WARM TIME EXPECTED.

Senate Will Be the Scene of the First Battle of the Session.

INCOME TAX QUESTION WILL BE BROUGHT UP.

The Railroad Pooling Bill Will Have to Be Amended Somewhat Before It Can Pass.

THE FORECAST FOR THE WEEK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The week's program in the senate will depend largely if not entirely upon the decision of the Democratic steering committee with reference to the order in which the bills preferred by the Democratic caucus are to be taken up. This point is left entirely to the steering committee which Gorman, its chairman, says will probably meet Monday. While the committee is undecided Morgan has given notice of his intention to call the Nicaragua bill up Monday and he will open the proceedings with a speech devoted to an explanation of the merits of the bill.

The second week's session of the house promises to witness a fierce struggle on the income tax in connection with the appropriation to be incorporated in an urgent deficiency bill to provide for the collection of a tax which begins January 1, 1895. Sayres, chairman of the appropriations committee, intends to call up the bill on Tuesday after the railroad pooling bill is disposed of. Although the opposition is not considered strong enough to defeat the appropriation it is expected the debate will abound with acrimonious references to the late election and much bad blood will be manifested.

The general opinion is that the railroad pooling bill will not pass as amended but will probably carry when amended so as to give the interstate commerce commission absolute control of the conditions of railroad pooling and final authority in the matter of revoking pooling orders.

The North Carolina contested election case of Williams vs. Settle will be called up in the latter part of the week.

Care is being taken to have all sections of the country heard from before the house banking and currency committee meets next week, concerning the proposed currency bill. The committee is not confining its invitations to eastern financiers. He has sent to Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati as representative western cities and to Nashville, Tenn., and other southern cities. He would go as far as Denver and San Francisco if possible. Those financiers could get here in time for the hearing. Care is also being taken to secure only those recognized as authorities in practical financing, such men as Lyman J. Gage of Chicago being among those invited.

The hearing of Secretary Carlisle and Comptroller Eckles on Monday is attracting much attention and there promises to be such a crowd present that the large room of the ways and means committee will be used. On Tuesday, ex-Comptroller Hepburn and Horace White of New York will have an opportunity to be heard on the merits of the so-called Baltimore plan. It is understood by the committee that Mr. Hepburn is the original projector of this plan.

Within the next few days Senators Sherman, Allison, Morrill and other leading financiers on the Republican side of the senate, as well as the more prominent Democrats of the country who have reputations as financiers, will be invited to call on the president to suggest plans for maintaining the credit of the country. The heavy exportation of gold to the continent and unless some method is promptly devised for the establishment of the national credit upon a firm basis another issue of bonds will be inevitable. At the cabinet meeting yesterday the situation was discussed and it was decided that the best minds in the country should be asked for suggestions. But there will be as little publicity as possible given to the subject until some plan is devised which will insure the maintenance of the gold reserve.

The bankruptcy bill which the Democratic caucus of the senate has indicated a willingness to consider at the present session is by no means the same measure as that which passed the house known as the Bailey bill during the long session. The main provision in the new bill is for assignment or cessation of property by any debtor owing $500 or more which he can't pay.

Less than twenty-five members were present when the house was called to order at noon yesterday. In the morning hour Mr. Mallory (Dem. Fla.) from the committee on interstate commerce called up the bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service, which provides for the retirement of officers of the service incapacitated by reason of infirmities of age or physical or mental disabilities. Mr. Mallory, Mr. English (Dem. N. J.) and Mr. Covert (Dem. N. Y.) supported the bill but it was antagonized by Mr. Clark of Missouri, who deliberately avowed his intention of talking it to death. The morning hour expired without action and the house then resumed the consideration of the railroad pooling bill.

CONFESSED THE MURDER.

Kentucky Feud Leads to Murder and Threatened Lynching.

RICHMOND, Ky., Dec. 9.—The assassination of David Doty was intensified today by the confession of Bill Taylor, the youngest of the three brothers, all of whom are in jail. He said he was in Doty's stable attempting to slip one of his mules when the latter came upon him. On being asked to give the reins to him he fired and struck Doty in the stomach. Doty fell. To make sure Taylor grabbed Doty by the collar, lifted him up and put two bullets through his head. Taylor's confession is sufficient for Squire Doty's friends and they are here in large numbers from Madison and Garrard counties to swing him up before daybreak. Excitement is running high.

Two hundred armed men came here tonight to lynch Taylor. The sheriff has taken every precaution to secure a heavy armed guard and gave such warning at midnight as to show that the jail could not be entered without great loss of life if at all. There are those who believe, however, that Taylor will be lynched before morning.

RICHMOND, Ky., Dec. 9.—The lynching of Taylor was postponed by reason of the promise of Judge Scott to give him a trial at once in the circuit court now in session. The jail is still guarded and the excitement is high.

LABOR DELEGATES ON HAND.

American Federation of Labor Meets in Denver Today.

DENVER, Dec. 9.—Nearly all the delegates have arrived to attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor which opens tomorrow. John Burns, M. P., England, Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, Richard Holmes of England and J. J. Maguire arrived this morning. This evening Burns, Maguire and Gompers held an executive session. Notwithstanding the delegates profess ignorance as to the adoption of a resolution favoring the free coinage of silver it is probable such a resolution would meet with little opposition.

The principal business to come before the delegates, it is thought, will be the adoption of a platform. As a basis for such matter the following was adopted by the different trades assemblies of Great Britain and recommended for consideration: Compulsory education; direct legislation; legal work day; sanitary construction of work shops, mines and homes; liability of the employer for the injury to health, body or life; abolition of the sweating system; municipal ownership of street cars and gas and electric plants for public use; nationalization of the telegraph, telephone and railroads; the principle of referendum in all legislation. With the exception of the clause referring to the government ownership of railroads, telegraph and telephones this platform will probably be favorably received and adopted without discussion.

WAS ROBBING THE STATE.

Warden of the Washington Penitentiary Commits Suicide.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Dec. 9.—J. A. Coblenz, warden of the state penitentiary, committed suicide today by shooting. He was charged with malfeasance in office and a warrant was sworn out for his arrest. When the deputy went to serve the warrant Coblenz stepped into his private office and shot himself in the right temple, dying instantly. Investigation of the charges developed the fact that about 300,000 grain bags had been disposed of by Coblenz, who had combined with a number of the trustees to defraud the state. Coblenz has also been a special agent of the treasury department for a number of years.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 9.—Word was received here today announcing the suicide at Walla Walla of J. A. Coblenz. Coblenz was sheriff of Conway county, Ark., at the time of the famous Breckenridge-Clayton congressional contest and it was he who apprehended Clayton on the day previous to his assassination with the admonition not to remain at Plimmersville.

PASSED RESOLUTIONS.

Local Armenian Society of Chicago Holds a Meeting.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—At a mass meeting under the auspices of the local Armenian society tonight to protest against the recent Armenian outrages resolutions were adopted to express sorrow at the action of the Turkish authorities; extending sympathy to the Armenians; commending the action of President Cleveland in appointing a representative of this country to act independently on the commission of investigation; calling upon congress and the president to exercise a national influence in bringing to speedy justice all who are proved to be in any way responsible for these terrible deeds upon the inalienable rights of our common humanity; tendering to the department of state loyal support in any effort to assure a government for the Armenian people which shall not only be willing and able to protect life but to make peaceful progress probable. Among the speakers at the meeting were H. N. Higginbotham, who presided, M. M. Mangasarian, Dr. Hirsch, Judge Watermann, Mrs. Mary Holmes and others.

SWEAT SHOPS RAIDED.

Forty Men and Women Arrested for Working on Sunday.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 9.—Under guise of the violation of law by working on Sunday the police and health officers today raided a number of sweat shops and arrested twenty-three men and eighteen women and girls. In all the places raided, with the exception of one, it was found there was not provided the breathing space required by law, which is 400 feet of air space for each person. Today the health department will begin proceedings against the proprietors of the shops.

BANK HAS BEEN CLOSED.

Nebraska Cashier Disappears With the Bank's Funds.

LINCOLN, Dec. 9.—Albert Whipple, cashier of the Crawford Banking company at Crawford, Neb., has absconded and the bank is closed. He had several government contracts at Fort Robinson and Omaha. Payment on one check of $2,500 and others made to him by the government on the United States depository at Omaha have been stopped. The state bank examiner has been sent for.

RIVALRY CAUSES MURDER.

Barnes Was Killed Because the Murderer Wanted to Secure His Job.

SWEAT BOX BRINGS A PROMPT CONFESSION.

Jordan Committed the Murder and Jersey Helped to Make Way With the Body.

CHICAGO MURDERERS CONFESS.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—John R. Jersey, assistant janitor of the Hawatha building, has confessed that he with Edmund Jordan, another janitor, murdered Albert D. Barnes, custodian of the building, whose mutilated remains were found in a dry goods box in Hyde Park. Rivalry between Barnes and Jordan for the chief janitorship of the building was the motive for the crime.

Jordan is the man who first identified Barnes' remains at the morgue. He displayed extraordinary coolness, but when he undertook to explain his movements after the time Barnes was last seen alive his statements became contradictory and the police placed him under arrest. At the same time they took Jersey to the lock-up, though the detectives thought the murder was the outcome of a liaison, proof of which they had just discovered. Mrs. A. E. Winslow of 3744 Rhodes avenue, accused by her own confession and handwriting to have been on such terms of intimacy with the murdered man as to have aroused the jealousy of her husband, was also arrested. The wronged husband could not be found by the police and they regarded this as a suspicious circumstance.

Falling to get any direct evidence against the persons in custody, the police put each of the prisoners through the "sweating" process. Jersey was the first to break down, and he made a complete confession. Meanwhile detectives who had been working on the outside secured several persons who had seen Jersey and Jordan with the dry goods box in the vicinity of Hyde Park.

Jersey's confession, according to the police, shows that Jordan alone was responsible for Barnes' death. Jersey said that Jordan, on the afternoon of the murder, gave him some money, told him to get a few drinks and be back to work at 8 o'clock that night. When he reappeared Jordan told him to help carry out the shipping case, and in so doing some of the blood from the box ran out onto Jersey's sleeve. He asked Jordan what that meant, and the latter told him that there was a dead man in the box and that he (Jersey) had better keep quiet about what he had seen. Badly scared, Jersey kept silent until the terrors of the sweat box wrung his story from him.

Late this afternoon Annie Mahoney confessed to her knowledge of the Barnes murder. She told the police that she was present when Jordan killed Barnes and she said that the murder was committed last Tuesday night. Since that time, according to the woman's story, she helped put the body in a box and on Thursday night helped Jordan to hire the express wagon. She added that she lived with Barnes for five years. Her sister was present while the woman was making this confession.

TRAIN ROBBER CONFESSES.

Captured Bandit Makes Confession and Implicates Accomplices.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 9.—One of the Benbrook train robbers who held up the Texas & Pacific train last Thursday surrendered to the sheriff at Corsican today. He was brought here and is now in jail. He confessed everything and gave the names of four others implicated, two of whom have been arrested. The self-confessed train robber is Sam Evans, a nephew of one of the oldest and wealthiest citizens of Fort Worth, Colonel Sam Evans. Young Sam is locally known as "Crazy Sam Evans."

IT HELPED THEIR BUSINESS.

Firm of Contractors Caught Burning Down Factory Buildings.

HOLLAND CITY, Mich., Dec. 9.—Timothy Smith and Timothy Slagh, composing the firm of Smith & Slagh, contractors and builders, were arrested this morning for arson. They were caught in the act of setting fire to a factory building. There have been many incendiary fires during the past few weeks. An employe of the contractors named G. Stephen, who was acting as guard, was also arrested. The motive is supposed to have been to increase their business.

JEWETT NOT ACCEPTED.

Sultan Seems to Fear Independent Report to Washington.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A despatch to The Standard from Constantinople says the sultan has not acquiesced in the mission of Consul Milo Jewett, who was selected by President Cleveland to inquire into and report upon the Turkish outrages in Armenia. The dispatch adds that the sultan appears to fear the effect of an independent report to the Washington government.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—It was discovered today that the Rev. Conra Haney, one of the most prominent of Chicago's divines, had eloped with Mrs. George W. Brandt, wife of the manager of the Price Baking Powder company.

HAS GONE TO LANSING.

Marshal Ward Will Appear Before Governor Rich to Answer Charges Tomorrow.

WM. GROSE OF RED JACKET SENT TO TRAVERSE CITY.

Arion Lady Quartette Will Appear at St. Patrick's Hall in Hancock Next Saturday Evening.

[All communications intended for this department should be addressed to Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Mich. Telephone connection.]

CALEMET. Marshal Ward left town Saturday morning for Lansing, where he has been cited to appear before the governor today. THE MINING JOURNAL trusts that Mr. Ward will not be punished for the failure on his part to enforce laws which by common consent or by reason of some other cause are enforced nowhere in the state.

Rev. Jno. Sweet, pastor of the Calumet Methodist church and president of the Law and Order League, has gone to Lansing with the intention of appearing before Governor Rich today and making it interesting for one Francis Ward of Red Jacket, who will be put on the rack before his excellency, the governor, some time this afternoon.

The fight between Kehoe and Black was really won by the latter in the first round had he adhered to the rules. He succeeded in catching Kehoe a terrific blow in the side of the head, which felled the latter. He was unable to rise for some seconds and as time was called staggered to his knees, when Black, despite the warnings of the referee, rushed toward him and struck him a terrific blow in the face as he was on his knees and unprotected. The blow broke Kehoe's jaw and the fight was awarded by Referee Trudell to Kehoe, which was the only award he could make under the circumstances.

Advices received from Captain John Daniell of the Tamarack and Osceola mines are not at all reassuring. It is feared that his brain trouble may develop into that dread and hopeless disease, paresis.

Everything is running smoothly at No. 1 shaft of the Tamarack and it would not be thought from casual inspection that an accident had ever occurred there.

Senator Peter Pascoe of Republic, who was the first in the cabinet of the great Calumet & Hecla, visited his son at the Tamarack Saturday and went on to Houghton Sunday noon.

The great mass meeting of all members of and sympathizers with the Y.M.C.A. was held at the Armory Sunday evening. There was good music in abundance and an address by Herbert M. Clark, state secretary of the association, who recounted the proceedings of the jubilee services in London last summer, commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of what is now one of the greatest organizations in the world. There was a large attendance and the exercises were of such a nature that no one in the big hall grew tired before the Glee club rendered the last selection.

Thomas Willis Jr., who attended the great encampment of the Salvation Army, has returned. He saw all that was to be seen, heard all there was to hear and returned greatly pleased with the trip. The "blood and fire soldiers" are beginning to be better understood now than they were a few years ago, and the reception accorded General William Booth, the founder and commander of the great army, was wonderfully cordial.

Rev. Joel Martin, general missionary of the Congregational church, preached the sermon at the forenoon services in the Calumet Congregational church yesterday.

The Florida Mining company has its addition to Calumet Village all platted but is not as yet selling any ground. The principal reason for the delay seems to consist in the inability of the directors to agree on the figures at which the lots should be disposed of.

Herbert M. Clark will deliver a lecture, entitled "A Janit through Europe" at the armory this evening.

George T. Fuller arrived here Saturday afternoon, having left Cleveland Friday morning. Mr. Fuller has purchased a coal yard in that city, and took possession on Dec. 1. He is pleased with the new location and the prospects of business. He will return in a day or two to the Forest City.

HOUGHTON.

Wm. Grose of Red Jacket, a nephew of Captain Josiah Hill, county mine inspector, has been brought here and will be taken this week to the Northern insane asylum at Traverse City. Mr. Grose has been ailing for some time and some six weeks ago started from his uncle's home in Red Jacket for his home in England, a companion being with him. When the couple arrived here Mr. Grose's condition was so serious that his companion returned with him to Red Jacket instead of making the trip across the Atlantic. Mr. Grose's trouble is diagnosed by resident physicians as a tumor pressing upon the brain and it has been deemed advisable to send him to Traverse City where the leading specialists in diseases of the brain will be on hand to perform whatever may be done toward a cure.

The proprietors of the new ice rink on the lake have been watching the structure with rather an anxious eye during the thaw and have been unable to decide whether their friends were offering good advice or simply guffing them when they recommended that the rink be anchored or that a bottom be put in it for safety.

A number of mosquitoes, of full size and ferocity, were to be seen hovering about a telephone pole Saturday afternoon.

At the regular convention of Columbia lodge, No. 144, Knights of Pythias, held in the hall in the Hartman block last Thursday evening the following officers were chosen to officiate for the year 1895: C. C. M. B. Hoar; V. C. A. H. Hadley; prelate, Chas. Henderson;

M. of W. W. F. Miller; master-at-arms, John McNamara; master of finances, Thomas Dea; master of exchequer, John Slockett; keeper of records and seal, W. H. Mullen; representative to grand lodge, M. B. Hoar; alternate, W. F. Miller; trustees, Albert N. Baudin, Geo. W. Des Roscher, Martin Foley.

County Clerk R. H. Shields got home yesterday from Chicago.

Allen F. Rees went to Lansing Saturday afternoon with Marshal Ward of Red Jacket. If Mr. Ward follows his attorney's advice the representatives of the Law and Order League may find it rather difficult to secure the desired action on the part of the chief executive of the state.

Senator Peter Pascoe of Republic, a gentleman whom his constituents in the iron country thought of so highly that they re-elected him to the state senate by a largely increased majority last month, arrived here Saturday noon and will spend several days in the copper country. He is the guest of Captain Johnson Vivian while in Houghton.

HANCOCK.

The date of the Original Old Homestead quartette has been cancelled and in place of it the Arion Lady quartette will appear on the date first arranged for, Saturday next. The change was rendered necessary by the illness of a member of the Old Homestead company and will be keenly regretted by all who have heard the rich melody of the quartette when on the road with Denam Thompson, whose fame and shekels they helped to make. While the entertainment given by the Arion ladies is expected to be up to the standard of the company originally billed, the former comes here liberally recommended by the press of the various towns in which the vocalists have recently warbled and will doubtless meet a good house at St. Patrick's Hall next Saturday night.

Despite the very suggestive name borne by the May Leggett Concert company, which was here recently, the troupe was not compelled to walk out of town, a generous public contributing of its wealth to such an extent that such a method of leaving copperdon was not necessary.

The Ladies Aid society of the Methodist church gave a social Saturday evening at the church parlors. Light refreshments were served and a large number of people made comfortable for the evening.

Commissioner J. B. Knight is in the county winding up his inspection of the copper mines. By the time his report is published Mr. Knight will have visited every mine and quarry in the great state of Michigan—a thing none of his predecessors in the office have ever done. Mr. Knight has that stick-to-it disposition which accomplishes great results through sheer dint of perseverance and never knowing when to quit.

A union Sunday school service was held yesterday at the Hancock M. E. church.

The thaw of Friday and Saturday spoiled the sleighing in Hancock and on the Quincy hill.

The special edition of The Progress was late Saturday, although the pressman sat up until 3 a. m. that morning trying to master the mystery of half tone printing.

The Quincy Excelsior band is arranging for a concert to be given at the Quincy hall on the hill, on some date not yet decided, but to be in the near future. The concert of the band, as well as the hall to be given on New Year's eve, should be liberally patronized as the band is the only one in the city which can furnish music and deserves encouragement.

Tickets which will secure reserved seats for the balance of the Y.M.C.A. course of entertainments—four in number—can be secured now for $2, a saving of one dollar from buying seats singly.

R. M. Hoar spent Friday and Saturday at Marquette in attendance at a meeting of the prison board, of which he is a member.

Fred Northey has returned from a prolonged stay in Duluth.

A. M. Lindbohn has bought the drug business of Ernest Saderbohm.

Simon McDonnell went to Chicago on the Saturday afternoon train and will be home about the middle of the week.

LAKE LINDEN.

Daniel Jarvey, a Finn employed by Charles Heugheens, was struck by a falling limb Thursday afternoon and received injuries which caused his death in a few hours. The remains were buried here Friday afternoon. The man had no relatives in the state so far as known.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and legs, and his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney Cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottles. THE BIRTH OF NAPOLEON.

The Date Has Long Been a Matter of Controversy.

The trials of poverty made the Buonapartes most clever and adroit. Suspicious of shiftness in small matters were developed later on, and led to an over close scrutiny of their acts. The opinion has not yet disappeared among reputable authorities that Nabalione and Napoleon were one and the same, born on January 7, 1768, while Joseph was really the younger, born on the date assigned to his distinguished brother. The earliest documentary evidence consists of two papers, one in the archives of the French war department, one in those of Ajaccio. The former is dated 1782, and testifies to the birth of Nabalione on January 7, 1768, and his baptism on January 8; the latter is the copy of an original which declares the birth on January 7 of Joseph Nabalione. Neither is decisive, but the addition of Joseph, with the use of the two French forms for the name in the second, destroys much of its value, and leaves the weight of authority with the former. The reasonableness of the suspicion is further heightened by the fact that Napoleon's certificate of marriage gives the date of his birth as February 8, 1768. Moreover, in the marriage contract of Joseph, witnesses speak of him as born at Ajaccio, not at Corte.

But there are facts of greater weight on the other side. In the first place the documentary evidence is itself of equal weight, for the archives of the French war department also contain an extract dated July 21, 1771, from the one original baptismal certificate, and this extract gives the date of Napoleon's birth as August 15, 1769. Charles' application for the appointment of his two eldest boys to Brienne has also been found, and it contains, according to regulation, still another copy from the original certificate. It is dated June 23, 1776, and also gives what is now generally accepted as the correct date. This quite explodes the old story that Napoleon's age was falsified by his father in order to obtain admittance for him to the military school. The application was made in 1776 for both boys, in order to secure admission for each before the end of his tenth year. It was the delay of the authorities in granting the request which, after the lapse of three years or more, made Joseph ineligible. The father could have had no motive in 1776 to perpetrate a fraud, and after that date it was impossible, for the papers were not in his hands. The charge was made during Napoleon's lifetime. His brother positively asserted the fact, as it is now substantially proven to be, and Bourrienne, who had known the emperor as a child of nine, was of the same opinion. In the walk of life to which the Buonapartes belonged, the fixity of names was not as rigid as it later became. There were three Marie-Annes in the family first and last, one of whom was later called Elise.

As to the given name Napoleon, there is a curious though unimportant confusion. We have already seen the forms Nabalione, Nabalion, Napoleone, Napoleon. Contemporary documents give also the form Napoloeone, and his marriage certificate uses Napoleone. On the Vendome column stands Napolio, imp, as if to recall Neopollis, a sainted martyr. The irreverent school boys of Autun and Brienne gave the nickname "straw nose"—paille-nez—to the brothers. The pronunciation, therefore, was probably as uncertain as the form, Na-paille-anez being probably a distortion of Napolio. The chameleon-like character of the name corresponds exactly to the chameleon-like character of the times, the man, and the lands of his birth and his adoption. The Corsican noble and French royalist was Napoleon di Buonaparte; the Corsican republican and patriot, who was always present under the mask, was Napoleon Buonaparte; the French republican, Napoleon Buonaparte; the victorious general, Bonapartes the emperor, Napoleon. There was likewise a change in his handwriting analogous to the change in his nationality and opinions. It was probably to conceal a most defective knowledge of French that the adoptive Frenchman, republican, consul and emperor abandoned the fairly legible hand of his youth, and recurred to the atrocious one of his childhood, continuing always to use it after his definite choice of a country.

Stormy indeed were his nation and his birthtime. He himself said: "I was born while my country was dying. Thirty thousand French vomited on our shores, drowning the throne of liberty in waves of blood—such was the horrid sight which first met my view. The cries of the dying, the groans of the oppressed, tears of despair, surrounded my cradle at my birth."—Prof. William M. Sloane, in Century.

The Donkey Vanishing. In general we may say that the donkeys belong to a vanishing state of human culture, to the time before carriage ways existed. Now that civilization goes on wheels, they seem likely to have an ever-decreasing value. A century ago they were almost everywhere in common use. At the present time there are probably millions of people in the United States to whom the animal is known only by description. In a word, the creature marks a stage in the development of our industries which is passing away as rapidly as that in which the spinning-wheel and the hand-loom played a part.—Prof. N. S. Shaler, in Scribner.

A VARIED ASSORTMENT.

Ishpeming's Young Thieves Had Assembled Quasi Lot of Plunder.

OFFICERS FOUND ANOTHER HIDING PLACE.

And Then the Two Ringleaders of the Gang of Juvenile Burglars Made Full Confession.

THEY HAVE SQUEALED.

Ole Everson and Hjalmer Jeronquist, two of the juvenile thieves captured by the police officers Thursday, have confessed their guilt. The officers found another large batch of stolen articles in Everson's barn Saturday. When the boys heard of this they knew that it was useless to stand out longer, so made a flight west of it.

Marshal Carlson and Deputy Marshal Nolan gave the barn quite a thorough overhauling and secured a slight load of truck, the greater part of which they took to the marshal's office, where it was inspected by many during the afternoon. The smaller articles were concealed between the floor of the second and the ceiling of the first story; also between the studding of the side walls. Many of the articles found were old and worthless, while others were of some value. The collection was quite varied, there being perhaps over one hundred and fifty different articles. There were tools of various kinds, such as are used in machine shops, jewelry stores, shoe shops, etc. Something like fifty different kinds of keys, some of which were manufactured by the boys, were among the hidden treasures. There was ammunition of various kinds, five brass knives, razors, fishing tackle, police whistles, cigars, whiskey, a horse-made "billy," a couple of bats, two violins, a cornet, a flute and a metal whistle. There were also several carpenter's tools, and among the collection were two D. S. S. & A. red lanterns, such as are used in signaling trains, five cases of empty pop bottles and a pair of woman's corsets. A couple of wheels and other parts of a wagon were also found in the barn.

Jeronquist says that he alone committed the Eggen robbery; that Ole and some of the other boys were out to the Saginaw location that night. He committed the theft at 10:30. He says the only articles he took were four or five razors, two knives and a pair of hair clippers. It is certain that he took other articles, however, as there were others missing from the stock.

The robbery of Fohrman's music store was committed by Ole Everson and Jeronquist. The former admits this, but the latter denies that he had anything to do with it. Among the articles stolen were two violins, a metal whistle and some harmonicas. The door made such a noise (rattling with the wind) when the two lads were going through the store that they imagined some one was around, so they did not wait to find the violin bows and went away without them. One of the violins (apparently an expensive one) was found at Devold's meat market Saturday evening, Ole having left it there one day recently. When he left the violin at the market he told the proprietor that he would call for it during the day, as he was going to take it to town for repairs.

The Peterson robbery Wednesday night was committed by Ole and Jeronquist by their own admission. Jeronquist entered the place, while Ole stood at the corner watching for the officers. This was at 1 o'clock. They were around the place for about half an hour before they decided to go in. They cured $3.20 in change, two boxes of cigars and two bottles of whiskey. Jeronquist says he thinks it was a crazy move on his part to steal whiskey, as he never drinks it. His companions also assert that he does not drink. The money was divided between them.

Ole and Jeronquist claim that Anton Everson, Hursley and McWilliams are innocent of any criminality. They were chums of theirs but were never let into their secrets, although they often traded revolvers and such like. The large tent found in the barn came from Union Park, Jeronquist says, where Ole "lifted" it about two years ago. The officers then found the tent in his possession and on paying for it he was permitted to keep it. They will not tell where they got the smaller tent. Ole says he will have more to say when he is put under oath. He was a little sulky Saturday and wasn't in the mood for talking.

On being asked where they got this thing or that they would answer "August Nelson stole that." Nelson was a chum of theirs and it was he who burglarized Lincoln's second-hand store last spring, when a cornet and some guns were stolen. It was he who got into S. Johnson & Co.'s place and stole a suit of clothes, underwear, neckties, pins, and other articles. Shortly after committing the Lindholm robbery the officers got after Nelson, whom they had suspected for some time, and he skipped out of town and has not since returned. Soon after the robbery he buried the cornet in a box near the target at the foot of the hill east of the New York location. Before going away he told Ole where it was hid. Ole dug it up and stored it in the barn with the other plunder. Ole says he stole his keys here and there, wherever he happened to find them, but that Nelson gave him several of those which were manufactured at home. The tools with which the keys were made were bought by Nelson.

Ole says the only lock that they could not open with their outfit of tools and keys was a Yale. He says he has often wondered why the business men did not all put on locks of this kind. They had very little trouble getting into the places secured by any locks. The boys deny having had anything to do with the several other business places burglarized during the past year. Willie Majhanna, who was a chum of these lads, skipped out Friday evening. The boys claim that he had no occasion to leave town as he was not implicated in the thefts. He was in possession of two of Eggen's revolvers, which were given him by Jeronquist. When he heard that the boys were arrested he hid the weapons near the old New York mine barn. On being threatened with arrest he produced the revolvers. His father scolded him, so he bundled his clothes together and left the city sending his father a note asking him for money and stating that he was going away never to return. Mr. Majhanna did not send the boy the money, however, but requested the officers to find him if possible and if found guilty of any of the thefts to punish him accordingly. Mr. Majhanna feels very badly over the affair, as he had placed the greatest confidence in his son. The lad will undoubtedly return in a few days, as he left during a fit of excitement and anger. His father declares that he is innocent. The saddle found in the barn was obtained from young Majhanna, but Mr. Majhanna says his boy had it for over four years. It having been about the store the greater part of the time. Jeronquist says Majhanna gave it to him, that he had got tired of seeing it lying around. When J. J. Voelker's place was burglarized a few weeks ago, and $5 and some liquor were taken, a bottle of whiskey of a certain kind was among the goods carried off. This bottle was found near the New York mine coal dock in the vicinity of the lads' homes and was taken to the marshal's office. Mr. Voelker identified it as being the only brand of bottled goods. The finding of the bottle, however, is not sufficient proof that these boys committed the theft.

Ole and Jeronquist are satisfied that they will be sent to prison. They admit that they have been very bad boys. Ole says he guesses he was born a thief, as he has been stealing everything that he could lay his hands on as long as he can remember. Ole is nineteen years of age and Jeronquist eighteen.

Lonie Orchestra. An orchestra, composed of seven young ladies and one gentleman, has been organized in Ishpeming. It will make its first public appearance March 17, when it will assist in a benefit entertainment to be given by members of St. John's church. The orchestra is composed of Mrs. A. G. Schumacher, Miss Minnie Collins, violin; the Misses Janie Finnigan and Annie Lacy, guitars; the Misses Mary Lebroche and Kittie Cahill, mandolin; Miss Ella Mellins and Jerre Siney, banjos. Miss Minnie Collins is the president and Miss Lebroche secretary. Mrs. Schumacher is the musical director. About two rehearsals a week will be held.

Will Stop Hoisting. The Cleveland Iron Mining company has decided to stop hoisting ore at the Lake Shaft mine for the remainder of the winter, the shut-down to take effect some day this week. About two hundred and fifty men will be laid off, leaving a force of about one hundred, all told, about the mine. These will be kept on doing preparatory work underground and on surface. By spring the mine will be in excellent condition for production, as all the improved machinery which is being put in will then be in place.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

A Famous French Sociologist Takes His Views Regarding Her.

The apotheosis of woman, which is the so-called "society" in America, is first and above all the apotheosis of the young girl. These words, so simple, are still two words to be explained, for it is probable that on all the points—reverting, let it be understood, that of honor—they express exactly the opposite in the United States to what they do in France. What first strikes the traveler who has heard so much of the young American girls is the absolute impossibility of distinguishing them from the young women. The fact, so much commented upon, that they come and go alone as they please would not suffice to establish the confusion. The identity goes further. They have the same jewelry, the same toilets, the same liberty of speech and laughter, the same books to read, the same manner, the same beauty already fully developed, and thanks to the invention of the "chaperon" there is not a theater or restaurant party to which they cannot go, alone naturally, and at the invitation of any gentleman of their acquaintance.

The quality of that official surveillance may be measured from another fact, that the young lady for whom the chaperon gives the party chooses herself the chaperon. The younger that chaperon is the more she is appreciated. The young widow and the "grass widow"—the isolated temporarily divorced or simply isolated temporarily from her husband—fill the ideal conditions of the part. You might just as well say that the young girls whom you see at Delmonico's in the company of three young men and the said chaperon, or who go and take tea at the rooms of another young man, are as free as though they had no one to look after them than themselves. It is that habit of acting for themselves without control which is manifested in the singular assurance of their countenances.

One of the most amiable men of New York, who is a poet, has had the idea of forming a collection of miniatures, where he places, with their permission, all the professional beauties of the town. I remember that in examining them with the magnifying glass through the pane behind which those hundreds of pretty and fine faces smile forth, I sought to guess those who had known marriage and could not succeed. What, in truth, will it bring them more when it comes? Duties, a husband to bear with, children to care for, a house to look after. To-day the young girl has none of the burden of those chains. She knows it, and she enjoys the time she has to the utmost. She will not have one liberty the more when she is married, and she will have less time to amuse herself. But in most cases she marries late. If it is not quite an end to her, as it is for the young man in Paris when he decides to break off his bachelor life, it is at least a commencement of abridgment. The majority do not conceal it.

"We must amuse ourselves before marriage," said one of them grayly to me. "Does one know what will come after?" The divorce cases of which the newspapers publish the details from time to time, prove that that young person had as much sense as beauty. For my part, after having closely investigated the human conditions here and in Europe, I think that for a young man of twenty-five years the best chances for happiness are to be an Englishman of good family, concluding his studies at Oxford, and for a young girl to be born American, with a father who has made his money in mines, railways or land speculation, and to arrive with good sponsors in the society of New York or Washington—American Woman.

TRANSACTIONS IN TIMBER. Jake Sneider has bought the cedar in the swamp owned by Peter Truedell and has five or six men at work cutting it.

Thomas Sheridan, who is operating in the woods near Schweitzer's old mill, was in Negaunee Saturday. He is working about twenty-five men and expects to get out considerable timber before spring.

During the recent soft weather the men in the woods could not work to very good advantage and it looked Saturday as though they might have to quit entirely until freezing weather sets in.

Taylor & Anthony are working about sixty men at their camps up the line. They are getting out timber for some of the mines here and at Ishpeming. They began cutting a little earlier than usual in the fall, hence will finish early.

William Neely has established a lumber camp near Clowery, about ten miles west of here, and is getting out some very good timber.

A Public Installation. At the regular meeting of Cal Bono lodge, No. 112, A. O. U. W., to be held Wednesday evening, officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The officers are desirous of having a large attendance of members at this meeting, as arrangements for a public installation, to be held two or three weeks later, will be considered.

Mertie Heard From. In reply to an item reflecting on Mertie Sullivan, one of the High school football team, as a player, which appeared in the last issue of the Iron Herald, purporting to have come from one of the Colts, Mertie contributes the following:

The Colts are kind of frisky. Though they have met defeat, And for them to win a game, they expect to Some pea soup they must eat. Their colored bluffer, Harry, Is quite a foxy Jay.

The young men of Negaunee have the football craze in earnest. The White Stars are real anxious to play the Colts or the school team but neither of these appear over anxious to tackle the scrapping.

Eugene Ethier fell from a ladder one day last week and sustained injuries which confined him to the house until Saturday. Although quite lame yet he will be able to resume work in a few days.

Nels C. Anderson, who has been working at the Cambria mine for some time past, left Saturday evening for his native place in Denmark, where he will spend the winter. He will return to Negaunee in the spring.

"BE STRONG." Be strong to bear, O heart of mine! Paint not when sorrows come. The summits of these hills of earth Touch the blue skies of heaven. So many burdened ones there are, Close journeying by thy side.

Be strong to love, O heart of mine! Live not for self alone. But find, in blessing other lives, For just beyond these gloomy hours, Rich, radiant days abide.

Be strong to hope, O heart of mine! Look not on life's dark side: For just beyond these gloomy hours, Rich, radiant days abide.

UNCLE JOSEPH'S WOOING. BY SARAH H. GARDNER.

One of the prominent figures in our meeting house for many years was that of Uncle Joseph, for thus was he known by the young and old who frequented our religious gatherings.

He occupied the second seat in the men's gallery, and it was with him that the elder shook hands in sign that Friends should separate, when it seemed likely that the spirit would move no others to utter gentle words of blessing or stern warning against the tempter.

As children we regarded Uncle Joseph in the light of a patriarch, although I now know that his years at the time of which I write had scarce reached the limit of a half century.

He was a comely man, straight and tall, his smooth-shaven face beaming with good nature, and his soft blue eyes lighted with sympathy, but he was not intellectual.

One of the prominent figures in our meeting house for many years was that of Uncle Joseph, for thus was he known by the young and old who frequented our religious gatherings.

He was a comely man, straight and tall, his smooth-shaven face beaming with good nature, and his soft blue eyes lighted with sympathy, but he was not intellectual.

My father and mother were in the way of inviting many friends to dine with them on monthly meeting day. Quarterly meeting brought even more persons from a distance, and among the children little unaccustomed duties were distributed.

Uncle Joseph stopped short in his walk, and catching a frightened look upon the honest face beside him, he gravely said:

"It was not upon that relation that my mind ran. I thought rather of the increased duty in this day and generation which belongs to the husbandman and his gleaner, or, in other words, the responsibility of him upon whom the benefits of this world have been showered, and the loud call ever sounding in my ear to extend help to those who need; and it has been whispered to me that thy material goods have been slipped from thee, and—

"Sarah, there has a more receptive spirit than my own. I have sometimes longed to see a right in regard to the formation of a closer bond with thee, and I rejoice that through my ill-chosen speech there has been led to point the way."

He took her trembling hand between his own, and smiled down upon the sweet, but tearful face; then her lips opened, the pain went forever out of her heart, and she whispered only: "Dear Joseph."

"But her trial was not quite over. We were already summoned to the dining-room when Uncle Joseph and Sarah Sidney entered the door together. I glanced about me, and was certain that I saw more than one look of satisfaction exchanged by the company present."

"The moment of silent blessing was past. My mother moved as if to begin serving the soup, but she caught Uncle Joseph's eye, and awaited his slow words."

"Dear friends," he said, with a little tremor in his voice, "rejoice with me, for to-day has our beloved Sarah Sidney revealed to me the message that the Lord has given into her keeping."

pure is not lengthy, and it is therefore a serious matter to be forced to curtail in her giving."

"Sarah is too true a follower of the Great Teacher to be long afflicted by the things of this world," replied an aged friend.

"Ah, Hannah dear," answered the first speaker, "there has never had the bread and butter trouble, and therefore there can hardly compass its misery."

"I think we all felt the force of this argument, for Hannah was richly dowered. Presently Jane Spencer sighed: 'I cannot help wishing that Uncle Joseph would recognize that the hand of the Lord is pointing him to Sarah Sidney.'"

"If such be the will of our Heavenly Father, I doubt not it will be revealed in due time," and Hannah spoke with great deliberation.

"I can hardly think that he realizes Sarah's worth," said a late comer. "On the contrary," it was Rhoda Longstreet's voice, "I am sometimes inclined to believe that his doubt rests upon his own merit. If he were of the world's people I should say he was bashful. As it is, I call him slow in perceiving his adoption to any peculiar calling."

"These may be right," responded Jane Spencer, and I was struck with the note of merry-making that accompanied her words. "If so, I can only wish that somebody would give him a hint, for I really believe that Sarah has perceived their true relationship, and that her spirit is troubled since no sign is given unto her."

"Ah," interrupted Hannah, "shall we never learn that God does not wish us to call upon Him for signs?"

Now it had chanced, although none of those present were at that time conscious of it, that Sarah Sidney had given up her seat in a friend's carriage to a person who was suffering from a weak limb, and had walked briskly along the frozen road toward our house.

Uncle Joseph, too, had chosen to leave his vehicle at home, and, seeing in the distance a familiar, plump little figure, he made haste to overtake her.

For a few moments they talked together of the lesser things of life. Then they fell into a silence which was at last broken by Uncle Joseph's voice: "My mind has dwelt much to-day upon the Bible teaching of the relation of Ruth and Boaz."

I am sure that the throbbing heart beneath the white muslin kerchief of Sarah Sidney must have bounded a little at this. He went on: "Has she ever thought it over and applied the test to our own lives?"

"It was certainly not strange that the good woman hesitated before she answered: 'If it means to ask whether it has been shown to me that I am chosen of the Lord to be thy companion, I will admit that it has; but, Joseph, there is not an old man, nor am I a young hand maiden.'"

Uncle Joseph stopped short in his walk, and catching a frightened look upon the honest face beside him, he gravely said:

"It was not upon that relation that my mind ran. I thought rather of the increased duty in this day and generation which belongs to the husbandman and his gleaner, or, in other words, the responsibility of him upon whom the benefits of this world have been showered, and the loud call ever sounding in my ear to extend help to those who need; and it has been whispered to me that thy material goods have been slipped from thee, and—

Send it Back. Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you 'this is as good as' or 'the same as Pearlina.' IT'S FALSE—Pearlina is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearlina, be honest—send it back.

"It's Cruel for them not to give you Pearlina for your washing. Your folks can't know much about it. My! They could save their money, and all your hard work besides. I'm thankful the lady I live with is just the other way. She knows what Pearlina will do, and she wants it. She'd never let me lose my time trying to get things clean with soap—and she wouldn't stand it to have her clothes all worn out with rubbing, either."

That's the truth. The lack of Pearlina comes just as hard on the mistress' clothes as it does on the laundress' back.

GOT THINGS REVERSED.

Marquette Seems to Be Getting November Weather in December.

HAD USUAL DECEMBER SNOW LAST MONTH.

Topics of City Preachers' Discourses Beautiful Violin Finished by Marquette's Artistic Lutanist.

SEEMS RATHER TWISTED.

Whether Chief Harrington or Observer Patrick is responsible, or neither, or both, it does rather seem as if Marquette's weather had got twisted this year. November was colder and brought more snow than usual. So far December has produced the weather which experience has led most residents here to expect in the month previous.

Things softened up still farther Saturday with a decided rain. Towards midnight it began to snow and by 3 o'clock Sunday morning the ground was white and the snow still falling. But yesterday was like a spring day and the new fallen snow rapidly vanished. But for the accumulated ice on sidewalks of men too indifferent to their neighbors' comfort to clean them it would have been hard to tell that any snow had yet fallen.

Last night there were few indications of colder weather and in the early evening there were as many knots of loungers upon the streets as are seen in early spring. The weather does certainly does seem out of gear. If this thing keeps up much longer the poor, persecuted logger will begin to be heard from. So far there seems to be snow enough in the woods but it evidently cannot last much longer with this sort of treatment. The chief eccentricities of this season on Lake Superior are more noticeable in this city than further inland and are probably chargeable to the administration of President Cleveland.

A Beautiful Violin.

Mr. Roderick Campbell last week delivered to the purchaser his violin No. 8, an instrument that is pronounced by competent judges to be probably the best he has yet turned out. It is a beautiful piece of workmanship and of superb tone. Of course the tone of any new instrument is more or less harsh, time and steady playing being essential to allow the instrument to settle down and mature. But even the new violins of a really good maker, such as Mr. Campbell, are as different as possible from the ordinary fiddle. The wood of which this violin is made is very old, its history for nearly seventy-five years being positively known, and it was old wood then. The pine front came from northern Italy, from those southern slopes of the Alps which produce the best material for this purpose. This pine and the maple back and sides were obtained from the stock of an old German manufacturer of Berlin and are known to have been in his possession for over fifty years. The instrument is what is known as a Maggini model, being an exact copy of the George Gmunder violin owned by Mrs. W. D. Manness, which was in turn exactly copied by its maker from one of the best examples of Paolo Maggini, one of the greatest Italian makers of the seventeenth century. It is a large violin and its full and robust tone is a delight to every musician who has tried it.

As has been stated before in these columns Mr. Campbell does not make violins as a business but for the love of the art. He has no difficulty in selling every instrument he cares to make and in fact the one here mentioned was ordered a year ago for delivery at this time. Some of these days Marquette will be known and remembered by violinists because Roderick Campbell once lived here and made violins. A good violin improves with age and use—particularly with use—and there is no doubt that in ten years from now Mr. Campbell's violins will readily command twice or three times the price which they bring on leaving the maker's hands. Aside from their artistic merit, which is great, it would pay any player as a commercial proposition to get a Campbell violin. George Gmunder of Astoria, N. Y., has been for some years admittedly the foremost violin maker of the United States. Mr. Gmunder is now a very old man and probably no more instruments can be expected from him. His violins now command anywhere from twice to ten times their original price. In the judgment of competent persons Mr. Campbell's new violins are fully equal to Gmunder's when the latter were new and will as steadily advance in value. Mr. Campbell's No. 1 when last heard of was at Buffalo, N. Y. His Nos. 2 to 7 are owned in this peninsula and chiefly in this city. This last one, No. 8, goes to a young player living in northern Indiana and now a student at Michigan university. Violinists and violin collectors will do well to keep an eye on the Roderick Campbell instruments.

Among the Churches.

The pretty Baptist church was opened yesterday for the first regular services in nearly a year. The new pastor, Rev. W. E. Feeman, preached morning and evening and made a most favorable impression. His discourse in the morning was in the line of a declaration of policy. At the evening service his topic was "The Necessity of Work"—not only for our own salvation but for that of others. Mr. Feeman is a man of striking presence, old enough to have seen some service in the civil war, and a polished and eloquent preacher. The choir rendered some very good music, including Shelley's "Hark, hark, my soul" for the offertory, Buck's "Judith" and a benediction. The Baptist congregation has probably the most convenient auditorium in the city, the only church in fact in which it is possible not only to hear but also to see the preacher without difficulty, and that it is reopened for regular services is a matter of congratulation.

At the Presbyterian church in the morning Mr. Spencer talked on his idea of a minister, declaring that he ought to be something more in and for the community than a mere sermon reader and parish visitor. The evening service was, as usual, in charge of the Young Men's Sunday Evening club and in place of the usual sermon Hon. F. O. Clark and Professor F. W. Epley talked about fifteen minutes each on the theme "Reasons why Christianity commends itself to me." The music was, as usual, quite elaborate. Besides the usual hymns the choir rendered the Gounod-Hawley anthem "The King of Love my shepherd is," Schnecker's "Tarry with me, O my Saviour," and a duet by Fairlamb. For the organ prelude and postlude an intermezzo by Rheinberger and a fantasia by Stainer were rendered.

At the Methodist church Rev. C. S. Eastman gave in the morning an exposition of the passage in Matthew, "Upon this rock will I build my church." In the evening his discourse was upon the text, "What shall I do to be saved"—dwelling particularly upon the solicitude shown by the questioner.

Three services were held at St. Paul's church, Rev. George Gibson of Iron Mountain officiating and preaching twice. At St. Margaret's chapel there was the usual afternoon service and sermon.

Services appropriate to the advent season were held at St. Peter's cathedral and at St. Jean Baptiste.

"A Fellow-Feeling"

This story of about how "a fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind" and about "Our Sam," whose good looks are only surpassed by his piety, was told in the office of the New Clifton last evening by a well-known ambassador of commerce whose modesty prohibits the use of his name.

The lumber concern with which Sam is connected was considerably bothered by thefts from the mill yard. A watch was set and after some time one of the thieves, a Polander, was caught in the act. He had been carrying away a board or two every night until he had stolen enough to build quite a house. Sam heard the matter reported to the office, one of the foremen coming in and remarking, "Well, we got that fellow in jail at last."

Sam inquired into the circumstances and on hearing them sputtered out: "Go down and get him out right away. If I had been arrested for the first million feet of pine I stole I would be getting out again just about now."

Death of George Campbell.

George Campbell died at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning from the effects of a kidney complaint from which he had suffered for many years and after being confined to his bed only four days. Mr. Campbell was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, May 11, 1819, and consequently was in his seventy-sixth year. He leaves a wife and three daughters. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, corner Front street and Hewitt avenue.

A Lady of Culture Killed

Fifteen minutes of time yesterday in looking over our stock of Christmas Novelties. She pronounced them exquisite and the prices very low. Gifts of utility are doubly prized. We have them in Celluloid Toilet Sets and Oxidized Silver. A welcome gift to a wife, sister or sweet-heart is a fine bottle of perfume. We have them in cut glass and in bulk. We take special pride in our prescription department at
