BRYAN IS NOTIFIED.

He Has Been Officially Informed of His Nomination for the Presidency.

Governor Stone, of Missouri, Makes the Speech in Place of Senator White.

Candidate Bryan's Oration Was a Brainy Argumentative Campaign Opener.

Money Question, in His Estimation, Overshadows All Issues Before the People.

Both Bryan and Sewall Presented With Engrossed Notifications—Sewall's Speech.

TENDERED THE NOMINATION.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Bryan and Sewall tonight were formally notified of their nomination by the Democratic party for the offices of president and vice president at a big meeting in Madison Square Garden, which was a notable political event and a remarkable climax to a remarkable tour of the presidential candidate across the continent. An army of unnumbered thousands filled the streets for several squares about the building in the vain hope of securing admission. In the hall, which was a fiery furnace, Bryan spoke to twenty thousand ticket holders for nearly two hours. His address dealt almost entirely with the financial question; it was more argumentative and less eloquent than his historic Chicago speech, which won for him the presidential nomination, and only in the closing appeal to the citizens of New York did he speak in the strains which had captured the Chicago convention. He was surrounded by many silver leaders, Jones of Arkansas, Blackburn of Kentucky, "Silver Dick" Bland of Missouri, Stewart of Nevada and Tillman of South Carolina.

Sewall spoke briefly after Bryan and was heartily cheered. Governor Stone of Missouri delivered the notification speech. The vast assemblage of people which gathered at Madison Square Garden was called to order precisely at 8:15 by Chairman Jones of the national committee. Hon. Elliott Danforth of New York was selected chairman of the meeting. He said:

"This gathering is for the purpose of affording an opportunity for the formal notification of the Democratic nominees for president and vice president of the United States of their nominations."

He then presented Governor Stone of Missouri. Governor Stone stepped upon the platform, and when the outburst of applause had subsided, said:

Mr. Chairman: The convention which assembled on the 7th day of July last was in all respects the regular national convention of the Democratic party. Every state and territory in the Union was represented by a full quota of delegates, and I may add with perfect truth, that a more intelligent and thoroughly representative body of Democrats never assembled upon the American continent. The work of the convention was the direct outgrowth of the calm, well-natured judgment of the people themselves, deliberately expressed through representatives chosen from among the wisest and most patriotic of their fellow citizens. Although what I have said is literally true, yet the fact remains there were extraneous circumstances leading up to the convention which attracted unusual attention to its deliberations, and invested them with unusual importance. We are all familiar with the circumstances to which I refer.

The national administration was created by the Democratic party. It was the result of the great victory of 1892. The campaign of that year was fought almost wholly on the tariff issue, and the Democratic party united almost as one man against that law.

Although tariff was made the issue in 1892, there were thousands of Democrats who believed the reform of our monetary system of far greater importance than a reform in our revenue policies. Those holding this belief did not in any degree underestimate the importance of the tariff issue, but they believed nevertheless that the control of our fiscal affairs by a mercenary combination of Wall street bankers, more perilous to national safety, more pernicious in its effects on national prosperity, than all the tariffs the miserly hands of gluttonous greed could write.

However, we acquiesced in the decision of our party convention, accepted the issue as made, and rallied with loyalty to the standard revenue reform.

Later began within the Democratic party one of the most remarkable struggles in the political history of this country. It was a struggle for mastery between the national administration and the great masses of plain people. The people won. They won a glorious victory. The paramount question before the country was and is, "shall this republic confess financial servitude to England, or set independently for itself?"

The Republican convention declared for foreign supremacy; for American subservience. It upheld the British policy single gold standard, fraudulently fastened upon this country, and declared we were utterly incapable of maintaining an independent policy of our own.

To this low standard has Mammon brought the great party of the immortal Lincoln. Within both parties there was a mighty struggle for supremacy between those who believe in sovereignty of the people and those who believe in divinity of self.

Upon the Republican party the hands of Marcus Aurelius Hanna buckled the golden mail, and sent it forth dedicated to the service of plutocracy in this free land of ours. But in the Democratic ranks, thank God, the people were triumphant. The priests of Mammon were scourged from the temple and today under providence and high heaven the old party rejuvenated stands forth stronger, better than ever, the undaunted champion of constitutional liberty, popular rights and national independence.

HERE IS THE ISSUE. Upon these all important questions the issue joins. Certainly there are other things of moment in which the people feel a profound concern, but the financial question rises to such supreme importance that all others are practically excluded from present consideration. For the first time it has been fairly presented without evasion or disguise. Both parties have taken their position boldly. Both are confident, defiant, and between them the American people are arbiters, and as such are now to pass judgment upon the most important question presented to them since the storm of civil war wrecked happy homes and left its bloody trail upon the land.

CHICAGO PLATFORM ALL RIGHT. The Chicago platform has been denounced as undemocratic, and the delegates composing the convention stigmatized as anarchists and socialists. Sir, the man who holds up to approbrium such men as constituted the Chicago convention, or in any respect impugns their intelligence or patriotism, does himself a rank injustice if he be not a knave, slanderer or fool.

That convention did indeed represent the masses of the people. It represented the man who ploughs, who plants, who rears, and who devotes all his life. To their cause he devoted all his splendid powers with which God endowed him. They know him and they trust him. Save, yet firm; gentle, yet dauntless; warm hearted, yet deliberate; confident, self-poised, yet without vanity; learned in books, and statescraft, but without pedantry or pretense; a man of greatest caution of method; equipped with large experience in public affairs, true to his convictions, true to himself, false to no man, William Jennings Bryan is a model gentleman and a peerless leader of the people.

ONE OF THE MASSES. For their leader they chose one of their own kind, a plain man of the people. Among them he was born, and reared, and lived all the days of his life. To their cause he devoted all his splendid powers with which God endowed him. They know him and they trust him. Save, yet firm; gentle, yet dauntless; warm hearted, yet deliberate; confident, self-poised, yet without vanity; learned in books, and statescraft, but without pedantry or pretense; a man of greatest caution of method; equipped with large experience in public affairs, true to his convictions, true to himself, false to no man, William Jennings Bryan is a model gentleman and a peerless leader of the people.

NOTICES THE CANDIDATE. Mr. Bryan, I esteem it a great honor, as it is most certainly a pleasure, to be made the instrument of informing you, as I now do, you were nominated for the office of president of the United States by the Democratic national convention which assembled July last.

It is an honor to request your acceptance of the nomination tendered you. You are the candidate of the Democratic party, but you are more, you are the candidate of the people without regard to party. This battle must be fought on ground high above the level of partisanship. I hope to see you unfurl the flag in the name of America and American manhood.

ENGROSSED NOTIFICATION. At the conclusion of his remarks he handed to Bryan an engrossed copy of the resolutions of notification adopted by the committee on notification.

When Bryan took the parchment there was a wild outburst of applause and while it was still filling the hall Chairman Danforth said: "Fellow citizens: The next speaker needs no introduction, for his name is a household word throughout the land. I have the pleasure of presenting to you the Democratic nominee for president of the United States, Hon. William J. Bryan."

The applause continued some minutes and was renewed again and again. After several attempts order was secured and Bryan began his speech amidst comparative silence. He said: "Mr. Chairman, gentlemen of the committee and fellow citizens: I shall at a future day, and in a formal letter, accept the nomination which is now tendered me by the notification committee, and I shall at that time touch upon the issues presented by the platform."

It is fitting, however, that at this time, in the presence of those here assembled, I should speak at some length in regard to the campaign upon which we are now entering. We don't underestimate the forces arrayed against us, neither are we unduly of the importance of the struggle in which we engage; but relying for success upon the righteousness of our cause, we shall defend with all possible vigor the positions taken by our party and we are not apprised that some of our opponents, in the absence of better arguments resort to abusive epithets, but they may rest assured that no language, however violent, no infectives, however vehement, will lead us to depart a single hair's breadth from the course marked out by the national convention.

The citizen, either public or private, who assails the character and questions the patriotism of the delegates assembled in the Chicago convention, assails the character and questions the patriotism of the millions who have arrayed themselves under the banner there raised. It has been charged by men standing high in business and political circles that our platform is a menace to private security and public safety; and it has been asserted that those whom I have the honor, for the time being, to represent, not only meditate an attack upon the rights of property, but are foes to social order and national honor. Those who stand upon the Chicago platform are prepared to make known and defend every motive which influences them, every purpose which animates them, and every hope which inspires them.

We cannot insure to the vicious fruit of a virtuous life; we would not invade the home of the provident in order to supply the wants of the spendthrift; we don't propose to transfer the rewards of industry to the lap of indolence. Property is and will remain the stimulus to endeavor and the compensation for toil. We believe, as asserted in the declaration of independence, that all men are created equal; but that does not mean that all men are or can be equal in possessions, in ability or in merit; it simply means all shall stand equal before the law, and government officials shall not in making constructions or enforcing the law, discriminate between citizens. I assert that property rights, as well as rights of persons, are safe in the hands of the common people. Those who daily follow the injunction, in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, are now as they have ever been, the bulwark of law and order, the source of our nation's greatness in time of peace and its surest defenders in time of war.

We are not surprised to find arrayed against us those who are beneficiaries of government favoritism. They read our platform. Nor are we surprised to learn that we must in this campaign face the hostility of those who find pecuniary advantage in advocating the doctrine of non-interference when great aggregations of wealth are trespassing upon the rights of individuals. We welcome such opposition as the highest endorsement which could be bestowed upon us. We are content to have the co-operation of those who desire to have government administered without fear or favor. It is not the wish of the general public that trusts should spring into existence, and override the weaker members of society; it is not the wish of the general public that these trusts should destroy competition and then collect what they will from those who are at their mercy. Nor is it the fault of the general public that the instrumentalities of government have been so often prostituted to purposes of private gain. Those who stand upon the Chicago platform believe the government should not only avoid wrong doing, but that it should also prevent wrong doing, and they believe that law should be enforced alike against all enemies of the public weal. They do not excuse petit larceny, but they declare grand larceny is equally a crime.

No government is worthy the name which is not able to protect from every arm uplifted for injury the humblest citizen who lives beneath its flag. The Chicago platform has been condemned by some, because it dissents from opinion rendered by the supreme court declaring the income tax law unconstitutional. Our critics even go so far as to apply the name anarchist to those who stand upon that plank of the platform. It must be remembered we expressly recognize the binding force of that decision as long as it stands as a part of the law of the land. There is in the platform no suggestion of an attempt to dispute the authority of the supreme court. The party is simply pledged to use all the constitutional power which remains after that decision, or which may come from its reversal by the court as it may hereafter be constituted. Is there any disloyalty in that pledge? When courts allow rehearings they admit that error is possible; the late decision against the income tax was rendered by a majority of one after a rehearing.

At present the expenses of the federal government, which are collected through international revenue taxes and import duties, are especially burdensome upon the poor classes of society. A law which collects from some citizens more than their share of taxes and collects from other citizens less than their share, is simply an indirect means of transferring one man's property to another man's pocket.

THE LAST INJUSTICE. The last income tax law was not unjust to possessors of large incomes. An income tax is not based upon hostility to the rich. Not only shall I refuse to apologize for the advocacy of the income tax by the national convention but I shall also refuse to apologize for the exercise by it of the right to dissent from the decision of the supreme court.

PARAMOUNT QUESTION. Now let me ask you to consider the paramount question of this campaign—the money question. It is scarcely necessary to defend the principle of bimetalism. No national party ever declared against it and no party in this campaign has had the temerity to oppose it. Three parties, Democrat, Populist and Silver parties, not only declared for bimetalism, but outlined the specific legislation necessary to restore silver to its ancient position beside gold. The Republican platform expressly declares bimetalism desirable when it pledges the Republican party to aid in securing it as soon as the assistance of certain foreign nations can be obtained. HOW THEY ARE VALUED. By a peculiar arrangement the assessed valuation of mining properties on the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges is being fixed by the mining men themselves for the board of equalization for St. Louis county and as the figures represent forty per cent. of the supposed actual value the ratings placed upon the various properties are of general interest.

Owners of mining properties on the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges yesterday agreed upon a schedule of valuations which they considered fair, as representing 40 per cent. of the actual value. This they presented to the board of equalization. It will be valuable to the board, whether it concludes to accept the figures or not, because it gives the comparative values of the different properties as estimated by a large number of experienced iron men. This is a thing the board very much desired, but hardly knew how to get it.

The nomination of Mayor Pingree for governor has acted like a dash of cold water in the hopes of the Democracy in this state, a fact very strikingly shown by the funeral atmosphere which marked the meeting of the Wayne county managers this week to prepare for the caucuses which are to select delegates to the coming state convention.

Increased valuation of vacant land for taxation. No monopoly on ferries. Low street car fares. Good pavements and sewers. Railroad property to be taxed—no exemption. Equal rights—arbitration. Equalization of assessments. Street railway franchises to highest bidders.

This expression of opinion on the famous Monroe doctrine, coming as it does from the New Zealand Press, will interest American readers greatly: The American confines himself to his continent. He takes no part in the scramble for Africa. He does not want Constantinople or Egypt.

Colonel Aaron T. Bliss has assured Mr. Hanna, in a personal interview at Chicago, that Mr. Pingree will carry Michigan. "Mr. Pingree and the Republican national ticket will carry the state. The mayor has a wonderful personality and this will carry him into the office despite any quarrel over the money issue."

AN ACCIDENT TO BEGIN WITH. But Once Into Politics Nothing Could Stop Mayor Pingree and the End Is Not Yet.

Chicago Times-Herald: Mayor Pingree is an accident in politics. He went into the game seven years ago and was as green as grass. He had never taken any active part in the affairs of the city or state, save to answer each appeal for money with a good-sized check.

It was the next year—1889—that he flashed across the skies and started the career which has made him one of the most discussed men in the country. Detroit had always been Democratic and the Republicans were looking for a new man for the slaughter.

Mr. Pingree came home from the east and his determination was at fever heat. It dawned upon him that he had been selected because no one else wanted to make the run and it made him angry. He announced that he would be elected and he put aside leather for politics.

SATURDAY'S BAKING. Suggestions for the Simplification of the Day's Work.

It may be made to appear the worst sort of drudgery, that troublesome "Saturday's baking." The thought of making the white bread, the Graham bread, with perhaps, light biscuits for tea, the tedious variety of cake, and the various desserts which are to last over Sunday and the greater part of the following week, will seem appalling to the inexperienced cook, if she does not know how to simplify matters.

Various attempts have been made in different European countries to establish a system of state or municipal fire insurance, and the most successful examples are to be found in that nursery of European democracy—Switzerland.

A valuation commission appointed by the government council values the building in the presence of the owner or his agents. The value is determined "by the amount which at the time of the valuation the buildings in their then existing construction would cost for material and labor, with deductions for age, use, poor state of repairs, etc."

Boiling River. It is sure enough. It is not as large as the Mississippi, indeed it is quite small, but a mighty interesting stream for all that. It issues from the sides of a mountain in a thousand tiny rills, more or less, and of almost as many colors. These gather themselves into pools and lakelets on the mountain's side, covering an area of about 200 acres. Overflowing their boundaries they slowly trickle down the sides of the mountain forming small cliffs, the most wonderful in the world. From a distance one can hardly believe what the eyesight reveals - white, black, orange, lemon, terra cotta, green, blue, red, pink, separate and in manifold combinations stand out before him. It is a hill of painted cliffs on the sides of the mountain that rises high above. And the odd part of it is that each of these exquisite colors represents a different temperature. Does that startle your credulity? Even so it is true. When through with this beautiful painting process, these waters again come together and then, as if full of mischief like a pack of small boys trying to play hide and seek, dive down and remain under the ground for a space of two miles and then flow out from the mouth of a cononynta as one of the clearest, most beautiful, green streams imaginable. Where these waters emerge from the mountain into the little lakes they are hot, boiling hot. During their dark underground journey they fall several hundred feet and also many degrees in hotness so that when they again see daylight they are much cooler. This then is Boiling river, an underground mountain stream of hot water. But you ask, where is it? Where can I see it? It is in Yellowstone Park at Mammoth Hot Springs. It is one of the lesser, mind you the lesser - wonders of this land of wonders. Go there and see it by all means but first send to Chas. N. Fee, General Passenger Agent, Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn., six cents for Wondersland '96, that tells all about this renowned region. (7-24)

The Lake Superior & Ishpeming Opened Through to the Mines.

Martin White of Ishpeming has the honor of being the first engineer to run an engine over the entire length of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming railway.

The movement of the new engine was watched yesterday by several hundred persons, who came from all portions of the city to take in the sight.

The small boys were around in large numbers and they kept their eyes on the engine and cars as intently as they would on a circus train.

IT WAS ALL RIGHT.

The Haughty Bank Teller Convinced by a Second Look at the Check.

He had small brown eyes and a bristling red mustache. His cheek bones were prominent and his temples formed little hollows in the sides of his head.

Of all the lesser lights in the commercial world that transacted business through the medium of the receiving teller's bank there was one firm which he had singled out as a special mark for his aversion.

The woman's soul grew faint and sick from persecution and her dreams were haunted by a pair of deep-set eyes, a bristling red mustache and piles of spurious checks.

The woman was strong in the knowledge that she was bolstered up by a $500 check, and she decided to take a firm stand.

“This is good,” she said, resolutely. “It is now 11:30. He will take an hour to get it certified. We have 30 minutes left to go.

The receiving teller's face flushed at her defiance, and he watched her as she started away. She stopped at the paying teller's window.

“Cash nothing. This check cannot be drawn against.”

“The woman's eyes blazed, and she stalked back to his desk. “Sir,” she said, “do you see whose name is signed to that check?”

“I don't know the name,” he said, sharply. “It is some one we have never heard of.”

“Please look at it again,” she returned. Reluctantly he took it from the spindle and studied the signature.

“Will it be all right?” she asked, softly. He nodded. The name was that of the president of the bank.—Chicago News.

THE JACKSON OPEN PIT.

Stripping About Completed and Mining Now Well Under Way.

The South Shore company's steam shovel, which has been used in stripping the sand from the ore deposit on the hill immediately east of the Jackson company's sand shaft for the past nine or ten weeks, got through work Monday. The ore is now exposed for an area between two and three hundred feet square. The stripping is still being continued by hand on the south side of the deposit, the shovel having worked there as long as it could be operated to advantage. In order to clean up all the sand covering the ore between the extreme south side and the point where mining is being done, about one hundred feet northwest, a dozen or more men will be kept at work for a week or so longer. The cars are run within a short distance of the bank, so that the men have no difficulty loading them. The stripping of the sand from the hill was no small job, and considering the very slow work involved in laying the tracks on such an uneven surface, very good progress was made.

LOCAL LACONICS.

John Thompson expects to leave today for Harvard University where he will pass the coming year.

E. C. Anthony got home yesterday morning from Sault Ste. Marie, where he went last week to take in the freemen's tournament.

"Cooney" Sullivan, who was given a hearing Tuesday in Justice Primeau's court waived examination and was bound over to the circuit court for trial.

A son was born yesterday to Dr. C. P. Benham and wife of the Oregon Indian Medicine company, which has been doing business here for the past two weeks.

E. C. Cummings of Chicago arrived here Tuesday on a brief visit to relatives and friends. His wife and child have been here for the past three or four weeks.

The parties who have the merry-go-round here did such a big business last week that Mayor Kirkwood raised their license from $2 to $5 per day during the remainder of their stay.

The ten-year-old son of John Baringer, of Appleton, who resided in Negaunee for a number of years prior to about ten years ago, was drowned last week. His body was recovered Friday.

Ralph Mackenzie, R. Olson, Ed. Barabe, John Winter and Harry Nightingale will leave tomorrow for the Salmon Trout where they will remain several days. They will be accompanied by P. C. Peterson.

The son of J. G. Boyle, of this city, who has been working near the "Soo" for some time past, was recently struck by a falling tree and sustained a fracture of the jaw bone. He arrived here Tuesday and is now under the care of a local surgeon.

The lawn social given Tuesday evening by the ladies of St. Paul's church society was a decided success. A very large crowd assembled and partook of the refreshments, which were very fine. A number of Ishpeming people were in attendance.

HOW THE PAPAUNS LIVE.

Queer Race of People Who Inhabit the Interior of New Guinea.

The interior of New Guinea is one vast mass of upheaved granite, without traces of mineral or metal ores. The strata tilted and piled topsy-turvy. Everywhere the work of volcanic eruptions is to be seen. Such a thinly populated region, considering the fact that it was an absolutely new country and that fruits and small game were so plentiful, it did not suppose could exist, writes Van Gestel, the explorer. The natives we saw from time to time, at a distance mostly; they never molested us. Their heads were flat on top, with long, curly black hair; they went entirely naked. Their buttock extended out eight and even ten inches, this repulsive deformity constituting a supportably capable of sustaining a child in a sitting position. Nor was this their most marked peculiarity. Some of the nursing mothers threw their breasts back over their shoulders or under their arms, at will, to feed the infant carried in a sling between their shoulders.

The Papuans are a very unattractive race to look upon. In arms they were primitive to a degree that was astounding. They had neither bows nor spears that I saw, their only weapons being stone hatchets. Of the use of metals they seemed to be entirely ignorant. In the dry season they made their homes in caves, which they found or excavated for themselves. Some of these cave dwellings I visited, discovering fragments of their repasts and occasionally a broken stone ax. In the rainy season they live high in the trees, where they build rude houses of sticks laid around and intertwined with the branches, thatched with dried slanting and reached by shaky-looking stick ladders. Most startling was the solitude, the destitution of life and motion in the great central plateaus which we reached in our gradual ascent from the river level. There were plenty of the small creature of the squirrel tribe, some of the peculiar pig-headed deer we have in Java, and an occasional little tiger cat, rather handsome than hurtful-looking. That was all. — Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Metallic Circuit Finished.

The connection of the new metallic circuit to the switch boards in the offices of the Marquette County Telephone company has been finished. Mr. Nike came up from Madison to assist Frank Quinn, also of that city, in finishing up the work. There are now three complete circuits between Negaunee and Ishpeming and two between this city and Marquette. Since the metallic circuit has been connected there is no cross talk on the line. The improvement is very noticeable and is one which will be greatly appreciated by the patrons of the company.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. I won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at E. Farnham's Drug store.

ROMANCE IN THE SEWERS.

The sewers of New York have a little romance of their own in the curious articles that are found in them. Scarcely a receiving basin is cleaned out or one of the big pipes thoroughly scraped of its coating of mud and heavy refuse but something more valuable than rubbish comes to light. Things have been thrown in by frightened thieves, who wished to hide the evidence of their crimes, and were willing to lose their booty for the sake of a whole skin, or else were dropped by accident into the gutters, to lie there unnoticed and be flushed into the sewer at the first flushing or heavy rain.

Jewelry, watches, money, small pieces of silverware, and even umbrellas and canes are the articles most frequently discovered buried in the thick mud of the sewers and basins. One of the foremen of the department has at his house to-day a handsome silver-topped cane, picked out some months ago, for which no claimant has ever appeared. It does not happen, as a rule, that the owner of property lost in this peculiar way can be found, and the laborers themselves generally keep what they run across. From a money point of view, the pickings are of really little value. Even a gold watch is not much of a prize, after all, for as the days go on the mud oozes into its case and damages its works beyond repair, so that it can be sold only for old gold.

There are some strange stories bound up in the sewers. They nearly all deal with special searches made for lost property of considerable value. On one occasion eight $20 gold pieces were hunted for, having been stolen from a Catholic priest uptown. This priest had befriended a young boy, had taken him with him for a short time, and finally found him a position to run errands. The boy proved ungrateful for these benefits, and one day he slipped into the house and stole this money in a purse. It was not until the owner of the purse returned that the loss was discovered. A detective was at once set upon the boy's tracks, and there was little difficulty in getting him to make a confession. He acknowledged that he had taken the money, and that very night, knowing that he was shadowed, he had dropped it in the nearest sewer. The department was informed, and men were at once sent up to empty out the basin. One by one the eight gold pieces were found in the mud.

An even more remarkable find was that of two railroad bonds, one for $500 and the other for $1,000, which were stolen under almost exactly the same circumstances. Another boy had robbed his employer, and had taken these securities, together with a pocketbook containing $27 in bills and silver. He spent the money up to the last cent, but found the bonds to be of no value at all to him. Afraid, however, to have them in his possession, he coolly dropped them down an adjacent sewer, and thought he was secure. After he had confessed a search was made, in precisely the same manner, and the bonds came to light, rather the worse for wear, it is true, covered with liquid mud, but still legible, and in quite good enough shape for the owner to be able to prove his property.

Crime, though, is not an invariable accompaniment of losses like these. There was a case in the department several months ago of a working girl, who, returning home hurriedly a little after six o'clock one night, stumbled on the curb, and in doing so let her pocketbook fall. With fatal bad luck it rolled toward the sewer as if it had been aimed for it and disappeared in its depths. The sum of $19 was in it, an exceedingly heavy loss to the girl. Brokenhearted she went home, having given up all hopes of ever seeing it again. Several days went by, and she was trying to become reconciled to her loss, when it was suggested that she send word to the sewer bureau in the city hall. The upshot of it all was that the little pocketbook was recovered, and after a thorough washing and drying in the sun, was returned to the young woman intact and without a cent missing. — N. Y. Tribune.

THE FORTIFICATIONS OF PARIS.

The German chancellor, Caprivi, in a speech said that "Paris is the largest and most formidable fortress the world has ever seen—a stronghold with 56 forts and an outer line of fortifications of nearly 100 miles." The wall of Paris is built around the inhabited portion of the city, inclosing all the monuments and business houses. It is surrounded by a broad ditch. The original plans provided for a second wall some thousand paces beyond this one, but instead there is a circle of forts from one to two miles away from the inner wall. Nearly 2,000 cannon are used to fortify these forts. The various first class forts number about 30. They are polygons in shape, strongly bastioned and bomb-proof, with brick-work ditches, covered ways and outworks. Secure as Paris may be considered, there are many military authorities who think that an exaggerated role has been assigned to it in the defense of France. Serious French writers take an opposite view, one of them going so far as to assert "now that Paris has been rendered impregnable, the recovery of Metz and Strasburg is inevitable." — Washington Star.
