MARQUETTE, MICH., NOVEMBER 13.

Entered as mailmatter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

The Bay City Tribune opines that "the supreme court has nulled the Australian ballot to the cross." If its decision holds the legislature soon to meet should see that it is kept there as a fixture. The ballot, if it must be used in accordance with the recently promulgated decision of the court, is a nuisance and should be abated as such as soon as that can be done.

There will be a big crop of contested election cases in this state if the decision of the supreme court in the Scott-Glaser case stands. Wherever a candidate has been defeated by a bolt of his party's voters he will be sure to contest, for where a voter has split his ticket the chances are about ten to one that he marked it in such a manner as to invalidate it under the court's ruling. The decision will make work for the lawyers, whether so intended or not.

Of the many ridiculous and untruthful charges made by the Negaunee from Herald during the late campaign there was none more absurd and false than that which set forth that the editor of this paper "dickered" with the Prohibitionists with a view to getting the support of voters of that party for candidates on the Democratic ticket. The Prohibitionist nominee for member of the assembly for this district is employed in THE MINING JOURNAL office, it is true, but he is a man whom nobody could make a trade with in politics, and the same may be said of his political associates throughout the county. There was no attempt made to influence his action in any way by the editor of THE MINING JOURNAL or anybody connected with the paper in a managerial capacity. A majority of the men employed on THE MINING JOURNAL are Republicans, but not one of these has ever been urged to vote otherwise than as his convictions might lead him to cast his ballot. The same is true of the Prohibitionists and Democrats in THE MINING JOURNAL'S employ. They are expected to render faithful service as employees, and beyond that nothing is required of them save good citizenship and reputable conduct. A man who would consent to vote against his political convictions to curry favor with anybody would not come up to the standard of manhood requisite to ensure him a steady place on THE MINING JOURNAL, and most of the men employed on the paper have been connected with it for years.

AN APPLICATION for a re-hearing in the Scott-Glaser election case is to be made by Glaser's attorney, and it is to be hoped that the supreme court will reverse its decision as to what constitutes a "distinguishing mark" on a ballot. Otherwise a man will need a lawyer with him when he goes to the polls to vote to ensure having his ballot prepared so that it can be legally counted. Under the decision rendered by the court in the Bay City contested election case, if a mark is placed on the ballot anywhere save over the head of the voter's party ticket or in front of the name of a candidate on some other ticket for whom he desires to vote, the entire ballot is invalidated. He cannot erase the name of the candidate on his own ticket against whom he wants to vote, except where there are two or more candidates running for the same office. The decision of the court is looked on as absurd by lawyers, for it entirely disregards the principle that the plain intent of the voter shall be taken account of when any question arises as to the legality of a ballot. Under this decision, the voter who would endeavor to make his intent as plain as possible by erasing the name of the candidate whom he intends to vote against on his own ticket after having put a cross in front of the name of the man for whom he desired to vote on some other ticket would render his ballot illegal, as the erasure would be a "distinguishing mark" in the opinion and under the ruling of Michigan's supreme court. The election law is defective in many respects and the new legislature should revise and simplify it.

A COMFORTING PREDICTION.

In the opinion of The Age of Steel, better times are going to prevail for several years. That publication says of the industrial outlook: The elections being over, the country will—and immediately, at that—experience a sense of relief and freedom from alarms at once grateful and wholesomely beneficial. The calamity shrieker's task is now ended, and a few months hence he will be as full of conscienceless explanations for political mistakes as he has been resonant with denunciatory howls. His blue spectacles will drop as scales from his eyes, and once more he will join with all good citizens in trying to help along the improvement which started in business before he was ready for it.

Fortunately, too, there is a good foundation upon which to begin the united work. Trade and industry have been gradually reviving since the close of the strikes last summer, and in many lines an average to full business has been done this fall. The stream was not only raised by the accumulated water (orders) which flowed into it immediately after the passage of the tariff bill, but a pretty good boating stage, all things considered, has been maintained ever since. The season is late now, of course, but since consumption is steady and tending to increase the prospects for next year are more definitely promising with the passage of each week and month. Confidence is immeasurably stronger now than it was at the beginning of the autumn. Among the manufacturing industries this is especially true, for, while at no time have they had many orders ahead, they have been able to increase operations from time to time with machinery and men. Prices realized for product have afforded little above a living profit, it is true, and in the case of iron and steel have fallen away markedly; but that fires, forges rolls and looms have maintained a generally increasing production testifies to a growing and hopeful consumption.

PROTECTION AND FREE SILVER.

Among the protectionist journals of the country the American Manufacturer, published at Pittsburg, stands in the front rank. It naturally finds cause for congratulation in the outcome of the elections of last week, and regards it as a decisive verdict by the American people in favor of protection as an economic policy. But The Manufacturer realizes that there is another issue which the Republican party must meet and deal with in accordance with the popular desire it would retain the confidence and support of the masses, that being the financial issue raised by the discrimination against silver. On this point it says:

There is no doubt but that the people at large want and will have some more liberal action regarding silver. If we read aright the signs of the times, free silver coinage is the air. On what basis or ratio the coinage shall be we are not prepared to say, but as free trade, a large import trade and gold monometallism go necessarily together, so protection, the control of our own markets and bi-metallism are united. The people will demand more money and that money will be silver. If this question is taken up and discussed honestly and seriously and with a desire to learn what is best for this country it can be settled now on a much fairer and conservative basis than it can be in three years from this.

THE MINING JOURNAL fully agrees with The Manufacturer that the party which was given such a victory in the recent elections cannot afford to ignore the demand of the people for "more money and cheaper money." Whether the required expansion of the currency can be obtained by free coinage of silver or not is a question for discussion and careful consideration, but provided for in some manner it must be or the discontent of the masses will continue, for the cause that was mainly instrumental in producing it will remain in active operation.

It is just as true now as it was before election that money is too dear—that is, the interest rate is too high—in this country. There is only one way to render it cheaper and that is by increasing the volume of it in active circulation and available for the requirements of business. Laws to regulate the rates of interest are of no avail when they come into conflict with the higher law of supply and demand. Money, like everything else, is dear when it is scarce. The way to make it cheap is to make it plenty. We should have a per capita circulation of at least fifty dollars, whereas it is practically less than twenty. France has a per capita circulation twice that of the United States, and is prosperous above all others of the civilized nations of the world. We should be a more prosperous people than the French, for our resources are greater and our population in proportion to these vastly less, wherefore our opportunities for advancement are correspondingly greater. Give us a volume of the circulating medium commensurate with our needs and we will easily be the most prosperous people on the globe. The Democrats had the opportunity to do this but lacked the wisdom to take advantage of it; let the Republican party be more wise and it will ensure its long continuance in power by promoting the general prosperity.

The monetary question is the one that most concerns the people and the party that demonstrates its ability to deal with it wisely will earn and deserve their lasting gratitude.

ANNUAL REPORT OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONER

Believes the Government Should Settle All Disputes Arising Between the Roads and Employes.

WOULD DO AWAY WITH STRIKES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Hon. Wade Hampton, commissioner of railroads, in his annual report for the year ending June 30, 1894, calls attention to the effect upon the railway earnings of the financial and industrial depression which before reaching the United States had prostrated every industry in South and Central America and in Mexico.

The Union Pacific, including the Kansas division, shows a decrease in net earnings for 1893 as compared with 1892 of $2,165,712; the net earnings of the Central Pacific shows a reduction of $27,852 while the net earnings of the Sioux City & Pacific company shows an increase of $104,490.

Referring to what is known as the "Tolly bill" the commissioner is of the opinion that on the basis of operation for the year 1893 (to say nothing of the strike year of 1894) there is a grave doubt of the ability of the companies to meet the requirements of this bill.

The Pullman strike having, in the opinion of the commissioner, furnished a powerful argument in favor of the right of the government to at all times control the carrying of mails and to enforce the provisions of the interstate commerce laws, he recommends that congress take into consideration the propriety of creating a national board of railway arbitration to whom all questions in dispute between railway corporations and their employes shall first be submitted before action is taken and whose decision, in respect to all questions submitted, shall be final.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

ANSE McLAURIN'S NERVE.

"Yes," said a tall lank Mississippi backwoodsman to a Washington reporter as the senator from that state passed through the lobby of Willard's hotel, "I been a-knowing 'Anse' McLaurin for a mighty long while—call him 'Anse' 'cause I can't get my tongue twisted round that senator business yit. He'd rather you'd call him 'Anse' anyhow. I reckon—makes him feel more sorter homelike. Yes, I know the whole family; he's got eight as strappin' big brothers as ever you saw; one of 'em is railroad commissioner of our state, 'nother one is district attorney, and all the rest of 'em is lawyers 'cept one, an' he's a doctor. He's got nine cousins, too, just as right men as he an' his brothers is, and let me tell you, them eighteen is a mighty hard team to hold when they get bunched together. 'Anse' is got 'bout the coolest head on him I ever saw, an' I've seen some mighty cool ones in my time, too, let me tell you, an' gritty, an' no name for him."

DENTISTRY IN CHINA.

Quaker Methods of the Tricky Mongolian Tooth Doctors.

In the department of dentistry the Chinese have, strange to relate, anticipated by centuries the profession in Europe and America in the insertion of artificial teeth. Utilizing the femur of an ox, and sawing a circle of half an inch in diameter from a section of the shaft, a section of this circle is used sufficient to fill the vacant space in the mouth. The section of bone is then dressed with a file so as to imitate the teeth to be replaced, and through holes drilled in each end, copper wires are passed to fasten it to the adjoining teeth.

"The feller 'lowed he had the floor, too, 'an' was a-goin' to talk all he wanted to. 'Anse' never said nothin', jes' kep' on talkin', an' the 'Mustang' kep' on a-puttin' in till another lawyer on 'Anse's' side got mad an' shucked off his cote, run around an' grabbed hold of 'Mustang,' an' 'holler'd: 'Here's nuther one got the floor; let's see whose a-goin' to keep it.' Then sich another fight you an't never seen the like of; everybody got to fighting; some on one side, some on the other. All 'Anse's' brothers pitched in an' some of his cousins on the jury took a hand. The prisoner squared off an' brack loose at everybody that came anywhere near him. Fact is, the floor was bout four foot deep in fightin' lawyers, jury, sheriff, an' everybody else that could take a hand. All this time 'Anse' never quit a-talkin'—jes' kep' mountin' the pile as it grooved bigger. After a while somebody 'holler'd: 'For God's sake don't shoot in here!' Then you oughter see the niggers begin to run. They all run to the windows to jump, but 'twan't no use, 'cause the windows was 'bout sixty feet off the groun', an' they sorter run to 'em an' stopped like a balky horse."

HE KNEW A TENDERFOOT.

A Jerseyman's Exciting Experience with a Pennsylvania Mine Mule.

Patrick Murray, of Perth Amboy, N. J., had an exciting experience a few days ago with a mine mule at Summit Hill, Pa., which he will never forget, says the New York Post. When he reached the bottom of the slope and attracted the attention of one of the mules. He is at a loss to know what angered the animal, but the beast came for him at full speed, and Murray started for a "heading" with nothing but the light of a miner's lamp to guide him.

THE ROUTINE MEAL. Suggestive Hints Regarding Breakfasts, Lunches, Dinners and Suppers.

It goes without saying that the average housekeeper is very much a creature of routine. The daily recurrence of the three meals, set by almost universal precedent, with a fixed form for each meal, tends in itself to make her table service a thing of routine...

Yet there should be decided changes if the family of the household is to remain healthy and contented. It is necessary that there should be a separate fixed form for breakfast, dinner and supper.

The proper hour for the heaviest meal of the day is still a matter of discussion, but there can be little doubt that where the individual is accustomed to hard physical or brain work all day the best time is after the work is done and time remains for rest and thorough digestion.

In the matter of adhering rigidly to our three meals we are often too obediently the creatures of routine. The mother who will not let a delicate child eat but two meals believes, no doubt, that she is doing the best she can for the child's health.

Every article of food should be covered until it appears on the table. Milk and butter should be kept in airtight vessels and kept covered. They both take up every odor flying in the air, and are positively harmful to take into the stomach after standing uncovered for an hour or two.
