HOWARD PITZEL'S FATE.

His Charred Remains Found in a House in a Suburb of Indianapolis.

RESULT OF WEEKS' SEARCH BY DETECTIVES.

Evidence Goes to Show Boy Was Killed and Body Partially Burned in a Stove.

MURDER TRACED TO HOLMES.
INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 27.—This city will claim a right to try H. H. Holmes for murder. This claim will be based upon horrible developments of today, which include the finding of the charred remains of nine-year-old Howard Pitzel and evidence before which any jury in the country would convict Holmes of having murdered him and then partially burned his body in a stove.

Detectives Geyer of Philadelphia and Richards of Indianapolis and Inspector Gary of the Fidelity Insurance company have been at work for weeks hunting for traces of the boy's body. He was traced here with Holmes and then disappeared. This morning detectives were sent to Irvington, a pretty suburb of this city and the seat of Butler College, and examined a small vacant cottage situated in the woods at the edge of the town and far removed from any other dwelling. Beneath the side of the porch the missing trunk which was taken from a side door of a hotel in this city Oct. 10 by Holmes, and which is thought to have contained the body of the boy, was found.

Great excitement followed and hundreds flocked to the scene as soon as the discovery leaked out, although the officers endeavored to keep the matter secret. The house was guarded and the work of searching for additional evidence was begun. Developments followed thick and fast and the chain of evidence is damaging. In a barn connected with the house was a large stove, which had been moved from the house to the stable by the owner after Holmes left. It was at once concluded that the body had been burned in the stove and a search was begun for the remains.

Late this evening the stove hole where the stove had been found to be filled with refuse. This was pulled out and the remains of the boy found. Physicians and dentists were there, and in this pit of refuse a hundred pieces of charred bones were found. The teeth showed that the body was that of a boy between eight and ten years of age and all the other bones confirmed this. All the bones were charred and pieces of flesh clung to some of them. The skull bones and plevs added to the same convincing proof. The body had evidently been burned in the large stove found in the barn. Howard's overcoat was found at a grocery store near by, where Holmes had left it saying the boy would call for it. He never came.

The owners of the house recognize Holmes from pictures and several neighbors distinctly remember his face. All the evidence points that he is the man who last October rented the house with the same story as he told in Toronto and other places, came with the boy and a big stove, wash stand and bed, stayed two days and then disappeared. Several people identified him and all doubt is removed. Other developments are expected tomorrow and with this evidence Indianapolis will demand Holmes for trial.

SMOKED PIPE OF PEACE.
Winnebago Indians Joined by Chippewas in Big War Dance.
BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis., Aug. 27.—A big war dance of Winnebagoes near this city today furnished an attraction for a great number of visitors. There was a genuine war dance, in which the Chippewas Indians joined. A vast number of presents were showered upon the Winnebago dancers. The dance will be continued next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, when another delegation of thirty Chippewas will visit the Winnebagoes and extend the friendship of their tribe and smoke the pipe of peace. But one encounter took place and that was an outgrowth of the Black Hawk murder. The affair was between Green Cloud, who is striving to get at the head of the tribe, and Herman Chase, who was interpreter at the Swallow examination. Green Cloud received a broken arm in the encounter with the wily young warrior. Bloodshed is looked for when old Chief Black Hawk returns from the northern part of the state, as he has sworn to avenge the murder of his son and legitimate successor.

ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED.
Excursion of German-American Veterans Reaches Bremen.
BREMEN, Aug. 27.—A train having on board the German-American veterans arrived this morning from Bremerhaven. They were warmly welcomed by the military and other associations assembled in large numbers at the depot. An imposing procession was formed and the visitors were escorted to the Tivoli gardens. The visitors there received an enthusiastic greeting and were afterward entertained at lunch. In the afternoon the procession reformed and the veterans left the gardens and marched to the war monument erected in the memory of those who fell in the battles fought by Germany against France during the war of 1870-71. Laurel wreaths were placed upon the monument and several patriotic addresses were delivered, after which the procession again reformed and marched through the principal streets.

The veterans next assembled around Emperor William's monument near Rath Hausen, which was enthusiastically cheered by the German-Americans. The latter and their escorts then proceeded to Burger Park, where a concert by military bands took place in the evening, followed by splendid fireworks. Herr Walkowitz of Berlin in a speech especially thanked President Schlenker of the Chicago veterans for his services in organizing the excursion of the German-American veterans.

OUSTED THE SETTLERS.
Kalispeil Indians Want No Trespassing on Their Reservation.
SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 27.—Trouble has again broken out between the Kalispell Indians and the settlers along the east side of the Pend d'Oreille river, Idaho, over disputed possessions which the Indians claim as their reservation, but which really is government land. A large delegation of settlers has arrived and they say they were driven from their farms by the Indians, who threatened to kill them if they returned. The Indians forcibly took possession of their homes and property. The settlers are preparing to go back armed and drive out the Indians.

BUREAU ANTICIPATES NO TROUBLE.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The Kalispell Indians, over whose lands a dispute has arisen with white settlers, are regarded by the Indian bureau officials as quiet and peaceable, and no serious trouble with the latter is anticipated here. The dispute over the lands is an old one and is due to the absence of surveys. Captain John Hedd, Indian agent, notified the Indian bureau last May that white settlers were encroaching on the Indian lands and was instructed to go where the encroachments had been made and warn the white settlers to keep off the lands. The trouble arises directly from the fact that some settlers were granted land that laps on the reservation.

COLLECTING TAX FROM INTRUDERS.
CHICKSAW, I. T., Aug. 27.—Governor Mosley of the Chickasaw nation, accompanied by a body of Indian police, arrived here today to collect the 1 per cent. tax on the white intruders or put those who should refuse to pay it out of the territory. There is considerable excitement over the matter. It is difficult to tell the outcome, but it is believed that those who refused to settle will do so now.

HOVEY IS TENNIS CHAMPION.

Defeated Wrenn at Newport Yesterday in Three Straight Sets.
NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—The greatest tennis match of the year was played today, when the winner of all the comers' tournament, W. F. Hovey, met R. D. Wrenn, last year's champion, to decide the national championship. Hovey won in three straight sets and now is the champion of the United States. The score was: 6-3, 6-2, 6-4. The odds were 10 to 6 in Wrenn's favor. He was fresh for the match, while Hovey had been playing every day of the tournament. All society turned out and five thousand persons were present. Both men played a careful game. In the third set a drizzling rain set in, making it very disagreeable for the players.

ONLY A FEW AFFECTED.

Report of Poisoning at La Porte Picnic Grossly Exaggerated.
LA PORTE, Ind., Aug. 27.—The reported poisoning of a large number of people from this city and from different parts of the country who partook of the picnic dinner served at the German Lutheran mission festival held at Tracey proves to have been greatly exaggerated. While many were taken severely sick they at no time were in a dangerous condition and as far as can be learned nearly all who were affected have about recovered. The cause of the poisoning is attributed to water provided which had been poisoned in some unknown manner.

RANSOM REAPPOINTED.

His Commission as Minister to Mexico Received at Washington.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The White House mail this morning bore the commission of Matt W. Ransom as United States minister to Mexico, dated Aug. 24. This ends the legal complication by which Ransom, after several months' service in the City of Mexico, was declared ineligible to the office because he had been appointed prior to the expiration of his term as senator. The accounting officers of the treasury declined to pay his salary on the ground that it had been increased while he was in congress.

RACING OFF AT HARLEM.

Officials Could Not Hold Successful Meeting in Face of Injunction.
CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—All racing at Harlem has been declared off. The track officials after a conference today decided that the injunction issued against them last Saturday makes further attempts at running the track impossible and all the stakes are accordingly declared off. The injunction was obtained by the Civic Federation from Judge Gibbons and while permitting racing forbids gambling.

WANT MEN TO STRIKE.
Ishpeming - Negaunee Miners' Union Committee Pays Visit to Bessemer.
BESSEMER, Mich., Aug. 27.—A committee from the striking miners from Negaunee and Ishpeming is here soliciting aid of their union and endeavoring to encourage a strike here out of sympathy.

Loescher Charged With Murder.
DENVER, Aug. 27.—Hollmuth P. Loescher, ex-engineer of the Gurney Hotel, was lodged in jail today. He insists that somebody else, probably Peter Gurney, and not he caused the explosion. The warrant on which Loescher is held charges him with murder.

BOSTON'S GREAT GALA DAY.

Eight Hundred Thousand People Witness the Grandest Pageant Ever Seen at the Hub.

OVER TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND KNIGHTS IN LINE.

Detroit Commandery Delights Spectators by Continuous Fancy Marching. The Grand Master's Address.
PARADE A WONDERFUL SIGHT.
BOSTON, Aug. 27.—All Boston is tonight discussing the greatest gala day the city has ever seen. For more than five hours the principal avenues were occupied by plumed Knights Templar and hundreds of thousands of spectators obligingly crowded onto the sidewalks to give them room, but now the populace is thronging in triumph over pavements which this afternoon echoed the marching of many feet, and the sight is almost as wonderful as the pageant was. It was nearly 6 o'clock when the last commandery had broken ranks at the foot of Washington street and traffic entirely resumed. All afternoon the street car system was almost entirely suspended, even in the streets through which the parade did not pass. When the cars did start up there was the greatest rush ever seen in Boston.

The day was a fine one, although very hot, and every one seemed to enjoy himself. There were none too many grandstands to accommodate the immense throng that clamored for seats, although almost every foot of available space along the line of march had been covered with platforms and seats. As soon as the parade was over there was a stampede for the d-pots and the evening trains were crowded to suffocation. This great exodus, however, seemed to make no appreciable difference in the size of the crowd, which still continued to fill every thoroughfare.

The Knights presented a splendid appearance on parade and with a few exceptions completed the entire line of march. As they passed the reviewing stands before Grand Commander McCurdy and Governor Greenhalge and later before Chief Marshal Lawrence and Mayor Curtis many of them executed intricate military evolutions which won the admiration of the thousands who witnessed them. These tactics were also introduced by the more proficient commanderies at intervals along the line of march. Great admiration was expressed at the appearance of the California and other western delegations.

The evening was given up by the Knights to general merrymaking. There were banquets and receptions, galore and at every headquarters open house was the order. The conclave was officially opened by exercises in the Masonic Temple immediately after the close of the parade. Tomorrow the serious business of the conclave will be in order.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS SEE PARADE.
About eight hundred thousand people saw the parade of over twenty-five thousand Knights Templar today. With one accord they pronounced it the grandest pageant ever witnessed in Boston. The head of the line reached the reviewing stand at Blackstone's square at 11:45. At this point carriages conveying Most Eminent Sir McCurdy, grand master, and officers of the grand encampment dropped out of line and their occupants joined Governor Greenhalge in the reviewing stand, where for five hours they viewed the marching Knights.

The first division as it passed the stand was by far the most attractive and picturesque and contained the greatest variety of features. Washington commandery of Washington, D. C., was preceded by a most picturesque body of musicians, the Mount Pleasant field band of Washington, composed entirely of young boys dressed as zouaves. Boston commandery was the strongest in number, having three hundred men in line. It was followed by the Detroit commandery, which delighted the spectators by a continuous exhibition of fancy marching.

Apollo commandery of Chicago, which led the tenth division, made up of over thirty-five hundred from Illinois, attracted the most attention in their division and applause greeted them on every side. The California delegations in the division immediately following the Illinois Knights were among the most conspicuous in the entire procession. The twelfth and thirteenth divisions were greeted by the tireless spectators with as much enthusiasm as was the first delegation. The states of Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota all made brilliant displays and vied with each other in the variety of their marching movements and music.

GRAND MASTER MCCURDY'S ADDRESS.
On calling the grand encampment together after the parade, Grand Master McCurdy delivered his address, a synopsis of which follows:
Officers and Sir Knights of the grand encampment of Knights Templar of the United States of America.—In the name of noble and chivalrous ancestry I bid you welcome to the twenty-sixth triennial conclave of our magnanimous order. I bring you glad tidings of peace and prosperity from all parts of the Templar kingdom. Tidings of a largely increased membership, more devotion to Masonic life, a greater enthusiasm in our work, an ever deepening loyalty to the sublime principles of Templar Freemasonry.
Peace hath her victories not less renowned than war. The deeds of valiant Knights of ancient days are celebrated in song and story; but never assembled a serried host on battle field or followed the flaming beaumont to the fair city of the sepulchre a nobler band of chivalrous Knights than this vast army of good men and true who have assembled here in this beautiful city of St. Botolph, with hearts attuned to the impulses of man's better nature and the instinctive yearnings of man's better self. The atmosphere of this

TELLS A WOMAN'S STORY.

Written for Eyes of Other Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

There is inestimable pleasure in doing good to others, and joy in a grateful recognition of the act.

On the old York Road, Huntington Park, Philadelphia, dwells Miss M. Downs, whose portrait we give. She desires that her case may be stated as a means of benefiting others.

She says: 'Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of kidney trouble, painful menstruations, and headaches. It is truly a wonderful medicine. I cannot describe my feelings before I took it. The pain in my back was dreadful, and during menstruations the agony I suffered nearly drove me wild; and then my head would ache for a week, and now this is all over, thanks to your good remedy. I trust my testimonial will lead others to take it and be cured. They can find it at any drug store. Our druggist says the demand for it is very large, it is helping so many sickly women.'

HOUGHTON WOMAN MISSING.

Mrs. Philip Scheuermann, Jr., Has Not Been Seen Since Last Monday Night.

VISITED AT FRIEND'S HOUSE AND LEFT AT 9:30.

Her Home Only Little Over Mile Away but No Trace of Her Has Been Found—Notes.

[All communications intended for this department should be addressed to Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Mich. Telephone connection.]

HOUGHTON.

Mrs. Philip Scheuermann, Jr., disappeared on Monday night and much anxiety is felt as to her whereabouts by her friends. Mrs. Scheuermann was visiting Mrs. John Nelson, who lives near the electric light plant, just west of the bridge, and left the home of the Nelsons at 9:30 Monday evening to walk home. The distance is about a mile and a half and the road a frequented one. Mrs. Scheuermann was apparently in good health and spirits and nothing out of the ordinary course had been noted in her action or conversation. Since she left the doors bidding goodby to Mr. and Mrs. Nelson no trace has been found of her. An active search is being prosecuted and will doubtless result in clearing up the mystery in a short time.

The postponed regatta of the Onigaming club will be sailed next Monday afternoon over the usual course. As Monday is a legal holiday all members who are desirous of attending can easily be present. The racing will begin immediately after the arrival of the afternoon train of the South Shore at the clubhouse grounds.

The small house belonging to Charles King of Lake Linden, situated on Montezuma street west, has been moved back by the village authorities. The house stood on the street line and prevented the building of a sidewalk, but Mr. King has donated the strip of land required to give the street its full width in consideration of the removal of his house at the expense of the village.

Will J. Ryan concluded a two-months visit with friends and relatives in Houghton county on Tuesday morning, when he left for Denver via Duluth on the steamer China.

George Wallace has taken a contract to raise the sunken coal, several hundred tons in amount, belonging to Harry Northey, which went down through the breaking of the old village dock six weeks ago.

George Sheldon left on the China Tuesday morning for a business visit to Duluth.

CALUMET.

The statement appearing in the last issue of the Red Jacket Tribune to the effect that the beginning of actual mining on a large scale might take place at an early date at the Red Jacket shaft is not warranted by the circumstances of the case. It will be one to two years before the Red Jacket shaft is operated with a view to producing copper. The new engines and boilers are all in place, but the engines are not yet in full working order and it will also be necessary to build a new shaft house, as the present structure is a temporary one of the roughest description. Work on the new shaft and rock house will be begun in the spring and the building cannot well be erected and equipped inside of a year, as it will be the largest ever put up and fitted with powerful crushers and all appliances for economical handling of the large quantities of rock which the shaft will at some time produce. The Red Jacket is the only vertical shaft on the property of the Calumet & Hecla company, the other openings being all on the outcrop of the conglomerate and following the dip of the vein, and the vertical shaft was begun and has been sunk simply as a measure of precaution. In case of fire or other accident resulting in the crippling of the older workings a new mine will be there to furnish rock for the mills. It is more than probable that the work of development will be carried on for a long time before any attempt is made to produce large quantities of copper, so that if necessary a very large force of miners could be set at work stopping at a day's notice.

According to the statement of President Agassiz at the annual meeting of the Calumet & Hecla is now developed ahead for eleven years. Opening for eighteen months work is done every year and vast areas of ground known to be rich in copper have never been touched and will not be opened for many years to come. It is doubtful if any man now living will survive to see the end of the Calumet & Hecla mine. 'Cinderella,' a pleasing little operetta, was given to large audiences on Monday and Tuesday evenings at the Red Jacket Opera House by a large number of children under the direction of Miss Carrie Rose. After Sept. 1 the delivering of parcels by the Western Express company will be done by Richard Brimmacombe, the route agent, and the express run on the night trains will be discontinued. A new rig and horse have been sent here for the use of the express company. The Rechabites expect a large attendance at their big celebration to be given here on Sept. 15, and are making extensive preparations for that day. A. H. Hadley, who had a very narrow call from a complication of appendicitis and other serious intestinal troubles, is now entirely out of danger and will recover his full strength within a few weeks. The agency for the town of Lake View real estate has been placed with W. H. Faucett, as Mr. Charles Page is now located at Pickford, Chippewa county, and is unable to attend to the details of business here. Livingstone Wareham left Tuesday for Great Falls, Montana, where he will be employed. Mrs. John Bagley and daughter of Chicago are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Anderson. Dr. J. A. Bobb, who has been taking the waters of Mt. Clemens for rheumatic troubles, will be on duty at the hospital shortly after Sept. 1. Mrs.

WAYS OF THE ELEPHANTS.

A Very Small Eater for Such a Large Animal. Considering the enormous strength an elephant is able to exert for hours at a time, and the small amount of food necessary to maintain his immense energy, one realizes that in this curious animal nature has provided a most economical machine. A hundred pounds of hay every twenty-four hours is all that an elephant eats, with the exception of twenty-five pounds of bran every Sunday. Four horses eat one hundred pounds of hay every day, and require a large quantity of oats besides. But one elephant will do more work than twenty horses. Many a time in the history of the Barnum show it has happened in rainy weather that the big rhinoceros wagon, weighing seven tons, has sunk so deep in the mud that four teams of eight horses each have strained vainly in their harness trying to extricate it. Then word has been sent to George Conklin, the elephant trainer, and Babe or Mandy has come shuffling up, and with a single push from the base of its trunk lifted the stranded wagon out of the mire. An elephant will do the work of a steam engine at a cost of two dollars a day for fuel in the shape of hay and all the water he wants to drink. Although small eaters, elephants are great drinkers, requiring about fifty buckets of water each day. They are usually watered at half-past seven o'clock in the morning and two in the afternoon. Three or four of them are led out at the same time and allowed to drink from a large tub, into which a hose discharges from a big water cart. It is a strange sight to see them drink. The long trunks are first lowered into the water, which is sucked up until they are full. Then the trunk is curved back into the mouth, and the water, amounting to about a bucketful, is discharged into the big pink cavity, usually without spilling a drop. Elephants are not only great water drinkers, but they love to be in the water, and can swim all day without fatigue. When a circus is on the road it is customary, whenever water is available, to let the herd enjoy a wash and a swim, the only trouble being that it is not always easy to get them to leave the water. The keepers allow only a few of the animals to swim at one time, and adopt the precaution of keeping a chain fastened to one of the legs, so that in case of rebellion the end of this chain can be made fast to another elephant on the bank and the truant animal dragged ashore whether he will or not. Although the elephants are regular water dogs, and can swim for many miles without fatigue, cold water chills them very quickly and seems to overcome their powers. An unfortunate instance of this sort occurred in 1877, when the winter quarters of the Barnum show at Bridgeport were destroyed by fire. A great many of the animals were burned to death, while others escaped into the surrounding country, among these latter being the elephant Rachel, who ran rampeting down to the beach wild with terror. So frightened was she that she plunged into the bay, regardless of the bitter season, and began swimming straight out to sea. The lighthouse people saw her plunging along, a mile and a half out, but she soon began to swim feebly, and presently her efforts relaxed, and she went down, overcome by the cold. The next morning her body drifted ashore, and is still preserved in the Bridgeport museum. When in the water elephants swim very low, and frequently let themselves sink down entirely beneath the surface. They are fond of splashing about with their trunks and blowing up great streams of water like fountains. A big elephant swimming out at sea might easily be mistaken for a whale. There is more danger in taking care of elephants than is generally supposed. Strangers are especially liable to mishaps, largely because they think the elephant is much easier to understand than is really the case. The day before Barnum's circus appeared in New York last spring one of the big elephants caught a new hand in his trunk, twisted his body between his huge tusks, snapping his leg, and with an easy toss hurled him against the wall of the building with such violence that the man lay in a hospital for two months afterward. An experienced keeper never trusts an elephant or allows himself to be taken off his guard. More than one poor fellow, new at the business, has paused in his work of feeding or cleaning for a chat with a companion, only to have the talk of laughter interrupted by a sudden seizure in the powerful trunk—an experience no man ever forgets, if he survives it. Old trainers say that the attendants sometimes make the mistake of being too kind to elephants. It is always dangerous for a keeper to give dainties to his elephants, and even the general public in doing so are fortunate in having a railing between themselves and the formidable trunks. The elephants have retentive memories, and having once received an apple or handful of peanuts from a person, they expect the same attention when that person passes again. And not receiving it, they are apt to reach out their trunks in well-meant, but dangerous reminder. A new keeper, for instance, having been in the habit of giving an elephant some tidbits, passes by hurriedly, intent on something else, and forgets his usual attention. But the elephant does not forget. Out shoots the ponderous trunk. The animal means no harm, perhaps, but the result is that the keeper has several ribs broken, his spine fractured, or his internal organs deranged. There is much similarity between an elephant's well-meant caress and the blow of a pile driver. —Gold and silver are much more extensively used in the west than in the east. On the Pacific coast the gold and silver almost supplant the paper money as a circulating medium.

FOUND THE LOST SHIRTS.

Judge Black put on his best over his Sooted Undergarments. Kirtland White, better known as 'Kirt,' has lived for over forty years in the pretty little city of York, Pa., which was also the home of the late Judge Jeremiah S. Black. Mr. White was a personal friend of the judge, and they used to make many trips to this city together and invariably stayed at the Astor house. Mr. White was at this hotel one night recently and got to speaking of his old friend, Judge Black, who, he said, was the most absent-minded man he ever met. Mr. White went on: 'Whenever the judge and I arranged to start off on a trip together, Mrs. Black used to tell me to be sure and see that the judge paid his hotel bills. He generally forgot to do so unless somebody reminded him of it. Sometimes the clerks in the hotels would suggest that he owed something just as he was about to depart, but more often they wouldn't, and the bill would remain unpaid until he visited the hotel again. These things annoyed his good wife very much. When we were returning after one of our trips the judge would often say to me: 'Bless my soul, Kirt, I don't believe I paid my bill at that hotel. What will they think of me?'

'Oh, that's all right. I settled things,' I would reply. The judge would then insist on paying me back immediately, and when we got home I could make a clean report to his wife. 'Why, I remember,' said one of the clerks, who has been with the Astor house for many years, 'that one day I handed Judge Black a telegram. He took it, and, after reading the address, 'Judge Jeremiah S. Black,' on the envelope, he handed it back to me remarking that it couldn't be for him, but that it must be for somebody else of the same name, as he didn't recognize the handwriting. 'The story of the shirts, however,' put in Mr. White, 'is the best one of all, and Mrs. Black told it herself. She said that one time the judge had to go away alone on a week's trip, so she put some things into a valise for him, including three clean shirts. When the judge got home again, she opened the valise and was surprised to find but one shirt in it, and that was a soiled one. 'Gracious me, judge!' she exclaimed, 'what have you done with your shirts?'

'I'm sure I don't know, my dear,' he replied, 'aren't they in the valise?'

'No, they are not,' said Mrs. Black, 'and they were new ones, too. 'Well, the mystery of the lost shirts was not cleared up until the judge went to bed that night. It was then discovered that he had worn the lost shirts, one over the other. When he wanted a clean shirt he had evidently forgotten to take the one he was wearing off. Mrs. Black used to say that had the judge stayed away longer and had more shirts with him he would undoubtedly have had them all on when he finally got home.'—N. Y. Tribune.

Bobby's Garden. Bobby—I have just finished digging and raking my garden and now I want five cents. Mamma—What, five cents for making your garden? 'No, mamma, not for making the garden, but to buy a package of succotash seed.'—Harper's Round Table.

SENATOR QUAY IS ON TOP.

Caucus Develops That He Has Seven Delegates More Than He Needs.

FOLLOWERS DECIDE TO HOLD A SEPARATE CONVENTION.

Endeavor Being Made to Patch Up Trace but the Prospects for Two Conventions Are Bright

THE FIGHT FOR SUPREMACY.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 27.—The anxiously anticipated caucuses of the two factions of the state Republican party was held tonight and the results thereof make it appear certain that Senator Quay has a majority of legally elected delegates and has therefore won the fight.

The day was one of intense excitement and tonight the streets and public places are jammed with the adherents of the two factions, shouting the names of their favorites.

Aside from the announcement that Quay has a majority of the delegates and that there will probably be two conventions, the feature of the day was the capture of the opera house, where the convention will be held, by the anti-Quay people.

Tomorrow's convention is to select candidates for state treasurer and superior judgeships.

The state committee met again tonight at 11:30 o'clock and received from the Quay caucus a request for a separate convention tomorrow.

The anti-Quay leaders are claiming there were 153 delegates at their caucus tonight, although there was no roll call, and that the Quay people had worked the old trick of answering to the names of delegates who were not present.

THE SIOUX CITY TRAGEDY.

Alleged Murderers of Max Noack and Ora Minton Arrested.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Aug. 27.—Late this afternoon warrants were sworn out charging Maud Hoyle and Barry, a pugilist who formerly lived in Omaha, with murder in the first degree and they were both placed under arrest.

The officers have become convinced that Max Noack and Ora Minton, alias Hazel Hammond, were killed by a third person, whose identity is yet unknown, for the purpose of robbery.

The coroner's jury continued its investigation today and the most sensational testimony was that given by Detective Brott, whose evidence pointed to a most cold blooded and brutal double murder.

On the top of the partition separating the room in which the tragedy occurred from the next he found the imprints of a man's hand and the dust of the ceiling had been brushed off as if by some one who had escaped from the room in this manner. After climbing over this partition it would have been easy for the murderer to have escaped down the back stairway into the alley.

Maud Hoyle, proprietress, of the house in which the tragedy occurred, kept continually contradicting herself while on the witness stand but gave the police little information of value.

APPEAL FOR PROTECTION.

Turkish Troops Are Again Attacking Armenian Villages.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 27.—Advices received from Erzinghan say that great terror prevails among the Armenians in that vicinity over the attitude of the Turkish authorities. The latter, in consequence of an attack which was recently made by brigands upon a Turkish colonel, during which several members of his escort were killed, are believed to be taking steps which will have a most serious consequence.

The Valkyrie Takes a Spin. NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The British cup challenger Valkyrie III took her first trial spin in American waters today and clearly showed herself a powerful boat, but how powerful it was impossible to judge under the conditions of the trip, although the Vigilant ran beside her for a time.

Queer Way of Showing Love. ITASCA, Tex., Aug. 27.—John Brown, living with W. G. Booker, tonight murdered Nellie Booker, thirteen years old, cutting her throat with a razor. He then walked into his own room and cut his own throat from ear to ear. He was in love with the girl.

Nine Strikers Arrested. ROCKFORD, Ills., Aug. 27.—The striking furniture workers became boisterous on Seventh street tonight, attacking innocent people. Nine of them are now under arrest.

BOSTON'S GREAT GALA DAY.

city is laden with the spirit of all that gives life and permanency to civility. Here is that noble architecture which Lowell called the element of patriotism, and an eminent one of culture. Boston is the "front door of America—the American Athens." Well, might Lowell say, "See Boston and see before me, Sir Knights, many new faces. I have heard many voices never heard in triennial convolve before. I have clasped in fraternal greeting many a hand untouched hitherto."

At the last convolve of this grand body, it gave its official sanction to the observance of Christmas day by Knights Templar either in their individual capacity, or as commanderies; the seat of honor was prepared by Eminent Sir Stephen Berry of Portland, Maine, and the response by the grand master, the same to be sent to all grand and constituent commanderies throughout the grand encampment.

At our last convolve a committee of five consisting of Past Grand Master Hopkins, Past Grand Master Fellows and Eminent Sir Isaac, Tellers and Junes were appointed to revise the constitution, code of statutes, etc., and to report the same to this convolve. I have given this report a good deal of thought and am satisfied that the committee has faithfully performed its duty.

We have, Sir Knights, a noble order of growth of which we may be justly proud. In 1816, when this grand body was formed, there were only eight commanderies, or encampments, as they were then called—only five hundred Knights Templar in the United States.

At our last convolve we have had a most gratifying report of the growth and prosperity of our order.

In concluding his address Grand Master McCurdy said: "We have, Sir Knights, a noble order of growth of which we may be justly proud. In 1816, when this grand body was formed, there were only eight commanderies, or encampments, as they were then called—only five hundred Knights Templar in the United States."

At our last convolve we have had a most gratifying report of the growth and prosperity of our order.

We are called to be knights—not of the old, but of the new chivalry. The essence of this chivalry is to care for the little ones. Its command to every Sir Knight is, use your power to bless the little ones—the widows and orphans, the aged and the infirm, the poor, the tired man in the shop, the overworked woman in the kitchen—these are our little ones, these all challenge our chivalry. To rescue manhood and womanhood from their graves; honor, virtue, and civility from their sepulchre—this is the duty-calling of the Sir Knight—a warfare more than that which summons our ancient fathers to battle fields or toll-some journeys.

Again, Sir Knights, I welcome you to the triennial convolve. I congratulate you upon the esteemed privilege of assembling in this historic city. Let us be profoundly thankful for the past, hopeful for the future, and if the past has done its best for us, then are we prepared to receive the good things in store for us. The golden age of Templarism is not in the past, but in the future. Faithful sentinels upon the watch-tower of Knighthood, what of the night! What of the morn! You are here to answer these questions. Ponder well your words, weigh well your actions. Let that be the cry of our hearts, "In God we trust, your God and our God."

And now, my fraters, standing as I now do for the last time in this relation to your presence, about to surrender forever the exalted position which for years it was my high ambition to occupy, if you have found anything in me, personal, mercenary, selfish, unworthy the noble Templar ideal, forgive it, forget it. If in me you have found devotion to a lofty purpose, imitate it, better it. With profound gratitude to Almighty God for His tender mercies; with a God bless you for each and every one of you, my fraters, for their faithful service, and a God-speed you for him who shall succeed me, I retire. I say goodbye with a patriotic, a private and individual joy, with a consciousness compared with which all human words of praise are but as the light dust of the balance.

After Grand Master McCurdy's address addresses of welcome were delivered by Right Eminent Sir Samuel C. Lawrence, grand commander, Knights Templar of Massachusetts, and Mayor Curtis and Governor Greenhalge, to which Grand Master McCurdy responded. The reports of the grand recorder and grand treasurer followed.

SEVERAL ACCIDENTS REPORTED. The day was intensely hot. Many women and children were overcome in the dense throngs and scores of Knights who started dropped out of line. Ambulances from police stations and emergency hospitals were busy at the time. The most serious accident reported was to Miss Lillian Dudley, who was crushed in the crowd and seriously injured. There is a competition of a most lively sort between the Pittsburg and Philadelphia commanderies to secure the triennial convolve of 1898.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS FREQUENT

They Have Been Felt Every Day for a Year at a Mexican Town.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 27.—Scientists are greatly interested in phenomena occurring in the town of Pinotep, state of Oaxaca, where since Nov. 2 last year not a day has passed without earthquake shocks. The people have abandoned their stone houses and are living in huts made of wood and matting. Great alarm prevails, for each daily shock is preceded by ominous roarings under the sea, which is only twelve miles distant. There is much seismic activity observable at various points in southern Mexico, and subterranean roaring at Tehuacan, state of Puebla. The recurring shocks of earthquake make it seem probable that another volcano is forming.

DIXON GOT DECISION.

But Griffin Made It Lively for the Colored Champion.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—George Dixon, the colored lightweight boxer of Boston, was given a decision tonight over Johnny Griffin, the "Braitree Lad," at the end of a twenty-five round match held under the auspices of the Farragut club. The decision was a surprise to the majority of the three thousand people present. It having been generally understood there was to be no decision if both men were on their feet at the end of the twenty-fifth round unless, perhaps, there should be a decided difference in the condition of the boxers. Both men were certainly in very good condition at the end of the twenty-fifth round, although Dixon had done the better work of the two. Griffin surprised his friends by the good manner in which he took Dixon's punishment and they confidently expected a draw.

PASSENGERS' NARROW ESCAPE

Attempt to Wreck Train Only Results in Derailment of Engine.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 27.—Attempt was made to wreck the Oregon & Northern passenger train two miles out from Tekon last evening. The engineer saw a pile of boulders on the rails. He reduced his speed, so the obstruction only threw the engine off the track, wrecking it. The intention of the wreckers was apparently to hurl the train into the creek, twenty-five feet below, but whether for the purpose of robbery or revenge is not known. Over two hundred delegates to the Epworth league convention here were aboard the train.

—The Roman Catholic church in the United States claims a membership of 2,250,045, and owns property valued at $118,381,516. This denomination holds 3,763 church buildings, sent 3,396,633 people, and, in addition, worships in 1,469 halls and other places, having a seating capacity of 69,150.

"My face is my fortune, sir," she said. "Er—excuse me, madam, but you can't really mean it," rejoined the astonished male. "Certainly, I'm the lady with the iron jaw in the dime museum."—Washington Star.

Mrs. C. F. Rowe of Duluth is here on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Parker of 611 Front street.
Mrs. N. C. Rooney and daughter Nina of Ashland reached the city yesterday and are at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Hoar, 911 Pine street.
Pupils of the public schools who wish to take examinations for promotion will report at the Ely building at 9 o'clock Friday morning with pencil and paper.
The Pease and Planet arrived yesterday with cargoes of coal for the South Shore road. The railway, having no ore to haul in consequence of the strike, is burning much less coal than usual at this season.
The only iron ore now being shipped from this port is out of the Republic mine, where the men refused to join the strike. The Forest City and McGregor cleared Monday night with cargoes from the Republic.
Miss Josephine Gaffney left yesterday afternoon for Detroit and Ann Arbor, at which latter place she will remain for some time. Quite a contingent of her friends was at the train to bid her farewell.
The hop at the Hotel Superior pavilion last night was not very largely attended, the moist and sultry weather acting as a discouragement to dancing. But those present had quite a pleasant evening and found the temperature much cooler there than down town.
There will be a free stereoscopic exhibition this evening in front of the Hotel Marquette. Over three hundred views, consisting in part of scenes from the Holy Land and other interesting regions, will be shown. The exhibition is free and will be both amusing and instructive.
Delmar J. Charlan, in charge of the filling room at the Dead River mill on the night shift, had the thumb of his left hand severely lacerated about 9 o'clock this morning by the bursting of an emery wheel which he was dressing. He will be laid up for some days but will not lose the member.
An individual with an overload of jag water got into a wrangle with the lunch counter man at Higgins & Bargren's restaurant last night. The police gave him a chance to go home but he would not take it and used foul language. In consequence he was reposed in the cooler and will have a chance to liquidate in court today.
After the concert Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Volk gave a very pleasant informal reception at the New Clifton to Miss Gaffney and about a score of her more intimate friends, including all the performers at the concert who were not obliged to leave on the night train. A delicious supper was served at 11 o'clock and the whole occasion was a most enjoyable one.

THE SPHINX.
BY FRANCIS C. WILLIAMS.
"Well, of all the days this has been the worst I ever saw!" grumbled Campbell, the city editor, as he gave the copy-boy a "padded" story of a cable-car smash-up, and wheeled about in his desk-chair and addressed the office in general and no one in particular. "Ten o'clock and only two display heads up, and neither of them worth its place. How much'll that shipping story make, Harris?"
"I can fill it out to half a column," answered the person to whom he was speaking. "Make all you can of it. We'll need every bit we can get."
"Got a good story here, Mr. Campbell, how much space can I have?" he asked, stripping off his coat.
"All you want," returned the city editor, a half smile replacing the frown his face had worn. "Now, that's what I call luck!" he added. "What's it about?"
"You remember the Kremer murder?"
"Yes, well enough."
"Well, they've got them; at least, they think they have. The police in the Twenty-third precinct arrested a fellow to-day who turned out to be Boeh, the German who was with Kremer the night the murder occurred; and the circumstantial evidence is strong, they say. Let's see; how long ago was it that the murder happened? Twelve years, I think."
"Just about," said Campbell, mentally checking off the time. "It ought to make a good yarn. Do your best with it."
Marsh nodded and fell to work. For a time only the scratching of a pen broke silence in the room. Then the city editor suddenly said: "I say, Marsh, s'pose you see the Sphinx about that story. Ten to one, he has something filed away about it. If he has and can give a good history of the crime, let him do it. You do the story of the arrest and make it as circumstantial as you can. We'll see if we can't save that front page from stagnation somehow."
"All right," answered Marsh, as he dropped his pen and rose from his seat. "Perhaps the old man can give us a beat on the story," he jokingly added, as he turned to go.
The city editor laughed. The idea of the Sphinx supplying such a thing as a "beat" was too absurd to take seriously, for he had never been anything but a machine, grinding out ad-vertisements and obituary notices in non-parallel type since he became a member of the Globe staff three years before. He was, according to his fellow laborers, a "queer lot." None of them professed to know him better after that lapse of time than when he first came among them and was given charge of the newspaper clippings, which were filed away daily and made use of again whenever a new event recalled an old subject.
Spirited and silent, always faithfully executing what was given him to do, but never offering a suggestion, and in no instance mingling in the amusements or conversation of his companions, he had been dubbed the Sphinx before he was in the office a week, and the sobriquet had clung to him and seemed thoroughly to fit him.
John Hardin was the way he was entered on the pay-roll, and the most that anyone knew of him was that he lived by himself in a bare room near the Globe building and took his meals at a neighboring eating-house. He seemed to have no relatives and no acquaintances, except of the nodding sort.
Marsh walked over to the little cubbyhole of a room the Sphinx occupied, quietly opened the door and stepped inside. For all the jokes they were made at Hardin behind his back, there was a certain something about him which compelled respect when they were in his presence. And so Marsh, when this man looked up from some clippings over which he was bending, said, almost in the same tone he used in addressing the dreaded magazine editor: "Mr. Hardin, I have the story of an arrest here which Mr. Campbell thought you might have some information upon."
"What is it, Mr. Marsh?" asked Hardin, reaching for his register wherein he had, alphabetically arranged, the titles of the subjects with which his bureau of clippings dealt.
"It's a murder," answered Marsh; "the Kremer murder."
Hardin had raised the book from the table. It fell with a bang on the floor. But he instantly stooped and picked it up, and began to fumble over the pages. "The Kremer murder?" he said, in his quiet tones. "Yes, I must have something about that here."
He continued to run over the pages, and Marsh noticed that he twice stopped short of the letter K, under which he should have sought for the information wanted. Marsh was impatient to get back to his own work.
"Well, if you're pretty sure you have something about it, Mr. Hardin," he said, "Mr. Campbell would like you to furnish half a column, or a column, if you can, on the history of the crime. I must go back to my own story. They've arrested Boeh, the fellow who did the murder, they say, and they'll end in hanging him, of course; the circumstantial evidence is strong. The Kremer murder, remember! It occurred about twelve years ago, didn't it?"
"No," replied Hardin, "not twelve; eleven years ago to-night. That is, I think it was to-night eleven years ago. The murder made a great impression on my mind. It was a hellish crime; wasn't it?"
"Bad, as murders go, I guess," returned Marsh, lightly, wondering at this sudden spurt of loquacity on the other's part. "Well, I'll leave you."
Hardin did not reply. He was fumbling over his book again. Marsh walked up to the city editor's desk. "The Sphinx must have something wrong in his head to-night," he remarked, "or else he's rapidly going into his dotage."

"The point is, can he furnish the history of the murder?" Campbell interrupted, impatiently. He was engaged in blue-penciling a story of a society meeting.
"He thinks he can," answered Marsh. "Then don't bother yourself about his infirmities," admonished the other; "and take a brace on that story of your own! It's close to eleven o'clock."
Marsh returned to his place and resumed his scribbling industriously.
The Sphinx in his room was still going over the pages of the register. But he was not looking among the K's. It was through the long list of names beginning with H that he hunted. "It must be here!" he kept murmuring to himself. "It ought to be here! Why can't I find it?"
Then he ran the pages over again. They fluttered from his withered fingers—winding sheets on which were written the names of those dead and gone, of events recollection of which had long since faded from the minds of most men. But they did not yield the name he sought. "It's strange," he said. "This is a complete record; it has never been wanting before. Why can't I find it? They must have known about it when it happened."
Then, all at once, one of his hands slipped from the book, and his head dropped among the leaves, crushing them flat; and tears ran between the thin fingers outspread there.
He remained there for some time. Only the clicking of the telegraph instrument in the news room, a dull hum of voices from the rooms beyond where a discussion was going on, and an occasional question asked and answered in the local room came to his ears; and even those he did not hear. Then a bell began to boom the hour, and mechanically he counted the strokes.
Eleven o'clock! The fact, dully impressed on his mind, awoke him to a sudden sense of the work before him. He raised his head. His face was drawn, and his eyes, swollen as their lids were from tears, seemed to have sunk in their sockets. He sat for a moment, looking at the book before him. The leaf that was uppermost was one that he had scanned many times before. At its top was printed the letter H.
A minute later he had drawn a large bundle of copy-paper toward him and was writing on it. He wrote slowly at first, almost laboriously. But soon his pen moved more quickly, and sheet after sheet of the paper was covered and pushed to one side.
Hardin's pen moved unceasingly. When midnight struck he was working with a fierce energy which told of a purpose that defied fatigue. But he sent up no "copy" to the composing-room as he wrote; the pages accumulated on his desk in a careless heap.
It was after 1:30 when he dropped his pen and sank back in his chair for a minute. But it was only for a minute. Then he picked up the bundle of copy, roughly rearranged it, wrote "Use all—Insh" at the top of the first sheet, and sent it upstairs by a boy.
He put on his overcoat, turned off the incandescent light and walked into the local room and to the city editor's desk. "Mr. Campbell," he said, in a low voice, "I have to go out. I guess you won't need me any more?"
"No, not to-night," replied Campbell. "You've sent up a great story of that Kremer murder, Marsh tells me. Is it a beat?"
"Yes, it's a—beat," said the other. There was mingled sadness and bitterness in his tones.
"Good night," Campbell answered, not noticing anything.
"Good night," repeated Hardin.
Then he turned and walked toward the door. But in the doorway he paused, and then came back to Campbell's desk.
"Mr. Campbell," he said, earnestly. "I have never lied to you?"
"Why, no?" exclaimed Campbell in surprise.
"Well, and I'm not lying now. Remember, whatever you may think of me, I have told the truth."
"Of course!" said the city editor, Marsh's words recurring to him. Hardin certainly was losing his grip. The Sphinx turned away, and this time walked out the door and down the stairway to the street.
Half an hour later there was great excitement in the Globe office. The proof-reader sent down galley proofs covered with query marks, and along with it Hardin's copy. Campbell looked over it all and could not believe the evidence of his eyes. He took the proof and copy in to the managing editor, and they had a consultation.
Then, just as they had decided that it would be best to "kill" the whole of the story which Hardin had written, Marsh came in, in a state of new excitement, to call Campbell to the "phone. Some one wished to speak to him from police headquarters. What the city editor heard from there determined him to publish the article as it stood.
The account of the Kremer murder which the Globe presented on its first page that morning was the talk of the town. But it was not the story of the arrest of Boeh, the supposed murderer, that riveted attention. That much was common property among the dailies. It was the two columns in which was set forth the confession of a man who, for twelve long years, had borne the burden of his guilt and striven to live down a recollection that only grew more clear, and would not be forgotten. And then at last, when it could be endured no longer, and to tell it to others was the one relief, the Sphinx had unsealed his lips.
But Campbell, who, out of pity for the old man, went to the police headquarters that same morning to see him, found he was too late. Hardin's drawn face was more peaceful than it had ever been in life, and fear no longer looked from his eyes. A forgiving God had locked the Sphinx's lips again, and this time they were locked forever. —Godey's Magazine.

COMING UP RAPIDLY.

Water Steadily Rising in Ishpeming
Mines in Which Pumps
Are Idle.

MINERS STILL LEAVING FOR OTHER RANGES.

A Large Drilling Contract—Season's
Work Closed at Dead River Mill
Company's Hoist.

WATER RISING FAST.

The water in the mines where the pumps were stopped last week is rising quite rapidly. The exact depth of the water in the Lake Angeline mine is not known, as none of the men now working about the property have been permitted to go underground since the pumps were stopped. Superintendent Walters reported yesterday that the water was coming into the lower portion of the workings very rapidly. He has issued orders to the men employed about the place to not go into the mine under any circumstances whatever. The water is being permitted to take its own course and the result of the flood will be ascertained only after the mine is pumped out.

At the Cleveland Lake mine the lower level is completely filled and the water is now pouring into the second level. There are but three levels in this mine. The lower one is the smaller of the three and filled more rapidly than the others will. At the rate the water came into the bottom level it will be at least two or three weeks, or perhaps longer, before it rises to the top of the upper level. The two upper levels are quite large and will hold an enormous amount of water. As yet there are no indications that the water is injuring the mine, reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

The mine officials and mining engineers generally are of the opinion that the flooding of the mines will not injure them to any great extent. They feel certain that the workings will remain firm while flooded and that by taking proper steps in unwatering the workings and resuming operations danger of injurious consequences will be obviated.

Men Still Leaving Here.

Many of the Ishpeming strikers continue to leave for various parts of the country. Crowds assemble at the depots at the departure of every train to say good-bye to friends who are going away. It is observed that the better class of miners and mechanics predominate among those leaving here. Many of the men who held positions as foremen in the mines and timber bosses are seeking places elsewhere. It is too bad that such men are compelled to abandon the range, as it will be a hard matter to get them back again, even if the mines start up again in the near future. While here recently Joseph Sellwood remarked that he understood our best men were going away and that when they found places on the other ranges he felt certain they could not be easily induced to come back. He is of the opinion that the companies with whom they engage will make an effort to retain them, as it will be to their interest to do so.

Has a Big Contract.

M. E. Harrington and his son Louis will leave Ishpeming tonight for Eveleth, on the Mesaba range, where they have taken a contract to work eight tests with diamond drills. The borings will all be large ones and the contract will not be completed until perhaps some time next summer. Two drills are already at work and it is quite probable that another one will be started within the next few weeks. Mr. Harrington says the work is such that he will be unable to operate the drills during the colder part of the winter, consequently he will be delayed somewhat on that account. They are working for the Rocketteller syndicate.

Stopped Work at the Hoist.

The Dead River Mill company has stopped work at the hoist north of here for the present and a number of the men who were employed there came to Ishpeming Monday night. The men have all been paid off and they propose enjoying a quiet "celebration" for a few days before returning to the woods. They all have jobs awaiting them.

Will Manage the Business.

V. J. Payment, who has held the position of foreman in Needham Bros.' steam laundry here for some time past, will leave this week for Houghton, where he will assume the management of the new steam laundry recently started there by A. B. Scott. Payment has a thorough knowledge of the business, is a hard worker and will doubtless make the venture a success.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF

Diek Carter was in town yesterday. Presiding Elder Whalen of the Methodist church spent Monday in Ishpeming.

Mrs. Howard Pascoe returned yesterday from a visit to friends at Indianapolis, Ind.

Miss Anna Lacey has returned from a visit to Bay View and other places in the lower peninsula.

Agent Mills of the Cleveland-Cliffs company has been absent from the city the past couple of days.

Miss Coy, one of Ishpeming's new school teachers, arrived in the city from Crossville, Mich., yesterday.

The Ishpeming school team and the regular mine will play a game at the Union Park grounds tomorrow afternoon.

G. F. Bennett, J. M. Johnson, O. L. Davis and L. R. Stawson, prominent lumbermen of Bay City, were in Ishpeming yesterday.

The funeral of the late George Bargh will be held this afternoon, leaving the house at 1:45 sharp. Religious services will be held at Grace church.

Peter Hendrickson, who has conducted a retail meat market in Ishpeming for a number of years, has quit the trade. The business didn't pay, he says.

Dr. Warden, late of Ann Arbor, has entered the employ of Felch & Vandevanter of the Ishpeming hospital. Dr. Kean expects to leave for Kansas City soon after the first of the month.

William Malmborg has an excellent crop of potatoes this year. He is prepared to receive orders for fall delivery. All orders sent him by mail here or left at Ed LaLonde's store will receive attention.

Peter Paul has again assumed control of the mercantile tailoring business which he recently sold to A. E. Luty. He will be pleased to have his former patrons call on him at the old stand on First street.

J. Henry Williams will leave on Friday for Philadelphia, where he will attend the national convention of the Association of Letter Carriers. There will be seven or eight hundred delegates in attendance.

All the machinery, with the exception of one boiler, has been removed from the Cleveland Hematite mine engine house. The boiler is now being taken out and will be stored away with the rest of the machinery at the company's yard within a few days.

John A. Olson and Miss Mary Erickson were united in marriage Monday evening at their future home on Iron street. Rev. J. F. Borg, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, tied the nuptial knot. The ceremony was witnessed by a few intimate friends of the young couple.

The old buildings at the New York mine are being torn down and the material is being hauled away. These were the only thing left of the property, as the machinery, surface tracks, trestles, etc., were recently removed. The Jochim Hardware company bought the entire outfit, including buildings, etc.

Rev. Lindberg, late of Gotland, Sweden, preached at the Swedish Methodist church Sunday evening. He will remain here until next month, when he will go to St. Paul to attend the general conference to be held there. He expects to remain in this country and is desirous of locating somewhere in the upper peninsula.

PET SUPERSTITIONS.

Each Dear Creature Believed Only in Her Own.

"I tell you what," said the girl in huckleberry blue, "you can never find a four-leaved clover by looking for it, and if you did it wouldn't be any good."

"Why not?" asked the girl who was groping in the clover patch.

"It wouldn't bring you any luck. Now, I never look for one, but if I saw one—hello! there's one now."

"I think it's a shame!" said the girl who had been groping; "I went all over that very spot and never saw a sign of one. I'll never hunt for one again!"

"That's the way to find them," said Miss Huckleberry Blue, "with the luck in them."

"I don't believe in luck," remarked the Disappointed One severely.

"Oh, you don't? Then why wouldn't you open your umbrella when it rained the other day, without going from under the roof?"

"Oh, everybody knows its bad luck to put up an umbrella under a roof!"

"Thank goodness!" said the girl with freckles, "I haven't any use for signs and superstitions. Once! Look there, girl! a great black sp-d-e-r! Don't kill it for the world! You know the rhyme says:

"He that would live and thrive,
Must let a spider run alive."

Then the dear non-superstitious things gathered themselves up and settled off home.—Detroit Free Press.

Up to Date English. The other day, in a public place, two suburban school-mistresses fell into conversation with a precise and somewhat airy lady, not from Boston, who began to criticize the attainments of Boston teachers. "It is most extraordinary," she said, "what ignorant people they employ to teach school in Boston. Such English as they sometimes speak!" The two school-mistresses ventured to ask what unfortunate peculiarities she had observed in the English of Boston teachers. "Why, their pronunciation is so bad," she answered. "Just fancy—I heard a Boston teacher the other day say 'programme.'" The two teachers opened their eyes, wondering why people shouldn't say "programme." They hardly dared to ask, but the lady enlightened them. "When any one who had been to school at all," she added, "should know that it should be pronounced 'program!'"—Boston Transcript.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. QUITE A LOSS. The blacksmith shop on Gold street, owned by Humphrey Lucas, took fire Monday evening before 9 o'clock and was badly damaged.

THE BLIND WITNESS.

"Yes; I have been in many remarkable criminal trials. Probably the most remarkable was the Gorton murder case. The murderer itself was, so far as motive and the mode in which it was perpetrated are concerned, of a character common enough."

"These inquiries were made by me while I was making myself acquainted with the facts of the case before the assizes. The entire case against the prisoner had been laid by the crown before the magistrates at the preliminary investigation."

"My lord, my lord, that's the voice I heard in Burton Grove just before the murder. That's the man, and extending his right hand, he pointed in the direction of the foreman of the jury."

Nearly everything in the blacksmith shop and the store room was destroyed. The fire had such headway when the firemen got there that it was impossible to get anything out. Several wheels, boxes and various other parts of some new wagons which were just finished and ready to turn out were consumed.

"Gorton is a small village, about twenty miles from Barchester, the well-known manufacturing town in the Midlands." "On September evening, some fifteen years ago, the normal peace and quietude of the place was disturbed by the news that the dead body of a young lady had been found in Burton Grove."

"The last witness for the crown, and, therefore, the last witness in the case, was the blind man. His evidence was followed with intense interest by the crown court. He was asked by the counsel for the prosecution whether he had caught any of the words of the man and woman who passed along the footpath in the grove close to where he lay just before the shots were fired, and when he said 'Yes,' every ear in court was strained to catch his evidence of the conversation."

"All eyes were turned on the foreman of the jury. His face was livid; he nervously clenched the desk in front of him and, as if physically unable to remain standing, dropped heavily into his seat."

Mr. Lucas did not have any insurance on the building or its contents. He estimates his loss at about $3,000. He says his stock was lower than at any time in the past two years, therefore he considers himself reasonably lucky, as his loss might have been two or three times as heavy. The shop will be rebuilt and business resumed as soon as possible.

"The blind man immediately proceeded to Gorton, and gave information of what he had heard to the police, who, when they arrived at the grove, found the body of a young lady named Emily Dacey, with two bullet wounds in her head and close at hand a discharged revolver."

"What was said between the parties?" asked my learned friend. "As they passed me," replied the blind witness, "I heard the man say: 'But your father objects to the marriage,' and the lady said: 'Yes, and I do not mean to marry without his consent.'"

"Turner was immediately removed from the dock. Baron Graham, with characteristic imperturbableness, declared the court adjourned. The foreman of the jury—pallid and broken—groped his way rather than walked out of the building, avoided by everyone with instinctive apprehension."

Had Quite a Time. When the fire bell sounded Monday night, giving the alarm for the Lucas fire, there were anywhere from six to nine hundred persons packed into McDonald's opera house to hear Rev. Frank Hoyt's lecture on the Maccabees. At the first tap of the bell there was a great rush for the door. A number lost their heads and had it not been for some of the men present several might have been hurt.

"What is that?" No answer was given to his outcry, but he heard the tramping of the undergrowth, as if some one were rushing wildly from the spot. The blind man immediately proceeded to Gorton, and gave information of what he had heard to the police, who, when they arrived at the grove, found the body of a young lady named Emily Dacey, with two bullet wounds in her head and close at hand a discharged revolver."

"What sort of voice was the voice of the man in the grove that evening?" I asked with all the unconcern which I could assume. "But the judge and my learned brother on the other side and the jury—my learned friend—grasped at once the importance of the question. I saw that fact visible; the strained look of attention on all their faces as they breathlessly awaited the answer. The die was cast. However the answer might be—favorable or unfavorable to the prisoner at the bar—I saw I was bound, and would be obliged to pursue the matter to the end."

"Turner," said Grimshaw, "received her majesty's gracious pardon—for a crime he never committed. He went out to Canada, and I believe succeeded in making a considerable fortune. He acted very generously toward the blind witness, and I am told that he frequently sends money to relieve the necessities of the old man, whose evidence was the means of saving his life."—Tit-Bits.

Walking Out. A railroad man who came up from Green Bay yesterday morning reported that he has seen as many as twenty-five men from this section walking down the line during the past few weeks. These are doubtless men who are unable to pay railroad fare and took that means of getting out of this district. It is known here that several have taken that method of getting away since the strike has been on.

LOCAL LAONICS. Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Hall returned from their wedding tour in the east yesterday. Alderman Thomas Connors and wife are happy over the advent of a baby girl at their home.

"My lord, I said, turning to the judge, 'I should like the prisoner to speak a few words. I am sure you recognize how essential it is for the purpose of my cross-examination.'"

JUST APPROPRIATES. The Colored Race in Relation to Chickens and Things. "One point of unending annoyance we have to deal with," remarked a Memphis man the other day, "is the colored brother's familiarity with other people's goods. What they need they appropriate, they don't steal. I have an explanation for it. In slavery days he was a chattel, like the cotton and the chickens and the rice. They were practically on the same commercial plane and in this way a free and easy fellowship sprang up between the different chattels—the different properties of the master. He owned everything—and how could one chattel steal another chattel? Whatever mass owned was everybody's about the place. Now, we hardly would dare to raise general crops, because we would never know how much the darkeys would need when things got ripe. And they always take a heap more than they want."

LOCAL LAONICS. Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Hall returned from their wedding tour in the east yesterday. Alderman Thomas Connors and wife are happy over the advent of a baby girl at their home.

"The voice of the prisoner was, in its intense earnestness, shrill and piercing. It certainly was not a deep voice." "Well," said I, resuming my cross-examination of the blind witness, "is that like the man's voice you heard in the grove, before the shots were fired?"

"Certainly, certainly," said the judge. "Prisoner at the bar, be pleased to address a few words to me." "My lord," exclaimed the prisoner, in tones of the deepest feeling, "before God I protest that I am innocent of this crime."

"Here's what a Savannah man told me: 'Now, you take chickens, for instance. Millions a year are lost, 'appropriated,' right along. And the darkey is wholesale, indiscriminate in his raids. A white man, if he needs a chicken, will take the nearest hen-roost at night, find one and leave; but the darkey will go ten miles on a stormy night, sah, and clean the coop of every feather. That's a race difference. The white chicken thief is satisfied with having his immediate wants relieved, but when it's chicken the darkey sweeps the den. And the cash difference would make a big fortune every year to the south.'"

LOCAL LAONICS. Mrs. Shepherd of Ishpeming will be the attraction at the local Salvation Army barracks this evening. Alderman Connors and J. M. Perkins collided while riding their bicycles Monday night. Neither was hurt, but Perkins' wheel will need repairing.

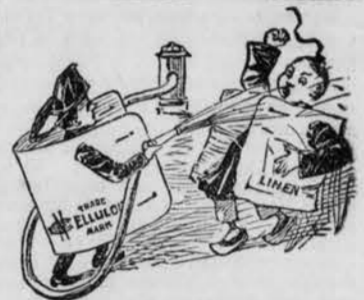

"The ticket collector at Gorton railway station swore that Turner returned to Barchester by the 9:30 train from Gorton—half an hour after the time of the murder; while the girl's father stated that his daughter had promised that, although she was unalterably attached to Turner, she would not marry him without her parents' blessing."

"I scrutinized the foreman of the jury again. He seemed to be laboring under the greatest agitation. When the judge had reviewed the evidence the jury retired; and after an hour's

"No way to stop it? Never heard of but one. John Allen, of Mississippi, put his hen house down on the borders of the old family burial ground on his place. He had no more trouble calling the roll of his chickens. You can't get a negro to monkey around a graveyard at night. But we can't all have cemeteries on our property.'"

IS ENLARGING ITS PLANT.

Standard Oil Will Make Marquette Distributing Point for the Upper Peninsula.

NEW TANK STEAMERS WILL RUN TO THIS PORT.

They Carry 10,000 Barrel Cargoes and Storage Tank of That Capacity Is Being Erected.

BOUGHT THE BROWNSTONE DOCK.

The Standard Oil company has begun the enlargement of its plant here and will make this the chief distributing point for the upper peninsula. The company has recently determined to apply to the great lakes the system of transporting and distributing oil in use for some years on the ocean. A fleet of tank steamers has been ordered and the first pair of them came out about sixty days ago. These steamers carry 10,000 barrels of kerosene at a cargo and are now running to fill the great storage tanks at Duluth and Superior. The next step is to erect storage tanks at other points for these steamers to fill and one will go in here and one at Portage Lake.

Heretofore the distributing point for the upper peninsula has been at Ishpeming, the oil coming to the storage tanks there in tank cars by way of Chicago. As soon as the new arrangements are completed the oil will come to Marquette in tank steamers and go into the 10,000 barrel tanks for which the foundations are now being laid in South Marquette. From this big storage tank cars will be filled and sent to points where they are wanted. Marquette has always been the head office for this district, sixteen minor offices reporting here and all books being kept here. With the change from rail to water for primary transportation this city will become the chief distributing point as well.

The Standard Oil company has purchased the old brownstone dock and another tract which together gives it a total water frontage of 287 feet. The foundations are now being laid for a storage tank of 10,000 barrel capacity. This tank will be of steel and will be 52 feet in diameter by 28 feet high. The company will also erect a warehouse 33 by 100 feet on its recently acquired property. This warehouse will be used for the storage of kerosene in barrels and other oils, which will still come here by rail. The present warehouse will be torn down but the office part will be moved to the new site. The present warehouse and office are on leased ground.

One result of the changes will be to increase somewhat the force employed by the company here. While of course the tank steamers cannot run during the winter, when all the tanks are filled in the fall the supply of illuminating oil on hand will be ample to meet the demand. Another result of the change will be to increase somewhat the oil traffic of the South Shore road, as the tank cars will move from Marquette over its lines instead of merely coming to Ishpeming. This new arrangement emphasizes the fact that Marquette is the natural distributing center for the greater part of the upper peninsula and as the chief transfer point from lake to rail is destined in the future development of this region to be its commercial metropolis.

Concerning Legal Holidays

A correspondent inquires how the school election can be held on the first Monday in September when that day is a legal holiday, known as Labor Day. The school election is held on the first Monday in September because the statute says it shall be held then. Another statute says that the first Monday in September shall be a legal holiday. Lawyers seen yesterday had not had time to examine the question, which is a novel one owing to the fact that Labor Day is a public holiday of recent invention. The off-hand opinion of attorneys was, however, that the Labor Day act did not change the school law and that the school election could be legally held just the same. In this connection it is pointed out that all national, state and city election days are treated as public holidays, whether so specifically declared by statute or not. The courts suspend their labors on such days and all public offices are or may be closed. But all departments of public business are not suspended on holidays and the rule is and must be applied with common sense. Holidays often mean more work instead of less for the police and fire departments and there seems no good reason why a school election should not be held on such days. Certain forms of business cannot legally be transacted on a holiday but ordinary buying and selling is usually legal as between the parties, though the law may declare such transaction illegal as regards the community. For example, if a man goes into a liquor store and purchase a barrel of whisky on a legal holiday, the seller can recover the price by taking the proper steps though the state may step in and punish him for making the sale on that day.

A consideration of the origin of what are now called public holidays will prevent confusion of ideas on the subject. All holidays seen to have been originally of a religious character, as many are yet. Sunday was and is primarily a religious holiday. In ancient Rome holidays were frequently decreed either to thank the gods for victory or to implore them to avert some threatened calamity to the state. Christmas, though now made a festival to celebrate the birth of the founder of the Christian religion, was a holy season in several older faiths. In old Rome as in ancient Judea the business of the courts and certain commercial transactions could not be performed on the days of thanksgiving or of prayer. The custom of merchants took cognizance of the religious festivals and this custom has been crystallized into statute law. The very word "holiday" is nothing but "holy-day."

In later years and with the total separation of church and state there has arisen the belief that a certain amount of time, aside from religious considerations, might profitably be taken from the stress of daily toil for rest and recreation, and even persons who do not believe in Sunday as a Christian holy-day agree that one day in seven is about the necessary rest to enable the human machine to perform its functions to the best advantage. Whether the holding of a public election on a day set apart for certain other purposes is legal or not would depend on the will of the people as expressed through the lawmaking body. That elections may be properly held on holidays would seem to be the intent of the people from the fact that they have prohibited certain lines of business on election days and that in many countries Sunday, recognized as a holiday by all Christian nations, is also the general election day.

Soliciting Aid Here.

A committee of three from Ishpeming and Negaunee made a tour of some of the business houses yesterday soliciting aid for the strikers. It could not be learned that they met with any great success. In some places small contributions were made but several merchants refused point blank to give a cent and one remarked that he saw no reason why he should sharpen a razor to cut his own throat, meaning, he said, that the strike had greatly damaged business here and that the longer the struggle was continued the more damage would be done. It is reported that at least one place the committee made threats of a boycotting character, not to the proprietor in person but at the door in the hearing of by-standers as they went out. The canvass yesterday does not seem to have been at all general, but it was understood last night that it would be continued. Several merchants were seen by a MINING JOURNAL reporter last evening. Most of those who had been approached by the committee said they had refused to give anything and others who had not been approached said they thought they would need all they could spare for charity here at home next winter.

Crushed by Falling Slabs.

Frank Cote, an elderly man employed by the street railway company to look after the bringing over of slabs from the Dead River mill to its power house, was very seriously and probably fatally hurt about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It seems that a car-load of slabs had been brought over and shoved upon the sidetrack, but was not put in far enough. The next time a car came along there was a collision, the motorman not perceiving that the slab car was overhanging the main track. The pile of slabs was tipped over and Cote, who happened to be just on the other side, was crushed by their fall. He was got out as soon as possible and medical aid summoned. It was found that five or six ribs were fractured and the broken ends driven into the lungs. Dr. Dawson said that the unfortunate man might possibly recover but that he regarded the result as extremely doubtful. Cote has a family and lives near the street railway power house.

An Outrage on Decency.

Several complaints have recently come to this office regarding boys and young men who go in bathing on the beach near the foot of Hewitt avenue without even a pretense of costume but in the unadorned state of nature. That beach is practically the only place within the city limits where it is possible to get down to the water and it is much resorted to by ladies and children. Such exhibitions as have recently been made there are in very bad taste, to say the least, and are prohibited by law. The police should make an example of some of these young cubs, the great majority of whom are quite old enough to know better.

Of Interest to Fishermen.

Some black bass from Lake Gogebic were placed on exhibition in Spencer's window yesterday which made every follower of "the gentle craft" who passed that way stop and gaze. They were all whoppers and the biggest one tipped the scales at 6 pounds, 2 ounces. Advice from Lake Gogebic say the bass fishing was never finer than this year nor the fish more abundant. It is quite probable that the South Shore road will shortly organize some Sunday excursions to Lake Gogebic in order to give local fishermen a chance at the big bass to be caught in its waters.

A Hotel Change.

The Northwestern Hotel at Michigamme, which was built and has been conducted for many years by Mrs. D. McMillan, has changed hands. P. E. Paquin being the present proprietor. The hotel is well located for the traveling public, and is a popular house. Mr. Paquin will keep it well to the front by catering to the wants of his guests in a satisfactory manner. The house is well equipped and furnished.

The Shakers have made a great hit. Their Digestive Cordial is said to be the most successful remedy for stomach troubles ever introduced. It immediately relieves all pain and distress after eating, builds up the feeble system and makes the weak strong. The fact is, foods properly digested are better than so-called tonics. The Cordial not only contains food already digested, but is a digester of other foods. Food that is not digested does more harm than good. People who use the Cordial insure the digestion of what food they eat and in this way get the benefit of it and grow strong. The little pamphlet which the Shakers have sent druggists for free distribution, contains much interesting information on the subject of dyspepsia.

LOUIS GRABOWER.
OUR CLOSING SALE OF SUMMER GOODS

Has kept all hands here busy as bees for the past few days. Nevertheless we place before you a complete revision of already low prices to keep up our reputation of never being undersold, giving the people trading here more for their money than can be had elsewhere. We name prices way below those quoted by our competitors. It's like a man grasping in the dark to lead us off, for our aim is to always undersell. People come here expecting more for their money than can be had elsewhere and they are never disappointed. No matter how low a quotation is made by our competitors we always go them a notch lower, besides showing you three times the stock to pick from than is shown by any other concern.

Duck, best quality, 1 1/2 a yard instead of 15.	Wash Goods. Here is gathered more wash goods, more new weaves than can be found elsewhere in all Marquette combined. A clean cut on every item. THE REGINA MUSIC BOX

Plays all the Latest Songs.

Regina Music Boxes
Play Thousands of Tunes by means of Indestructible Metallic Disks. Purity & Volume of Tone Unparalleled.

New tunes issued every week. Over one thousand are now ready including dances, operatic and all the popular airs of the day.
It is a musical novelty rendering on one or two accurately tuned steel combs, the most beautiful music and playing an unlimited number of tunes.
It is the first and only music box manufactured in the United States and far surpasses the finest imported ones. The mechanism is of wonderful perfection and so strong and well finished that with ordinary care it will last for a life time. It runs fifteen minutes with one winding. All its parts are interchangeable. The cases are ornamental and highly polished. The tune sheets are indestructible, being made of metal and are easily adjusted or changed. Send for illustrated catalogue.
