IN HIS OWN DEFENSE.

Harry Hayward Makes a Decidedly Poor Impression on the Witness Stand.

HAD BETTER HAVE REMAINED IN PRISONER'S BOX.

Told of His Acquaintance With Miss Ging and His Actions the Night of the Murder.

PRISONER ON WITNESS STAND.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 21.—Nervous, contradictory, uncertain, garrulous, rambling and explanatory. These words explain the aspect of Harry Hayward on the stand today. When his attorney began the lead him into the details of the circumstances attending the tragedy he went "up in the air," as horseman would say, and made a bad impression. At times his voice would sink away until it was hardly audible and he had to be cautioned to speak so the jury could hear him. Hardly a person in the vast crowd believed what he said. As a whole, from the testimony by the witness he has not made any points for himself and his appearance has told against him.

During the morning session of the court Harry declared that the testimony of Blixt and his brother Adry was almost wholly false. His counsel then asked him if he knew any reason why they should testify falsely against him. He replied he did, but objection was made when the counsel asked him to explain the reason. Erwin then asked Harry to state in detail his relations with Miss Ging. He said he was introduced to her in January of 1894. They gradually became better and better acquainted till in December they became lovers. The witness declared that at no time improper relations of any sort existed between them and adding "she was a true, noble girl to the best of my belief." Harry went on to say that they went driving, to the theatre, to suppers, to church, out walking, everywhere together.

In answer to questions he admitted he had gambled. He said he had gambled high and lots of it, had played Faro and roulette in nearly every large city in the United States and many small cities. Miss Ging knew the fact and after a time took part with him, going into gambling houses.

The most interesting part of the evidence was when he came to that part which brought him to the day of the murder. He was more halting, and more uncertain than ever at this point. He led up to it by describing the scene of signing the $7,000 note in the Onaida block and after he was all through his evidence was a mixture of the testimony of the elevator boy and of Blixt. He impeached Blixt in saying that it was not prearranged that Blixt should come there and in not telling Blixt to say he saw many large bills.

Harry swore that the night of the murder he was arrested at Ozark at 9:45 o'clock. Then he told of doing an incredible number of things before 7:15 the time he came out from supper and went to his flat. In that time he washed in his bath room, changed his clothes throughout, went to the basement, went up to see Miss Ireland, went down stairs again and had his supper. He left the flats after going to see his mother twice, calling upon Miss Ireland, talking to her, and Mr. and Mrs. Blixt on the first floor, going into the basement and fondling his dog and washing his hands. Then he went down Hennepin avenue a short distance intending to go to the rooms of Miss Ging in the Syndicate block, retraced his steps and went to the corner of Hennepin and Laurel avenues and there he looked at his watch and it was thirteen minutes of eight.

He stated that he went up Laurel avenue intending to call upon a young lady and then remembered he had an engagement with Miss Bartleson. He looked at his watch to see if he had time to go there and take her to the theatre. He followed this by recounting his trip to Bartleson's residence and giving the time as Bartleson had sworn to it. He was quite sure he was in the theatre before the curtain went up.

The prisoner's evidence will be continued Monday, an adjournment having been taken to that time.

GOVERNMENT VICTORIOUS.

English Wins First Battle of the Present Season.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Lord Roseberry's administration passed successfully through the storm which its opponents hoped would overwhelm it and which many of its friends believed would require the most skillful statesmanship to weather. Despite the predictions of Conservative papers and the more or less badly disguised fears of the Liberal organs the government came out of the contest with flying colors and a majority that surprised even those who would at no time admit there was a chance of defeat.

The question that precipitated the dangerous situation was made by Sir Henry James under standing order No. 17 of the commons that a member may move for adjournment of the house for the purpose of discussing a matter of public importance. Taking advantage of this order Sir Henry today moved adjournment in order to call attention to the import duties on cotton recently decided upon by the government of India. It is claimed by many manufacturers of Manchester and other cotton centers in Lancashire that the imposition of duties had a most serious effect on their business and they desired the imperial government to intervene for their abolition.

The cotton interest is strongly represented in the house and when notice of the motion was given it was conjectured by not only many conservative papers but by some staunch Liberal organs that the government, which is bound to oppose the desired change, would be overthrown by the Lancashire party in combination with the Conservatives and Liberals interested in the cotton trade. The Parnellites were expected to cast their votes against the government, but the result of the vote—304 to 109—did not bear out the hopes or fears of the political parties for, by a majority of 195 the Roseberry ministry triumphantly repelled the attacks of its assailants.

THREATEN DUAL GOVERNMENT.
Kolbitzes Still Threatening to Cause Trouble in Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 21.—For some time the Kolbitzes have been threatening to establish a dual government in Montgomery after the legislature has adjourned if a contest law is not passed allowing Kolb to institute a contest for the office of governor to which he claims to be elected. Today the news reach the city that Kolb was preparing to carry into execution his threat to establish a dual government in Montgomery, the legislature having failed to pass such a law as he demanded. An Associated Press correspondent called on Governor Oates and asked him concerning the rumor. "I have not heard of Kolb's proposed dual government, but if he and his people try it I shall act promptly. I shall maintain the majesty and supremacy of the law."

FRAUD IN NAVAL WORK
Scandal Caused by Recent Work at Mare Island Yard.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—The Evening Bulletin gives publicity to a scandal that is said to be agitating the naval officers at Mare's Island. The Bulletin asserts that charges are made against the construction and repair department at the navy yard and an investigating committee has been ordered here by the secretary of the navy. The report made by Admiral Beardslee is said to be the cause of the investigation. It is hinted that poor and cheap material and poor workmanship have characterized the recent repairs made at Mare Island. As an instance it is said the Philadelphia, on which over $50,000 was expended in repairs at Mare Island, broke down on her first cruise after leaving the yards. She was badly beaten on her cruise to Honolulu by the steamer Australia. Her starboard engines were disabled and her port engines badly strained.

VERY FLOURISHING ORDER.
Modern Woodmen of America Rapidly Growing in Membership.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 21.—At the meeting of the national board of directors of the Modern Woodmen of America just concluded very flattering reports were made showing the growth in membership and the decrease in price of insurance. Jan. 1, 1895, the order had $237,000,000 of insurance in force, the average cost being $1.95 per annum, and the annual cost of the management only twenty-five cents per member, the lowest ever known. The amount of paid beneficiaries in 1894 was $1,350,000. The death rate was less than for five years.

ACT OF INSANE JEALOUSY
Infuriated Husband Murders His Wife and Commits Suicide.

ANWERT, Ohio, Feb. 21.—Word has reached here of a horrible tragedy which was committed in Mercer county. Samuel Young, aged seventy, living with his wife, aged twenty-one, in a fit of jealousy made his wife leave the house. He soon started after with a butcher knife and she, seeing him, started to run, but fell in a snow drift and the husband plunged the knife into her breast twice. He then returned to his home and hung himself. They were both found dead within an hour.

As a great many persons will desire to view the remains they will lie in state in the church for several hours preceding the funeral.

SHIPPING CORN WEST.
State of Mississippi Has Its First Surplus of Corn.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 21.—Dispatch to The Manufacturers Record from Mississippi says that state has produced a surplus of corn and that for the first time in its history corn is being shipped from Mississippi to the west. Kansas City grain houses now have buyers located in Mississippi purchasing corn. Corn can be raised at the cost of 12 cents per bushel and at 25 cents it would pay better than cotton at 5 cents.

DECIDED ON SEVENTH BALLOT.

DETROIT, Feb. 21.—The Republican State convention, held here today for the nomination of a justice of the supreme court and two regents of the university, was the scene of an exciting struggle over the former office. There were twelve candidates for the justice ship.

On the seventh ballot Judge Joseph Moore of Lapeer was nominated and the nomination was made unanimous. Roger W. Butterfield of Grand Rapids and Charles H. Hackley of Muskegon were unanimously nominated for regents of the university. The platform congratulates the people on the Republican victory of last November. It charges the Democrats with having bankrupted the United States treasury and driven away prosperity by a mongrel tariff act. The administration acts in reference to Hawaii are denounced as unpatriotic and un-American. The action of the Republican congressmen in voting against the proposition to change the word "coin" to "gold" in the bonds issued by the government is endorsed.

LANSING, Feb. 21.—The Prohibition state convention today nominated Myron H. Walker of Grand Rapids for supreme court justice and Noah Cheever of Ypsilanti and Delevan B. Reed of Hillsdale for university regents.

THREATENED WITH LYNGING.
Murderer of Bowby Family May Swink for His Crime.

PERIN, Ills., Feb. 21.—There was no abatement in the excitement prevailing over the attempt of Albert Wallace to exterminate the Bowby family. The victims of his insane deed lie at the point of death. Lawrence Lyman, the hired man, can scarcely survive another day. His death will be the signal for an attack on the jail in which Wallace is confined for the purpose of lynching him. Wallace is under a strong guard of determined men armed with Winchester. Mr. and Mrs. Bowby are in great agony and may not recover.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY MADE
Discharged Policemen Making It Warm for the Mayor.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 21.—Charges of conspiracy with certain gamblers was made against Mayor Hillis of this city some time ago. Today the city council commenced an investigation. Two discharged officers and two gamblers testified that the mayor had practically sold a monopoly of gambling to certain men. He is also charged with having received $1,000 for pool and wheel of fortune privileges at the race meeting last fall. The mayor through his counsel denied all the charges. Those making the charges are four discharged policemen.

NEGLECTED HIS DUTY
Milwaukee Health Commissioner Impeached by Common Council.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 21.—The common council this evening sustained the charges against Health Commissioner Kempster and impeached him by a vote of 20 to 14. Dr. Kempster has been on trial before the aldermanic committee for several weeks charged with having failed to do his duty during the small pox epidemic and the committee found him guilty on nine specific counts. Dr. Kempster is an insanity expert of national reputation and was formerly at the head of the state asylum at Oshkosh.

CONTEST CASES ARGUED
Committee Is Investigating the Last Tennessee Elections

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 21.—The investigating committee on the governor's election was in session three hours today and the pleadings in twelve or more of the challenged counties were examined. In some districts the specifications of fraud by the contestants were deemed insufficient for investigation. The committee refused to grant Governor Turney's request that the election at one district in Hardin county be declared void on the ground that the officers of the election were not legally qualified.

Assuming Large Proportions.
NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The strike of the building trades in sympathy with electrical workers promises to surpass any in the history of these organizations and may effect nearly a hundred thousand. Two thousand are out now and others are said to be simply waiting the word.

SAME OLD STORY. An item in another part of this morning's paper gives the information that deer are being slaughtered by the wholesale in this county to supply logging camps.

And yet there has been a change in the state game warden, Hampton having been retired to make place for Chase S. Osborne—the ardent sportsman whose elevation to the office was expected to be followed by such protection to the game of the state, and particularly of this peninsula, as it never before enjoyed.

The query arises, "where is the state game warden at" while this slaughter of his innocent and confiding wards is going on? The last THE MINING JOURNAL heard of him he was chasing after the legislators at Lansing, endeavoring to get them to increase his salary and to provide him with ten or twelve thousand dollars' worth of deputies to assist him in enforcing the game laws. He had better be chasing the marauding rascals who are chasing the deer so industriously and slaughtering them so mercilessly as to leave little doubt of their entire extinction in a few years more if the war of extermination being waged against them is permitted to continue.

It is THE MINING JOURNAL'S conviction, based on observation, that the enforcement of the game laws should be left to the sheriffs and their deputies in the several counties, instead of to a force of deputy game wardens. There is neither sound sense nor economy in setting up up special machinery for the enforcement of the laws protecting game. By doing that the regular machinery for the enforcement of the laws generally is practically set aside for the purposes of game protection, for the deputy game wardens are clothed with powers not given the sheriffs and their deputies, and the latter resent this and refrain from giving any assistance to the game warden and his deputies in their crusade against violators of the game laws.

The legislature should leave this work where it belongs, with the sheriffs and their deputies, and make provision to have them properly paid for doing it. The state game warden should be required to work with them, and if his salary is insufficient to justify him in giving his time to the duties of the office it should be increased. But there is work for him to do in this region, work that it was understood he was going to do when he obtained the appointment, and the legislature and Governor Rich should see to it that he sets about doing it instantly. That is, if this whole business of game protection is not a farce kept up merely to enable a party worker to draw a salary without doing anything to earn it. If that is the scheme all that need be done is to let things run on as they are going, for it is working that way most admirably.

FACTIONAL SPLITS IN PARTIES.

In an article considering the remarkable condition of affairs in our congress an English newspaper recently observed that one cause of its inability to legislate effectively for the good of the country is the existence of so many factions within the leading political parties.

It was a shrewd and intelligent observation, and applies to both parties with about equal force. Going back in our history to the time of Garfield's inauguration as president we find that ever since then the administration in power has been fought by an influential element in the party which placed it in control of the government, and with disastrous results both to the administration so antagonized and the party for which it stood.

The Garfield administration had no sooner been installed than a fierce contention broke out between it and a powerful wing of the Republican party, led by Senator Conkling. Indirectly, this led to the assassination of Garfield and the elevation of Arthur to the presidency. President Arthur, although a politician of great tact, was unable to placate the element in his party which lost its hold on the administration through the death of Garfield, and he was defeated for the presidential nomination in 1884 through the unrelenting opposition of the deposed leaders, under the generalship of Blaine.

Out of the quarrel between the Republican chiefs came the first national victory the Democrats had achieved since the war. But the Democrats were no sooner in control of the general government with Cleveland as president than a split occurred between the administration and the party leaders. This produced the lukewarmness in the ranks of the party which caused the defeat of Cleveland for a second term, although he was renominated without serious opposition.

Then the Harrison administration was installed, only to meet the fate that had in turn befallen the administrations immediately preceding it. The very men who had elected Harrison became his bitter enemies, and turned up in the next national Republican convention to oppose his nomination for a second term with all the resources they could command and a malignity born of personal hatred springing from the personal disappointments Harrison had visited on them by thwarting their ambitions. He was re-nominated in spite of their opposition, but was overwhelmingly defeated in the election. His party going down with him in a defeat that at the time appeared irreparable.

No sooner was the victorious party restored to power, however, than the same dissensions which had formerly divided it into factions broke out afresh. It had learned nothing from its former experience. At the extra session of congress called by the president to repeal the silver purchase act the leaders of the Democratic party in the senate and house who had antagonized Mr. Cleveland during his first term signalled their purpose of continuing their fight against him. That session foreshadowed that President Cleveland's second administration would be a failure because of the antagonism of the leading Democrats in congress, and subsequent developments have amply borne out the promise the extra session gave of a conflict between the administration and the leaders of the Democratic party in congress, with all the disastrous consequences to both which their inability to work together in harmony might be expected to entail on them.

Leaving the leadership of the parties and coming to the rank and file, we find that there is among the voters the same division into factions which are radically opposed to one another on the great issues before the people at the present time. There is in the Democratic party a free trade wing, and a powerful protection element arrayed against it; while in the Republican party there is an ultra protection faction and another which believes in modified protection and is open in its denunciation of what it denominates "McKinleyism." Both the Republican and Democratic parties are by tradition favorable to "honest money" and opposed to inflation of the currency by the issue of irredeemable paper or the free and unrestricted coinage of silver; and yet both are so honey-combed with inflation and free coinage sentiment today that their leaders hardly dare express their honest convictions on the financial question, lest by so doing they seal their own doom politically.

With the parties in this state it is impossible for an administration to accomplish much for the country. It will no sooner be seated in power than it will find itself abandoned by its own party and assailed by the opposition, hence powerless to carry out a policy, or work out the reforms to which it may stand pledged, and damned with great unanimity both for what it does and what it fails to do.

GREAT interest has been excited at Washington by the action of the German reichstag in adopting a resolution urging the government to issue invitations for an international monetary conference, to be held at Berlin, for the purpose of considering measures for the rehabilitation of silver under an international agreement as to the coinage ratio between that metal and gold. Representative McCree of Kentucky, who was one of the representatives of the United States at the Brussels conference, states that the action of the reichstag was not a surprise to him, as he has known that there is in Europe a growing sentiment favorable to the settlement of the silver coinage question by international agreement. If the German government should act favorably on the resolution before the adjournment of the present session of congress it is likely that the president would be promptly authorized to appoint representatives of this government to attend the conference, as a resolution to that effect would not be likely to encounter opposition.

THREE members-elect of the new congress called on the president to pay their respects Wednesday, one of these being Charley Towne of the Duluth district and the others two Michigan men. In the course of their chat with him the president intimated that he intends calling the new congress together in extra session immediately following the dissolution of the sitting congress. That is just what he should do. The country stands in need of financial legislation that this congress stubbornly and stupidly declines to enact, and the succeeding congress should be convened to take it up with as little delay as possible. That convening the new congress in extra session will bring the Republicans into practical control of national legislation several months in advance of its regular meeting time cuts no figure with President Cleveland. Partisan considerations will not count with him in the face of an urgent national necessity.

THE Boston Herald of Tuesday mentions that Judge Severns, of the United States court for the Western district of this state, has directed Special Master in Chancery Peter White to pay, within sixty days from Jan. 29, $3.50 per share to holders of Pawabic mining stock. This calls for the disbursement of $140,000, and will make $340,000 distributed of the $710,000 for which the property was sold.

IN THE Wisconsin legislature the bill creating the office of commissioner of deep waterways and providing a fat salary for the man who would be so fortunate as to secure it came up for consideration Tuesday and was disposed by an indefinite postponement. This is a severe disappointment to the debilitated Superior journalist who caused the bill to be introduced and expected to get the position if the legislature could be persuaded to create the office. He will have to make that trip to Europe for the betterment of his health at his own expense and that of Douglass county in consequence of the legislature's cruel indifference to his necessities. Alas, poor Flower!

THE secretary of the treasury informs the senate that there is no immediate necessity for granting him authority to provide for temporary deficiencies in the revenues by issuing certificates of indebtedness to the amount of $100,000,000, though he holds that such power ought to be vested in the nation's financial officer to guard against possible contingencies. The secretary feels entirely confident that the revenues of the government will soon be ample for its needs under the new tariff law. This is encouraging. With the income of the government equal to, or slightly exceeding, its disbursements the difficulties it has experienced for the past two years will end and one obstacle in the way of a return of prosperity will be removed.

Now that they have forced the government to another sale of bonds the bankers at home and abroad who a few days ago were so dubious regarding the value of American securities have suddenly recovered their confidence in them. The new issue did not have to wait long for takers after it was offered on the market. The bankers are playing a profitable see-saw game with the government, while congress sits stupidly with folded hands, railing at the result of its own incapacity but doing nothing to protect the national treasury from the raids of conspirators against it.

PHILADELPHIA'S voters have experienced no change of opinion since the election of last fall, to judge from the cheerful unanimity with which they turned down ex-Governor Pattison for mayor in the municipal election held there this week.

SET RULES AT DEFIANCE.

No Railroad Company Could Prevent Her Seeing Melinda Off.

When the train for the west was called, there was a rush of passengers at the door, and among them was a small, thin young woman about twenty years old, who had a humble and resigned expression, and a sharp-nosed, iron-jawed female of forty-five, who was evidently her mother. The small thin woman had a bundle and a ticket to St. Thomas. The sharp-nosed woman had a basket and two bundles and no ticket at all.

"Ticket, ma'am," said the gatekeeper, as she attempted to follow her daughter out.

"I'm jest goin' to see Melinda on the train," she replied.

"Ticket, ma'am, ticket; got to have a ticket."

"I've got to put Melinda aboard of the train, I tell ye. She's never traveled before in her life, and is jest as apt to git under or on top of the car as into it."

"Show your ticket, ma'am," persisted the gate tender as he whirled his ticket punch around. "I have to do as I am ordered, you know."

"I tell you," replied the woman as she crowded closer. "I'm bound to see Melinda off. It won't hurt yer old railroad any to let me through. Melinda, don't you cry, for I'm a-comin'. The idea that a mother can't see her daughter off!"

"Ticket, ma'am. You are detaining fifty passengers. Please show your ticket or move back!"

"I've got to put Melinda on that car!" shouted the woman in a high key. "I've got twelve eggs, a bottle of skunk's ile, two lamp chimneys, a pumpkin pie, a bottle of hair dye and a pint of buttermilk in this basket, and I either go through or bust this basket right here and now!"

She dropped the bundles and began swinging the basket about her head, but it made only two circles and the gatetender smilingly said:

"Wish to see your daughter off? Pass right in, lady, and stay as long as you want to."

"You bet I will!" muttered the old lady, as she joined Melinda, "but I'm a little sorry he give up so quick. Good lands, but I could hev made sich a wreck of that depot that no train could hev gone out for a week!"—N. Y. Recorder.

JOYS OF THE GREAT.

Czars, Kaisers and Kings All Fond of Expensive Playthings. A big toy-maker in London received some time back an order from the late czar of Russia. It is common talk that this homely man was the biggest of all the children who annually gather under the family roof at Fredensborg. Few people know, however, how strong was his love for a plaything. He had in his collection some of the prettiest models of ironclads imaginable. One of them cost over a thousand pounds. There was another in solid silver, and a superb wooden model of full-rigged ship which would be a dream of delight to the dullest boy. His last purchase was the model of an Atlantic steamer.

It is a great piece of work, the ship bearing a yard long and perfect in all details. The precise cost of this model was eleven hundred pounds.

Of all the toys at Windsor Castle—and there are many—it is said that the queen is most fond of a beautiful working model of the heavens. This ingenious piece of mechanism shows the whole of our system, with the celestial poles and the sun. There is a tiny model of the moon, which revolves about the earth, and all the planets, with their satellites, are properly represented. For a study of astronomy and for a right understanding of the celestial globe, there could be nothing finer than this model. It shows our earth turning upon its own axis and moving round the sun. It gives a perfect idea of the relative positions of the primary planets, and it is worked by a clockwork arrangement which is the perfection of ingenuity.

The duke of York is yet boyish enough to collect stamps, and perhaps the finest collection of any amateur in the kingdom. He has recently spent some hundreds of pounds adding to this, but it is not his only weakness. He has also developed a great taste for sculling about in a toy boat on the lake by the cottage at Sandringham.

In Munich they show you now with an especial pride the lake upon which the late king of Bavaria used to be drawn about in a boat towed by swans. Dressed cap-a-pie as Lohengrin, this—in some ways—remarkable man spent many hours of the day gaily with the knights of the swan; and really deluded himself into the belief that he was a person of heroic virtue. When this vagary wearied him, and the winter days were long and dull, he would get him into the country, and there flash through the hills in a sledge of gold, all lit up with electric lamps, and so curiously fashioned that the peasants who saw it believed that a heavenly apparition had been vouchsafed to them. This impression the madman loved to magnify, choosing always the hour of midnight for this exercise, and rarely returning before three or four o'clock in the morning.

In Vienna there is at this moment a minister, standing high in the confidence of the Kaiser Francis Joseph, who devotes the whole of his spare time to a room full of toy theaters. Many of these were made in London and especially sent over for this eccentric old fellow, who has enough mimic stages to supply an orphanage. It is said that whether a new piece is produced at any of the theaters in the city the minister immediately puts it on one of his little stages, and has a set of characters cut out of paper with which to play it. He works the whole thing himself, and being an admirable mimic, he is the source of large amusement to his friends, who know that on every other point he is one of the sanest men in the empire.

The German emperor's toys are almost as numerous as his uniforms. He possesses a beautiful working model of a railway, with engine, cars, points, signals and stations. This he works ostensibly for the amusement of his children, in reality for his own amusement. He has also purchased for his nursery one of the finest collections of toy soldiers in the world. So well are his sons supplied with tin troops, with cannon, artillery, ammunition wagons, tents and fortresses, that the whole floor of the great room of the palace at Berlin can be covered with them, and a mimic battle fought on a European scale. But perhaps the emperor's favorite toys are his little steam launches, of which he possesses a surprising number. He has recently given an order to a Thames builder to make him a little electric launch, which when finished will be as pretty as any toy in the kingdom. It is scarcely the size of a skiff, yet is to be shaped like a regular steamer, and to be so arranged that his majesty, sitting in the stern, can be his own skipper and steersman.

FURY OF THE WILDCAT. How It Resulted in the Death of Two Coons and a Greyhound. While passing through the forest on Oak hill, near Scranton, Pa., just after daybreak recently, a woodchopper of White Oak run spied a large wildcat sneaking along with his teeth set in the nose-end of a sheep's head. He hadn't gone five rods when two coons headed him off and began to beg. The wildcat snarled, dashed between them and kept straight on, and the coons tagged along on each side and coaxed like domestic cats begging from their owner. Near a big basswood tree the coons laid hold of the ears of the head and brought the wildcat up standing. He growled and yanked and struck right and left, but failed to reach the coons. The head was in his way, and the coons seemed to know that he would be unable to injure them so long as he hung on to it. One of the coons presently hopped over him and started to work at the coveted morsel with its mate. The change of tactics greatly enraged the wildcat and dropping the head he sprang at the coons. They let go the second the wildcat did, and one of them got out of the way. The other turned upon its back for a fight, and the wildcat killed it in a jiffy. No sooner had the wildcat tackled one coon the other seized the sheep's head and climbed up the basswood. The wildcat wheeled from his victim just in time to spot the robber, and up the tree he flew, sizzling and spitting. A moment before he reached the crotch the coon dropped the head into a hole in the trunk and shot in after it. The wildcat followed, popped out shortly with his claws full of hair, came screaming down the tree and started to tear at the coon. Pretty soon he made off with the coon's tail, and the woodchopper stole up and headed him with his ax. Then he cut down the basswood and killed two coons in the hollow trunk. One of them was a three-legged, lean old coon, evidently the mother of the others, and it was plain to be seen that the persistence of the young coons was due to the fact that their mother was starving and that they were bound to obtain something for her to eat.

Razor, a greyhound belonging to Eleazer Eastman, of Kitchen's creek, got in the habit of following the bark peeler to the hemlock woods. One noon while the men were eating in the shade near their work the greyhound suddenly dropped a bone he was gnawing and started off through the woods at the speed of a race horse. It was clear that he had got sight of something that he wanted to nab. In less than two minutes Razor came bounding toward the camp with a wildcat kitten in his mouth. He had it by the back and the little thing was mewling piteously and struggling in vain to get free. The kitten's mother came thrashing and wailing through the undergrowth a few seconds later, and the workmen jumped up and tried to drive the greyhound away. Razor refused to budge until the wildcat had almost reached him, when he legged it for the clearing at a speed that left the raging mother far in the rear. Razor came stealing back to camp within fifteen minutes. His tusks were set in the side of the dead kitten. He dropped it at the feet of Mr. Eastman, lapped some water from a spring, and went to gnawing his bone again. Before the week was out Razor stole another kitten from the wildcat and ran toward the workmen with it between his teeth. The mother was after him again, but the greyhound headed her not. Success in getting away with the first kitten had made him reckless, and he stopped and faced straightabout before he reached the workmen. Mr. Eastman called to the greyhound and shouted to him to get out of the way, but Razor held the walling kitten in his jaws and didn't stir. The mother of the kitten was only a few yards away, and two of the peelers rushed at the foolhardy greyhound and yelled. Razor remained motionless from fear or wonder or courage, they couldn't tell which, and before they could get near enough to strike him the screaming wildcat sprang a dozen feet or more, drove a claw deep into each of the greyhound's shoulders and killed him in a twinkling. The kitten was also dead, and one of the peelers struck the wildcat's skull with a spud.—N. Y. Sun.

FASHIONS IN JEWELRY. For Use on the Person and for Decorating Tables. The collar form of necklace prevails this season, owing, doubtless, to its greater becomingness. Black steel watches have a certain vogue. The surface is frequently and effectively studded with tiny diamonds. Umbrella handles are sword-hilt shape, and it is to say, flat and slightly concave and overlaid with silver ornamentation. Old Roman coins are mounted as medallions. Another manifestation is designs in metal with legends in French or old English. There have been unusual displays of leather goods. Soft ivory tones prevail. These goods are bound in silver, frequently touched with enamel. Large cut-glass punch bowls mounted in silver have medallions with engraved ornament in relief. The designs are pertinent to the office of the bowl. They are a decided acquisition. Medallions of painted ivory, or rather porcelain, are now put on everything that will support such ornamentation. It is suspected that these and the new miniature orase support one another. Perforated silver standards for tea cups are a recent addition to the equipages for afternoon tea. A lovely set seen had egg-shell cups, with a pale lavender border above the silver. The effect was exquisite. The czarina slide goes on conquering and to conquer. The wreath and Italian forms, with their foliations, prevail. An exceedingly pretty ornament, used for the same purpose, is the upright bar of gems or rhinestones. At least two of these are essential, one each being placed at the side wings. Occasionally a slide is placed in the center.—Jewelers' Circular.

RETURNED TO CONFERENCE.

House Declines to Accept Cable Amendments to Consular and Diplomatic Bill.

THE AMENDMENT DEFEATED BY A PARTY VOTE

Portion of the Day Devoted to Eulogies of the Late Senator Stockbridge of Michigan.

OBJECT TO A PACIFIC CABLE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The house devoted most of today to the consideration of the senate amendment to the consular and diplomatic bill...

The house then went into committee of the whole to consider the general deficiency bill, the last of the appropriation bills to be passed by the house.

After completing sixteen of the sixty-five pages of the bill at 3:25, under a special order the house listened to eulogies on the life and public services of the late Senator Stockbridge of Michigan.

OBJECT TO SECTARIAN SCHOOLS. WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The senate rejected the motion to reconsider the action of adoption of the conference report amending the income tax and then took up the Indian appropriation bill.

Those who participated in the debate were Cockrell, Lodge, Daniel, Quay, Teller and Hawley. The latter urged that in abandoning sectarian schools there should be no abandonment of Christian teachings in government schools.

There is a movement on foot among the friends of the pooling bill in the senate to force a consideration of that measure when the Indian bill is disposed of and to, if possible, have the sundry civil bill held up until the pooling bill shall be considered or a concession granted which will assure a reasonable showing.

Receivers of Whisky Trust Call Meeting of Manufacturers.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—The conference called by the receivers of the whisky trust resulted today in a combination of all the larger distillers in the country with the trust to regulate the output and prevent an over-production of spirits.

The promoters of the new organization have been given to understand that the smaller manufacturers will co-operate with them. It was decided to sell spirits at almost actual cost of manufacture for the present.

The principal object of the conference, it was given out, was to prevent overstocking the market and prevent loss to the manufacturer rather than to decide upon a price. An executive committee was chosen and will make allotments for the various distilleries.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Market for the Week Has Been Very Irregular.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The general trade during this short week has been more than irregular. The success of the latest emergency bond issue revived confidence somewhat in the general financial situation.

Prices have not reacted materially, concessions in quotations in cattle, lard and oats being the only losses of note. Cotton goods, it is true, are barely steady but hogs, pork, cotton, iron and steel remain firm, while the prices for wheat, corn, coffee and refined sugar made fractional advances during the week.

Condition Is Serious. MASSILON, Ohio, Feb. 21.—The illness of John McBride, president of the American Federation of Labor, seems to be growing more serious.

Held for Murder. DETROIT, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Horace Pope and William Boreass, her accomplice, are held for trial for the murder of Dr. Pope, husband of the former.

Forecast of the Weather. WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—9 p. m.—The weather bureau reports the following as the forecast for the next twenty-four hours.

Hurley Bank Suspends. HURLEY, Wis., Feb. 21.—Shareholders of the First National bank passed a resolution placing the bank in liquidation.

Destitution Is Great. ST. JOHNS, N. F., Feb. 21.—The destitution arising from the financial crisis is increasing. Between six and seven thousand people are receiving relief.

Suicide and Murder. OMAHA, Feb. 21.—Charles Matthews, a private in Co "G" second United States Infantry, murdered his wife and committed suicide tonight.

INVESTIGATION STOPPED.

Turkish Government Throws up Barrier to Investigation of the International Committee.

SORNE OF TROUBLE HAS BEEN QUARANTINED

The Turks Claim That a Cholera Epidemic Has Broken Out in the Sassoun District

HAVE HOISTED YELLOW FLAG.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(Copyright by Associated Press)—The special correspondent of the Associated Press who was sent to Armenia to investigate the atrocities said to have been perpetrated upon the Armenians and whose first report, in a letter sent from Tiflis, Russia, was received here on the 2nd inst. and cabled to the United States that day, has made a second report. It is dated January 18. In it the correspondent says:

"Cholera quarantine is being enforced in various portions of the sultan's dominions in such a manner as to draw the net around the districts of Armenia in which the atrocities are alleged to have occurred and to keep away from the scene of the outrages all independent investigators. It is pretty thoroughly understood the quarantine law is the highest law on earth and even international courtesy must bow to it.

"It is believed here that the Turks, forced to the wall by the protest of the foreign delegates on the commission, threw up this last obstruction and hoisted the yellow flag upon it. Even the foreign delegates could not ignore the cholera quarantine or find means to evade it.

"Tales of oppression, outrage and murder in other parts of Armenian Turkey are as thick as black berries and enough information is obtainable from thoroughly trustworthy sources to establish the main facts without the aid of more or less wild rumors of Armenian origin. If the detailed facts of the Sassoun massacre are ever established, and they probably never will be, they must be established independently of Armenian testimony or their value may be seriously questioned."

HISSED BY ARMENIANS

Lecture by General Lew Wallace Very Unpleasantly Received.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—General Lew Wallace was openly hissed several times in Central Music hall tonight during his lecture on "Turkey and the Turks." A large number of Armenians were in the audience, expecting that General Wallace would allude to the Armenian atrocities. He did so but his remarks did not suit the Armenian portion of his audience and they expressed their feelings without restraint.

General Wallace praised the personal peculiarities of the Turks as a people and asked the people of America to suspend judgment of the stories of the massacre by the Turks and Kurds until the report of the international commission is secured. He said it was only a new phase of an old story of religious feud. He also praised the Armenians as a brave and peaceful people.

As he finished that portion of his address in which he praised the Turks, several men in the audience rose to their feet and hissed violently. General Wallace paid no attention to the interruption and continued his address as though nothing had happened.

POWER TRANSMISSION.

The Day Near When Electric Energy Will Be Sent Hundreds of Miles.

There is no subject which at present more strongly excites the interest of practical men than the problems connected with the generation and transmission of mechanical power. Some months ago it was suggested that we were near the end of the age of steam, and at the beginning of the age of electricity. That statement was accompanied by some remarks bearing on the crude and wasteful methods of power conversion exemplified in the steam engine.

In the popular discussion of this subject, some confusion of thought is apt to arise from the failure to discriminate between what may be called the production of power and its subsequent conversion and transmission. In a fall of water, in the force of the wind, in the combustion of coal, we recognize certain natural agencies which are used in the application of power to industrial uses.

General Wallace praised the personal peculiarities of the Turks as a people and asked the people of America to suspend judgment of the stories of the massacre by the Turks and Kurds until the report of the international commission is secured. He said it was only a new phase of an old story of religious feud.

As he finished that portion of his address in which he praised the Turks, several men in the audience rose to their feet and hissed violently. General Wallace paid no attention to the interruption and continued his address as though nothing had happened.

ACCIDENTAL OR DESIGNED?

The Tragic Fate of a Naval Officer Who Was Hated by His Men.

They were telling incidents in the life of a prominent and wealthy man who had recently died—the little tricks he had played to catch his workmen napping, the ways he had employed to impress discipline upon them and his successful manner of getting their best effort out of them.

"I have seen a great many men, and some of them very bad ones, successfully handled," he said, "in the service, but I don't believe I ever knew an officer who stooped to little tricks to be successful in commanding men. There is something in a man's heart that makes him resent petty persecution, when he will bear you no ill will at all for crushing him under great provocation. And, speaking of petty persecution, annoying men in little ways to keep them alive and doing, I remember X—, poor chap! in the service years ago, and the mournful way in which he died."

"X— was a past master in that small business of harassing seamen. I remember one of his tricks, when he found a man sleeping when he should have been awake, was to dash a dipperful of water into his face. He would not allow men who were awake to arouse the sleeper. But, seizing the dipper, he would rush up and slap the water at full force into the man's face. And I have seen men go wild at the shock of it, but X— could never be made to see that his way was unfair and bullying. A man was asleep when he should be awake. He really deserved punishment, but X— did not punish him. He merely recalled him to his sense of duty."

"I remember one night on deck when the weather was terrible. It was as black as pitch, and a man couldn't see where he was going or go where he wanted to go. A seaman bumped into X—, and quick as a flash X— hit out, striking the man in the chest. Instantly I saw in the darkness a great arm and fist go up, and I expected to see X— (a little fellow he was, with a shrill, high-pitched voice) smashed into the deck planking by the weight and strength of the powerful seaman who towered over him. But in that instant X— raised his thin voice in an angry cry.

"Look out there!" he screamed shrilly. "Remember you are striking the officer of the deck!" And then I saw the great fist and arm sink down, slowly and hesitatingly, as the man yielded to the officer of the deck. But hatred in his heart, the passion that had prompted him to crush the officer, the savagery that was in him—the man could not sink them as he could draw down his powerful arm. I don't believe there was ever a man more hated by his inferiors than was X—, and all on account of his nagging and his petty tyranny.

"One day some of the crew were lowering the topgallant yard. X— stood under them on the deck, directing the work, looking at them now and then to nag them with some piping cry. None of us in the wardrobe ever knew how it happened. There was no sound in advance, no cry of warning, no wild yell as always happens when there is an accident on shipboard. Suddenly the topmast came away from those who were lowering it, caught X—, unwarned and unprepared, carried him down heavily to the deck, and he was dead. That was all—an accident if ever evidence counted for anything. The men could not explain how the topgallant yard got away from them, and when a thing like that starts to fall there is no stopping it.

PRODUCING TOO MUCH ORE

The Pittsburgh & Lake Angeline
Iron company suspended work in "A"
shaft at the old mine Wednesday night.
The company has been operating three shafts, "A", "C" and "D", at the old mine ever since work was resumed
there some six or eight months ago.
About four hundred men have been given employment there, while the balance of the company's men—about three hundred in all, have been employed at the new, or "East End", mine.
About eighty men will be laid off by the closing down of "A" shaft. A few of these may possibly be given places at some of the other workings, but the company finds it impossible to take care of all of them at the present time.
The management is of the opinion that the mine is producing more ore
than sale can be found for the coming season. The ore produced at the old mine, and especially that from "A"
shaft, is not of as fine and uniform a grade as that of the new mine and is harder to dispose of for that reason.
The stockpile room at the old mine is almost entirely taken up, this being a further reason for closing down "A"
shaft, as it would be a difficult matter to arrange more space for stocking the ore, and to do this would also mean considerable of an outlay in money.

Despite the fact that a majority of the iron mines of the county have been working on a reduced scale of work during the present winter the Lakes Angeline has employed full forces. In fact, ever since work was resumed at the old mine both the new and the old workings have been wrought to their full capacity.

To Raise a Building Fund.

The committee in charge of matters pertaining to the construction of the Finnish seminary at Superior has engaged Adolph Rippra, who has held a position on a Finnish paper at New York until recently, to collect a building fund for the institution. Mr.
Rippra arrived in Ishpeming last night will begin work at once. It is proposed that he solicit funds from the Finnish people of the northwest, embracing Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and also a portion of Montana and other states in the far west. The Finnish people in this region are all more or less interested in the proposed seminary, as it will be the only institution of its kind in the United States, and many of them have agreed to contribute as liberally as possible toward its erection. Outsiders will also be given an opportunity to assist in raising the building fund. Mr. Rippra is said to be an excellent solicitor and if the members of the committee feel certain that he will meet with success in the work confided to him. The corner stone for the building will be imported from Finland. It will be of Finnish granite, and the block will be about three feet square.

Some of Them Working.

Nels Majhannu is in receipt of a letter from the Finlanders who left Ishpeming for Alaska a few weeks ago in which they state that about half of those who went from here secured work,
while the remainder expect to be given places soon. In their previous letter the men said they didn't expect to get work until spring but that one of the companies there had guaranteed to pay their board until such time as work could be provided for them. The men
do not speak discouragingly of Alaska,
nor do they express a desire to return.

Ishpeming at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the office of the secretary, when the following board of directors was chosen: W. A. Candler and C. T. Miller, Detroit; Alfred Kidder, A. E. Miller,
and F. O. Clark, Marquette; Thomas Walters and George R. Persons, Ishpeming. Following the stockholders' meeting the board of directors met and elected officers as follows: President,
Alfred Kidder; first vice president, W.
A. Candler; second vice president, A.
E. Miller; secretary and treasurer,
George R. Persons; attorney, J. H. Bissell of Detroit.

Banks Will Close Today.

The banks of Ishpeming will be closed today, it being a legal holiday. The school teachers and pupils will be given a vacation and several of the business houses will also close their doors. The matter of closing the stores was discussed among the merchants yesterday afternoon. Nearly all of them agreed to keep their places closed during the day, but a few will keep open for a while in the morning.

ADVANTAGES OF THE BEARD.

Safeguard to the Throat and a Protection Against Facial Paralysis.

It is to be feared that too many men
deprive themselves of what Shakespeare calls "valor's exercise," without counting the possible cost. Whether the beard be an ornament to the masculine countenance, we must leave the ladies to decide; it certainly has its uses in hiding a weak chin, and in some cases it seems to be cultivated as a vicarious compensation for a hairless scalp. It is not, however, in its cosmetic so much as in its hygienic aspects that the blessedness of the beard—in which term we include the whole of the harvest usually claimed by the razor—is most apparent. That it is a safeguard
to the throat is generally admitted, and writers of authority have insisted on its value as a protection against toothache and facial neuralgia. This is a goodly sum of advantages to the credit of the beard.

Dr. Chabbert, of Toulouse, has, however, yet more to say in its favor. According to this practitioner, the beard
seems to be a very efficient defense against that form of facial paralysis which is caused by cold. This affection is far more common in women than in men, though the latter are, of course, much more exposed to the cause which produces it. When facial paralysis a frigone does occur in men,
they are almost invariably individuals
to whom nature has been stepmotherly in the matter of beard, or who has wantonly thrown away the protective covering with which she had clothed their faces. Dr. Chabbert cites the experience of several physicians, in addition to his own, in support of his opinion. Prof. Andre, of Toulouse, has seen several cases of the affection in question in women, but not one in man; he had heard of one, indeed,
which would appear to be an excellent example of the exception which proves
the rule, for the patient was a "jyric artist," was the facia di musico so distasteful to Lord Byron. Prof. Pitres, of Bordeaux, has seen twelve cases in women and only two in men; both the latter shaved, though as one of them underwent that operation only twice a week, his case, perhaps, does not count for much, unless it be held that his face was more vulnerable after these periodical denudations. Similar observations are quoted from Dr. Oliver, of Toulouse, and Dr. Sadre, of Carmaux.

These facts, though hardly sufficient to found an induction on, seem at least to establish a prima-facie case for the utility of the beard against facial paralysis of the kind referred to. In these days, when man's traditional privileges are one by one being invaded by the "new woman," he may perhaps

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN.

A fifty that was lost but never returned.

Over the wires he spoke to me, this friend of my youth, thus: "Can you let me have fifty?"

Being young, foolish and flush, I let him have the fifty. Heigho! how long ago that seems, and how much one changes with the passing of the years!
By no trick of the imagination can I fancy myself doing that thing to-day.

There was an option to be secured,
he explained; it was a case of speed;
he had had at once, full of fond memories, bethought himself of me. In return for this one favor he saw himself, in imagination, smoothing for me the whole future course of my life. In his tone there was all the hearty fire of enthusiasm; he really believed, for the moment, that the talisman of success was safe in his own pocket and that the mere fact of attachment to himself
would thus be the saving of others.

Circumstances ensued in the after course of my journeying along the borders of Bohemia that necessitated a scrutiny of what the bankers call "available assets." As to whether I had squandered my patrimony, expended on violet boutonniere the pennious income afforded by my wits, or in what other manner I had reached the dear delightful street called "Dead-Broke Alley," it would be neither pertinent nor wise to specify. Suffice the fact that I saw before me naught save the pleasant expanse of that aforesaid alley. It stretches, as is well known,
from the Land of Millions to the Swamps of Squalor.

So I recalled that departed "fifty."
That is to say, I recalled it to my memory; my purse was not yet so fortunate.
I wrote to my friend, the friend of my youth. I penned him a letter that,
for interest and neat phraseology, was alone worth the price of his debt. At last, I thought so then, in spite of the fact that I included a timid hint anent that little matter of the loan. I really prided myself on the delicacy of the veil I spread over the hint.

Reeking with the smoke of a million-
aired metropolis, came his answer.
Time and again he had been on the verge of that longed-for consummation,
the ability to repay me; time and again
had the happy cup been snatched from his lips—and from mine.

Lastly, shaming my paltry notions of amor once and for all time, he penned
the sweet confession:

"I have just bought a jeweled ring
for the dear girl—otherwise, dear boy,
you should have the check to-day."

Alas, for the pathetic import to us naïves in that courteous formula of
"dear first!" It is the rule of the day
—the dear girl gets a ring, while the dear boy gets what my friend the newsboy calls the "cold shoulder."

What more does the new woman want?
If she wants to exchange, behold me ready! The "cold shoulder" for the ring! Since, as it happens, the fifty seems as far off as the apples of the Hesperides.

But he still had that fifty.
The years passed. Fortunes changed, and friends changed. Now the weather was "set fair" and now there were "storms." But, whatever other change there happened, that fifty shunned my freside.

And now, at last, with the silver touching my temples, I am becoming reconciled to the permanent absence of that particular silver certificate. I regard it as a friend that has gone from me, perhaps to a better land. I hardly know, even, if I could really hall its return with gayety. No more would I be able to think, in my most desperate moments, and with all the eager vim of a drowning man clutching at a buoy; "Ah, well, there's that dear friend of my youth; he owes me fifty!" No more would there exist for me that delightful mirage, that vision of an ever possible fifty from the future!

But yet, sometimes, a certain sadness seizes me and I long for the touch of that vanished note, and in anguish
of bereavement murmur:

Ballads to right of me.
Sheriffs to left of me.

Growth of the Hair.

The influence of diet on the growth of hair has often been discussed. It has been shown that starchy mixtures,
milk, and many other foods recognized as being highly nutritious are, in fact, sure death to hair growth. Chemical analysis proves that the hair is composed of five per cent. of sulphur and its ash, of twenty per cent. of silicon
and ten per cent. of iron and manganese. The foods which contain the larger per cent. of the above named elements are meat, oatmeal and gram-
ham. Henry pointedly says: "Nations which eat most meat have the most hair."

IRONWOOD CITY BONDS.

Desire to Depreciate Them Real Motive of S. S. Curry's Lamentations

"AWFUL MESABA" MERELY A STALKING HORSE.

Mines on the Older Ranges Not Going Out of Business Nor Into Bankruptcy

THE CAUSE OF CURRY'S WOE

S. S. Curry of Ironwood gave a very pathetic interview to the Milwaukee Sentinel of Thursday, the substance of one end of which was telegraphed to THE MINING JOURNAL and appeared in yesterday's issue.

"The meeting," he said, "was like a funeral dirge. Tears trickled down our cheeks and we sobbed at the sight of wealth as great as that of the Rothschilds vanishing into mist, all through the discovery of ore fields from which can be mined more ore than the world needs."

This is truly a pathetic picture but the pathos seems to be spread on pretty thick. When one thinks about it a little the idea of hard-headed business men like the managers of the big iron ore corporations sobbing and weeping like spanked children seems just a trifle overdrawn, not to say ridiculous.

"Ironwood city bonds," said a gentleman in this city when he read the Sentinel interview last night. "Ironwood city bonds; they are the true cause of Curry's woe."

In the course of his talk Mr. Curry made dire predictions regarding the future of a number of cities in the Lake Superior country. "Rockland and Greenland," he said, "were at one time two of the most prosperous cities in Michigan, and were the richest and greatest mining camps on the globe."

"Now what are the local conditions at Ironwood and what has been the history of that town for the last few years?" As head of the great Norrie mine Mr. Curry has been for some years the leading citizen of Ironwood.

"Curry's scheme is not hard to see through. His high position in the iron mining industry makes his words seem of great weight to those unacquainted with the real motive behind his doleful predictions. By these utterances he hopes to scare the holders of Ironwood bonds into a willingness to realize at almost any price."

able to Mr. Curry. In the foregoing statement is to be found, I believe, the real motive for Mr. Curry's woeful wails. Everyone knows that no mine is better able than the Norrie to meet Mesaba competition. Mr. Curry knows this in his struggles to get out of the difficulties into which he has plunged himself and Ironwood he should not try to injure other towns and to run down the value of their bonds.

Before the issue of The Sentinel containing the full text of the interview with Mr. Curry reached here and with only the summary of his doleful predictions telegraphed this paper to work on, a MINING JOURNAL reporter interviewed Mr. Alfred Kidder, who said in substance:

"The fact is that the Mesaba range was discovered about ten years too early for the interests of all concerned. The Marquette range mines were developed gradually to meet demand as it arose. Then the Menominee deposits were discovered but they did not hurt us here for production followed demand. The same was true to a great extent of the Gogebic and Vermillion ranges. But then, just as possible production at profitable prices was well up with demand, if not ahead of it, then came the great discoveries on the Mesaba and at the same time an enormous though not permanent check in demand for iron ore. As a result prices have gone down and down. I cannot learn that any of the Mesaba range mines has really made any money, but the ore is there and the ease and cheapness with which it can be produced puts the old mines to their trump to make any profit and even in many cases to pay expenses. The Mesaba came too soon but it is here and must be most seriously reckoned with."

"On the other hand there is another and brighter side to this picture. Mr. Curry's statements paint the situation much blacker than it is. A large portion of the Mesaba range ores are non-bessemer. I am reliably informed that one mine which last year shipped 500,000 tons of ore had 300,000 tons rejected as tons of ore up to the bessemer standard. Again, the furnaces have not yet solved many problems connected with the smelting of Mesaba ores and while some of these difficulties will be overcome in time the necessary experience will cost a great deal of money. And unless discoveries are made which will revolutionize iron ore smelting some of these difficulties will continue insurmountable. Mesaba ores differ physically and chemically from those of the other ranges and I have yet to hear of any sound metallurgist who will even express a hope that they can be profitably smelted unmix unless some discovery shall work a total revolution in smelting. Various furnaces have been used from 15 to 25 per cent of Mesaba ore as a mixture with success. But when the higher figure is exceeded there is trouble. Some furnaces whose owners are interested in Mesaba mines have attempted to use as high as 32 per cent. Accidents have resulted, always damaging to costly property and in some instances to life and limb. Mesaba ores when used above a 25 per cent mixture seem very prone to bridge in the furnace. Explosions follow, furnaces are cracked, bells and hoppers blown out and sometimes life destroyed. These difficulties will doubtless be partially overcome in due time but both time and money are required to overcome them."

"Meanwhile the old mines are not going to shut up shop out of business. They are here, the owners have their money tied up in them, they have the ore and they might as well dig and sell it as long as they can pay even a small profit. They can and will continue in business even if they only pay expenses, in hope of better times and as the only possible way of getting back the capital invested. Of course profits will have to come down to the lowest notch or even be dispensed with for a time. The mines of the Marquette range are mostly free from the burden of royalties but expenses will have to be reduced in every direction. Wages will have to stay down even if they do not go lower, and this not that the owners may pocket a larger profit but because the mines must economize in every way merely to live. This process is well under way now and I notice that now the cost of living has also decreased measurably even if not yet so much as the rate of wages. In fact the days of abundant profits and business methods are past. This applies not only to the mines but to every other industry and business. Everybody will have to be content with smaller profits, will be compelled to look sharper after them, to make surer of returns and be more circumspect in all sorts of ventures. I do not regard this as a bad thing for the country altogether for wealth easily acquired as a rule takes wings as easily. But Mr. Curry's ideas are certainly extreme and his predictions are much more gloomy than the facts warrant."

James E. Sherman of Mr. Longyear's office and in charge of the latter's interests during his absence in Europe also thought Mr. Curry's views extreme and his predictions much more gloomy than the facts warrant. He was inclined to believe that Mr. Curry was suffering from a severe fit of the "blue devils", produced by the strain of his own responsibilities and interests and the interests of others entrusted to his care. The prediction is freely made by many who have watched the course of events in iron ore carefully that the mines which operate under royalty will have to follow the example of the Chapin. That is the operating companies will have to drop out and the fee owners will have to come in. Either the fee owners will have to take over the mines and operate them themselves or the operators and owners will have to pool issues. They point out that an iron mine can no longer pay two profits, one to the fee owner and another to the operator. The two will have to consolidate and work the mine for one profit only.

Whatever may be the outcome the effort of Mr. Curry to depreciate the value of municipal securities all over the peninsula is a thing to be resented by every community. As a matter of self-defense the true state of affairs at Ironwood must be made known to outside investors. Mr. Curry's position and reputation is such that his words carry very much more than their real weight with those uninformed as to their motive. But other towns cannot afford to sit meekly down and consent in silence to be daubed with the Ironwood tar so freely applied by Mr. Curry's stick.
