MARQUETTE SANATORIUM.

THE MARQUETTE SANATORIUM not only receives patients for treatment but others who need a quiet hygienic home for rest and recuperation. Use is made of all forms of baths, massage, Swedish movements, the vibratory treatment, electricity, oxygen, super-heated air, cupping, special dieting, etc., etc. It is well known that all cases of sickness, both medical and surgical, do better under sanatorium care and treatment than at home. All cases are helped and many seemingly hopeless cases of chronic invalidism are readily cured. For rates and full particulars of our cottage plan, and most wonderful climatic advantage over all other points, address

DROWNED IN PORTAGE LAKE

Corbin and Roland Douglass Thrown Into Water by Squall Which Capsized Their Boat.

FORMER SWAM TO SHORE BUT ROLAND WENT DOWN.

Unfortunate Lad's Body Recovered as Quickly as Possible but Too Late for Resuscitation.

CLAIMED ANOTHER VICTIM.

HOUGHTON, Aug. 14. [Special.]—At 10 o'clock this morning Corbin Douglass, son of Hon. Frank A. Douglass, and Roland, his cousin, son of Major Edw. F. Douglass, took the sailboat Albatross, which was lying near the Isle Royale dock, for a short cruise on Portage lake. The boat is owned by a number of people and is a sort of common property. A stiff wind was blowing, and in taking just after leaving the dock a squall struck the little craft, capsizing her at once and throwing both boys into the water. Corbin, who is about fifteen years of age, swam to the dock, which was but a hundred feet from the point where the boat went over, but Roland, who was thirteen years old, swam nearly to the dock and then sank suddenly.

The disaster was seen and in a short time row boats were manned, life lines and grappling hooks secured and a systematic search begun for the boy. Diver Reynolds, who is employed on the foundation for the new bridge, was taken to the spot and began a search on the bottom for the unfortunate lad. Drs. Jones and Scott were summoned and awaited the finding of the body at the dock, fires having been built, water heated and relays of volunteers engaged to take the boy at full speed to the mechanical building of the Mining school, the nearest available building, as soon as the boy was found. The body was recovered about 12 o'clock, but all efforts toward reviving life proved fruitless.

A pitiable feature of the accident was the absence of both parents of the boy. Major Douglass was accompanied by his wife in going to the state encampment, which came to an end Monday, and from Island Lake went to Detroit to spend several days. They were not notified for several hours of the accident in the hope that the boy might be recovered in time to allow of resuscitation.

BLISS CROSEN TREASURER.

What Republican League Executive Committee Did Yesterday.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—By a unanimous vote the executive committee of the Republican National League, in session here today, this morning chose Aaron J. Bliss of Saginaw, Mich., as treasurer of the league and treasurer ex-officio of the executive body. Committees were then appointed and plans discussed for the fall campaign.

The afternoon session was marked by energetic speeches and definite offers of assistance. Secretary Dowling, on behalf of the Republicans of Minnesota, presented the league with a check for $1,000 to aid the organization work. Promises of similar assistance were volunteered by delegates from various other states. Then the reports from the various state leagues were received. The outlook was declared promising, particularly in Iowa, Minnesota, Connecticut and New York.

A committee on league work was appointed, consisting of John Goodnow, Minnesota; P. F. Powers, Michigan; George Christ, Arizona, and the president and secretary, whose duties it shall be to map out a plan for operation for the various state and territorial organizations. Before adjourning Senator John M. Thurston, General James S. Clarkson, W. W. Tracey and A. B. Humphrey were made advisory members of the executive committee. The matter of locating the headquarters was passed until the regular October session.

ADJOURNED UNTIL TODAY.

Silver Conference Resolutions Committee Not Ready to Report.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The silver conference was called to order at noon today. Senator Jones was made temporary chairman. The roll call brought answers from twenty-two states, but the names given the secretary showed only nineteen. Senator Daniel made a resolution for the appointment of a committee on program and resolutions, which was carried. The committee is constituted of one from each state represented. A recess was then taken.

At 4 o'clock the committee on program and resolutions reported through Senator Daniel that it was unable to report, whereupon the conference decided to adjourn until tomorrow. It is generally understood among the delegates that important work is being done by the committee. The proceedings of the committee, it is thought, have developed some differences of opinion as to the line of policy to be recommended, but these are not of a sufficiently radical nature to cause any apprehension of serious delay.

The committee proceedings indicated that the report when made will recommend the issuance of an address to the Democratic party of the country urging in very strong terms the maintenance of the silver cause in the Democratic ranks, and will also outline a plan for the organization of the silver forces in the party with a view to the selection of delegates to the next national convention. This plan will probably embrace the appointment of a central committee with a member from each state and territory, who shall in turn select a member from every county, the latter to have the power to appoint a member for every voting precinct in his county. The plan includes a provision for a national headquarters, probably at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Immediately after the adjournment of the conference for the day the program and resolutions committee was called together and remained in session several hours. At this meeting each member gave an account of the silver movement in his state and pointed out what he thought was necessary in order to strengthen the sentiment in favor of free coinage. It was decided to relegate the work of the formation of a scheme for the organization and preparation of the platform or address to the people to a subcommittee of eight with Senator Daniel of Virginia as chairman. Among the members of the subcommittee is W. W. Herrichsen of Illinois.

This subcommittee assembled during the evening and after some hours of consultation practically agreed on a basis for the report, which will be presented to the full committee and later to the conference. This report, it is understood, will recommend the appointment of a committee, to consist of Senators Harris, Turpie and Jones (Ark.) and others who signed the call for the conference, who are to select a committee of eight with Senator Daniel of Virginia as chairman. The duties of the committee are to be similar in scope and authority to those of the national committees of the Republican and Democratic parties.

The address to the people will be brief and will declare in unequivocal terms the attitude of the conference on the silver question—coinage at 16 to 1. The present understanding is no other subject but that of finance will be embodied in the address. The scheme of organization for practical work in the furtherance of the silver movement will, it is expected, also be embodied in the report of the program committee.

WALLER EXPRESSES GRATITUDE

At Interest Being Taken in His Case. Health Improving.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—A letter received today from ex-consul Waller by his stepson, Bray, says his baggage was taken from him by the French on his arrival at Marseilles and that he made a complaint to the United States consul at that place April 27 but has heard nothing of it since. He had not yet received word from Mrs. Waller or his children since their departure from Madagascar nor had he yet received the money sent him by friends in Iowa a few days ago. He reached this country here he was ill and without funds to supply himself with medical attendance. This was early in June. The letter to Bray is dated July 22. Waller expresses much gratitude for the interest taken in his case by the newspapers of the United States and by his friends, and is especially glad to learn that the department of state is looking after the protection of his family. He expresses the belief and hope that he will be released soon. His health is a little better than when he last wrote.

TOWNE FOR FREE SILVER.

Launched Campaign in Northwest at Duluth Last Night.

DULUTH, Aug. 14.—Congressman Charles A. Towne, who has been brought into prominence of late because of his stand in favor of the free coinage of silver delivered an address on the currency question at the opera house here tonight. The address was given under the auspices of the Gold and Silver club of Duluth. The organization is composed of members of all political parties. Mr. Towne in his speech argued at great length in favor of bimetalism by an international agreement at the ratio of 16 to 1. He also stated he believed the recent overwhelming success of the Conservatives

Great Britain was due in a great measure to the movement there in favor of bimetalism. The speaker was heartily applauded throughout his address and the silver men are jubilant over their launching of a campaign in favor of free silver in the northwest.

THAT JAPANESE STORM.

Damage Heavier Than First Reported—Three Thousand Drowned.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 14.—The steamer Empress of Japan brings Yokohama advices to Aug. 2 to the effect that the recent storm was disastrous in all the southwestern provinces. Thousands of houses were destroyed and fishermen with their boats and other small crafts sunk. A thousand fishermen in the province of Satsuma are known to have been drowned. Three steamships were driven ashore and nearly all of the crews and passengers drowned. Railway accidents were numerous. In consequence of the heavy floods several villages on the coast were destroyed. The authorities say the number of deaths exceeds three thousand.

GOBBLED BY EASTERN MEN.

Water Power Property at Soo Sold for $70,000.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—A deal was closed today whereby a party of eastern capitalists, represented by F. H. Clerque, acquire the famous water power property here. The consideration is said to be $70,000. The new company proposes to begin at once to develop a large amount of power and to ultimately erect a large pulp mill.

Prostrated by Heat.

MARSHALSTOWN, Ia., Aug. 14.—A number of officers and knights who took part in the drills at the interstate encampment of the Uniform Rank, K. of P., today are seriously sick from the effects of the intense heat.

Noted Publisher Dead.

LEIPSIK, Aug. 14.—Baron Bernhard Christian Tauchnitz, the celebrated publisher of Hebrew and Greek bibles and continental editions of British authors, is dead.

TO THE SUPREME COURT.

A. P. A. Omaha Commission and Present Board Reach an Agreement.

STATE'S HIGHEST TRIBUNAL TO DECIDE ISSUE.

In the Meantime the Old Commission Will Continue to Conduct City Affairs.

CONFLICT DID NOT MATERIALIZE.

OMAHA, Aug. 14.—In all probability a resort to arms to settle the municipal muddle over the rival police commissioners is now very remote, but for two hours this morning it looked very much as though a serious collision was inevitable. The sidewalks and streets surrounding the city hall were crowded with people and the interior of the building was crowded with the sheriff and his officials. The situation was intensified by a report from Kansas City that the A. P. A. council there had five thousand armed men ready to send to Omaha to uphold the A. P. A. commissions.

The A. P. A. commission convened this morning in rooms furnished them by the city council. A letter was sent to the old commission asking for a conference. The old commission agreed and a meeting was held in the mayor's office. After an animated discussion, the old fire and police commission refusing any compromise except on the basis of permitting the supreme court to pass on the situation, the A. P. A. commission gave in and it was agreed that the old board should continue to run the affairs of the municipality until a decision was rendered in the case. This is considered a definite settlement.

At the conclusion of the meeting the following telegram, signed by the chairman of the old board and by W. J. Broatch, chairman of the new board, was sent to Governor Holcomb and Attorney General Churchill: "If the supreme court will meet at an early date all the members of the two boards will unite in a request for an early hearing. Can you get the court to fix a short date?" The chairman of each board wanted it understood that neither board had made any concessions. Each side stood as it had before and in that respect there is no change in the situation.

COURT WILL MEET TODAY.

Late tonight Chief Justice Novel of the state supreme court announced that a special session of the court would be held tomorrow to settle the Omaha case.

CHICAGO JANITOR'S CRIME.

Killed His Sister-in-Law and Committed Suicide.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Frank Sweet, a janitor, fatally shot Mrs. Alice Burr tonight, slightly wounded Mrs. J. B. Nichols and then put a bullet through his own brain. Sweet was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Burr and desired her to come and live with him. She had left her husband on a former occasion and announced her intention of going back to him. Sweet combated her resolution and tonight visited her house for the purpose of getting her to leave her husband. She refused and he at once shot her through the neck. Mrs. Nichols was struck by the bullet Sweet intended for the husband of the woman he had fatally shot. Sweet was the janitor of the Chapin building, one of the finest office buildings in Chicago.

MORE GOLD FOR EXPORT.

But It Was More Than Balanced by Deposit by Syndicate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Treasurer Morgan today received a telegram from Assistant Treasurer Jordan at New York stating that the bond syndicate had deposited $1,658,000 in gold in exchange for legal tenders and later in the day another telegram was received stating that $1,150,000 in gold had been withdrawn for export to Europe. This leaves the gold reserve at the close of business $102,431,061. This second deposit by the syndicate confirms the officials in the belief that it fully intends to see that the hundred-millions gold reserve is not invaded.

INDIANS WILL RETURN.

Will Go Back to Hunting Grounds When Troops Leave.

POCATELLO, Ida., Aug. 14.—Information comes today from the agency at Rossfork, twelve miles north of Pocatello, that the Indians are preparing to return to the Jackson's Hole hunting grounds as soon as their harvest is over and supply themselves with meat for winter use, claiming the government rations are insufficient. They will resist, it is said, all efforts by the settlers to prevent them from hunting. It is believed they will be joined by the Shoshones, Utes and Lemhis. It is known the Indians are waiting for the troops to depart.

ANNUAL CONVENTIONS.

DENVER, Aug. 14.—Several hundred druggists from all parts of the country are here to attend the annual convention of the American Pharmaceutical association, which began today.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 14.—The forty-fifth annual session of the Right Worthy lodge of the American Professional association convened today with all officers and one hundred and fifty delegates present.

MARQUETTE, MICH., AUGUST 15.

Entered as mailmatter of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

MAYOR PINGREE is in New York and is giving the newspapers of that city pointers on municipal reform methods as elucidated by his administration in Detroit. The mayor has done good work in Detroit but is slightly addicted to talking about it at inopportune times and with excessive volubility. He has hurt himself not a little by his propensity to tell all about himself and his doings. Somebody ought to give him that parrot story.

BOTH the Detroit Tribune and Journal earnestly urge the appointment of Hon. Don M. Dickinson to fill the vacancy on the supreme bench of the United States created by the death of the late Judge Jackson. They pay a high compliment to Mr. Dickinson's ability and high character in discussing his fitness for the position. No doubt the appointment of Mr. Dickinson would give very great satisfaction to the people, but it is not likely that he would accept the place. A seat on the supreme bench is hardly suited to a man of his active temperament at his age, and, besides, it would be a sacrifice on his part to give up his practice to take it.

SUPERIOR hasn't got through with the Starkweather unpleasantness yet. The deposed mayor has taken steps to appeal to the supreme court of Wisconsin against the action of the common council in removing him from office, and besides that the grand jury is now in session there for the purpose of investigating his conduct as mayor particularly and the corrupt practices of city officials there generally. There is a good deal of apprehension among those who are holding or have held city offices regarding the result of the grand jury's work, as there is a possibility that several persons there who have thus far escaped smirching may be subjected to a damaging exposure if the investigation is thorough and unsparring.

We take this from The Marine Record: With the unprecedented revival in all trade after a period of depression comes an entirely unexpected degree of activity in the lake shipyards, all of which are certain to be kept busy during the coming winter season. The greatest drawback to the shipbuilders now is the inability to secure material within what would be considered a reasonable time after it is ordered. Much of this material was purchased just before the late marked advances, and the mills have in many cases yielded to the temptation to work out orders on which they are making more money and to let the cheaper goods wait. The amount of structural steel which is being turned out for bridges and buildings is something never before approached and almost incomprehensible in volume, and even where shipbuilders come exactly in their turn their orders are subject to delays in fulfillment which very naturally make them restive, especially when they have hundreds of skilled men in their yards, employed at tinkering about the yards in order that they may not wander elsewhere.

THE trouble at Spring Valley, Ill., is over, a fact largely due to the nerve and good judgment displayed by the sheriff there in dealing with it, especially in the stand he took against the mayor of Spring Valley, an Italian named Delmarco, who wanted to get some guns belonging to the county, ostensibly to arm men for the purpose of preserving the peace but really with the intention of turning them over to the rioters. Said the sheriff to the mayor, in denying the latter's request for the guns: "I consider you a coward, and if I should send the rifles tonight I might have to face the same guns with the men I may be compelled to bring over. You will not get a single rifle from me unless my men from here go with them; and, furthermore, if you don't take some action for the protection of life and property I may go over and take possession of the city myself." That settled it. The sheriff understood his duty and had the courage to execute it, and the mob that was going to drive out the colored miners decided not to risk an encounter with him and his force of deputies. He didn't call out the militia to aid him in quelling the disturbance either.

A NEW YORK report quotes one of the largest copper producers in the United States saying that he has not heard of any sales of copper as high as twelve cents per pound. That is the price that would have to be paid on any round amount of copper, but no transactions have yet been made at that figure. He does not believe that there is on hand 500,000 pounds of copper in the country outside of the stocks of the mining companies. This is the season of the year when the producers are not anxious to do business. About Sept. 1 activity in the market will be resumed, and higher prices undoubtedly will be seen. There has not been so far, he says, even a suggestion of speculative manipulation of the copper market. There have been some outside sales of copper at below twelve cents per pound, but they have not caused a ripple. The market is very quiet at the moment. London had been weak up to Friday on expectations of large exports of gold from this side, but the light engagements actually made caused a rally in that market. Stocks of copper are not excessive, and there is an actual scarcity of the electrolytic and ordinary casting sort.

A PROSPECTOR who has just come down to Superior from the Rainy Lake gold region gives the Leader of that city some interesting information about the condition of things there. He says it is very quiet there now, the work-up boom having lost much of its buoyancy. There are only two mills in operation and these are small and unfitted for the work of treating the rock, which requires much heavier machinery to reduce it. He says there are plenty of good surface prospects, but no one knows how they will turn out until sinking to some depth has been done, and no shafts are down below fifty feet as yet, and only a couple to that depth. A great deal of money has been spent in the purchase of worthless properties for speculative purposes, he says, but very little has been put into real tests of the value of any of the prospects, so it remains a question whether there is anything of permanent value there. There was a great deal of noise made over the richness of the Rainy Lake district last winter, but it is significant that it has subsided steadily since last spring, when the disappearance of the snow rendered the country more readily accessible. It is plain from this prospector's statements that there is nothing tangible to back the extravagant claims made for the new gold region, and that while there has been a great deal of effort to create the belief that gold exists there in rich and easily worked veins little has been done to develop any of them. The fact gives weight to the suspicion that the Rainy Lake boom was worked up mainly by speculators and adventurers, just as many well posted people have suspected was the case with the wonderful new El Dorado.

HOAR'S GOOD SENSE.

Commenting on the attitude of Senator Hoar of Massachusetts toward the A. P. A., as shown by his letter to a member of that order just given to the public, The Minneapolis Journal says: There was a lot of good, sound sense in what Senator Hoar wrote to the A. P. A., just given public, as to the throwing down of the walls between Christians rather than building up new ones, as the aim and spirit of the A. P. A. unquestionably attempt. The Journal has pointed out many a time in the past 10 years the gradual breaking down of these walls, as shown in the attitude of the various denominations on matters which were at one time believed to be all-essential elements in belief, but which, in the clearer light of today, are not essential at all, but obstacles. The A. P. A. is showing in a variety of ways just how large and luminous a fool a man may be when he has a good, ample chance. It needs just such ringing words as those of Senator Hoar to be said, and said fearlessly, in season and out of season, concerning such organizations as the A. P. A.

Senator Hoar makes well his point, too, when he says that he wants to win the 700,000 Catholics of the state of Massachusetts to the public schools, to get them to come into the public schools as American citizens should, to get them to subscribe heartily to the Americanism of popular education. There isn't a true American, a full American in the broadest and deepest sense, but wishes the same thing, whether he is in or outside the pale of the Catholic church. But nothing is to be accomplished in this direction by swinging the bludgeon. The time should come, indeed, the time is sure to come, when popular education in America should know no hindrance in the tenets of any sect.

THE SNAPPING TURTLE.

It Prefers Retreat, but is a Great Fighter When cornered.

Some one has said that all turtles snap, and, therefore, the name snapper should be applied to all. But this is not so, for although most turtles are quick in their motions of head and jaws, there are many which are very deliberate in their movements, and some which cannot be irritated so that they will bite. The species under consideration, however, is known to all from its exceedingly pugnaacious disposition. It will make every effort to escape to its deep pool or mirey retreat when assailed, but when cornered it will fight with a ferocity and hang-on with a bulldog tenacity that is as amusing as curious. Nothing daunts it, and in its blind rage it will seize a red-hot iron or the sharp edges of any instrument or any object presented to it. Nor does it learn by experience, but will continue to snap at everything which moves near it, when the futility of its attack ought to be apparent even to its dull brain.

Its movements in striking are so rapid that one wonders how the sluggish creature can possess such quick motions. The manner of darting at an object is not remarkably different from the principle of a snake's striking, only that the snake strikes from the neck and fore part of the body, while the snapper obtains its slack from its neck which it depresses and draws into its shell. Its accuracy in striking is remarkable, and greatly exceeds that, at best, uncertain movements of the snake; for while a snake will often, when excited, miss an object the size of the hand, the snapping turtle rarely fails to seize the object aimed at, even if it should be a small twig. Like the snake, too, the snapper immediately recovers its guard, so to speak. The instant it strikes it jerks back its head. If it misses, it generally darts forward again and again; but if it secures its hold it hangs on with a grip that nothing will shake, and from which it can only be loosened by a direct pull, or by the twisting method sometimes employed in separating bulldogs.

The snapping turtle is largely carnivorous and feeds on putrid as well as fresh food, but prefers a fresh flesh diet. I have frequently observed it feeding at the bottom of a pond or stream, when it has been seen to be very deliberate. It is very partial to fish, and I doubt not that its food largely consists of finny prey. The strength of the animal is prodigious, and it secures food where other and weaker animals would fail. Not rarely it robs the angler of his string of fish, and does the theft so silently that the loss is not discovered until too late to be prevented. Once when I was with a party splashing for bass and floating down the river, we camped on the bank and left a string of fifty pounds of small-mouthed bass in the river to keep fresh. The next morning, when we started, there were but two perfect fishes left; most of them had been eaten, the heads alone remaining on the line. I have also been robbed in broad daylight by these turtles.

Nothing could be more ridiculous than the notion of fattening a snapper in a sawmill barrel. Because the creature continues to live in the reeking mass of garbage it does not follow that it eats the conglomeration, for it is hardly reasonable to suppose that a wild flesh-eating reptile is going to gain flesh by being confined and made to wallow in sour milk and kitchen accumulations. I have known of snappers dying in such quarters.

The snapper prefers deep pools in rivers, and is more frequently to be seen in the spring, basking on the overturned trees and river debris at the outside of the bends. In these situations it is not uncommon to see ten to twenty individuals perched about, ready to plunge into the water at the first intimation of danger. If one is anxious to secure a turtle for the table, or for a specimen, my advice is to shoot it with a charge of fine shot. If the turtle is shot with the largest sized bullet the creature will escape, but fine shot in its head usually will keep it from sinking at once, and it may be captured readily if the attempt is made quickly.

The flesh is excellent when properly cooked, and the soup—when prepared by one who understands the culinary process—is "out of sight." When cooked poorly and the soup is thin and watery—as I have sometimes found it—the first impression with a novice is often fatal to a repetition of the experiment. We are informed that there are ten, twenty and even up to ninety-nine kinds of meat in a turtle, but these figures are rather high. There are three kinds, or, rather, three flavors or grades of meat in this animal. The leg meat is the most abundant, and the poorest, if such a term can be applied where all is good and tender; the neck meat is still better; while the portion lying along each side of the spine, and which has to be cut out from its bony surroundings, is the best. The amount of nourishing material in a turtle is remarkably small for the weight of the creature, and, at best, we can secure but little from the boxed carcass. It is no wonder that cooks are so particular to waste nothing in preparing diamond-back terrapins for the table. Nothing is eliminated from the terrapin's internal anatomy, excepting the gall bladder, when it goes to make the delectable soup. Some snappers weigh nearly thirty pounds, but the large ones will range from fifteen to twenty pounds. The meat for cooking, from a ten-pound turtle, will not go much beyond a pound in weight—American Field.

NOIRAUD. BY LUDOVIC HALEVY.

"Don't be alarmed, monsieur, you won't miss your train. I've taken passengers to the station for fifteen years and no one ever missed a train, sir, never."

"No use looking at your watch, sir; there is something you don't know and which your watch can't tell you—the train is always fifteen minutes late; there never was an occasion when it has not been fifteen minutes late."

This day, however, the rule did not hold good. The train was on time and I missed it. My driver was enraged.

"You ought to announce that the trains leave on time all at once," he cried to the stationmaster. "I never heard of such a thing!"

There was a general chorus of "O, yes; always late, always!"

So I only had three long hours to pass in this very melancholy village of the Canton of Vaud, flanked by two melancholy mountains, with each a little patch of snow on its summit.

How long these three hours? In turn spoke for assistance, and there was a general cry of "Go and see the Chaudron, the only thing worth seeing in these parts."

And where was the Chaudron? "On the mountain to the right, half way up, but the path is a little complicated."

"Well, he hasn't been himself since this morning; his legs trouble him; he can't get about. But don't be disturbed, we have some one to replace him, Noiraud, only I must warn you that Noiraud is not a person."

"Not a person?" "No; he is our dog. He is used to it and will guide you very well, as well as my husband."

"Certainly. For years and years Father Simon has taken him along, so he has learned the places, and now he does the business alone. He has often taken travelers before, and we have always had compliments for him. As for intelligence, don't be afraid; he has as much as you and I; he only needs to talk, but it is not necessary for him to speak in this case."

Being left once was enough for that day, so I was essentially careful not to expose myself to a second such misadventure. I explained to the woman that I had but three hours for the walk to the Chaudron.

"Oh, yes," said she; "you wish to take the four o'clock train. Don't be afraid. Noiraud will bring you back in time. Come, Noiraud; start along my boy; start along!"

But Noiraud did not appear to feel at all disposed to start along. He sat motionless, gazing at his mistress with agitation.

"Ah, how stupid I am," said the old woman. "I forgot—I had forgotten the sugar." She took four lumps of sugar from a drawer and gave them to me.

"That is why he did not want to start; you hadn't the sugar. Start up, my boy, to the Chaudron, the Chaudron, the Chaudron!"

"I followed him meekly. He kept on ahead and we passed through the village thus. The children romping in the street recognized my guide.

did not. I was in haste to leave the village and be along among the beauties of nature with Noiraud, whose mission it was to make me admire them.

The beauties of nature were, to commence with, an awful burning dusty road, under a broiling sun. The dog marched briskly along. I tried to moderate his gait.

Noiraud, good dog, not so fast, not so fast." Noiraud turned a deaf ear and followed his little path until I attempted to sit down by the wayside under a tree which threw a thin shade. He was seized by a fit of wrath and barked with a little furious voice, throwing irritated glances at me...

A few minutes later we came to a delicious road, shady, flowered, perfumed and full of freshness and murmuring of spring. Noiraud at once started off at a gallop and disappeared in the green. I followed him a trifle breathless. A hundred feet and I found my Noiraud awaiting me with head held high and shining eye, in a sort of chamber of verdure, livened by the twinkle of a wee cascade. There was an old rustic bench, and from this Noiraud glanced with impatience to my eyes, and back again. This glance said:

"Now here is a place to rest. It is nice here; it is cool. You wanted to stop in the hot sun. Come now and sit down; I don't object."

So I sat down and lighted a cigar. I almost offered one to Noiraud, but the thought that he might prefer a lump of sugar came to me. He caught it adroitly on the fly, ground it up quickly, then lay down and drooped at my feet. He was evidently accustomed to make a little halt and take a little nap at this place. He slept ten minutes. I felt perfectly tranquil. Noiraud had inspired me with absolute confidence; I had resolved to obey him blindly.

He arose, stretched himself, threw me a little side glance signifying: "Start up, my friend," and like two old friends we wound through the woods, enjoying the charm, the silence and the sweetness of the place. Presently we came to a path at the left. Noiraud hesitated a little, reflected, and then continued in the road, but not without a trifling uncertainty in his gait; he stopped. He must have made a mistake—yes, for returning a few steps he led the way to the left until we arrived in a sort of grotto, where Noiraud, pointing with his nose upward, invited me to contemplate the great height of the rocks which walled it in. When Noiraud thought I had sufficiently admired it he hurried back to the little path we had been following. The road soon became steep, uneven, rough. I advanced but slowly, with great precaution. Noiraud jumped blithely from rock to rock, but did not abandon me, now and then throwing me a glance of the most touching solicitude. At last I began to hear the plashing of water and Noiraud yapped joyfully. "Bear up," he said; "bear up; we will soon be there. You are going to see the Chaudron."

It was in truth the Chaudron. A modest enough little cascade, of equally modest height, falling in showering sprays on a slightly hollowed rock. I should never have been consoled for having made this laborious ascent to see this mediocre marvel if I had not had the brave Noiraud as my companion. He was much more interesting and remarkable than the Chaudron.

On each side of the fall in two small Swiss chalets were two little dairies, kept by two little native women, one blonde, the other brunette. They were both in national dress and eagerly watching my approach.

It seemed to me that the blonde had very pretty eyes, and I had already taken several steps toward her chalet when Noiraud, bursting with furious barkings, barred the way. Had he a preference for the little brunette? I changed my course. That was it. Noiraud ceased as though by magic when he saw me seated at a table in front of his young protégé's house. I called for a glass of milk. Noiraud's friend entered her tiny nest and he slipped in with her, and through an open window I followed my Noiraud with my eyes. The wretch! He was served before me. He had his bowl of milk first. He was bribed.

Noiraud soon gave signs of agitation and impatience. I could now read his eyes like an open book. It was time to start. I arose, paid the Swiss and went toward the path by which we had ascended the mountain. Looking for my Noiraud I found he had planted himself at the entrance of another path and was gazing seriously, severely at me. What progress I had made in two hours and how familiar Noiraud's silent eloquence had become!

"What sort of an opinion have you got of me?" said Noiraud. "Did you think I would go over the same road twice? Truly, no. I am a good guide—I know my trade. We shall descend by another road."

This other road was much prettier than the first, and Noiraud, full of sprightliness, turned to me often with a little air of triumphant joy. We crossed the village and were assailed by three or four of his dog friends, who appeared much in the mood to chat and play a little with their comrade, and they tried to stop him, but Noiraud growled, scolded and sharply repulsed their advances. "You see I have something on hand; I am taking the gentleman to the station." It was only in the waiting-room that he consented to leave me—after gaily crunching his last two lumps of sugar—and this is how I translate Noiraud's farewell.

"We are twenty minutes ahead of time. I am not one to let you lose your train. Well, bon voyage! Adieu!" Translated by Lucy Martin, for the Chicago Tribune.

LIZARDS IN A TRANCE. One Medical Authority regards it as a Kind of Hypnotism. An English scientific journal has received an interesting communication on the subject of the so-called "death-feigning instinct" of certain reptiles, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The correspondent, who writes from Syria, says that when a certain species of Egyptian lizard is captured, it makes a few vigorous efforts to escape, and then, if held firmly, falls into a limp, motionless state, which might easily lead an inexperienced person to think it dead.

Gentle respiratory movements are visible just behind the shoulders, and sometimes show a rising and falling rhythm with short intervals of complete rest; the eyes remain wide open, but are commonly half closed, and the lids wink slowly from time to time spontaneously or by reflex action.

Dr. Van Dyck looks upon this manifestation not as voluntary or conscious death-feigning, but as a form of hypnotism. The natural enemies of these lizards are foxes, jackals, martens, birds of prey and snakes.

"Can anyone believe," asks Dr. Van Dyck, "that any one of these animals, having captured a lizard, would be in the least inclined to let it go because it lay motionless and apparently dead in the captor's grasp? Or will it be argued that the trance condition is a special gift in mercy to the victim, to mitigate or abolish the pain of death?"

Some Punkins. This is how a Latin-American journal describes Gen. Eloy Alfaro, "campaigner, liberator, regenerator and supreme chief" of the Ecuador rebels: "Imagine all indomitable sadness, all nostalgia, all aspirations toward the infinite, all revolutionary somberness, all luminous and grand ideas, all the abrupt energies of the insurrectionary conscience placed in the tangible form of a man, indomitable and generous, combative and austere; such as Alfaro. His indigent head wears a golden aureole."

WHERE BIG GAME IS PLENTY.

How a Hunter Found Himself Face to Face with Two Big Lions. In "Lion Hunting in Somaliland," Capt. C. J. Melliss tells how he first found himself face to face with two full-grown lions. He started from Berbera for the Hand with ten camels, a dozen Somalis, two donkeys, a pony and two months' provisions.

The game on the route were gazelle, antelopes, guinea fowl and bustards, and at night jackals and hyenas. Shortly after reaching the Hand, which is a great waterless plateau, he met the two lions, "actually waiting for me," he writes, "all to myself; a vast plain on all sides, clear of jungle as a lawn, not another bush even in sight."

"I was going to get them, or they get me. That was the only uncertainty in the whole thing."

He goes on to say that what struck him most forcibly on seeing a wild lion for the first time was that there was none of that slim, weak appearance in the hind quarters which is so visible in caged lions.

Capt. Melliss used a much heavier charge than Mr. Selous, and seems to have had little difficulty in disabling a lion with a well-aimed shot. When he had killed them, the lions were skinned and the hides tied behind two horsemen.

He describes vividly his delight after his first day's shooting. "I shall never forget the pleasure of it," he says. "What a paradise the country seemed as my eyes wandered from the two great heads at the cruppers to the wild herds scattered over the plain."

In four days he shot no less than five lions and eight lionesses and captured four cubs.

Capt. Melliss usually rode up and dismounted to shoot, but a much more exciting way, which he occasionally experienced, was to track the lion's spoor and follow him into the jungle on foot.

Queer Comment by a Bishop. Of Bishop Bathurst, who was a great whist player, it is related that on hearing the name of a new appointment in the chapter there was wrung from him the passionate exclamation: "I have served the whigs all my life and now they send me down a canon who doesn't know clubs from spades!"

Microbe Causes Gray Hairs. Dr. Brisson, of Paris, says that old age is caused by a microbe, and that the microbe is capable of extermination. The great trouble with this proposition is the difficulty of stating it excepting as a paradox. The only logical way to escape old age is to die young.

FIGHTING CHINCH BUGS.

Prairie Farmers Adopt Unique Tactics Against the Pests.

Old Grasshopper Times Brought Forcibly to Mind Again—The Troublesome Insects Captured by the Bushel.

The dry weather which succeeded the early rains has brought out the prairie farmers' enemy, the chinch bug, in full force again. As the wheat has been cut, the bugs have gone into the corn fields, and in many sections of central Kansas are doing damage again. The schemes evolved by the settlers for the destruction of the tiny insects which are so harmful, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, are alike ingenious and effective—the only difficulty being the overwhelming numbers of the pests. When millions on millions infest every square rod, there is little hope for effectual extermination.

The farmers are, among other things, reviving the plans of the old grasshopper days, and are using coal oil or kerosene with more or less success. The scheme includes a long trench, reaching across the edge of the field which it is proposed to protect. At intervals are sunken cans, covered by coneshaped piles of dirt with a hole at the top. The bugs follow the trench and pour in a stream into the cans. At the bottom of the cans is coal oil, which serves both to kill the creatures and make them inflammable. A torch touched to each produces a mimic volcano for a time, but leaves the trap empty and ready for another collection of bugs. One farmer in northern Kansas piled up eight bushels of dead bugs in one day, and did not work hard either. This system can at best be but a temporary expedient, and over a short spell of dry weather, as the expense is too great to allow of protecting any large territory.

The larger portion of the farmers continue to have faith in the bacilli of Chancellor Snow's discovery, and thousands of boxes of bugs are being sent to the state university to exchange for infected insects that may spread disease and death among the fields. Some counties have established stations, in charge of experienced men, at a cost of $60 to $100 a month, to propagate the disease and furnish the bugs to the farmers at home.

During the past few months 8,000 packages of infection have been sent out to the individual farmers of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. In addition, fifty auxiliary distributing stations were established in Kansas and Missouri, thirty-eight in Kansas and twelve in Missouri. The demand for infection from southern Kansas has materially decreased recently, which is said to be the result of the disappearance of bugs in the sections where infection was used extensively soon after its discovery. In 1893 there were 1,303 applications from individual farmers and last year only 194, a figure not likely to be exceeded this season. The northeastern counties also show a falling off from 1,123 to 402, while the central and western counties keep up their demands. The fifty substations supplied an average of 300 farmers, giving a total of 15,000, with 5,000 more from the central station, or 20,000 altogether. About 5,000 made written reports of last year's work and 55 per cent. were favorable, showing an immense saving to crops by the use of the infection.

A field near the laboratory gave the station an opportunity to gather 7,000 boxes of sporotrichum as a reserve stock for early distribution for use in the wheat fields this spring and summer. Most of these came into central Kansas and did good work. Experiments made last fall in infecting chinch bugs with artificial culture with the ordinary method of infecting bugs, and it is a great advantage in supplying farmers early in the spring with the necessary amount of infected bugs. Experiments are being tried of spreading infection by the spraying of sprouting spores, and if successful it is possible that infection may prove successful in dry weather. This has been the greatest impediment to complete success in experiments up to the present time.

The corn crop is one on which the farmers place the most reliance, and it is at present in a condition to promise a magnificent yield. But if the bugs are to be allowed to roam from the fields of wheat in to those of corn and lop off a half dozen or more rows on each side, it means a tremendous loss in the aggregate. The little creatures work with an army-like regularity and accomplish a devastation as extensive as it is serious. The fight to save the fields is important as well as interesting.

Great People Shrink. What a fortunate thing it is that great people are apt to shrink on closer acquaintance. A New York lady, living in a modest way, was almost appalled when Mrs. Goggles was announced. "Goodness!" she said to herself. "What can I talk about to Mrs. Goggles? She belongs to so many clubs, reads and studies so many languages, writes for the magazines, and all that."

"I must appear so ignorant and foolish to her." She nervously, however, and went to meet her guest. And then, the formidable Mrs. Goggles, after a few conventional remarks, said, in a timid, pleading tone: "They tell me you have a lovely way of cooking turnips. Won't you please give me the recipe?"

THINK OF THIS. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only true blood purifier prominently in the public eye today.

The World's Fair Tests showed no baking powder so pure or so great in leavening power as the Royal.

ANN'S HOME COMING. BY ELIZABETH C. SHIPMAN. Fred Roberts had long been the vagabond of the Bevinville district of Barclay.

"Now, Mr. Roberts, I want to see you go fix yo'self up nice and genteel. These're some things I've been gettin' ready 'gainst Ann come home.

She looked at the old man to emphasize the remark. He turned on a tremulous hand over the other slowly, and could think of nothing else to say than "Yes."

"He was longing to cross to the mantle-piece and take a draught from the squat, brown bottle which stood there. Then he would be able to answer, yet he knew he must not drink to-day.

"It vexed him to think Ann was coming home to a shameful father; Ann who used to love him, faults and all, as no one else could.

"Ann, you know, is not the same child she was. She is a young lady now, an' expects to find her father different from what he was.

"When the door closed a man walked toward the fireplace, feeling as he went that he was bowed and shabby. A glance in the wavering surface of his dim shaving mirror confirmed the sensation.

"J. A. Sly did business in Negaunee yesterday. W. C. Barry of Ontonagon was in Negaunee yesterday.

owner by falling into the way of either dogs or birds. "Lemme rub the sculp wid liquor, Mr. Robbuts," he said, pouring out a liberal saucerful from the bottle on the shelf.

The operation was completely over now, and the barber stood awaiting his pay, a brimming glass of whisky from the familiar bottle.

Robert donned his waistcoat and coat and walked to the window. The trees on the horizon were leafless and black, but an afternoon haze softened their iron outlines.

The man felt the chill from his drenched head. It crept downward and rendered the stiff shirt unbearable.

Now it reached his heart and awoke despair. Everyone, even the old negro there, warned him that he was unfit for Ann.

He opened his door and crept down the stairs and across the hall. His fingers rattled the knob of the door so uncontrollably that he feared some one would hear, and he halted, expecting a summons to explain.

He gave no heed, but plunged into the orchard, feeling the cold evening air, and seeing through the black twigs of bushes and trees the vivid thread of scarlet just above the horizon line of woods.

As he went on and the evening fell darker, and Turk walked ahead more sedately, he could not keep weak tears from his eyes.

"It's better for her," he repeated; "it's better for her. She's got as gentle blood as any, and without me to hinder she can go with the best. She has money, too, thank God."

"He tucked the towel around the neck of the victim and was running his fingers through the abundant gray mass before him, preparatory to his work.

"No, suh," answered the old negro, emphatically. "When Miss Ann was sent away, yo' har was as black as coal."

"It's tu'nd gray, Mr. Robbuts, 'case it ain't been looked a'ter lak it ought to be. But hit's mighty nice har. Miss Ann, now, 'll change things a right smart, I reckon. Hit'll do Tu'k good, Mr. Robbuts. Dat 'ar dawg is a heap too sassy anyway, a-daundersin' along by hissef of a night, do Lawd knows wha'. Hit'll do him good to have somebody a-lookin' a'ter him."

"He had finished the clipping and now shook the towel on the hearth. Then he gathered up the falling hair in a wad to bury under a stone, so that it might not bring bad luck upon the

CHILDREN OF OLD ENGLAND.

The grand lodge of the Sons of St. George will meet here today, holding its sessions in A. O. U. W. hall on Washington street.

An elaborate program has been prepared for the reunion of Saturday. The celebration is under the management of Oak Leaf lodge of this city.

The Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co. will sell round trip tickets to Boston, from all points on its lines west of the Ohio River, August 19 to 25, inclusive.

A feature of the reunion that should not be forgotten is the performance of "Red Riding Hood" to be given at the opera house tomorrow evening.

Some of the costumes for "Little Red Riding Hood," which will be given at the opera house tomorrow evening for the benefit of the Father Marquette statue fund, were placed on exhibition last night in the window of Coderre's pharmacy.

Manager Edgerly of the Hotel Superior had planned a hop for Saturday evening next to commemorate the completion of the new pavilion and also of the new electric road to the hotel.

In deference to the wishes of a large majority of those interested a slight change in the program for the Masonic excursion today has been made by the committee in charge.
