ARE AFTER BOTH HOUSES.

Next United States Senate Will Contain More Republicans Than Democrats.

THE POPULISTS WILL HOLD THE BALANCE OF POWER.

Chairman Babcock of Republican Congressional Committee Claims the House by a Large Majority.

LATER RETURNS FROM STATE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Reports received up to 9 o'clock tonight indicate that the next senate will have forty Democrats, forty-one Republicans and six Populists, while the attitude of the successor to Senator Harris of Tennessee is still in doubt. In this classification Senators Stewart and Jones of Nevada, who were elected by the Republicans but announced their separation from the party, and Governor Tillman, who will doubtless be elected by the so-called Independent Democrats of the South Carolina legislature, is placed in the Populist column. Tillman will probably vote with the Democrats on organization and Stewart and Jones of Nevada and Peffer with the Republicans. This would throw the balance of power into the hands of the Populists.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—When Chairman Babcock of the Republican Congressional committee left the Republican headquarters tonight he said the reports received during the day gave the Republicans 230 out of 356 members of the house beyond peradventure while there is a possibility of securing 27 additional members.

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS IN FULL CONTROL OF BOTH HOUSES.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Practically complete returns from the state indicate that the Republicans will have a majority of thirty-eight on joint ballot in the next Illinois legislature. In the senate there are seventeen Democrats and thirty-four Republicans. In the house eighty-seven Republicans, sixty-five Democrats and one Populist.

Following is the Illinois delegation in the next congress: First district, J. Frank Adrich (Rep.); Second, William Lorimer (Rep.); Third, Hugh R. Woodman (Rep.); Fourth, Charles W. Beckman (Rep.); Fifth, George E. White (Rep.); Sixth, Edward D. Cooke (Rep.); Seventh, George E. Pass (Rep.); Eighth, Albert J. Hopkins (Rep.); Ninth, Robert R. Hitt (Rep.); Tenth, Philip S. Post (Rep.); Eleventh, Walter Reeves (Rep.); Twelfth, Joseph G. Cannon (Rep.); Thirteenth, Vespasian Warner (Rep.); Fourteenth, J. V. Graff (Rep.); Fifteenth, B. F. Marsh (Rep.); Sixteenth, Finis Dowling (Dem.); Seventeenth, James A. Connolly (Rep.); Eighteenth, Frederick Remann (Rep.); Nineteenth, Benson Wood (Rep.); Twentieth, Orlando Burrell (Rep.); Twenty-first, Evert J. Murphy (Rep.); Twenty-second, Geo. W. Smith (Rep.).

SOLID DELEGATION FROM IOWA.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 7.—Later election returns from Iowa more than kept up with the Republican record. At midnight the Republican plurality in the state ticket promises to be 90,000. The combined Prohibition and Populist vote will not exceed 40,000 which will leave from 40,000 to 50,000 majority for the Republicans.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 7.—Following is the Iowa delegation: First district, S. M. Clark (Rep.); Second, G. W. Curtis (Rep.); Third, David B. Henderson (Rep.); Fourth, Thomas Updegraff (Rep.); Fifth, Robert C. Consins (Rep.); Sixth, John E. Lacey (Rep.); Seventh, John A. J. Hull (Rep.); Eighth, William Eburn (Rep.); Ninth, L. H. Hager (Rep.); Tenth, J. P. Dolliver (Rep.); Eleventh, George D. Perkins (Rep.).

CINCINNATI, Nov. 7.—The returns indicate that the Republican plurality for secretary of state will exceed 150,000. The present delegation in congress consists of eleven Democrats and ten Republicans. The newly elected delegation consists of nineteen Republicans and two Democrats.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Indiana elects a Republican delegation to congress.

WILSON IS DEFEATED.

West Virginia Will Return a Republican Senator.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 7.—The Republican state committee makes the following statement tonight: Governor (Rep.) First district, elected to congress by 4,343 majority. Dayton, Second district, over Wilson 2,200 majority. Huling (Rep.) Third district, 3,500 majority. Miller (Rep.) Fourth district, 2,000 majority. This makes the state Republican on the popular vote of upwards of 3,000. Both branches of the legislature are Republican by a majority of twenty-seven insuring the election of a Republican to succeed senator Camden in the United States senate.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 7.—The congressional delegation in the Fifty-fourth congress from Kentucky will be five Democrats and six Republicans. The Seventh district is still in doubt though later returns indicate that Owens will have a small majority.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 7.—The congressional delegation from Virginia according to the latest returns consists of two Republicans and eight Democrats.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 7.—Returns show that seventy-six Democrats are elected to the legislature with several counties to hear from. This gives the Democrats control in both houses and ensures the election of a United States senator. Congressman Enloe is defeated on the face of the returns in the Eighth district.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 7.—Late returns increase the majority for Peter Turney (Dem) for governor by about 1,000. This will probably increase his plurality in the state to 4,000.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—The latest returns show that the Maryland congressional delegation is to be made up of four Democrats and three Republicans.

WAS NOT OVER ESTIMATED.

Morton Wins by Over Hundred and Fifty Thousand Plurality.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The total correct vote for governor in New York state, Sullivan county out, stands as follows: Hill 514,079, Morton 667,419, Wheeler 27,105. Total 1,108,600. Morton's plurality is 153,346 and his majority 126,338. Returns from all except a very few missing election districts show an apparent plurality in New York city for consolidation, or greater New York, while the rapid transit measure shows an apparent plurality of 83,400. The revised total vote for governor in New York city gives Hill a plurality of 2,907.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Returns received by the Associated Press indicate that the Republicans have elected twenty-eight out of thirty congressmen in the state. E. Hardman (Dem.) was elected in the Ninth district by less than 2,000 majority. The result in the Eighth district is yet in doubt although on the face of the unofficial returns Hart (Dem.) defeated Kirkpatrick (Rep.) by a very small majority.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 7.—The legislature is twenty-eight Republican majority on joint ballot. The Republicans elect congressmen in all except the Seventh district.

BOSTON, Nov. 7.—All New England returns show great Republican gains.

THEY OWN THE STATE.

Wisconsin Has Straight Republican Delegation in Congress.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 7.—Complete returns from sixty-five of seventy counties in the state give a Republican plurality of 54,620. This will be increased by the returns to between 56,000 and 60,000. The Republicans control the senate by seven majority, electing twenty senators out of twenty-four and having four hold-overs out of thirteen. The assembly is Republican by thirty-five majority. The ten congressmen are all Republicans, a gain of six.

The congressional delegation from Wisconsin is: First district, U. A. Cooper (Rep.); Second, Edward Sauerhering (Rep.); Third, J. A. Babcock (Rep.); Fourth, Theobald O'Brien (Pop.); Fifth, S. S. Barney (Rep.); Sixth, S. A. Cook (Rep.); Seventh, Michael Griffin (Rep.); Eighth, E. S. Minor (Rep.); Ninth, Alexander Stewart (Rep.); Tenth, J. J. Jenkins (Rep.).

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8, 2 a. m.—Minnesota sends a solid Republican delegation to Washington.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Minnesota elects six Republican congressmen with the result in the Third district in doubt. The legislature is heavily Republican sending a Republican senator to succeed Washburn. The city and county tickets are also elected.

SIoux CITY, Ia., Nov. 7.—Returns from South Dakota tonight show that the Populists are sure of only 21 of 126 members of the legislature. All the returns show Republican gains. Governor Sheldon places the plurality at 18,000 against 10,000 in 1892.

YAMKTON, S. D., Nov. 7.—The following is the congressional delegation from South Dakota: First, John A. Pickler (Rep.); Second, R. J. Gamble (Rep.).

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Nov. 7.—It is estimated the state has given the Republican ticket from five to ten thousand majority.

KANSAS AGAIN REPUBLICAN.

Governor Lewelling Inclined to Dispute the Returns.

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 7.—The Republicans carried Kansas by a plurality of possibly 30,000 and will have a slight majority over all. Republican Chairman Leland claims the election of congressmen in seven districts. Governor Lewelling said: "I do not concede the defeat of the Populist ticket. Only cities and towns and precincts have been heard from and the country can easily overturn the showing there. I do not, however, look for more than 3,000 plurality for either Republicans or Populists and only an official count can decide the result. The Democrats evidently aided the Republicans. Women suffrage hurt the Populist ticket."

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 7.—Republicans will elect ninety representatives out of a possible 125, giving them a majority of 45 on the joint ballot.

FUSION GOVERNOR GETS IN.

OMAHA, Nov. 7.—Republican state central committee concedes Holcomb, fusionist, elected for governor by 2,000 plurality. Returns on the legislature are quite incomplete, but there is little doubt the Republicans will control the vote on a joint ballot, standing: Republican 96; Fusion 64. The congressional delegation is completely Republican.

DEMOCRATS ARE TO BLAME.

Governor Waite Says Democrats Voted the Republican Ticket.

DENVER, Nov. 7.—Governor Waite conceded the defeat of his party early today. "To my mind," he said, "it proves conclusively that money dominated the election from beginning to end and the Democratic party is most responsible for the fact that they voted the Republican ticket instead of their own. It proves to me there is absolutely no difference in the financial policy of the Democratic and Republican parties. Their purpose was to perpetuate and continue the gold standard for which Wall street is contending so earnestly."

GUTHRIE, O. T., Nov. 7.—Returns from the major portion of the territory make it positive that Flynn, Republican delegate to congress, will have fully 5,000 majority.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 7.—Returns indicate the re-election of T. B. Catron, Republican for delegate.

ONE LONELY DEMOCRAT.

The Next Legislature of Michigan Will Contain but One Poor Democrat.

SENATE WILL BE ENTIRELY REPUBLICAN.

Upper Peninsula Congressional District Gives Over Ten Thousand Plurality for Republican Ticket.

MICHIGAN LEADS PROCESSION.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—The latest returns show that of the thirty-two senators elected yesterday every one was Republican. Of the 100 members of the house all are Republicans save one, John Donovan of the Bay county district. Many districts which have not returned Republican legislators for a quarter of a century yesterday elected Republicans.

The Republicans carry every congressional district in the state as follows: First district, J. B. Corliss; Second, George Spaulding; Third, J. C. Burrows; Fourth, H. F. Thomas; Fifth, W. A. Smith; Sixth, D. D. Aitken; Seventh, H. G. Snover; Eighth, W. S. Linton; Ninth, R. P. Bishop; Tenth, R. O. Crump; Eleventh, John Avery; Twelfth, S. M. Stephenson.

BARAGA COUNTY.

L'ANSE, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Official returns from all precincts in Baraga county give Fisher, 402; Rich, 454; Culver, 464; Stephenson, 408; Norton, 385; Sheldon, 475 and same for Republican representative. For the county offices Hild, Democrat, for sheriff has 34 majority; Beeher, Republican, clerk, 32 majority; Wilcox, Republican, treasurer, 45 majority; Haviland, Republican, prosecuting attorney, 10 majority; Otto Beeher is the first Republican clerk ever elected in Baraga county.

LUCE COUNTY.

NEWBERRY, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Luce county gives Rich for governor 150 majority; Stephenson for congress 145 majority; Mason, state senator, 140 majority; Sherwood, legislature, 140 majority; Louie, sheriff, 100 majority. This is a conservative estimate; the full returns are not obtainable yet.

ONTONAGON COUNTY.

ONTONAGON, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The entire Republican ticket is elected. Rich's majority in the county will be 150.

DELTA COUNTY.

GLADSTONE, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The vote in this city was as follows: For governor, Rich (Rep.) 277; Fisher (Dem.) 60; Nicholas (Pop.) 79; congressman, Stephenson (Rep.) 278; Culver (Dem.) 63; Anderson (Pop.) 79; senator Thirtieth district, Mason (Rep.) 304; McKenna (Dem.) 119; representative, Fuller (Rep.) 272; Mills (Pop.) 151. The entire Republican county ticket was given a strong majority and returns coming in from the outlying districts indicate that there is a Republican sweep and that Mason and Fuller for senator and representative are elected by large majorities.

GOEGEBIC COUNTY.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—The Republican county ticket is elected in full by a majority over all of 1,000 and upwards. For governor exceeding the townships of Ironwood, Earlesoo and Watersmeet, which will increase the Republican majority by about 100, the vote is Rich, 1,690; Fisher, 363; Nichols, 418. For congress, Stephenson, 1,633; Culver, 417; Anderson, 397. For state senator, Sheldon has 1,685; Norton, 351; Hagen, 386. For representative, Chamberlain, 1,859; Swanson, 674.

BESSEMER, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]

Bessemer gives Rich for governor 201 majority; Stephenson for congress 239 majority; Sheldon for state senate 262 majority; Chamberlain for representative 288 majority; Kallander for sheriff 192 majority.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]

Ironwood gives Rich for governor 569 majority; Stephenson for congress 609 majority; Sheldon for state senate 698 majority; Chamberlain for representative 874 majority; Kallander for sheriff 550 majority.

WAKEFIELD, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]

Wakefield gives Rich for governor 70 majority; Stephenson for congress 74 majority; Sheldon for state senate 70 majority; Chamberlain for legislature 70 majority; Kallander for sheriff 65 majority.

DICKINSON COUNTY.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Dickinson county with seven precincts to hear from gives Rich (Rep) for governor 846 majority; his total majority will be over 1,500. This is a Republican gain of over 900. Stephenson has a majority of between 1,000 and 1,200. The entire Republican ticket is elected by majorities ranging from 500 to 1,500.

IS LYING IN STATE.

Remains of Late Czar Conveyed to Byzantine Church.

LIVADIA, Nov. 7.—A massive, gilded coffin containing the remains of Czar Alexander III was removed to Byzantine church yesterday evening. There the body of the late czar will lie in state until tomorrow. A guard of honor with draped colors is stationed in front of the church.

J. W. McMAHON IS DEAD.

Leading Lawyer of Sault Ste. Marie Passes Away.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—J. W. McMahon, one of the leading lawyers of the upper peninsula, died today at 3 o'clock. His death will be a great loss to the local Republican party and to the city generally.

MARQUETTE, MICH., NOVEMBER 8.

Entered as mailmatter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

Peck's Bad Boy will stay at home nights and look after his badly disfigured Pa.

The tribe of Levi seems to have been altogether too numerous to suit the fancy of the sons of David.

Returns so far received indicate that the Democrats have failed to carry a single county in the upper peninsula.

It is understood that Bro. Dana of the New York Sun is about to equip an Arctic expedition to search for the remains of David B. Hill.

TAMMANY should appeal to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to make that horrid Republican elephant quit promenading over the flattened remains of its poor old tiger.

ADVICES from Duluth say that Charley Towne has won his seat in congress by fully 10,000 plurality. The populists of that region thought they were going to play horse with him but he seems to have performed about all the athletic exercise himself. Mr. Towne is an exceptionally able young man whose many friends in this section join THE MINING JOURNAL in rejoicing at his success. One of the things that has made Duluth great is the fact that young men have a chance there.

The whirligig of time bring its revenges. As governor of New York David B. Hill vetoed two Australian ballot acts and insisted on retaining the separate voting paper for each political organization. This year parties were more numerous than usual and there were half a dozen other matters to be voted on. As a result the voter in New York had to carry into the booth with him no less than twenty-one separate and distinct pieces of paper, all of which he had to account for whether he used them or not. The bewildering effect upon the Tammany "boys" and the Hill heeleders is well described in the following extract from a Democratic paper's account of the election:

The most interesting thing, however, to an observer and the most annoying to the voter, was the multiplicity of ballots. There were seven tickets containing the nominees for the state, county and city offices, two tickets, one for and one against consolidation, two similar ones on rapid transit and five each way on the constitutional amendments. The tickets voted, as well as those not voted, had to be folded in a certain way and the mistakes, corrections and delays were endless. Most voters had as much as they could do to select their ticket of candidates and made no effort to vote on the other questions. Some ignorant citizens, after wrestling for the allotted ten minutes over their ballots, gave it up, tore them to pieces and did not vote at all. This multiplicity of ballots worked especial hardships to the illiterate Tammany voters and resulted in disenfranchising many of them. The lack of time also prevented thousands of citizens from voting. This fact is a severe retribution on Hill, as both he and Flower were instrumental in defeating a law establishing a blanket ballot.

"HOW IT ALL HAPPENED." Coroner's inquests upon popular elections are generally less consoling to the vanquished than amusing to the victors but still a moderate and reasonable inquiry in the causes of such a political landslide as that of Tuesday is not unprofitable. The shortest way to get at the truth is to see what the ablest opinion on the side of the defeated fixes upon as the causes of disaster. The Chicago Herald is confessedly the leading Democratic paper of the west and its opinion may fairly be taken as the best to be had upon that side.

The Herald is very angry and accuses Grover Cleveland as the parent of all Democratic evils. It does this first because Mr. Cleveland declined to call congress together and set it to work repealing the McKinley act as soon as he was inaugurated. This censure, from a Democratic free trade standpoint, is perhaps just. The Herald farther accuses the president of inability to work harmoniously with the members of his own party. This simply means that Mr. Cleveland refused to be bulldozed by a lot of spoils-hunting politicians. For his attitude in that regard Mr. Cleveland has deserved the respect and gratitude of all good citizens. In its attacks upon the president elected by its own party The Herald is both foolish and untruthful.

In another article The Herald, however, gives some advice to Democrats as to the next presidential candidate of that party which THE MINING JOURNAL thinks Republicans would do well to ponder. The presidential candidate of the Republican party in the next election should also come from the Mississippi valley. Upon this point the Chicago Democratic organ says:

The Populist organization will languish and pass away from this time on just in proportion as the Democrats drum protectionists and monopolists out of their party and reaffirm their purpose to destroy all class laws.

The general Democratic principle: "Equal rights to all; special privileges to none," must take a more specific form. Let the special privileges which are to be abolished, be named. Generalities will not hereafter satisfy real Democrats.

The result of the election also virtually amounts to a demand that the presidency shall be a western man. It is doubtful whether the party can elect the successor to Grover Cleveland if the candidate reside east of Ohio.

Senator Hill's overwhelming defeat in New York forever sets at rest any claim he may have had to the nomination. Hill's political burial is due largely to his "protection" entanglements in the senate; his opposition to the income tax and his general inclination to favor legislation in the interest of New York plutocrats.

It will thus be seen that even eastern Democrats rebel against the semblance of protectionism in their own party. The true Democrats among them are ready to follow the lead of a western free trader. Among all the distinguished Democrats east of Ohio not one at this time seems available as a representative of the advanced thought of the party.

Only a western candidate who knows what Jeffersonian Democracy means and is not afraid to proclaim it in its entirety can reunite the party in 1896 and lead it to victory.

The Mississippi valley holds the bulk of the population of the United States. It should name the presidential candidates of both the great parties in 1896. Then the battle can be fairly and squarely fought out and this long and confused struggle between the protective and free trade policies finally decided.

THE MINING JOURNAL believes that the Republicans won this time both on the merits of their own cause and the errors of their opponents. The great weakness of the Democratic party is its constant failure to stand prosperity. It was beaten not so much because it reduced the tariff a little but because it showed such lack of ability to administer the government when it came fully into power.

The elections of 1890, 1892 and 1894, taken together show, if they show anything, that a majority of the American people are in favor of a reasonable and moderate degree of protection—a happy medium between the excessive tariffs of the McKinley act and the theories of the free traders. The astuter Republican leaders have long since discovered that they went too far with the McKinley bill and will not regard even the landslide of Tuesday as in any sense an endorsement of that measure but merely as a censure of Democratic incapacity. There are signs that the Republican party may now return to the ground occupied by its founders on the subject of protective tariffs. That was to give to American industries such protection as would enable them to rise and prosper without raising a Chinese wall behind which trusts, monopolies and extortions could breed and flourish. The middle course is the safest in protection as in all other human affairs.

The Early Man. Speculations as to the early condition of the first men and women are by no means pleasant ones. There were no words expressive of love or hate, simply coughings, splutterings, hissings. We did not stand erect, but crouched. The legs were without any calf. If the Ailu is taken as a type, we were covered with short hair, which, it is believed, ran into shades of red. Foreheads were low and protruded, mouths mere muzzles, and the teeth were like fangs. Ears ran to points, and there were no lobes at the base.

A Community of Wives. In Ashantee no man is ever allowed to see one of the king's wives, and should he happen, through accident, to get a glimpse of one of the "sacred creatures" he is forthwith put to death. The law of that country allows the king to have three thousand three hundred and thirty-three "helpmeets" and no more. These wives all live on two long streets in the city of Coomassie, the Ashantee capital, the quarters occupied by them being locally known by a word signifying "heaven."

Joseph is All Right

Since he took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the Greatest Medicine on Earth. My boy had Catarrh in the Head so badly he lost his hearing, and medical treatment failed to help him. Then I was advised to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before he had taken all of one bottle, he began to break out with boils all over his back and neck. They were not very large, but they discharged freely. Joseph E. Zuber, Red Oak, Iowa, began to come back and by the time the third bottle had been taken, the boils had all disappeared and his skin was as clear as a baby's where-as before it was dull and yellow and dark under the eyes. He can now hear well and is taking his fifth bottle.

SUMMARY OF THE VOTE.

Result of Tuesday's Election in Houghton County Given on Principal Offices.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET MADE LARGE GAINS. The Entire Republican Ticket Elected by Good Round Pluralities of from Two Thousand Up.

[All communications intended for this department should be addressed to Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Mich.] HOUGHTON. The vote of Houghton county, by townships, excepting the townships of Laird and Duncan, are given below in detail are not given on register of deeds, prosecuting attorney, circuit court commissioners, coroners or surveyor, or on state senator, as Sheldon, Republican, had no opponent on the Democratic ticket, Smith Republican candidate for the legislature in the Calumet district had no Republican opponent.

Returns from Duncan township are not in. There was an average Republican plurality of 10 on all candidates: PORTAGE—Rich 10, Fisher 186, Nichols 13, Todd 13, Stephenson 318, Culver 32, Anderson 10, Robinson 23, Ryan 130, Howard 11, Stroberg 3, Dunn 304, Kaufman 183, McKennan 13, Little 3, Shields 324, Ellis 104, Ester 10, Truscott 11, Fremodig 290, Brelsford 503, O'Neil 10.

SCHOOLCRAFT—Rich 134, Fisher 168, Nichols 187, Todd 69, Stephenson 130, Culver 174, Robinson 230, Dunn 102, Kaufman 107, McKennan 270, Little 67, Fremodig 149, Brelsford 107, O'Neil 203. OSCOLA—Rich 222, Fisher 54, Nichols 114, Todd 130, Stephenson 237, Culver 32, Anderson 4, Robinson 143, Ryan 21, Howard 5, Stroberg 17, Dunn 144, Kaufman 47, McKennan 118, Little 101, Shields 232, Ellis 43, Ester 108, Truscott 142, Fremodig 338, Brelsford 77, O'Neil 117.

HANCOCK—Rich 383, Fisher 300, Nichols 18, Todd 49, Stephenson 367, Culver 370, Anderson 17, Robinson 384, Ryan 207, Howard 25, Stroberg 45, Dunn 308, Kaufman 287, McKennan 23, Little 48, Shields 422, Ellis 230, Ester 12, Truscott 5, Fremodig 351, Brelsford 850, O'Neil 16. QUINCY—Rich 176, Fisher 33, Nichols 9, Todd 27, Stephenson 169, Culver 39, Anderson 6, Robinson 168, Ryan 38, Howard 3, Stroberg 18, Dunn 143, Kaufman 28, McKennan 7, Little 29, Shields 168, Ellis 39, Ester 7, Truscott 28, Fremodig 213, Brelsford 40, O'Neil 7.

ADAMS—Rich 148, Fisher 25, Nichols 4, Todd 9, Stephenson 145, Culver 34, Anderson 4, Robinson 143, Ryan 21, Howard 5, Stroberg 9, Dunn 144, Kaufman 24, McKennan 11, Little 14, Shields 144, Ellis 24, Ester 4, Truscott 9, Fremodig 148, Brelsford 62, O'Neil 4. FRANKLIN—Rich 246, Fisher 125, Nichols 15, Todd 29, Stephenson 388, Culver 132, Anderson 16, Robinson 331, Ryan 114, Howard 18, Stroberg 28, Dunn 350, Kaufman 115, McKennan 17, Little 24, Shields 335, Ellis 114, Ester 12, Truscott 29, Fremodig 334, Brelsford 147, O'Neil 20.

CHASSLIS—Rich 159, Fisher 30, Nichols 6, Todd 5, Stephenson 156, Culver 31, Anderson 5, Robinson 180, Ryan 12, Howard 2, Stroberg 1, Dunn 43, Kaufman 29, McKennan 5, Little 4, Shields 160, Ellis 25, Ester 5, Truscott 4, Fremodig 127, Brelsford 33, O'Neil 3. TORCH LAKE—Rich 245, Fisher 86, Nichols 116, Todd 34, Balance of vote uncertain owing to discrepancies in reports by telephone from the Portage Entry and South Lake Linden precincts.

CALUMET—Rich 1,502, Fraser 305, Nichols 198, Todd 440, Stephenson 1,494, Culver 300, Anderson 28, Robinson 143, Ryan 21, Howard 5, Stroberg 17, Dunn 144, Kaufman 47, McKennan 118, Little 101, Shields 232, Ellis 43, Ester 108, Truscott 142, Fremodig 1,632, Brelsford 428, O'Neil 202. The vote of Laird and Duncan townships is quite small—not over 200 votes all told probably. The total vote polled on the head of the ticket was 6,440 without Laird and Duncan. The total vote of the county will exceed 6,600 besides the ballots thrown out because of wrong marking. In nine townships Rich has 3,406 and with Torch Lake 3,651 votes, Fisher getting 1,322 in the same precincts, a plurality of 2,329, which will be increased to nearly or quite 2,400 by the vote of the missing precincts. This plurality is about twice as large as the most enthusiastic Republican claimed previous to the election and about three times as large as two years ago. Rich has a clear majority over his three competitors of 850 in the ten townships, figures which will not be materially changed by the vote of the two missing precincts.

Stephenson had 3,354 votes in nine townships against 1,240 for Culver, a lead of 2,114 which, with returns from Torch Lake, Laird and Duncan townships, will give him about 2,300 plurality in the county. The Prohibitionists held their vote everywhere and increased it materially in places. Ten townships give 823 votes for Todd, candidate for governor. The total vote will not quite reach 850 in the county. In ten townships the Populists polled 650 votes, rather more than holding their own. Brelsford, Democratic candidate for treasurer, ran 392 votes ahead of Fisher in nine townships. Fremodig, Republican and Prohibitionist, received 3,580 votes in nine townships, the largest vote polled for any candidate and, deducting the full Prohibition vote, will have a clear Republican majority of nearly 1,200.

Dunn for sheriff will have about 200 less plurality than the head of the ticket. Shields for county clerk surprised himself and all his friends. Four years ago he ran behind, his ticket very badly and was pulled through by a very slender plurality. Two years ago he ran behind again, but not so badly as two years previously. This year he ran ahead of all Republican county candidates except Fremodig, who has the Prohibition endorsement in nearly every precinct, and received 3,390 votes in nine townships, only sixteen less than the head of the ticket. The entire Republican ticket is elected by very handsome pluralities, ranging from 2,000 upwards. It seems to be a Republican year in Houghton county.

DANGEROUS BUSINESS.

The Perils Attendant Upon an Acrobat's Career. An Old-Time Professional Relates Some Thrilling Tales of Terrible Falls of Himself and Brothers—His Advice to Boys.

William Hanlon, of the firm of Hanlon Bros., producers of stage spectacles and pantomimes, has had a remarkable career. The Hanlons did not come to America until the year 1881, but before that time they traveled continually in all sections of the earth. William Hanlon, the only remaining member of an acrobatic family, has given up gymnastic feats for good and is now devoting his entire time to the production of his pantomime, "Superba."

"It is a question, and a great question, whether the success that might be gained by a professional acrobat is worth the years of constant training, the hardships and terrible dangers of following such a vocation," said this famous gymnast to a representative of the Chicago Inter Ocean recently. "I would not advise a young man to undertake to become a professional acrobat for those reasons. I remember I got my first fall at Malta through the carelessness of a Mr. Lees, to whom I had been apprenticed. The drop was only about twenty feet, but I lost my senses the moment I began to fall. In subsequent falls I was conscious until the 'thud' came, and in my first great fall, strange as it may seem, I had time during the drop of thirty-five feet to think of all the terrible accidents I had ever seen in my life and of many other things as well. This last happened in Manchester, England, and the result was a badly broken arm, which the English doctors failed to properly mend. I was laid up for a year, during which time we crossed the Atlantic, and Dr. James K. Wood, a then famous New York surgeon, fixed me up in good shape, a job which caused a great deal of talk at the time among the medical profession throughout this and the old country."

"I had another terrible fall in Havana, Cuba. In Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, I got another bad tumble; in fact all of my brothers as well as myself had at least twenty bad falls during our acrobatic career, but the worst happened to poor Thomas. It was at Pike's opera house, Cincinnati. In all our career we had never used nets, as they do nowadays, and you can easily imagine what a tumble to a hard stage floor meant to any of us. In making the flying leap from one trapeze to another Thomas lost his hold and fell into the footlights, bounding from there into the orchestra, and smashing the bass violin. His head struck two gas jets, breaking their off, and it was a long time before he seemed on the road to recovery."

"Strange enough, just one year from that time we were again playing in Cincinnati and one night Thomas was missing. He was found a few days after wandering in a demented condition in Harrisburg, Pa., and died there. It was afterwards found that a fragment of the skull, which was fractured by the fall, had penetrated the brain."

"Still, there are bright sides to the life of the professional acrobat. If he is superior in his line his triumphs are absolute and pleasing. He is received almost wherever he goes, and he is given opportunities to see things that many wealthy people are even unable to observe, as was the case with us. We saw and met many members of royalty, including Eugenie, empress of the French; duchess of Thiba of Spain, duke and duchess of Elba, and the queen of Spain, but of all the royal people we met the rajah of Burdnuu was the most magnificent. His throne, which I was allowed to see also, was the costliest on earth. It was wide enough for two very large men to sit on and built of solid gold. The seat was upholstered in the finest down and satin, and the half the size of a man's head, thickly incrustated with rubies as large as a pigeon's egg and other rare jewels. A silken canopy was surmounted by a dove, which was ablaze with first-water diamonds of great size. This throne was worth a king's ransom, but everything in the rajah's court was on a similar scale of magnificence. The Brahmin priests had a remarkable influence over the prince, and were constantly concocting plans to rob him and enrich themselves. One was to induce him to build a golden cow, life size, hollowed so that he could get inside, and once or twice a year fast for twenty-four hours. At the prince's death the golden cow was to become the property of the priests. The prince died. All such sights and experiences go to make up the enviable side of a professional acrobat's life, but the other side leaves me the only survivor of a once large and happy family. Boys—don't do it."

Not Blowing About It. While Lord Coleridge was on his way to Chicago, an interviewer, failing otherwise to draw him out, began to belittle the old country. Lord Coleridge bore it all patiently; finally, the interviewer said: "I am told, my lord, you think a great deal of what you call your great fire of London. Well, I guess that the conflagration we had in the little village of Chicago made your great fire look very small." To which Lord Coleridge blandly responded: "Sir, I have every reason to believe that the great fire of London was quite as great as the people of that time desired."

It Was the Cat. In Trieste an Englishman, Prof. Jones, recently suffered a severe loss through a strange mishap. He was holding a lecture in the large hall which contains his books, when a cat, jumping upon the table covered with papers, threw over the petroleum lamp, and the efforts of the professor and the audience to extinguish the fire were of no avail. All the valuable books were destroyed.

BENCH AND BAR.

Qualities Necessary to Make Good Judges and Lawyers. A judge must be fearless; for if timid this weakness is at once taken advantage of by sharp-witted lawyers, who will do all they can to "bluff" him into some unjust concession or unwelcome ruling, knowing his fear of having any unpleasant scene in the court room, writes Eugene Maes in Home and Country.

If the occupant of the bench has not the courage to promptly and effectually squelch these blusterers, the dignity of the court suffers and the judge in allowing lawyers to domineer over him is humiliated. Under such circumstances reproof must be always administered when deserved, yet it must be administered mildly, although thoroughly, lest by showing his anger, or giving vent to it, the court again loses its dignity.

A judge should always be prompt to check the order of legal windbags, who bring up formidable stacks of sheep-covered volumes, and cite authority after authority in dreary succession regarding points concerning which the court has already passed an opinion. Above all things a judge must not be imaginative, and should never allow himself to be carried away by his feelings. His calmer judgment and reason must be his sole guides.

Let it not be imagined, either, that a judge, to perform his duties rightly, must be either devoid of feeling or inspired by inhuman pitilessness. On the contrary, a judge should be great-hearted, while impartial; merciful, while just.

"Mercy, indeed, is the laurel wreath of the honor for the just judge. In every truth it is twice blessed—it blesseth him who gives, and him who takes." Often, when confronting a prisoner, whose first offense awaits sentence, the words of the court, as well as the sentence itself, may either harden the poor unfortunate, or else be the turning point for good in his life.

AN HONORABLE THIEF. The Night Prowler Was as Good as His Word. "I once had an experience that proved to me that there is honor among thieves," said a Cincinnati drummer, to a reporter. "It happened several years ago in a little town in Michigan. I retired to bed in the hotel at the usual time, and placed my watch and pocket-book under the pillow. After having been asleep some time I was awakened by hearing a strange noise in the room. "You can imagine I was considerably startled at beholding a man with a handkerchief tied over his face standing by my bedside. In his hand was a dark lantern, which shone fully in my face. He did not give me much time to think, but in a gruff voice demanded my watch and money. I don't know whatever put the idea into my head, but, endeavoring to be calm as possible, I said: "If I tell you exactly where they are will you promise not to molest me and leave me to finish my sleep?" "Well, you are a cool one, I must say," he replied, "but you must tell me where your valuables are, and I will promise not to harm you, and leave you in peace."

"I will take you at your word," said I; my watch is at the jeweler's being repaired and every cent I have is locked up in the safe downstairs. "He stared at me a minute or two, as though trying to tell by my face if I had spoken the truth. It must have convinced him, for, muttering something I did not catch, he turned on his heel and walked out of the room without a word."

THE CAUSES OF DEFEAT.

Congressman Springer of Illinois Explains the Defeat of the Democratic Party.

BELIEVES HARD TIMES MISLED MANY PEOPLE.

The Manufacturers of Country Charged With Assisting Republicans by Liberal Donations.

HAS NOT YET LOST ALL HOPE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The following has been received from Hon. William M. Springer by the Associated Press in response to a request for his opinion on the election:

"Many causes contributed to defeat the Democratic party. The dissatisfaction among Democrats caused by the delay in passing the tariff bill and the alleged imperfections in that measure had in a measure closed when the election occurred. The intelligent members of the party are satisfied that every possible effort had been put forth to secure prompt action. The hard times of a year ago, which were attributed by the Republicans to threatening tariff legislation, had caused a feeling of doubt in the minds of many as to the wisdom of the Democratic tariff policy. The unemployed sought a change without stopping to enquire whether such a change would really benefit them or not. The manufacturers of the country who were receiving large benefits from the protective tariff were not disposed to give up any of the privileges which they had enjoyed heretofore. They naturally resented any efforts to curtail their rights to tax the tolling millions for their own benefit. The business interests of the country were appealed to by Republican partisans to make large contributions to the campaign funds. There are many evidences in this part of Illinois to prove that such appeals were not made in vain. The Republican managers in this congressional district were supplied more liberally with campaign funds than was ever before known in this state. Never before were the Republican politicians so active and persistent in party affairs as during the late campaign in this district. The managers of the Democratic party were active and aggressive; they never made a more gallant fight. But we were defeated. The stay-at-home vote among the Democrats was very large, so large in some localities as to raise suspicion that the voters were paid to remain away from the polls. The tidal wave of Democratic prosperity which set in immediately after the passage of the Democratic tariff bill was attributed by the Republicans to prospective Republican success. They not only charged the Democratic party with responsibility for Republican hard times but they appropriated to themselves the great prosperity which followed the passage of that measure. But, notwithstanding the overwhelming defeat of the Democratic party, the prosperity which came from the adoption of its policy of tariff reform will continue right along and increase in extent from week to week and month to month until all men will find employment at good wages and all the business interests of the country are in a healthy condition and placed on a permanent and enduring foundation. "Before the next Presidential election occurs the business condition brought about by the Democratic legislation will be so satisfactory the country will reverse its verdict of last Tuesday and elect a Democratic president and congress will be Democratic in both branches. The Democrats should not feel discouraged by this defeat. Their tariff law cannot be repealed during this administration and time will vindicate its wisdom and the country will never consent to its abrogation by modification, except in the direction of greater reforms."

Forecast of the Weather. WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—9 p. m.—The weather bureau reports the following as the forecast for the next twenty-four hours. For upper Michigan: Generally fair; north winds.

Committed to Life Sentence. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 7.—Governor Altgeld has committed the death sentence of Gustave M. Enkhausen to life imprisonment.

Effect of Great Cold on Animals. Pictet, the French chemist, finds by subjecting animals and insects to the intense cold obtainable from liquid atmospheric air that animals show a wonderful power of resistance to its effects. A dog placed in a copper receiver at a temperature of 60 to 90 degrees C., showed a rise of bodily temperature of 0.5 degrees in ten minutes, and after an hour and a half had only lost 1 degree. A little later, however, nature gave up the struggle, the temperature fell rapidly, and the animal died suddenly. Insects resist a temperature of 28 but not 35 degrees, while myriapods live down to 50 degrees and snails to 130 degrees. Birds' eggs lose their vitality at 2 to 3 degrees; ants' eggs at 0 degrees. Infusoria die at 90 degrees, while bacteria are still virulent at 213 degrees. This last fact is, perhaps, the most significant of all.—Scientific American.

Cotton from Wood. An artificial cotton, said to be much cheaper than the natural, is reported from France. It is made from the wood of the pine, spruce or larch, which is defibrated and then disintegrated and bleached with a hot solution of bisulphide of soda and chloride of lime. The resulting pure cellulose is treated with chloride of zinc, castor oil and gelatine, and the paste is passed through a perforated plate. This gives a thread, which is woven into a presentable fabric.

CHICAGO MARKETS. Grain and Produce. CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The leading grain futures ranged as follows:

Table with columns: Grain, High, Low, Closed. Includes Wheat, Corn, and other grain types.

Cattle, Hogs and Sheep. CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Prices at the stock yards ranged as follows:

CATTLE—Receipts, 12,000; calves, 500. Market active, firm. Building was sharper than it had been for long time. Anything good enough for exporters or eastern buyers was salable at an advance of 10 cents and holders of lower grades unloaded at prices better by 50c. While strictly prime brought $6.45 there were few trades above $5.50. From $1.00 to $2.75 took the major part of the natives and prices below $3.40 bought most of the rangers. Stock and feeders were firmer. Veal calves sold strong.

HOGS—Receipts, 33,000. Market opened steady, weakened and closed 5c lower. A few choice heavy lots sold around $4.75 but the bulk of light and medium weights sold at $3.00 to $3.05. There were numerous sales below $4.50 and pigs ranged from $1.75 to $4.25.

SHEEP—Receipts, 14,000. The market was firm. Good to choice was quoted at $2.75 to $3.40 and poor grades at $1.35 to $2.50. Lambs were salable at $2.00 to $4.40.

SIX TRAINMEN ARE KILLED.

Two Trains Running at Forty Miles an Hour Come Into Collision.

COME TOGETHER WHILE ROUNDING A CURVE.

Passengers Escape Unhurt but Lives of Several Trainmen Are Sacrificed and Others Injured.

CAR SPLIT INTO KINDLING.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 7.—Train No. 5, the Baltimore & Ohio limited, coming west ran into the first section of a fast cattle train at Rosesteel Siding, two miles east of Rosewood this evening. Six men were killed in the collision and several others badly hurt. The killed are:

HENRY BUSH, engineer, No. 5. SIMON McCARTY, fireman, No. 5. BROWNING, engineer, No. 64. MANNING, fireman, No. 64. TWO UNKNOWN MEN, either mail clerks or express messengers.

The injured are: PIERCE, DeGraze and Lippincott, mail clerks, badly hurt, though not fatally. Railroad officials say no passengers were hurt. Both trains were going at the rate of forty miles an hour and came together while rounding a curve. Neither crew had time to jump or sound a warning. The proper meeting place for them was Pine Grove, four and a half miles east of the place of collision, where the passenger should have taken a siding for the freight. For some reason the passenger train passed the siding. The mail car was reduced to kindling wood. Only the heavy vestibules of the passenger cars saved them from a similar fate. Fully a dozen freight cars were piled up in the wreck, killing and injuring many of the dumb brutes.

NEEDS A DELICATE TOUCH.

The Diamond Setter and His Method of Fixing Precious Stones. Many persons find it difficult to believe that a diamond setter is a man who has to handle the most precious stones with a delicate touch.

Few people outside the jewelry trade have any idea how the brilliant they buy and wear are fastened into their settings, and a great many retail jewelers who have sold jewelry for years are equally as ignorant, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. The art of setting jewelry is comparatively simple, the skill of a setter depending on his knowledge of the strength of material and the delicate touch required, which can only be gained by years of practice. There are only four distinct methods of setting a diamond, though mountings are made which involve two or more of these methods. The most common is the clamp, or claw, setting. This comes to the setter with every clamp as straight and square as a fence picket. He imbeds this mounting, whatever it may be, in warm shellac on the end of a stick (six inches of broom handle is generally used) leaving the setting exposed. This cools and holds the delicate pieces of jewelry firm in all parts. He then, with a thin file, sharpens all the clamps, bringing them up to sharp points. Then with a scraper or graver shaped like a chisel (all of his cutting tools are miniature chisels of different shapes), he digs out a bearing or shoulder for the edge of the stone on the inside of each clamp; he now, with a pair of sharp-pointed pliers, bends the clamps inward or outward as they happen to require, until the stone will just squeeze into the circle of clamps.

Then the stone is pressed firmly down until the edge rests squarely on the bearing of each clamp. This leaves the edge of the clamps sticking up past the edge of the stone. The next step is to push all these ends over the edge and burnish them tight. A pushing tool is used for this, a piece of soft steel about three inches long, filed to a small square end and fitted in a round handle. When the clamps are all firm in their places they are bright-cut, as the term is. The clamps are trimmed to a point with three cuts, two on the sides and one on the top. The setter cuts away from the stone, and must be careful not to dig too deep into the gold, or he will push the whole clamp away from the stone; then, to make a good job, the stone must come out and the clamp be bent inward again. Some who manufacture the finest goods do not believe in bright-cutting clamps on rings, as the sharp edges left are very severe on gloves worn over them. A setter employed by these firms merely files the clamp to a point, and the polisher buffs it round on top when the work gets its last finish.

Do Trees Require Sleep?

In the larger cities, where shade trees are few and scattering, electric lights seem to have no visible effect upon their foliage. In the towns and villages, however, many of which have their electric-light systems, the effect is very noticeable, the leaves appearing as though they had been subjected to the blighting breath of a harmattan. The question was recently discussed at a meeting of the eastern arboriculturists, the conclusion being that trees need darkness in order that they may sleep, and that being continually kept awake and active they have been worn out, and made prematurely old by the action of the light. That this is probably the correct solution of the mystery of the drooping leaves may be judged from the fact that similar trees in the neighborhood of those affected (though not exposed to the illumination), still retain their color and seem bright and strong.—St. Louis Republic.

Electric Sunstroke.

It is now claimed that there is such a thing as electric sunstroke. The workers around electrical furnaces in which metal aluminum is produced suffer from them. The intense light causes painful congestions, which cannot be wholly prevented by wearing deep-colored goggles.

ABOUT TENPINS.

The Little Man Bluffed and the Fat Man Weekly.

"I used to roll a pretty fair game of tenpins," said the little man.

"I can beat you," put in the fat man, decidedly.

"Oh, I dunno," said the little man. "I'll roll you on any alley you say and at any time; I can beat you," insisted the fat man.

There was a lot more conversation of this kind and finally the little man got mad. He pulled out a roll of bills and peeled off a twenty. "I'll bet you twenty dollars," he said, hotly, "that you can't beat me. I'll bet you twenty dollars that I will beat you seven out of ten games to-morrow afternoon."

The fat man grew cautious. "What's the highest you ever rolled?" he asked. Then he said proudly: "I made two hundred and thirty-five once."

"Why, my dear boy," said the little man, "I see that you are an amateur. I rolled ten games the other afternoon and averaged two hundred and forty-six."

The fat man's eyes bulged out. "I don't believe it. There ain't a man in Buffalo who can do it."

"I'll bet you twenty dollars to five that I can average more than two hundred and thirty-five for twenty games to-morrow afternoon," said the little man, producing his roll of bills again. "I'll bet you twenty dollars or I'll bet you a hundred dollars. It don't cost any ice with me how large the bet is. I know what I can do. Why, I made two hundred and seventy-six and better three games had running a week ago."

"I didn't know I was up against a shark," said the fat man, feebly. "I can't do any such rolling as that."

"Then don't go making cracks at me," and the little man waved his roll of money around to the great discomfort of the onlookers. "I am a star bowler. You said you could beat me. Now make good your claim or close your face."

"But the rolling is wonderful. I never heard of anything like it." And the fat man wiped the sweat off his forehead.

"Huh!" said the little man. "That ain't a maker to what I have done. Why, one day when I was in good condition I rolled three hundred and thirty-six."

"What's that?" asked the fat man, snarling.

"Fact. I rolled three hundred and thirty-six in New York."

The fat man rose slowly from his seat and looked at his friends. "Here," he said, "somebody kick me around the room a few times."

"What's the matter?" asked the little man.

"Matter" and there was a world of disgust in the fat man's voice. "Matter" why, I've been sitting here like a chuekheaded chump and letting you bluff me about bowling, a game I've played since I was a boy—letting you bluff me, when you, you dog-dogged idiot, don't know enough about the game to know that three hundred is the highest possible score!"—Buffalo Express.

SEWAGE-FED FISH.

A Possible Channel for the Conduct of Disease Germs. An interesting question has been raised as to the extent to which the germs of disease contained in the sewage of towns poured into our rivers may be brought back to us by sewage-fed fish caught. Certain fishes—trout, for example—avoid sewage, but many others are greatly attracted by its warmth and by its richness in microscopic forms of life. Mr. Lawrence Hamilton, writing on this subject, says that cod, trout, sprats, herrings, pilchards, oysters, clams, limpets, periwinkles, mussels, sea anemones, scallops, lobsters and crabs are fond of sewage-fed water in moderate amounts; whilst grey mullet, eels, tench and carp can thrive and revel in those which are much more filth-polluted.

With regard to fish proper it is presumed that they are thoroughly cooked, both of which are, to say the least, mere assumptions. The softening of gelatine takes place far below boiling temperature, yet we all know how often the flesh of fish fails to come easily off the bones. In regard to whitebait our dependence upon the completeness of the cooking is absolute. Immature herrings, sprats, etc., called "whitebait," are always eaten whole, unbled, ungutted and uncleaned, and too often, like other bigger fish, insufficiently cooked. "Whitebait," says Mr. Lawrence-Hamilton, "are frequently taken from about sewer outfalls."

The worst indictment, however, against the inhabitants of sewage-polluted water lies against the mollusks. Oysters, scallops, cockles, mussels, etc., are said to thrive in water which is moderately contaminated by sewage, and while oysters are habitually eaten quite raw, the others only receive such a modicum of cooking as will facilitate their removal from their shells. How far the consumption of these creatures is a common cause of disease it is impossible to say. The probabilities are that it is only under very special circumstances that they convey direct infection.

Where, however, they dwell on areas subjected to occasional pollution of considerable intensity the coincidence must now and again happen of their being taken to market containing a much stronger charge of sewage than our knowledge of their ordinary life history would warrant one in expecting. Nor must one forget that the water in which they may be kept after capture, and a portion of which is swallowed along with the delectable morsel, is derived from unknown and possibly uncleanly sources; and is exposed to many chances of contamination.—British Medical Journal.

STOPPED BY GRASSHOPPERS.

A Train in New York Fronted to a Standstill by the Insects.

"The story is an old one about western railroad trains being stopped by grasshoppers during a memorable invasion of Kansas and other states by these insects," said a New York traveling man to a New York Sun reporter; "and it was and is still looked upon in the east as a wild reach of the western imagination. I believe no one had deeper doubt of it than myself. But I doubt no longer, for I was on a train the other day right in our state of New York which was stopped by grasshoppers as effectually as the engineer with his airbrakes could have stopped it."

"The railroad was the Chautauqua Lake railroad and the train was on its way between Mayville and Jamestown. All that region has had a most destructive visitation of grasshoppers this year, crops, foliage and even hay, cut and housed, having been absolutely eaten up clean by the ravenous insects. This day the passengers on the train noticed that frequently it would gradually slow up and come almost to a standstill, but after awhile regain somewhat of its regular speed. At last, though, after slowing up and the engine working in a way that showed that the engineer was making his greatest effort to overcome whatever the obstacle was to the progress of the train, it came to a dead standstill. A trainman was hurrying through the car I was in and I asked him what was the matter.

"Grasshoppers," said he. "We're stalled again by grasshoppers."

"Nobody believed him, of course, but I got out of the car and I wasn't long before I found that he was in earnest. Grasshoppers had effectually stopped the train. The rails behind us as far as anyone could see were two glistening lines of grease. As far as anyone could see ahead the railroad tracks were hidden by untold numbers of grasshoppers. Men had to be sent ahead to sweep or shovel or scrape the insects off the rails. By dint of much sand and steam the train was at last got under way, but for nearly two miles the advance guard of trainmen had to keep the train clear of grasshoppers immediately ahead of the locomotive wheels before we had passed out of the tremendous swarm of insects, fat to bursting on the crops of the Chautauqua region, and the train could go its way without danger of further stalling. I learned that the trains on that road had been unable to make anything like schedule time for several days and that no trip had been made on any train in that time on which it had not been stopped more than once by the crushing of grasshoppers on the rails."

"Grasshoppers," said he. "We're stalled again by grasshoppers."

BARGAINS IN INDIA.

Merchants Sometimes Come Down with a Jump in Their Prices.

Indian travel is full of surprise, pleasant and otherwise. A gentleman, wishing to purchase some of the beautiful Cashmere shawls which are made not far from Delhi, went to one of the largest establishments in the city. The merchant showed him a book in which was written recommendations of his goods—by Gen. Grant and his son, as well as by many others.

Among the recommendations was this one in German: "I have bought shawls of this man and think I got them cheap; but do not offer him a third of what he asks."

"The gentleman selected two very beautiful shawls, and asked the price. The merchant, after a little consultation with his clerks said:

"I have not sold a shawl to your party. I sell you very, very cheap. You may have these beautiful shawls for fourteen hundred rupees."

"Absurd! Let us go!" said the gentleman, having in mind the German's advice, and he started for the door.

"Don't go," said the merchant; "make me an offer."

"I will give you four hundred rupees for both shawls."

To his astonishment the merchant replied:

"Take them; I will send them to your hotel."

At Jaipur the same traveler lodged in a hotel conducted by a native, but owned by the rajah. He found the following amusing notices posted in various places:

"If visitors are not satisfied with the food or cooking they can deduct from the bill what they consider fair."

"Guests are requested not to strike the servants."

"Guests wishing ice are requested to give a day's notice and name how much they require."

A LITTLE TOO QUIET.

The Funeral Silence That Prevails the Channel Islands.

Jersey and Guernsey are gardens, says a recent French visitor to the Channel Islands. The fields are so neat, so carefully kept, that they seem rather like garden plots. The least corner of earth is cultivated—the roadsides, every little hollow, and even "an inch of earth on the end of a rock."

But these Edens are silent, the traveler goes on to say. Now and then people on the islands smile; but no one ever laughs. Laughter is unbecoming, and to laugh aloud would be scandalous.

The birds sing, but not the people. Even the children are sober—little men and women rather than children. The trees are yews, cypresses and weeping willows.

When the people go to walk, they take to the cemeteries. Lovers exchange vows upon tombstones, and couples that are near graveyards rent more readily and at a better price on that account.

"We are admirably situated in our new house," said a young Jersey woman to the French writer; "we are right opposite the cemetery, and I can see the tombs from the windows of my bedroom. In the moonlight the view is lovely."

And still the Frenchman has to admit that there is something very attractive in this solemnity and stillness. The longer he remained in the islands the less he felt like coming away.

A Queer Game.

Among Indian boys a favorite gambling game is played with bows and arrows. A boy will shoot an arrow and all the other boys will shoot at it. If their arrows hit it or stick within a certain distance the boy who shoots first pays an arrow. If they do not come within the stated distance he gets an arrow. Cheating predominates here as in all other forms of Indian gambling, and many of the larger Indian boys treat the younger ones outrageously, deliberately robbing them of their arrows by false representations, just as I have seen big white boys cheat their smaller playmates out of their marbles.—Detroit Free Press.

The schooner Cris Grover is at the bulkhead by the stone derrick to load a quarry hoist from the Lake Shore iron quarry for one of the Portage Entry quarries.

Anthony Brush, the grocer at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, has made extensive alterations in his store, having added to the rear a large store room and several rooms upstairs.

The interior finish of the city hall is now nearly all in place and the doors hung. The tile floor in the hallway on the first floor is being laid while the stair builders from the Bice factory are busy on the main staircase.

Alderman Hoch will congratulate himself this morning that he is not compelled to go to Lansing from this legislative district this winter. It would be awfully lonesome down there with only one Democrat to flock with.

The work of laying the new intake main for the water works is so far advanced that the connection will probably be made today. This will insure the city against a repetition of the trouble experienced last winter from anchor ice.

Attention is called to the announcement in another column of Lakobe's winter millinery opening which begins today and which promises to be an event of great interest to the ladies of the city, as the display of trimmed hats and bonnets will show all of the latest styles and shapes and will maintain the excellent reputation which this establishment has made for artistic work in every branch of the business. The ladies of the city are given a cordial invitation to call and examine the display at their earliest convenience.

Republicans were very much in evidence yesterday and on all wore smiles of the most expansive order. The number of cheerful Democrats was also noticeable, Dave Hill's extinction in New York being "glory enough for one day" in their estimation while one of them explained his evident enjoyment of the situation by declaring that when he did get "licked" he liked to be "wiped off the face of the earth and be done with it"—he expressed himself as perfectly satisfied this year in the last respect.

A STRATEGIC WAITER.

He Puts a Quietness on a Fault-Finding Customer. A colored waiter in a wild western hotel has his guests down very fine and can handle even the testiest of them with such diplomatic skill that he is a jewel to his employer. The last man he settled was a man from the east who was so cross and fault-finding that the waiter could scarcely refrain from pouring a pint of hot soup down his neck.

"Here," exclaimed the guest after he had been kicking on everything the waiter brought him, "where's the landlady?" "He's out in de kitchen, sah," replied Sam, suavely.

"Well, I want to see him." "You can't see him jis' now, sah." "How do you know I can't? You go and tell him to come here." Sam went out and returned in a minute.

"Well," asked the testy guest, "where is he?" "I done tol' him, sah." "Why didn't he come?" "He'll be 'long in a minute, sah," chuckled Sam. "He's jis' been jabbin' a customer full of holes wid a butcher knife, sah, and he's washin' de sticky offen his hands, sah. He tol' me to tell you, sah, dat he would 'ten to yo' case right away, sah. Jis' keep cool a minute, sah, he's mighty pomp," sah, when things goes wrong about de house, sah."

Sam straightened up and waited for the next move, but it did not come. The testy guest finished his meal in silence, with one eye constantly on the door leading to the kitchen.—Detroit Free Press.

HONOR BRIGHT.

Where Her Honesty Was the Best Policy.

Honor Bright signed her name at the end of a school report which she had just finished, and then, heaving a little sigh, remarked to a companion who sat at the desk near and was engaged in a similar occupation.

"I don't regret sometimes that my parents did not give me a different name."

"Why?" was asked in surprise.

"Because the one they gave me brought with it such a weight of responsibility. I feel that I must be Honor Bright in nature as well as in name."

"Then I suppose I ought to have a sticky, tabacosey nature," the friend rejoined.

Honor laughed merrily. "What can you mean, Virgie?" she inquired, looking at her companion with eyes from which the seriousness had all departed.

"Why, don't you see?" she returned, as she signed her name to the report, "Virginia Spaulding Merrick, Virginia savors of tobacco. I have seen it hundreds of times on the papers of tobacco that my father's workmen have around them. And then of course you have always heard of Spaulding's glue. Isn't that name sticky and tabacosey enough to disgust anybody? I'd leave out the middle one—it's of no use—only Mr. Harding insists on having it signed that way."

They were not fully fledged teachers these two young girls, but were merely undergoing a six months' probation at the training-school. The rules there were very strict, and they were anxious to comply with every one; for they knew that their prospect of getting a position depended to a great extent on the principal's recommendation. At the end of the six months there would be a vacancy in one of the nearest schools, and that was to be filled by the graduate having the best record in the training department. Honor was exceedingly anxious for the position. Her mother had made many sacrifices to keep her at school, and she wanted to relieve her of expense as soon as possible.

"Why should you worry about living up to your name?" Virgie went on.

"After all, there is very little honor in the world, and those who are loathest in regard to this matter get along best, I think."

Both were very serious now.

"Then you do not believe that 'honesty is the best policy,'" Honor asked anxiously. She was beginning to love this bright companion, although she had known her only a few weeks, and she was shocked to hear her express such an opinion. She had been taught to have the very strictest regard for truth, and it pained her to find it lacking in others. Besides, Virgie was such excellent company that she had a decided influence over her friends, and Honor feared that that influence might be if the girl really felt the sentiment that she expressed.

"Not a bit of it. Do you?" Virgie inquired.

"Yes, I believe I do," Honor returned. "It seems to me that though dishonesty may triumph for awhile, like murder, it will out in the end."

"I'm not so sure about that. Now, for instance, we are supposed to be in our classrooms at eight-fifty, and we are expected to keep a true account of the time that we enter. Yet I know that many of the training-school girls always put down eight-fifty whether they are in their rooms at that time or not. Isn't it policy for them to do it? Who will be any the wiser? If they were counted late it would go against their record."

"I would rather be counted late than dishonest," Honor answered, emphatically. "If no one else knew it I should know it myself, and I prefer to have a clear conscience. And then I think we can avoid either disgrace by making an effort to be always early."

"But if you had to be late some morning, what then?" "I hope I should be honorable enough to mark it so, even though I suffered in consequence. You would too, wouldn't you, Virgie?"

"I don't know. The temptation is so strong. But if you really feel this way, why need you worry about being like your name? You won't disgrace that, with your principles."

"Because it seems to me that sometimes it is so difficult to be strictly true. Do you never, when off your guard, find yourself saying something that isn't exactly so, or exaggerating a little, even without meaning to do it?"

"Well, now that you speak of it, I remember that I have done so, but I hardly think I should stop to worry about it. Come, let us go; it is four o'clock, and time we were at home in view of these halls of learning. Know you not at this hour the dignified mien do congregate and discuss the mighty question of scattered crumbs?" and Virgie Merrick called out of the room with an air that completely upset Honor's gravity.

As the weeks passed and the girls became better acquainted Honor discovered that her new friend had a greater regard for truth than would appear by her remarks. Once when Virgie expressed a sentiment similar to the one mentioned in the beginning of this story Honor remonstrated.

"You give people an idea that you are not truthful," she said, "and you are as much so as anybody I know."

"Yes, I have been taught to be," Virgie responded, lightly; "but, mind you, I can't admit yet that it is the best policy, and if I were severely tempted I don't know what would be the consequence."

The end of the term had arrived. Honor was starting out from home for her last day at the training school. By the door she met her eight-year-old brother.

"See, sister," he said, pointing to a much-worn shoe, "my toe is well enough to be out now."

"Never mind," she answered, laughing, as she bent to give him a good-by kiss. "They'll be sick enough to be in if I get that position."

"Of course, if you like that kind best."

"And mamma a new dress? You said so, you know, and I never told that secret to anybody."

"Yes, mamma a new dress, if—but there comes my car, pet, and I must catch that or be late!" and in a few moments Honor was seated by Virgie in the car that had taken them for the past six months to the door of the training-school.

"For the last time," they said gravely to each other; but their faces brightened with the thought that their record had been perfect.

"The position is yours, without a doubt," Virgie remarked, gayly.

"Why so? There may have been others, and, besides, you stand the same chance that I do."

"All the others have been either late or absent, some both. I heard Mr. Harding remark to the commissioner, and he also said that you were the best teacher in the training school. My! what has happened? I thought I was in the middle of next week."

The exclamation was caused by a sudden jerk of the car, which made nearly all of the standing passengers lose their equilibrium. Then there was another which gave everybody a hard shake, and the car stood still with one end considerably higher than the other.

"We're off the track, and no mistake," remarked Honor. "I hope we are not kept late; that would be a catastrophe. How the car is packed this morning. Are any of the other girls here? Yes, there is Annie Hunter."

"If it weren't so far we might get out and walk," said Virgie.

"That would hardly do any good, for the car would overtake us. See, the men are getting out to help, and it will soon be on the track now."

But it was an ugly hole that the wheel had gone into, and it required much juggling, pulling, lifting and shoving, to get it in place again. The girls waited anxiously, and every minute seemed an hour.

"Do you think we would be excused if we were late?" asked Honor. "This isn't our fault."

"I don't know. Once when Mary Bidley was late and she blamed the car for it, Mr. Harding said she ought to have taken an earlier one and made allowance for delays."

But finally the car was in place and was rushing along as if trying to make up for lost time. It reached the school just as the nine o'clock bell stopped ringing, and by the time the girls reached the principal's room, where the record book was kept, it was five minutes past nine by the clock.

"Mr. Harding isn't here," said Virgie, hurriedly, and in a low tone.

"Don't spoil your record, Honor. Think how much depends on it. He'll down eight-fifty. I'm going to, he'll never know, and we can hurry to our rooms before he gets upstairs. We couldn't help the delay of the car."

Honor went up to the principal's desk followed by her friend. She opened the time book, picked up a pen, and then hesitated. As Virgie had said, so much depended on this record. The girl thought she had never been so sorely tempted. Would it be very wrong to yield just once? She had counted so much on getting the position. For little Ned's sake, for her mother's sake—and yet it was that mother who had taught her to love the truth.

"I can't do it, dear," she said, with tears in her eyes, "it must go against me," and she wrote down "9:05."

Then Virgie took the pen. She meant to save her own record, anyhow. She had started from the house at the usual time, and would have been in school early but for the car. She dipped her pen in the ink, and then her real sense of right and her friend's influence won the victory, and she, too, wrote down: "9:05."

Honor gave a sigh of relief.

"After all, more depends on our being true," she said, with a sweet smile, and they slipped away to their rooms.

At 10:30, the time of the morning recess, Mr. Harding called a meeting of the teachers.

"Young ladies," he said, "I have been looking over the records this morning, and I find that two of you have been perfect with the exception of to-day's time. That lateness will be excused. It was caused by the car getting off the track, and it was off long enough to make the excuse a legitimate one. I know, for I was on the back platform of that car and had to help lift it on the track. In cases where a little delay has been said to cause lateness, and I have inquired into the matter, I have discovered that the tardy teacher had taken a late car, and I could not excuse her. Miss Merrick, Miss Bright, Miss Hunter—"

He stopped a moment here and examined the record more closely. "Miss Hunter, I thought you were on that car?" he continued, in an inquiring tone.

"I—I—was," she stammered.

"Is that your name? Explain how it is that your time is marked eight-fifty?"

The girl addressed looked embarrassed and said nothing.

"You are all excused with the exception of Miss Hunter," Mr. Harding added, gravely; and as the other girls turned away Virgie took Honor's hand and whispered:

"You darling girl! see what you have saved me. I can thank you best, I suppose, by admitting that 'honesty is the best policy,' but I know you would be honest always, simply because it is right to be, and without stopping to consider the 'policy' of it."

"But tell me, Virgie, didn't you feel a satisfaction in having done right, even before Mr. Harding told us this? I did."

"Well, I think—yes, I know I did," was the earnest reply.—S. Jennie Smith, in Demorest's Magazine.

VOTE WAS RATHER LIGHT.

Ishpeming Fell Off 368 Votes as Compared With Total of 1892.

THE INTENTIONAL ABSTENTIONS WERE MANY.

Prohibitionist Vote Lighter Than Expected and Democrats Lost Even Their Old Stronghold.

EVEN THE NINTH LOST.

Every ward in Ishpeming, even the "bloody" Ninth, which the Democrats upheld as the "model" ward, went Republican. While it was generally known that many of the old-time Democrats in the Ninth intended casting their ballots for the Republican candidates and that the names registered on Saturday were slightly in favor of Republicanism, no one in the city could be convinced that the ward would take such a complete flop as it did. The first news on the streets Tuesday evening after the polls had closed was to the effect that the Ninth was lost to the Democrats. As in the past two elections this ward was the center of attraction and very frequently was it alluded to at the gatherings in the Nelson House and elsewhere throughout the city where returns were received. It is now in order to give the famous Ninth a new title, "Invincible" Nith has been suggested, which no doubt will be suitable to the Republicans who point with great pride to their victory in this particular ward. The Republican plurality in the Ninth was 19 and their majority over all was 5, which is a net gain of about thirty votes since the last election.

The voters of the city were not at all surprised to see the other wards of the city give a strong Republican plurality but they did not anticipate the totals would be as large as they were. It was generally supposed that the Prohibition vote would be considerably larger than it was but it appears a great many who previously voted that ticket cast their ballots in favor of Republicanism this time, while the Populist vote was drawn from the Democratic ranks.

In 1892 Rich received 1,152 votes in Ishpeming city while Morse received 856; the Populists got 24 and the Prohibitionists 304. For the legislature Jones got 1,167; Hill, (Dem.) 854 and Quayle (Pro.) 302. Broad for sheriff polled 1,130; Scully, 397 and Roberts, 290. Smith for clerk received 1,114; Tresize, 927; Jennings, 268. For treasurer, Mitchell polled 1,139 while Nelson, the Prohibition nominee, who was endorsed by the Democrats, received 1,170. For prosecuting attorney, Young got 1,142 votes while McClear received 856. The total vote this year is 1,968, which is considerably less than was expected. This is a falling off of 368 votes in the entire city. It is quite certain that there were a number who did not come out to vote. Some of the politicians who were not satisfied with the vote cast during the forenoon hustled around after dinner and found quite a number who had made up their minds not to vote at all. The vote by wards was as follows:

produced so pleasingly last winter. The date selected is Thanksgiving night at the church. The cast of characters has been made and the first rehearsal will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock, when all the members of the society are requested to attend. The costumes for the play will be obtained from Chicago. The admission for adults will be only twenty-five cents and the children will be admitted at a reduced figure.

A SUSCEPTIBLE INDIAN.

Mr. Lo Was Deeply Impressed by a White Woman's Picture.

Mr. Cremony, in his "Life Among the Apaches," gives an entertaining account of a lady's man with whom he once enjoyed an interview. "A tall, strong, well-made and handsome young dandy," he calls him; strutting about with an air of very superior consequence, displaying his colossal proportions, his splendid leopard-skin saddle, quiver, leggings and the like.

After awhile Sait-jah came swaggering toward me, and said, in broken Spanish: "Our chief says you great medicine; he says your pistol fires six times without reloading; he says you bring the trees which are afar off close to the eye, so you can count the leaves; he says your guns reach a great way and never miss; he says a great many other wonderful things, which I cannot believe. You have bewitched him."

Drawing a six-shooter from my belt, I pointed out a tree about seventy-five yards distant, and began firing rapidly. Each shot struck the tree, and blazed off large fragments of the bark.

Sait-jah was astonished, and made no attempt to conceal the fact; but his admiration broke into emphatic expression when he witnessed the precision and reach of our Sharp's rifles, and the rapidity with which they could be loaded and fired. His pride had evidently received a heavy fall, and his lofty bearing was toned down many degrees.

In my possession was the miniature of a young lady, whose graces of person, cultivated mind and amiable disposition rendered her one of the most lovable of Boston's fairest daughters. Sait-jah happened to see this picture, and asked permission to take a good look at the pleasant features. The miniature was placed in his hand, and his eyes seemed to devour its expressive lineaments. Throughout the remainder of the day he bored me with frequent requests for another look, and the next morning, as soon as the camp was astir, he offered me his bow, arrows and splendid leopard-skin for the picture.

The offer being refused, he added his horse, and whatever other property he might have, then, finding me deaf to his entreaties, he took one long, last look, vaulted on his horse, set off at full speed, and rapidly disappeared in the distance.

SPENT MUCH MONEY.

The Children of a Vienna Banker Who Had Money to Burn and Burned It. Princess Ypsilanti, who died in Vienna a few days ago, belonged to one of the oldest families in Austria.

The third daughter, Helene, November 23, 1862, when she was but 17 years old, married Prince Gregory Ypsilanti, a native of Epirus and son of Demetrius Ypsilanti, whose valorous deeds during the Greek revolution made the name of Ypsilanti famous throughout the world.

Princess Gregory Ypsilanti was the Greek envoy in Vienna for many years. He was a man of independent means, aside from the great fortune brought to him by his wife, and served his country for honor alone, refusing all compensation for his duties as its diplomatic representative in Austria.

Princess Gregory Ypsilanti died in Paris on February 20, 1886, and was succeeded as head of his family by his eldest son, Prince Emmanuel, who is now a lad of 15.

Among the most curious of Queen Victoria's perquisites is her right to every whale or sturgeon captured on the coast of the United Kingdom and brought to land.

Another of the queen's perquisites, says the Chicago Times, is a certain number of magnificent cashmere shawls, which are dispatched to her every year from the kingdom of Cashmere.

Another class of royal purveyors is called upon to present to her annually a tablecloth, while from other sources again she is entitled to an annual contribution of currysoms, fire tongs, scarlet hosiery, nightcaps, knives, lances, and crossbows.

Upper Peninsula Republican Plurality Keeps Rolling Up Toward Five Figures.

THE LAKE SHORE WORKS' NEW CHANNELER TESTED.

Adjourned Meeting of the Council Last Evening—Lakeside Iron Works Resume—Other Notes.

EVERY COUNTY IN LINE.

Later returns make it evident that THE MINING JOURNAL fell far short of the actual figures when it placed the Republican plurality at 5,000 in the upper peninsula. It will be much nearer 11,000 in round numbers and may reach that figure exactly. The returns so far at hand indicate that the Republicans carried every one of the fifteen counties in the Twelfth or upper peninsula district, even Baraga tumbling into line for Rich and also electing George Otto Beecher as clerk, the first Republican county clerk Baraga has ever known. Mackinac, with St. Ignace gone Republican, is probably on the same side of the line while Ontonagon, which gave Morse 365 in 1892, gives Rich 150 and Schoolcraft, the other Democratic sister, can safely be counted upon for a Republican majority in this cyclone year, having been only 70 Democratic in 1892.

The pluralities from nearly every county in the district are pretty clearly established by the returns at hand but where only partial returns were received a conservative estimate has been made based upon the vote of 1892. The list is as follows: Alger, 44; Baraga, 52; Chippewa, 606; Delta, 450 (estimated); Dickinson, 1,300; Gogebic, 1,300; Houghton, 2,500; Iron, 800; Keweenaw, 200; Luce, 150; Mackinac, 50 (estimated); Marquette, 2,600; Menominee, 500 (estimated); Ontonagon, 150; Schoolcraft, 100 (estimated); total, 10,996. The full returns from Delta and Menominee counties can be safely counted upon to either make this total good or to increase it.

In 1892 the pluralities in the upper peninsula counties for governor were as follows: Republican—Alger, 1; Chippewa, 151; Delta, 357; Dickinson, 346; Gogebic, 713; Houghton, 682; Iron, 320; Keweenaw, 197; Luce, 77; Marquette, 1,020; Menominee, 49; Democratic—Baraga, 260; Mackinac, 387; Ontonagon, 365; Schoolcraft, 71.

A New Channeler.

An interested group of quarrymen assembled at the Marquette quarry of Furst, Jacobs & Co. yesterday afternoon to witness the trial of a new stone channeler devised by Mr. S. H. Holley and built at the Lake Shore Iron works, the trial promising to cause quite a change in the equipment of upper peninsula quarries.

The new channeler differs from those now in use in using elliptical gearing instead of the usual rotary motion. The advantages obtained are manifest at the first glance at the machine in operation, the elliptical gear giving a quick downward stroke to the channeling bars and a slower lifting motion. The increased speed of the down stroke of course increases the force of the blow struck and results in a corresponding increase in the cutting capacity of the machine. The elliptical gear used is of the usual form and gives four times the speed of the ordinary rotary motion on the downward stroke and four times the power on the return or lifting motion.

From tests and measurements made by those present while the machine was in operation yesterday it was found that the Lake Shore channeler does just twice as much work in a given time as the ordinary type of channeler in use here, cutting half an inch at a stroke where the other cuts only a quarter of an inch. No further comment is necessary and no quarryman on seeing the new machine in operation will doubt the advantage of the elliptical motion in comparison with the rotary motion, the power applied being the same in both instances.

After the trial had lasted until everyone present was satisfied the channeler was loaded upon a car for return to the Lake Shore works, where some further improvements will be added during the winter as it is not intended to place the new machine upon the market until spring, unless of course there should be a call for it from any source before that time.

Meeting of Common Council.
At the adjourned meeting of the common council last evening petitions were presented for an arc light at the corner of Spring and Third streets and one at the corner of Park and Front streets or Crescent and Front. Both were referred to the electric light committee.

The petition of Dr. O. D. Jones, asking permission to connect his residence with the Spruce street sewer, was favorably reported by the street committee and was granted.

The council then took up the question of lighting fixtures for the new city hall and a good deal of time was passed in discussing different designs, representatives of several firms being present in the city anxious to obtain the order. Finally, it appearing impossible to arrive at any definite decision in the open council, it was voted to refer the matter to the building committee, which was empowered to contract for the fixtures in place, not including lamps, the price not to exceed $1,000. The council then adjourned to the 19th inst.

At the Lakeside Works.
H. C. Taylor has the Lakeside Iron works ready for business again, having thoroughly overhauled the building and plant. The interior has been entirely rearranged for greater convenience and economy in operating and the work of resetting the machinery is just being finished. The changes have made a great improvement in the appearance of the establishment and will undoubtedly result in greater satisfaction to those having work done there because of the saving of time in handling work which can now be effected. Mr. Taylor is well known throughout the county as a first-class mechanic and as in times past the Lakeside works have always found enough to do to keep them busy there will probably be no difficulty about work during the coming year although in reopening the establishment at this season Mr. Taylor naturally does not expect much of a rush for a few months.

An Event of Much Interest.

An event of much interest to the amusement loving people of the city will be the presentation of Czibulka's "Amorita" which is to be given by the Calhoun Opera company at the opera house on Saturday, the 17th. The opera has been specially adapted for the New York casino, where it had a phenomenal run, has met with splendid success wherever it has been produced.

The opera is designed not only to gratify the artistic taste of the public but it furnishes as well thorough amusement. It contains many bright and meritorious musical numbers, running from light to grand opera, is profuse with comedy lines and abounds with spectacular effects. The staging and costuming of the opera have been upon a most magnificent scale and without regard to expenditure. Their coming will undoubtedly prove to be the event of the season.

Their Wooden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Van Ness celebrated their wooden wedding last evening at their home on South Fourth street. Mr. Van Ness is a popular brakeman on the South Shore road. A number of their friends were present to assist in the festivities and all spent a most enjoyable evening. Dancing and social games filled several hours very pleasantly and a toothsome lunch was served. Charles Lowrey and Dan Leigh furnished music for the evening. Among those present were Mrs. Moorhead, Miss Miller, Miss Katie Crow, Miss Mary Calkey, Miss Ropes and Messrs. John McNulty, John Gray, P. Coughlin, James McClair and John McKelvey.
