the leaders were trying to arrange for a train but they finally got tired of the delay and proceeded to help themselves.

LIVINGSTON, April 24.—Sheriff Conroy received a dispatch this afternoon from the attorneys for the Northern Pacific instructing him to arrest General Hogan on the charge of larceny of a Northern Pacific train and the warrant has been sworn out. The army was delayed several hours at Timber Line, fourteen miles west of Livingston by a cave-in in a tunnel, but they got through this afternoon and came here. Such trifles as running orders did not deter Coxeys Brigade and from the time they left Butte until they reached Baseman the officials were kept in a fever of anxiety lest a collision should occur. A subscription was taken up here and money, meat and other provender collected and turned over to General Hogan upon their arrival.

After supper Hogan's warriors prepared for the trip east and the train was all ready to start. Officials of the Northern Pacific of this city have given orders to clear the track. General Manager Kendrick said when asked about the matter: "It is all we can do for we have too much regard for human life to do anything else." Nothing has been heard here of serving the warrant for the arrest of General Hogan on the charge of larceny of the train.

HOME RESERVE ORGANIZED.

DENVER, April 24.—Over a thousand people assembled in Lincoln park this afternoon in response to a call for a meeting to organize a home reserve of Coxeys' army. Resolutions were adopted censuring governors and other authorities who interpose obstacles to the industrial advance and demanding fair treatment for them.

General order No. 1 was issued tonight as follows: "To all law abiding and patriotic citizens of the United States—you are requested to proceed without delay to the organization of Coxeys Home Reserve to appraise the congress of the United States and others groping in darkness that millions remain behind who are hiding them good speed."

BOONSBORO, Md., April 24.—Coxey's army, three hundred strong, marched out for Frederick, sixteen miles away, this morning.

FREDERICK, Md., April 24.—General Coxeys returned to the Commonwealth army today and was received with cheers. Coxeys is well pleased with the result of his New York expedition. He said trunk line roads have not yet decided whether or not they would give reduced rates to Washington May 1. Coxeys said he had been offered the use of Woodbury park, outside of Washington, as a camp ground for the army. This is one of the most beautiful suburban real estate divisions about Washington with good roads and abundant water supply. The offer has not yet been accepted.

SOUTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., April 24.—New England industrial army, after a peaceful night spent in a hay loft, resumed its march this morning bound for Pawtucket as its next stop.

BRAZIL, Ind., April 24.—Frie's army arrived today and will remain three days.

READY TO RECEIVE THEM.

Treasury Department Getting in a Supply of Firearms.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Several hundred stand of small arms and repeating rifles were delivered at the treasury department this morning from the war department and turned over to Captain Putnam of the treasury watch and placed convenient for use. The normal strength of watch forces of the treasury is seventy men, divided into two reliefs. In addition to two or three dozen revolvers there always has been thirty-five carbines and a sufficient supply to each gate watchman on duty. It is thought best, however, to increase the supply in view of the crowd of hangers-on of Coxeys' army that are expected to arrive in the city the coming week.

The headquarters of the Commonwealth of Christ is decorated today with a gorgeous silken banner sent by supporters in Kansas City. An appeal for contributions of money and provisions from the public has been issued by the local committee which includes among its members the wife of Representative Davis of Kansas, ex-Representative Weise of Arizona and Rev. Alexander Kent.

PREDICTION COMING TRUE.

The Soft Coal Miners Are All Joining the Strikers.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 24.—The prediction made by labor leaders that the entire coke region would be out on strike in a few days is being fulfilled. The men at a dozen works quit this morning, part of the men at many other plants went out and others will follow tomorrow. No violence has occurred yet, but uneasiness prevails and preparations are being made to protect the plants.

MAY INTERRUPT TRAFFIC.

BUFFALO, April 24.—The first result of the soft coal mine strike is beginning to be felt. The price on the docks has been advanced to $2.75 a ton. If the strike continues any length of time steamers will be seriously crippled as their supply is limited.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 24.—From the best information obtainable this morning not more than 300 miners in Kanawha Valley are out.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 24.—The miners' ranks gained a number of strikers this morning, making the number out here about three thousand. The miners at Tilton refuse to permit the Wabash engines to take coal here. This cuts off coal from the Wabash for three divisions.

WAS NOT SOLD FOR TAXES.

Nicaraguan Company Claim That Friends Hold Its Property.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The statement was published this morning that the Nicaraguan government, on a judgment for alleged debt, had sold all the property of the Nicaragua Canal company to a company of Spaniards for $75,000. At the offices of the company here it is said that to protect the company against certain creditors friendly judgments had been secured, and that the property is now held by friends of the company.

SALOONS RUNNING WIDE OPEN.

South Carolina Saloon Keepers Now Doing a Rushing Business.

COLUMBIA, April 24.—Carloads of whisky are being received here and saloons are opening as under the former regime. Beer is on tap at all places. No effort has been made so far to stop the sale and the proprietors are making no effort to conceal their business. Prohibitionists may take a hand and have arrests made to test whether prohibition exists or not.

Polar Expedition Starts.

ALBESUND, Norway, April 24.—The American north pole expedition under the command of Walter Willemson sailed today for the island of Spitzbergen on the steamer Ragnvald Jarl which had been chartered for that purpose.

TO IMPROVE THEIR ROADS.

Gogebic County, Will Aid Their Unemployed Workmen by Voting County Bonds.

LABORING MEN IN PROCESSION PARADE THE STREETS.

Ironwood and Bessemer Celebrated the Decision of the Supervisors With Bonfires and Brass Bands.

COUNTY ROADS TO BE WORKED.

BESSEMER, Mich., April 24.—[Special.]—A strong sentiment has been shown here today over the adoption of the new county road system. The board of supervisors was in session two days last week but could not agree to submit to a vote of the people the question of bonding the county. The board adjourned until today when eight carloads of citizens and workmen came down from Ironwood by a special train and were met by a procession of hundreds of laboring men of this city. They all marched to the court house where the board was in session, filling the large court house and grounds. The board finally succumbed and adopted the resolution to submit to a vote the question of bonding the county to the amount of $75,000 at a special election to be held June 1.

Both Ironwood and Bessemer will celebrate tonight by processions, bonfires, brass bands and speeches. This is considered a great victory for Edward V. Conley, supervisor of Watersmeet, who championed the cause of the laboring men and the improved road system.

FIGHTING THE GAS TRUST.

State of Illinois Has a Hard Fight on Its Hands.

CHICAGO, April 24.—A war of the state of Illinois against the great Chicago gas trust began today in the circuit court of Cook county when Attorney General Maloney filed a petition for permission to institute quo warranto proceedings. In an interview this evening the attorney general said he had begun proceedings after a careful, pain-staking investigation because he thinks the people have just complaint against the trust. He has begun suit in utter disregard of strictures that have been frequently made on various sides and proposes to himself take the responsibility. The petition filed is extremely lengthy. It details the well-known facts of the organization of the various companies that form the combination from which the trust was created.

The petition goes on to recite in various ways how every act of the constituent corporations indicates common purposes and a common understanding; how members of boards and directors are identical and that competition or any incentive toward competition between these companies had been destroyed; that promoters of this trust scheme obtained the ownership of the stock of four corporations to the extent of 292,611 of 299,369 shares; how the Chicago Gas Light and Coke company, being desirous of borrowing money for alleged purpose of extending its plant, issued bonds to the amount of 10,000,000 and delivered mortgage to Fidelity Insurance and Safe Deposit company of Philadelphia and in addition delivered a trust deed to same company pledging all the stock of the constituent corporations for the payment of the bonded indebtedness of the company.

The petition recites how ex-Attorney General Hunt instituted quo warranto proceedings and finally obtained judgment of ouster against the trust which meant that said corporation so far as it was organized to purchase stock in other corporations was illegal and to no extent should not be organized under our laws. Petition recites in detail how all companies constituting the trust were absorbed by the Philadelphia company and charges that this Philadelphia corporation votes the stock of the constituent corporations and elects the directors of each of them. That dividends earned by these corporations in Chicago are in lump sum forwarded to the Fidelity Insurance, Trust & Safe Deposit company of Philadelphia to be by it divided, not in accordance with what each company earned or its stockholders would be ordinarily entitled to, but is divided up between the certificate holders of the Philadelphia corporation as if all such money come from one common source.

HE MAY BE IMPEACHED.

Judge Jenkins in Serious Danger of Being Ousted.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—"If Judge Jenkins remains on the bench it will be after the closest call he ever had," said a prominent member of the judiciary committee. Boatner expects to submit a report to the sub-committee tomorrow and have it ready for the full committee Friday. The report is long but it will not be tame. Chairman Boatner naturally declines to disclose its contents. But a member of the committee, the one quoted above, says the report will show up Judge Jenkins in a very black light. The most damaging piece of testimony against the Judge was that given to the committee by Moore, the judge's brother-in-law. It is certain that some pretty harsh things and severe conclusions can be drawn in the debate on the floor. Should it all result in Judge Jenkins' impeachment no one need be surprised.

TOO MUCH GOVERNING.

The American people seem to be losing that old spirit of independence and self-help on which they once prided themselves. The time was when the enterprising American manufacturer, business man or workman asked no odds of his government. All he asked was to be let alone to develop the enormous wealth of natural advantages around him. He thought the business of government was to provide for the defense of the country against foreign foes, to maintain peace and good order at home, to establish suitable tribunals for the adjustment of disputed rights. It might also undertake such public works as were obviously rather of general than local benefit. Such, briefly stated, were the ideas as to functions of government, whether state or national, which prevailed in the mind of the average American. They were the ideas of the framers of our Constitution and under their influence the United States grew from a thinly populated group of colonies along the Atlantic coast to a nation that spanned the continent, dominated the western hemisphere and was respected, if not feared, by all the world. Of late years we seem to be losing our grasp on these sound and sensible ideas. Opinions differ as to the cause of our changing our ideas but the change certainly exists. We seem as a people to be losing our old habits of self-reliance. As the small boy runs squalling to his mother every time he cuts his finger, so we have contracted the habit of running to congress every time our business enterprises do not turn out well or whenever we get out of work by the inevitable reaction resulting from too rapid and artificial development. The result has been a continually increasing growth of legislative meddling in business affairs, the products of which are Coxeysism, socialism and the silver lunacy. The Milwaukee Sentinel well observes in its weekly review of industrial and commercial conditions published yesterday: "If the present American congress were to be wiped out and no further session held for ten years to come the country would be the gainer," is the way a prominent, experienced and conservative bank official expressed himself the other day, and he is not identified with the Republican minority, either. Such is the sentiment of nine-tenths of the business men privately expressed and it characterizes the situation exactly, though emphatically. The industries of the country have been paralyzed to an extraordinary extent and hundreds of thousands of people are in receipt of charity, while congress is wrangling over schemes to debase the currency or to effect a change in the existing tariff. The banks are in possession of millions of idle money, much of which would probably be invested if congress were to act and adjourn promptly. There is a whole volume of sound sense packed into the paragraph quoted. We are governed too much and we are permitted to help ourselves too little. This continual wrangle about the tariff is a sample. THE MINING JOURNAL believes in a reasonable protective tariff. But it also believes that this country would get along pretty well with almost any sort of a tariff if the law were passed and then alone for a reasonable number of years. The time has come for thinking men, business men, working men who own their homes and are trying to get on in the world, in fact for all men who have any stake in the country, to call a halt on political theorizing and socialistic vazaré and to demand that business questions be treated in a business manner. The classes enumerated above contain at least seven-tenths of all American citizens. They have the power to stop all this demagogic and socialistic folly. They can tell the silver bowlers and socialistic ranters to air their nonexistent woes to the vacant winds. It is time the sound citizenship of this nation awakened to its own interests, laid aside senseless partisanship and saved itself and its property from the Coxeys, Stewarts, Blands, Hills, Waites, Lewellins, Peffers and Altgelds.

THE WASHINGTON correspondent of the Chicago Record says: The consideration of the tariff bill in the senate is to be obstructed by Senator Quay or Pennsylvania and Senator Dolph of Oregon, who will alternate in the delivery of useless speeches for the purpose of occupying time. Under the present rules, a single man may prevent legislation by talking against time, and this practice will be resorted to until a closure rule is adopted. The plan of Mr. Quay and Mr. Dolph does not receive the unanimous approval of the Republican senators. In fact there is a great deal of opposition to their purpose on the Republican side, and it will ultimately become a subject for caucus consideration. Speeches are being prepared for them by the clerks of the Republican congressional committee and consist mostly of a description of the condition of the various industries throughout the country that are likely to be affected by the passage of the tariff bill. The course here indicated may be "good politics" for the Republican party but THE MINING JOURNAL very seriously doubts it. If this paper is any judge of public sentiment the great majority of people would prefer to have the tariff bill passed as quickly as possible and have done with it. THE MINING JOURNAL may be wrong but it strongly inclines to the belief that the Republican party would have gained in the end by not obstructing the passage of the Democratic tariff bill. The Democrats have a majority in both houses and the president and they are bound to pass a tariff bill of some sort, sooner or later. Believing in the policy of protection as this paper does, it was from the first of the opinion that the sooner the people had a practical illustration of Democratic doctrine the better for the Republican party in the end. Then if disaster followed reduction in the tariff the issue would be clearly made up between the two parties and their policies and the people would decide which they liked best. This delay in permitting the Democratic party to carry out its avowed policy only serves to obscure the issue and make knot-holes for the Democrats to crawl through.

The people said at the polls in 1882 that they wanted a sweeping reduction in the tariff. However mistaken the people might have been on that point, the quickest way to convince them of their mistake was to give them all they asked for. That would be following the admitted maxim: "The quickest way to repeal a bad law is to enforce it." The Republican party was strengthened in the minds of all sensible men by assisting President Cleveland to repeal the iniquitous silver-purchase law, despite the opposition of the free-silver Democrats. Would not the Republican party also gain strength in the end by at least refraining from obstruction of the passage of the Democratic tariff bill? SECRETARY CARLISLE has practically told the civil service commission to go to the place which Colonel Ingersoll says does not exist. The civil service commission has applied to the courts, alleging that Secretary Carlisle is wantonly violating the civil service law. The back bone of the civil service commission is Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, whom some people have called a dude but who certainly lacks neither brains nor courage. Mr. Roosevelt is thoroughly in earnest and is a first-class fighter and the engagement between him and Carlisle will be a very pretty one. Meanwhile it must be rather embarrassing to President Cleveland to have his secretary of the treasury jerked into court to defend himself on a charge of violating a law which the president himself has repeatedly commended and the extension of which he has repeatedly urged.

KELLY seems to be losing his grip on his "army." The men want to seize a railroad train and have a high old time with it. Kelly has more sense and desires to keep out of the grip and law. As a result the mutinous disposition manifested recently is on the increase and Kelly may soon be a "general" without anything or anybody to general with.

SLEEPING EN ROUTE.

Bedroom Cars Are the Newest of the Night Coaches.

The newest thing in railroading takes the form of bedroom sleeping cars of great magnificence but uncertain promise that one company now runs between New York and Chicago on the fastest flyers. These cars carry a strong suggestion of being English, and a still stronger resemblance to the old Mann boulevard plan of car building. They differ from the Mann patent in having the rooms on one side as far as the middle of the car, where the hall-way turns across the car, and the rest of the bedrooms are on the other side of the car. The bedrooms are comparatively large, and each one contains an upper and a lower berth, a washstand with running water, and the main appointments of the retiring room that are found in the cars of older style. The beds are bigger—that is, wider—than the old sleepers, and if two friends or a married couple secure one of these rooms they are certain to enjoy a better night's rest, and more comfort generally than ever came to them in the old-style open-salon sleepers. Women can undress in their rooms with the doors shut without fear of intrusion, and with plenty of room for the operation, and so can men. Once in bed there is no danger of anyone's falling in upon the sleepers as a curve is turned and some luckless pedestrian is flung through the curtains. Each room can be ventilated as desired, and the snores and baby's cries and bedroom odors of the old-style cars are all shut out of these private rooms.—N. Y. Sun.

CADI AND COUNCIL.

Description of an Interesting Trial in an Indian Court.

Justice is the end of government, and every nation has its own peculiar method by which this end is achieved. In "Our Future Highway to India" an interesting trial is described. There had been a riot and one man had been hurt. The ringleaders in the riot were now put on trial, and a curious sight it was. The cadi and council were seated round a table. An officer called the "kaimaann" had conducted us to the place where the trial was going on, and the party was accommodated on a divan. The prisoners were brought in under strong guard, the wounded man and the doctor being at the other end of our divan. The whole place was crowded with witnesses and spectators.

A more peculiar trial was never seen, every one gesticulating, shouting and yelling. The prisoners abused kaimaann, cadi, court and everything else, and were abused in turn. The noise went on increasing till it seemed as if the roof was about to fly off.

Suddenly there would come a lull and every one, prisoners, guards and all, would commence smoking cigarettes. The ringleader in the riot coolly took a light from one of the members of the court. After a pause, and with their lungs refreshed by the soothing fumes of tobacco, they would all again burst forth in chorus, and the noise would be worse than before.

I know not how the clerk to the court managed to keep his notes of the evidence, but perhaps he was accustomed to such scenes, and managed to take down a fair description of what had occurred.

Though there was fresh blood on their clothes, and some long hairs were sticking to the sword of the one who had actually struck the blow, the prisoners swore they were innocent. Luckily the case did not rest on frail testimony, as an officer had been present and seen the man cut down. So far everything went to convict the culprits, but the question of provocation given and received had to be debated before the punishment could be awarded.

ORIGIN OF DEATH VALLEY.

An Indian Legend Regarding a Queen as Beautiful as Cleopatra.

The Indian legend regarding the origin of Death valley, in Mayo county, California, is an interesting one.

From the outer edge of this vast furnace—it is three hundred miles square and one hundred feet below sea level—one may see far off, tremulous through the shimmering waves of heat, a sort of butte that has the form of a ruined castle. The story goes that in the old days, before the Amargosa river ceased to water the valleys, the place was the site of a powerful city ruled by a princess as beautiful as Cleopatra and as imperious as Elizabeth.

An ambassador to the reigning Aztec monarch described to her on his return the glories of the king's palace in the City of Mexico.

Resolving to equal the magnificence of her neighbor she began the erection of a vast building. All the laborers and artisans of the city were employed and the work was pushed night and day for within twelve months the Aztec ruler was to be her guest, and she wished to welcome him to a palace as splendid as his own. She exhausted the resources of her realm, men went mad with toil and hunger, and at last the high priest protested. He was ordered to execution, and, dying, cursed the city for the princess' sake. That night the earth shook and sank, the river dried up and the morning sun poured down a flood of heat. All perished, and now the ruined walls of the palace alone remain.

The Amargosa, by the way, is a most erratic stream. It flows south ninety miles from its fountain head in the western Sierras, vanishes at Resting Spring mountain, is in evidence again for fifty miles, disappears for a space, then bobs up and runs along turbulently for one hundred miles. All trace of it is lost at Death valley.

FATE OF A BOOM TOWN.

Under the Hammer It Brings About Three Cents for Every Dollar Invested.

The boom town of Fort Payne, Ala., where millions were invested by New England capitalists, was sold under the hammer the other day to E. N. Culom, a Birmingham capitalist, for the small sum of $60,000, says the St. Louis Republic. The purchase includes 33,000 acres of mineral lands, 3,000 town lots, and various large industries, including rolling mills, furnaces, factories, hotels and the like.

In July, 1892, the entire property of the Fort Payne Coal & Iron company was placed by order of the United States court in the hands of a receiver upon the petition of A. L. Loyles and others of New England. These were afterward joined by the Old Colony Trust company of Boston, trustee, who asked for foreclosure of a mortgage for $300,000. The receivership, though hotly contested in the United States courts by other New England stockholders, was sustained.

Fort Payne was the first attempt of organized New England capital to found a city in the south, and it has proved a flat failure after several millions have been squandered. The town was built to order. In the fall of 1889 W. P. Rice and associates of Boston floated 40,000 shares of Fort Payne Coal & Iron company stock in Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York city at $25 per share of $100, realizing a clean $1,000,000, which was taken in a lump to Fort Payne. Afterward 10,000 shares of stock reserved in the treasury were sold at $37 per share. This soon went and a blanket mortgage with bonds aggregating $500,000 was executed. Immense sums were obtained from the sale of town lots, which were also expended upon the town in waterworks, hotels, railroads, sewer system, furnaces, rolling mills and all the accoutrements of a commercial and manufacturing city.

Then came the bogs of financial depression in 1890, and Fort Payne retired and has remained in retirement ever since, private and corporate expenditures having amounted to $5,000,000. The expenditures of the Fort Payne Coal & Iron company amounted to $2,000,000, all of which has been sold for $60,000, or for 3 cents on the dollar.

The result of this enterprise has been disappointing to both eastern people and to southerners, the one in losing their money and the other in the check that is given to eastern investment. Fort Payne was the first of a series of boom towns that came to the front in the south in 1889 and 1890, Middleboro, Ky., and Harriman, Tenn., being other examples. All have gone the way Fort Payne went.

Cleanliness of the English.

"An American writer," says Tid-Bits, "praises the English as the cleanest people on earth, and declares that the reason for our extra cleanliness is because the fogs and smoke of our island would make us the dirtiest people in the world but for our instinctive cleanliness. The concluding paragraph of his appreciative remark is worth quoting: 'It is to the magic of the tub and towel that the watchless complexion and the superb figures of the English women are due.'"

A Long Rope.

An Irishman who served on board a man-of-war was selected by one of the officers to haul in a tow line of considerable length that was towing over fifty fathoms, which had put his patience severely to proof, as well as every muscle of his arms, he muttered to himself: "Surely it's as long as today and to-morrow! It's a good week's work for any five in the ship. Bad luck to the leg or the arm till I leave at last! What! more of it yet? Och, murder! the say's mighty deep, to be sure!"

After continuing in a similar strain, and conceiving there was little probability of the completion of his labor, he suddenly stopped short, and, addressing the officer on watch, exclaimed: "Bad manners to me, sir, if I don't think somebody's cut off the other end of it!"

Catarrh In Its Worst Form

Life Almost a Burden

A Chloric Change Due Solely to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. C. King, Geneva, Ohio.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease, and therefore it can only be cured by a constitutional remedy like Hood's sarsaparilla. Read what it did for Mrs. King, concisely expressed in her own voluntary words: "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen:—From a grateful heart I write what your grand medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, has done for me. Five bottles cured me of catarrh in its worst form. I think it was only a matter of time, when it would have ended in Bronchial Consumption.'"

Bronchial Consumption.

I can scarcely realize wherein a few months ago life was almost a burden, sick and discouraged, now I am Well and Happy, gaining flesh and a new being. And all owing to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I will never be without it. Yours gratefully. MRS. CLAIR KING, Geneva, Ohio.

THE GEM

Pile Treatment

A GUARANTEED CURE.

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES

IF YOU HAVE THE PILES, NO MATTER HOW BAD, IT WILL CURE YOU.

THE GEM PILE REMEDY is the discovery of a man who for many years had suffered with a most stubborn case of piles, and who had tried many remedies without avail. He brought about a permanent cure by the use of the Gem Treatment, and since curing himself, has cured every one who has come to him with this painful malady, for treatment. The Gem Treatment is entirely vegetable and perfectly harmless. It is not repulsive; neither does it interrupt any person in the pursuit of his employment. There are no restrictions as to diet or habits. A cure is guaranteed in every case, no matter how long the patient may have been a sufferer, nor how serious the malady is. If you are a sufferer from piles, try a box. Instructions for using in every box. PRICE, $1.00 PER BOX.

HOUGHTON.

Circuit court began work in earnest yesterday morning. The juryman having put in their appearance according to the new custom. The case of William Meyers, alias Doc Carter, who also has several other aliases and has been on trial in different parts of the state numerous times, charged with keeping house of ill fame, took the attention of the court yesterday. The next case tried will be that of Fred Kranske and William Goulette, charged with robbery. Thomas B. Martin charged with forgery, withdrew his plea of guilty entered on Monday and a plea of guilty was entered. Olaf Johnson, Oliver Fountaine, John Gestel and Emil Martin, all charged with keeping their saloons open on Sunday, pleaded guilty and were sentenced to pay fines of $20 and $7.50 costs each. Hiram Brown also pleaded guilty to the charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday and was sentenced to pay a fine. In the case of Stephen Agnitch vs John Estenberg, time for settling a bill of exceptions was extended to the first day of the next term. The case of Thomas Dooley, bastardy was continued the next term. Charles A. Wright was admitted to practice. Frank Grossnick, robbery, not being armed with a dangerous weapon, was continued and he was let go on his own recognizance.

The following circular, which explains itself, has been sent out and a petition is being circulated and so far has been well signed: "In order to try and protect the fish and game in Houghton county it has been deemed advisable to form a Fish and Game club to take an active interest in seeing the laws relative to this matter fully enforced. At present our streams are being rapidly depleted of fish and our forests of game, not so much by legitimate fishing and hunting as by violations of the law. In order to make this club influential and its influence widespread and beneficial, it is desired to have its membership as large as possible, and you are earnestly requested to become a member. It is thought that the membership of the club will easily reach one thousand, as the yearly dues will be placed at one dollar."

Since the sales of Ingot soap have been increased so largely some eastern competitor has circulated a report along the line that the quality of the soap has been reduced by the manufacturers. Monday THE MINING JOURNAL visited the soap company's plant and they denounce the report and say it is a base lie and claim to be increasing instead of diminishing the quality of their Ingot brand and report their sales increasing day by day. The company has just completed a large warehouse in which to store materials for the factory. E. R. Penberthy, the hustling agent, left yesterday morning to take in all the towns from here to the Soo.

Captain Richard Taylor is here visiting relatives and old friends.

HANCOCK.

Just after dinner Monday the backsmiths with their helpers in the Mineral Range shops were engaged in taking a smoke stack off one of the engines now in for repairs. While in the act of taking down the stack slipped and fell on Wesley White's leg, breaking it just above the ankle. He was immediately taken home and medical assistance summoned and at this writing he was getting along nicely.

A meeting of the foot ball players interested in organizing a strong team for this season was held Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. rooms and the following officers elected—Manager, Walter B. Leach; captain, Arthur Finley; secretary, James Butler; treasurer, Frank Haas; board of control, W. L. Dunn, B. Russell Rogers and John Morrison. Following are the candidates for the team: Will Dunn, H. Rogers, B. Rogers, Geo. Feising, E. Cliff, J. Butler, H. Roberts, J. Morrison, W. B. Leach, F. Haas, B. Light, P. James, A. Finley, C. Wright, W. Bryant, J. Fisher, and A. Penberthy.

The Maennerchor "Lyra" is making big preparations for their concert to be given in Germania Hall on the evening of May 14. Charles Lewis of Red Jacket will show some of his specialties in juggling, etc., and the affair promises to be a most enjoyable one.

Marshal Malherbe and his men are getting the streets of this city into excellent shape and if the weather is pleasant Thursday the Odd Fellows will have a large turnout.

Invitations have been received by many young folks to attend a May party at Red Jacket on the evening of May 4. Many of them intend to be present.

The St. Joseph's church choir, assisted by the Maennerchor and the Quincy band, gives its concert in Germania Hall this evening and an enjoyable time may be expected by all who attend.

Ernest Campbell came up from Ishpeming yesterday for a few days' visit with friends.

LAKE LINDEN.

Homer Lecuyer, a lumberman at Alex Horton's camp, was brought to this place Sunday afternoon with a broken leg. He had a very narrow escape from being crushed to death. While attempting to break a large roll-way the logs broke unexpectedly and he escaped death by making a clever maneuver with his cant hook. His leg was fractured at the knee and thigh, which made it difficult to move him without causing great pain. An attempt was made by eight of his associates to carry him to this place. They encountered a great deal of snow and water on the road and darkness made it almost impossible for them to proceed. At the request of the injured man they returned to the camp and on Sunday morning they made a bed on a jump sleigh and drove him on it with a team of horses. He was taken to his home here where the surgeons attended him and he is now doing as well as can be expected.

The Native Copper Times gives the particulars of the death of Matt Eathorne formerly of this place: "In the Anaconda mills several men were engaged in repairing the elevator that lifts concentrates. They were up on a staging thirty feet from the floor and had lifted the cover when the buckets that are attached to the belts struck the cover and knocked Eathorne off the scaffolding. He struck on his head and his skull was crushed."

On Monday while James Collie was superintending the moving of a heavy casting at the stamp mills a large roller suddenly rolled upon his right leg and broke the small bone. Drs. Fletcher and West, the Calumet & Hecla surgeons, were sent for and reduced the fracture. At noon yesterday the patient was resting quite comfortably.

The pulpit of the Congregational church at this place will be filled next Sunday by the Rev. William Wallace of Calumet.

CALUMET.

The Calumet & Hecla dividend payable next month will be in the form of money into the copper country, as the shareholders in this vicinity and at Portage Lake are quite numerous.

Mrs. John Dunne left yesterday noon for Duluth in response to a letter informing her of the sickness of her daughter Mabel, who is attending school there.

MARINE NOTES.

Joseph Gregory's tug Mentor will have a new captain this season. Captain David Bussiere will command her. Captain Joseph Picord, who sailed her last year, has turned granger and is now superintending the construction of a farm house on his land near Torch Lake.

The report that the schooner Delaware had run aground at the Entry was not correct. She was in tow of the large Nipigon and the barge ran into and sank the schooner. A tug was sent from here and succeeded in pumping her out so that with the assistance of the barge she got to Lake Linden, for which place she was loaded with coal.

ANCIENT ADVERTISEMENTS.

How the Old Roman Trademen Solicited Public Patronage.

Latin inscriptions, advertisements of trademen, form an interesting class, says Macmillan's Magazine. Here is one near Rome: "If you want inscriptions made, or have any need of marble work, you'll get it here." Another enterprising man at Bologna announces: "A bath in town style and every convenience." A similar notice meets us only eight miles from Rome, where, of course, most of the customers would be able to know whether they really had "town style" or not.

A curious example comes from Lyons, which may be paraphrased thus: "Here Mercury promises profit, Apollo safety, and Septimianus bed and breakfast. He who has been here before will be treated all the better a second time. Stranger, settle on your lodging beforehand."

A more independent tone is taken by another innkeeper, who doesn't hesitate to declare that his house is not intended for people of moderate means. "If you live in good style, here's the house for you; if in poor fashion, I'll put up with you, but I shall be ashamed of having you."

Perhaps there are a good many modern hotels conducted on this principle, but the proprietors are not, as a rule, quite so frank in expressing their sentiments.

Good Reasons.

Why persons suffering with piles should use the Gem Pile Treatment: It is purely vegetable. It is pleasant to take. It is an internal remedy. It places no restriction in your diet. It is not a suppository. It is guaranteed to cure. It will cure you. It will keep you cured. For sale by all druggists.

"WE MUST PASS THIS BILL,"

Senator Mills Delivers a Ringing Speech in Favor of the Tariff Bill.

HE BEGS DEMOCRATS TO STAND BY THEIR PARTY.

The Tariff Bill Will Be Taken Up Today and Discussed and Acted Upon by Paragraph.

PARTY VS. PERSONAL PRINCIPLE.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—On the opening of the senate this morning Senator Mills (Tex.) took up the debate on the tariff bill. He said there were objections to it which he would seek to have remedied but whether successful or not it was a party measure and he appealed to the Democrats to sink personal preference and vote for it. Mills devoted a large part of his speech to a defense of the income tax. He lauded the action of the committee on reporting the tax on incomes.

"I would like to know," he said, "on what principle owners of millions insist that they should not be taxed. Opponents of the income tax said it was inquisitorial, anarchistic and socialistic to levy a tax of 3 per cent. on incomes but when a poor fellow wants a shirt and is taxed 100 per cent. for nothing is said about it being socialistic or anarchistic." He enunciated the principle that the tax should be collected in proportion to the taxpayer's ability to pay and that it depended on the amount of protection he received. It was said the income tax was unjust and iniquitous and the senator from New York (Hill) a few days ago had called it by all kinds of vile names yet when he was governor of New York he had never told the legislature that the income tax which was on the statute books of that state was unjust and iniquitous. It was useless to denounce the income tax as iniquitous, unjust, etc. It was useless to make any sophistical remarks about the difficulty in collecting the tax the law was going to be passed, he declared emphatically, if not by this congress then by the next. The forcible way in which the senator made this statement elicited applause from the galleries, which was checked by the presiding officer.

"Mr. President," continued the senator earnestly, "there is a duty devolving on this body which cannot be evaded. We must pass this bill. Make it as good as we can first, but pass it we must. We must not only pass it but we must stop talking about it. The American people demand it; they sent us here for that purpose." The close of Hill's speech was greeted by a hearty round of applause from the galleries and his Democratic colleagues crowded around to extend their congratulations.

The senate went into executive session at 3:30 and at 4:10 p. m. adjourned. The name of James D. Yeomans to be interstate commerce commissioner was favorably reported to the senate in executive session today.

HARRASSING THE ENEMY.

Business Delayed in the House in Spite of New Rules.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—(Hepburn (Ia.) still persists in hanging onto the flank of the Democrats and by constantly harassing them to force the consideration of the pension bills reported from the Friday night session. At the opening today he objected to the approval of the journal and forced a roll call. The journal was approved by a vote of 232 to 7. The senate joint resolution for a bronze tablet to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the Capitol was passed.

The house went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of postoffice appropriations bill. An amendment providing limitation to ten years upon payment of money orders and for destruction of money order file at the end of that time was adopted. The committee then rose.

By arrangement of the bill was reported to the house. Quigg was given three-quarters of an hour to oppose the amendment adopted in committee of the whole making all publications purporting to be issued periodically and to subscribers but which were merely reprints of books, whether they be issued complete or in parts, bound or unbound, sold by subscription or otherwise, subject to postage at third class rates when transmitted through the mails. The amendment affects book reprints given as premiums with country newspapers subscription, etc.

Henderson (N. C.) defended the amendment as a step toward purging the mails of an enormous amount of second-class matter which he enumerated. The amendment on vote was stricken from the bill which was then passed.

Representative Goodnight (Ky.) today introduced a bill creating a department of health presided over by a physician serving as a member of the cabinet, with the title of secretary of public health.

Campbell (N. Y.) entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which the race bill was defeated yesterday. The house then adjourned.

WILL COMMENCE TODAY.

Actual Consideration of Tariff Bill is About to Begin.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—According to an agreement between the Democratic and Republican senators the reading of the tariff bill by paragraphs for amendment will probably begin at 1 o'clock tomorrow. It is considered as quite probable that the day will be largely taken up in settling the debate on one most important question, which will be as to the limitation of the hours of debate. A group of Republicans known as the steering committee and Senator Gorman held a conference this afternoon. No agreement was reached and it was understood when the conference broke up no agreement would be attempted in the senate but that the consideration of the bill would be begun at 1 o'clock and the Republicans informed Gorman that their side of the chamber would insist on a quorum when any vote was taken on the amendments. Gorman wanted the Republicans to agree that the consideration of the bill should continue until 6 o'clock each evening but to this he did not receive a favorable response, a counter proposition being made that the meeting of the senate be continued until 11 o'clock as more satisfactory. This matter remains to be settled later.

Gorman, who is chairman of the Democratic caucus, has written a letter to every Democratic senator asking them to attend the sessions of the senate for the purpose of pushing the tariff bill. He reminds them that unanimous consent under which the tariff bill has been considered will end tomorrow noon. He says members of the finance committee, having charge of the bill, intend to push its consideration as rapidly as possible. He says he is further informed it is the intention of the senators in charge of the bill to continue its consideration until 6 o'clock hereafter and in order to do so it will require the active co-operation of every Democratic senator.

WILL MODIFY THE BILL.—Democratic senators continued their conferences today with the view of reaching an agreement upon the tariff bill in order to know what to do. They made a canvass of the dissatisfied senators and think they have arrived at the facts and are now prepared to make changes in the bill. Among the changes consulted were Hill, Murphy, Smith, Gorman, Gibson and Brice. They find these six opposed to the income tax and the present sugar duty. They will probably make one or two exceptions in granting the demands of the dissatisfied senators. The income tax will be materially modified. Not only will the committee be found willing to reduce the limit on incomes to be taxed and the rate of taxation but they will also more than likely be agreeable to fixing the time when the tax shall cease to be imposed. This they will be willing to do on the theory that in a few years the test would prove its popularity or unpopularity and they think it should prove popular it can be continued at the pleasure of the voters and of congress. It is not probable, however, that the champions of the bill will consent to striking out this paragraph.

STRIKEN BY PARALYSIS.—Editor Hutton of the Washington Post in a Serious Condition.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Frank Hutton, editor of The Post, was stricken with paralysis while at work at his desk this afternoon. Physicians say his condition is serious on account of clotted blood on the brain. This afternoon at 3 o'clock he was much improved, but his condition is such as to cause concern. Hemorrhage of the brain is checked and the patient has regained consciousness.

MURDERED IN HIS ROOM.—Prominent Indianapolis Lawyer Killed by Unknown Assassin.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 24.—Albert S. Beck, a prominent lawyer, was found dead in his room this morning with a bullet in his body. The coroners jury found that Beck had been murdered. There were signs of a struggle and the shutter of a window opening on a veranda had been sawed off. Bloody tracks led to the sidewalk. A strange revolver was found on the floor and Beck's revolver was in a drawer.

HEAVY STORM PREVAILING.—The Emerald Isle Swept by Very Severe Wind Storm.

DUBLIN, April 24.—Terrific gales prevailed today on the southern coast of Ireland. The storm is particularly severe in the Skibberen district. It is feared many fishing boats will be wrecked ashore. Great damage was also done on land.

Mobbed the Italians.—AKRON, O. April 25.—A mob of 300 American workmen have driven a large gang of Italians working on street improvements from work. The Italians were working for $1 a day which the others claim is too little. Further trouble is expected.

Cholera in Spain.—LISBON, April 24.—Over one hundred cases of cholera and three deaths have been reported during the past twenty-four hours. The government has stopped all telegraphic messages.

CHICAGO MARKETS.—Wheat Quotations.

CHICAGO, April 24.—The leading wheat futures ranged as follows:

EDITOR SENTENCED TO JAIL,

Omaha Newspaper Man Sentenced to Imprisonment for Alleged Contempt of Court.

ROASTS THE JUDGE TO A TURN IN THE COURT ROOM.

Paper Had Charged the Judge With Showing Partiality in Sentencing Criminals in Circuit Court.

THE CHARGE WAS NOT DENIED.

OMAHA, April 24.—Edward Rosewater, editor of The Bee, was today sentenced to imprisonment for thirty days and to pay a fine of $500 for alleged contempt of court without being given opportunity to appeal. Rosewater was ordered to be taken to jail at once and for six hours he was behind the bars of the Douglas county jail. At 6 o'clock the state supreme court granted a supersedeas and Rosewater was released until the case can be reviewed by a higher court.

The alleged offense committed by Rosewater was in allowing to be printed in The Bee a local article in which it states that there evidently was some partiality shown to certain criminals in the district court, as of two men caught robbing a railroad depot, the poor man was sentenced to prison and the son of wealthy parents given his liberty without the case coming to trial. The facts in the case were not denied but Judge C. R. Scott, who had dismissed the case in question, felt aggrieved at the word "pull," used in the article and the reporter who wrote the matter was brought before him for contempt. After a disgraceful scene in court the reporter was sent up for eighty days.

Then Judge Scott arraigned the editor of the paper on the same charge. The case was called for hearing today. Evidence was introduced to show that Rosewater knew nothing of the article complained of and, in fact, was entirely ignorant that an article of any such nature was about to appear. In spite of the evidence Judge Scott declared the defendant guilty and after giving him a severe tongue lashing that provoked some demonstration from the audience the judge then started to impose sentence without giving Rosewater an opportunity to be heard. The editor interrupted the court with the demand to be heard. This the court at first refused but Rosewater insisted and after much confusion he said:

"If men who own our property, who run our schools, who employ men in the various walks of life, if these men were held responsible for the criminal conduct of all their employes, there would not be jails enough in America to accommodate them. It is a monstrous doctrine. If there is anything wrong with our country, if I have been guilty of any contempt, if I have been a fellow citizen for helping this Colonel Scott to become judge of this court."

At the conclusion of Rosewater's talk Judge Scott ordered the sheriff to hurry the prisoner to the county jail to serve out a sentence of thirty days.

Strikers Hold a Conference.—ST. PAUL, April 24.—Committee of Great Northern strikers had a conference this evening regarding arbitration of the strike but decline to give out the decision reached until after they communicated with President Hill.

Forecast of the Weather.—WASHINGTON, April 23.—9 p. m.—The weather bureau reports the following as its forecast for the next twenty-four hours. For upper Michigan: Fair; eastern winds; warmer.

Base Ball Scores.—Baltimore, 15; Boston, 3. Cincinnati, 0; Cleveland, 1. Louisville, 7; Pittsburgh, 3. St. Louis, 9; Chicago, 5. Washington, 6; New York, 3. Brooklyn, 5; Philadelphia, 2.

THE PROPER INFLECTION.—Few Women Know How to Use It When Saying "Thank You."

It is to be regretted—wholly in the interest of her sex—that the woman who thanks a gentleman for some favor to her his sex—and cheerfully as if she really meant what she said.

It has been long maintained by our foreign critics, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, that the English language lacks flexibility, nice shades of meaning, the quality of expression, compared to other tongues. But after careful observation at home and abroad I am satisfied that the lack of expression is rather in the English speaker than in the language.

There are an infinite number of shades of which this little "Thank you" is susceptible, as anyone about town knows. It may be uttered in such a way as to make the blood tingle with indignation. It can be said with such grace and sweetness that the recipient will carry the memory of it as the memory of some delicious perfume, or beautiful picture, or sympathetic strain of music—all through the long day of business cares. For such a reward as this thousands of men have suffered uncomplaining, have endured the tortures of the inquisition, have fought, bled and died upon the battlefield. It would seem a very simple thing, but the graces and politeness and gentleness of speech which distinguished the women of the chivalric age are now almost wholly unknown.

When women talk of the decay of chivalry in men they forget that men are what women make them. Men are the exact reflection of their mothers and sisters and wives. Through the history of the men of the past we have accurate knowledge of the character of the women of that time. As it is higher than its source, so it is impossible for men to rise higher than their mothers, their sweethearts, wives and sisters.

CHILD ENTERTAINERS.

They Are Employed by Many London Society Leaders.

Fain would I utter my protest against child entertainers: those poor little natives with pale cheeks, sunken eyes and old faces who are expected to amuse a mixed company with music hall patter and coster ditties, writes Lady Violet Greville in the London Graph. If the little creatures understand what they sing, we betide them: it is terrible to contemplate their future. If they do not, they are no better than well-trained monkeys and ought to give less pleasure to a grown-up audience. Child-life is beautiful in itself in its natural grace and unconsciousness and innocent selfishness, but a child who nods and winks and intones like a low comedian, with leering glance, allusive gestures and a repertory of double meaning, is not positively repulsive. Clever, no doubt, the performance is, and perhaps it may do the child's moral nature no great harm, but suffer it must in its physical constitution.

Dragged from party to party, spending its life in possible excitement, spoiled by the guests, fed on cakes and sweets, breathing the vitiated air of hot rooms and educated in an atmosphere of slang, low fun and hard work, there can be little hope of a healthy and happy future for it. If we must have music hall artists to entertain our flabby, effete and worn-out company let them at least be men and women who understand what they say and are able to take care of themselves, not poor little farmed-out mites bringing grist to the mill of their elders. What the life means was vividly impressed on me once when I said to the child singer, at an hour long past midnight: "I am sure you must be tired. I hope you haven't far to go," and she answered: "Only three buses and then we're at home."

WOMAN RANCHERS.

They Have Orchards and Vineyards and Olive, Berry and Flower Farms.

"Do you know," said a delicate young woman the other day, "I believe I will go out west and take up farming." "You?" "Yes; why not? I shall never get well if I keep on as I have been doing. I live in a tiny hall bedroom four flights of stairs. Here at my studio I have three flights to climb. If I could get out into the country, live in the open air, and have the inspiration of developing a property of my own, I think I should be well inside of a year."

The tired little artist is only one of a multitude of women who have turned their thoughts toward farming. Horace Greely said: "Go west, young man." Necessity now gives the same advice to many a young woman. The San Francisco Call of a recent issue contains an interesting account of the women farmers, or "ranchers," as they are called, of the golden state. The California atmosphere is said to induce indolence, but, if so, the women ranchers are industrious exceptions.

In proportion to the population there are probably more women engaged in farming in California than in any other state. The climate is favorable to them and country life there is different from rural existence anywhere in this country. Its comforts are greater, its opportunities larger and there is none of the terrible isolation which is such a disheartening feature of ranch life in the middle west or the narrowness of outlook and pettiness of detail of farm life in the east.

A Terrible Revenge.—An Italian who had a pair of showy black eyes and was excessively vain of them permitted himself in a peculiarly outrageous manner to insult a defenseless young Englishwoman who had recently lost her husband. An American painter slapped his face and received his challenge. In the art of fence the American was a proficient, and, as swords were chosen, I asked him, writes Henry Harland in the Idler, on the night before the meeting what he was going to do with the little beast. "Not kill him?" "Oh, no, I shan't kill him. I don't want to soil my hands with his dirty little life. I think I'll just put out one of his handsome black eyes." The next morning in a wood near Viroflay the men crossed their swords, made a few feints and passes, and then, before they had been at it a full half minute, the Italian gave a scream. Sure enough, the American had pinked him in the eye.

Trapped by a Photograph.—Here is a curious little story told by an English solicitor. He had among his clients a few years ago a notorious company promoter, whose financial affairs came to grief. One day, happening to pass by a stationer's shop, his attention was attracted by a portrait of Mr. —, the well-known barrister. Mr. — was attired in a wig and gown and in his hand he held a paper on which the solicitor's sharp eyes caught the name of his client. His curiosity aroused, he purchased the photograph and proceeded to decipher the words of Mr. —'s brief, speedily discovering that they indicated that a warrant was "out" for the arrest of his client. In a few hours the man of finance was out of England.

FEEDING THE JACKALS.

A Strange Ceremony Performed by Himalayan Priests.

A strange ceremony is carried on at a certain temple lying in a belt of swamp and jungle at the foot of the Himalayas. The author of "Indian Memories," who visited the place at sundown, says that she found the priests in perfect silence, engaged in cooking large cakes before the temple. Then they sat down, still silent and still, as if ignorant of any unaccustomed presence. As the last rays of sunlight died off the temple, a man of extreme age, clad in white robes and closely shaven, issued from the shrine. It was the chief priest. Moving slowly forward, he took up a bronze hammer, and began to strike the bell. Very sweet and deep was the note; the whole glade rang and vibrated with it.

At the sound, all the priests rose and moved solemnly and in dead silence round the quadrangle, bearing with them their huge cakes, which they broke up as they walked, and deposited them on the stones and tree-trunks, and the steps of the temple. A rustling sound made me turn. A jackal, big and plump, brushed past me, with an upward curl of his lips, and a look of surprise and resentment in his red-bronze gleaming eyes. Simultaneously, from every lane and passage in the darkening thicket, came other jackals, singly and in pairs, and filled the space before the temple. Soon the feast was spread. The high priest ceased to toll the bell, and at a shout and wave of the hand, every jackal trotted, without rivalry and without snarling or confusion, to what was evidently his accustomed place in the feast, seized the cake in his jaws, turned and disappeared through the thicket.

In vain did I fee the priests to learn the meaning of this strange bounty. "It had always been so," was their answer.

ANCIENT GOLD-WORKERS.

How the Knowledge of Mixing Metals Was First Obtained.

There is a papyrus which gives recipes for various alloys used in the manufacture of cups and vases, and making gold and silver ink, for gilding and silvering, and for testing the purity of precious metals. Other recipes, says the Edinburgh Review, teach the method of falsifying them by adding baser metals—an operation called diplois, or doubling, for the mass of the gold and silver was doubled, while their color remained unchanged, and, as the compiler of the manual remarks, a skilled workman would find it difficult, or even impossible, to detect the fraud. The recipes which recur most frequently describe various modes of preparing asem, a word which originally meant a natural alloy of gold and silver known to the Greeks as electrum. It was at first looked upon as a distinct metal, was considered sacred to Jupiter, and was designated by the sign of that planet, but at a later period the name was applied to all alloys, and M. Berthelot remarks that in this fact seems to lie the explanation of the origin of alchemy. Both gold and silver could be extracted from genuine asem, and it seemed as though it could be changed at the will of the operator into either one or the other; it could also be made artificially by mingling gold and silver, or closely imitated by some of the numerous alloys, eleven or twelve varieties of which are described in the papyrus of Leyden.

BAROMETER OF THE SENATE.

If the Press Gallery is Crowded Be Sure Something Interesting is on Foot.

The movements of the press gallery overlooking the senate chamber at Washington are doubtless the safest barometer of the importance of the doings on the floor below, says the Post. If the gallery seats are well taken up something is surely transpiring in the chamber that is worth watching. If they are empty the proceedings are apt to possess no interest. The public may be mistaken and the visitors' galleries may be overflowing, but the curiosity seekers do not possess the delicate instinct of foretelling impending crises, and if the press gallery be empty, though expectancy be written on every face that peers down from the crowded balconies, no gladiatorial feats of competing oratory need be looked for, and disappointment will overtake him who disregarded the signs. This was well illustrated the other day. When Mr. Gorman arose to reply to Senator Sherman not more than two or three heads appeared above the row of seats in the press gallery. Once or twice Mr. Gorman's eye wandered carelessly in that direction and encountered a tier of vacant seats, but he had not got far into his subject before head after head appeared over the row of desks, and, as if by some subtle magic, forty or fifty men were in their seats following the debate with close attention and mentally registering their comments on the proceedings. Each man had come from a different direction and from every conceivable corner of the vast block of corridors and committee-rooms. No one had told them what was on. It was the indefinable instinct of impending news developments.

A Theatrical Week
The management of the Marquette
Opera House offers its patrons a varied list of amusements from which to choose during the coming week. The Rice, Walford & Sheridan company will appear Monday night opening a three night comedy and matinee engagement in comedy and melodrama. Popular prices will prevail for this engagement which, if the reports received regarding the quality of the plays and players is correct, should insure packed houses at each performance. The repertoire of this company comprises plays entirely new to this city. Special scenery is carried by the company and it is reported that crowded houses are greeting the players down the line.

walls will be up this week.
The Rivals and Union Stars have accepted the Marquette Ideal orchestra to play at their benefit ball Friday evening next in Armory Hall. Dinner will be served in the Armory dining rooms

Saloon keepers are again reminded of the desirability of getting their bonds for next year filed with the city recorder before Saturday night. The council will meet that evening to consider and approve saloon bonds. This must be done before licenses may be issued.
The supply of 54,000 young brook trout from the Michigan Fish commission for stocking streams in this vicinity, is expected here on the 24th train this afternoon. Those who wish to help plant these are expected to be on hand prepared to get them into the streams as quickly as possible.
It is a pleasant thing to watch the streets of the city grow clean under the scrub of Street Commissioner French's gang but the change from a country side road to a city thoroughfare has been no where so marked as yesterday when the shovels and hoes of the men tackled Washington street.
Staff Captain Blanche Cox will talk about India and slum work in London at the Salvation Army barracks tonight. A collection of ten cents will be taken at the door. Miss Cox is a very interesting speaker and last night conducted an enthusiastic meeting. She spoke of the general work the Army is doing throughout the world. The attendance was large.
Reserved seats for the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" revival Saturday evening next will be placed on sale at Bigelow's news depot this morning at 11 o'clock. Those who have seen Stetson's presentation of this old plantation drama will go as a matter of course and those who have not and would care to see the play are assured of the best setting of the piece on the road today.
George Droleit has just returned from a trip to Ontonagon where he spent the latter weeks of winter and this much of spring. He has a home in that town and has been planting a shanty and clearing a little ground. He says they have plenty of snow up there yet, but that does not prevent Ontonagon booming. George says things are going to hum there as soon as the tide turns toward better times.
It is surprising the dangerous situations kids will get into and call it play, but one of this ubiquitous fraternity managed yesterday to disport himself in about as risky a manner as youthful brains can contrive. There are a number of square timbers in the bay near No. 1 dock, held by a boom. On these a boy of about ten years was playing until he got fully one hundred feet from the shore. Several times he slipped and once narrowly avoided going between two big timbers. Should this have happened nothing could have saved his life, as long before assistance could arrive he would have drowned.
Such dangerous sport should be stopped in the promptest and most effectual manner.

CARD OF THANKS.
I wish to extend thanks to the sisters of kind courteous treatment and sympathy extended to me and other members of my late husband's family. Sincerely yours,

THE RAIN PRAYER.

A Legend of Early California.
Day by day, across the silent mountains
scorching sunbeams threw their arrows down;
So the grain drooped, and the laden vineyards,
By the Mission and the little Spanish town.
Day by day the simple people, waiting,
Bowed them low upon the dusty plain,
Crying: "Oh, Beloved, we are very weary,
We are dying; send the blessing of the Rain!"
Still the heavens glowed like brass above them.
Still the river's bed lay empty and forlorn,
And the grateful goodness of the longed-for Even
Paled before the burning breath of morn.
Till at last the gentle-hearted Padre Spoke at time of silent shadow-fall:
"O, my people, my sad people, the Beloved
Will not listen: He is angry with us all.
"So our prayers shall be as chaff before Him,
Left to drift, left after gathered grain.
Oh, my people, let us send the little children
To beseech our own Beloved for the Rain.
"Thy shall go at twilight to the vineyards,
While the Mission bells ring solemnly and slow:
They shall sing the gracious song of Harvest,
As your fathers sang it in the Long Ago."
Then the children, little, tender children,
Trooped among the vines as twilight came,
White robes held in folded, dimpled fingers.
Crying softly the Beloved's potent name.
And the longing people were in silence,
As a little breeze came sighing from the sea,
And afar, across the fragrant, darkened valley
From San Gabriel, bells rang low and solemnly.
So the children sang the song of Harvest,
And behind the soft gray mist wreaths fluttered down
On the grain and on the dying vineyards
Of the Mission and the little Spanish town.
So the children, little, faithful children,
Bowing lowly, prayed their simple prayers
again.
And the mist grew, and across the silent valley
Came the blessed patter of the Rain.
Saith the Padre: "The Beloved heareth,
And His promise of the harvest will not cease.
For He cometh, for He cometh on the mountains,
And His footsteps, oh, my people, bring us
Peace."

AN ARMY INCIDENT.

The Colonel's Story of an Officer's
Love Affair.
The colonel was visiting us. This was in itself an event in our family.
Since he had taken command of the important station on the Pacific coast his visits were rare. For three years his shadow had not fallen athwart our threshold, his legs had not been under our oak (we did not possess a mahogany), nor had his voice sounded through our dwelling. But one November morning the head of the household announced, on opening his morning mail,
"The dear old colonel is east on a two-month's leave and will spend Sunday with us."
To be sure, it was only one day, but we made the most of that. Our military friend had not entered one whit in appearance since our last meeting, except that he was, if anything, handsomer than ever before. When we speak of him as "our dear old friend" it is a token of endearment not meant to convey the impression that he is beyond the prime of life. The years that paid us undue attention seemed to have forgotten him. The soldierly carriage, the quick, piercing glance, the deferential and inimitable manner, were the same as ever, as was also the flow of humor and pathos which made conversation with him a pleasure never to be forgotten.
It stormed all day Sunday, and we had our friend to ourselves, but after our late dinner, in spite of the increasing tempest of wind and rain, several callers, who had heard of Col. Lawrence's presence in our midst, "dropped in." We all drew our chairs about the great fireplace in the hall, and enjoyed the coziness all the more because of rattling panes and dashing rain.
The colonel sat at one side of the fireplace, his eyes resting dreamily upon the leaping flames. He was an appreciative listener as well as an excellent talker. To-night he was in his happiest vein. Among our callers was the doctor, unenthusiastic and scientific; the lawyer, keen and a trifle observant; and the merchant, practical and inquiring. I believe that he is generally present in even the most select circles.
After an hour's chat upon various topics, the head of the house arose and deposited upon the ruddy embers several huge sticks of wood, which caused the fire to go leaping and roaring up the chimney.
" pile on the logs, the night grows chill," quoted the colonel. "To my mind, there is nothing in all this world more deliciously comfortable and more suggestive of home warmth than a wood fire on the hearth, especially on a stormy evening."
"Colonel," asked the lawyer, cynically, "does not such a night as this, in a cozy home like this, in the 'midst of things' as we are here, make you long for the life of a civilian?"
The colonel answered with one of his thoughtful smiles: "You forget that, lovely as this life is, the army is my home. Not," he added, "as safe as this, but none the less home."
"And why not as safe?" queried the doctor. "There is much talk about the dangerous life of an army officer. Of course once in a generation there occurs an army tragedy, like the Custer massacre, but it never struck me that it takes a great amount of courage to go into the United States army in these times of peace."
"But if war comes we are there," was the quiet response.
"For my part," observed the merchant, "I have always thought of the life of the West Point graduate as one of many privations, small remuneration and scant appreciations."
"If that be so," said the man-who-was-nothing-in-particular, "there are probably lots of heroic deeds perpetrated by these army men which would make awfully interesting stories.
Colonel, don't you know a tale of the sad death of some plucky fellow of your acquaintance? I note on frontier army sketches, and I do not voice the sentiments of the rest of this group heart. You and I are the quiet sort and don't understand the necessity which is strong upon some people of talking out their feelings. But, dear boy, don't let the thought of his possible devotion deter you from going in and winning. All is fair in love and war, you know."

" 'She is the one to decide,' was his simple answer.
" 'There was a hop at the hotel the night before Miss Daintree's return to New York. We dancing men had pledged ourselves to be present and to dance as often as human endurance and patent leathers would permit.
Rathbun was unusually silent as we ate our supper. I guessed what was in his mind, and forebore to make any comments. Just before leaving our snug sitting-room for the Hygeia, festivities he held out his hand to me.
" 'Dear old man,' he said, the light of a great love in his eyes, 'wish me good luck! To-night I shall know my fate. God knows I don't deserve it; but I hope, I almost believe, that she cares a little for me.'
" 'While my hand still grasped his the door was burst open and Miller rushed in, gorgeous in full-dress uniform, his cheeks aglow, his eyes dancing.
" 'I really had to stop here on my way to the hop,' was his greeting. 'I was too impatient to tell you what has happened to wait half an hour longer.
I want you to know that she said 'yes'
to me this afternoon, and that I am the happiest mortal on this green foot-stool.' Why, Lawrence, you weren't in love with her too, were you?'
" 'For it was I who had changed color and lost presence of mind.
" 'Rathbun's hand was outstretched in a moment, and his merry laugh ran through the tiny room as he grasped Miller's hand.
" 'Lawrence in love! Never! We both congratulate you heartily! I hope she knows what a good husband she has found.'
" 'And as I, having recovered my senses, was stammering my good wishes, Rathbun opened his cigar case, handed a cigar to each of us, put one between his own teeth, and, striking a match on his boot heel, remarked that as it was nine o'clock, we would better start for the hotel.
" 'I was by his side in the spacious dancing pavilion when Miss Daintree, on Jack Miller's arm, swept up to us.
She held out her little gloved hand to Ned and looked straight into his eyes,
although she blushed rosily as she said,
softly:
" 'Mr. Rathbun, Jack tells me that he has told you all. As his friend, and I hope—as mine, I want you to wish us happiness.'
" 'The gaze that met hers was as steady as her own, the hand-grasp firm, the voice clear and sweet.
" 'From my heart I wish you all happiness, and thank you both for calling me your friend.'
" 'There is little more to tell. Five years later Ned Rathbun was shot through the heart by an Indian in the battle of B—. I was one of the four men who carried his body to the top of a thickly-wooded hill, and wrapping
it in an army cloak, hastily buried it.
I could not bear to run the hundredth part of a chance of its not receiving decent interment. We army men learn to dread that. The sun was just setting and the red light shone luridly through the smoke rising from the valley below us. We had no prayer-book, no chaplain; but one of us repeated, softly: 'I am the resurrection and the life, sayeth the Lord; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die.' And then, with bowed and uncovered heads, we repeated the Lord's Prayer. As the last hasty shovelful of earth was thrown into the grave, the guns in the valley belled forth angrily. It is his funeral volley,' said one of the men.
And then, without speaking, we descended the hill, leaving the lonely grave on its summit.'
" After the colonel ceased there was a long silence, in which we heard the rain dash against the windows and felt the house quiver in the clutch of the angry wind. The man who was nothing in particular was the first to find his voice. "That was a really touching story, colonel," he remarked, affably.—Virginia Franklyn, in Harper's Bazar.

THE MEN ARE VICTORIOUS.

Bosses Fail to Trim the First Ore Vessels in Their Contract.

TRIMMERS' UNION JUBILANT IN CONSEQUENCE

Rumored That South Shore Will Control Trimming This Season and Enrage Local Men.

VERY QUIET, ORDERLY DAY.

More than sixty men who, during the past few days have stood in groups about the streets dressed in their other clothes, yesterday morning appeared as a small army, equipped with shovels and picks and habited ready for work. They were members of the ore trimmers' union and were prepared to trim the loads of the Wawatam and Lockwood if given a chance. They marched to No. 1 dock, at the end of which was the Wawatam ready to load, and found sheriff's deputies, backed by an injunction restraining any of the men from going on the dock, awaiting them. Then they tramped to No. 4 dock to see how fared the Lockwood and encountered more deputies and more injunction. Then they settled down to a concerted and determined espionage of Messrs McPartland and O'Meara. Wherever the bosses went the men, like Mary's lamb, went also. This continued until just before the arrival of the 10:30 train, when the men dropped the McPartland-O'Meara trail and gathered at the South Shore station.

They had got wind of a rumor that a gang of men was coming on that train from the mines to trim for the bosses and they wanted to see if union and labor arguments would not convert them to the trimmers' way of thinking. The train arrived but no "foreign element" alighted and the trimmers were just settling down to the consoling idea that no outside help would be brought in when word came that thirty men had got off the train about Fourth street and were marching down the track to No. 4 dock. Then followed a mad stampede of trimmers from the station up Front street. Pell mell they dashed up the middle of the street, idle citizens joining the procession and store keepers crowding to their doors to see the cause of the commotion. It was, for a few minutes, as swift a time as Front street had ever seen. Near Pickand's coal office the swift parade deployed to the left and succeeded in intercepting the imported gang in the cut leading to No. 4 dock.

The strangers stopped their walk and waited quietly to hear what the trimmers had to say. One of their spokesmen addressed a few brief, respectful sentences to the miners, placing the men's view of the situation before them. At the conclusion of the trimmer's remarks the "foreigners" shouldered their shovels, right about faced and said they had been misinformed regarding the situation and would go back home. This was the first signal victory for the men and practically broke the bosses' backs. No other attempt was made to secure men to trim the boats. The bosses had contracted to trim every boat loading ore here this season and had failed to attend to the first two. This the men looked upon as breaking the contract and they congratulated themselves that the victory had been won without force on their part.

During the day several sections of the men were summoned to the office of General Manager Fitch of the South Shore and asked to make a statement of their wishes. The men seemed satisfied with the interviews and more hopeful than ever, after them, of success. It is understood the vessel owners have been telegraphed regarding the situation and it is expected the chairman of the committee which negotiated for the season's trimming, will be here today on the Ketchum. Then an amicable settlement may be arrived at. Messrs. McPartland and O'Meara seem to look chiefly to the vessel owners to offer a solution, rather than to attempt one themselves.

At 4 p. m. the Lockwood rounded the breaker clearing with the first load of ore and was followed five minutes later by the Wawatam. Both boats carried full cargoes which had been partly trimmed by the crews. The ore trimmers did not relish watching the boats go out and realizing they had lost the first chance of the year to earn some money but they had the satisfaction of knowing no one else had earned what they consider justly theirs.

The manner in which the ore trimmers conducted themselves yesterday was most commendable and only marred by the unfortunate outbreak of the previous day. There was no boisterousness, no bragging and no attempt at bullying. Their treatment of those who came from the mines was fair and without any show of force. They were simply respectfully and quietly waiting the first opportunity to go to work which should present itself and they feel confident they will be trimming boats as of yore before twenty-four hours have passed.

Late last evening there were many different stories as to a final settlement, but THE MINING JOURNAL was unable to trace any of them to a satisfactory source. One of the most generally recounted was to the effect that the South Shore officials had taken the matter in hand and notified the vessel owners that they would engage a boss trimmer on their own responsibility at a stipulated salary and allow him to engage such of the trimmers as he needed to attend to the boats. With this arrangement the men would get the full rate of two and one-half cents a ton or whatever is prevailing at other ports. A MINING JOURNAL reporter tried to verify the statement, but did not succeed in doing so to his satisfaction. Several of the men were seen and declared that such an arrangement had been made as a result of their conference with Mr. Fitch and that they would trim the next boat that loaded. The South Shore people would only talk guardedly and THE MINING JOURNAL is of the opinion that, while some such arrangement may be pending, it has not yet reached a conclusion. If it should Messrs. McPartland and O'Meara would be out of it entirely.

What became of the thirty men brought from up the road yesterday? was a common query last night. Scarcely one of them could be found here by dark. They simply seemed to melt away and leave the field to the local men. Some of the "imported" ones were so disgusted when they found out the real state of affairs, that they did not wait for a return train but set out on foot along the railway track for Neegaunee. Most of the remainder went by train but all managed in some way to get out of town, and they were not hurried in their exit by any threats.

The deputy sheriffs and police had a lazy day of it. They had not even the poor satisfaction of arresting a drunk. Marquette's streets were never freer from turmoil than yesterday, thanks to the cooler judgment in the ore trimmers' ranks prevailing. Every one looks upon the trouble as ended, the chief regret being that the men forgot themselves Monday in their treatment of Mr. O'Meara.

Mr. McPartland plead guilty to the charge of carrying concealed weapons yesterday morning before Justice Cary and was fined $10 which he promptly paid. He explained he carried the revolver for protection as threats had been made against him. The court admitted the occasion might have allowed such a precaution but that the weapon should have been exposed. Mr. O'Meara was feeling very sore and stiff last night as a result of his severe drubbing.

That Munising Shortage.
That there is a shortage of nearly $5,000 in the treasury of Munising township is no secret but the details of what probably caused the deficit and the attempts made to straighten matters may be of interest to many readers of THE MINING JOURNAL.

At the election a year ago William Knox was elected township treasurer. He appointed as his deputy James McIntyre, one of the leading business men of the county. Mr. McIntyre took entire charge of the business of the treasurer's office and kept right on managing his own affairs. He was not as careful, perhaps, in keeping his accounts as he should have been and did not keep separate township and business accounts. He was astounded to find that his books lacked almost $5,000 of balancing and as this shortage fell to the lot of the township he placed his property under mortgage, turning it over to Judge Brown and Attorney Peters of this city, who had been appointed trustees for the township in the matter. Judge Brown was McIntyre's selection as trustee and also his attorney.

At the last township election Ed. Cox, who until two years ago was a rival of McIntyre's in the political leadership of the township, managed with the assistance of Mr. McIntyre to get a place as supervisor on the successful ticket. He was no sooner elected than, it is alleged, he began a war against Mr. McIntyre to hamper him in his attempts to settle the shortage in his accounts. Judge Brown has taken up the fight in McIntyre's favor and is confident of winning and defeating Cox. It appears public sentiment throughout the township is largely in favor of Mr. McIntyre. He is believed to be perfectly honest and that his shortage is entirely the result of bad management. This belief is strengthened by the readiness with which he placed his entire property at the disposal of the township. Mr. Cox is severely censured for his bearing toward Mr. McIntyre and it is understood the chief animus influencing his unfriendly position dates back to the time when the majority chose Mr. McIntyre instead of Mr. Cox as their leader in matters political.

The people of the township are watching the matter with closest interest and nine-tenths of them openly declare they hope Mr. McIntyre may come out on top. He has fifteen months in which to redeem his property and make up the deficit and Judge Brown is going to see he gets a fair show to do so.

Aboriginal Sociable.

The Methodists are arranging for a very unique social and entertainment in their church next Friday evening. It is to be known as an "Indian" affair and the following program has been prepared, each participant appearing in genuine Indian costume:

- Prayer..... Rev. Washbenaysi.
- Address..... Chief Kobaguan.
- Song, "My Native Country"..... George Washington.
- Recitation, "Hawatha's Wooing"..... Minnehaha.
- Chorus, selection..... Native Indians.
- Reading, "The Famine"..... Kichegemaqua.
- Instrumental, "Tom Tom"..... Mawewadayaquay.
- Recitation, "Ojano Lee"..... Okechegewawquay.
- Song, "Blue Juniata"..... Wayindawdwoquay.
- Chorus, selection..... Native Indians.

The program will conclude with a grand tableaux, "The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers." There will be an exhibition Indian relics gathered from all parts of America from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. All who take part in the entertainment will appear in Indian costume, from the aged Chief Kobaguan to the humblest usher. This the Methodists announce will be the "biggest thing in the social line ever given by them."

Considering the dull times the price of admission for both entertainment and social will be only twenty-five cents in order that all may attend and enjoy the unique features which will be offered.

There will be a dance given at Maccabee Hall next Thursday evening, April 26, for the benefit of a member of the Maccabees who met with a painful accident some time ago. The Society St. John Baptiste has given up its meeting on that night in order that the dance may be held. The purpose is a worthy one and those in charge hope that the attendance will be large. The tickets will be fifty cents and good music will be in attendance. (4-21-94)
