The problem before the Democracy of this state now is how to elect two United States senators with only a single vote in the legislature. It's a sticker.

POSSIBLY Senators Jones and Stewart of Nevada feel just a bit sorry for having abandoned the Republican party to take their chances with the Populists. They jumped rather prematurely.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has not been able to get along very well with the congress of his party's choosing. The question arises as to how he will hit it off with the one to succeed it, which the opposition will control by a good, stiff majority.

AFTER all the Populists didn't come anywhere near electing Owens in Minnesota. Nelson stays in for another term by a good plurality, and that, too, despite the fact that nearly every Scandinavian paper in the state was against him in the campaign.

ALL the plans of the aspirants for seats in the United States senate are disturbed by the magnitude of the Republican victory. There were so many more members of the legislature elected than the candidates counted on that it will take the latter some time to ascertain where they stand.

THERE are Populist gains in some of the states where the new party movement is comparatively young, but losses in those where it had been in power and afforded the people a chance to judge it by its works. Those sanguine "Pops" who think theirs is the coming party will find the returns from the several states an interesting subject for analysis and study, but if they get any encouragement out of them they are easily satisfied.

AMONG those who went down in the gale of Tuesday were Silver Dollar Bland of Missouri and Anti-Option Hatch of the same state—two men who have done more "chinning" to less purpose in congress than perhaps any other two members of that body. They were both great friends of the "downtrodden" people, too, but the victims of capitalistic and monopolistic oppression failed to remember their services gratefully on election day. The defeat of Bland is a sad blow to the cause of silver, which had in him an indefatigable, even though sometimes indiscreet, champion.

WHIPPED OUT OF ITS BOOTS.

Never before was a political party more completely and universally done up in a general election than was the Democracy of the United States in that of Tuesday last. It was beaten in the counties, beaten in the legislative and congressional districts, and beaten in states heretofore reliably Democratic in the north; while in the south it lost heavily in representatives in congress as well as in the vote polled.

Such a political revolution could not come without a cause. It is useless to say that money did it, for money could not accomplish such an overturning of the party in power in the nation unless with the aid of a wide-spread sentiment adverse to it among the people. It is true that the Republicans had the most money and the better party organization in most of the states, but this was not the case in New York, and that state leads them all in its repudiation of Democracy.

The sentiment among the people is what did it. This sentiment took various forms, but in each it contributed to the marvelous victory won by the Republicans. Among the Democrats it manifested itself in a lukewarmness that kept a large percentage of the voters of that party from the polls, or a disgust that sent many into affiliation with the Republican or Populist parties of the time being, this arising from dissatisfaction with the administration and disappointment with the course of the party's majority in congress during the last session. Among the Republicans it displayed itself in zeal to win a triumph that would strengthen the party for the contest two years hence, when the presidency will be the prize contended for, while among the Populists it took the guise of an ambition to poll the largest possible vote this year with a view to demonstrating that the new party is a growing one and keeping it well in line for the national contest in 1896.

The Populists found it easy to win converts from the Democratic party by reason of the dissatisfaction of many Democrats with the president's financial policy and the offense given the laboring element in its ranks by Cleveland's action in sending federal troops to Chicago to put down the rioters during the railway troubles there last summer. They found it difficult to make much headway with Republicans, hence their work sapped the strength of the Democracy without seriously affecting that of the Republican party. Added to the defections from this source, there were those caused by the disclosures of the Lexow investigating committee in New York, which hurt the party all over the country. The split in its ranks in New York following Hill's nomination for the governorship further weakened it throughout the nation by discouraging its voters generally, and blundering management did the rest.

In Michigan special causes of weakness existed which had their share in bringing about the remarkable result achieved in this state, where the state ticket goes through by over 100,000 plurality, and the Republicans appear to have elected all but one member of the legislature and all the representatives in congress. The quarrel between leaders of the party and the bitter contention over the distribution of federal patronage in the state cut an appreciable figure in bringing on the Democracy of Michigan in the tremendous disaster it sustained in Tuesday's election.

But what is the use of dwelling on the causes of the crushing defeat sustained by the Democracy in the elections of Tuesday? It is left by the result without a national leader, without a policy that is not stamped with popular repudiation, almost without organization, while the Republican party is placed in superb condition for the great struggle of 1896 by a victory unparalleled in the history of American politics and by the fact that the revival in business which was bound to come in any event will now be placed to its credit as having been induced by the assurance that it will regain control of the general government two years hence and that its recovery of control of congress allays the fear of further legislation affecting our business interests by the Democrats.

It has been suspected, and not without reason, that the great capitalists of the country as well as the bulk of the wealthy corporations, whose sympathies are mainly with the Republican party, have assisted to create and continue the industrial depression and financial stringency that have prevailed for the past eighteen months. If this be so they have the power, and it will be their policy, to now aid in bringing about a return of prosperity. The conditions are most favorable to a revival of business and industrial activity, and should that come sooner as one of the results of the election it will go far to reconcile Democrats to the overwhelming defeat they sustained in Tuesday's struggle, for we are all tired of the hard times and will rejoice, regardless of partisan considerations, to see prosperity return to the country.

Another Moon.

A city-bred, tenement-bred youngster took his first excursion into the country with a "fresh-air" party, says the New York Tribune. It happened to be at the time of the full moon. Night after night the little fellow went out after supper and sat upon a stone behind the farmhouse, and watched the wondrous orb as it rose behind the trees. Then his week expired, and he went back to his tenement district. A year passed, and as it happened the fresh-air fund sent the same susceptible boy to the same farmhouse. Supper was eaten, and he slipped out behind the house and made straight for the stone in the back yard. But where was the moon? He looked and looked, till finally, not in the east, but in the west, he discovered a slim silver crescent. The disappointment was too much for him, and he returned to the house, weeping. "Oh, it isn't the same feller!" he said. "It isn't the same feller we had last year!"

TO PREVENT FIRES. Official Caretakers and Local Financial Responsibility Necessary. People who live among our forests have seen them burn so often, while no effort was made to ascertain the cause or punish the carelessness or criminality of the incendiary, that they have naturally come to consider forest property in a class by itself, with no right to protection against fire, like a dwelling house or other property.

Nothing like any voluntary service can be trusted. Officials must be paid and must be held responsible for care in performing their duties and obedience to regulations. This point cannot be insisted upon too strongly. Protection against fires will cost money, and this fact must be recognized at the outset. Again, the common interest in the protection of property must be recognized by creating financial liability for its enforcement on the part of the community and its members—that is, each county, for example, must be obliged to pay into the state treasury a certain sum of money for every acre burned over each year, as a fire indemnity fund, to be applied to the maintenance of the system and for the payment of damages to those whose property has been burned without neglect on their own part.

FEARS FOR THEIR SAFETY.

Edward and Peter Lee Have Probably Gone Down in Lake Superior.

LEFT WEDNESDAY MORNING TO LOOK AFTER NETS.

Did Not Return That Night and Life Savers Can Find No Trace of Them.

WHELMED BY IOY WAVES.

Edward and Peter Lee, two well-known fishermen of this port, it is greatly feared were drowned somewhere in the neighborhood of Partridge island sometime Wednesday. They had some nets out between Partridge island and Little Presque Isle and started Wednesday in a sailboat to look after them. They expected to be back before night and took no provisions or blankets. The lake was not breaking rough at the time though there was a heavy swell on but as both were skilful boatmen nothing was thought about it when night fell and they had not returned. Their families supposed they had been detained by weather or otherwise and would surely get in during the night.

Yesterday morning, however, there was still no sign of them and their alarmed wives began to make inquiries. One of the smaller fishing tugs started for Partridge island but was unable to make head against the heavy swell. Then Captain Cleary turned out the life-saving crew and went up in his surf-boat to Partridge island and around it. He returned about dark last evening after a thorough search all around Partridge island and the adjacent shores between there and the city but had found no trace of the missing men or their boat. Captain Cleary did not know when he started on his search yesterday that the brothers had nets out towards Little Presque. He expects to start out again this morning and make a more extended search to the northward. It is felt, however, that the search can result in nothing save a determination from discovery of fragments of their boat of the place where they met their death. If either was still alive and ashore he would undoubtedly have reached the city or would have sent word if unable to come himself.

Peter Lee commanded the fishing tug Ethel J. the past season and Edward was employed on the same boat. Peter lived on Rock street and leaves a wife and one child. His wife is a sister of Mrs. Charles Cole and Mrs. Hall. Edward lived on West Spring street and was married. It is known that Peter could not swim but even the best swimmer stands little chance in the icy waters of Lake Superior. The relatives of the two men have not yet given up hope that they may have got ashore. The fact that the sloop in which they were out was borrowed from Anderson is held by them as a reason for believing that the two men, being naturally more unwilling to lose another's property, have stuck by the boat and may be up behind Little Presque or even farther north. On the other hand it is believed by most of the fishermen that they attempted to return through the gale which sprang up about noon Wednesday and were capsized, probably off the point of Presque Isle. The fact that the boat was sharp and crank and carried heavy ballast is cited to support this theory. It is sincerely to be hoped that the missing men may have taken refuge somewhere up the shore and may be working their way back to the city but it must be confessed that an analysis of all the facts leaves scarcely any hope that they are still alive.

Juryman Went Crazy.

It will be remembered that three months or so back Editor Baldwin of the Alger County Republican got married. Some of the hoodlums of Au Train thought the occasion a proper one to organize a charivari party and to torment Mr. Baldwin into buying a barrel of beer. That gentleman very properly declined to be held up in any such manner. The gang continuing to raise a disturbance in his front yard and declining to leave until their thirst was quenched Mr. Baldwin very appropriately discharged a shot gun into the thick of the party. When the alleged joke became serious and as two or three of the hoodlums were badly hurt a complaint was filed against Mr. Baldwin for assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than the crime of murder.

This case came on for trial at Au Train yesterday before Judge Steere, C. E. Brown and son of this city appearing for the defense. According to the report of an attorney from this city in no way interested in the prosecution had no case at all and the jury would undoubtedly have acquitted the defendant but for an unfortunate occurrence which has compelled the postponement of the case. While Judge Brown was in the middle of his argument one of the jury was suddenly seized with convulsions. Judge Brown stopped and inquired if he was ill but could get no reply. Shortly after court adjourned for supper, Judge Steere ordering a night session at 8 o'clock to finish the case. At that hour the convulsive juryman failed to show up and the sheriff reported that he was about his house calling for his wife, who is away on a visit, and otherwise acting in an insane manner.

Judge Steere thereupon ordered an adjournment until this morning and it is altogether probable that the case will have to end in a mistrial owing to the calamity which has befallen the unfortunate juryman.

More Than Cordially Received.

The Calhoun Opera company received more than a cordial reception yesterday at the Academy. It was almost an ovation. Only one of the members of the company as it existed prior to its reorganization is now with the company, and that is Douglass Flint. He is as funny as ever and sang yesterday in very good voice. As Hagenback Mr. Flint proved very acceptable, says the Milwaukee Daily News of Nov. 5. George Lyding, as the Hussar captain in disguise, has a sweet, sympathetic vice and yet it is not very strong. His acting was fully up to the average. Ed. Webb is an admirable Piffkow, knowing how to raise a laugh without trying very hard. He looks the part to perfection. Mr. Wagner is an acceptable Walderman. Of the female voices, Miss Millard's is by far the best, although there is an attractiveness about Miss Farrington which easily made her lots of friends yesterday. As the magistrate's daughters, both these young ladies received generous praise. The prettiest song in the opera was sung by Miss Millard in the second act. The orchestra accompaniment of fifteen pieces was good, though it might have been a little bit better. No doubt this evening's performance will be smoother. On the whole it may be said of the company that it is painstaking, the people composing it work in harmony and the chorus is well trained. It is not claimed for the Calhoun Opera company that it contains grand opera singers, but it does justly claim to be a first class light opera organization. "The Black Hussar" is an interesting opera, and the opportunities for scenic display and magnificent costuming are taken advantage of to add to the interest in the production. The greatest strength of this company is its ensemble music, specially praiseworthy, being the finale in the first act. "The Black Hussar" will be repeated tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday night, while "Amorita" will be given the balance of the week. A prosperous engagement may confidently be predicted for the Calhoun Opera company.

The Calhoun company appears at the Marquette Opera house Nov. 17 in "Amorita" and "The Black Hussar" and will undoubtedly repeat its former success here.

The South Shore's Tracks.

Draughtsman Nelson Cadaract of Chief Engineer Payne's office is now working on the most elaborate map yet made of the South Shore company's property and tracks in this city. Every parcel of ground and every track, switch and pier owned by the company is correctly laid down on a large scale. Of course the map is made for the information of the company but it is so complete and perfect that city Engineer McIntosh would do well to add a print from it to the archives of his office.

In connection with the subject of the South Shore's tracks in this city it is of interest to the public to say that General Manager Fitch has informed a MINING JOURNAL reporter that he wishes to keep the apparently useless track which crosses the foot of Washington street for the purposes of lessening the number of crossings by ore trains on Front street. His plan is to run the empty ore cars from No. 4 dock off by that track, down the track east of Lake street and so into the empty car yard so as to lessen by that much the traffic across Front street at Superior. Thus it will be seen that the persons who have been kicking about that apparently useless track do not know what they are talking about, for it will be recognized by everybody that any lessening of the number of trains crossing Front street is highly desirable. It is probable that the necessary connections to enable the road to shift empty cars in the manner indicated will be made before navigation opens next spring and thus the number of cars crossing Front street will be reduced nearly or quite one-half.

Mr. Fitch has given orders that the old track across Front street to the old Cleveland dock be pulled up, as the company has no further use for it. This will relieve vehicles from crossing one set of rails at Front and Superior streets.

Lighting Contract Awarded.

The building committee of the common council last night awarded the contract to furnish the lighting fixtures for the new city hall to the Chicago Gas & Electrical Fixture Manufacturing company. The contract price is $1,000 and includes combined gas and electric fixtures for 192 lights, in place and all ready for lighting except the electric lamps. There were three bidders for the work and all set their price at the same figure of $1,000. It thus remained for the committee to decide which bidder offered the most for the money and which set of fixtures was the best, handsomest and most artistic. The decision was in favor of the concern named above and the contract was awarded accordingly.

The furniture committee was also wrestling with propositions but came to no decision.

The Democratic Oasis.

Alger county is in one sense a Democratic oasis and haven of rest for the untirred in this avalanche year. While the county went Republican on the state ticket by a narrow majority most of the Democratic county officers are elected by pluralities even more narrow. The latest reports from Alger are that only the Republican candidate for treasurer pulled through on the county ticket, all the rest of the nominees on the Democratic ticket being successful by pluralities from nine up, the lowest figure being that of Frank H. Peters for prosecuting attorney. Alger county politics are evidently much mixed and the Democrats may derive what consolation they can from the results there.
