the massacre WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 .- Officials at the Chinese legation have no information throwing any light on the reported refusal of the home government to permit the members of the mixed British and American commission to investigate the Ku Cheng massacre. In fact, the legation has not yet been apprised officially of the appointment of the commission. The only explanation given as the reason for the reported refusal is that the action was taken by the Chinese local officials, who possibly had not been informed by the central government of the appointment of the commission.

Requisitions for river and harbor work come from the war department and when indorsed as immediate are, according to Mc-Lennan, forthwith paid over to the engineer in charge. The books of the warrant division show that at present the payments on account of river and harbor work are unusually heavy.

Ireland Building Investigation Brought Out Interesting Points Yesterday. New York, Aug. 19 .- The inquest into the causes of the collapse of the Ireland building today developed some facts of much interest. He also said he had never seen the inspectors who had been assigned to that territory at the building.

The Farmer, the Fanning Mill and the Bags of Atmosphere. "I see," remarked the wide-awake farmer to the Express man, "that wheat has gone up to seventy cents in Chicago, and there's a report that it will keep goin' till it gets to one dol-lar. Now, I'd like to contract to sell you my crop for seventy cents. Seventy cents will do me. I'd rather have a sure thing while it's goin' than to take my chances on doin' better by waitin'."

"But," replied the commission mer chant, "I can't agree to contract for your wheat at seventy cents."

"Why not? It's goin' up to a dollar, an' vou'll make thirty cents a bushel.

Ain't that enough?" "Oh, yes; but you see that seventy cents is only a speculative price. It ain't what they pay for real wheat."
"Don't pay that for real wheat? What in thunder do they pay it for,

then? "Why, for options."

"Well, what the blazes are options?"
"Why, they're promises to get wheat and sell it for such and such a price." "Well, then, they got to get the wheat, ain't they?"

"No; they sell the promises again according as the market rises or falls." "An' don't they buy an' sell any real wheat at all?" "Not much."

"Just buy an' sell wind at seventy cents a bushel?"

"That's about it."

"Thunder an' Mars, wish I'd knowed that last fall. I wouldn't a-sowed any wheat. I'd tied my grain bags to the back o' my fannin' mill an' kept the boy turnin' it all winter, till I'd filled all the bags I could get hold of. But it ain't too late yet. But His Prospective Hostess Got Back at Him Just the Same.

Washington society has been described in so many different ways that people in general have no definitely correct idea of it; but that there are many bright people there is abundantly proved in a little book called "The Show in Washington," in which the following story is given:

Mavroyeni Bey, the young Turkish minister, aspires to be a society leader. A young hostess was issuing verbal invitations to her friends for an informal five-o'clock tea.

The minister, overhearing her, smilingly begged that he might be included in the list, and at the same time called out to his secretary, who entered the room: "Monsieur Effendi, mademoiselle has asked me to tea with her at five o'clock to-morrow. Remember the engagement for me."

Assertion that the Men Ack Regiected by the Officers and Take Revenge.

The English army is the subject of a great deal of serious criticism. too much of which, it must be feared, is sound. The navy stands unrivaled both as to ships and men, and the discipline is good, which is a claim that can not be justly put forward for the sister service. A man can be a poorly-disciplined sondier and he will do, after a fashion; but an ill-disciplined soldier will not do at all. The men in their floating home are more in the property of their leaders, who have many ways of enforcing discipline army officers know nothing about.

He greeted all men as his country is safe, but if a large force does effect a landing, a couple of army corps, say, it would go hard with the island. I think the fleet can keen an enem from landing, and that the English fleet could carry the coast of an enemy But I do not think that England could land anywhere any but a very small expeditionary force, and that even if she could land a much larger one they would be annihilated.

There is as fine material for soldiers in England as in any country in the world. If this country ever again engages in a long war with a great power it will end by a resort to a conscrip-tion, and the precedent supplied by the United States will be quoted in sup-port of it. The officers, too, will be subjected to a different training, and the army will be completely reorgan-ized. The best arm here at present seems to be the artillery, which is in many respects superior to the other branches of the service.-Philadelphia

A number of the local bicyclists have agreed to contribute liberally and the amount required can doubtless be raised without difficulty. The race will be a handicap, so that poor riders as well as good ones will have a chance of winning a prize. The road from Ishpeming to Palmer is doubtless the best, considering the distance, in the upper peninsula, the wheeling being good the entire distance. The council will no doubt grant the company the use of the street, as it cannot but see that such a building as it is proposed to erect will increase the value of all property in that immediate vicinity and that the improvement will be generally beneficial to the city. In speaking about the depot yesterdey Mayor Johnston said he had not heard any one object to the city granting the company the use of the street. Construction of the depot will be commenced as soon as possible after the council takes favorable action on the company's petition for the privilege of using the additional ground asked for.
