ST. LOUIS THEIR MECCA.

Politicians from All Over the Union Swarming Into the Missouri Metropolis.

HANNA AND MANLEY ALREADY ON THE GROUND.

Much Talk Over Money Plank and Possibility of Bolt by the Silver Element—Hotel Men Still Holding Out.

DELEGATES ARE GATHERING.

St. Louis, June 9.—Politicians great and small, black and white, from all over the Union are swarming into this town tonight. Although it is almost a week until the convention will be called to order there is a vast amount of preliminary work to be done. There are scores of contests to be argued before the national committee, which meets tomorrow, and preliminary to this there is a vast deal of routine work to be done. A long list of contests has been prepared for argument before the national committee. The contests are principally from the southern states, although New York and Delaware are represented.

MUCH TALK ON MONEY PLANK.

There is already considerable discussion among the delegates and other party leaders who have arrived as to the probable course that will be pursued on the financial question, and it is becoming evident this question will receive more attention than any other in the committee on resolutions and from the delegates generally. The possibility of a bolt by the free silver advocates in case of the incorporation of a plank in the platform which they will construe as unfriendly to silver is discussed freely in hotel lobbies, and by none more so than by the silver men themselves, of whom there are several already in the city. There has been no general conference among them, however, and will not be until the arrival of Teller, Dubois, Cannon and others, who are not expected until the latter part of this week or the first of next.

It is gathered from those who are already here that the disposition to bolt the convention is confined to a very few. One of the most prominent silver delegates tonight from the west felt that they had been elected by their Republican constituencies to secure all they could for silver, but they were not authorized to bolt if they found themselves in the minority, and the more general was the opinion that they should stand by the Republican organization. Among the representatives from California and a strong advocate of free silver, is already being urged in connection with the nomination for the vice presidency. When Mr. De Young was asked for an expression of his views as to the course of the silver men, he said:

SILVER MEN WILL FIGHT STRONG.
"The delegates from the silver states are very determined in their desire to advance the interests of silver. Some of them are very radical and talk about leaving the convention in case they fail to have their views adopted. This action will not be general. It is generally known that Colorado, under the leadership of Senator Teller, proposes to walk out of the convention. The California delegation has been instructed to vote for McKinley and the convention adopted a resolution in favor of the free coinage of silver, but no delegation do not intend to leave the party nor the convention in case of a failure of that nature."

"The silver men, especially from Colorado, Montana and other western states, think that if Senator Teller is nominated by the Democratic party in Chicago there will be no question of his endorsement by the two conventions that meet at St. Louis on July 23. These are the Silver party's convention and the Populist party. In fact, it is the understanding already made and agreed to that both of these conventions will endorse the nomination of Teller. If Teller is nominated by these three parties my private opinion is that he comes very near being elected."

"There is one serious question through the whole of this proposition. Will the Democratic party take a man out of the Republican national convention and make him the standard bearer of the great Democratic party? The general impression among the leading Democrats is that they will not do it. I think that if Teller leaves the convention Montana and Idaho will promptly follow. Utah, as a whole, will not. There may be one of its delegates that will. They are just as anxious for free silver as any of the other states. While I do not know what their delegates propose to do they can be depended upon to do everything that lies in their power to advance the interests of silver."

THE FREE COINAGE PROGRAM.
"What will be the probable program in the national convention of the silver men? Their members of the platform committee will offer an unlimited silver coinage plank, and if rejected by the committee when the committee makes the report to the convention Teller will be the one that will probably offer in open convention a substitute for the plank reported by the committee in the shape of one favoring the unlimited coinage of silver. They then will insist on discussing the substitute resolution on the floor of the convention. They will insist on a roll call on the substitute, and if defeated will then walk out of the convention."

Colonel Isaac Trumbo, one of the free silver delegates from Utah, said when asked if the silver men would bolt:

"That is a matter for future consideration. Thus far we have believed we could fight the matter out within our party lines, but if we fail we may be compelled to adopt some other course for our self-protection."

Richard C. Kerens, national committeeman from Missouri, returned today from Canton, where he was summoned by telegraph by McKinley. As to the object of his visit Kerens said it was to talk over the situation. They also talked about the money plank for the platform. At least half a dozen money planks had been sent to McKinley from different parts of the country. "I have examined them all," said Kerens, "and there is scarcely a pin's point of difference in their declarations. All are for sound money. McKinley is a sound money man. He will be nominated as such on the first ballot. By sound money, I mean the Republican party will maintain the same parity between gold and silver that it always did when in power."

FIRST COMMITTEE MEETING TODAY.

Nearly all the members of the national committee are here and others will arrive tomorrow. The first meeting will be held tomorrow. Chairman Carter arrived tonight from Washington with several other members who came from the east. General Clark, member from Iowa, is ill at Philadelphia and cannot be at the meeting. Senator Gear has his proxy. The committee will tomorrow take up the contested seats and also the selection of temporary chairman and other officers of the convention named by the committee.

There was considerable talk today about the selection of General Fairbanks of Indiana for temporary chairman and Senator Proctor of Vermont for permanent chairman, but there has also been a movement on foot to make Samuel Fessenden, a member of the national committee from Connecticut, temporary chairman and select the permanent chairman from the west. Thurston of Nebraska is mentioned for the place.

It is also probable the subject of accommodations for colored delegates will be considered. Chairman Carter said tonight that the matter would be adjusted, he thought, in a satisfactory manner. When he read the first statement of the difficulty he stated to friends in Indianapolis that if it was found impossible in St. Louis to find accommodations for Republicans on account of color it might be necessary to take the convention some place where all could be lodged and fed. Mr. Carter was informed by the members of the local committee that there would not be any further difficulty, although it is understood that at all the leading hotels no quarters have been available for colored men, the applicants having been informed the rooms were all taken.

A HALL FOR COLORED DELEGATES.
Regarding the color line trouble the Republic in the morning will say: From present indications it may become necessary for the Business Men's league to hire a hall in which to lodge the negro delegates who have neglected to engage rooms in advance. All the hotels are full save one, and the colored men who viewed the quarters provided in that building were disposed to kick because there was not hot and cold water running in every room.

Judge Long of Florida was offered accommodations for colored delegates in the Mona House, a small hotel on Sixth street. The proprietor refused to make a contract for less than five days and Judge Long wanted to limit the indebtedness for the rooms three days, with option on additional time should the convention last longer. But the confidence of the proprietor in a McKinley walk-over did not extend far enough to allow him to recede from his rule to let no rooms out for less than five days and the judge was forced to seek other accommodations.

Major Raynwater and Mr. Kennard made strenuous efforts to secure quarters for colored men at first class hotels, but they met with indifferent success. The proprietors say their rooms are all engaged by white men and by such colored men as possessed the foresight to engage them in advance, and they are absolutely refused to alter their arrangements at this late day even to help out the Business Men's league. Some arrangement satisfactory under the circumstances will be made, however, to care for the late comers among the negroes. They will be fed and lodged, even though it becomes necessary to lease a building for them.

FIRST PLACE OR NONE FOR REED.

Joseph H. Manley, member of the committee from Maine, who is the chief manager of Thomas B. Reed's campaign, came in tonight. He said he was not prepared to say how many votes Reed would get on the first ballot. When asked if Reed would accept the nomination of vice president he answered: "Under no circumstances will Reed take the nomination for vice president. He will have first place on the ticket or none at all."

MCKINLEY LEADERS HOT.

Drawing of Color Line at St. Louis Not Welcome News at Cleveland.
CLEVELAND, June 9.—The news that the color line would be drawn in St. Louis during the Republican convention created ire at the McKinley headquarters in this city. M. A. Hanna immediately wired Judge Thompson, who was in St. Louis, requesting him to see to it that all colored delegates were provided with comfortable quarters regardless of expense. Later he again telegraphed him to the effect that President Teach of the Ohio Republican league had offered the use of the St. Louis Exposition building for colored delegates. The league had leased the building as headquarters and meeting place. Hanna received a telegram from John Millholland of New York, tendering the use of the special train of sleeping cars which will carry the New York party to St. Louis, for colored delegates.

George Myers, who was a delegate to the last Republican convention and who is one of the foremost colored men in Ohio, has made arrangements to go

DEMOCRATS STAYED AWAY.

Services of the Sergeant-at-Arms Required to Drum Up a Quorum in House.

UNDERWOOD UNSEATED BY A NARROW MARGIN.

Final Conference Reports on Naval and Indian Bills Are Agreed to by Both Houses, Leaving Only Two Bills in Dispute.

THE CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The house reconvened this morning with the legislative day of Saturday still in existence. The Democrats stayed away for the purpose of breaking a quorum present in the hearing of the contested election case of Aldrich vs. Underwood, from the Ninth Alabama district. The sergeant-at-arms finally mustered a quorum, and a motion to lay on the table a motion to reconsider the vote by which the house decided to consider the contest was carried—130 to 45. The speaker counted four members present but not voting.

After the debate had continued half an hour, it was decided to prolong the debate to two hours on each side. Mr. Underwood, the contestant, spoke for an hour in his own behalf. Linney, in supporting the cause of the contestant, gave a picturesque denunciation of the election frauds which he said were practiced in the south by the Democratic organization. He argued that the only place where the wrongs committed could be corrected was in the house. To attempt to secure justice from local courts, he said, would be as futile as attempting to shoot the horns off the moon with a pop gun.

UNDERWOOD IS OUSTED.

Stallings, who defended Underwood's right to a seat, denounced Linney's remarks as "the dirtiest abuse of his own section ever delivered by a white man." When the time for debate expired Owens moved to recommit the case. The motion was lost—67 to 93. A vote was then taken on the first resolution declaring Underwood not entitled to a seat. The resolution was adopted—119 to 98. A resolution declaring Aldrich entitled to the seat was then adopted—116 to 107.

Cannon presented the conference report on the sundry civil bill. It agreed to all items in dispute except the public buildings amendments. Hainor, who refused to sign the conference report on the sundry civil bill because it contained appropriations for the Garfield and Providence hospitals of this city, explained he had consistently opposed appropriations for private or sectarian institutions from the first and he now believed that the question or principle involved could not be compromised. The report was adopted.

The final report on the naval bill was presented and agreed to without division, as was also the final report on the Indian bill. The members cheered tumultuously as these reports were adopted. The naval report was for three battleships and no armor contracts until congress fixes the price at the next session. The Indian report permits sectarian appropriations until July 1, 1897.

TWO BILLS STILL IN ISSUE.

Cannon appealed to the house not to yield to the senate in the matter of the public buildings amendments to the sundry civil bill, and with the exception of an amendment for a public building at Savannah, Ga., all were disagreed to and the bill sent to further conference. A partial conference report on the District of Columbia bill was presented and adopted. The report left the electric lighting in question and the public charities item still open.

A bill was passed to amend the act to prevent collisions at sea. A resolution was adopted directing the speaker to appoint a committee to investigate the management of the Leavenworth Soldiers' Home. The house, after the speaker had announced several committee appointments, then took a recess until tomorrow.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Warm Debate on Proposed Sherman Statue Award Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The senate today agreed to the final conference reports on the naval and Indian bills, leaving only the sundry civil and District of Columbia conference reports outstanding. A night session had been agreed to in anticipation of delays and opposition to the naval and Indian conference reports, but they went through so speedily that the night session was abandoned.

A resolution for an inquiry into the award of the statue of General W. T. Sherman occasioned an animated debate. Wolcott criticised the award on the ground that it was an injustice to the Society of American Sculptors and Allison, Hawley and Mills defended the award. The resolution was finally defeated.

The bill to amend the law respecting punishment for contempt of court was discussed by Hill and Allen, but a final vote was not reached. The measure is the result of the agitation over the imprisonment of Eugene V. Debs and others for contempt.

An effort to pass the Francis E. Hoover pension bill, recently vetoed by the president, failed through the absence of a quorum.

The supplementary deficiency bill, covering the mileage of new members of the house and other minor items,

A PICTURESQUE CANDIDATE.

A brochure designed to place the candidature of Chase S. Osborn for the Republican nomination for congress in this representative district before the voters in a favorable light has reached the editor's desk, through the courtesy of some friend. It is handsomely printed and there are sixteen pages of it, fourteen of which are devoted to a biographical sketch of Mr. Osborn, and newspaper notices of that accomplished editor and embryo statesman bearing on his latest ambition.

The front page is illuminated by a fine portrait of Mr. Osborn, which is a "speaking likeness" of the congressional possibility, and is in its way a rare work of art. The artist has posed his subject well. Mr. Osborn appears as fresh from the bath and the hands of his valet. All the strong lines of the fine face are admirably brought out. The full, dark eye seems fixed in "profound thought and the features bear the impress of a deep gravity, which is sweetly relieved by the cunning twist given the ends of the drooping mustache. The impression conveyed by the portrait is that the subject is a man of great mental power who is just beginning to discover what he is here for, and in whom the exuberance of a joyous nature is being finely tempered by a sense of the responsibilities which a great career, just opening, is crowding on him. One can hardly look on that portrait without exclaiming, "Here is a man!" and involuntarily forming the purpose of voting for him for congressman, or governor, or president, or whatever other public position he may aspire to.

But leaving the portrait of Mr. Osborn, (which one does regretfully, and with a last lingering look upon the many lineaments there reproduced), we turn the page and come to the biography. This is deeply interesting. It sets forth in simple, unaffected language that the subject of the sketch was born January 22, 1850, "in a log house in Huntington county, Indiana," that he received a common school and university education, and has been engaged in newspaper work for twenty years, obtaining "valuable experience on the metropolitan dailies of Chicago, Milwaukee and other cities, in connection with which he occupied positions of trust and responsibility," before going into business on his own account; and that "for the past thirteen years he has conducted publications of his own with a highly satisfactory degree of success." Mr. Osborn, we are told, "comes of Republican ancestry," and that he is worthy of such lineage is delicately insinuated by the statement that his Republicanism "has always been of the kind that would not permit his connection with any other than stalwart Republican newspapers." But in his personal intercourse with Democrats he is kind and affable, so much so that even their partisan prejudice against him cannot withstand the winning graciousness of his manner. In proof of his popularity with Democrats it is related by one of his newspaper admirers that a neighbor of his at the "Noo" who is a staunch Democrat has named his boy baby "Chase Osborn something" out of the fullness of his admiration for the man whose Republicanism is so pronounced that he would sooner starve than take employment on any other than a "stalwart Republican newspaper."

Then follows a list of the fraternal and other organizations with which Mr. Osborn is connected. But it is not only as a society man that he shines. We learn from this modest but veracious sketch of his multifarious accomplishments that in addition to a comprehensive knowledge of the newspaper business Mr. Osborn has had practical experience in "mining and lumbering," is a noted woodman, and is "not only familiar with the great interests of the upper peninsula, but with similar interests in other states and countries, with which they are brought into competition." As a traveler he has covered all of this continent where railroad passes make the way of the tourist peculiarly easy, and also a considerable portion of Mexico. He has a wide acquaintance with public men, and is "tirelessly energetic and has no failures to record." What more can the party ask in a congressional candidate? In whom else, available for the nomination, can it find so much?

Coming to the newspaper endorsements of Mr. Osborn's candidacy, one is overwhelmed by the testimony in his favor bore by the able editors of such influential party organs as the Escanaba Journal, the Gladstone Tribune, the Alger County Shot Gun, the Iron Mountain Gazette, the Ontonagon Miner and other papers of equal standing and influence as exponents of party doctrine and sentiment. Measured by the enthusiastic admiration of these moulders of public opinion, Mr. Osborn if already great, and in selecting him as their representative in congress, should they do this, the people of the district will be only availing themselves of superior capacity which awaits their

PHOTOGRAPHING A WHALE.

A Snap-Shot at a Monster as It Leaped Out of the Water.

Whether a certain whale that breakfasted, dined and supped every day in the Santa Catalina channel, went out one morning with the determination of being photographed, I really cannot say; but the picture was certainly taken. Living in the neighborhood the whale was probably familiar with the steamer that plowed daily through its dining-room; and if it was at all an observing whale, it must have noticed on the morning in question an unusual commotion on the deck of the steamer, and this is what it saw. The passengers were crowding about the rail, and on the upper deck stood a man and a little girl, the former holding a square black box into which he looked earnestly. And if the whale had come a little nearer this is what he might have heard: "Will he look pleasant?" asked the little girl of her companion. "I hope so," he replied, glancing rapidly from the camera to the whale that was then swimming a few hundred feet away.

The passengers had first observed it a mile or more distant, when the little girl said it was "dancing on its tail." It had, really, leaped out of the water, and for a few seconds exposed almost its entire back—most astonishing spectacle—and then had fallen back into the sea with a thundering crash. Soon it came to the surface again, and shooting a cloud of vapor into the air that slowly floated away, at intervals disappeared and reappeared until finally it came alongside the steamer, swimming along within a short distance. It was then that the fortunate possessor of the camera secured a good position near the rail, and waited, as his little companion had said, for the whale to "look pleasant." Looking pleasant, in this instance, meant for the whale to show a large portion of its body above the water. It was now swimming just below the surface, its huge black form, 60 or 70 feet in length, distinctly visible, propelled by the undulating movement of the tail. Suddenly it rose, showing just the portion around the blow holes, and with a loud puff the hot breath burst into the air, was condensed, and in a little cloud drifted away.

"Didn't he look pleasant?" asked the little girl, earnestly. "Not quite pleasant enough," said the photographer, as he peered in the tiny window of the camera that reflected the sea in brilliant tints. "I could catch the spout but I want to wait until he throws his entire head out of water and looks really pleasant before I touch the button."

It was an exciting moment, as never, so far as known, had a living whale, in the open ocean, posed before a camera, and a photographer seen so huge an animal obligingly swim along, allowing its picture to be taken. "It's a tame whale, isn't it?" said the little girl, as the whale gradually came nearer. "He certainly does not seem very timid," replied her companion; and as he spoke, puff came the spouting like the escape of steam, the vapor actually drifting aboard the steamer into the faces of the passengers.

The whale was now so near that the barnacles upon his back could be seen, and one man was sure that he saw its eye. Suddenly it sank, and all that could be seen in the little window was the dancing waves and the white sails of myriads of vellulas that covered the surface, scudding along before the fresh tradewind. Then, without warning, the creature as suddenly rose again, showing a large area of its back, sending at the same time a cloud of misty vapor into the air as its top or dorsal fin appeared. The photographer saw it in the little window, and evidently thinking that the whale looked as pleasant as he in all probability would, touched the button, and so far as is known, took the first photograph of a living whale in the open ocean.—Charles Frederick Holder, in St. Nicholas.

Suddenly it sank, and all that could be seen in the little window was the dancing waves and the white sails of myriads of vellulas that covered the surface, scudding along before the fresh tradewind. Then, without warning, the creature as suddenly rose again, showing a large area of its back, sending at the same time a cloud of misty vapor into the air as its top or dorsal fin appeared. The photographer saw it in the little window, and evidently thinking that the whale looked as pleasant as he in all probability would, touched the button, and so far as is known, took the first photograph of a living whale in the open ocean.—Charles Frederick Holder, in St. Nicholas.

Booth's Message Scratched on Glass.

On August 13, 1864, John Wilkes Booth was playing a dramatic engagement in Meadville, Pa. Upon his arrival in the city that day he registered at the McHenry house, then kept by a Mr. R. M. U. Taylor, and after the performance in the evening retired alone to his room. When the servant entered his room the next morning, after Booth had left the hotel and city, an inscription was discovered scratched in a large hand on one of the window panes: "Abe Lincoln departed this life Aug. 13th, 1864, by the effects of poison." Little attention was paid to the writing on the glass at the time; but as soon as it was learned that Booth had killed the president the circumstances connected with the window inscription were recalled, the glass was removed from its sash, framed in a plain black wooden frame, a piece of dark velvet being placed at its back to facilitate reading, and the signature of Booth entered on the register August 13 was cut from the book and attached to the window glass. The original pane is now in the possession of the war department, to which it was presented by the daughter of the owner of the hotel, Miss Mary McHenry, some time after the assassination of the president. All of the circumstances in connection with the glass are certified to by Miss McHenry and by other residents of Meadville.—Victor Louis Mason, in Century.

Tramp—Please, mum, I'm starving. Won't you let me have a postage stamp to lick? Experienced Housekeeper—Why, certainly. Wait until he is through, and perhaps he'll let you put the stamp on. Tramp (hastily departing)—Thankee kindly, mum, but maybe I can get a stamp at the next house without waiting.—N. Y. Weekly.

THE TELEGRAPHIC EAR.

There is Individuality in the Touch of the Operator.

A night telegrapher will lay his head within two inches of a working instrument, and sleep as soundly as if he were in bed; but if his own office call is sounded by the instrument, he will waken on the instant.

While in Newark, N. J., a year or two ago, I was called to the Western Union office by telephone. When I arrived there the manager said: "There is a man in Philadelphia who wants to talk to you," pointing out the instrument which I was to use. I opened the key and called Philadelphia. The operator answered, and I made myself known. "How are things, my boy," came back an answer, with no name attached. "Joe Gettler," I said; and so it was.

It was in Tennessee or Kentucky, I forget which. Waite, with his pocket instrument, got inside the confederate lines, and having learned that messages were being sent over a certain wire from Richmond, he tapped the wire and copied several valuable messages.

This was nothing new, for operators on both sides did the same thing time and again. But Waite was overanxious. There was an interruption in the middle of the dispatch, and Jim was eager to get the remainder. To urge the sender he opened his key and simply said: "G. A. Commissary." The "G. A." meant "go ahead," and "commissary" was the last word that had been sent.

What was Waite's surprise to hear instead of a continuance of the message: "Jim Waite, what are you doing on this line? Get out, or there will be trouble." Jim didn't wait even to discover who the man was. He said afterward that the sender had a familiar sound, but he couldn't for the life of him tell who the operator was.

Jim found out four or five years later. He was still telegraphing and was employed in the old Broadway office of the Western Union Telegraph company, New York. One day a young man walked into the office and asked for Jim Waite.

The two men looked at each other, but there was no recognition of the visitor by Waite. In fact, they looked upon each other's faces for the first time.

"So you're Jim Waite," said the caller. "Well, I'm glad to meet you. My name is Mosely, Charles Mosely, and I used to sign 'C. R.' in Charleston."

Waite remembered him in an instant. The two men for a long time had worked different ends of a north and south wire before the outbreak of the war, and had become fast friends without ever having met. Still, Jim didn't know Mosely was the man who had told him to get off the wire inside the confederate lines.

"Where did you go after stealing those dispatches I was sending during the war?" asked Mosely; and then Waite understood it all.—Philadelphia Times. A Queer Reader. "Of course we have some peculiar experiences," said an attaché of the Congressional library, "for we have rather a peculiar lot of people to deal with, but they are by no means of a sensational character or of enough interest to build a newspaper article on. I think the most amusing happening is that of an old gentleman who comes in regularly every morning and draws up a list of from six to eight books that he wants. They are given him and he retires to one of the far corners in the wings. He then devotes some time to polishing up his glasses and seemingly prepares himself for a long read, but he invariably falls asleep before he gets over ten pages of the first book he handles. He sleeps nicely until two o'clock, when he goes out for lunch. He never returns after lunch. And now for the strange part of it. He says he actually absorbs information from the books while he is asleep and in some cases he has shown us that he has."—N. Y. Tribune. The Ermine's Colors. It was formerly believed that the hairs composing the fur of the ermine, which is brown in summer and white in winter, could not change their hue, and that the difference in color between the summer and winter coats of the animal arose solely from the fact that at the beginning of winter the summer fur is shed and a new coat, of snowy whiteness, takes its place. Lately, however, experiments have shown that if an ermine wearing its warm-weather coat is subjected to a lowering of temperature, its brown fur will quickly become white without shedding of the hair. It remains true, however, that the ordinary winter dress of the ermine is put on only when the summer one falls off.—Youth's Companion.

OUR TRADE MENACED.

Invasion by the Cheap Products of Oriental Labor Is Threatened.

CHAIRMAN DINGLEY SUBMITS REPORT TO HOUSE.

Recommends Prohibition of Entry of Japanese Goods or the Imposition of Heavy Duties to Offset Difference in Wages.

COMPETITION THAT IS FEARED.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Chairman Dingley of the house ways and means committee today made a report on the menace to American manufacturers by the threatened invasion of the cheap products of Oriental labor and upon the effect of the difference of exchange between gold standard and silver standard countries upon the United States' manufacturing and agriculture, these questions having been investigated by the committee.

The report says the sudden awakening of Japan from its Oriental slumber of centuries is being followed by an equally rapid westernizing of her methods of industry; that while the Japanese do not have the inventive faculty of Americans, or even of Europeans, their imitative faculties are wonderful. Their standard of living would be regarded as practical starvation by workmen of the United States and their daily hours of labor average twelve. Such skilled workmen as blacksmiths, carpenters, masons, compositors, tailors and plasterers received in Japanese cities only from twenty-six to thirty-three cents, and factory operatives from five to twenty cents per day in our money and nearly double those sums in Japanese silver money, while farm hands received $1.44 per month. Europeans and Americans, says Chairman Dingley, are recognizing the profitable field afforded for investments and factories.

While your committee has not found that any articles of importance made by factory methods in Japan, outside of cheap silks, handkerchiefs, mattings, rugs, etc., have as yet invaded the markets of the United States, it is probable that the rapid introduction of machinery into Japan within a few years will make Japanese factory products, and probably fine cottons, silks and other articles in which the cost here is an important element in production, more serious competitors in our markets than the products of Great Britain, France and Germany have been, simply for the reason that Japanese wages are lower than European wages and Japanese labor is likely to soon become as effective with machinery as European labor is.

The committee reports that it knows of no articles of importance made by factory methods in Japan, outside of cheap silks, handkerchiefs, mattings, rugs, etc., have as yet invaded the markets of the United States, it is probable that the rapid introduction of machinery into Japan within a few years will make Japanese factory products, and probably fine cottons, silks and other articles in which the cost here is an important element in production, more serious competitors in our markets than the products of Great Britain, France and Germany have been, simply for the reason that Japanese wages are lower than European wages and Japanese labor is likely to soon become as effective with machinery as European labor is.

According to the report manufacturing wages in the United States are 25 per cent. higher in purchasing power than a quarter of a century ago, in consequence of which the labor cost of production in Japan is largely diminished while the labor cost of production in the United States has been increased, except as counteracted by the large use of labor-saving devices. It is claimed, however, that notwithstanding the wages of the Japanese laborer have not risen, as silver yen of Japan has been depreciated as compared with gold; yet his wages will still buy as many Japanese products as they would twenty-three years ago. It is evident that so far as the Japanese people consume foreign products they must pay nearly twice as much for them either in their own production or in their own money as they would pay if they were not on a silver basis—a fact which clearly diminishes the purchasing power of Japanese wages one half so far as the Japanese consume foreign products.

SILVER STANDARD DISADVANTAGES. The report continues: "Silver standard countries, like Japan and Mexico, in which, as it is claimed, prices of domestic products remain the same as in 1873, are put at this disadvantage in their trade with foreign countries on a gold standard, in that the latter countries are able to use silver, which costs nearly 50 per cent. less than it did in 1873, in payment for the products of silver standard countries, practically paying only half as much in their money for products of silver standard countries as they paid in 1873, while silver standard countries pay, or at least paid in 1892, 85 per cent. more in silver and only 15 per cent. less in gold for the products of gold standard countries than they did in 1873.

In considering the probabilities of enlisting the manufacturing countries of Europe in an international agreement for a fixed coinage ratio between gold and silver it is said that the leading European countries, especially Great Britain, must be first to feel the competition of Japan and other Oriental countries.

ST. LOUIS THEIR MECCA.

St. Louis with fifteen other prominent Ohio Republicans to work for McKinley. Some time ago he engaged quarters for the entire party at the St. James Hotel, sending a check and getting a receipt. Mr. Hanna, who departed for St. Louis today, will ascertain whether the hotel refuses to entertain the colored men and telegraph Myers. In any event Myers and party will go to St. Louis, and in case the hotels refuse to shelter the colored delegates he will call them together in meeting and take whatever action is deemed advisable.

BRADLEY IN THE RING.

Hasn't Withdrawn from Presidential Contest—Something Hot Promised.

CINCINNATI, June 9.—The Commercial Gazette's Frankfort (Ky.) correspondent says: Governor Bradley has again donned his fighting clothes and tomorrow an interview, probably supplemented by some spicy documents, will be given out for publication by the Kentucky candidate for president. Several days ago it was stated Mr. Bradley had not withdrawn from the presidential race, and an interview Governor Bradley will authorize tomorrow will not only verify this statement but will probably have an important effect on the campaign now in progress between the aspirants for the nomination.

Several days ago statements were sent out from Washington, which originated in McKinley circles, to the effect that Bradley wrote McKinley while he was at Thomasville, Ga., on his southern tour two years ago, asking his advice as to what currency position he should take and intimating that he (Bradley) was favorable to free silver. According to the Washington story McKinley answered Bradley, advising him not to withdraw from a gold standard. The governor will touch on this matter in the interview. When it is stated two sets of Ohio letters are in the governor's possession and also letters from other presidential candidates on the currency question who asked for advice at the time Bradley wrote McKinley at Thomasville, interest of national character will be created.

It was Governor Bradley's intention to give out the statement tonight, but he concluded to hold a consultation with several Republican leaders before publishing it. The latest Bradley interview will be red hot and create a national commotion. It has been alleged Governor Bradley reconsidered his alleged withdrawal on the receipt of telegrams from Platt, Quay & Co.

A LETTER FROM GOV. BOIES.

Silver Democrats Not Looking in Other Parties for Candidates.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The following is an extract from a letter from Governor Boies of Iowa received today: "If the silver delegates control the convention at Chicago a Democrat will certainly be nominated by that convention if he is a thoroughly tried and true friend of the free coinage of silver and is capable and honest. It would, in my judgment, be absolutely impossible to unite any considerable number of delegates to that convention in favor of nominating any one outside of the party for the head of the ticket, at least."

KNOWS MCKINLEY HAS A CINCH.

Senator Cullom States His Name Will Not Be Presented.

CHICAGO, June 9.—A special dispatch to The Post from Washington today said: Senator Cullom has definitely declared himself out of the presidential race. He said today: "My name will not be presented to the St. Louis convention. McKinley will be nominated. I came to the conclusion that it was no use for me to do anything immediately in the Springfield convention declared for McKinley. Of course, if anybody wants to vote for me I can't help his doing so, but my name will not be presented."

NO DISCRIMINATION GOES.

Chairman Carter Says Negro Delegates Must Be Taken Care Of.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9.—The Republican state central committee today adopted a resolution of protests against discriminating against colored delegates to the national convention at St. Louis. Chairman Carter, who passed through the city today en route to St. Louis, stated there must be no color discrimination; that he was going to St. Louis for the purpose of preventing it, if possible. The colored delegates, said Mr. Carter, must be taken care of.

(Continued from Page One.) was passed, as was also the house bill authorizing the attorney general to select a site and secure plans for a federal prison on the military reservation at Leavenworth, Kas.

THE SHERMAN STATUE AWARD. Regarding the resolution to investigate the award of the Sherman statue, Mr. Wolcott said: From twenty-six models submitted a committee of American sculptors made an award but this was disregarded by the committee of the Army of the Tennessee, who gave the award to Carl Rholmsmith, thus "boosting him up" from tenth place in competition to first place. It was a flagrant disregard of justice, said the senator, and reputation of the terms on which sculptors had been tricked into submitting their models. Already, said Senator Wolcott, the national capital was disgraced by statues and bronzes which were a disgrace to the end of the Nineteenth century.

Allison insisted the Army of the Tennessee retained the right to make final determination of the models. The Sculptors' society acted merely in an advisory capacity. The old comrades of General Sherman were best qualified to select a model which truly marked his lineaments. The senator protested against the resolution, which would create scandal and discredit, and carry a stigma against the Army of the Tennessee.

Senator Hawley also believed General Sherman's old comrades would be able to select a statue which would be not only an ideal of the great general, but one recognizable as Sherman himself. Mills referred to his service on the commission to select statues of General Grant and Logan and said that in each case he had declined to accept the conclusions of the artists and had insisted that the families of the generals should be consulted.

SECRETARY CARLISLE'S REPLY.

Why the Bond Issues of the Last Three Years Were Made.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Secretary Carlisle's reply to the sub-committee of the senate finance charged with the investigations of the sale of United States bonds during the years 1894, 1895 and 1896 was made public today. Reviewing the conditions which led to the bond issues, the secretary says: "Largely on account of apprehensions in this country and abroad as to the ability of the government to continue the current redemption of its notes in gold coin and to maintain the parity of the metal, and notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts by the department to maintain the gold reserve intact, it became necessary to use part of it for redemption purposes. Very little gold was received on accounts due to the government and it was therefore impossible to increase the reserve without resorting to the issue and sale of bonds under the authority conferred by the resumption act."

Regarding the second bond issue, Mr. Carlisle says: "It soon became evident the transaction had not been effectual to stop the withdrawals of gold. These large withdrawals were due almost entirely, as far as could be ascertained, to a feeling of apprehension in the public mind, especially among the holders of our securities abroad, which increased in intensity from day to day until it reached the proportions of a panic in the financial centers; and it was evident that unless effectual steps were promptly taken to check the growing distrust of the government, it would be compelled within a few days to suspend gold payments and drop to a silver and paper standard. The situation was so grave that the attention of congress was called to the subject on the 28th of January, 1895."

After freely quoting from this message the secretary says that congress having failed to pass any measure for the relief of the treasury, as asked for, or to take any action calculated to allay the serious apprehensions existing in the public mind, the government was compelled to issue bonds to obtain gold.

Continuing the secretary says: "My opinion is that the prices received by the government for the bonds in 1894, 1895 and 1896 were as high as it was possible to obtain under the circumstances existing at the times when the sales were made. The same conditions which make an issue of bonds necessary also depress the price of such securities in all the markets of the world, and consequently the government was compelled to make its sales under the most unfavorable circumstances.

"In relation to that part of the resolution which directs the committee to investigate and report 'what effect the bond sales had on the credit and business of the people of the United States,' I have the honor to say that in my opinion the sales were necessary for the preservation of the credit of the government and the security of the business interests of the people and they, in fact, accomplished those results."

APPLIES TO ALL SCHOOLS.

No More Appropriations for Sectarian Educational Institutions.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—In the conference report on the Indian bill which was agreed upon today a change was made in the declaration of policy concerning schools. The word "Indians" was omitted, so that the declaration was broadened. It now reads: "It is hereby declared to be the settled policy of the government to hereafter make no appropriation whatever for education in any sectarian school."

THEY ARE LAWS NOW.

The president today signed the post-office appropriation bill, the acts to expedite the delivery of imported parcels not exceeding $500 in value and to regulate mail matter of the fourth class and a joint resolution to authorize a scientific investigation of the fur seal fisheries.

ger train. The remains were still warm. Shortly after the train moved away a young man giving the name of Adcock appeared at the morgue and identified the body as that of W. E. Dudley of Macon, Ills. According to Adcock, he and Dudley were stealing a ride home. When near Duncombe he was shot. There were five others on the platform, and Adcock supposed the shot was fired by drunken tramps. The coroner's jury set Adcock at liberty.

FOUND THEM IN DUNGEONS.

Consul Lee Secures Better Treatment for American Prisoners. HAVANA, June 9.—The gathering of the sugar crop has nearly terminated. It amounts to about one-eighth of the crop of last year.

United States Consul General Lee visited Cabanas fortress and saw Julio Sangulily and the prisoners taken on board the schooner Competitor. General Lee found them shut up in a dungeon with negro prisoners. Laborde, who is said to have been the leader of the Competitor expedition and who is an American citizen, was found to be very sick. Laborde did not complain of bad treatment, though the air of the dungeon where he was confined was damp and the walls moist. General Lee informed Captain General Weyer of the sickness of the prisoners and of the bad condition of their dungeon. General Weyer promised they would be placed in a better situation and should be changed immediately to a room separated from the other prisoners.

QUAY MEN ARE WORSTED.

Republican County Conventions Yesterday Disastrous to Reformers.

PITTSBURG, June 9.—Eighteen Republican county conventions were held today and resulted in a decided victory for the regulars. The reformers secured the nomination of W. A. Stone for congress in the Twenty-third district and four assemblymen in the First and Second legislative districts. The other faction carried everything else. A riot occurred in the Eighth legislative convention and the Quay people bolted and held a convention of their own. During the struggle the seats of the common council chamber were torn up and thrown about, desks overturned, etc., pistols brandished and quite a number of heads bumped and eyes blackened. It required a squad of twenty policemen to restore order.

CYCLONE IN ALABAMA.

Town of Wyeth City Struck—Usual Havoc Is Wrought.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 9.—At noon today a tornado of unusual severity struck the town of Wyeth City, thirty miles from Gadsden, in northern Alabama. Thirteen houses were literally blown from the face of the earth, but only two deaths—Ed Long and a negro woman—have been reported. One hundred or more persons were injured, and many of them are being taken care of at Gantersville, Gadsden and other neighboring towns. Of five structures nothing could be found but small pieces of kindling wood. Trees as large as two feet in diameter were twisted to pieces. Twenty-five people were seriously injured and six of them are reported to be dying.

OLD VETERANS AT MARINETTE.

Annual Encampment of the Wisconsin Division of the Grand Army.

MENOMINEE, Mich., June 9.—The annual encampment of the Wisconsin Veterans opened in Marinette tonight with a big camp fire. Every train today brought large numbers of representatives from all over the state. Mayor Sherman delivered the address of welcome and Rev. S. Counterline and others delivered stirring addresses. Candidates for division commander are: Captain W. J. Patton, Green Bay; G. A. Geisler, Sheboygan; Senior Vice Commander C. Townsend, Benton; Past Captain Goldsmith, Milwaukee; and Captain R. M. Smith, Marinette.

SEVERAL SERIOUSLY INJURED.

A Portico, Crowded With Circus Parade Spectators, Collapsed.

OTTAWA, Kas., June 9.—While two dozen people were crowded onto a portico in front of Shomo's drug store on Main street, witnessing a passing circus parade today, the structure gave way, precipitating men, women and children fifteen feet to the walk below. Seventeen people were more or less seriously hurt. Several of the injured had legs and arms broken. Mrs. David Day of Bantou was so badly hurt she will probably die.

Jackson's Veracity Attacked.

NEWPORT, Ky., June 9.—In the Walling trial today thirty-three depositions were read. Two expert doctors were presented by the defense. Each of these was so skillfully and thoroughly examined by Colonel Nelson for the commonwealth, as to make their final testimony invaluable to the prosecution. Much of the evidence today was mainly directed against the reputation for truth and veracity of George H. Jackson, the colored cab driver.

Won't Call an Extra Session.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 9.—Governor Stone has replied to Mayor Wallbridge's letter asking him to call an extra session of the legislature to submit to the people a constitutional amendment enabling St. Louis to issue bonds for relief from damage by the recent tornado. The governor, after giving the matter careful consideration, declined to call an extra session.

The chief address was delivered by Roland Reed. At the conclusion of the services the remains were sent to Chicago.

UNTOLD MISERY

RHEUMATISM

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills, but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphia. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

STATE CONVENTION PLANS.

W. C. T. U. Women Making Preparations for the Gathering of the State Cohorts.

STATE ORGANIZATION TO HOLD FIVE DAY MEETING.

Temperance Workers from All Over Michigan Will be on Hand to Participate in a Splendid Program.

BIG MEETING AT HAND.

Every day finds the ladies of the local W. C. T. U. busy as bees preparing for the state convention. The first session is to be called to order at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. All day Friday the delegates will be arriving, and as fast as they come from the trains they will be escorted to the homes which have generously been thrown open to provide entertainment for them. Mrs. Charles McCormick is chairman of the committee which has this matter in hand. Usually there are about 150 delegates in attendance on the state convention, but as Marquette is quite remote from towns in the lower portion of the state, the number expected here is not much in excess of a hundred. However, the attendance may be swelled by delegates from upper peninsula points who find it difficult to attend when the convention is held in the lower peninsula. Counting Sunday the convention lasts five days. All of its sessions will be held in the Baptist church. The bulk of the business will be done on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday.

What is called a "Demonstration meeting" is to be held Friday evening and practically all the temperance societies in the city will take part in its exercises. Addresses of welcome will be given that night. Mrs. Hanawalt will speak in behalf of the local union; Rev. Frank J. Mallett will extend the hand of fellowship from the churches, and Mayor Jacobs will officially welcome the ladies of the convention to Marquette. Mrs. C. H. Johnson, recording secretary, will speak in response to the triple welcome. The music for the evening, and of the entire convention as well, is in the hands of Mrs. J. C. Higbee. The convention proper begins on Saturday, and the morning and afternoon sessions are to be given over largely to reports of officers and committees. During the afternoon session the delegates will vote by ballot on the state motto. For the more popular evening meeting there will be ten minute speeches by Ella S. Hopkins, Ninth district president; Mrs. C. C. Faxon, Tenth district president; Mrs. R. A. Campbell, Eleventh district president; recitation, Miss Clara Wheeler, Grand Rapids; Mrs. E. N. Law, Twelfth district president; Mrs. E. L. Calkins, Fourth district president; Mrs. Julia R. Parish, state corresponding secretary.

Several of these speakers have more than a state reputation, and the attendance of the general public is sure to be large. Sunday there will be but one session. That is to be a gospel temperance mass meeting held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The annual sermon will be delivered by Rev. Frances Torrey. Officers to serve during the coming year will be elected at the Monday morning session. Reports will be read during this session on various departments of the W. C. T. U.'s work. In the evening Dr. Mary Wood-Allen, the well-known lecturer, will deliver an address on a subject yet to be announced.

The morning and afternoon sessions Tuesday will be taken up with addresses and the reading of papers. The last session of the convention will be a Y. and L. T. L. session in charge of Mrs. Lottie Coburn.

HOUSEHOLD INVENTIONS.

Some Ingenious Devices for Mistress and Maid.

People are keen-witted in these days. Active brains are working night and day, thinking what can be done to supply public needs. No sooner is a demand made known, no matter from what humble source, than some inventor is quick to catch the idea and puzzle out something to fill the want. The cry for "fresh air" has resulted in cunning little ventilators for pillows, whereby pure air may circulate through the feathers. They are small, metal, thimble-like contrivances, with wire netting in their sunken centers, and can be inserted at intervals along the seam at either end of the pillow. They are sewn in securely, and the edges are smoothed and rounded so as not to wear the pillow-case, which, of course, should be removed every day or two, so as to allow a free circulation of air.

An invention described as a "bottle-locker" seems to be an effective cheer to any weakness on the part of butlers and maids. Whisky, brandy, port, all liquors and wines, in fact, may be locked fast in their individual bottles, in sideboards or on pantry shelf, so as to defy the fingers of the meddlesome. Of nickel-plate, they are the depth of a cork in length, and fit securely over the mouth of the bottle. These novel devices, each supplied with its own quick-turning key, insure security to the distrustful, and a tantalizing, touch-me-not defiance to the intrusive. "I am here, but not for you," the locked bottle says, and the maid and butler think that this is an ungrateful world. If the cook may not draw on the wine closet, however, she has distinct advantages in these progressive days over her predecessors.

To seed raisins used to be a sticky, tedious undertaking, from which even the most indefatigable of workers shrank with distaste. The faster one worked, the more her fingers were clogged and poorer the results. Nowadays clever little machines are screwed to the edge of a table and then filled with a handful of raisins. After a few revolutions of the crank the raisins come out free from the adhesive seeds. The genius who came to the rescue of so many long-suffering cake-bakers and pudding-boilers should have a monument erected to his memory. For those who do not wish to buy these nickel-plate seeders there is a nominal price, worked with much more trouble, but with a saving of time and patience, all the same, as compared with hand seeding.

An olive corer, which may also be used for taking the seeds out of dates, is counted among this season's novelties. This corer has a sharp little tooth that clutches the olive, and, quicker than a flash, removes the stone from it. In shape it reminds one of an intricate nut-cracker, and recalls as well a certain kind of button-hole scissors. The olive corer is handsome and by no means inexpensive, but is worth much to the housewife and her maids.

There is no danger any more of skinning one's fingers in the economical endeavor to grate a nutmeg down to the last extremity, for the improved graters are now arranged so that they both hold and grate the nutmeg—Tolledo Blade.

Why the Judge Changed His Mind About Getting a Shave.

Judge Murphy has earned the reputation of being the severest man on the criminal bench, and law-breakers stand in wholesome fear of him. Two state prisons are filled with men who can testify to the almost picturesque severity of the judge's sentences. A political friend of his told me of an occurrence which shows that the judge is not forgotten. Judge Murphy was once called rather suddenly to Folsom prison on some official business. In his hasty departure he had no time to arrange his toilet, so upon his arrival he stood in the middle of the prison barber, a big negro in stripes. Judge Murphy took his seat; the barber tucked towels into his collar and lathered and rubbed his face. "How long are you in for?" asked the judge. "Life, sah," replied the barber, and commenced drawing the razor over the judge's throat. "What did you do?" The barber paused in his work, but hung not take his fingers or razor from three in judge's throat. "You oughter know, judge," said he, through his sent me." "That so?" gasped the judge. "I packed a full beard," and he rolled out a chair in a hurry.—San Francisco News.

A few days smelling the finger tips became so sore that a failure, obliged to consult the doctor, many in-sounded that the sores were those elegant and by vaccination, which Taylor very like-inadvertently practiced upon him-using it) by using a vaccine point as a nail-altogether.—N. MINORCA IN THE LAST CENTURY

A Pleasant Island Inhabited by Ignorant People. Minorca was a pleasant island inhabited by an unpleasant people. The countryside was covered thick with olive trees, through the woods looked more inviting than they were, for the ground was stony. There were no meadows, so it was hard to pasture horses, but mules thrived somehow and were useful beasts--much more so than horses.

TRIBUTE TO A MOTHER.

Interview With Charles H. Pinkham.

Malicious Stories About Lydia E. Pinkham Never Having Existed Refuted.

Son of the Famous Lynn Benefactor Tells of Her Kindly Interest in Woman-Kind and Her Actual Personality.

[Times-Herald, Chicago.]

Lydia E. Pinkham, who is so widely known by the benign face in the celebrated patent medicine advertisement, is not, as many people suppose, a myth. To this fact there is no stronger evidence than her son, Charles H. Pinkham, whom the Times-Herald reporter had the pleasure of interviewing today.

Lydia Pinkham's personality has probably never been described in any of the publications illuminated by her kindly portrait, but that she was a living force in the world was a positive fact.

Charles H. Pinkham passed through Chicago the other day on his way to spend a vacation in the west. To a representative of the Times-Herald he spoke feelingly of his mother and the painful impression that prevails in some quarters as to her non-existence.

"Of course," said Mr. Pinkham, "the mere idea is absurd to me, her son, who knew her to be the kindest, sweetest, gentlest mother in the world. She was all her portrait speaks her to be, and her whole life was given up to doing all the good she could in this weary world."

SIMPLE LIFE AND SYMPATHETIC. Her life was simple and her heart full of sympathy and tender feeling.

Lydia Estes--that was her maiden name--was born in Lynn, Mass., and before her marriage she taught school in the little Yankee town. Her parents were Quakers, and it was in that simple fraternity she exhibited her early ideas of kindness.

Mr. Pinkham had for years brewed the compound that now bears her name on her kitchen stove, and had given it away to her neighbors. When the panic of 1873 came Mr. Pinkham, senior, lost his fortune.

It was while the family were in straitened circumstances that one day two ladies drove to the Pinkham residence and asked Mrs. Pinkham to sell some of her already famous compound.

When she died she bequeathed her place at the head of the business to her daughter, who today, with years of experience and study, and by the aid of a corps of assistants, personally attends to the great mass of correspondence that flows in and out of the big concern in Lynn; and that bond of confidence so thoroughly established between Lydia E. Pinkham and the women of America, whereby they were enabled to talk freely of their private illness to a woman, has never been broken.

It has been the aim of this great woman's children to carry on the work begun by the mother in the same spirit of kindness that characterized her whole life.

Lydia E. Pinkham is more than a dispenser of medicine. She is a fact in history.

ARE BROUGHT TO JUSTICE.

Slayers of Mollie Beveridge, for Whose Murder McDonald Served Sentence, Caught.

TO BE TRIED FOR THEIR OWN FOUL CRIME.

Manager Shea Tells How it Happened—Full Board Now—Can't Get at God's Work—Munising Business Block Burns.

MURDERERS TRACKED DOWN.

Jim Redpath and Duncan Beveridge, for whose foul crime John McDonald served six years in the branch prison at Marquette, have been apprehended by the officials of the law, and will be made to pay the penalty of their own misdeeds.

According to telegraphic advices Beveridge was arrested yesterday in a little town in Lake county, Minnesota, and Jim Redpath was arrested the 8th while on his way from town to his farm near Marinette, Wisconsin.

Beveridge spent last night in Duluth, and today will be taken to Ontonagon county to spend his time in jail till the court can dispose of his case. Both he and Redpath will probably have the sentence of life imprisonment meted out to them as was done in the case of the innocent McDonald.

McDonald's release from the prison last March is fresh in the minds of upper peninsula people. For two years after his incarceration not a ray of hope came to the imprisoned man. Then a confession made by Maggie Redpath exonerated him, and named her partner, Jim Redpath, and Duncan Beveridge as the murderers.

Friends of McDonald took this remarkable confession up, and by investigations established its absolute truth. At the same time the prison board began to look up the case. Finally after searching its merits for more than three years, it became convinced of the innocence of the prisoner and recommended the pardon. Governor Rich promptly acted upon the board's recommendation, and March 24th John McDonald walked forth from behind the bars a free man.

The crime charged against McDonald, and that which the real murderers will now have to face, is the killing of Mollie Beveridge in a cabin near Matchwood in Ontonagon county. The case was brought on a change of venue from Ontonagon county to Marquette and tried here.

Beveridge and Redpath were the principal witnesses against McDonald, and on their testimony he was convicted of the crime. The defense he set up was sonambulism—that he might have done it in his sleep. This was a poor plea to take to a jury, and evidently carried small weight with it. Maggie Redpath, who was shot at the same time as Mrs. Beveridge, was lying at the point of death in a hospital and was not put on the stand.

It is doubtful if any testimony she would have given at that time would have kept McDonald from the prison cell. While not a party to the murder herself, she knew its perpetrators and was in mortal fear of her own life, to save which she promised never to divulge the true facts of the crime. After McDonald had been in the penitentiary more than two years the pangs of conscience became too strong to be stifled, and she made her confession.

Her testimony will cut a large figure in securing the conviction of the real murderers.

Explaining Defeat.
Marquette's crack ball team is back from Duluth, and the members are circulating around town telling how it happened that they dropped both games to the Lake Enders.

"It was just hard luck," said Manager Shea. "We had both games cinched, then luck turned against us. Why in the Saturday game it was 6 to 4 in Marquette's favor in the seventh inning, and there were two outs, then McCarthy let a ball go through him and Duluth ran in five tallies before we recovered. It was the same way in the second game. An error in the seventh started luck against us, and Duluth ran in a whole line of tallies.

"We're weak on pitchers. Reichman's arm was sore when he went up, and it gave out on him when he threw the first ball. That game we had to put both Price and Martin in the box, and neither one of them make any claims as pitchers. Of course Smith had to be saved for the Sunday game.

"It was miserably cold both days, and only the rankest ball cranks attended. They sat in the grand stand and bleachers and shivered with their overcoats on. The treatment we got was good, although the umpire was a Duluth man, one of their players, and of course gave the home team the close decisions."

The sporting writer of a Duluth paper had a little fun at the boys' expense in his Sunday morning issue. His opening paragraphs will be appreciated at home. He said:

"Kicker Rivers," "Folly" Richeman and his brother, "Denny" McCarthy, "Seixas" Smith and his younger brother, Pitcher Smith, Brennan and "Pudgy" Faced" Martin were the owners of the familiar countenances from Marquette that decorated the West end ball park yesterday afternoon. There was a new face—a young man named Pierce, with a classic head of hair and a bowery walk—but for the most part there was little change in the personnel of the team. And they still play ball. Their kicking capacity was apparently out of condition, for even Jack Rivers forgot himself once in a while and didn't kick.

The man referred to as "Pierce" is really Slimey, the Ishpeming player, who accompanied the team on its trip.

Filed the Slate.
For the first time in weeks there is a full membership in the board of electric light and power commission.

The council held a short session last night specially for the purpose of ratifying the appointments made by the mayor to this board. Before proceeding to this the recorder announced the declinations of two appointees of previous meetings to serve. These were James Russell and E. A. Moyer.

Then the mayor was ready to make his appointments. They were: John R. Van Every, three years; Sampson Bice, two years; Alfred Kidder, one year. These gentlemen, with H. J. Payne, four years, fill out the board. Mr. Jacobs announced to the council that they had all signified their willingness to serve on the board. The appointments were confirmed.

John Robertson resigned from the street and sewer committee, and his resignation having been accepted Walter Ward was appointed in his place.

Will Hoop Her Up.
Marquette's Fourth of July celebration is well under way.

The committee having it in charge met last night at the city hall and made all the preliminary arrangements possible for a successful observance of the day.

Enough money has been collected to warrant the committee in going ahead and promising first class features and a big day. There will be a balloon ascension and parachute jump from a height one mile above the earth. In addition to this will be parades, races and a grand display of fireworks at night. Two ball games will be played here between the Marquettes and one of the strongest teams of the upper peninsula. Besides this there will be athletic sports of all kinds for which liberal prizes will be offered.

The committee on arrangements appointed last night consists of Messrs. Jennison, Barnes, Neidhart, Ross, Kelsey, Vandenburg, Youngquist, Homeier and Kellan.

F. O. Clark was appointed a committee of one to secure the services of Hon. C. A. Towne as speaker of the day.

The advertising committee is C. H. Kelsey and William Ross.

Another meeting will be called in a short time to make further preparations, and in the meantime the subscription list will be vigorously circulated, and the amount now on the sheet pushed up several hundred dollars.

"Jacquine."
Merry little Mattie Vickers, with her old but still amusing comedy "Jacquine" held the boards at the opera house last night.

The performance which was given by Miss Vickers and her company was worthy of a better house than greeted the players, but every auditor was appreciative and went away saying what a good show it was.

Miss Vickers' support was unusually near the standard set by the star, and R. G. Folsom in his specialty work was particularly good. He had a way of cracking a gag, then bolting from the stage, which brought laughter from gallery and parquet alike.

Mattie's specialty is German characterization, and her "turn" as the little German girl who wants a position as leading lady in a dramatic company is done very cleverly. She dances neatly and sings in a way that won demonstrative appreciation.

F. C. Truesdell made a hit singing popular ballads, among which was the famous "Sunshine of Paradise Alley."

Blaze in Munising.
Munising was treated to the excitement of a fire Monday afternoon.

Shortly after dinner a blaze was discovered in the second floor of a building on Maple street just off of Superior. This it owned by a Mr. Olson, and has just been erected for restaurant purposes. The upper part is cut up into living rooms, and he had moved in with his family, although the building was not fully completed. Fire caught here from a stove which was set too near the wall.

The upper part of the building was pretty well in flames before the fire company reached it with the hose, but two streams of water put out the fire in very short order. Mr. Olson loses his furniture and about half his building. He had no insurance.

Can't Get to God's Work.
While the aldermen were standing on the steps of the city hall last evening before the council meeting was called one of the group got to discussing the Presque Isle park appropriation.

City Attorney Brown, in the course of the conversation, made a very clever return to Desjardin's shot made the night before in the council chamber that God almighty had made Presque Isle what it was, and Olmsted & Elliot could not improve upon his work.

"That may be," said Brown, "but the way things are now you can't get in to see God's work!"
