BAYARD ON THE TARIFF.

United States Ambassador to Great Britain Speaks to Gathering of Democrats.

COMPARES THE POLICIES OF THE TWO LEADING PARTIES.

Denounced the Republicans for Spending the People's Money and Bringing Ruin on the Country

RECEIVED A HEARTY GREETING.

DOVER, Del., Oct. 23.—The opera house was crowded tonight with enthusiastic Democrats who gathered to greet Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, United States ambassador to Great Britain. Mr. Bayard was greeted with tumultuous applause and spoke in part as follows:

"Standing as I did more than three thousand miles away from you, when I saw the grave errors that threatened the welfare of the people of this country, saw the commercial and financial wreck and suffering you were undergoing here I cannot say I was surprised. I can only say I was grieved and I am here tonight to put before you the question whether you will involve again the evils from which you have barely escaped or whether you will place power again in the hands of a party to whom America owes her worst woes and her greatest suffering" [applause].

Bayard then compared the condition of the country on March 4, 1889, to the state of affairs four years later when, for the first time since 1861, the Democratic party had a president of its own choosing, controlled the house by a large majority and had a scanty and almost nominal majority in the senate. Continuing he said: "All the measures previously passed and the consequences which are exhibiting themselves had been enacted by the Republicans. If the trade policies of the government were unwise, if the distribution of public powers to private hands and private use followed; for all that the Republican party stood then, stands today and will ever stand responsible."

"There was a danger, the Democratic president in 1888 stated to the people, that by honest and strict collection of taxes and by the honest and economical expenditure of the funds of the government a surplus was being gathered that was dangerous to public business, useless and ought to be abated. If there was a scarcity of money created by an accumulation in the treasury the obvious method was to diminish the source of supplies so the people would pay less and enjoy more and public business should not be disturbed by a congested treasury. That was common sense. It was honest. But it did not suit the purpose of the incoming party. They said 'No'. When they came in they said: 'As to surplus, we will soon manage that—God help surplus. And the surplus disappeared amid profligate, excessive and lavish expenditure—expenditure for the purpose of making the people of the United States believe the government should support the people and not that the people should support the government [applause]."

"But into power they went and instantly the demand came from the financiers that controlled their party, that controls the party today, that they should hand over to the men who led the Republican party those powers of government that are essential to its existence. They passed a tax and it became a power over this nation. And what was the outcome? Profligate expenditure changed the surplus into a deficit and then a bill for enormous taxation was laid in the name of protection on American industries, the McKinley tariff bill, and then the bill was urged by the same principles as those who owned silver mines and were interested in their development."

"My friends, these measures passed before the election of 1892. Public policy does not always declare their results so quickly. They do not declare themselves in a day, but declare themselves they will. And so of the people; so of all those policies of trade or currency; they cannot speak simultaneously but, my friends, they will speak in time. The attitude of President Harrison and the men whom he had in his cabinet, especially Secretary of Treasury Foster, said: 'This will outlast this administration and the Democrats shall shoulder the ruin that our incompetency and corruption have wrought.' 'This is the truth; it stands written on the sky; it stands written forever in history.'"

The remainder of his address was confined chiefly to state issues.

TRYING TO COMPROMISE.

Cleveland May Yet Come Out in Favor of Senator Hill.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—President Cleveland's departure from Buzzard Bay today was an event of importance to Democratic politicians and gave rise to many rumors, among them one to the effect that he had agreed in the event of united action on congressional candidates to make a speech in Senator Hill's favor before returning to Washington. Both Chairman Thatcher and Major Hinckley treated the report lightly but the former still firmly maintained that the president would be heard from at the proper time. Big campaign speeches "Below Harlem" began tonight, Senator Hill speaking in Brooklyn and Tammany holding a mass meeting at the wigwag. The "Committee of seventy" had a ratification meeting at which speeches were made in favor of the election of Strong for mayor and against Tammany and its methods.

Late this afternoon the Democratic headquarters were agitated over an alleged sensation. "We made a big discovery today," said Chairman Thatcher. "There is a defect in the new constitution which will create a legislative hiatus if adopted. There will be no legislature in 1895 and the candidates elected this year will not meet at Albany next winter. The new constitution, after making a new apportionment, provides for the election of senators and assemblymen under it in November, 1895, and then provides that the constitution, if approved, shall go into effect January 1, 1895.

GREENWICH, Conn., Oct. 23.—The Cleveland party, including the president and family, Mrs. Perrine and Miss Rose Cleveland were met at the station here this evening by E. C. Benedict and driven to his beautiful house at the "Maples." The party will leave early tomorrow for New York.

TARIFF THE ONLY TOPIC.

Vice President Stevenson and Party Speak at Springfield, Mo.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 23.—Several thousand people were at the depot this evening with the Second Regiment band to welcome Vice President Stevenson to the city. Long before the appointed hour for speaking every seat in the Grand Opera House was taken and hundreds of ladies were present in the boxes and on the platform. The greatest enthusiasm reigned. Among the distinguished persons on the platform were Senators Vest and Cockrell and Congressman Heard. Congressman Heard introduced the vice president, who was received by a storm of applause, most of the people rising from their seats.

The principal topic of discussion was on the tariff, which he discussed for an hour and contrasted the Wilson and McKinley bills. The Democratic congress had reduced taxation enormously and yet was criticized because in one single year it had not undone what the Republican party had done in thirty-three. At the close of the vice president's address ex-Governor David E. Francis made a speech saying that tariff reform was the great issue of the day.

Senator Cockrell then made a vigorous speech which brought out the greatest demonstration of the evening. He said the Wilson bill "contained more reform than the celebrated Mills bill which was so satisfactory to the Democrats everywhere."

RESULT OF MCKINLEYISM.

STERLING, Ill., Oct. 23.—MacVeagh spoke here this afternoon to a good audience. The speaker upheld the Wilson bill and said protection had been the curse of the country. The late panic was the result of McKinleyism. Heretofore it had taken five years to recover. This time under the Democratic administration the recovery from the panic was inside of twelve months. He upheld the income tax.

LOOTING THE VILLAGES.

Gang of Desperadoes Are Running the Indian Territory.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 23.—Last night's program in the great carnival of crime which is now holding the boards in the Indian Territory consisted of the wholesale robbery of several small towns in genuine desperado style by Bill Cook, supported by a strong company of eight or ten followers. Four men rode into the town of Watova making their approach known by a promiscuous discharge of firearms. The bandits terrorized the inhabitants, visited every store in the village, taking all the money they could find and everything else they wanted. The postoffice was robbed of $60 in cash and $55 in stamps. From Watova the gang rode to Tala, ten miles away, where they repeated their depredations. Every store in the place was visited and the proprietors compelled at the point of revolvers and Winchester to turn over their cash. From their description the men are undoubtedly the same gang that held up the Missouri Pacific train at Corita siding Saturday night.

MAY REFUSE TO SEND TROOPS.

Request for Troops for Indian Territory Not Acted Upon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—General Schofield looked into the matter of the request for troops for Indian Territory and returned the papers to the acting secretary of war with the suggestion that the request for troops be maturely considered with the view of ascertaining the legality of the proposed action. This endorsement from so high an authority upon the complex relations between the military and civil branches of government will undoubtedly cause the war department to move with great caution in acting on the request for troops and in the end may result in refusal.

MAY PROVE A FAILURE.

Pittsburg Organization Withdraws from New Baseball Association.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 23.—What may prove the death knell of the new national baseball association was sprung today when A. C. Buckberger telegraphed F. H. Hiecher that the Pittsburg organization had decided to withdraw from the association. The failure to secure the Oakland grounds caused the decision.

PREPARING THEIR REPORT.

National Strike Commission in Secret Session at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The national strike commission reconvened today. The report is to a great extent completed and the commission is now engaged in giving final shape to the report to the president. The sessions are secret and no intimation is given as to the nature of the report.

WABASH, Ind., Oct. 23.—The four railway shops here caught fire just after midnight and were completely destroyed. The loss is over $100,000.

JUGULAR VEIN SEVERED.

Finlander Stabs a Woodsman in the Neck at Ewen Without Provocation.

HE MADE FOR THE WOODS BUT WAS HUNTED DOWN.

Posse of Victim's Friends Pursue the Assailant, Capture and Lodge Him in Jail.

THREATS OF LYNCHING MADE.

EWEN, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—John Anderson, a woodsman living in this place, was stabbed in the neck by a Finlander named Pollati on the street this afternoon. The injured man will probably die from the effects of the wound. Dr. Buckland happened to be passing at the time and immediately took measures to stop the flow of blood or Anderson would have undoubtedly bled to death as the external jugular vein was completely severed.

Pollati and a companion were jostling against the people on the street and as they met Anderson Pollati drew a knife and without provocation stabbed his victim. He then made for the woods in the hope of avoiding arrest but a posse was soon organized and in pursuit of the fugitive. After a short search he was found and taken prisoner. The posse brought him back to Ewen and lodged him in jail.

The woodsman, a large number of whom are in town from the logging camps, are terribly excited and threats are openly made of lynching the scoundrel. Should Anderson's wound prove fatal, as it probably will, the woodsmen will certainly take the law in their own hands and avenge the death of their companion in a summary manner.

DEFAULTER RUN DOWN.

Deputy County Clerk Atkinson Arrested at Whitewater, Wis.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Claude M. Atkinson, the deputy county clerk of this county who is under indictment for malfeasance in office and who skipped leaving his bondsmen in the lurch some time ago, has been run down and is now under arrest at Whitewater, Wis. The sheriff has gone with the necessary papers to bring him back. Atkinson is a son-in-law of E. P. Lott, who is now a fugitive from justice, he having left for parts unknown to escape arrest following his attempt to work off a bogus express package purporting to contain $424 on Receiver Culver of the United States land office at Marquette.

FOUND A SKELETON.

Iron Mountain Man Makes Ghastly Find Near Menominee River

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—In clearing some land Paul Perket of this city found the skeleton of a man yesterday. The remains were found about one-half mile from the Menominee river. Beside the bones was found a single barrel rifle. In digging round Perket also found a tin plate four inches from the surface. Paul brought some of the teeth to the city with him. He thinks the body must have been there for twelve or fifteen years.

PENINSULA MINE SOLD.

Franklin Copper Mining Company Makes Purchase at Low Price.

HANCOCK, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Franklin Copper Mining company has purchased the mine and 1,650 acres of the surrounding lands of the Peninsula Copper company for $45,000. The Peninsula changed hands in 1892 for $187,500. The acquisition is of great value to the Franklin, as it adds to its reserves of good mining ground which is now nearly worked out.

RALLY AT IRON MOUNTAIN.

Congressman Burrows Addresses a Very Enthusiastic Audience.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A Republican rally was held here tonight in Rundle's Hall. C. Burrows of Kalamazoo addressed the meeting and was repeatedly cheered. The meeting was a great success and the hall was crowded to its full capacity.

SHATTERED THE WINDOWS.

Pacific Slope Feels the Effect of an Earthquake Shock.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 23.—A very sharp earthquake shock drove the people from the large buildings at 3 o'clock this afternoon. No damage was done beyond the breaking of windows. A telephone message from Compo says the shock was very severe there. The disturbance was also felt at Los Angeles.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A dispatch from Tokio says an earthquake occurred yesterday in the province of Aikita. The shock was so severe it almost completely destroyed the town of Bekata. The loss of life is very heavy and the property loss enormous.

BRICK BUILDING COLLAPSES.

Several Workmen Badly Injured by the Falling Walls.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—A five story brick building on Wells street in course of erection collapsed this afternoon, burying five or six men in the ruins. Immediately afterward the voices of two of the men were heard under the debris calling for help. Investigation showed that all had escaped but two. They were soon rescued, badly but not fatally injured.

AS TO PRESIDENTIAL BOOMS.

It is rather early to begin the discussion of presidential possibilities in 1896. There is a large class of reasonably intelligent men who are never happy, however, unless they are connected with a "boom" of some kind. Governor McKinley's balloon has been industriously inflated for some time until it has swelled to the point where the Ohio man has become an avowed candidate. But there are signs that the boomers for pleasure, who go into it for the fun of the thing, have grown somewhat weary of shouting for McKinley and are looking about for a new plaything. They seem to have found it in Thomas B. Reed.

The big banquet of the Hamilton club of Chicago Monday night was attended by over one thousand Republicans from all over the west. Mr. Reed was the guest of honor and the assembly rapidly developed into a Reed love-feast. The chorus of enthusiasm for Reed was loud and general and the man from Maine by his silence gave assent to his formal launching as a presidential candidate. Of course it has been known for some time that Mr. Reed's particular admirers were pushing him for the presidency but the gathering in question may be fairly regarded as the first avowal that he considered himself entered for the great race in 1896.

Both Mr. Reed and Mr. McKinley are extremely able and vigorous men. Either would make a good president. Reed, M. Kinley and ex-President Harrison are easily the most prominent men in the Republican party today. But it is to be observed that "boomed" candidates rarely get the nomination. Abraham Lincoln was not "boomed" in the sense that Reed and McKinley are now. General Grant won the presidency on his military record. Hayes was a "dark horse" in the Republican national convention of 1876. Garfield was a very "dark horse" indeed in 1880. Cleveland rose with such rapidity to the presidency that there was no opportunity to work up for him the regulation "boom." No one will contend that Harrison's nomination in 1888 was in any sense the result of the ordinary "boom."

On the other hand what has been the fate of the men whose enthusiastic followers have taken them out hunting for the presidency with a park of artillery. No man had a greater popularity or a more enthusiastic following than Henry Clay, yet he never reached the presidency. In later years the career of James G. Blaine paralleled that of Clay in many points. No public man of his time had a more enthusiastic or devoted following than Blaine, yet he failed of nomination more than once when he was evidently the most popular candidate and when nominated it was only to meet defeat. The best organized boom ever known in American politics was for Grant in 1869 and yet it failed.

The moral of this is not that a man must be obscure and of mediocre abilities to reach the presidency. None of the presidential candidates of the two great parties, at least of late years, have in any sense been obscure or mediocre men. They have been men who did their work well in lower stations and who earned promotion. But they did not hunt ducks with a brass band; they were so fortunate as to escape the fatal applause of the class which is never happy unless it has a political hero to shout for and to "boom." Hence it is now a fair guess that neither Reed nor McKinley will be the Republican nominee in 1896. Their campaigns have begun too early. By the time the decisive day is reached their followers will have expended all their strength and nothing but noise will be left in them. Gentlemen who are ambitious of the presidency should beware of the seductive "boomer."

BETTER TIMES AT HAND.

The "calamity howlers" are preaching a vain and fallacious gospel. Better times are at hand and all the frothing of the politicians cannot check the growth of business. Both parties were responsible for the recent business and financial depression and their efforts to unload the blame upon each other are more amusing than interesting. The financial review issued by Henry Clews & Co. of New York contains the following accurate estimate of the present situation:

The symptoms of growing confidence in the market are unmistakable, and sagacious operators are looking for an early improvement in prices; though more disposed to wait for a fuller maturity of conditions than to precipitate a rise prematurely. For the last few weeks Wall street has watched the course of general business with a critical eye. Whilst expecting a revival of trade immediately following the end of the tariff suspense as a matter of course, they waited to see how far the revival would run and whether it would not be followed by some reaction. There was some reaction following the universal and liberal replenishment of the previously exhausted stocks of merchandise; and then came a second waiting to see how far that reaction would extend and whether the second stage of the season's buying would be as satisfactory as the first. The test was a crucial one, but it has been attended by no disappointment. In most branches of trade there is already an encouraging resumption of buying, which is construed as meaning that the retailers are finding a satisfactory demand for goods and that the consumptive ability of the country is again verging upon the normal measure. The effect of these indications has been to develop a hopeful feeling through the various departments of trade, which finds its effect in larger orders at first hands and in preparations for an increased output among the industries and in larger orders for importations. The recent public utterances of President Roberts, of the Pennsylvania railroad,—whose abilities and conservatism of judgment are universally recognized—are an important acknowledgment of the value of these symptoms, and his estimates will have the more effect upon public confidence because they echo a feeling that is generally entertained among men connected with the larger movements of capital. It is not easy to limit the benefits that may arise from public confidence assuming a more positive shape. To both the borrowers of capital and the lenders of it there are now clear and strong inducements to resume operations. The former class have suffered greatly from the long interruption of business and have been compelled to make important postponements of contemplated enterprises. They have been conservative enough to defer their undertakings until the prospect was more certain, and having reached a stage of recovery which bespeaks more confidence among investors they are likely to substitute action for waiting. The lenders are tired of keeping their means so long idle and of lending at less than half the usual rates of interest, and when general symptoms are indicating a large recovery of confidence and soundness they are not likely to reject meritorious applications for capital.

THE MINING JOURNAL has received some communications bearing on local political questions which are not published because the writers forgot to sign their names. Correspondents who desire to air their ideas in these columns, must sign their communications—"not necessarily for publication but simply as a guarantee of good faith."

The Sea Otter.

The sea otter, when grown, measures from three and a half to four feet from the tip of its short tail to the end of its nose. The general contour of the body is much like that of the beaver, with the skin lying in loose folds, so that when taken hold of in lifting it from the water it draws up like the hide on the nap of a puppy dog's neck. This skin is covered with the richest of all fine fur, a jet black, with silver-tipped hairs scattered here and there, and is highly prized by our ladies of fashion. The sea otter mother sleeps in the water on her back with her offspring clasped between her tiny forepaws. Frequent attempts have been made to rear and tame the young sea otters, as they are often captured alive, but, like some other specimens of wild animals, they seem to be so deeply imbued with the fear of man that they invariably perish by self-imposed starvation.—St. Louis Republic.

MARVELOUS RESULTS.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia, succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Farnham's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

NEWS FROM COPPERDOM.

Hibernian Rifles Will Hold Social at the Calumet Armory This Evening.

J. H. D. STEVENS WILL ADDRESS THE MINERS.

Congressman Stephenson and Judge McPeck Have Gone from the Copper Country to Ishpeming.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The only authorized collector of THE MINING JOURNAL in Houghton county is Mr. Horace J. Stevens. Receipts signed by other than him will not be recognized as valid from this date.

MINING JOURNAL CO. (LTD)
Marquette, Oct. 23, 1894.

CALUMET.

The Hibernian Rifles will give their social at the Armory this evening. Karkee's orchestra will furnish the music for dancing.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium is to be opened on Saturday. Further particulars can be learned of the secretary, Mr. David Paull, to whom application for cards admitting to the privileges of the gymnasium should also be addressed.

Mrs. H. B. Paull and daughter are visiting here and from Calumet will go to Duluth, where Mr. Paull has just taken a position with the Rockefeller syndicate mines.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lutey was buried yesterday morning. The death was from typhoid fever.

The funeral of Peter Nicholas, who died Sunday of consumption at Raymbaulttown was held Monday afternoon from the Finnish Evangelical Lutheran church.

Rev. Daniel Stalker went to Escanaba yesterday. Dr. Todd of that place will officiate at the regular services of the Calumet Presbyterian church on Sunday morning and evening next.

The German-American and Columbia bowling clubs will settle a feud of long standing at Joe Wilmer's alley this evening, when a game of nine-pins for the championship of the county will be bowled.

School Commissioner Bath gives notice to would-be pedagogues and pedagogues that a special examination for third grade certificates will be held at the high school building next Friday, beginning at 9 a. m. and lasting long enough to satisfy the applicants as well as the commissioner.

Mr. Joseph Rosimowicz and Miss Valeria Kiruszka, both of Calumet, were licensed to wed yesterday by the county clerk.

Mr. Chas. Taylor and Miss Lillian Wilson, both of Calumet and both of whom live here since childhood, will be married today.

While the county papers are raspingly countering each other's claims to the "largest circulation in this county," they should not lose sight of "American Utiset," published here by Fred Karinen, which runs off some six thousand papers every weekly issue or about as many as all the English papers combined.

The low rate of $5. for the round trip to Superior and return will take a number of Calumet people to the head of the lakes next Friday and Saturday. Tickets are good for return until Wednesday of next week.

HANCOCK.

Judge J. H. D. Stevens of Ironwood will speak at the Quincy, Atlantic mine and other outlying mining locations during the present week.

Carroll Bros. are overhauling the fire engine. The machine is used so rarely, as the gravity pressure on the hydrants is 100 pounds, that it is usually stored out of order when taken out for use at the lumber pile fire last week. A plug blew out, one plunger fell off, and the machine otherwise gave signs of general decrepitude. It was thought best by the authorities to take it into the machine shop for repairs before it fell to pieces like the deacon's one-hoss shay.

Wm. Kerregde does a considerable jobbing trade in stove pipes, fittings and other specialties which he manufactures himself. County dealers buy of him because he meets all outside prices and delivers goods more promptly than it would be possible to do were orders placed with Chicago or other wholesalers outside the district.

A pump set up in 1857 and running daily since then is still at work in the Quincy pump house, and apparently in as good condition as when new almost forty years ago.

Painters and carpenters have possession of the store room in the bank block which is to be occupied by the post-office on Nov. 1.

No one has yet been obtained to the identity of the parties who burglariously entered Seager's store Sunday night.

Mrs. Fremodig, wife of one of the pioneer residents of the Quincy location, was examined yesterday by Judge Dooling and found insane. She has been slightly demented some little time and latterly has grown so violent it became necessary to place her where she could do no damage.

The fare of $4.00 for the round trip to Duluth has been made by the South Shore from here. Tickets are good to go on Friday or Saturday and to return not later than Wednesday of next week, making the trip both ways on regular trains.

Judge McPeck and Congressman Stephenson left yesterday morning for Ishpeming, where they appeared in the evening, going from there to Ironwood where they will speak tonight.

W. E. Tyler, traveling passenger agent of the St. Paul system, was here yesterday. He still refuses to inform an expectant public just when the St. Paul is going to build into the copper country.

Architect D. Fred Charleton of Marquette is spending a few days in Houghton on professional business.

Miss Stanton of the Atlantic has issued invitations for an old-fashioned Halloween party at the Onigaming club house, three miles down the lake from town. As a real old-fashioned Halloween party is something to be long remembered the guests will be given a very enjoyable evening.

The Onigaming club house is to be battened up and gone over by the carpenter in order to put it in trim for winter use. The building was put up first for summer use only, but it is such a pleasant place and so convenient to town that it will be used the year around.

Caspar Brand is in Ishpeming attending the upper peninsula reunion of A. O. U. W. lodges, now in session there.

Three youngsters who stole a keg of beer from the Haas brewery and became disgracefully drunk were given a right in jail and were very repentant when arraigned yesterday. They promised faithfully never to do it again and will be given a chance to do better.

Governor John T. Rich will speak at the Armory tomorrow night.

Judge J. H. D. Stevens was a speaker at Monday evening's Republican rally. His speech was pronounced the best of the evening by those who heard it.

CHASSALL.

A social and dance will be given at the Chassall House this evening. Arrangements are being made for a jolly time and those who attend will undoubtedly enjoy themselves.

Transparent Bricks for Hotheouses.

Experiments with glass building bricks were begun in 1891 by M. Falconier, an architect of Lyons. These bricks are hollow, being blown like bottles, and are given forms—such as cubes, hexagons, etc.—that permit of ready laying. A bituminous cement, with a base of asphalt, is used with them. The bricks serve as double windows, giving protection against both cold and heat; they are good insulators of humidity and noise, and they lend themselves readily to the decoration of the buildings, either by their form or color. Many applications are foreseen. The bricks are neater than marble in meat markets and especially adapted for bath halls, hotheouses, hospitals, refrigerating establishments and buildings in which absence of windows would be an advantage. A hotheouse of glass bricks is of about ordinary cost, saves fuel, and resists hail.—Ash-ton Reporter.

An Exciting Prospect.

"I suppose you are looking forward to school with a great deal of interest," said Robie's uncle.

"Yes," was the reply. "It is going to be a great deal more interesting than it was last year."

"What makes you think so?"

"The first thing the new teacher did when the term was out was to join a gymnasium."—Indianapolis Journal.

PAPER-MAKING LORE.

The Egyptians Were the First to Discover the Great Art.

In all ages people have been compelled to communicate with each other. At a very early period of the world's existence some material on which to inscribe any information which they wished to convey to others was found necessary. Verbal messages, though often employed by ancient nations, as a means of communication, were not always possible to use. Secrets had often to be transmitted, and it was a severe trial of a bearer's fidelity to intrust him with private affairs. Many tales are related in history and in legends of trusty messengers who yielded up their lives rather than make known the secret, which no torture could drag from their lips. Still failures were not uncommon, and human ingenuity set to work to invent some material on which to inscribe signs which could be understood at a distance.

As people grew more civilized, a demand arose for some material on which records and histories might be written and handed down to posterity. Stones were probably the earliest form of writing material. Even at the present day in many parts of the world stones are found bearing inscriptions. It would seem that among the earlier races of mankind any records of great importance were generally engraved upon stone, as being the more likely to be permanent. The same feeling may be traced in the present generation, the inscriptions on tombs, foundation stones of public buildings and monuments.

Stones not being convenient for the transmission of long messages, though admirably adapted for receiving inscriptions intended to outlast dynasties, other materials were tried. Lead, brass and bricks were all found to resemble stone too much in its property of not being portable. Lead was found to be the best, as it could be beaten out into thin sheets and written upon with iron or steel instruments. Its weight, however, was against it. Tablets of wood, wax and ivory, skins of fishes, intestines of serpents, were all employed as substitutes, and were found to combine the requirements of portability, durability and facility of receiving writing.

The bark of trees when once tried was found to be superior to most of the other materials, and it was employed largely till the introduction of paper. There are but few kinds of plants or trees which have not been used in the manufacture of books and paper, and the various terms employed by the classic authors denote the several parts which were written on, such as biblos, codex, leber, tabula and others.

Of paper proper itself, it is perhaps needless to remind our readers that the name is derived from the papyrus, a reed growing on the banks of the Nile. Though Egypt is naturally supposed to be the source whence came the idea of making paper, evidence is not wanting in favor of the theory that the Chinese were acquainted with the art at a very early period. The Chinese process is more ingenious than that of the ancient Egyptians, being more a manufacture, properly speaking, than the other.

The Egyptian paper made from the papyrus was made by laying thin plates of tissue, taken from the middle of the paperrush, side by side, but close together, on a hard, smooth table; other pieces were then laid across the first at right angles; the whole was moistened with the water of the Nile, which was supposed to have some agglutinating property (though this probably resided in the plant itself), and pressure was then applied for a certain number of hours. Thus, a sheet of paper was formed which required no other finishing than rubbing and polishing with a smooth stone, or with a solid glass hemisphere, and drying in the sun.

This simple process was rather a preparation of a natural paper than a manufacture. The process adopted by the Chinese comes, as already remarked, more legitimately under that head.

The small branches of a tree resembling a mulberry tree are cut by them in lengths of about three feet, and boiled in an alkaline lye, for the sake of loosening the inner rind or bark, which is then peeled off and dried for use. When a sufficient quantity of bark has been thus laid up, it is again softened in water for three or four days, and the outer parts are scraped off as useless; the rest is boiled in clear lye, which is kept strongly agitated all the time, until the bark has become tender and separated into distinct fibers. It is then placed in a pan or sieve and washed in a running stream, being at the same time worked with the hands until it becomes a delicate and soft pulp.

For the finer sorts of paper, the pulp receives a second washing in a linen bag. It is then spread out on a smooth table and beaten with a wooden mallet until it is extremely fine. So far the manufacture is very much like what is carried on by the paper-makers of the present day, they having the advantage of better materials than the bark of trees, and machinery now performs all the laborious washing and pulping processes.

The ingenuity of the Chinese in inventing so complicated a process is far superior to that of the Egyptians. The process related above of making paper from the papyrus is so simple and obvious that the inventor most probably made as good paper by his method as any succeeding workman, the simplicity of the process hardly permitting of further improvements beyond such as arise from practice. Far otherwise was the Chinese; their manufactures must have been the growth of years, each succeeding generation improving upon the crude attempts of their predecessors until the ingenious process used was complete. This probably made the invention of paper-making in its completed form in China later than its Egyptian rival, though the first link in the chain of invention may have been prior to the other.—Paper-Makers Journal.

THERE is but one way in the world to be sure of having the best paint, and that is to use only a well-established brand of strictly pure white lead, pure linseed oil, and pure colors.

The following brands are standard, "Old Dutch" process, and are always absolutely Strictly Pure White Lead

"Anchor," "Merley," "Zerkstein," "Shipman," "Armstrong & McKelvy," "Southern," "Bever-German," "Red Seal," "Davis-Chambers," "Collier," "Fahnestock."

If you want colored paint, tint any of the above strictly pure leads with National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in one-pound cans, each can being sufficient to tint 35 pounds of Strictly Pure White Lead the desired shade; they are in some ready-mixed paints, but a combination of perfectly pure colors in the handiest form to tint Strictly Pure White Lead.

Dear Sir:—I see you have asked the chairman of the Populist county committee to withdraw your name as a candidate for circuit court commissioner from the Populist ticket.

For the same reason which you give for withdrawing, viz.: "That we are fast approaching European conditions," I desire my name as a candidate for the same office to remain on the ticket as an evidence that I am a Populist, and consequently in favor of the rights of labor.

A man went into the cafe of a Broadway hotel the other day and sat down on a stool in front of the lunch counter.

He had been in many of the eating-houses, or "beaneries," in the Boverly and Park row, and thought he was familiar with the various terms which waiters employ when repeating a customer's order.

He finished his luncheon he told the waiter he would like a meringue glace by way of dessert.

"My dear fellow-men," said the man with the broken nose, as the Buffalo drummer finished his story.

"Are the two morals connected?" asked the man with the St. Louis cast of countenance.

"Intimately so. Let us go back fifteen years. On a certain July day an eminent citizen about my size might have been seen wending his way into a circus in Cincinnati.

"Well, three years later I went into Forepaugh's show in Indianapolis. That elephant had been sold to him and was there in the troop, though of course I didn't know it.

"Did you ever see him again?" "I ran across that show a dozen times in the next three years, but I kept away from the elephants. I met an old elephant trainer who told me that the beast would never forget the trick, and I could never remember the 'swish' of that trunk as he swiped at me without feeling cold all over.

RAIDED BY ROBBERS.

Gust Sjolander's Store Was Entered and About Ten Dollars Taken.

THIEVES GAINED ENTRANCE WITH FALSE KEY.

Mrs. Peltala Collected Part of Her Bill by Impounding an Eloping Boarder's Ticket.

WERE AFTER CASH ONLY.

The bazaar of Gust Sjolander, who is doing business in August W. Lindholm's old stand in the Mildon block, was entered on Monday night and about $10 in small change which had been left in the drawer was stolen. The thief gained access to the place through the front door, the lock of which he evidently had a key to fit as the door was opened without force. During the night as Deputy Marshal Nolan was passing the place he noticed that the incandescent lights, which are invariably left burning during the night, were out. He then tried the door and found it unlocked. Having no means of barring the door the officer kept his eye on the place during the remainder of the night.

Yesterday morning when Mr. Sjolander came down he went through his stock as thoroughly as possible and found that the money was the only thing missing. The thief was evidently committed by some one who is familiar with the place and who knew that the proprietor was in the habit of leaving his change in the drawer over night. Hereafter all change, Mr. Sjolander says, will be transferred to the safe among the closing hour arrives. It is already a well-known fact that there are crooks in Ishpeming who are provided with keys of various kinds as a great many stores have been entered in a similar way during the past year. Last winter one store alone was entered two or three different times, when finally the proprietor put a couple of his clerks to sleep there, since when no attempt to burglarize it has been made. The stores most generally entered are those on the back streets where there is less traffic than on the more prominent thoroughfares, either by the officers or citizens, during the night.

In almost every case where the stores have been entered within the past year the intruders were after money, as the stocks were seldom disturbed. It is quite certain that the thefts are being committed by local amateurs who are familiar with the surroundings of every place they attempt their dirty work. The police officers have certain parties suspected of carrying keys and it is possible that sooner or later they will succeed in running the guilty parties down. Several of the business men whose places have been entered here put a couple of their clerks to sleep there, since when no attempt to burglarize it has been made. The stores most generally entered are those on the back streets where there is less traffic than on the more prominent thoroughfares, either by the officers or citizens, during the night.

She Swiped the Ticket.

Those who stood on the South Shore platform waiting for the trains from the east and west to arrive yesterday morning were somewhat amused at a little incident which occurred there. A Finlander, who has been boarding with Mrs. Peltala, attempted to get away on the train bound for the copper country without paying his board. His landlady, however, suspected him of trying to skip out so she followed him to the depot and dunned him for the amount due her. The fellow refused to pay the bill and after considerable talk regarding the matter the woman lost her temper and then her tongue started to wag and the way she waded into the rascal was amusing to ever those who did not understand a word she uttered. Her talk, however, had very little effect on the fellow as he was just as much chin as he received. A few minutes before the train pulled in he stepped into the depot to buy a ticket. Mrs. Peltala followed him and when the ticket agent threw out the ticket she grabbed it—also as did the man—and tore it in two, each getting half of it. The fellow was then in a boat as he knew the portion of the ticket he held would not be taken by the conductor. Another talking match ensued and before the train pulled out the scoundrel who tried so hard to defraud the poor woman, paid her a part of the bill and was given the other half of the ticket, thus enabling him to go on his way.

Spent Yesterday Here.

Hon. S. M. Stephenson, Republican candidate for congress in this district, Hon. J. L. McPeck of Charlotte, who is delivering speeches throughout the district in the interest of Mr. Stephenson and the Republican party, and J. M. Groom of Menominee, arrived in the city yesterday noon and spent the remainder of the day and evening here. They departed for points in the western part of the district on the South Shore train at 11:35 last night. They will return to this section within a week or ten days, Mr. McPeck being booked for a speech here.

A Church Festival.

This is the only floor concern in this county, using a car of its own, with a corps of bill posters, at present on the road. This method of advertising is very expensive, but with the aid of the newspapers and the general good quality of the flour Mr. Forbes says it pays. The "Ceresota" brand is handled in this city by all the leading merchants, who claim that it is fast becoming a household favorite.

BURNING BAD MONEY.

Uncle Sam's Crematory for Destroying the "Queer."

A fortune in counterfeit cash, which has been floating around the country in the arteries of trade and commerce as good money, and finally gathered in by the watchful servants of the secret service, was destroyed by the treasury department in Washington the other day. It consisted of a lump sum of about fifty thousand dollars in bills of all denominations, from ten-cent shillings, for which there is a considerable demand at present in certain sections of the land, up to twenty-dollar and one hundred-dollar bills. This sum, which would have been sufficient to pay the president's salary for a year if it had been genuine, was supplemented by a large number of silk and satin handbags stripped from the most fashionable chapeaux of the season, and condemned because of representations of certain coins which they bore.

The work was accomplished under the supervision of the three trusty employees of the treasury, of which Mr. Lee W. Funk is chairman and Dr. George B. Young and Mr. S. J. Millard the two remaining members. For several days this committee has been engaged in taking an inventory of counterfeit materials of every description that have been collected during the last eighteen months. They are required to certify that every shred of these are safely and surely destroyed.

The money was taken from under the locks and keys of the secret service officials, where it had been carefully treasured and treated exactly as if it had been worn-out or mutilated currency. It was wrapped in large packages, just as it had been forwarded to Washington by express from the different points where it was found, and first placed under a paper cutter in the basement, where the old bills are punched after retirement from circulation. The big drawerful of over a basketful, which was carefully carried down the stairs by a laborer, who was enjoined to look out lest the bottom should fall out and watched by the committee of three so that no one could extract a number of bills in any way—for it was said that they would make excellent money with which to play the races—was chopped up fine enough for scent for a hare and hounds race. The pieces were then gathered again into a box and placed in the incinerator, where it was churned into pulp, to be sold to paper makers or perhaps to the manufacturers of million dollar Washington monuments.

There were several interesting specimens of false currency in the big collection. One of these was the remnants of a valuable collection of counterfeit notes which was confiscated some time ago by secret service detectives from a gold-bug bank in the effete east. This financial institution did not have the notes in its possession with no evil intention, but as specimens from which its officials could more easily detect questionable paper that might be presented over its counter. The collection was preserved in a large book, to the pages of which the notes were pasted. These were of all denominations and issues, and could have been gathered only by several years of watchfulness. The covers of the book were stripped off by the committee, and its contents ruthlessly placed under the blade.

In this batch of counterfeits which was thus guillotined was also a very beautiful collection of United States bonds of several denominations and issues. They were printed from the government plates by special permission some time ago, and were as perfect specimens of the engravers' art as the bureau of money making on Fourteenth street could easily produce. The colors were as exquisite in variety and tone as spangled new government bills, and they ranged in the dollar mark on their margins from twenty-five dollars up to ten thousand dollars. It was said that these were made as samples for a Boston publisher, who desired some years ago to print a book for the instruction and guidance of bankers, and these bonds, which were fac-similes of the genuine ones, were intended and some were actually used as plates for this book. A recent law stringently forbidding all kinds of representations of government currency and other valuable government paper brought these to the sale, and those which could be obtained were confiscated. There are several copies, it is understood, in the possession of private bankers throughout the country, who will probably not be molested.

Along with the counterfeit money there was a large mass of rubbish, which the committee consigned to the furnace with the same care and circumspection which marked their disposal of the more dangerous articles. Some of these were rare mementos of the counterfeiter's trade, including pocket-books and memoranda which had been stripped from his person when the detectives fell upon him and his unholly calling. Several old-fashioned leather wallets, such as farmers use, and which were probably captured chock-full of bad money, graced the collection and were incinerated. The green-goods profession was also represented, for out of the boxes full of confiscated materials were several boodle packages, undoubtedly intended for some innocent "gray" whom a New York or Chicago "steerer" had led into the mazes. —Washington Post.

LOCAL LACONICS. YEARS BROUGHT NO CHANGE. He Likes Detroit Because He Finds Things Just the Same.

"I haven't bin in this town before in five years," said a broad-backed young man as he sauntered up to a policeman on Jefferson avenue the other afternoon. "No?" queried the officer, as he looked the stranger over and concluded that he was going west in search of a job.

"Yes, it does. You saw the town, did you?" "Not all of it. I walked up this street, feelin' thirsty, and decided to take whisky straight. Went into a place up here and took one. Feller in there began to blow how fur he could spit and hit a cent. That's my best hold, you know, and I bet him fifty cents and beat him. Then he picked a fuss and three fellers jumped on me, and I had an awful time."

"Looks that way, but I hope you'll keep clear of a row." "Yes, I'll try. Wonder if I kin find the same place again?" "The officer looked after him as he moved off up the street, but it was not his business to interfere, and something else soon demanded his attention.

"Well, you found the place, I see?" "Yesh—found 'er shame place," thickly replied the stranger—"found 'er very shame place." "And was there a spitting man there, same as five years ago?" "Yesh, just 'er shame. Shame place—shame man—same bet of fifty cents. No change 'tall in five long years."

"Did you win as before?" "Yesh; beat 'er feller all holler on 'er spit." "And did the same three men pitch on to you again?" "Yesh, shame three men. Pitched right on jusser shame and almost killed me and throwed me out of doors. Shame place—shame men—shame everything. Shay, officer!" "Well?" "Goin' to run me in?" "No, I guess not. You are pretty drunk, but I guess you can get down to the depot and make your train."

"That's jess what man said to me five years ago! Shay, officer?" "Well?" "Five years—five long years—shame town—shame whisky—shame saloon—shame men—no change. That's what 'er calls a co-co-co." "Coincidence," finished the officer. "Yesh—quincidence—that's it. Good-by."

"Goin'?" "Yesh—goin', but I'm comin' back ag'in. He back jess five years from to-day. Shall look fr you right on this corner. "EUPHONIOUS OTCHIPPEW."

Sought Poetic and Pretty Indian Name for His Summer Cottage.

FATHER TERHORST KINDLY SUPPLIED THE WANT.

Now the Owner Will Have to Build an Addition to Hold the Name.

AN EXPANSIBLE LANGUAGE.

If you see a certain well-known Marquette man going about with his jaw in a sling no inquiries as to the why and wherefore are necessary. It can be put down that the unfortunate has been struggling with the Chippewa language and trying to pronounce the name suggested to him in response to an inquiry which he had addressed to an expert in that tongue.

This gentleman has acquired a summer cottage very beautifully located on the shores of Lake Superior and commanding a fine view of the great unsalted sea. In a poetic hour the idea occurred to him that it would be quite a nice thing to give the house an Indian name which might be printed on his private stationery and which would express the facts as to its fine scenic location. He learned that Father Terhorst, in charge of the Catholic mission near Baraga, was expert in the Chippewa tongue and could doubtless supply him with a translation of any English name he might suggest that would be euphonious and distinctive. He wrote to Father Terhorst, setting forth his desire, and the latter promptly replied as follows:

CATHOLIC MISSION, Oct. 23, 1894.
DEAR SIR.—Yours of the 15th last came to hand. In the Otchippe (commonly called "Chippewa") language there is no word conveying the idea "Lake View." In such cases the Indians coin new words—that is to say, their language expands with their ideas. For example, when they first saw a locomotive they had no name for such a monster. They were, however, not long in coining one. They called it "Ishkote-odaban"—"a sleigh drawn by fire." In this instance, however, the name does not convey the whole idea. They should have called it, "Ishkote-itibidaban," for they call a single sleigh "Odaban," while a wagon on wheels is called "Itibidaban." But such as the word is it sufficiently serves the purpose.

Now I will coin you a word which will convey the idea "Lake View." I fear, however, that you will be amazed at its size. "Lake View" means a place from which the lake is visible. Lake is called in Otchippe "Sagagan." The place from which the lake is plainly seen is called "Wendji-debabaminagwad-sagaigan."

So the word you ask for is "Wendji-debabaminagwad-sagaigan"—all to be expressed as one word. If you want to say in Otchippe "grand view of the lake," a few more syllables will have to be added, and it will read thus: "Wendji-kitchi-mishisha-debabaminagwad-sagaigan"—all one word—"a place from which a grand view of the lake may be had," or "grand lake view."

This word contains no less than seventeen syllables. This gives you an idea of the expansibility of the Otchippe language.

Yours very truly,
G. TERHORST.

P. S.—This word with seventeen syllables is not the end of possibilities in the Otchippe language.

The seeker after a poetic and euphonious Indian name for his lakeside cottage read the good Father's letter through once, gasped and held his jaw in place. He had unconsciously tried to pronounce the name suggested. Then he called his typewriter and said faintly:

"Just write that out please. I would like to see how it looks in print. If it breaks the machine I will get you a new one."

The type writer obeyed. It did not break the machine and here is how the two names looked:

WENDJIDEBABAMINAGWADSAGAIGAN.

WENDJIKITCHIMISHISHADEBABAMINAGWADSAGAIGAN.

The Marquette man gazed on the result in awe-struck admiration. Then he dictated a letter to Father Terhorst in which, after thanking him heartily for the trouble he had taken, he said:

"Permit me to say in conclusion that in my humble opinion, Reverend Father, you ought to be a bishop at least. Any man who has the patience to acquire such a language as the specimens you have sent me show the Otchippe to be must possess many of the virtues which make him worthy of the highest honors the church can bestow."

The Marquette seeker after a poetic and euphonious Indian name—with the accent on the euphonious—says he will not attempt to use those which Father Terhorst has so kindly supplied him. He fears to try to pronounce them because he says he is not prepared to die just yet. He will have them suitably engrossed and framed and will point them out to visitors with the careless remark:

"Oh, by the way; that's the name of this place, you know. If you will pronounce it you can have the house."

He hopes in this way to get even with certain dear, detested friends who may be tempted to take up his offer. But he confesses also to a certain wild and fearful desire to pronounce these awful words himself. If he does you will see him with his jaw in a sling and will know the reason.

Found Dead in the Woods.

Word was received from Michigamme yesterday that Joseph Landry, an old French woodsman, had been found dead in the forest by men from that place who were out looking for him. He was found lying on his face lengthwise of a log and had evidently perished of exhaustion and starvation. He was last seen alive Sept. 30 by G. C. Scranton of Sault Ste. Marie. Mr. Scranton, C. S. Beadle and J. B. Eddy, all of the Soo, went into the woods of Baraga county the latter part of September to look over some lands and also for a little shooting. When they left the railroad they engaged Landry to help carry their supplies. The trip was accomplished without accident, the party striking their camp-grounds the evening of Sept. 30.

The next morning Landry started for home. Mr. Scranton asked him if he could find the way out all right and received an affirmative answer, but to make certain accompanied him to where the trees along the route had been blazed, so there could be no mistake, and then left him to reach the railroad. On reaching the home of the Frenchman some twelve days later the party was surprised to learn that Landry had not been heard of or seen since he had left with them on their going into the woods, and it had to be admitted that he had lost his way and was still in the bush. He had asked Scranton if by crossing a bluff he could save a part of the distance, but was told he had better keep the road they had come over. This advice he probably disregarded with the result that he lost his bearings and was unable to find his way back to civilization.

When Mr. Scranton was here Sunday and Monday he made inquiries about Landry, but nothing had then been heard of him. As he had been out since Oct. 1 there was of course little hope of finding him alive and the worst fears were verified by the discovery of his corpse yesterday.

Calhoun Company Comies.

The management of the Marquette Opera House has secured the Calhoun company for two performances of comic opera on Nov. 17, matinee and evening. Czibulka's "Amorita" and Milloeker's "Black Hussar" will be presented. The latter is one of the prettiest and most tuneful comic operas ever written and "Amorita" has also been received with much favor. It is not believed that either has been given in this city before.

The Calhoun company has been seen here before and made an excellent impression. It is now stronger than ever and is admitted to be one of the best organizations of the kind before the public. The principals and chorus have been selected with a view to artistic lyrical unity. The operas will be superbly mounted and staged. The costumes have been prepared from the original plates made by Hamilton Bell and Dazian of New York at an expense of over ten thousand dollars for each opera and in richness of material, beauty of design and harmony of color have never been surpassed. A well balanced and effective orchestra is carried, as are the company's calcium and electric light effects. The appearance of such an organization will unquestionably prove the musical event of the season.

The Duluth Excursion.

The Duluth business men are making extensive preparations to entertain the visitors from this peninsula who may take advantage of the South Shore road's very low rate to that city and the Superiors this week. Tickets will be on sale Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26 and 27 and will be good to return until Oct. 31. This means that the tickets will be accepted on trains leaving Duluth up to midnight of Oct. 31, so that five full days are given for travel back and forth and for seeing the sights at the head of the lake.

An additional attraction for this excursion is the fact that two very good theatrical companies will be playing in Duluth on the dates named. "Aladdin Jr.," the famous Chicago Opera House extravaganza will be seen at one of the leading theatres and Alexander Salvini in "The Three Guardsmen" and "Ray Blas" at the other. Thus the visitors can take their choice of one of the most gorgeous spectacular productions now before the public and one of the best companies in romantic and heroic melodrama.

A Play With a Moral.

Contrary to all reports and expectations the musical farce "They're After Me" has a moral, although it is claimed to be constructed for laughing purposes only. The play and plot all lead up to the moral and many have been moved to tears as the play progressed. The plot is prettily interwoven throughout the action of the play, so those who seek for something heavier than light farce need not feel at all uneasy. The moral is defined as "laugh and grow fat," as a laugh is worth a thousand groans in any market. This moral will be illustrated at the opera house tomorrow evening by Barsie's comedians and popular prices will prevail.

Republican Rally Postponed.

Owing to the illness of Congressman Henderson of Illinois he is unable to keep his engagement to speak here this evening and the meeting has, in consequence, been postponed. Mr. Henderson is expected here later to address the people on the issues of the present campaign as viewed from the Republican standpoint.

Theron B. Keator of Indiana, better known as "the tramp printer" orator, is billed to speak here at a Republican rally to be held at the Casino rink on the evening of Oct. 31. He is known as an eloquent speaker and will doubtless draw a good house.

Loyal Temperance Legion.

Mrs. McCormick has resigned as leader of this society and Mrs. Pearce has been appointed by the local branch of the W. C. T. U. in her place. The Temperance Legion is a juvenile adjunct of the W. C. T. U. and the latter society exercises a sort of general supervision and control over it. At the last meeting of the Legion the following officers were elected: President, Miss Ella Maher; secretary, Alfred York; treasurer, Paul Harris. Secretary Alfred York left yesterday for Crystal Falls as delegate to the upper peninsula convention of the society, which meets in that place today.
