MAY BE AN ERUPTION.

Several Slight Shocks of Earthquake Were Experienced Last Night at Tacoma.

MOUNT TACOMA APPEARED IN STATE OF ERUPTION.

Changes Had Been Noticed in the Appearance of the Mountain and Eruption Was Expected.

MOUNTAIN HAD BEEN SMOKING.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 21.—Tonight at exactly 6:30 o'clock several slight shocks of earthquake were felt here. Windows rattled throughout the city. The first shock was the most severe being accompanied by rumbling noises as of a distant explosion and simultaneously a sheet of flame was directed in the eastern heavens in the direction of Mount Tacoma.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Great excitement has been caused throughout the Puget Sound country by what is looked upon by many as an eruption of Mount Tacoma, or Ranier, 4,440 feet high. The mountain has lately been strangely transformed. The crest of the great monarch of the Cascade has changed, the cone having fallen in and steam can be seen rising from the crater.

There is no eruption, it is believed by those most competent to judge, but great masses of rock seem to have fallen. The snow-capped cone has disappeared and a sharp pointed peak has risen in its place to the east of the crater. The changed appearance of the mountain is evident from the streets of Seattle, ninety miles distant, and thousands of people have watched the great peak all the afternoon.

But very few people have ever ascended the mountain and at this season of the year the ascension is absolutely impossible. There is no way of making a thorough investigation of the phenomenon.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 21.—The story of Mount Ranier's changed appearance is regarded here as having little foundation, though Tacoma looks at the mountain from a different point of view than Seattle. No steam or fire has been observed from here but the smoke this city, which is covered with one of the largest glaciers in the world, seems to be covered with snow to a greater depth than usual. Almost always in summer time, on a clear day, some steam can be seen arising from the mountain's crater and it is thought here this phenomenon has given rise to the story. Persons have slept in the crater for a few hours at a time, but cannot remain long on account of the dense sulphuric gas which is constantly rising and which has led some travelers to suspect that the interior of the mountain is in close proximity to the place known in literature as Hades.

THANKED ALL PARTIES.

Found Something to Admire in Each Political Organization.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—Today's session of the Woman Christian Temperance union opened with prayer by Mrs. Katherine Leute Stevenson. A number of reports not already acted on were presented and, after being thoroughly discussed, were adopted. In the afternoon the report of the resolutions committee was taken up. Among the resolutions adopted was one deploring the Armenian trouble and advocating international protection and one denouncing the increase of military education in the public schools, colleges and universities. Another one, which raised much controversy, thanked the Populists for the suffrage plank in Kansas, the Republicans for the same thing in Colorado and the Democrats of the south for bringing a large army under the Cleveland Temperance federation, held a big platform meeting in Music Hall this evening. Addresses were made by Helen M. Barker of Chicago, Susan B. Anthony, Madame Chika Sakurai of Japan, Mrs. Lida Merryweather of Tennessee, President C. P. Thwing of the Western Reserve university, Miss Francis E. Willard and Mrs. Clara Hoffman.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Minister Dun Will Probably Act Between China and Japan.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The action of European powers upon the new phase of the China and Japan mediation question is now awaited with much interest. Japan's suggestion that Minister Dun would be an acceptable medium of communication from China in effect eliminates Great Britain, France and the other powers from being a factor in the negotiations. It is believed, however, from official information received here that Russia, Italy and Germany will certainly look with favor on China's dealing through Minister Dun. The same source indicates that Austria probably will give her adherence. It can also be stated positively that Great Britain favored the recent offer of mediation by the United States on the grounds, it is presumed, that it would save China from utter destruction and thus protect British trade with China. Under these circumstances it is believed by officials and diplomats who are familiar with all the correspondence that the European powers cannot with propriety interfere with any offer which China wishes to make directly through United States Minister Dun.

IN LEAGUE WITH PRISONERS.

Tennessee Sheriff Charged With Favoring His Charges.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 21.—Today's proceedings in the murder trial of Smith and Richardson, charged with lynching six negroes, was of the most sensational character. Sheriff A. H. McCarver, father of "Butch" McCarver, the infidel witness, was put on the stand this morning. He was asked by General Peters for state, how long he had known of his son's agnosticism before the latter told it upon the stand. The counsel for the defense objected whereupon General Peters arose and, addressing the court but keenly eyeing the sheriff, who sat in the witness stand, delivered an arraignment of that official the like of which was never heard in a Tennessee court before. He accused Sheriff McCarver of being in sympathy with the prisoners and thwarting every effort of the state to secure conviction.

The counsel then argued the question of the admissibility of Sheriff McCarver's evidence, but Judge Cooper decided to force him to testify, on the grounds that he was not sincere in stating that he was an infidel. "Butch" McCarver was placed on the stand and the remainder of the day was consumed by the state in efforts to induce the reluctant witness to tell what he knows as he told it before the grand jury. A mass meeting of citizens has been called to demand the removal of Sheriff McCarver.

WARNED HIS DAUGHTER.

Not to Worry Over Any Report of His Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—President Fouz called on Mrs. Pitzel and daughter at the central station today and received valuable information from the daughter in reference to her father. The daughter said she remembered that while walking with her father one Sunday afternoon in Chicago the latter said to her: "If you ever hear through the newspapers or in any other way that I have been found dead, do not believe it. I will be all right." Later, while in Boston she read the story of her father's death in a newspaper. As soon as she finished the story, Holmes said to her: "Do you remember what your father told you the afternoon you were walking in Chicago?" Fouz also had a talk with Mrs. Pitzel but elicited nothing in particular.

WAS AN OLD DETECTIVE.

St. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 21.—Joseph Pitzel, who is the centre of attraction in the Philadelphia insurance swindle, was a former resident of this city. While here he and a man named John Carpenter conducted a detective agency and made a number of important captures, one case being that of a noted criminal who fired buildings at Garden Grove, Iowa, and shot an officer while escaping. Pitzel left St. Joseph owing considerable money.

REGISTERED HIS PROTEST.

Grand Army Officials Interview President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Commander in Chief Lawler and Adjutant General Jones called at the White House at 2:30 o'clock. They were received by Private Secretary Thurber. Lawler presented to Secretary Thurber the resolutions passed by the last encampment of the Grand Army Republic accompanied by a statement of the cases of the old soldiers who were discharged from government positions during the present administration, of those whose salaries had been raised and those who, it is claimed, were discriminated against in other ways. General Lawler declined to make the statement public but said it was a conservative presentation of the case based upon facts and couched in moderate and respectful terms. The organization had no political ends to serve and no desire to do injustice to the administration, he said, but felt that the facts bearing upon the treatment of old soldiers in government service should be made known to the president so that any action he might see fit should be taken with a full knowledge of the matter. It is understood the re-instatement of some of the veterans who were discharged will be asked for.

GOLD AT A PREMIUM.

Intending Purchasers of United States Bonds Hunting Gold.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—There is general interest in the bond issue and possible purchasers started a number of rumors today. Gold is at a premium already and there is no knowing where it will go to. In fact Nesrlege, Colgate & Co., dealers in money, did sell an order for $50,000 in gold at one-eighth of one per cent. advance, but they did not consider this worth calling a premium. Other dealers in money said inquiries had been made for gold by several customers but no prices were quoted. They declared, however, they were willing to furnish gold to a moderate amount at one-half of one per cent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The receipts of the government so far for the present month are $13,522,072. The expenditures amount to $22,160,000, making a deficit for the month so far of $8,597,928 and for the period of since July 1, 1894, of $22,951,790.

NO USE FOR LAWYERS.

Knights of Labor Refuse to Admit Lawyers and Barkeepers.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—The general assembly of the Knights of Labor was in session this morning and disposed of the vexatious question of admitting lawyers and wage-earning barkeepers to the order. The question was favorably reported by the committee but was finally voted down.

WAS WORSE THAN RUSSIA.

Citizens Were Powerless in New York Under Tammany Hall's Iron Rule.

POLICE BLACKMAILED EVERY CLASS AND BUSINESS.

Attorney Goff Believes the System Is Broken Up and Will Never Be Established Again.

MANY WERE AFRAID TO TESTIFY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—John W. Goff, prosecuting attorney for the Lexow investigating committee, who is stopping in Washington for a few days, has given The Evening Star an interesting interview on the work of the committee: "It was, as you may imagine," he said, "a tremendous task that confronted us when we started the investigation. We knew positively that the police department of New York was systematically blackmailing all classes of citizens. That a tremendous power had seized upon the community until it obtained complete possession. I speak within the bounds of my knowledge when I say there is not a business man in New York city who has not felt the power of police blackmail. There are perhaps a very few instances where honorable men refused to give the tithes of the illegal tax to the police, but almost without exception these men were forced out of business. One peculiar feature of the blackmail was that it spared no one class, however obscure its calling. So the question was what classes should we apply to and appeal to in our crusade. We were urged many times and most importantly to 'go higher' and nail the responsibility to the source of authority. On this question we held most earnest consultations and finally decided it would not be wise or efficacious to do so. Our duty was to arouse the conscience of the people of New York, which has been long smothered and almost killed. 'You may be surprised when I say that New York under the rule of the police department as it was controlled by Tammany Hall was far worse as regards the individual comfort of citizens than St. Petersburg under its most violent police regime. As an illustration of the tremendous power wielded by this organization I will refer to the difficulty we had in obtaining witnesses to go upon the stand and swear to the facts they brought to us in private. At first this applied to all classes, both reputable and disreputable. When appealed to they would claim that if they should testify the police would bound them out of the city. When asked if they could not go elsewhere and establish themselves in business they would reply that the persecution of the police of New York would follow them to every city in the country and we gradually revealed the astounding fact that the police of New York dominated not only every city, but every large community in the country. 'The lower classes of citizens were made to believe that blackmail was lawful and regular. They came to consider the captain of their precinct as the source of all municipal authority. In effect he was such to them. 'You ask me if I think this power is now crushed. I do, most emphatically. I think public conscience, having once been aroused and the machinery of this nauseous system exposed, will be a perpetual bar against the development of such an organization in the future. I consider the greatest danger to our form of government lies in the possibility of municipal misrule. I believe, however, the example of New York will serve as a check to this tendency toward corruption and police domination.

THINK CATTLE DISEASED.

English Officials Believe American Cattle Have Pleuro-Pneumonia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A cablegram was received at the department of agriculture today from the agent of the department in London announcing that English officials thought they had discovered a case of pleuro-pneumonia in one of the cattle shipped on the "Maryland." Prompt action will be taken by the department to ascertain the facts in the case and learn whether pleuro-pneumonia exists in this country. Speaking of the matter Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, said: "We will be greatly surprised if this is proven to be a case of pleuro-pneumonia. All the cattle shipped are subject to exposure at sea and frequently contract pneumonia during the voyage. Occasionally foreign officials think they have discovered pleuro-pneumonia but on investigation the case proves to be only pneumonia. Doubtless this will turn out to be a case of this sort."

BETTER THAN BONDS.

Part of Government Revenue to Be Paid in Gold.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—It is expected that very soon after the meeting of congress a bill will be introduced to provide that a certain percentage of the revenues of the government (exact rate is not yet determined) shall be paid in gold. It is doubtful whether during a short session this measure can be got through congress but very determined efforts, it is asserted, will be made in that direction.

Abolish Winter Racing.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21.—At the annual session of the American turf congress here today the present agreement between the Jockey club and the Turf Congress was declared annulled after Dec. 1 of this year. A resolution was adopted prohibiting racing after January 1, 1895, during the months of December, January and February.

BACKED BY HIS COUNTRY.

Houghton County Holds Mass Meeting Favoring Hubbell's Election as Senator.
STRONG SET OF RESOLUTIONS ARE PASSED.
 Eloquent and Energetic Plea in Favor of Judge Hubbell for the United States Senate.

[All communications intended for this department should be addressed to Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Mich.]

At a meeting of the citizens of Houghton county, held at Houghton Nov. 20, 1894, for the purpose of advancing the candidacy of Hon. Jay A. Hubbell for United States senator for the short term, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:
 Whereas, it is believed that the upper peninsula of Michigan is entitled to the senatorship for the reasons following, among others: It has been justly claimed that the upper and lower peninsulas of the state should each be represented in the United States senate. For the last ten years both of the United States senators have lived in the lower peninsula, and within four hours ride of each other, representing identically the same interests, and only representing and advancing the interests of the lower peninsula, as they might casually become possessed of stray bits of information in regard to our needs and desires; and since the organization of the state the upper peninsula has never been represented by one of its own people, or by anyone having the knowledge of its affairs and interests necessary to properly care for and promote the same. The interests and necessities of this section of the state are altogether dissimilar from the lower portion of the state, and a natural division of the senate representation of the state would suggest that one should come from the upper and one from the lower peninsula; and the political complexion of the former adds weight to this position as the upper peninsula has always been Republican, and at times has saved the Republican party from defeat on its state ticket; and

Whereas, in the selection of a senator from the upper peninsula there is one man among us preeminently qualified by ability, integrity and experience therefor, viz: The Hon. Jay A. Hubbell, which statement a brief glance at his history will abundantly confirm, viz: We, the undersigned, were prejudiced by close contact with our friend and neighbor were it not for the fact that others far removed from this locality and amply capable of judging merit have with practical unanimity set the seal of their approval upon him. In everything that goes to make sturdy manhood, in every thing that requires the exercise of the thing that requires integrity and good faith, Jay A. Hubbell is the peer of any man in the upper peninsula, if not in the state. His record before the people, and the numerous honorable stations which he has filled, has far surpassed that of any other man in the state. To speak of his record is to speak of the history of the country, of the advancement of civilization, of the benefits derived from wise legislation, and of the welfare of the whole people. Since early manhood he has been at the front fighting for good government and wise laws. In all the paths he has trodden he has been fearless and bold for the right and strong and prompt in his condemnation of wrong. Nor has he been a mere follower but has led in many victories, lights and in the shaping of the policies of government he has been with the directors and a peer among them. It is with just pride that we, his friends and neighbors, look back upon his career which fully justifies our present desire to see him placed in national prominence, and to give him credit to himself and to his constituents. Great questions are before the people now for decision. The welfare of the people is at stake. In the selection of a senator capable of coping with the conditions that confront us and arriving at the correct solution of the problems involved than our esteemed citizen.

He has lived in this country since 1855 and from that time until 1875 he was engaged in the active and successful practice of the law. During the time he was elected district attorney of the upper peninsula, and constantly met in his practice the brightest and most eminent lawyers in the state; and in many instances he would have been left to the mercy of the bar to go to congress he was one of the prominent lawyers of the country. In 1873 he was elected to the Forty-third congress and remained there until the next session. At that time the question of the currency of the country was the burning question of the day and the policy of the government was settled as to the issue. During that congress he was placed by Mr. Blaine, the then speaker, on the committee of banking and currency and was also made a member of the select committee to investigate the affairs of the District of Columbia, which committee gave to the city of Washington its present government by commission—the ideal city government of the world.
 During the war, money being scarce, the mining companies of the upper peninsula were forced in order to meet their payments, and do their business, to issue their small drafts for currency and which actually circulated as such. Just prior to the Forty-third congress the select committee would have bankrupted nearly all the mining companies of this country. Judge Hubbell introduced a bill to have the companies relieved from the payment of this tax and secured an order from the secretary of the treasury to suspend further attempts to collect it until it was known whether congress would grant the relief. The bill was passed and the companies relieved. While the bill was pending the commissioner of internal revenue for some reason issued his warrant for the collection of this tax and Judge Hubbell called the attention of the secretary of the treasury thereto and demanded his removal and was removed for disobedience of the order to suspend proceedings. This was an important service to this country and saved it a vast amount of money and irreparable misfortune and distress.
 In the Forty-fourth congress he was again placed on the committee of banking and currency by a Democratic speaker. In the Forty-fifth congress, which was Democratic, he was made a member of the committee on commerce, which includes what are now the committee on commerce and rivers and harbors. In the Forty-sixth congress he was placed by a Democratic speaker on the committee of appropriations. In the Forty-seventh congress he was placed on the committee of ways and means, the leading committee of that body, and the one which then framed the tariff of 1883. During all these years he was in the foreground and by his fearlessness and ability aided largely in the results attained. In particular his speech on the tariff of 1883 was very able and was commented on by the press throughout the whole country. He never screened himself behind the skirts of others. His exact position on all the public questions then before the country was open and known to all. He had honest and definite convictions and was absolutely fearless in their advocacy. All the prominent measures in congress were discussed by him before that body ably and efficiently. By his ability and activity during this period of his career he acquired great influence and earned an enviable reputation as a legislator. It goes without saying that he gave to almost satisfaction to his constituents and was an honor not only to the district but to the state. He helped to shape the policy of the Republican party and was recognized as a safe and sound and wise adviser in the councils of the party and a man of sound judgment and much more than ordinary ability. His worth during the time he affected his health and he retired from politics and at home and abroad sought recuperation from the effects of his long and arduous labors. In 1888 the people of this district requested that he go to the state senate in their interest which he finally consented to do, but after a short stay he again devoted his efforts and ability to the interests not only of those who sent him but the people of the entire state. As proof of the esteem in which he was held the senate at its last session unanimously passed a resolution setting apart a space upon the wall of the senate for his portrait. While he was in the senate he succeeded in procuring the establishment at Houghton of the present Mining School, and since its establishment he has been untiring in its support and advancement. He gave the location for the school and has been, and is at present, the president of its board of control.

In the spring of 1888 he was elected judge of the twelfth judicial circuit of Michigan by the unanimous vote of the people, without regard to party, and in the spring of 1891 he was elected W. D. Williams, was appointed to fill out the term of that gentleman, which expired in January, 1894. This position he fills with dignity and ability.
 In short, he is a born legislator and has devoted the best years of his life to this kind of work. He is an all round man and whether as a member of congress, a state senator, or judge, he has always been ready, original and forcible. A stalwart Republican from boyhood, strong in the convictions of the party, and correct in his convictions and the ability to present and enforce them, there is, in our opinion no man in the upper peninsula, if not in the state, better fitted for the position of senator from this state than Judge Hubbell. Now, therefore, it is Respectfully and earnestly recommended and ask the support and adherence of the party to Judge Hubbell in the honor available, and trust that by their wisdom and efforts he may be elected to fill the station which he would honor and wherein the closing years of his life would be devoted to the interests of those he has so often and so ably served. That may be advanced thereto is our most earnest hope.

A social was given last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kehl by the No Name club. There was an attendance which comfortably filled the parlors of the residence. A very pleasant time was had by the members of the club and their friends.

Columbia lodge No. 144, of the Knights of Pythias, will hold a regular convention at the hall in the Hartman block this evening. Two victims have been selected to ride the goat, and the festive occasion will be further gladdened by the presence of Deputy Grand Chancellor Fred Cutler, Jr., of Iowa. The goat has been restrained from his usual diet of tomato cans and old rubber boots for the past week and a very hilarious session is anticipated by all who will be present with the exception of the candidates for Pythian honors.

The vessels that are still navigating the lake experience much trouble with ice. They pass through Portage Lake without much trouble, but a cold snap lasting twenty-four hours would put a stop to everything less than an ice crusher making the passage.

E. K. Penberthy has returned from his semi-monthly excursion into the jungles surrounding Houghton county in the interests of light as civilization as represented by the celebrated Ingot soap. The sales and production of the Lake Superior Soap company are steadily increasing, each month showing an increase over the one preceding, which is the best possible evidence that the product is winning its way on its merits alone. The soap company has made no profits as yet, having wisely decided that it was best to put all the money received from sales into making a superior quality soap. There is a prospect, however, that a fair profit will soon be earned, as the increase in output allows a reduced cost in price of production per pound.

It will be noticed that the same village officers are still construing and carrying out the laws in Red Jacket. The Mining Journal advised the Law and Order league—which seems to be falling into a state of coma, after the manner of its kind—that Governor Rich would not be at all likely to move with much celerity in the premises. It is an open and notorious fact that the liquor and Sunday laws of the state of Michigan are violated with frequency and regularity. Attempts to enforce either or both have been unsuccessful in the past, or at most but a temporary observance has been secured. The front door may be closed, the blind may be pulled down and more caution may be exercised for a few weeks in admitting Sunday customers and a few $50 fines may be paid by the liquor dealers unlucky enough to get caught, but in a short time all goes as it did before. The laws in question are not enforced because public sentiment does not support them. It is useless for the gentlemen of the Law and Order league to proclaim otherwise. If a majority of the people here wished those laws enforced they would be enforced temporarily, but regularly. The only hope of the crusaders against the saloons and violators of the Sunday law is to educate public sentiment. The majority always have had and probably always will have their way in such matters in this country.

Woodmen report that there is already nearly two feet of snow in the woods. The snow is necessary for the successful carrying on of logging operations, but the great quantity already on the ground at the very beginning of the season causes some apprehension, as there will be entirely too much of the article within a few weeks if the present rate of growth is continued.

John Bernier will have his new rink on Kearns street, Calumet Village, in running order by Dec. 1. It is to be 50 by 120 feet on the ground, with a skating surface 50 by 100.

AMERICAN PIE.
 A Sweet Which May Nightly be Titled Victorious.
 Some fifty years or so ago began the apotheosis of muscle, and with it the downfall of that comestible called pie. Pie it was declared, was an unrighteous compound that degenerated the muscle, that degraded the stomach, that depraved the nerves. It was the viand of the rustic, and ought to be re-manded to the rustic table, where it made dyspepsia three times a day. In addition, the Anglomaniac just then setting in, pie, it was stated, was something unknown to England, except in the shape of the little pork and other meat pies, the huge venison pasty, and the mince pie that is less than a single portion to our own eaters; and the English having chosen to laugh at our pie, laugh it must be; and so pie was laughed down and frowned down, and except in the shape of tarts, under meringues, or in the rich Christmas viand, became a thing unknown to the inner circle of the feeders who hold that as one cat's so is he.
 The brick oven that used to be heated every Saturday morning for the big baking of its dozens of pies had no longer its cherry pudding, the cooking stove could bake all the pies that were needed, just as the provision shop could supply all the sausages and headcheese, and the factory could card and spin and weave—and few were needed, for it had become vulgar to eat pie. But gradually came a reaction; people began to wonder why a delicate crust baked with a sweetmeat was any more indigestible when it was called pie than when it was called puff, or tart, or pate, or tea-biscuits; people regarded their mothers' and their grandmothers' pies with tender reminiscence; now and then, when there was no company at table, they had one, made of green apples, and wondered why the tart and sweet and sirupy thing could possibly be unhealthy, and they made up their minds to have another presently.
 And then the railways began to grow, to cover the land with their embroilery of iron, and at every few miles and at every intersection an eating place was found—and what could there be in the place so easy to keep, to handle, to eat, as pie? And the whole traveling world had to eat pie or starve, and there were many jokes about the restaurant pie, but all the same the taste lingered on the palate, and a secret spirit of rebellion and revolution was developing round every table, when Mr. Ralph Waldo Emerson died, and it was made known that he had had pie every morning of his life for breakfast.
 Shades of our fathers and all philosophers! A philosopher, a New England Brahmin, a litterateur, a man of culture, a man of station, a man of fortune, a gentleman! If he, why not we? "Off, ye lendings!" was the cry, as every rebel threw away disguises, and everywhere there was to be heard, now that the ban was removed, a cry for pie—for the flavorous mince in winter, the apple, the desiccated peach, the golden squash, the cranberry, the custard, the lemon, and in the spring the juicy rhubarb, called Persian apple, the strawberry pie, the famous cherry, the gooseberry, the blueberry, the green-gage, the plum, every week of the summer a new variety, delicate, fine, running over with honeyed liquor. And so the pie has come out of its retirement; foreigners have yet to learn its value, but the native-born American remembers his grandmother and the turnovers of his youth, and thanks goodness that it no longer puts him outside the pale of social respectability that he has found his digestion strong enough to let him eat pie.—Harper's Bazar.

PAID THE DEATH PENALTY.

Noted Spanish Anarchist Meets Death With Anarchistic Song on His Lips

GAVE ONE LIFE IN EXCHANGE FOR TWENTY

He Refused the Offer of the Services of a Priest and Died Mutilating All Religion.

WEAKENED AT THE SCAFFOLD

BARCELONA, Nov. 21.—Jose Salvador Franch, the anarchist who threw the dynamite bomb in the Liceo theater in this city the night of Nov. 7, 1903, killing twenty and wounding fifty people, was executed this morning.

"Down with religion!" and died almost with the words of an anarchist song on his lips. He spent the last twenty-four hours of his life in the black-draped chapel of the prison according to Spanish custom. He slept only an hour during the night. His wife and little daughter were admitted to see him but his tenderness was utterly thrown away on the anarchist who also remained obdurate to the ministrations of the priest, scoffed at the supplications to prepare for death and laughed at references to future life.

"Hypocrisy is a new weapon which I have shown anarchists how to use. I fooled you nicely." The officials entered the chapel at a o'clock and told Franch to prepare for death. The executioners while dressing the prisoner for the scaffold were continually abused. Franch shrieked:

"Do your miserable work; you are only the tools of the bourgeoisie." Surrounded by soldiers the procession moved to the scaffold.

Franch walked tremblingly to the scaffold in the prison court yard. As he mounted the platform he shouted: "Down with all religions. Long live anarchy." The executioner forced him struggling into the chair and strapped him to his seat while he continued his anarchistic cries and singing an anarchist hymn. His false courage, however, was fast giving way for he employed the executioners to hurry their preparations. The fatal collar was placed around his neck, the screw applied and death was almost instantaneous. The body remained exposed until sundown and was viewed by a large concourse of people.

The body was interred this evening without a priest being present and without any religious ceremony. During the day immense crowds of people defiled before the scaffold and took a look at the body of the anarchist with the deadly collar of the garrote encircling his neck.

FAILED IN HIS DUTY.

Cook Gang Should Be Suppressed by United States Marshal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Attorney General Olney, Secretary Lamont and Secretary Smith held a conference today relative to sending troops to suppress the Cook gang and others in Indian Territory. They decided the matter came under the jurisdiction of the department of justice and United States Marshal McAllister of the Indian Territory is criticized for inaction and it is likely the attorney general will instruct the marshal of Arkansas to summon a posse and drive the lawless element out of the territory. There is talk of removing Marshal McAllister.

MAY HAVE BEEN ARRESTED.

Bill Cook Supposed to Be Under Arrest in Texas

FORT SMITH, Ark., Nov. 21.—At the United States Marshal's office it is regarded as positive that Bill Cook is under arrest in Texas. He is thought to be one of the five men captured by Texas rangers at Mitchell Falls. The description of the man Parries, superintendent of the five, exactly corresponds with Cook. This is strengthened by the fact that a man who answers to the name of Smeeter is an exact counterpart of Baldwin, alias Skeeter of the Cook gang. Two deputies have gone to Texas to identify the men and bring them in.

WILL NOT TRY EXPERIMENT.

Attorney General Says Body of Convict Must Be Buried

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 21.—In reply to a communication from the governor in regard to Dr. Gibbons attempting the resuscitation of the body of an electrocuted convict, the attorney general says: "In my judgment neither the governor nor the board of superintendents has the authority to grant such an experiment. It becomes the duty of the authorities in charge to bury it and not to deliver the same to any individual for the purpose of experiment."

GOVERNMENT IS POWERLESS.

In Not Able to Protect Tribes of Indian Territory

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Dawes commission, which is investigating the affairs in the Indian Territory and endeavoring to secure the consent of the five civilized tribes to an agreement on some plan of territorial or state government looking to the improvement of the condition of the territory, met in the office of the secretary of the interior today and submitted its report. The report is a rehearsal of the proceedings of the commission in conference with the Indians which has already been given to the public from time to time as they occurred. The report says: "The United States guaranteed the holding of lands, as contented in the surrenders, and in common bond to wrest them from unlawful holders and restore them to their rightful owners. This can only be done and the treaty stipulations honorably maintained by the allotment of these lands among the people, giving to them individual title therefor. The refusal of the tribal government to do this makes it impossible to enforce the treaty provisions. A vivid picture was given of the lawless condition of affairs in the territory which is reflected daily in the news reports."

MURDERER ESCAPED

South Dakota Editor Killed in a Drunken Brawl

PIERRE, S. D., Nov. 21.—Ed Narcelle, a half breed Indian, struck Henry Jeffries, the editor of the Fort Pierre Fair Play on the head with a chair tonight in a drunken brawl and probably killed him. The doctors think nothing can save him. Narcelle has escaped.

Killed by a Train

LA GRANGE, Ill., Nov. 21.—H. S. Harrison of this village and editor of The Advance, was instantly killed here tonight by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy fast mail train striking him. He was badly mangled.

Is Some Better

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 21.—General John A. McClelland is slightly improved today but is very seriously ill. It is feared the carbuncle is spreading. All callers were denied him.

Given Up Hope

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 21.—Miss Mary L. Stevenson, daughter of the vice president, is no better today. Hope for her ultimate recovery is about given up.

PITH AND POINT.

—It is all very well to tell a violent man to "keep his temper," but he is not better off without it.

—He: "Has your father been vaccinated yet?" She: "No; he is going to be to-morrow." He: "Tell him to have it done on the foot."—N. Y. Sun.

—At the Butcher's: "Why did you put up that large mirror near the door?" "To prevent servant girls from watching the scales."—Fliegende Blätter.

—Wilton: "So Penner's latest novel failed to catch the public as he expected it would. Any particular reason?" Walton: "Er—it was a detective story."—Boston Courier.

—Lawyer: "Did he call you a liar in so many words?" Client: "Well, he called me a weather report." Lawyer: "That is sufficient; you are sure to get damages."—Tit-Bits.

—"How did you come to break with Miss Sweetlips?" "Yes; but I got acquainted with a girl who had the gold."—Boston Transcript.

—Summitt: "Miss Gayley seems thoroughly imbued with the idea that youth will tell." Bottoms: "Yes; you see, she has three or four small brothers."—Buffalo Courier.

—Mr. Manhattan: "Do you wear ear-muffs in Boston when it is very cold?" Mr. Bunker Hill: "Certainly we do." Mr. Manhattan: "Then the streets can not be so very narrow after all."—Siftings.

—Physician: "You must avoid all excitement, avoid beer or wine entirely, and drink only water." "But, doctor, the idea of drinking water excites me more than anything else."—Fliegende Blätter.

—Call: "What is the matter with Fido that you are watching him so closely?" Charlie: "Cause mamma said your hat was enough to make a dog laugh, and I wanted to see him do it."—Inter-Ocean.

—Jimmy: "What is this moral courage that the Sunday-school teacher was telling us about?" Tommy: "As near as I kin guess it, it's the kind of courage that kids has that's afraid to fight."—Indianapolis Journal.

—"You don't know how much your book has helped me, Mr. Scribble." Mr. Scribble: "You flatter me." "I mean every word of it. Whenever I am restless I go get your book and inside of fifteen minutes I'll be asleep."

—Patient (complainingly): "I can't make out a word of this prescription, doctor." Physician (grimly): "Never mind. You'll find my handwriting perfectly legible, I'll warrant you, when I send in my bill."—Somerville Journal.

—On the Road—Manager (reading): "The egg product of the United States amounts to eight hundred and fifty million dozens." Old Actor (reflectively): "I've thought sometimes it was more than that."—Detroit Free Press.

—"You don't seem to get along very well with yer old friend?" "Naw, he got ter thinkin' he knowed too much. When I told 'im he orter put his mind in a gymnasium an' give 'is voice a vacation, he got mad."—Washington Star.

—Eligible Millionaire: "I wonder why a girl always shuts her eyes when—er—a fellow kisses her." Aristocrat: "I never noticed anything of the sort, but I suppose it depends upon the kind of face the fellow has."—Pick-Me-Up.

—Rambler: "That Bartlett girl thinks a great deal of me. When I told her I was going around the world, she asked me to be sure and write her from every place I visited." Wilter: "Yes; she is collecting postage stamps."

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

Timbering Gives Way Under Falling Ground and Another Miner Meets Death.

FATALITY OCCURS IN THE LAKE ANGELINE MINE.

Farewell Social to a Retiring Pastor An Oculist's Task—Stage for "Queen Esther" Performance.

FATALITY AT LAKE ANGELINE.

James Prater was instantly killed by a fall of ground Tuesday night at 12 o'clock while at work in No. 2 west raise of the East End Lake Angeline mine. Prater and his partners, Samuel Wilcock and Charles Middling, started to work at 11 o'clock, relieving John T. Verran, R. H. Champion and W. Bone, who had worked up to that time on the other shift. He and his partners were walking through the drift about six feet from where they were working, when the ground came away. It appears that when the falling ground struck the timbers above one of the caps slipped off the leg and the whole set together with considerable dirt, came down and caught Prater, burying him completely. Wilcock and Middling were walking ahead of Prater and were only about two feet distant when the falling timbers and ground caught their unfortunate partner. It was a narrow escape for both. Had the set of timbers ahead of the one that came down given away they too would have been killed.

The timbering in this particular place was done by Prater and the other men having the contract with him, and was regarded as perfectly safe, but it appears that the cap which dropped away from the leg was a little too short, and when the dirt came upon the set it was forced out. Prater's body was not recovered until shortly before 6 o'clock in the morning. After being got out the body was taken to Stewart's undertaking rooms, where it was prepared for burial. His head and face were quite badly bruised but the body was not disfigured in the least.

Coroner Rogers was given notice of the fatality yesterday morning and at once empanelled a jury in the case. After the jury had viewed the remains an adjournment was taken until 11 o'clock this morning, when testimony will be heard. One of the men who was working on the other shift stated yesterday that the fatality was purely accidental; that as far as could be seen everything about the timbering was in the best of condition. Had the timber and dirt come down when the men were back in the drift no fatality would have occurred, as the ground could not have reached them. Mine Inspector Rough was called in yesterday to examine the drift and after a thorough investigation he stated that the accident, in his opinion, was purely accidental.

Mr. Prater had resided in Ishpeming a number of years and was very generally known here. He was an Englishman by birth and was about thirty-four years of age. He was married. A wife and three small children survive him. The funeral will be held from the family residence tomorrow afternoon under the auspices of Sir Humphrey Davey lodge, Sons of St. George, of which he was a member. Religious services will be held at the Division street Methodist church.

Farewell Social.

The Young People's society of Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church tendered their pastor, Rev. C. D. Jacobs, a farewell social at the church last evening. An interesting program was rendered and a fine lunch was served. A large number of the other members of the congregation were in attendance and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. Jacobs will preach his final sermon here next Sunday. He expects to leave for Hillsdale, his new field of labor, some day next week.

For "Queen Esther"

A large stage for the production of Queen Esther will be erected next Monday at the Division street Methodist church and four rehearsals will be given on it prior to Thanksgiving night, when the performance will take place. Electric lights will also be put in for the performance. The price of tickets will be thirty-five and fifty cents, the latter price being for reserved seats.

Is Well Recommended.

Herbert A. Sprague, the talented young impersonator who will open the course of entertainments to be given in Ishpeming by the Teachers' association at the Division street Methodist church tomorrow evening, comes well recommended by the press, as well as prominent people who have attended his entertainments throughout the country. Cyrus G. Luce, ex-governor of Michigan, gives him the following endorsement: "COLDWATER, MICH., May 26, 1894. To whom this may be presented: It affords me great pleasure to commend to the favor of the public, Mr. Herbert A. Sprague. He is a young man of unblemished character, and an impersonator of rare merit. He has great skill in changing from one character to another. The audience is made to feel that they are listening to half a dozen persons instead of one. I am sure that those who enjoy this kind of entertainment will be pleased with Mr. Sprague. CYRUS G. LUCE, Ex-Gov. of Michigan."

Will Examine Children's Eyes. B. H. Hocking, the optician who is spending a few days in Ishpeming at Ed Girz's store, will soon examine the eyes of all the children in the schools of Calumet and other places in the copper district. His object in doing this is to provide the authorities of the Normal school at Ypsilanti, who are compiling visual statistics concerning the school children of the state, with an estimate of the number whose eyes are affected in any manner. The Normal school authorities have recommended to many of the boards of education throughout the state to have the children's eyes examined, as if any defect of vision exists it can be remedied more easily now than later. Mr. Hocking has been engaged by the Normal school people to do the work, consequently the examinations will cost the school authorities or the parents of the children examined nothing. Those who have proposed these examinations have more than one object in view. Their principal object, however, is to adopt a new kind of paper for college and school text books. They think that if books were printed on a certain tint of green paper, using black ink exclusively, the strain on the pupils' eyes would not be so great. The oculists of the Normal school are experimenting on this idea at present and as soon as a definite data are obtained circulars, announcing the result in detail, will be issued and sent to the different boards of education throughout the state.

Mr. Hocking is meeting with very fair success here, considering that this is his first visit. He will remain here all this week. He has established headquarters at Hancock and will pay frequent visits to the iron country.

Was Known Here

Carl Rathburn, of Rathburn Bros., clothing dealers, one of the leading business men of Escanaba, who was quite well known throughout the upper peninsula, died at his home in Escanaba Tuesday morning after a week's illness, of inflammation of the bowels. He was a young man and unmarried. His remains have been taken to Ypsilanti, the home of his parents, for burial. Mr. Rathburn's death is generally regretted at Escanaba.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF

George W. Hayden is in Chicago this week. H. O. Young went on the line on business yesterday afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. N. D. Kean returned from their visit to friends in the east yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Mills left Tuesday morning for Chicago, to be absent a few days. Dan McVichie returned from a business trip to the Menominee range yesterday morning.

P. H. Donahoe has a fine lot of Ohio cider on hand. He also has in stock a line of new goods for the holidays and is making thorough preparations to supply his trade.

The Sunday school society of the Division street Methodist church will give its annual Christmas entertainments at the church Christmas night. Preparations for it are already under way.

John J. Hodson and Miss Rose Martin will be married Thanksgiving night at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin, 106 Excelsior street. Cards were issued Monday.

Tim Hughes has a fine new "Model" cooler, manufactured by Wolf, Sayer & Hiller of Chicago, in his new market. It is 14x14 feet and is divided into two rooms—one for beef and the other for butter, eggs, etc. Other furniture to match the cooler has also been procured. Mr. Hughes will have a very fine market.

Will have another lot of fine horses in Ishpeming in about a week at Lossely's stables. Wait for us. F. HAMMILL & CO., (10-39-47) Appleton.

Of course you noticed what the Republicans did. They made the Democrats sick. Our fine liquors will cure all, whether Democrats or Republicans. F. H. Donahoe.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

An English committee of sportsmen and naturalists is taking in hand the protection of South African mammals—the giraffe, zebra, eland, gnu, koodoo and other antelopes, against their threatened extinction. A suggested method of accomplishing this is to secure an inclosed park of about 100,000 acres.

A method has at last been found by N. H. Keyser of soldering aluminum by heating the metal and scraping the surface so as to remove the oxidizing film until the metal is "tinned." The alloy used consists of 50 parts of tin, 25 of silver, 25 of aluminum, and melts at 750 degrees. Almost any tin solder will do, however.

According to some estimates 20 per cent., and according to others as large as 70 per cent. of the blind owe their affliction to the negligence of midwives and others immediately after the birth of such unfortunate. The blindness arising from this cause is absolutely preventable by at least two simple means.

The total production of whisky in the state of Kentucky for the year ending June 30, 1894, was 20,133,803 gallons, and about 3,000,000 gallons of this was spirits. Of this production there remained in bond on June 30, 1894, 17,083,929 gallons, being 11,831,458 gallons less than the stocks of June 30, 1893, and 785,784 gallons less than the stock on June 30, 1892.—Bradstreet's.

As Mars approaches the earth its satellites appear again on time and have already been observed by several astronomers. The error of the ephemeris is very small, but it is worth noting that our American Nautical almanac in its diagram of the satellite-orbits represents the motion in the wrong direction, an error likely to mislead observers in searching for the little moons, which can be seen with a nine or ten-inch telescope under favorable atmospheric conditions.

To reach the north pole an architect, M. Hauin, has proposed to the geographical society of Paris the construction of wooden huts one or two days' journey apart. He considers Greenland the most favorable locality for an experiment of this kind. Each of the huts would become in its turn a base of supplies for the construction of the next. As the distance to be covered is about 900 miles, a score of huts would be necessary to establish a route to the pole.

An account of the striking changes which the great lava lake in Kilauea has undergone this year, appears in the Hawaiian Gazette. The lava steadily rose after the last great breakdown of the floor of the crater in March, 1891, when an area of 2,500 feet long, by 2,000 wide, fell more than 300 feet in one night. Toward the end of last year the rising and overflowing of the lake filled the pit thus produced. Since that time the activity of the lake has been intense, as many as twenty-three overflows of liquid lava having taken place in a single day, and the walls surrounding the lake have been rapidly raised by continual overflows.

Agnetta Park, near Duluth, in Holland, is the result of an interesting experiment in co-operation. A tract of ten acres has upon it 150 houses, each with its little garden, and with certain common buildings and common grounds. The houses are occupied by the employees of a great distilling company, who form a corporation which owns the park. Each member owns shares in the corporation and pays rent for his house; the surplus after expenses are paid comes back to him as dividends. If he wishes to go away or dies, his shares are bought up by the corporation and sent to the man who takes his place.

Col. Dulier, of the Belgian engineers, has discovered an easy and economical method of doing away with London smoke. The smoke enters a chimney shaped like the letter N; at the bottom of the left-hand leg it is met by a small jet of steam, which saturates the smoke and accelerates the draught; at the top of the leg a spray of water drives down the soot and noxious products, allowing only almost pure vapor to escape up the last leg. Half the acids and 94 per cent. of the soot are thus removed; they are sent down into the sewers, where they act as disinfectants. The system can be applied to a factory for about $250, and to a single dwelling house for $12 or $15.

Departed Fame. "You don't seem as well known in this city as you were at home," said the visitor.

FIREMEN DID GOOD WORK.

A Blaze at Negaunee That They Fought With Pluck and Judgment.

SAVED A LOT OF HORSES WITH NO LITTLE DIFFICULTY.

Re-Christened the Mine-Cars Coming Freely Now to the Mines at Negaunee.

A STUBBORN FIRE.

Fire was discovered in the woodshed at the rear of Mike O'Leary's tenement house on Cass street, which is occupied by a Swedish family, at 12 o'clock Tuesday night.

The firemen got out in quick order, and although the woodshed was pretty well consumed and the fire had reached Winter & Seuss' barn a few feet distant by the time they got a stream on it, they succeeded in saving O'Leary's house and other property adjoining.

The firemen then kicked in the doors and endeavored to lead the horses out, but the animals refused to leave their stalls. They pranced about so that it was with extreme difficulty that their halters could be unfastened, and then they could not be driven from the stalls.

After getting out the horses the firemen directed their attention to the blaze. To fight it effectually it was necessary to get into the loft with the hose, and the only way that could be done was by forcing in the door at the front or getting through the window at the rear, as the lower part of the building was full of smoke and could not be entered.

There was only about a ton of hay and a small quantity of oats in the barn. The hay had been entirely consumed. The damage to the building will amount to almost $500.

Mr. Seuss was at the fire and was much pleased with the work of the firemen. The boys even saved three live turkeys, which Mr. Seuss gave to them for their Thanksgiving turkey shoot.

Samuel Hoar, who is working the Wheat mine property under lease, has changed the name of the mine. It will hereafter be known as the "Star West" mine.

Considerable ore is being shipped from the mines here and at Isipeming over the Chicago & Northwestern line to Escanaba these days.

Card of Thanks.

In view of the many acts of kindness extended us by our friends and neighbors, also by the Negaunee German Aid society, during our recent bereavement, we desire to express our heartfelt gratitude to those who assisted us, assuring all that their efforts to make less our sorrow will always be held fresh in our memories.

THE MILK DINNER.

A Repast That is Warranted to Charm the Vegetarian. In the rural districts this seasons the milk dinner is quite the fad--a good substantial meal in which meat is omitted, vegetables taking their place, all well cooked and pure milk being one of the principal ingredients.

For the piece de resistance, corn prepared with milk, that vegetables being now at its height, is of excellent tidbit.

To prepare this dish in perfection, the corn should be freshly and carefully picked, and all ears should be well grown and tender. After it has been stripped of its silk split each row of kernels with a sharp knife. Then cut off the outer edge of the entire ear, scrape off all that remains, leaving the kernels free from husk, sweet milk and boil for fifteen minutes.

If the corn is not quite fresh, as is usually the case in cities, and has been gathered for twenty-four hours, add a small amount of sugar to the milk before it commences to boil. This acts as a substitute for the natural sweetness.

Now it is not everyone who knows the best way to scallop potatoes. To make this dish all that is claimed for it, cut cold boiled potatoes into small slices. Fill a pudding dish with layers of these thin slices, each sprinkled with flour and seasoned with pepper and salt plentifully supplied with bits of butter.

The dessert for this milk dinner should be bread or oatmeal pudding, which, if rightly made, is excellent in its way. Pitchers of rich milk should grace each corner of the table.

LOST FAITH IN BARGAINS.

It Was Destroyed by a Fishingpole His Wife Bought for Him.

It was on a suburban train, and they nodded at each other with the easy familiarity of men who have made common cause against the same conductor for years.

After they had chatted a few minutes the latter said: "Here's an object lesson I'm taking home to my wife. She's an awfully extravagant woman, and would rather die than attend bargain sales. We had a regular row over it at breakfast, and I told her she'd have to come to it these hard times. Now, I got these gloves at a bargain sale to-day, and I paid seventy-nine cents for them--they're quite as good as the ones she pays two dollars and fifty cents for; I don't somehow think they're just the same color, but that doesn't signify. I'll give 'em to her as a peace offering, and after she's gone into ecstasies over 'em I'll tell her all about 'em. Foxy trick, eh?"

"Very," chuckled the other, "but she'll look at the ticket--trust a woman for that."

"No she won't; I'm on to that. I threw the ticket away."

"Good! Going anywhere this summer?"

"Yep. Fishing. Going to get my outfit to-morrow; I'll cost like sixty, too, for I'm going to the best place in town for it. Well, this is your station; good night."

"O! Edward, dear," cried a soft voice at his side, "Mrs. Smith just told me that you were here ahead of us, and I'm so glad, for I've a lot of packages. And, Edward, I've been attending the bargain sales to-day."

"Humph; glad you've come to your senses at last."

"Yes, I determined to do it after what you said at breakfast; I can hardly wait to show you one thing I got. O, I do hope it's a good one!"

"Of course it is; a big price doesn't make a thing any better."

"So the clerk said; he said that this rod at one dollar and ninety-eight cents was just the same as the one you had expected to pay twenty-five dollars for; he--"

"Good heavens, woman!"--he faced about in his seat--"what have you gotten?"

"Why, a lovely bargain in your fishing rod. I knew you intended to get one and these happened to be on sale to-day, so lucky. After what you said at breakfast I-- Why, Edward, what is the matter?"

For, with a countenance of wild ferocity, he had jerked up the rod window and chucked through it the fishing rod and his own small package.--Chicago Tribune.

DIED ALONE IN THE WOODS.

Apoplexy Struck Down Andrew G. Carlson While Out Cutting Fuel.

YOUNG SONS FOUND HIS FROZEN CORPSE.

Morse Hose Company's Ball Well Attended and Very Enjoyable—Supervisors' Monthly Session.

DROPPED DEAD AT HIS WORK.

Andrew G. Carlson died of apoplexy some time Tuesday morning while cutting wood in the brush north of the fair grounds. His two young sons went out to search for him yesterday morning and found his frozen corpse where he had fallen beside a half-chopped stick.

Carlson, having nothing to do at his trade at this season, left his house Tuesday morning to cut some wood for fuel in the vacant ground named. He took a lunch with him and did not intend to return until night.

Mrs. Carlson knew where her husband intended to work and yesterday morning her oldest son Adolf, a lad of sixteen, and a younger boy set out to look for their father.

Carlson had cut and piled up some wood and at his feet was a stick about half chopped in two. His axe lay against another stick as if he had dropped or placed it there.

The dead was an industrious workman, skillful in his trade, a good husband and father and much liked and respected by all who knew him.

The Marquette Ideal orchestra provided its usual delightful dance music and in the intermissions played the program music announced a few days ago.
