The company is purpose of maintaining the reserve, at $100,000,000 and had followed the announcement with vigorous measures, there would have been no difficulty. If the party in power had provided sufficient revenue there would have been no trouble." The president had now appealed not only to his party associates but to the opposition for aid. As a party man he ought not to be melanchedly over the prospect but as a citizen he stood ready to assist his country in its present crisis. Reed warned the house, however, that there could be no currency legislation at the dictation of any one man—president, Springer, speaker or any other—it must be had by the concensus of opinion of all. "There can be no legislation," he added, "on the eve of an expiring congress. We all know that if this bill passes the house it will go no further. IDIOTIC LEGISLATION.

There are a couple of bills now before Portfolios address themselves to the task of producing new laws or revising old ones.

One of these provides for an increase of the royalty paid the state on iron ore mined from school lands, which has been fixed at twenty-five cents a ton. This was a fair royalty at the time it was established, but is really a high royalty now, the selling price of ore having been since cut in two. There is probably not a mine in Minnesota that cleared twenty-five cents a ton on its output last year, while many of them did not get enough for their ore to cover the cost of producing it and getting it to market: yet the framer of this bill proposes to increase the royalty without any regard to the value of the ore and in the face of market conditions which plain!y call for a reduction rather than an advance.

troduced by a member from St. Paul named Johns, and provides for the appointment of a commission to investigate some new process for converting iron ores into iron and steel by the use of oil for fuel. The discoverer claims that he can smelt the ore and produce iron and steel by his process for not over half the cost of doing this by the methods now used. The commission is to be given $3,000 for the purpose of investigating his process, and if the report is favorable the legislature will be asked to appropriate $100,000 for the establishment of a test plant at Duluth, where the process will be fully tried with a view to demonstrating its commercial value. question, the other day. "No, I do not think so. In the first place, an unmarried woman has not the same sort of youth-preserving interests that a married one has. Moreover, unless she is a woman of remarkable character, she can not fail to grow more or less 'set and 'selfish:' and it is surprising to know how much mental states affect the health. Why," continued the doctor, warming to her subject, "I believe mark was made by a white-bearded that half the cases of neuresthenia and nervous depression in my practice are caused, not by overwork, but by the need of some absorbing interest. The average woman must have a place where she is supreme, not only over the inanimate objects, but over live beings. She must have intense per sonal interests. It is not enough for her to be a part of the big machine.

The doctor paused and looked as though she were reflecting on the sad lot of numerous patients. Then she roused herself and went on:

"It isn't so had when one is twent or twenty-five. But it is a little wors when one is over thirty, and sadde and more trying still after forty. At first the enthusiasm, the novelty, and freshness make life interesting enough and full enough, but little by little the glamour fades and her profession is not enough. Women are so constituted that they live largely in the emotion They need a home-and a home mean husband and children. They are very few women large souled and broaminded enough to expend their affect tions wisely, to keep their hearts young and fresh through such remote and impersonal means as hospitals and flower missions. There are course, but cheery, unselfish, and young as they manage to keep themselves, one always feels that even they would have been happier married.

"One great trouble with the present hue and cry about woman's we her independence," continued the doctor, "is that it makes the young woman put off her thoughts of marrying until it is too late. I don't mean too late for them to grow into adaptability with their husbands. The years after a woman is first through school and has had her first experience of life, either professional or social, are years of settling down. If she gives herself up to her 'career' and to 'living her own life' and all that, she rapidly gets into a state where she is really unfitted for matrimony. She may find her career, with all its attractions and possibili-ties, unsatisfactory, but at the same time it is difficult for her to grow into domestic life after a few years of pro fessional life. It is all a problem, continued the doctor, sighing, "and I dare say it will not be settled in one

CRIMINAL CASES.

Frank St. Maurice Found Guilty of Attempted Arson but the Court's Clemency Was Recommended

On Monday morning the clerks at Pope's store discovered a cow lying frozen near their place. The animal belonged to a family named Bassett and had been sleeping in the open air during the winter. Thirty below zero was too much for her vitality and she ceased chewing the cud for all time. Leaving domestic animals unsheltered during the winter is a very common and very repreheusible practice here. It is poor economy and worse humanity. If arrangements were made to gather in all the householders who leave their cows to wander the streets, their horses to stand unblanketed on a cold corner before some saloon and their dogs to bay at the moon during these frosty nights the aggregation could be given a season ticket to the Houghton ice rink and made to understand how it feels to stand exposure to a Lake Superior win-ter night.

Railroad men brought in certified statements of Michigamme tempera-ture for Monday morning ranging from 40 to 50 degrees below zero. Huntington May Get Into Trouble Through Grand Jury

FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.-United States District Attorney Knight re-ceived a communication from Attorney General Olney sustaining Knight's action in refusing to issue a warrant for the arrest of C. P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific, on the charge of issuing an inter-state pass to Frank Stoner, politician and attorney. Olney says the complaint of T. J. Roberts, an American Railway union striker, who applied for the warrant, is defective in that it did not state that the charge was made on information or the charge was made on information or belief. Olney advises Knight to lay the matter before the federal grand jury. This will be done and Knight says if the grand jury indiets Hunting-ton a warrant for the arrest of the railroad president will be issued at

The hunter is not given to woolly yarns, but he says he actually believe that the animal could stretch himself fifteen feet. He would jump and clasp a limb fifteen to eighteen feet from the ground, and go into a big tree with the ease and grace of any cat. Entirely alone and a long distance from any help the hunter dared not fire at him, knowing from long experience woods that if he hit but did not kill the demon he (the hunter) would be in luck if he lived to get home

The strange and powerful animal followed him for quite a distance, first being three rods ahead in the old logging road and then suddenly appearing in the rear. But the hunter plodded steadily along, keeping his weather eye on the ugly beast while not appearing to notice him or quicken his pace. In about a half hour the big lynx disappeared and the hunter breathed a few sighs of relief and didn't waste any time in looking up his traveling companion after that.

He was enthusiastic over the pretty girls of Georgetown, where, he said, society was centered. Indeed, society centered there for many years. But if the men took pleasure in chasing the fox and in admiring the southern beauties, the women must have found time hanging very heavy on their hands; and the men themselves must have longed for a little variety in their occupations, for an Depressed System Is Often Badly occasional new face or a fresh subject for conversation. News was making very fast in Europe in the days when Napoleon was toppling over the thrones of kings, and much of it was news in which the government of the United States was intensely interested, but it was a month old when it reached America, and it doubtless seemed pure idleness to discuss issues that must have been settled before the president and the members of the diplomatic corps had heard of them. Society at the capital was a good deal like life at a frontier post in the present day; and men then, as now, found relief from ennui in gaming—which is said to have been "rife"-and in drinking which is said to have been a national curse; but whether either gambling or drinking was more general in this country than in England, especially among fine gentlemen, we are at liberty to doubt when we read of the exploits of William Pitt, Lord Thurlow, and Mr. Dundas; of the three-bottle men; of the noble gentlemen who went to sleep night after night under the table; of the bets registered in that interesting old book at Brooks', in which Charles James Fox, Selwyn, the prince of Wales, the duke of York, and other notables recorded their wagers on politics, love, war, hunting, shooting, and on the lives of their friends and parents. The republic was founded at a time when society in Europe was not over-nice.— Henry Loomis Nelson, in Harper's Mag-

POLITENESS IN BUSINESS.

Courteous Conduct Has a High Commercial Value. "Who 'd 'a' thought that any man ould get such pay as that, just standing at the door and being polite!"

This remark was recently called forth by the statement that one of the largest salaries in mercantile circles is paid to a man who stands at the entrance door of the establishment with which he is connected and receives all customers, welcoming them, "making them feel at home," as the more inexperienced purchasers say, and in an in-terested and careful manner directing them where they wish to go, and occasionally giving a word of kindly advice about the state of the markets, inquiring after the families of those with whom he is acquainted, and, in a word, using his best endeavors to make the visitors feel comfortable.

And the exclamation of surprise indulged in by the stranger but voices the sentiment of many who are familiar with such facts.

And such instances are significant illustrations of the ability of some men to make themselves so necessary in the world that they can command almost any salary, and are always sure of profitable employment.

The success of business houses depends much more largely upon the courtesy of employes than careless and ill-tempered persons are willing to admit. We all know of places where we mit. go only because we must, places where the employes and, indeed, the proprieors are sometimes so disobliging and so surly, if not actually rude, that we protest we would never again cross the threshold could we find what we desired elsewhere. And before long we are able to do so, for the public will lemand places where the common courtesies of life are observed, and courtesies of life are observed, and what the public demands is sure to come, and that with little delay.

The successful young man is the one who goes about his business with enthusiasm, who does his duties as though se liked them. What matter they are irksome, monotonous and in every way distasteful. That makes not the least difference. The world is full of men and women who go smilingly about their business when soul and body are almost crushed by the weight of sorrow and pain which they ever carry about with them. One of the most successful humorists of the age did some of his best work while suffering from the inroads of a dread lisease which was consuming him. He knew his case was hopeless; that he had, at the most, but few months to live; but disdaining to be shadowed by even the wide-spreading wings of the grim messenger, he lay upon his coucl and between paroxysms of pain did work which convulsed his readers with laughter. Surely this is better than continual groans and sighs over the inevitable. And this man was always gentle and kind and considerate. He never forgot courtesy and politeness in his most trying hours, and when he died he left a memory of uncomplaining perseverance under the most unnever be forgotten by those who were so fortunate as to know him.

If young people desire success in life and a passport to the favor of those whose acquaintance is worth having, they should learn politeness, promptness and thoroughness. With these in his troubled brain there stepped be three attributes and even a fair share of ability and good sense, a comfortable living, if not wealth, is certain. To do one's duty promptly and in the best manner possible, and to be full of a spirit of hearty, genial good will, is to possess the key to prosperity. "Kindness kindly expressed" is one of the best definitions of politeness ever given. To this add an enthusiastic liking for the work in hand, and the conditions of comfort and competence are assured. The surly, supercilious, complaining, fault-finding, young person is never in demand. That this sort of people sometimes get on in life proves nothing, unless it be that nature of the surface of the surf ture occasionally causes things to flourish in spite of the most discouraging and unfavorable circumstances.

Paine's Celery Compound a Perfect Remedy.

Better Even Than Rest and Change for the Weary

The more minutely all kinds of work ebme subdivided the more sameness and monotony creep into each man's labor. Day after day, day after day, in the same rut till little interest remains in the work, and the mind and body are gradually robbed of energy and healthy elasticity. Unless something is done the prolonged strain is likely to result in health failure; nervous symptoms appear, cares that were once lightly cast off now stick like burs, slight physical exertion tires, and the end is complete prostration and breaking down of some vital organ.

Business men feel this, public officials, wage-earners, housekeepers, every man and woman whose work allows of little or no rest and change. At the first small beginnings of nervous ness or when languid feelings do not disap-pear after a sound night's sleep, the prudent person should know that he or she must check this decline in health by the use of that one genuine nerve food and Paine's celery compound every day will be a firm step toward assured health. Nervous, unhappy, and feeble persons find their flesh becomes more solid, a more healthy color takes the place of the waxy, sallow look, and there comes a clear in-crease in the volume of the blood and an increased normal appetite because of this rapid feeding of the entire system. Work becomes easier.

His mother and sisters were grieved and repeatedly pursued him, offering to surrender all to him if he would only return. At last he simply refused to answer their importunities and they desisted. THE ONTONAGON TELEPHONE. would be beneficial to her fast failing Provisions, Etc.

The Ontonagon Herald is very much displeased with the statement recently published in the Ishpeming department of The Mining Journal regarding an Ishpeming man's opinion of the Ontonagon telephone system. The Herald many Ishpeming friends of Mrs. Nelson will learn of her carried their mother's death yesterday. The many Ishpeming friends of Mrs. Nelson will learn of her carried their mother's death yesterday. thinks the Ontonagon company has been done an injustice. It has this to

Some person, evidently connected with a rival telephone company, has been lying to the Ishpeming correspondent of The Martice Mining Journal about Ontonagon's telephone system. In Wednesday's issue of that paper the correspondent tells of an Ishpeming man who recently visited Ontonagon and made careful inquiry here of the patrons regarding the service, and learned that the people were not too weil pleased with the system. This has been proved to be a lie within the last twenty-four hours, as careful inquiry of at least fifteen of the subscribers who are among those who use it the most failed to bring forth a complaint, and they deny the statement contained in The Journal article, that they are dissatisfied with the system or that an Isbpeming man has been interviewing them recently. The entire article is a misstatement from first to last, and a rank injustice to the Ontonagon company, which The Journal should hasten to correct. The Herald has had much use for the early of the city, yesterday. He says particle that they are the proposed the system was put in here and can truthfully say that with the except. rect. The Herald has had much use for the telephone since the system was put in here and can truthfully say that with the exception of a few unavoidable accidents it has given us excellent service. Manager Porter will soon visit several cities of this peninsula with a view of putting in the system, among them being Ishpeming, and The Herald bespeaks for him and his telephone at least a fair triat. The gentleman who called THE MIN-ING JOURNAL'S attention to the Ontonagan system does not claim to know a great deal about telephones. He has been a subscriber and constant user of the instrument here for a number of years, and for that reason, knowing that the Ontonagon company had applied for a franchise, took particular pains to observe its workings. In the first place The Mixing Journal did not seek the man's opinion of the Ontonagon system. As the gentleman quoted is perfectly reliable his word was not doubted. He not only said that the system was not as good as the one in use here but he added "that it was on the bum." He asserted that it is the magneto system, one through which you talk and hear through the same tube. It is a well known fact that the magneto system is at least thirty years tehind the times, and the battery system, such as is in use here, has long ago taken its place in all cities years, and for that reason, knowing has long ago taken its place in all cities of any size or importance. With the magneto system, or at least the one in use at Ontonagon, there are three wires running from the street to each instrument. As the Ishpeming man, who was pleased to observe the workings of the system, said: "Every house where a telephone is in use reminds one of an electric light statics." electric light station.'

THE MINING JOURNAL hopes, however, that the Ontonagon system is as good as The Herald claims it is, and that if Mr. Porter is given a franchise here he will have success with his venture. There is no denying the fact that the subscribers of the telephone system now in use here are dissatisfied with the price charged for the service, but they have no complaint against its quality. They would be glad to see Mr. ity. They would be glad to see Mr. Porter or any other responsible person come in here and establish a system. They will support the right man provided the service is satisfactory, but if not they will not want it at any

for the present battery system, which is, as every other telephone company has found to be, the most satisfactory. If our people want the magneto service we can give it just as cheap as they can. but what is the use of adding more poles and wires to our streets to carry on a business which we know positively would be discarded inside of six months at any price. As far as I can learn from many of our large customers and users they are satisfied with the price and service. The latter I might add is to be considerably improved during the next six months, as it has been in the past few months with metallic trunk tended a vote of thanks to Mr. O. A. THE BALL AT THE EMBASSY. A Plot Against Napoleon in a Crowded

In his fine old mansion on the Street of Provence, sometimes known as Hospital Road, and sometimes known as the Street of the Crooked Stocking, the Mrs. Thomas Nelson, who resided at the Cleveland mine location for zenberg, gave a ball. The house was twenty years or more, and who left not large enough for the entertainment he wished to give, so in his garden he built, "for one night only," a great wooden ballroom.

It was so splendidly decorated and furnished that it looked like a fairy palace. Its walls were covered with gold and silver brocade, draperies of spangled gauze were festooned all about it, fastened with flowers and glittering ornaments, while lights from chandeliers and candelabra made the great ballroom as brilliant as day.

The guests entered this splendid "palace for a night" through a long gallery that connected it with the man were scattered all about the garden; on the lawn brilliantly-costumed dancers took part in a delightful spectacle, and in the ball-room itself nearly two thou sand people began to dance at mid night.

Philip was there, too-semi-officially on duty as a royal page, but also in for a good time as a guest of the ambassa

He was having such a good time! There were plenty of young people there; and though, of course, the pages could hardly be expected to dance in the great ball-room, the boys found partners somehow, as boys are wont to do when such a fine chance for a dance occurs. To the same music that guided the grand quadrille in the ball-room the boys and girls started an impromptu

Philip found himself dancing with a pretty girl of about his own age, whose name he failed to catch in the hurried introduction that made her his partner; but they enjoyed their dance quite as much as if they had always known each other. In the court of honor the trumpet ounded a flourish; in the temple of glory a song of triumph was being sung; everything was brightness and beauty and gayety and brilliancy, when, suddenly, Philip saw several gentlemen dash into the throng; then he heard a shout of warning, a note of terror; then came another rush, and above the flourish of the trumpets and the voice of the singers rang out the

PRIZES ON PATENTS HOW TO GET $100.00 AND PERHAPS MAKE A FORTUNE.

We secure patents, and, to induce people to keep track of their bright ideas, give away one hundred dollars of the first of every month to the person who submits the most meritorious invention during the preceding month. We will also advertise the winning invention free of charge in the "National Recorder," a weekly newspaper published in Washington, D. C., which has an extensive circulation throughout the United States, and is devoted to the interests of inventors.

NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

The idea of being able to invent something strikes most people an being very difficult; this delusion the Company will dispel. It desires to get into the head of the public the fact that the things which seem so absurdly trivial that the average citizen would feel ashamed so bring them to the attention of the Patent Office are the most valuable. It is the simple things and small inventions that make the greatest money, and the complex ones are seldom profitable. Almost everybody at some time or another conceives an idea which if patented would be worth a fortune. Unfortunately such ideas are usually dismissed without thought. The simple inventions like the car-window which evald be easily slid up and down without breaking it passenger's back, the sauce-pan, collar-button, nut-lock, bottle-stopper, suspender-button, hook, buckle, and snow-shovel are things that every one sees some way of improving upon, and it is such simple inventions that bring the greatest returns to the author.

The prize we offer will be paid whether the application has been acted upon by the Patent Office or not. Every competitor must apply for a patent on his inventions through us, and whether he secures the prize or not, the inventor will be particulars, address out of the church. They belong in the same class and Colonel Ingersoll certainly has the right to chastise his own children, even if he does find them in our back yards. Infidelity does the church good service because it acts as a public seavenger. The hypocritical public seavenger in the casino rink announces a race, open to all for the championship of the upper peninsula, on the evening of Jan. 31. Entries must be made on the devening of Jan. 31. Entries must be made on the evening of Jan. 31. Entries must be made on the evening of Jan. 31. Tousignant, manager. The trophy is a gold medal costing $18.

MONEY LOANED Local Representatives Wanted.

Coal Representatives Wanted.

Our system affords an opportunity to borrow on either personal or real estate security. The plan is superior to Ruilding and Loan Associations. The amount borrowed may be returned in monthly payments without bond, with interest at 5 per cent. per annum, it affords obsolute sercurity to investors, with a reasonable guarantee of an annual dividend of from 8 to 10 per cent. We desire to secure the services of energetic, representative men in every community to act as Local Secretaries. The position will be sufficently remunerative to amplycompensate for services. If you possess the above qualifications, write for particulars. Full information regarding our system of making loans as well as investments and agencies will be furnished by addressing 8. 8. Robertson, President, 1122 Walnut Street. Philadelphia. (11-3-3m o)
