DAILY MINING JOURNAL,

A MORNING PAPER PUBLISHED BY THE MINING JOURNAL CO. (LIMITED).

Entered as second-class of the second class in the postoffice at Marquette, Mich.

It seems to THE MINING JOURNAL that the mines of the Marquette range have no reason to be dissatisfied with the arrangement of prices for Bessemer ores made at the Cleveland meeting of mine owners and agents last week.

The margin in their favor over the Mesaba mines is enough, with the advantage they have in cost of transportation, to ensure them against danger of further competition of the kind that ruined the market for the past three years.

The business has now been put on a sound business basis, and under conditions which give a strong guarantee of its permanency, for it has been reached after the owners of mines on the Mesaba range had experimented with a reckless method of endeavoring to control the market until they had enough of it.

SENATOR CHANDLER reiterates his charge that the McKinley managers are using money obtained from the manufacturers who were favored by the McKinley tariff schedule to secure delegates to the national convention pledged to support him for the presidential nomination.

Mr. Chandler seems to feel hurt because the money thus obtained isn't used impartially between all the candidates, so that each will have a fair show on his merits.

But perhaps the chaps who put up the "stuff" want McKinley and no other, and if that is the case they have the right to say how their money shall be used.

Anyway McKinley is getting delegates right along and is going to get the nomination from present indications, and Mr. Chandler might as well quit making statements that he will find it awkward to explain after the St. Louis convention does its work.

ABOUT the most sensible political movement that has developed recently is that which was inaugurated at Philadelphia some days ago, when a number of the prominent manufacturers of Pennsylvania and several of the Republican senators who favor the restoration of silver coinage met to consider the feasibility of uniting the protection and monetary issues, and having the believers in adequate protection for American industries and an American monetary system work hand in hand politically.

At this conference nothing definite was agreed on, but it was pretty effectually impressed on the minds of the manufacturers that they can have no aid from the friends of silver until the protectionists in congress consent to give silver fair treatment.

Out of this there may grow a union of the two interests that will redound to the advantage of both and of the country at large. The coalition proposed is a natural one, and we see no reason why it cannot be effected.

JUDGE HUBBELL's communication on the currency question, published in this number, is a telling arraignment of the gold standard. It leaves no doubt of the opposition of Mr. Hubbell to having gold made the sole measure of value and money of redemption, but we confess that we cannot reconcile his position, as defined in this letter, with his defense of the present system of currency, submitted in a previous communication published in THE MINING JOURNAL.

His claim that we now have practical bimetalism, because we have a large amount of silver in use, either in silver dollars or paper representing silver dollars, and that this division of our currency is equal to gold in all respects, will hardly stand the test of impartial investigation. It is true that we have a vast quantity of silver in actual circulation or serving as the basis for paper notes representing silver dollars, and this money has equal purchasing power with gold, but the silver certificates are only kept at par with gold through the practice of the government in redeeming them in gold on demand, a practice that has caused the treasury an immense loss of gold and has had much to do with necessitating repeated sales of interest-bearing bonds to replenish the gold reserve.

The nation is steadily going in debt to maintain a fictitious value in our silver dollars and the paper notes representing silver dollars, and there is no reason to expect that this will cease while we continue the monetary system that our friend Hubbell declares himself in favor of. It is our firm conviction that we should either have the gold standard, pure and simple, with no use whatever of silver save as subsidiary coins, or the recognition of silver's right to free admission to the mints on equal terms with gold at a fixed coinage ratio. It seems to us that there is no honest middle ground and we fail to see how Judge Hubbell can hold the views he does as to the insufficiency of gold to serve as the ultimate money of the world, with his opposition to the restoration of silver coinage. The discussion of the question has an educational influence, and as the subject is one on which the public needs to be thoroughly informed in order that it may be intelligently and wisely settled ultimately, we feel that the space devoted to its consideration is well employed, even though the ground covered has been pretty thoroughly gone over before.

THE RINOUS Gold Standard. Houghton, March 24, 1896. EDITOR MINING JOURNAL.—I closed my letter published in your paper on the coinage question and in opposition to the single gold standard with the following words: "It is high time the plain, common people of this country commenced to inquire whether we are drifting; whether it is for the common good of all the people to adopt the single gold standard, and whether if they do go to that standard, the time may not come, and come sooner than is expected, when a dollar of that standard may not measure the value of two days' labor, instead of two-thirds of a day's labor, its measure now."

It is my purpose in this communication to give some authoritative reasons for that statement, quoting largely from the utterances of men whose opinions ought to carry weight, and whose utterances are more terse and to the point than any in my power to make. I hold that any single standard of either gold or silver is illegal under the constitution of the United States, and in support of this proposition I quote the opinion of the learned Chief Justice, made in the congress of the United States on December 21, 1836, in which he says: "I am clearly of the opinion that gold and silver, at rates fixed by congress, constitute the legal standard of value in this country, and that neither congress nor any state has authority to establish any other standard, or to displace this standard."

Mr. Webster in his day was known and admitted to be the great interpreter of the constitution of this country, and I can add nothing in the way of assertion or reference that will in any way strengthen this utterance made by him. I have never heard of its correctness being questioned.

Senator Sherman, in his speech in the senate, July 11, 1876, said: "The economic effect of the law in Germany, and as a consequence the partial demonetization of silver coins, I suppose is felt by every man, woman and child who buys or sells anything. The struggle for the possession of gold at once arose between the great nations, because anybody could see that if $3,200,000,000 of silver were demonetized and $3,200,000,000 of gold coin made the sole standard it would enormously add to the value of gold, and the bank of France, the bank of England, and the imperial bank of Germany at once commenced minting for gold in whatever form. Therefore what we have observed recently is not so much a fall of silver, as a rise of gold, the inevitable effect of a fear of the demerit of silver."

And in a letter of July 15th of the same year, only four days later than his utterance above quoted, Mr. Sherman further says: "During the monetary conference in Paris, when silver in our country was excluded from the monetary system, the gold standard was strongly in favor of a single standard of gold. At that time the wisest among us did not anticipate the sudden fall of silver, or the rise of gold that has occurred. This uncertainty of the relation between the two metals is one of the chief arguments in favor of a monometallic system, but other arguments showing the dangerous effects on industry by dropping one of the precious metals from the standard of value outweigh in my mind all theoretical objections to the bimetallic system."

Now let us read what Robert Giffen, a gold standard advocate of England, has to say on this question: "If events are the touchstone of prophecies, no prophecy was ever more certain than the forecast of the demerit of silver. The fall of prices, to an extent so general, as we are at present experiencing, is to be referred to an increase in the purchasing power of gold, is generally, and I might say universally, conceded."

Now, I propose to make two quotations from the speeches of John G. Carlisle and let my readers determine for themselves on which occasion he stood on solid ground. In a speech delivered in the house of representatives in 1878, to which I had the honor of listening, he said: "I know that the world's stock of the precious metals is none too large, and I see no reason to apprehend that it will ever become so."

Man kind will be fortunate indeed if the annual production of gold and silver shall keep pace with the annual increase of population, commerce and industry. According to my view of the subject, the conspiracy which seems to have been formed here and in Europe to destroy, by legislation, from three-sevenths to one-half the metallic money of the world is the most gigantic crime of this or any other age."

The consummation of such a scheme would ultimately entail more misery upon the human race than all the wars, pestilences and famines that ever occurred in the history of the world. The absolute and instantaneous destruction of half the entire movable property of the world, including houses, ships, railroads and all other appliances for carrying on commerce, would be the result of such a measure, sensibly at the moment, would not produce anything like the prolonged distress and disorganization of society that must inevitably result from the permanent annihilation of one-half the metallic money of the world."

But Mr. Carlisle has, since he came in closer touch with Grover Cleveland and the gold bugs, experienced a change of heart, and the best reason I have ever heard or read of his giving for this conversion may be found in his Covington speech, delivered during the late campaign in Kentucky, in which he said: "The banking and other great financial institutions, which own and hold in their reserve much or the greater part of this gold, would at once sell it at a large premium for silver, about two dollars for one, or they would exchange it for silver bullion in the market at the ratio of about thirty-two pounds of silver for each pound of gold, have the thirty-two pounds of silver coined into dollars at the expense of the people, and with this cheap money pay the demands of their depositors and other creditors."

This utterance was on the theory of a double standard of gold and silver at some fixed ratio. Now with any one tell me who, on the theory of the free use of silver—I say free use now for the sake of the argument—would be idiotic enough to sell his silver for fifty cents on the dollar to these banking or financial institutions when he could take it to the mint and have it coined into dollars, at the ratio of 16 to 1, which would perform every function in business, trade or commerce which the money he received from the sale at the ratio of 32 to 1 would perform? Have the business men of this country become demoralized, or has his sudden conversion thrown Mr. Carlisle off his base?

Mr. Alfred de Rothschild at the Brussels conference, to which he was a delegate, in discussing the question of an international agreement for the free coinage of silver, said: "Gentlemen, I need hardly remind you that the stock of silver in the world is estimated at some thousands of millions of dollars, and if this conference were to break up without arriving at any definite result there would be a depreciation in the value of that silver which it would be fruitful to contemplate, and out of which a monetary panic would ensue, the far spreading effects of which it would be impossible to predict."

Mr. J. Thorald Rogers, an eminent English economic writer, in a lecture on the commercial and industrial history of England, said: "The fall of silver is entirely due to cessation of silver minting and the abandonment of a silver standard, according to the law laid down in an earlier part of this lecture, 'that the dominant factor in any one of the precious metals which determine its value is its use as currency.'"

In summing up on the use of gold and silver as money the following language is used in the Encyclopedia Britannica, ninth edition: "The objection which denies the power of government to fix the relative value of gold and silver may be set aside by the consideration that the use of the precious metals takes two forms, (a) their use as commodities, (b) their use as money. Since the state can influence the demand for these metals, as money, and since, therefore, it can raise the value of either of them by this increased demand, it follows that, within assignable limits, it can fix the ratio between them, and that these limits are the ratio which would subsist between their values if gold were demonetized and that which would subsist if silver were demonetized."

The Englishmen understand clearly how gold has been enhanced in value by its use as a single standard of values. They are manufacturers, besides being money lenders, and what they need is cheap breadstuffs—I use the word in its broadest sense as meaning food of all kinds—and cheap raw materials, and they have figured it all out. I quote from the London Statist, a gold standard authority: "The cash value of our imports in 1865 was $416,087,000, but at the 1890 level of prices their value would have been no less than $507,100,000. The benefit to this country, therefore, from the fall in prices of foreign and colonial products in 1890 compared with 1865, amounted to the enormous sum of $90,000,000."

This in round numbers amounts in our money to $450,000,000. Is it any wonder, then, that England is in favor of the gold standard? Why, it is such a good thing for her that she has a missionary zeal in order, government to go to that standard in order that the price of gold may be still further enhanced so that she may be able during the next five years by the fall in prices to make $900,000,000 instead of $450,000,000, the profit during the past five years."

Now, to my mind there is another and very cogent reason why the warning in the sentence which closed my first letter, and is taken as the text of this, should be heeded. "The metals which are known as the precious metals—gold, silver—cannot be produced in unlimited quantities, and when produced have only two uses, the first in the arts for ornaments, plate, jewelry, etc., and the second as ultimate or unredemtable money. Our ablest statisticians estimate that twenty-five per cent. of all the silver produced in the world is used in the arts, and that more than fifty per cent. of all of the gold produced in the world for the past four hundred years has also been used in the arts. By the mint report the world's product of gold in four hundred years, from 1493 to 1893, only amounted to $3,399,101,000, but one half of this has been used commercially, which leaves, saying nothing about losses and destruction, $4,149,500,000 as money in 1893, or a trifle over $3 per capita. Does any intelligent man, in view of this startling and astounding fact, contend that this forms a sufficient basis for the monetary system, or that for the billions of dollars of indebtedness and for the exchange of the billions of dollars of the annual products of the world?"

But the gold bugs tell us that the production of gold is increasing. Is it increasing as fast in proportion as population is increasing and as the demands for its use as final money in the payment of obligations and commercial exchanges are increasing? Let anybody who really thinks so look up the statistics on which that claim is based and on the world's increasing commerce and he will be startled at the situation as it is today.

Then I repeat the warning given in the opening sentence of this letter: "It is high time that the plain, common people of this country commence to inquire whether we are drifting; whether it is for the common good of all the people to adopt the single gold standard, and whether, if they do go to that standard, the time may not come, and come sooner than is expected, when a dollar of that standard may not measure the value of two days' labor, instead of two-thirds of a day's labor, its measure now."

WATER NOT POPULAR.

An Exhaustive Medical Review of Its Use

Three Centuries Ago. It needed a very bold man to resist the medical testimony of three centuries ago against water-drinking.

The medical school-master of Manchester fame, confessed in his "Heaven of Health," 1589, designed for the use of students, that he knew some who drank cold water at night or fasting in the morning without hurt; and Dr. James Hart, writing about 50 years later, could even claim among his acquaintances "some honorable and respectable ladies who drank little other drink, and yet enjoy more perfect health than most of them that drink of the strongest."

Both water and small beer, we make no question, are enemies to health and good digestion.

But the most formal indictment against water is that of Venner, who, writing in 1622, ponderously pronounces "to dwellers in cold countries it doth very greatly deject their appetites, destroy the natural heat and overthrow the strength of the stomach, and consequently confounding the concoction, is the cause of crudities, flatulencies and windiness in the body."

MONEY IN SHARKS.

A Profitable Industry of Long Island.

Every Part of the Fish Is Made Use Of—How the Hardy Fishermen Secure Their Dangerous Prey.

Shark hunting has now become an established industry in the waters of Long Island and it is found to be profitable in portions of Great South Bay.

The body of the shark was supposed for many years to be worth little or nothing as an article of commerce and for this reason sharks were allowed to live and propagate unmolested.

The manner of capturing the animal is interesting. A day on which the wind is blowing a good, stiff breeze is best for shark hunting.

After the fishermen have thrown overboard enough bunkers to attract the sharks to the neighborhood of the smack, long ropes with air-tight kegs are run out over the sides of the vessel.

The shark hunters watch the kegs as a boy watches a bob for a nibble. A shark never nibbles. If he takes the bait it is done with a rush, and the kegs disappears beneath the water for some minutes.

The shark hunters watch the kegs as a boy watches a bob for a nibble. A shark never nibbles. If he takes the bait it is done with a rush, and the kegs disappears beneath the water for some minutes.

After a shark has been hooked, the line is hauled in slowly by two or three pairs of strong arms. Should the shark show signs of not being completely exhausted great care is taken not to excite him and start him on another wild plunge.

The Spanish shark is one of the hardest species of the family to catch. They usually measure from seven to eleven feet in length, and have hide as tough as leather.

The capture of sharks is a blessing to the net fishermen, for, as the sharks become fewer, the damage to nets is lessened.

ONLY ONE DISSENTING VOTE

The House Passes the Senate Bill Removing Confederate Soldiers' Disabilities.

DEMOCRATS REFRAIN FROM PARTICIPATING IN DEBATE

And Boutelle Leads the Opposition Single-Handed—Spain and General Weyler Are Roasted by Mills in the Senate—Gossip.

NEWS FROM NATION'S CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Senator Hill's bill to remove restrictions against the appointment as officers of the army or navy of persons who held commissions in the regular army or navy before the rebellion and who subsequently took part in the war on the side of the Confederacy, which passed the senate during the height of the excitement over the Venezuela boundary question, passed the house today after a two hours' debate with but one dissenting vote—that of Boutelle of Maine. The Democrats, except Cummings (N. Y.), who spoke, as he said, "as one of the 800,000 northern Democrats who fought in the Union army," and Wilson (S. C.), who was drawn into the debate by Boutelle, refrained entirely from participation.

Hull (Ia.) chairman of the military committee, who had charge of the bill, admitted it would subserve no practical purpose and was largely sentimental. Boutelle, who led the opposition single-handed, thought it would furnish a bad object lesson for the naval and military cadets who were about entering on careers in the service of their country, and when he got warmed up to his subject called attention to the fact that many southern men in congress in the past had obstructed legislation in the interest of Union soldiers, dwelling particularly on the opposition to the retirement of General Grant, Grosvenor (O.) and Grow (Pa.), however, supported the bill ardently as a graceful and gracious act to the vanquished, and when the vote was taken Boutelle alone voted against it.

The bill considered yesterday to abolish the death penalty in certain cases was passed. Bills were also passed to make the sale of spirituous liquors under a false brand punishable by fine and imprisonment; to turn over the property of the Mormon church now in the hands of the receiver to the trustees, and several others of minor importance.

ROASTED GENERAL WEYLER.

Senator Mills Supports His Resolution on the Cuban Question.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Although the main Cuban resolutions have been recommitted to conference, the subject came up incidentally today in the senate. Senator Mills' resolution for the forcible occupation of the island of Cuba in order to aid the Cubans in securing local self-government. Mills spoke two hours in support of the resolution. He was unsparing in his arraignment of General Weyler as an "atrocious scoundrel and villain," and in his recital of Spain's bloody record in the Old and New Worlds. When he closed Mills was warmly congratulated by his associates. Morgan also spoke briefly in fatherly support of the Cuban resolutions. Mills' resolution went to the calendar after the speeches.

The rest of the day was given to the legislative appropriation bill, which is not yet completed. Just before adjournment a bill was passed exempting logging cars from the operation of the law requiring cars to be equipped with grab irons, etc.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Strength and Bodily Vigor.

The cause of that tired, weak, nervous condition in which so many people find themselves, is the failure of the blood to properly nourish the nerves and tissues. Feed the nerves upon pure blood, and they will be steady and strong. Read this: "It is with pleasure that I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as an excellent nerve tonic and blood purifier."

Mrs. C. H. Venable I have taken it Keithsburg, Ill. more than once and am taking it now. I was tired, my body ached, and I felt very badly all over. I was afraid I would be sick. I thought I would take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and

The meeting today of the advisory board of the A. P. A. was occupied with the transaction of preliminary business, including the submission of reports. An adjournment was taken until tomorrow, the proposed night session having been dispensed with. Much important business will, it is expected, be transacted tomorrow. The meeting was called to outline the political policy and future plans of the organization.

Hepburn (Ia.) today introduced a bill in the house providing for a commission of five engineers to report upon the best practicable route for a ship canal having a twenty-eight feet depth connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic ocean; $10,000 to be appropriated for the expenses of the commission.

The conferees of the two houses on the Cuban resolutions held a session today, but without reaching a conclusion adjourned until tomorrow. The entire time of the conference was spent in canvassing the situation and trying to arrive at a common ground upon which the two houses can stand.

The house today passed a bill to make railroad corporations, for the purpose of jurisdiction, citizens of states through which they pass, and to make it unlawful to shoot or throw any missile at a locomotive or car engaged in interstate commerce.

EMPEROR WILLIAM IN ITALY.

Great Political Interest Attaches the Visit of the German Sovereign.

GENOA, March 24.—The emperor and empress of Germany arrived here this evening. They embarked on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern and proceeded to Naples. This visit of the German sovereign is of great political significance, as it has been generally expected that when he met King Humbert, Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria would be a guest of the king of Italy at the same time. It is assumed in all public discussion on the visit that the subject of the conference between the three sovereigns, or in the absence of the Austrian emperor between two, would be the relations between the three countries of the dreibund. The results of the recent visit of Count Goluchowski, the Austro-Hungarian premier, to Berlin were all in favor of the maintenance of the dreibund. The work begun there, it is expected, will be completed during Emperor William's stay.

The Duke of Genoa, brother of Queen Margherita, was entrusted with the duty of welcoming the visiting sovereign, and he met them at the railroad station. The emperor greeted him cordially and his royal highness kissed the hand of Empress Augusta. The party then proceeded to the quay, where the duke bade farewell of the party as they proceeded on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, which was in waiting, and the cheers of the crowds on the quay.

AT SEA ON AN ICE FLOE.

Five Fishermen at Pequaming Have a Chilling and Perilous Ride.

L'ANSSE, Mich., March 24.—[Special.]—Five Finlanders who were out on the ice from Pequaming fishing had a narrow escape from death this afternoon. Under pressure of the strong gale that sprang up during the forenoon the ice parted about a mile outside of Pequaming Point at noon, and the men were carried out on a large ice cake. Fortunately the field of ice on which they floated was carried over to the shore near Portage Entry, where they got off. They reached home last evening, pretty tired but very thankful for their escape from a terrible fate.

Policemen Want Their Pay.

ST. PAUL, March 24.—Members of the police force took the initiative today in an effort to collect from the city their salaries for January and February. Copies of 150 complaints were served on the city attorney by attorneys for the police department. The amounts sued for aggregate $50,000. The city attorney will set up as defense that the council had not fixed the salaries of the members of the force and no money could be paid until such action is taken.

ANOTHER FATAL MISTAKE.

Two Detachments of Spanish Troops Take Each Other for Insurgents.

OPEN FIRE AND EXCHANGE SHOTS FOR TEN MINUTES.

Seventeen Are Killed and Nearly One Hundred Wounded—Thickness of Cane and Underbrush Excuse of Commanders.

A COURT-MARTIAL TO FOLLOW.

HAVANA, March 24.—Another terrible mistake, attended with loss of life and the wounding of many soldiers, has taken place. Two columns of Spanish troops under General Goderi, near Esperanza, province of Santa Clara, mistook each other for insurgents owing to the thickness of the cane. Each detachment opened fire upon the other and for ten minutes shots were exchanged, resulting in the killing of seventeen and the wounding of five officers and eighty-four soldiers. Two of the latter have since died. Owing to the fact the meeting took place at midday the explanation of the Spanish commanders is considered unsatisfactory and a court-martial will follow.

INSURGENT VICTORIES CHRONICLED.

BOSTON, March 24.—The Standard tomorrow will publish a letter from Captain Valerose, a member of the personal staff of Maximo Gomez in the Cuban patriot army. The letter, dated March 6, says in part: "It has been a most trying experience through which I have passed the last thirty days. We marched and counter-marched over 400 miles the past two months and met the enemy thirty-one different times, in twenty-eight of which we were successful. The severest of these was on the railroad from Havana to Matanzas—the battle of Morro del Rio. The enemy left twenty-nine killed and fifty-one wounded on the field. General Gomez lost thirteen killed and thirty-one wounded. A Spanish newspaper—El Imparcial—published at Havana gave the 'rebel' losses at 'upwards of three hundred,' and I presume the dispatches reaching the States exaggerated fully as great. We now have with us a staff of experienced surgeons, with plenty of medicines and good 'outfits,' but ammunition is badly needed."

CUBAN ARCHIVES CAPTURED.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—A Cuban reverse that may have the insurgent case more in its moral effect than in a tangible way has just been sustained in Santi Spiritus province, where, according to a cablegram received at the Spanish legation today, the Spanish forces captured all the archives of the insurgent government.

The Spanish government has officially disclaimed responsibility for the fiery views expressed in the columns of the Madrid newspaper El Epoca. The article which called forth the disclaimer was one demanding the United States cease talking about the Cuban insurrection or else declare war at once upon Spain, and the general impression thought it might be harmful because it was intimated the article was inspired by it.

BOLD ROBBERY AT CHICAGO.

Old Miser Robbed of Money and Papers Amounting to $50,000.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Christopher Schrage, who is seventy-six years of age and lives alone at 711 South Jefferson street, was bound and gagged by two men at 6:30 this evening and had money and papers amounting to more than $50,000 stolen from him. At the time the robbery occurred Schrage was alone, and it was some time before he was discovered and the police notified. The valuables taken included $45,000 worth of Cook county and Chicago city bonds, mortgages and papers amounting to $5,000, registered government bonds worth $900, $350 in currency and $100 in gold.

The old man lives entirely alone and has always kept his money and securities in a safe in a rear room in his house. It was a matter of common report that he was in the habit of counting his money every evening before closing up his house for the night. The robbers were evidently aware of this habit and had timed their visit accordingly. The men gained entrance to the house by pretending that they were anxious to rent some rooms and as Schrage was showing them through the house they threw him to the floor and bound and gagged him.

SAN FRANCISCO LOSES IT.

W. C. T. U. Convention Not to Be Held on Pacific Coast This Year.

CHICAGO, March 24.—At a meeting of the general officers of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union today it was decided not to hold the next national convention in San Francisco, although that city had previously been chosen. Among the reasons for the change was the request of the National Suffrage association, in view of its own active operations on the Pacific coast this year; the belief that the holding of the next convention in or near the state of Kansas would be better for the temperance interests, as a crisis is impending in that state, and the refusal of the railroads to make such concessions as were hoped for. It is probable the convention will be held at St. Louis in October or November.

FAMILY WAS MURDERED.

Result of the Investigation Into the Oldhouse Mystery.

ALMA, Wis., March 24.—The investigation, concluded tonight, shows that the seven members of the Oldhouse family, who were found dead in the ruins of their burned home on the 6th inst. had been murdered. An inquest was held at that time and a verdict of accidental death returned. Today the bodies were exhumed. It was found that two bullets had penetrated the skull of the father, that the mother's skull was crushed, and the head of one of the children crushed in. A revolver was found on a bed near the mother's body and a shotgun lay near the front window. The fracture on the skull of the child was evidently made with a hammer, which was found near by the body. Oldhouse had just sold his farm, but only a small sum of money was found in the house.

Respectable, But Poor.

First Young Physician—Well, don't you think Dr. Winks ought to be expelled from our society for advertising his address in the papers?

"Well, lend me two cents, then."

Arousing After-Dinner Enthusiasm. At a public dinner there was on the table in front of Edward Everett an ornate dish, with two miniature silk American flags stuck into the viand. A waiter removed it from the table to the sideboard that it might be carved. As soon as Mr. Everett missed the dish he seemed seriously annoyed and whispered to another waiter to replace it. A gentleman sitting near noticed this little by scene and was surprised that the great man should appear annoyed at the disappearance of the dish and delighted at its reappearance. When the orator made his speech in response to a national toast the mystery was explained. For as he warmed with his theme—the greatness of the republic—he spoke of the emotions excited by the flag of the union, whose folds they beheld gracefully festooned around the walls. Suddenly, as if moved by the impulse of the moment, he seized the two little flags from the dish and waved them, one in each hand, above his head, and the company applauded the impromptu act.—Chicago Chronicle.

WHEN IT RAINS.

The Peculiar Actions of Animals and Birds Before a Storm.

There is no doubt that all animals, wild or tame, four-footed or with wings, have a deep-seated aversion to wet weather. Even water fowl will seek a dry hiding place when it rains.

Did you ever watch the actions of cattle before a big storm? If so, you must have seen them grow more and more uneasy as the clouds threatened. You also saw them run up and down the field as if seeking to escape some impending danger. Finally, when the storm comes, they draw closely together and, with lowered heads, present a picture of despair.

When it rains the domestic animals always keep indoors, or, failing that, they seek sheltered places and creep beneath the hedge and thickets-in short, in any convenient place where they are not entirely exposed to the down-pour.

It is the same with fowls. They dislike the rain, which soaks their feathers. They seek sheltered places and creep under wagons and squeeze in behind boxes and boards. Chickens do not mind wetting their feet, as they will scratch the muddy ground soon after a shower in search of worms and bugs.

Wild birds do their best to keep out of the rain. They find shelter in many ways. Some of them build a roof over their nests in which they keep more or less dry. Others choose a house under the eaves or under a projecting cliff, where they are safe from the discomforts that the rain brings. But most of them are without any adequate shelter that is the result of their own forethought. They take refuge in any place that they happen to find at hand.

If you watch them before the coming of the storm you will see them looking around for shelter. If the storm comes suddenly, the small and helpless ones seem bewildered, flying from tree to tree and from limb to limb, quite unable to make up their minds to a temporary hiding place.-Our Animal Friends.

Reason Enough.

A man named Simmons is said to have declined to become the private secretary of a man named Green for a peculiar reason. The salary was tempting and the work would have been light and agreeable, but, then, as he said, he couldn't bear the thought of signing letters: "Green, per Simmons."

FORTUNES IN HIDES.

A Great Business Done in Handling Furs and Pelts.

The Skins of Animals, Wild and Tame, Have Always Been in Great Demand in the East-Some Interesting Particulars.

Truly, this age is not all wool and cotton and flax, while still the stout old merchants of the swamp maintain the tradition of the days when the foundations of great New York fortunes were laid in furs and pelts. In the weird shadows of the old warehouses one would scarcely be surprised if the painted ghost of a chief of the Manhattans should step forth from the draperies of leather, with his celtic moccasins, spurning the prosaic dust of commerce. Back of him might rise another phantom-Savage Man, as Carlyle describes him, with his "thick natural fell" and naught else!

Not all in the swamp is tame, domestic. Calfskins and cowhides are there, of course, the great staples of the leather trade. But a hundred beasts of the wilderness have taken Scriptural counsel and yielded their mantles to their enemies. Their pelts adorn the shelves of the merchants yonder, from the canvas spread of the Asiatic elephant to the pathetic hands-breadth of the Brazilian lizard.

It is a long day since the hide of an elephant has appeared in Spruce street. The market is supplied by traveling showmen who have the big brutes die on their hands. No hides are shipped from Asia or Africa. They would spoil in transit. About once a year an elephant skin reaches the swamp. It takes a twelvemonth for tanning and there is only one establishment in the country where the business is carried on. That is in Newark.

An elephant hide so prepared is worth $500. It is so thick that it is split a dozen times, thus amplifying the area of the skin in much the same ingenious fashion in which Dido's city was laid out. These splints are used for making pocketbooks and carpetbags, which sell at a princely ransom. The pocketbooks bring as high as $25 and the bags as high as $100. Only two houses are known to manufacture them.

The elephant has a rival in the walrus hide, which is corrugated and marvellously tough. It has no use of vestment, but it is valuable for polishing purposes, emery wheels and the like. Another sea animal, the porpoise, yields a hide which is cut into strips and makes shoe strings. There is some small trade in it in the leather district.

The scarp of "that old serpent, the natural enemy of woman," now dwells in triumph from her girdle. Snake skins are in high favor for reticules, belts and pocketbooks. Chiefly the rattlers and boa constrictors are sought out for destruction. A skin eight inches wide and eight feet long brings about $2.50. For similar use the jungles have witnessed a run on Java and Brazilian lizards. The skins of the former are sometimes three feet long, while the Brazilian variety is only a few inches in length, but brings even a higher price.

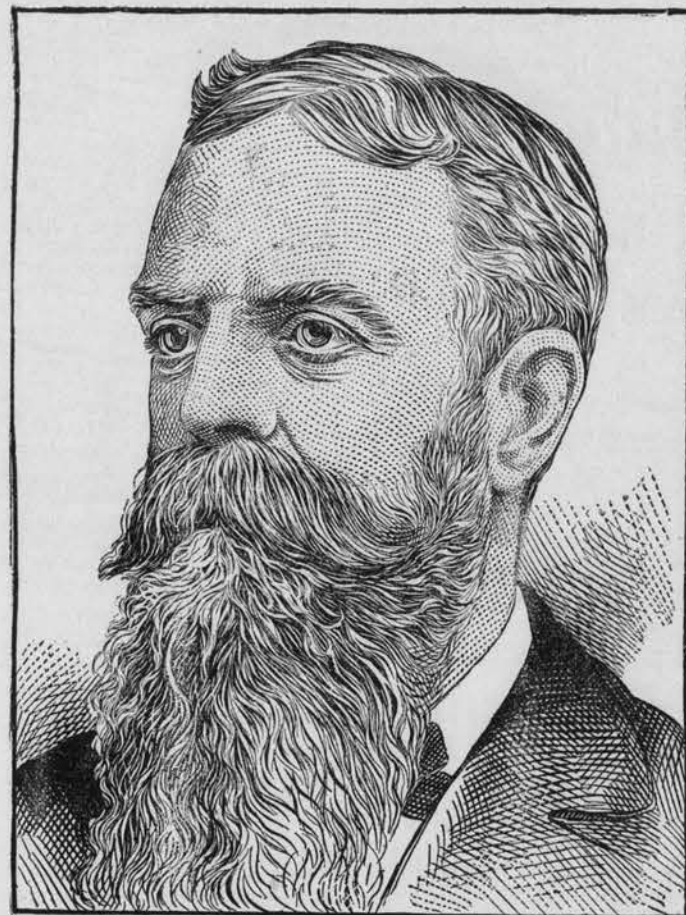

Every house in the swamp has an alligator hide hanging on a nail. There is a tender strip of skin on the belly of the gigantic saurian that answers the same purposes as the garb of his little brother the lizard. This segment of epidemics sells for about $1.25. Very few shoes are any longer made of alligator skin. On the back of the brute is an area rough as a cobblestone pavement, that has recently been leveled upon with artistic results for the coverings of bags. Occasionally a crocodile hide comes into the market, and then it takes one of the older heads to distinguish the Egyptian from his American cousin. There is always a lively business in kangaroo leather. The raw hides are shipped here from Australia in casks, pickled away in brine. When turned they bring 20 to 45 cents a square foot.-N. Y. Mail and Express.

A Patriotic Answer. Just after the war of 1776 an American frigate visited England. Her crew of gallant tars had been principally recruited from the fisheries, and some of them, it is to be acknowledged, did not compare favorably in appearance with the spin-and-spank, jaunty English naval seamen, for the former were of all shapes and sizes, from the tall, round-shouldered, long-armed Cape Codder, down to the short, wiry members of the ship's company who hailed from various ports farther south, where less brown was to be found. One day the captain of the American ship paid a visit to the commander of the British man-of-war at anchor in the same harbor. The coxswain of the gig was a great, lanky seaman, whose backbone was so round as to form a veritable hump. While the vessel rested at the gangway of the visited vessel the English sailors gathered in the open ports and "took stock" in a rather disdainful fashion, of the occupants of the gig. At last one of the seamen on board the man-of-war called down to the coxswain: "Elo, there, Yankee; I say, what's that bloomin' hump you 'ave on your back?" The American sailor looked up and called back, quick as a shot: "That's Bunker Hill!"-Harper's Round Table.

He Was a Good Pumper. Men are not always willing to tell where they got their experience. The prizefighter for frankness in this particular is doubtless the man who worked for the contractors on a Maine railroad extension, pumping water by hand into a tank. He did this work so well that somebody complimented him on his proficiency. "I think I ought to be able to pump by this time," he said, shrugging his shoulders with a little look of self-conceit, "I worked at it six years in the state prison."-Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

ALL CHICAGO KNOWS HIM

W. W. Watson, Leading Real Estate Man, Restored to Health by Paine's Celery Compound.

CHICAGO, March 24.-Mr. W. W. Watson's reputation throughout the west for unerring judgment in the valuation of land has made him foremost among the most conservative, careful of investors in Chicago.

Unlike many hard driven business men, the owner of "Alpine Heights," that splendid suburb of Chicago, has not neglected his health on account of his exacting business. The following unrequested statement from Mr. Watson shows how consistent with his lifelong, careful, conscientious and successful business habits has been his attention to getting well. He states in the Times-Herald:

"Upon the recommendation of a friend, I used Paine's celery compound for head-aches, constipation, indigestion and loss of sleep, and found it all it was recommended to be. I suffer no more from headaches, sleep soundly at night, and am now in perfect health. This is the only medicine that I have ever taken for these complaints, which has benefited me at all."

Busy men and women are apt to think there is always time to get well.

The fact that only one person in a hundred dies of old age shows how recklessly men and women postpone attending to their health and allow it to go to pieces while they devote themselves heart and soul to affairs that are trifling in comparison. Wives and mothers have no greater duty than to see that those dear to them do not become so absorbed in the work of providing for the household as to lose their health and shorten their days.

No more thoughtful step could be taken during the spring days that are now here than to urge such tired and often irritable home providers to take Paine's celery compound. There are thousands of homes where overwork has led to worrying, fretting and despondency, that need only Paine's celery compound to banish the unhealthy atmosphere and make things bright and cheerful again.

It is the only spring remedy universally prescribed by physicians. It makes people well by giving them a hearty appetite and a relish for their food. Hard-worked men and women, the nervous, weak and debilitated, get new strength, fresh nervous energy and a purer, more vigorous blood supply from Paine's celery compound.

This most valuable nerve and brain invigorator and restorer practically demonstrates the life-long conviction of its eminent discoverer, Professor Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college. Professor Phelps was for a long time convinced that sound nutrition was the keystone of firm health, and that where there were signs of poorly nourished nerve tissues, and of thin, pale-colored blood, some means must be devised to supply these deficiencies briskly and rapidly. Professor Phelps prepared Paine's celery compound on this basis. It has proved an invigorator, strengthener and a great spring purifier, such as the world has never enjoyed before our day.

Tomorrow, or next day, or the day after is not soon enough to look about getting rid of weakness or disease. Take Paine's celery compound today. There is no time equal to these early spring days for throwing off poor health. There are few persons who do not need to take a spring remedy.

Many not downright sick, but tired or ailing, would be immensely benefited by taking Paine's celery compound, especially at this particularly favorable season of the year.

This great compound will banish that tired feeling, cleanse the blood and regulate the nerves.

RAILROAD MEN HERE.

Northwestern Officials Pay a Flying Visit to Ishpeming.

General Superintendent Sandburn of the Chicago & Northwestern railway paid Ishpeming a visit yesterday. He was accompanied by his private secretary, G. M. West, assistant superintendent of the Peninsula division, and W. F. Luke, Superintendent Linsley's private secretary. The party came in a special car, arriving shortly before 1 o'clock, and departed again an hour later. The object of their visit was not known to any of the company's employes here. They visited the company's round house at West Ishpeming.

Has a Good Article.

John J. B. Orr of Ishpeming has taken the agency for the upper peninsula for the Inter-State Advertising company's sewing machines. He has several of the machines on exhibition in the Clifford building, Division street, where he has established his headquarters. The machines are all high grade and are warranted to run satisfactorily for not less than five years. The price of the machines is so much less than other high grade machines that Mr. Orr will have no difficulty selling them. The ladies of Ishpeming and vicinity are invited to call and see the samples now on exhibition. Mr. Orr will soon establish agencies in every city and town in the upper peninsula.

An Enjoyable Entertainment.

The entertainment which took place Monday evening at the Division street Methodist church under auspices of the Epworth league was one of the most enjoyable ever given there. Every number on the program was well received and was heartily received by the large audience present. Several of the participants were recalled. Miss Morris, who took part in the entertainment, was called upon to recite "Bachelors for Sale," which she did in a very pleasing manner. A number of Negannee people were in attendance.

Revival Meetings.

The Revs. Kurr and Hill, who have been conducting revival meetings at the Methodist church, Marquette, for the past few days will be in Ishpeming in ten days or two weeks. They will hold forth at the Division street Methodist church. Both of these revivals are said to be very entertaining speakers and their meetings are always interesting.

Must Leave the Town.

A woman who has been conducting a restaurant on East Cleveland avenue was yesterday notified by Marshal Carlson to leave town. He has given her until tomorrow night to pack up her belongings and get out. The marshal has received several complaints regarding the woman, and has proof that she is not a desirable person to have here.

THE DRUMMER ESCAPED.

By So Doing He Escaped Well-Merited Punishment.

There were eight of us smoking our after-supper cigars on the hotel veranda when a small man with a great deal of bustle and energy in his movements came out of the hotel office and called out in a general way:

"Gentlemen, is there a general out there?"

"I am a general, sir," replied one of the group, as he half rose and bowed.

"Yes—ah!—glad to see you, general," continued the little man, as he advanced and shook hands. "Now, then, have we any colonels present?"

"I am a colonel," replied three men in chorus, as they followed the general's example.

"Hal! Glad to see you, colonels—very glad," said the little man, as he extended a hand to each in succession. "Let's see! Have we a judge among us here this evening?"

"We have," replied two of the four others. "So glad to see you, judges—so glad! Shake hands. Beautiful evening, this! I presume you other two gentlemen breathe the respective titles of major and professor?"

"We do," said the pair of us. "Ah—glad to know it—awfully glad. Major and professor, shake hands, shake hands. Might have little more rain, but we can't find much fault with this weather."

"And who are you, if you please?" asked the general.

"I? Oh! I'm only an ex-governor, an ex-cabinet officer, an ex-congressman, and at present raising $5,000,000 to put another railroad bridge across the Missouri river. Keep your seats, gentlemen—I wouldn't think of intruding my company on such a distinguished assembly!"

Next day, when we found out that he was only a commercial drummer for a Cincinnati shoe factory, he had departed, and we couldn't give him the licking he deserved.—Detroit Free Press.

By a decision of the house of lords in 1800 in favor of Rev. Bryan Fairfax the title of Baron Fairfax of Cameron was acquired and quietly pigeonholed along with other outworn vanities by the Fairfaxes of Virginia and Maryland. In like manner the heir to the title and estates of Kingsale and Ringrone, the oldest barony in Ireland, which included the questionable right to wear the baronial hat in the presence of royalty, is at this present writing enjoying bucolic peace and ease on his ancestral grounds of Cheston-upon-Wye, in Queen Anne's county, contemplating with satisfaction his cattle and sheep (appropriately beasts of gentle blood and high degree) and wondering, if ever he gives a thought to the matter, how a gentleman, because he happens to be a premier baron of Ireland, can fail to doff his beaver to a lady because she happens to be merely queen of England. This is Dr. William Henry De Courcy, of the ancient stock of that name, whereof a branch was transplanted to Maryland about 1653 by younger sons of the house of Kingsale—descendants of that doughty earl of Ulster, whose prowess is celebrated in the ballad:

"So they gave this hearty honor To the bold De Courcy race, That they ever should dare their helms To wear Before the king's own face."

"And when every head is unbanned, They walk in cap and plume."

The actual holder of the title inherits from a sailor who hailed from Rhode Island, and whose elevation to the dignities and emoluments of the barony was accomplished by an ingenuous and complicated scheme of imposition after the death of Gerald, the 24th baron, in 1759, that recalls the notorious Tielborne conspiracy. It is even probable that Arthur Orton or his abettors may have found their inspiration and instructions in the case of the De Coureys, of "My Lord's Gift" and Cheston-upon-Wye in Maryland. The daughters of Gerald warmly espoused the cause and claim of the Maryland family. A lady of the Kingsale connection, writing from London to William De Courcy, of Cheston, in 1763, says:

"The late earl was, in his latter days, weak in his understanding and open to imposture, being greatly anxious to continue the honors of his Family with his name. A certain great Personage, and a party who had their own views, foisted in this man as his relation, tho' 't is plain he is an Impostor, and deceived the Earl by information drawn from himself. 'T is not the purpose to give an account of him. They call him a despicable Slave, who was bred a ropemaker and waterman. He is, however, the first peer in the Kingdom, and has actually exercised the Privilege of wearing his hat in the Royal presence."

In a petition to the "Right Honorable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled," the daughters of the earl of Kingsale assert that for some years before, and to the time of his death, his lordship "laboured under a constant Indisposition of Mind, and was weak in his Understanding, easy of belief, open to imposition, and a proper object for designing Persons to work upon, by whose Creatures he was constantly surrounded; that in this Melancholy state of Mind it was first contrived by improper insinuations to alienate his Affections from his said children, and then to introduce, as the real Heir male of that Antient Family, a person of the name of John Courcy or De Courcy, brought from a state of Obscurity and the lowest Degree in life—a Common Boatman, then plying for Hire at Portsmouth in Great Britain; a Person before unheard of, and unknown to the Family. * * *

Your petitioners are well assured, and doubt not to prove if they are permitted to do so, that William De Courcy, Esq., of Queenstown, in Maryland, is the real and true Heir male of the Family, and as such respected and considered in that Country; and the late Lord, before he fell into that Melancholy state of Mind, and the Hands of designing Persons, did publicly declare that William De Courcy, son of Miles De Courcy, was the next Heir male of his Family."

But these eastern shore De Coureys, being content with their terrapin and oysters and ducks, and the honorable regard of their neighbors, and especially wary of tedious and costly litigation, just "let the old thing go," while they concerned themselves rather for the independence of the colonies, and proceeded to equip a gallant young captain for the army of the revolution. So the Rhode Island boatman had it all his own way, and singing:

"Fare thee well, my trim-built wherry, Boat and oars and badge, farewell!" took coach for London and immediately began to talk to his betters "through his hat."—John Williamson Palmer, in Century.

"Slaughter of Deer." Sioux Indians are slaughtering deer and antelope by the hundred along the North and South Moreau rivers and among the slim Buttes and Cave hills, in South Dakota, according to the stockmen in that region. It was reported that more than 400 hides of antelope were seen in one Indian camp recently, and the whole region is scattered over with carcasses of deer and antelope, the Indians killing the animals solely for their hides. The stockmen say that these animals will soon be exterminated in that region if the Indians are permitted to continue their ruthless slaughter.

How a Woman Works for Her Sex.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.] Seated at her desk in the bureau of correspondence, this wonderful woman opens her letters from all parts of the world. A few extracts from their contents tell the story.—

FROM IOWA. "I am in a very bad condition. My courses have stopped from catching cold, and the pain is fearful. I am all bloated up, and the pain in lower part of my body is terrible. My back and head ache all the time. What shall I do for it?" Miss L.

Des Moines, Mrs. Lizzie DeCline, 224 Grand Street, Jersey City, relates her miseries resulting from womb trouble, from which she was relieved and cured by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She ends her letter by saying, "I owe all to you."

FROM OHIO. Mrs. Newton Cobb, of Manchester, O., writes: "I used eight bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I am happy to say it has cured me of painful menstruations and backache. My suffering every month was dreadful. The doctors gave me morphine to ease the pain, nothing to cure me. Oh, I want to tell every one what cured me! I wish every suffering woman would write and get your advice."

FROM ILLINOIS. Miss Jennie, Chicago, states that she is twenty-two years of age, occupation, saleswoman in large dry goods store. Constant standing has brought on womb trouble, the symptoms of which she describes fully. She says: "Help me if you can. There are several girls I know who have written to Mrs. Pinkham and been cured by her advice and medicine."

FROM PENNSYLVANIA. Miss Mary Smylie, who resides at 207 E. Susquehanna Avenue, Kensington, Pa., writes: "I am a working-girl, and must stand eleven hours every day. I have suffered terribly from painful menstruations and kidney trouble. At times my head was so dizzy I could hardly see. A friend recommended your Vegetable Compound. I am a different girl now; no more aches and pains. Oh, thank you, thank you!"

The above extracts from many hundred letters received daily by Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., go to show how easily ailing women can obtain advice and relief. Write to Mrs. Pinkham.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful female medicine known to the world, can be obtained of any druggist in the land.

PINGREE CLUB ORGANIZED.

One to Promote His gubernatorial Candidacy Formed. The Mine Workers' union hall on Clark street was crowded Monday evening with Negaunee men who favor the nomination of Hazen S. Pingree of Detroit for governor on the Republican ticket. The meeting was called for the purpose of organizing a Pingree gubernatorial club. Robert G. Jackson called the meeting to order. The club was then organized with Fred B. Trathen as president, John Goudge vice president, Francis V. Sauer secretary and Robert G. Jackson treasurer.

The resolutions which the organization will be governed were then read and were unanimously adopted. The membership roll, which had been previously signed by 347 voters of Negaunee, was presented and was accepted. The club's membership is much larger than the average organization of its kind now being formed in the smaller cities and towns of the state. The list will be considerably on by-laws this week and it is certain that over five hundred voters will hold membership in the club prior to the meeting to be held next Monday evening.

The following members were appointed to solicit names for membership in the different wards of the city: First ward, William Barlowe; Second ward, Con Malloney; Third ward, Louis St. Julian; Fourth ward, Stephen Thomas; Fifth ward, George Haupt. William Mudge, Richard Treloar, R. G. Jackson and William Hodge were appointed a committee to receive Mr. Pingree when he comes here to address the voters April 6 will be made. It is quite evident that Pingree will receive a hearty welcome on the occasion of his visit to Negaunee.

Five delegates to the city convention will be chosen in each ward. The convention will be held that evening at 8 o'clock at the Union hall.

They will do some preparatory work so that the force to be put on Monday will not be delayed in beginning work on the shaft.

LEO IS A GREAT POPE.

Marion Crawford Compares Him with Other Rulers of Europe. Of the pope's statesmanship and Latinity the world knows much and is sure to hear more—most, perhaps, hear, when another and smaller man shall sit in the great pope's chair. For he is a great pope. There has not been his equal, intellectually, for a long time, nor shall we presently see his match again. The era of individualities has not gone by, as some pretend. We of middle age have seen in our lifetime Cavour, Louis Napoleon, Garibaldi, Disraeli, Bismarck, Leo XIII, and the young emperor of Germany. With the possible exception of Cavour, who died—poisoned, as some say—before he had lived out his life, few will deny that of all these the present pope possesses in many respects the most evenly-balanced and stubbornly sane disposition. That fact alone speaks highly for the judgment of the men who elected him, in Italy's half-crazed days, immediately after the death of Victor Emmanuel.

At all events, there stands at the head of the Holy Roman Catholic and Apostolic church as wise a leader as any who in our day has wielded power; as skilled, in his own manner, as any who hold the pen; and better than all that as a straightly simple and honest Christian man as ever fought a great battle for his faith's sake. Straight-minded, honest and simple he is, yet keen, sensitive and nobly cautious; for there is no nobility in him who risks a cause for the vanity of his own courage, and who out of mere anger against those he hates squanders the devotion of those who love him. In a sense, to-day, the greater the man the greater the peacemaker. And so it should be; for if peace be counted among blessings, the love of it is among the virtues. "Blessed are the peacemakers."

SNAKE FIREBRAND.

How the Cuban Insurgents Use Them to Fire Cane Fields.

It has been left to the Cuban insurgents to introduce one of the most novel methods of destruction yet known, that of the employment of snakes to fire the sugar cane fields. It is a generally accepted belief that all things are created for a definite and necessary purpose, but this is the first time the snake has been brought to a practical basis of usefulness.

The recent march of Gen. Gomez' troops through the sugar district was for the avowed purpose of destroying the plantations, and well has the purpose been achieved. Perhaps, however, if it had not been for the ingenuity of his men, he might not have done so well.

Snakes are very plentiful in Cuba, but none more so than the varieties known as the maja and jubo. These the insurgents would catch by the hundreds. The men would divide into squads and form something like skirmish lines, only in closer order. These lines would slowly advance, beating bushes and ground as they progressed. As fast as one of the snakes was discovered a soldier would cleverly capture it and throw it into a sack he carried for the purpose.

When ready for use, the insurgents would dip the snakes into crude petroleum grease, cans of which had been secured for the purpose, set them on fire, and then release them in the cane fields. To fully appreciate the effect of this it is necessary to consider the fact that at this time of year dry leaves cover the ground in the canefields to the depth of several feet, and these leaves are ordinarily as dry as tinder.

The blazing snakes, as soon as released, would make their way as rapidly as possible amid these leaves toward the center of the plantation, leaving a trail of fire in their wake. Imagine a hundred of these reptiles thrown almost simultaneously into the fields of great plantations, and the havoc they would cause could better be imagined than described.

If the Spanish troops should reach the vicinity of one of these mammoth cane fires they would be inclined to think a battle was going on, for, as the cane burns fiercely, there is a roaring and popping that, even to the trained ear, would seem like the rattle of musketry. This phenomenon is caused by the almost instant generation of gas from the cane by heat, which causes the cane to burst.—N. Y. Times.

He Got an Answer.

For grave speeches of importance delivered with weight, Bismarck was, of course, most celebrated. When annoyed he nearly always adopted a jesting tone, which must have sounded to his frightened friends much as if the tiger in the menagerie had greeted them with a cordial handshake before devouring. "Do you mean to break the convention of Gastein?" bluntly demanded the Austrian ambassador, Count Kurolyi, of the Prussian minister-president. "No," replied the latter, with great directness, "but even if I did so, do you think I should be such a fool as to tell you?"

Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. COLD-SNAP STORIES.

A Blizzard That Paralyzed Every Living Thing Instantly.

The Feet of Cattle Frozen to the Earth Where They Stood—An Illinois Man's Remarkable Story About His Whiskers.

"I remember the winter of 1873 very well," said Tom Anderson. "I was moving a small bunch of cattle from Tarrant county, Tex., near Fort Worth, to Greeley, Col., at the time. The railroad was completed only to Wichita falls, and we had to drive across No Man's Land to Colorado, it taking three months to accomplish the trip. It had been warm and rainy, which was an occasion of great rejoicing in that drought-infested country. When we left Wichita falls it was muddy, and driving was slow work. A blizzard struck us suddenly. I was feeling warm and comfortable, when, in a moment, I seemed to be paralyzed, and, looking around me in a dazed sort of way, realized what had happened. The ground was frozen solidly, and, of course, each one of the steers had three feet caught fast, having been stuck in the mud. The other foot, which had been lifted to step with when the blizzard struck us, was on top of the frozen earth. Something had to be done at once, or we would lose every steer; so I called all of my men. Fortunately, we had plenty of matches in the commissary, and the supply of dead mesquite bushes was unlimited, so it did not take long to determine upon a plan of action. We started a fire under each steer, and watched them carefully. We had 20 men, and you never saw fires built so rapidly in your life. Within two hours they were all blazing. We could not thaw the cattle out of the earth, but they were kept alive, and two days later the sun came out, as it does in Texas, suddenly and strong, and in another day we were moving along the trail again as if nothing had happened."

"That blizzard must have been very general," said Silas Adams. "I was living in Peoria, Ill., at the same time. Peoria is built along the western bank of the Illinois river, which widens into a lake at that point. Back of the business portion of the city, a little over a mile from the river, is a bluff, upon which some of the leading citizens have erected handsome residences. I lived near the street car stables on the bluff. I had an office on South Adams street, near Main, and started for home early in the evening. It began to turn cold just as I passed the soldiers' monument, and, meeting Bob Burdette, who was at that time editing the Review there, he remarked that it was going to be cold enough to freeze all the pipes and even the knobs off the doors, which would boom the plumbing and hardware trades. I left the humorist at the post office, one block farther on, and by the time I reached the foot of the bluff I realized that he was right. It seemed to me that I could never live to get home. The exposed portions of my face were frozen, and it took a long time to thaw myself out with ice before venturing into the house. When I entered my wife screamed, and looking into a mirror I saw that my beard, which was then long, was white as snow. It was not simply frosted; the roots of the hair had frozen, and every vestige of color had been taken out. The next day we went to Pekin, ten miles below Peoria, to attend the wedding of a friend of my wife. I had never been there, and it was evident that my wife's friends were astonished at my seeming age. I made up my mind to have the beard cut off as soon as I returned to Peoria. As we sat in the parlor of the house where the wedding was to occur I noticed first one and then another turn and gaze upon me. It seemed that some peculiar fascination existed in my beard. Their eyes opened wider and wider, and they sat spellbound. All conversation ceased. I felt so uncomfortable that, making some excuse, I started to leave the house. In doing so I passed a mirror in the hall, and a part of my beard showed up as black as it ever was. One by one the hairs would take on their natural color—the roots were thawing out. In an hour the transformation process was complete, but while the guests were too polite to say anything, when an explanation was made, I felt that they did not believe me, and that there was something uncanny about a man whose beard changed color like mine."—Washington Star.

A Dutchman's Question.

An agent for one of the large jewelry stores in Cincinnati was canvassing a section of the over-the-Rhine district, endeavoring to sell an eight-day clock. "My dear sir," he said to a portly German, "this is a remarkable clock. Not only is it beautifully finished, but it is a perfect time-piece. Why, it runs for eight days without winding." The German opened his eyes at this and gazed solemnly at the clock. "You say it run eight day vidout vinding?" he inquired of the agent. "Vell, dat is ein gut clock; but if it run eight days vidout vinding, den how long vill it run ven you do vind it?"—Youth's Companion.

Poor at Figures.

The following little anecdote may be of some interest, illustrating the mathematical capacity of the Boers: "Six years ago an Englishman owed a sum of £500 to a Boer. When payment was demanded, instead of paying the whole sum, he only paid him £300. On arriving home, the Boer counted out his money with the aid of a 'Ready Reckoner,' and found that he had been paid £200 short. He immediately returned to the Englishman, and explained to him that, according to his 'Ready Reckoner,' he was £200 short. The ready-witted Briton seized the book, and replied that it was 'last year's.' The Boer returned satisfied."—London Tit-Bits.

FIFTY-TWO MILES AN HOUR.

The Velocity Attained by a Wind Storm That Swept Through Town Yesterday.

SMASHED ALL RECORDS FOR BREEZES IN MONTH OF MARCH.

Likewise Smashed the Record in the Rear of Allen Cowden's Store—Carried Forty Feet Through the Air. City Hall Suffers, Too.

Yesterday Marquette experienced the most severe March wind in her history. The memory of the famous oldest inhabitant goeth not back to the time when in this season of the year a velocity of 52 miles an hour was reached, nor do the records of the United States weather station show anything to compare with it. It is true that one October day a few years ago an autumn zephyr swept through the whisks of Marquette people at the rate of 63 miles an hour, but nothing in the nature of spring breezes was like yesterday's. It was about mid-day when the climax was reached. The wind blew 43 miles from the south from 11:45 a. m. to 1:25 p. m. From that time the velocity ranged from 49 to 53 miles, some single miles blowing at the rate of 63. This latter figure, however, is not mentioned in the records as the weather bureau takes no account of velocities for periods less than five minutes.

That the gale did not do considerable damage to property and person is remarkable. Store signs were swinging back and forth, threatening every moment to fall on the head of some passer-by, but fortunately they had the good taste to remain where they were placed and continue to serve their humble missions as advertisements of Mr. So and So and Mr. This and That. Few cases of damage to property occurred. The most important was that on Washington street and that was notable as illustrating the power of the wind more than for the actual loss of property involved. The roof of the porch in the rear of Allen Cowden's store, a construction twenty by twelve feet in dimensions, was torn from its place and carried in the air the whole length of the store, seventy feet, where it struck the front of the building, tearing off a number of bricks and cracking the ceiling in the room underneath, then fell with a crash to the sidewalk in front. No one happened to be on the walk at the time, though the street is a much frequented one. About five feet of the iron railing on the roof of the City Hall was also torn off. The remainder of the railing wavered considerably but survived the storm without falling.

To atone for what little damage it caused, the wind did a great deal of good. The harbor was almost cleared of ice, the strong breeze from the south breaking it up and driving it out into the lake. With another day's wind Marquette will be ready for navigation and will have to wait only for the Soo to open, allowing the passage of boats up from lower lake ports.

Easter Market This Evening.

The Young Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's congregation will hold an Easter market at Morgan Memorial chapel this evening, beginning at 7 o'clock. The ladies, who have spent some time in preparing articles for the market, will have a great many interesting and useful things to sell. In reference to the occasion some unknown author has written a poem which is given below. It is not perfect in rhythm, neither does it contain many thoughts which will go echoing down the corridors of time, but is intended only to enlighten everyone as to what can be seen, admired and purchased at the market this evening. It is as follows:

If you need articles Japanese,
The stock we have will surely please;
Let us your order for coffee take
We furnish you gratis a piece of cake.

Though you may have to wade thro' snow,
Or start out in a heavy blow,
If to the chapel you will go,
You'll see the flowers we have to show.
Still it's always best the truth to tell,
The flowers are not to show—but sell.

You'll find on entering the door,
Fancy articles galore,
There spend your money and borrow more.
If your appetites are good,
Come and try our luscious food.

Ten More Names Needed.

Those having in charge the matter of the reorganization of the militia company have secured thirty-eight names on their petition. Ten more are needed. Of the thirty-eight who have signed twenty-nine were members of the Marquette Rifles. Although it is considered wise to have the application on file as soon as possible in order to forestall any possible competitor, it is believed that the company will be given three months in which to reorganize and apply for admission, and in support of this it is shown that it was three months after the Menominee militiamen had been mustered out of the national guard before an Iron Mountain company was allowed to take their place. Notwithstanding this belief, it is not intended to waste the three months of grace allowed by the state, and probably it will not be very long before the application is sent to the adjutant general.

In the reorganized company Captain Ball is in favor of having all nationalities and conditions of life represented—Americans, Germans, Irish, Scandinavians, etc. He thinks in this way more interest can be aroused among the public at large, insuring a moral and financial backing, something which a local company needs if it would succeed. The question of ways and means is always an important factor, and more or less occupies the attention of the company. It is estimated that the total expenses need not exceed $200 a year, a little less than half of which is received from the state, and it is suggested that the remaining sum be raised from the honorary memberships, say fifty honorary members at $10 each. All honorary members of militia companies are exempt from jury service. This is virtually the only personal benefit derived, but they can feel they are assisting in the maintenance of an organization designed and sometimes needed to preserve the public peace.

McDonald Not Yet Released.

On account of some unexplainable delay the pardon of John McDonald, signed by Governor Rich Monday, did not reach the branch prison yesterday, and he is still detained there, though no longer confined in a cell or wearing prison garb. It is expected that, without doubt, the pardon will be received today and that he will be released. The members of the prison board, G. L. Karsten, H. B. Smith, Charles F. Beck and J. H. Cole, the secretary, left for home yesterday after spending two days inspecting the penitentiary here.

Finished Their Work.

J. H. Thompson of Superior and John Weatherly of Chicago, two sub-contractors on the Lake Superior & Ishpeming railway, have completed their contracts. Each had about a mile of grading, Thompson's being near the city and Weatherly's at Forrestville. The work elsewhere is also progressing rapidly and is in good condition as far as it has gone. A recent examination of the road by experienced railroad men showed it in the most satisfactory state.

Marquette's New Breakwater.

The following was received by Associated Press last night concerning the proposed breakwater near Presque Isle: "Washington, March 24.—The war department, in reply to the resolution of inquiry, today sent to the house an estimate for a breakwater at Marquette bay, Michigan. The chief engineer estimates that the breakwater will cost from twenty to fifty thousand dollars, according to length, and that no survey will be necessary."

Marquette, March 18, 1896.

All last winter Mr. Geo. A. Mills, of Lebanon, Conn., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. At times it was so severe that he could not stand up straight, but was drawn over on one side. "I tried different remedies without receiving relief," he says, "until about six months ago I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. After using it for three days my rheumatism was gone and has not returned since. For sale by The H. H. Stafford Co.
