RECIPROCALITY AT HOME.

Reciprocal trade relations between nations is a much discussed subject at the present time, the advisability of having this country cultivate such relations with nations willing to do business with us on a fair and mutually advantageous basis being one of the issues of the campaign now in progress.

If reciprocity is good policy for nations it is also for states and the smaller communities of which states are made up. It is with the purpose of bringing this idea home to the people of the metropolis of Michigan that this article is written.

All the people of Michigan are proud of Detroit, of its beautiful parks, of its fine streets, its massive business blocks, elegant homes and stately public buildings. They want Detroit to grow and prosper until it attains even a more commanding position than it now holds among the great cities of the union. In order that it may grow and prosper they want to give it as much of their trade as they can. This is especially true of the people of the upper peninsula, who already contribute largely to the commerce of Detroit by purchases of supplies there. A business man of this city who has looked the matter up assures THE MINING JOURNAL that a majority of the salesmen who visit this part of the state regularly represent concerns located at Detroit and other cities of the lower peninsula, and he says that merchants up here make it a point to place their orders with lower peninsula houses when they can, being actuated to this by a proper state pride.

Now, a little "reciprocity" on the part of Detroit would strengthen this sentiment amazingly, and that city now has a chance to show that her people are willing to reciprocate. Wayne county is about to erect a magnificent new county building. It will be located in the city of Detroit, of course, and when completed will be one of the handsomest and finest of its many fine public structures.

The Kerber-Jacobs Redstone company, whose quarry is at Portage Entry, is desirous of supplying the stone for this building. All the people of the upper peninsula are interested in having it constructed of Lake Superior sandstone, for if that is done it will stand for all time as a testimonial to the great and varied mineral resources of this part of Michigan, whose wealth of iron and copper and building stone have done so much to make the state famed among her sisters and rich above them all in the elements of an enduring prosperity.

There are economic as well as artistic considerations which should influence the officials of Wayne county who have the determination of the matter in their hands to select this stone above all others offered. It is a building material of unsurpassed beauty, and of proved durability under all the tests that can be applied to it. On these points we will quote what the commissioner of mineral statistics of Michigan says concerning its coloring, strength, and ability to resist the action of fire. The extract here given is taken from a letter dated July 25 of the current year:

The sandstone of Michigan has for years occupied a prominent position among the building stones of this country and Canada, the principal supply having come from the shores of Lake Superior and from that portion of the coast forming the beautiful Keweenawian point. It takes on a variety of markings due to the character of the cementing material, the soft, deep browns and lighter reds (ideally stained by oxide of iron) predominating. The grain is very fine, in this respect exceeding the sandstones of other regions, and it is also more regular in its markings than any other. A typical specimen gives by analysis:

Table with 2 columns: Substance and Percentage. Silice..... 94.73, Alumina..... 0.36, Carbonate of lime..... 0.69, Loss, etc..... 0.09, Protoxide of iron..... 3.84, Carbonate of magnesia..... 0.75, Water..... 0.74, Total..... 100.00

Of greatest importance is its immense resisting power, it withstanding an enormous crushing strain, insuring stability, no matter how great the burden to which it is subjected. Its ease of working is also greatly in its favor as compared to other kinds of building stones, it being homogeneous and shaping readily under the tool or saw. Exposure to the atmosphere tends to harden as well as toughen it, and it is not affected in its coloring by weathering, but holds its original markings and coloring changeless, always appearing fresh and free from the unsightly stains that so often mar the appearance of buildings composed of marble and other stones.

The absence of lime, (which is the coloring matter of all white stones), renders it less liable to damage from great heat than stones containing a greater amount of this element. Further testimony as to its strength is afforded by the report of the test to which it was submitted at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893, in the material testing department. It was a "compression test," the specimen block of stone being furnished by the Kerber-Jacobs company. The block was a cube, with sides 5.98 inches, and in the test its load at rupture was 5,597 pounds to the square inch. The total pressure on the block when the rupture took place was 199,800 pounds, or within 200 pounds of the capacity of the machine, which was 200,000 pounds. H. H. Tracy was the operator, and in his notes on the test and its result he mentions that "there were no indications of weakening until the final rupture," the stone being sound and flawless throughout and resisting the tremendous pressure upon it until it burst in pieces. This was considered a remarkable test. When the stone finally broke it did not crumble, but split up into flinty fragments, this being further evidence of its homogeneity and high degree of cohesiveness.

Regarding the power of this stone to resist the action of fire there is to be found in Chicago the best evidence that could be given. At the corner of Madison and State streets stands a seven-story building that passed unharmed through the great fire that destroyed Chicago in the fall of 1873, while blocks constructed of other kinds of stone which stood beside it crumbled and actually melted under the intense heat. This block came through the fire undamaged and unharmed, and so stands today, a monument to the valuable qualities of the Lake Superior sandstone as a building material.

Some question has been raised as to the capacity of the quarry to furnish the stone as rapidly as would be necessary to prevent delay in construction of the building, should it be decided to use it. There need be no apprehension on that score. There is an abundance of the stone on the company's property. The deposit has been tested to a depth of fifteen feet over an area 2,300 feet in length by 1,000 in width. The developed workings cover a portion of the deposit 400 feet in length by 350 in width, and the mechanical equipment and appliances are ample to enable the company to get out 8,000 cubic feet of stone daily, or a total for the working season of not less than 600,000 feet—nearly three times the quantity that will be needed for the proposed building. This output could be easily doubled, should occasion arise, by adding to the facilities for handling the stone as it is quarried.

It would be a source of very great pride and gratification to the people of this peninsula to have its famous sandstone used in the construction of one of the finest public buildings of the metropolis of Michigan, and surely it would not detract from the interest the building would have for visitors to the beautiful city by the straits, as well as the people of that city, if it could be said that it was built of stone produced within the borders of the state. THE MINING JOURNAL hopes that the authorities of Wayne county who have the decision in their hands will show their good will toward the upper peninsula by adopting our beautiful sandstone as the material to be used in the construction of their new county building. If they do this they will sensibly strengthen "the tie that binds" the upper peninsula to the lower by showing that our brethren below the straits appreciate this peninsula and its resources, and desire the good will of its people.

The city of Marinette, Wis., is in a deplorable condition financially in consequence of the ruinous management of its affairs by the gang that was deposited in the election last spring during their two years of control. It now owes $60,000 in money borrowed from the banks and on outstanding orders, and isn't able to meet current obligations. The people of Marinette did not think it a very serious matter when a lot of swashbucklers got control of the municipal government and proceeded to run it to suit themselves, but they know better now. Good government does not come without being striven for, and the community that does not strive for it is sure to get a dose of the other kind sooner or later.

It is painful to note the effort the ancient editor of the Copper Country Straddler is making to "square" himself with the candidate for congress whose nomination he sought to prevent in order to give Sam Stephenson a fifth term! He says Stephenson "may not have been a brilliant statesman" but was a good congressman, and that "his acquaintance at Washington" would have enabled him to do more for the district than any of the new men in the field against him. The convention which passed on the claims of the rival candidates thought differently. THE MINING JOURNAL also thinks differently. It believes that Mr. Sheldon will be very much more serviceable to the district than Mr. Stephenson has ever been, or could be during the next two years, despite the latter's experience as a member. It is very certain that Mr. Sheldon will not be guilty of such a piece of negligence (to call it by no worse name) as was Mr. Stephenson when he allowed a committee of which he was a member to favorably report a bill that would have struck a deadly blow at an institution of which Houghton county and the entire state are justly proud, the state Mining school at Houghton. But why continue to discuss Mr. Stephenson. He is not now a candidate, and has said that he is glad to be out of the contest, as the "leg pullers" will now have to let him alone. Why don't they take the hint?

In the opinion of the goldite organs the outcome of the Vermont election this week has settled the November result in advance, and in favor of their side of the contention. But the stupid ill-vertes keep right on fighting just the same. They don't know enough to know when they are whipped, and the unfortunate feature of the business is that people of that kind are the hardest to down so that they'll stay down.

EVERYBODY RELATED.

Each One Was Related to Everybody Else in the Town.

A tired and dusty traveler drew reign at the public watering trough of a little village up in Warren county one hot summer day some years ago.

"Has this place got a hotel?" he asked of a post office loafer.

"Yes, sir—the Johnson house, down the street there."

"I was told there was a hardware store here, too."

"Yes, sir," the native replied; "Mr. Johnson, a brother of the hotel keeper, owns the store."

"Who is your postmaster?" the traveler asked, becoming interested.

"Mr. Johnson," said the native, "and he's a cousin to the hardware man and the hotel keeper."

"Are there any people here not named Johnson?"

The native, if he saw any humor in this, ignored it as he slowly drawled:

"Yes, there is one here—no, come to think of it, his name is Johnson, too; but he just happened along here one day—he didn't belong to our Johnsons. But he said it felt kind of home-like here, and he hired out as a farm hand and has been here ever since."

The above incident serves to show a queer condition that exists in many of our American settlements. Doubtless the progenitors of the Johnsons referred to above transformed the virgin forests into the fertile farms to be seen in that community to-day, and which have been handed down from generation to generation. The few scattered farmhouses after awhile grew into a village of some proportions, when it was found necessary to have a post office and other conveniences of civilization. But the whole process was simply a concentration of the Johnson family.

The same conditions prevail to some extent in the British isles. The Scottish town of Inverness is notable for the fact that 93 per cent. of its population given in the directory have the surname of "Fraser." The Irish town of Waterford is notable for the number of persons bearing the name of "Power," almost every second shopkeeper being called a "Power" and not long since the Roman Catholic bishop, the mayor, the high sheriff, the coroner and seven members of the town council were all named "Power." In the little town of Flintberg, Siberia (1,700 population), there are 163 families, aggregating 653 persons, all having the one family name of "Glasey." To distinguish them each of the 163 families has, besides its real name, a nickname, and the oddest of these is the "Nuss-baum Glasey," which is owing to the stump of a walnut tree in front of their house.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NOT IN A TRANCE THIS TIME.

The Living "Dead Man" Is a Dead Man Now.

Dr. John Evans, of Homer City, Indiana county, Pa., died at the Presbyterian hospital, Allegheny, after being in a trance for over two days. His case is a very remarkable one. He had for many years been subject to heart trouble and at certain intervals became unconscious and lay in a trance, in a condition that strongly resembled death. He was called "the living dead man." During the war he was wounded, and recovered, and it was not until after November, 1894, that he had a dizziness in the head and his spine became affected. Without any apparent cause, the heart almost stopped beating, and the pulse was faint and low. From that time on he suffered from a peculiar form of spasms. They came at any moment, and lasted from ten minutes to a half hour. At the hospital he had several unconscious spells, and was nearly given up for dead on different occasions. He was revived by vigorous rubbing and other means. The other day he had three attacks. At 11 o'clock he fell back on the pillow again and ceased to breathe. The usual remedies were applied, and the nurses and physicians worked with him for several hours. They thought all the while that he was in one of his peculiar spells. Finally, however, it was admitted that the doctor was dead. The body will be kept several days, to make sure that life is extinct.

THE FRONT OF THE HOUSE.

Floral Decorations That Go Toward Making Home Attractive.

During the past few years there has been an increasing tendency on the part of those who are possessed of any space at the front of their dwellings to utilize it as much as possible, in order to make their homes bright and attractive, and to this end window boxes are used, which for at least six months of the year can be kept gay with flowers. The practice, too, of covering the fronts of houses with climbing plants—especially within the precincts of a town—has much to recommend it, and the plants one may employ for this purpose are so numerous that anyone—novice though he may be—having a desire to embellish that spot called "home," may do so at a very small cost, and with comparatively little trouble, providing that due consideration is given to variety, time of planting and atmospheric surroundings.

It is beyond question that plants thrive best in a pure atmosphere, hence it is that the gardener in town is under a disadvantage when compared with anyone residing in the country. Notwithstanding this drawback and the fact that many live in congested thoroughfares, town dwellings may be made very beautiful with foliage coverings.

For the front of a house, for porticos, or for any position where foliage is required, there is no plant so eminently fitted for the purpose and none which has achieved such great popularity of recent years as the ampelopsis family; and whether it is seen rambling over some cottage in the country or beautifying some modern residence in a busy city thoroughfare, in both instances it is quickly established and adapts itself to its surroundings, even though the atmosphere of the vicinity is not all that is desirable.

There are several varieties of ampelopsis which may be used, but none so largely employed as ampelopsis vitifolia, as being a somewhat rampant grower, it quickly envelops the space at its disposal, covering frequently from eight to ten feet during a season.

Another great point in its favor lies in the fact that when once planted it needs very little care afterwards, the shoots requiring no nailing (as is the case with the ivy, clematis, etc.), the young tendrils which put out from the stems cling most tenaciously to brick or stone work, or any rough surface, as to make them quite independent of any other support.

The young plants, which can be procured of any florist very cheaply, should be planted early in the season, giving them a start in some nice loamy soil, planting them close up to the wall they are to cover, and gently fastening the shoots so as to give them a fair start.

The foliage, too, of the ampelopsis is neat and does not harbor insects, as do some creepers, and adds greatly to the charm of a dwelling by its beautiful bright green foliage in early summer, which as the autumn approaches assumes a delicate brown, changing as the weeks advance to a brilliant red and giving to the walls a wealth of color.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

SUMMER DRINKS.

The Use and Misuse of the Various Cooling Beverages for Hot Days.

The Frenchman, not without reason, calls our iced drinks "American poisons." As a matter of fact, cool spring water will allay thirst much better than iced water; but it is very difficult to convince those addicted to the ice-water habit of this fact. The grave harm caused by iced water is from swallowing it quickly and in large quantities. If sipped slowly and held in the mouth for a moment, the temperature is raised appreciably before it reaches the stomach, and its cooling effects reach that part of the body where they are most needed—the head, throat and upper part of the chest. For this reason ice cream is much less dangerous than iced water; we eat it slowly, and it is not only entirely melted, but also perceptibly warmed before it enters the stomach.

This well-known fact, which everyone can verify for himself, is entirely ignored by those alarmists who draw so harrowing pictures of the internal economy, representing the stomach and its contents as almost paralyzed by the suddenly congealing influences of the introduction of a mass of frozen cream. Of course, if this were so the danger would be immense, for when the stomach is attending to its appointed duties—actively engaged in the process of digestion—it is a little furnace, and any tampering with its fires results in the immediate discomfort of its owner and overser. When you deluge it with iced drinks you put out the fires, and arrested digestion means acute pain and much discomfort. Don't ask it to do so much work when the thermometer goes above 80 degrees; then the fires will not have to be so hot, and you will not suffer from what you feel is a consuming thirst.—Demorest's Magazine.

Ink on Furniture.

To remove ink that has been spilled on mahogany, rosewood or black walnut furniture, put half a dozen drops of spirits of niter into a spoonful of water and touch the satin with a feather wet in this. As soon as the ink disappears, rub the place immediately with a cloth wet in cold water, or the niter will leave a white spot difficult to remove. If after washing off the niter the ink stain still shows, repeat the second time.—Detroit Free Press.

MR. SEWALL'S ATTITUDE.

Democratic Managers Give Publicity to a Letter to Bryan from the Maine Man.

SUCCESS OF THE SILVER ISSUE IS PARAMOUNT.

Wants No Personal Considerations for Himself to Stand in Bryan's Way in Accepting Populist Presidential Nomination

WILL FORESTALL FALSE RUMORS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee has made public a letter to Wm. J. Bryan from Arthur Sewall, apparently dated July 25, at which time the Populist convention was in session.

My DEAR MR. BRYAN.—In view of the action of the St. Louis convention today I cannot refrain from giving you my thoughts on the situation.

I desire you to do just what you believe is best for the success of the head of our ticket.

I cannot for a moment allow myself to be a factor in any action on your part that would in the slightest degree hazard an electoral vote for you.

With kind regards to Mrs. Bryan, believe me, your sincere friend.

ARTHUR SEWALL.

The Democratic managers at headquarters insisted the letter had no further significance than that Mr. Bryan would consent to receive a formal notification from the Populist party in the near future, and the publication was to forestall false rumors as to the attitude of Mr. Sewall toward such ceremony.

GRAND ARMY STATISTICS.

Reports of the Officers Are Submitted—At Buffalo Meet'g.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 3.—The grand encampment of the G. A. R. meet this morning. After addresses of welcome and responses the doors were closed in executive session.

The report of Adjutant General Robins contained the following: "The report of my predecessor showed that on June 30, 1895, our membership in good standing was 357,639, distributed among 7,303 posts, with 49,600 members on the suspended list, making a total of 407,239 on the rolls.

CHICAGO MARKETS. CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Wheat, moderate trade, within a 1c. range, closing 1/2c. from the top and 1c. higher than yesterday.

Forecast of the Weather. WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—10 p. m.—The weather bureau reports the following as its forecast for the next twenty-four hours: For upper Michigan: Fair; warmer; light to fresh variable winds shifting to southwesterly.

NOT A SICK DAY For Over Thirty Years!

AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored.

expended in charity for the year was $211,949, an increase of $13,000 over the preceding year.

The report of A. J. Burbank, quartermaster general, showed receipts of $30,354; expenditures, $19,779, leaving a balance on hand of $10,575. The assets are $12,131 and investments $16,000.

In his report Insp. Gen. Olin said: "The order generally is in a healthy and vigorous condition; it is filled with a fraternity which only grows warmer as the years increase; with a charity which flows from loving hearts and liberal hands, and a loyalty which combines the steadiness of manhood with the enthusiasm and effervescence of youth.

Henry H. Adams, special aide in charge of military institution in public schools, says his report: "After several years of experience and trial the results are most satisfactory. The pupil acquires improved school discipline, self control, a dignified bearing and appreciation of wise leadership."

NEXT ENCAMPMENT AT BUFFALO. On roll call, Buffalo was decided on for the encampment for 1897.

The recommendation of the committee in favor of the Pickler bill to revise pension legislation was adopted unanimously. The bill passed the house and is now pending before the United States senate.

The proposition to allow Sons of Veterans to attend Grand Army meetings brought out three reports, the majority favoring it under certain conditions, one minority report opposing the whole proposition and the other favoring certain modifications in the plan.

The rest of the session was unimportant, the election of officers not coming up until tomorrow. The chief candidates are John C. Linehan of New Hampshire and Major T. S. Clarkson.

The Daughters of Veterans held a business session and elected officers today. Miss Alice Ingrams of Chicago was elected president.

WANTED TO LYNCH DILLON.

Irish Leader Narrowly Escapes Rough Treatment by a Dublin Mob.

DUBLIN, Sept. 3.—At the close of the Irish national convention this evening there was almost a riot in Sackville street, and John Dillon and a number of his friends were compelled to seek refuge in a hotel.

After leaving the hotel, escorted by fifty or sixty members of the convention, walked up Sackville street, which was densely crowded. The delegates were followed by a noisy mob of 1,000 Dublin roughs, who evidently were not in sympathy with the Dillonites.

PALMER FOR PRESIDENT.

ored Palmer, because he had "passed the period of his boyhood." Vermont followed her example, and Virginia did likewise. Hugh C. Wallace, in behalf of Washington, seconded Palmer's nomination.

The call of states having been completed Illinois asked a hearing for Judge Moran. He said Illinois had remained silent because their lips had been sealed. They felt all along that Palmer, of all other men, was the man who filled the public eye with satisfaction, as the proper candidate. They had been forbidden by this man, who was as modest as he was great, to use his name, but now after observing the temper of the convention, Illinois would join in the demand for his nomination. The chairman then ordered that the ballot be taken.

HOW THE STATES VOTED.

Alabama started with sixteen votes for Palmer and six votes for Bragg. California, Connecticut, Colorado and Delaware voted solidly for Palmer, but Bragg got six votes out of Georgia, one-half of the vote from Iowa, twelve from Kentucky and seventeen from Missouri. Michigan cast her twenty-eight votes for Palmer. While the roll was proceeding the Cleveland banner of the Florida delegation was carried out to Illinois. Then as each state voted for Palmer the gudeons of the states were carried through the aisles to Illinois, where they were clustered, leaving only a few gudeons standing in their places. It was already apparent that Senator Palmer would be nominated by an overwhelming majority. The vote of Oregon gave him the necessary two-thirds. But the call proceeded.

When Wisconsin was reached Senator Vilas announced the Badger state would remain true to the candidate for whom she was instructed, and cast twenty-four votes for Bragg. When the call was completed Georgia waved her six votes from Bragg to Palmer, making the vote: Palmer, 757 1/2; Bragg, 124 1/2. Thereupon General Bragg arose amid the cheering of the convention. He mounted a chair. There were cries for him to take the platform, but the sturdy old veteran shook his head. When quiet was restored he thanked his followers, and then said he could do himself no greater honor than to move that Palmer's nomination be made unanimous. He pledged the support of himself and his state to the ticket, and said: "We will be found," he concluded, "where men should always be in battle—nearest the flashing of guns."

CHEERS FOR BRAGG AND PALMER.

Bragg's motion was carried with a whoop and three cheers for "the Iron commander" were called for and were given with a will. Chairman Caffrey then declared Palmer the nominee of the National Democratic party for president of the United States. All the state banners were carried around the hall in a procession, while the band played "Red, White and Blue" and delegates, standing on chairs, shouted cheers, which were reinforced by the galleries. After the banners had come to rest three cheers were given for Palmer.

The gavel cracked sharply through the shouts and Chairman Caffrey was heard announcing: "The secretary will call the roll of states for vice president." Thereupon the secretary called "Kentucky," and a great laughing cheer went up. General Buckner was alone in the field for second place. The band struck into "My Old Kentucky home," and the banners were brought down to Kentucky's row.

W. F. Broder of Kentucky came to the platform and formally placed in nomination "Kentucky's grand old man," M. D. May of Ohio moved the nomination of Buckner by acclamation. One big shout went up, and Chairman Caffrey had but to make the formal announcement when the work of the convention was practically done. A second time the standards marched the aisle, while the band played "Yankee Doodle."

"You know about the governor of North Carolina and the governor of South Carolina," shouted a West Virginia delegate, amid a roar of laughter. "I move the convention be adjourned sine die." The motion was put and carried, and at 4:30 the first convention of the National Democratic party adjourned sine die.

WHO THE NOMINEES ARE.

Short Biographical Sketches of Senator Palmer and Gen. Buckner.

John McAuley Palmer was born in Scott county, Ky., Sept. 13, 1817; removed with his father to Illinois in 1831; attended common schools in Kentucky and Illinois and spent a year at Alton college. In 1839 he was admitted to the bar. In 1852 he was elected to the state senate to fill a vacancy and was elected again in 1854. Having declined to act with the Republican party he resigned his seat in the senate. In 1861 he was a member of the peace conference at Washington; was a prominent officer in the Civil war; took part in the battles of Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge and in the Atlanta campaign. Two years after the war he removed to Springfield, Ill. He was elected governor of Illinois in 1868; was thrice nominated by the Democratic members of the legislature for United States senator, and as many times defeated. In 1890 he was nominated by the Democrats for United States senator and was elected on the 153rd ballot. His term expires March 3, 1897.

General Simon Bolivar Buckner is seventy-five years old. He was born in Hart county, southern part of Kentucky, and still lives in the log cabin in which he was born. This log cabin was built by the general's father over one hundred years ago, and the only time he lived away from his birthplace was when he was governor of Kentucky. He was the Democratic gold standard candidate for United States senator in Kentucky last winter, but drew from the race, and no one was elected. General Buckner is worth something over a million dollars, nearly all of which is invested in farm lands and real estate. During the siege of Fort Donelson General Buckner was third in command of the fort. General Grant surrounded the fort on all sides, and after attacks on Feb. 13 and 14 the

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Two members of President Cleveland's cabinet, Secretary Carlisle and Secretary Francis, tonight expressed themselves as well pleased with Palmer's nomination, and a third member of the cabinet, Secretary Lamont, while declining to be interviewed, incidentally remarked as to the personality of the nominees that they were good Democrats.

AS VIEWED IN WASHINGTON.

Secretaries Carlisle and Francis Well Pleased With the Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Two members of President Cleveland's cabinet, Secretary Carlisle and Secretary Francis, tonight expressed themselves as well pleased with Palmer's nomination, and a third member of the cabinet, Secretary Lamont, while declining to be interviewed, incidentally remarked as to the personality of the nominees that they were good Democrats.

Mr. Carlisle, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, said: "The only wisdom I can see that the bolting Democrats have exercised in their efforts to build up McKinley is in selecting two persons to lead the forlorn hope who, in the providence of God, cannot expect any future or present political preferment or the gratification of their ambitions."

Representative McMillin says: "No ticket that is put up to defeat the Democracy can win in this country."

DECLINED TO BE INTERVIEWED.

BUFFARD'S BAY, Sept. 3.—President Cleveland, when seen tonight relative to the nomination of Palmer, declined to be interviewed regarding the action of the convention.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE MEETS.

W. D. Bynum Selected to Take Charge of the Campaign.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 3.—The national committee of the National Democratic party held a meeting today after the convention adjourned. It was decided to have an executive committee of nine to manage the campaign. W. D. Bynum was selected without opposition for chairman of the executive committee, and he will select the other members of it. John P. Frenzel of Indianapolis was chosen treasurer, but the choice of secretary was left to the committee. Both the presidential and vice presidential candidates will be notified of their nomination in Louisville Sept. 12. The headquarters of the executive committee will probably be located in Chicago. John R. Wilson is the Michigan member of the national committee.

THE PRESIDENT DECLINED.

Wouldn't Allow His Name to Be Presented as a Candidate.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 3.—President Cleveland, in response to a dispatch sent him last night by J. D. S. Griffin, chairman of the New York delegation, asking him to permit the use of his name as a candidate for the presidency, wired the following reply: "My public and personal inclinations are so unalterably opposed that I cannot for one moment consider the suggestion."

AFTER THE GEORGIA ELECTORS.

Watson and Populist Leaders Hold a Conference at Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 3.—A conference between Senator Butler, Thomas E. Watson and state Populist leaders was held here tonight. The various phases of the campaign were discussed. The national committee will make special efforts to elect Bryan and Watson electors in Georgia with the hope of forcing Sewall from the Democratic ticket by a result. The Georgia state election is held in October. It was decided to notify Bryan and Watson of their nomination by letter between now and Sept. 15.

Uniform Bank Parade.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 3.—The parade of the Uniform Bank, K. P., was the feature today. The program opened with a prize drill at the ball park, in which, however, at the last minute one of the contestants, the Garden City division of Chicago, pulled out and the prize was awarded to the other, the John Barr Glenn division of Eau Claire.

New McKinley Club.
A meeting of the leading young Republicans of the city was held last evening in the office of Ball & Ball to take the preliminary steps toward reorganizing the old Republican club. The meeting was called to order by John R. Van Evers, chairman. J. E. Ball acted as secretary. A committee composed of C. H. Kelsey, George Wagner and O. G. Youngquist was appointed on permanent organization, place of meeting and nomination of officers. The following committee of sixteen, two from each ward, was appointed to solicit members: E. W. Vandenberg, George Drolet, Sam Bennett, B. J. Waldo, C. H. Kelsey, S. M. Billings, George Wagner, J. F. Niedhart, George F. Homeler, William J. O'Meara, James Jammerson, John Reardon, Richard Mitchell, George Freeman, M. E. Asire and W. W. Richardson. The committee hopes to be able to organize Saturday night.

Court Still in Session.
Business in the United States court failed to come to a point yesterday where that honorable body could adjourn for the term. It was thought the day before that as there was only one case, and that already begun, court would surely be ended Thursday. It was not finished yesterday, though, and will not be sent to the jury till this morning. The issue is the action brought against the aldermen of Menominee for failure to take a statutory bond for the protection of subcontractors on a public work. The testimony and the arguments by the lawyers consumed the entire day. Only one other case was attended to, that of Eric Nedlin, a Menominee liquor seller. He pleaded guilty to a violation of the revenue laws and took a hundred dollar fine.

MARINE MATTERS.
PASSED THE CANAL.
SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Sept. 3.—[Special]—Up—Curry, 2; Colorado, Pontiac, 2:40; Hall, 3:40; Peck, 4:30; Centurion, Mariposa, 5; Maytham, Republic, 9:30; Samuel Mitchell, 8:40; Pathfinder and consort, 10:30; Chili, 11:30; Codarus, 12:40; Sibley and consort, 1:40; Neilson (whaleback), 2:40; North Queen, 3:40; Trevor (whaleback) 5; Siemens, 5:40; North Land, 7.

MIDLAKE AND HARBOR GOSSIP.
Port list: Arrived—Choctaw. Cleared—Choctaw, Cleveland.

The steamer Alert struck a shoal in the Thousand Islands in the Lost channel. Her eight passengers were rescued without difficulty. The vessel sank.

It was so rough that the City of Marquette did not go out on her usual run yesterday, but laid over and comprised one of the fleet lying in for shelter.

The steamer Street, towing the schooner Lowe, which loaded at Baraga, put in here for shelter yesterday. The Street went out last night with an ore schooner added to the tow.

One man is taking very little tonnage, and it is with much trouble that boats are placed. Some shippers say that the will only be able to load their contract boats from now on. The coal freight situation shows no change.

The steamer Ed Smith No. 1 and consorts Angus Smith and Maria Martin, which are bound for Port Huron with grain, will be laid up as soon as they discharge their cargoes. The steamer Ed Smith No. 2 and consorts will make another trip in the ore trade before they go out of commission.

W. A. Livingstone said: "The only reason grain men in Chicago are offering more than 1c on grain is because they fear that if they offer less they will not find tonnage, for boats will lay up. Even at what they are getting, boats are not making, in the majority of instances, expenses; but I think they will mostly hold on awhile, hoping for some change." Mr. Livingstone strongly favors combination of vessels and some regulation of tonnage that would give a chance to vessel men to do some dictating instead of it being all the other way.

CITY BREVITIES.
Weather forecast: Friday, fair with northerly winds.

Yesterday's temperature: 7 a. m., 50 degrees; 12 m., 51 degrees; 7 p. m., 48 degrees; maximum, 54 degrees; minimum, 48 degrees.

W. W. Osband has moved to 324 Arch street.

A. E. Moyle has returned from his eastern trip.

Probate Judge Nels Clifton was in Ishpeming yesterday.

Professor Downey, a corn specialist from Ottawa, is in the city.

L. M. Cody of Munising was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

You can get fresh oysters at Arthur Delf's restaurant, 133 Washington street.

Miss Grace Kemp will appear in the musical soiree to be given tonight in the Presbyterian church.

Miss Agnes McNulty and her brother Martin returned yesterday after a two weeks visit with relatives in Duluth.

There is a reward of a dollar at THE MINING JOURNAL office waiting to be paid to the finder of Mr. Osband's keys.

The funeral of Howard S. Longtime will be held from the home of his parents on North Third street today at 2 p. m.

The Young Woman's Guild will meet this afternoon in Morgan Memorial chapel for the election of officers and other business.

Mrs. Dorr of Fremont, O., who pleased so many people by her beautiful singing, returned to her home yesterday morning.

Sam Bennett is taking a two day's trip out through the country notifying jurors who are to serve at the coming term of county court.

Labor Day being a holiday the post-office will observe Sunday hours. The mail usually made up at eight in the evening will close at six.

The boarding list at the jail received a new addition yesterday of a drunk and disorderly from Negaunee. He will stop with the sheriff thirty days.

Alfred Meads has returned to Ontacon to look after his property and business. His wife and daughter remain here at the home of T. D. Meads.

G. A. Werner, proprietor of the Childs Art gallery, has secured the services of E. H. Wilkinson of Detroit, who has the ability to turn out firstclass photographs.

A. F. Maynard has had great luck drawing bicycles this season. Mr. Maynard was the holder of the lucky number at Conklins the other night, and earlier in the season he drew the wheel raffled away at Palmers.

Vernor Wilson, the four months old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, died late Wednesday night of cholera infantum. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, interment being in the old Catholic cemetery.

Two Menominee newspaper men were in the city yesterday to testify in the case pending in the United States court against the aldermen of that city. They are H. D. Fifield, of The Herald, and Joseph E. Soultis, of The Leader.

Quite a party of the delegates to the French convention stayed over yesterday morning and enjoyed a carriage ride about the city. They are all highly appreciative of the courtesies they received at the hands of the St. John Baptist society.

The last hop of the season at Hotel Superior was given last evening. It was well attended, the crowd being made up of the most select young people of the city, who took advantage of the last opportunity to enjoy the magnificent music of the hotel orchestra.

Captain Hagan, who for years has been in command of boats running in and out of Marquette, is at present very low, having suffered two apopleptic strokes. He is traveling for his health on one of the ore carriers, but is obliged to have a nurse accompany him constantly.

Agree on Fusion.
OMAHA, Sept. 3.—The state central committees of the Democrat and Populist parties have agreed on the details of a plan for fusion.

CARD OF THANKS.
It is our desire to extend our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the many friends who aided us in our late sad bereavement and sympathized with us in the affliction through we have so recently passed, that of the death of our little daughter Iva May. Kindness shown at such a time are doubly appreciated, and if a similar occasion should offer will be reciprocated by MR. AND MRS. HENRY PURCHASE.

G. A. Werner, proprietor of the Childs Art Gallery, has secured the services of E. H. Wilkinson of Detroit, who has the ability to make firstclass and artistic photographs in all the latest styles. Also developing and printing for amateurs done. (9-4-14)

Make no mistake but see that you get a supply of Vandenberg's most famous creamery butter today. (9-4-14)

Use Professor Field's worm powders. A single trial proves their worth. (9-3-14)

TERRAPIN FARMS. The Industry Successfully Carried on in New Jersey. Of late years the demand for terrapin has become so great that at times it is impossible to fill it.

There are several kinds of terrapin, and the good, gray senator does not raise the best variety, unless he has recently stocked his cove with the celebrated diamond-backs, which are obtainable only in Chesapeake bay. Still, the market for any kind of terrapin is usually good.

The harvest time on the terrapin farm is in the fall. Early in the fall the finest and fattest terrapin are captured and placed in a warm cellar. There they live for weeks, and although left without food, persist in getting fatter and fatter until the chill blasts of winter usher in the market time.

With a lantern hung where its yellow flickerings will partly banish the darkness, a man with a sort of alpenstock in his hand hunts the terrapin in out-of-the-way places. With a crooked staff he deftly tumbles them over on their backs, and places them in a crate that will hold six or eight heavy-weights.

Diamond-backs in season are worth from two to three dollars each, according to weight. When the stock in the cellar is shipped the slumbering terrapin in the mud at the cove's bottom are rudely awakened. Men go in boats, and, armed with long crooks, prod into the mud to locate the turtles.

When landed in the boat the savage creatures are laid on their backs in a locker, and there they pass the time away, foaming at the mouth, until they are consigned to the crate. These fishermen handle fierce turtles with wonderful skill. The tails are regarded as natural handles, and to grasp them is the first thing necessary in completing their capture.

The average marketable terrapin weighs from eight to twelve pounds. After two or three years' growth they increase in size slowly, but get heavier rapidly. With age the fish becomes more and more firm and solid, and it frequently happens that two terrapins of the same size will vary two or three pounds in weight.

When a terrapin attains great size its flesh becomes very tough and is only available in the kitchen for making soups. Naturalists say that the diamond-backed terrapin never lives more than 25 or 30 years, while his relative, the land tortoise, has been known to be "as young as ever" at 100 years.

Terrapin farming, if successfully conducted, is a money-making business, and pays all the way from 300 to 500 per cent per annum on the investment. Once in awhile, however, bad luck comes, the terrapin freezes or the waters become impregnated with poisonous matter, and, in consequence, there is an upturning of terrapin toes. However, the few men engaged in the novel business in New Jersey seem well satisfied with their investments.

The Happy Litigant. Macbeth Simmons is never so happy as when he has got a lawsuit on hand. He is everlastingly suing somebody or being sued. Not long since he met his lawyer, who said: "I've got bad news. The court of appeals has decided against us. We have lost the case."

A LIVELY FRUIT WAR.

Dealers Cut Prices to the Bone and Dispose of Several Carloads. Two carloads of apples, grapes and peaches were retailed from the side-tracks here yesterday, and nearly every person whose attention was attracted to the sale took advantage of the low prices to lay in a supply.

The apple sale attracted even more attention than the Co-operative store's peach and grape sale. This was in charge of J. E. Hoiver of Buffalo. He sold large apples, fairly good stock, for immediate use, at fifty cents per bushel. Crab apples were handed out at twenty-five cents per bushel.

Mr. Hoiver met with very good success with his sale yesterday. He says he will dispose of ten carloads of apples in Marquette county within the next week or two. The apple crop is so large this year that he can produce any quantity that he may desire.

Wellwood & Co. were not outdone yesterday by the dealers who sold fruit from the cars. They put the price of their peaches at fifteen cents per basket and their grapes at thirteen.

A NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT.

A Game of Whist With Ladies and Gentlemen Doing Service as Cards. The members of the Ladies' Guild of Grace Episcopal church are arranging for a novel entertainment, known as "living whist," to take place on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Sept. 15 and 16 at the A. O. U. hall.

One of the principal features of the entertainment will be the costumes worn by the participants. The different ones will be costumed so that the spectators can readily see which card each represents. The kings and jacks will be represented by persons who will furnish the comedy part of the entertainment.

The ladies of the society are already hard at work arranging for the entertainment. Cards have been selected, there being an equal number of ladies and gentlemen taking part, and work on the costumes has been started.

Will Be Out in Style. The riders of Ishpeming's Cycling club will take their first run this evening, leaving the Nelson House at 6:45 o'clock. A lot of new badges were received yesterday and will be worn in the parade this evening.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

C. S. Beadle of Sault Ste. Marie spent yesterday in the city. Miss Mary Kennedy of Barnum street is spending the week at St. Paul.

Joseph S. Bargh is up from Fond du Lac, Wis., on a few days visit to relatives. Mrs. J. H. Quinn and her daughter Geraldine have returned from a lake trip to Cleveland.

Mrs. P. A. Kilstrom and her son Axel have gone to St. Paul on a visit of a week or ten days. A special meeting of the city council was held last evening for the purpose of allowing the bills for last month.

A number of new seats are being placed in the High street school preparatory to the opening for the fall term. The ladies of Grace church will serve ice cream and cake in the McKee block, next door to Jacecke's, tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The excursion to Pictured Rocks which was arranged for yesterday was indefinitely postponed on account of the disagreeable weather. M. Van Orden of Houghton spent Wednesday evening in the city.

Rev. M. M. Allen, pastor of the Presbyterian church, got home yesterday from up the line, where he has spent the past few weeks camping. Mrs. C. H. Hall got home Wednesday from a visit to friends in Chicago and other places south. She was accompanied by Mr. Hall, who went to Chicago Monday night to join her.

The local wrestlers who had a few hitches at the ring yesterday furnished a great deal of amusement for the thirty or forty spectators present. They will all work hard to win a prize Monday afternoon. Miss M. B. Leary has been engaged to take charge of J. H. Quinn's millinery department for the fall season.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Frederick H. Raisky and Miss Jessie S. Broad, to take place next Thursday at high noon at the Presbyterian church. A reception will be held at 831 North Pine street from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m.

STRANDED MINERS IN ALASKA.

Thousands Who Went to Cook Inlet to Hunt for Gold Having a Hard Struggle. About 3,000 miners are stranded at Cook's inlet, which is nearly 1,000 miles northwest of Juneau, Alaska. They are camped in tents along Six Mile and Resurrection creeks, which empty into Turnagain Arm, the headwaters of Cook's inlet.

The brigantine Blakeley, which sailed for Cook's inlet in April, carrying 60 prospectors, has just returned. She brings news that the miners were very much discouraged when she left, and those who had any means were preparing to leave as quickly as possible. The Blakeley crew say that each day they were there dozens of miners, numbering from a squad to 50 each, were to be seen going up and down the various creeks searching for gold.

When the Blakeley left some of the miners were striking for the headwaters of the Kennal river, 80 miles south of Turnagain Arm. James Churchill, a rancher, who returned on the Blakeley, says that it is not unlikely that the miners left on Turnagain Arm will seize some of the vessels there and help themselves to get away.

TENNESSEE MOUNDS.

Contain Evidence of Giant and Pygmy Races. Relics of the Ancients Which Seem to Be the Remains of Worshipers of Vishnu.

In the beginning of this century there was plowed up in Hawkins county a stone trumpet. It seems to have been made of hard soapstone, and when blown through makes a sound which may be heard two or three miles. It is very smooth on the outside, but rough within. This was probably used by the giants to convene assemblies, and to regulate the movements of their army, on days of rejoicing to make a part of the musical sounds with which the people were entertained.

The trumpet was not in use till about A. D. 600. In the time of the Trojan war neither Greeks nor Trojans had flutes and pipes, and the Greek stentor, a man of mighty voice, proclaimed orders to the army. In the year 514 B. C., when Darius, the Mede, crossed the Danube and invaded the Scythians he had no trumpet. When Xerxes invaded Greece, 478 B. C., no trumpet was there used; the signal for battle was given by torch-bearers.

The Greeks probably learned it from the Phenicians. The dispersed Israelites of the Assyrian or Chaldean captivity imparted the knowledge of the trumpet and its uses to the people from whom it came immediately to the American giants. From it we make the following deductions: (1) There were no large hollow horns in the country which could have been used for the same purpose.

(2) If the makers of the trumpet, which no doubt were the giants, knew the use of metals, they did not have the time or material to form trumpets, as they had been engaged in a long and protracted war with the natives. (3) The mound builders did not make this trumpet, or they would have made it with metal.

A Mr. Lane submitted quite a number of these bones to the medical fraternity at Nashville, and it was their opinion that the skeletons belonged to adult persons. The height of this people was about two and one-half to three feet, and they buried after the fashion of the giants with rocks set tip around the body and head to the east. A face to the west. That this people were addicted to strong superstitions is evident. In the graves mentioned were found conch shells—also mussel and taper shells. These people no doubt were worshipers of Vishnu.

Among the relics of this people was found in White county a stone about six inches long, half an inch thick and three inches wide, and still widening to the edge and having an edge like an ax. This ax was found in an old fortification near Sparta, and seemed to be tinged with blood which had been petrified on it. The color of green was intermixed with a few spots of lighter complexion.

Stone axes of the same description are brought from the Fiji islands in the Pacific by navigators. The same species of stone is found on the banks of the Amazon. As to what became of this mysterious race, we can but conjecture that, having come so far south that the climate was so congenial to them—together with the labor and fatigue of their long and aggressive warfare in connection with the giants against the aborigines—that the strain and climate was too great for their northern constitutions, and they all perished and their dust mingled with our southern soil unwee by no eye but God's, and whose history is only written on the scrolls of eternity.

Time to Stop. "I shall have to give up that case of Dusenbury's, on which I have been engaged so long," said the eminent lawyer to his friend. "I shall feel rather odd with it out of the way, for it has been one of the stand-bys of the office for years."

Corroborative. "A great statesman has said," observed the dean, "that the secret of success is to keep close to the people. That's the way I have always managed to get along."

Household Words. Harry—What girl was that you had in town last evening? Willie (indignantly)—What you are pleased to call town is usually spoken of by people of culture as blonde tresses.

"THE ISLE OF TERROR."

Description of Ushant, Where the Drummond Castle Went Down. Ushant, the island upon whose outlying reefs the steamer Drummond Castle ran on June 17, sinking three minutes afterward and carrying down every soul except three, lies off the northwest coast of France and forms the corner around which vessels from the south turn into the English channel after crossing the Bay of Biscay.

"Ushant" is the Anglicized form of "Ouessant," the French name. Pliny calls the island "Uxantia," and the Bretons knew it as "Enez Heussa," which means "the Isle of Terror." It well deserves the Celtic name. The inhabitants of Ushant are a hardy race—the men all fishermen and seamen, the women all tillers of the rocky soil.

The latter on high days and holidays still often display their ancient costume, with its flat coif, which strikingly recalls the feminine headgear of southern Italy, and whence their dark hair streams in freedom below their waists. Within the last quarter of a century a breed of ponies still roamed in semi-wilderness over a large portion of the island, and for centuries the inhabitants themselves were looked upon as savages. Debarred, often for long weeks at a time, from any intercourse with the mainland, they certainly led very primitive lives.

But at the same time they preserved the primitive virtues, and honesty and hospitality have ever been articles of faith among them. Losing year by year, with unfeeling regularity, a score or two of their own kin and kindred in the treacherous waters around their isle, their sympathies have always been with those whom shipwreck has imperiled.

Whenever one of the islanders is lost at sea, a touching ceremony, called "the Proella," is performed. The relatives and friends of the deceased carry to his house a small wooden cross, over which the clergy repeat the prayers for the dead, as if this symbol were the corpse itself. Then the crossbearer, who, whenever practicable, is the godfather of the defunct (this again a touching instance of symbolism), incloses it in a coffin, and, followed by all the mourners, deposits it at the foot of a statue of St. Pol Aurelien, the patron of the isle. A few years ago a hundred of these coffers could be seen assembled around the statue.

Ushant is known to history. A seaport as 1388 an English expedition landed on the island, and ravaged it with fire and sword. Then, in 1778, its waters witnessed the much-criticised naval engagement between Keppel and d'Orville, which English historians usually describe as a drawn battle, whereas the French claim it as a decisive victory. Finally, 16 years later, Ushant saw the "glorious 1st of June," when Lord Howe certainly shattered the French ships of war, commanded by Villaret-Joyeuse, but at the same time signally failed to prevent the large fleet of French merchantmen, on whose arrival France depended for means to prosecute the war, from getting safely into the port of Brest.

Ushant is in Breton estimation predestined to deeds of blood and death is shown by a strange rhymed proverb, which Chateaubriand quotes in his "Memoirs from Beyond the Grave," and which may be Englished thus: "He who sees Belle Isle doth see his isle; he who sees Grol doth see his joy; but gaze on Ushant's flood, you see your blood."

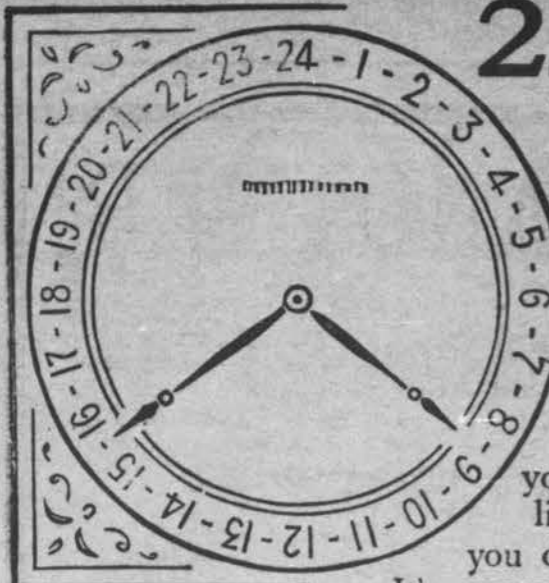

Of the wild scenery around Ushant there has probably never been any better description than that given by Chateaubriand. The island is the largest, and, from the mainland, the most distant, of those forming the archipelago to which it gives its name. Mokene, the next in size, trades largely in its own soil, which on account of certain chemical properties, is sought after by Breton agriculturists. Then, in addition to scores of little islets, some of them mere atoms and rocks, there is Quenez, which is about a quarter of the size of Ushant, while near the mainland is Benquet, or the Blessed Isle, so called on account of its proximity to the Breton shore, and the refuge it offers amid the most dangerous of all the adjacent reefs, that of Les Pierres Noires.

Many a stout ship and many a frail fishing boat have been shattered among these reefs, where the waters ever seeth and roar, even on calm summer days. But winter is the time to see Ushant and its neighboring isles all bare and rugged, rising from amid the gale-lashed waves. No rockbound coast can offer a more impressive spectacle than that which the ocean than presents as it leaps in its dread, blind might around the Isle of Terror.—Westminster Gazette.

An Outspoken Politician. "Perhaps you can guess my mission," said the reporter, after the statesman had read the proffered card. "I have called to ascertain what sort of money you are in favor of."

The statesman opened the door, looked out, closed the door again, locked it, pulled down the window and whispered in the ear of the waiting newspaper man: "Campaign funds."

BIBED A SUPERINTENDENT.

Engineer Rae of Chicago to Have Charge of Constructing Negaunee's Lighting Plant. The council committee which has immediate charge of the work of installing a city lighting plant has engaged Frank B. Rae, of Chicago, who provided the plans and specifications, to superintend the construction work. Mr. Rae is expected here today or tomorrow, and will be with the committee when the bids are opened and examined to give it the benefit of his experience and advice. No bid will be accepted until it is approved by Mr. Rae. All bids received will be opened at noon tomorrow.

According to the plans and specifications provided by Mr. Rae, the plant can be furnished and put in condition for operation, with certain supplies included, for less than $10,000.

Will Visit Negaunee.

William Verran is expecting two of his brothers here, one from London, Eng., and the other from Des Moines, Ia., on a visit to him. The one from London is his oldest brother. He has met with excellent success as a contractor and builder. About twelve years ago he retired from active business and has since been taking life easy. This is his first trip to America. Mr. Verran expected his brothers here yesterday, but they did not arrive. They intended leaving Chicago together Thursday night, but for some reason did not get away. Mr. Verran has not seen his brother from London in thirty years, so that their meeting will indeed be a pleasant one.

An Expensive Drop.

A drunken individual who found the Iron street sidewalk altogether too small for him fell through one of the windows of Muck & Thomas' meat market Wednesday evening. When he struck the glass he realized that something unusual had happened, but was too full to get out of the way before a policeman arrived. He was taken in charge and placed in jail, where he spent the night. His spree came rather high by the time he had replaced the broken window and paid for his night's lodging in the jail.

Six Italians, M. Alessi, T. Martino, M. Antano, S. Francisco, B. Picolo and C. Domenico, who have been working at the Lillie mine, left yesterday for their native place in Italy, where they may remain permanently. They stated before leaving here that they might return to Negaunee in the spring if times are good. A few more of the Italians at the Lillie contemplate a trip across the water. A number of those living at the Cambria location have been there ever since the mine was opened up.

A Day at Presque Isle.

About sixty members of the Daughters of St. George society of Negaunee drove to Marquette yesterday and spent the day at Presque Isle. Each bus was pulled by four horses, so that the ladies were taken over the road in good time. The threatening weather in the morning kept a number who intended taking the trip from going. The ladies took along ample luncheon. They left here at 8 o'clock in the morning and got home about nine last evening.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just what they need. Price fifty cents and $1.00 per bottle at E. Farnham's Drug Store.

Boiling River

It is sure enough. It is not as large as the Mississippi, indeed it is quite small, but a mighty interesting stream for all that. It issues from the sides of a mountain in a thousand tiny rills, more or less, and of almost as many colors. These gather themselves into pools and lakelets on the mountain's side, covering an area of about 200 acres. Overflowing their boundaries they slowly trickle down the sides of the mountain forming small cliffs, the most wonderful the world. From a distance one can hardly believe what the eyesight reveals—white, black, orange, lemon, terra cotta, green, blue, red, pink, separate and in manifold combinations stand out before him. It is a hill of painted cliffs on the sides of the mountain that rises high above. And the odd part of it is that each of these exquisite colors represents a different temperature. Does that startle your credulity? Even so it is true.

When through with this beautiful painting process, these waters again come together and then, as if full of mischief like a pack of small boys trying to play hide and seek, dive down and remain under the ground for a space of two miles and then flow out from the mouth of a canyon, one of the clearest, most beautiful, green streams imaginable. Where these waters emerge from the mountain into the little lakes they are hot—boiling hot. During their dark underground journey they pass several hundred feet and also many degrees in hotness, so that when they again see daylight they are much cooler. This then is Boiling river, an underground mountain stream of hot water.

THE ECHO OF A WINK.

The Newly Invented Phonendoscope and Its Application.

The newly-invented phonendoscope is designed to be used by physicians and surgeons for detecting the presence of disease by sound.

The instrument consists of a circular flat metal box or tympanum, having on its one surface two apertures for the attachment of the rubber ear tubes, while the other surface is formed by a thin disk which is readily thrown into vibration. The best results are obtained by simply applying this disk to the surface to be examined. By an ingenious contrivance a second disk can be superposed upon this one and a vulcanite rod attached to the former, so that the area of auscultation may be extremely circumscribed. The conduction of the sounds is only slightly diminished by the use of this rod, which thus combines the principles of the solid stethoscope with that of the tympanum. The rod furnished with the instrument is about two inches in length, but it is stated that there are other rods of variable lengths to enable the "phonendoscopist" to receive sound vibrations from the natural cavities which communicate with the exterior of the body. Altogether, we consider the instrument highly ingenious, says the Lancet, carefully and compactly constructed, useful as an aid to auscultation, but yet not likely to entirely supersede the use of the stethoscope. It may also be found useful in class demonstration, since it would be easy by means of branched tubes to enable several persons to listen at the same time.

The instrument would be particularly useful for the following purposes:

1. The sound of the respiratory organs, of the circulation of the blood and of the digestive organs in the healthy body as well as in the sick subject.
2. The sounds made by the muscles, joints and bones.
3. The sound of the capillary circulation.
4. The slightest sounds produced in any diseased condition of the body; hence it is possible to draw on the body dimensions, the position or any alteration in the position of the various organs and of the fluids which have gathered in the most important cavities of the body.
5. The sounds in the ear, the eye, the bladder, the stomach and the intestines.—Philadelphia Record.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

The Treaty of Peace Negotiated at Shimonoseki.

Ex-Secretary Foster, Who Was the Confidential Adviser of the Emperor of China, Tells of the Work Done by Li Hung Chang.

Gen. Foster, who accompanied Li Hung Chang on his mission to negotiate peace with Japan, in the capacity of confidential adviser to the emperor of China, contributes a characteristic sketch of the Chinese viceroy. Concerning the treaty of Shimonoseki, Mr. Foster says:

"While he thus bore the most important trust ever committed to him by the emperor, it was by no means a task to his liking. He was by nature high-spirited, and his military and political success had made him haughty and imperious. He was proud of his country, of its past history and of its institutions. He partook of the national feeling of contempt for the Japanese, and he felt keenly the humiliation which the war had inflicted upon his people. He knew the mission to which he had been assigned would make him unpopular and expose him to fresh indignities from his partisan enemies. He felt that he was taking his life in his hand when he should place himself on Japanese soil, and he so expressed himself to the incredulous foreign diplomats at Peking; but he dared not shrink from the duty which his sovereign had imposed upon him.

"Seldom has a public man, under such trying circumstances, borne himself with such true heroism and patriotic devotion. A high-spirited and proud man, he went to the land of the despised but triumphant enemy to sue for peace; and yet he never failed to maintain his accustomed demeanor or his country's dignity. And it is due to the Japanese plenipotentiaries who were designated to receive and treat with him at Shimonoseki to state that they exhibited toward him the highest marks of respect, and during the entire negotiations allowed no word to escape from their lips, and nothing to occur, which might be considered personally offensive to their distinguished guest. He had the good fortune to conduct negotiations with two compeers, men of marked ability, and worthy representatives of their government and race. Marquis Ito, the prime minister, is a typical member of the progressive party, educated in Europe, and trained in modern political science and methods of government, but an ardent and patriotic Japanese. He had a valuable colleague in Count Mutsu, minister of foreign affairs, who had been long in his country's service at home and abroad. Marquis Ito, ten years before, had been sent by his government to Tientsin to arrange with the viceroy Li a settlement of Korean affairs; and the same subject brought the viceroy to Japan, but under changed conditions for the negotiators.

"The defeated party always negotiates at a disadvantage, and the viceroy did not fail to appreciate the situation; but the judgment of the impartial observer is that he came out of it with as much credit as was possible, and it is quite certain that he obtained better terms for his country than any other Chinese official could have secured. This was due in part to the personal consideration shown him by the Japanese negotiators, but mainly to his own diplomatic experience and his thorough knowledge of his own government.

"Japan was robbed of a large measure of her triumph by the interposition of the European powers, and it has been stated that the viceroy consented in the treaty to the cession of the Liaoning peninsula only because of his knowledge that these powers would compel its return to China. But this is not a fair statement of the facts. Neither the viceroy nor his government had received any information from Russia or any other power, before the treaty was signed, as to its action on the subject; but he had been a close student of European politics for many years, and his action was based upon convictions born of that study. He neither reads nor speaks any foreign language, but he has secretaries charged with the duty of keeping him informed of current events, and has had much intercourse with diplomats and other intelligent foreigners; and he well knew that Russia, if no other nation, would not allow the domination of Korea by Japan, or its permanent lodgment on the continent so near to Peking and Russia's own possessions, and he was willing to make the Liaoning cession in order to escape other harsh terms.

"But the viceroy's statesmanship and strength of character were most conspicuous in his conduct after the treaty was signed and he had returned to China. He sent urgent telegraphic representations to the emperor and to the foreign office, calling for prompt ratification and exchange of the treaty in spite of the foreign influence and national clamor. His personal enemies were actively exerting themselves against the treaty, led by Viceroy Chang Chi-tung, who had written the highly laudatory address on the occasion of his birthday celebration, and who to that end was fomenting the rebellion in Formosa, and supplying the rebels with arms from the imperial arsenal at Shanghai. It greatly redounds to the credit of the young emperor that in such a grave crisis he followed the advice of his venerable counselor, and ratified the treaty.—Century.

QUIT FOR THE SEASON.

Marquette Baseball Club Disbands Because of Its Crippled Condition.

WON SEVENTEEN GAMES OUT OF TWENTY-FIVE.

Lively Scrap Over a Sail Boat That Was Ruffed Off—Program for the Musicals—Court Still in Session.

NO MORE BASEBALL.

Marquette's baseball club has disbanded for the season. It will make no more engagements for the summer of 1896.

This decision reached by the management and members of the club will be a sore disappointment to the rooting portion of the community, who had hoped to have at least another month of their favorite diversion.

The boys are not quitting because they have been done up. The contrary is true. They have had the "long end" of the season, for out of twenty-five games played they have won seventeen. The reason the club was disbanded was that it was not practical to make the changes required in the team for the few weeks of baseball weather that remain. The work of the team has been good, but it has been at least partly due to frequent changes in the makeup that the team has lost the games it did. The team has played in hard luck, as several of the best players have been unable to play most of the season.

The season opened May 3 at Ishpeming. For the opening game the makeup of the team was as follows: Martin, captain and right field, Carl Reichman, shortstop, Price, 3rd base, McCarthy, 2nd base, Polly Reichman, left field, Tom Smith, 1st base, Rivers, catcher, Brennan center field, and Peabody pitcher. The team played along with very nearly the same makeup till the middle of June. Smith was doing most of the pitching and Reichman was relieving him. When Reichman's arm gave out the era of outside pitching began. Stronach of St. Ignace, was the first of these to be brought in. He opened up well, and in the first few games was very satisfactory, but a little later in the season his arm gave out, and as Smith couldn't do all the work there was a new pitcher needed for the box. Another St. Ignace man, Frisk, was brought in. Frisk did well, and really fitted the team better than any man who was up here this season. About this time Smith quit pitching for the season, and as a change with Frisk the management sent to Chicago, and got a man named Larson, who was pitching for the Auburn Parks, and was guaranteed to pitch gilt edged ball. His engagement terminated after the championship game with Escanaba, both he and Frisk being released.

The fans have had the pleasure of seeing some good games played here this year, and they have been unfortunate enough to witness some hippodromes. In the main though the entertainment put up by the team has been of good quality, and the games have been fairly well patronized. From a business standpoint, however, it has been unfortunate that the teams which came here have almost universally played their poorest game on the first day, and in consequence the Sunday gate receipts suffered greatly.

Row Over a Boat.

Who is the lawful owner of the sailboat ruffed off by Peter Hanson last Saturday night is a question Judge Byrne will be asked to decide. The holders of Nos. 110 and 118 each claim the craft, asserting that their tickets were the first drawn out of the bag, while half a score of ticket holders whose coupons were not drawn out, claim that the reason is because they weren't there. In other words it is boldly alleged that Hanson and the clique with whom he is said to have stood in, did not put as many numbers in the bag as they sold. This may cause them trouble later, at present the question is, who gets the sail boat.

The drawing was held last Saturday night down among the fish houses. Martin Foard, checker at Spear's dock, held the bag and a small boy drew the numbers out. Foard declares that the first number out was 118, as he took it from the boy and looked at it. He had held it but a minute, however, when Hanson and his friends took it and went into a house with it, and Foard alleges that they locked the door. When they came out they announced that the boat had been drawn by No. 110. Simply making this assertion precipitated an impromptu melee between the partisans of the holders of the two numbers. Andrew Anderson, holder of the last named number took possession of the boat.

Thursday George Johnson, who had No. 118, put on an aggressive front and replevined the boat. In consequence of this action there were no less than three distinct fights on Lake street yesterday forenoon. Police interference was called for twice.

After the drawing Foard emptied the contents of the bag in his pocket. He says he counted the coupons when he got home, and that there were not so many coupons in it as there were numbers sold. More than this he asserts that there was coupon to correspond with his ticket. He thinks the drawing was fraudulent.

Those Qualified to Vote.

Who may vote at school elections such as the one to be held next Monday? Section 17 of the revised school law of 1893 answers this question as follows:

Every person of the age of twenty-one years who has property liable to assessment for school taxes in any school district, and who has resided therein three months next preceding any school meeting held in said district, or who has resided three months next preceding such meeting on any territory belonging to such district at the time of holding said meeting, shall be a qualified voter in said meeting upon all questions; and all other persons who are twenty-one years of age, and are the parents or legal guardians of any children included in the school census of the district, and who have for three months, as aforesaid, been residents of said district or upon any territory belonging thereto at the time of holding any school meeting, shall be entitled to vote on all questions arising in said district which do not directly involve the raising of money by tax.

It will be noticed that there is nothing in the wording of the section quoted that debar women from the privilege of voting. All citizens, regardless of sex, who are otherwise properly qualified, may vote and so have a voice in naming those who are to control the education of their children or wards.

The Kaufman Wedding.

The Chicago Inter Ocean of Sept. 3 contains the following account of the Libby-Kaufman nuptials in which Marquette society is so much interested:

Miss Una Libby was married last evening to Samuel Robert Kaufman of Marquette, Mich. This happy event marked the opening of another social season.

Miss Una Libby is the only child of Mrs. C. P. Libby, of No. 3355 Michigan boulevard, her father having been the late C. P. Libby, a citizen who lived here for many years, a man generally admired in the community.

This first bride of the new season is an exceptionally beautiful young woman, a tall, imposing brunette, with dark eyes and a fair complexion, with a commanding figure in full harmony with a general dignity and beauty of her carriage. An intellectual girl, too, who has devoted a great deal of time to study in the higher, though active in affairs of a social nature, and at the same time devoting much time to matters in which charity was the fair dictator of willing hands.

Mr. Kaufman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kaufman, an influential family at Marquette, Mich.

It was an exceedingly simple wedding service, modestly dominating because of the recent bereavement. The prevailing colors were white and green, in sympathy with the color scheme employed at the time of the bride's debut. An altar was improvised in the main drawing room, composed of white roses and smilax. At either side was a curtain of smilax, with white roses and garlands of the same flowers, while at the rear was a bank of palms. All the mirrors and doors were similarly draped with garlands of white roses and smilax. In the library all the floral adornments were of red roses.

The maid of honor was Miss Jennie Pearl Burnham, a cousin of the bride. The bridesmaids were the Misses Bertha Libby Wilson of Portland, Me., Sarah Kaufman, Mariam Kaufman and Gladys Kaufman of Marquette, sisters of the groom.

The flower girl was the little Juliet Breitung of Marquette, a niece of the groom, and aged two and a half years.

The best man was D. W. Kaufman of Marquette, a brother of the groom.

The ushers were Messrs. L. G. Kaufman and Harry Kaufman of Marquette, brothers of the groom. The bridal party entered the drawing-room at 7 o'clock, the bride entering alone. John A. Hand's orchestra played the march from Tannhauser as the bridal party entered, and the Mendelssohn march after the ceremony. Rev. F. W. Gonsauls officiated, the bride being given away by her mother.

The bride wore white satin, with tulle bodice and a long train. The sleeves had mousquetaires of tulle, with puffed satin above the elbow; a plain skirt, high neck, tulle veil with orange blossoms. A shower bouquet of lilies of the valley was carried, and immediately after the ceremony, which was witnessed by about 100 of the relatives of the contracting parties and a few chosen friends, the entire wedding party went to the ballroom on the top floor, where a wedding dinner was served in courses. The bridal party sat at a large round table, while the guests were assembled at a number of smaller tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman will spend their honeymoon in the east. After Nov. 1 they will be at home at Marquette, Mich., where they will permanently reside.

Musical Soiree.

This evening at the Presbyterian church will be held the musical soiree for the public introduction of Miss Grace Kemp, a talented piano pupil of Professor Muhlbaur. The entertainment will be under his direction. The program which will be rendered is as follows:

- Violin solo, Legend.....Bohm
- Otto Muhlbaur.
- Soprano solo, "Ashore".....Bingham
- Miss Johnson.
- Bass solo, "Deep in the Mine".....Jude
- M. M. Gillett.
- Soprano solo, "Angels Serenade".....Braga
- Miss Hodgkins.
- Recitation, "The Sioux Chiefs Daughter".....Miss Hornby.
- Piano solo, "Hungarian Fantasia".....Liszt
- Miss Grace Kemp.
- Mezzo soprano solo, "He was a Prince".....Lynis
- Miss Meehan.
- "Welcome Pretty Primrose".....Pinetti
- Sappho Ladies' Quartette composed of Mesdames Palmer and Steele and Misses Johnson and Meads.

"That Girl."

The piece presented by the Eunice Goodrich company last evening is called "That Girl." It is a piece with an interesting plot presenting a pleasing mixture of comedy in a pathetic story such as is not uncommon in real life. Miss Goodrich takes the part of Phillis Phillips. She is ably seconded in her efforts as an entertainer by DeWitt Clinton as Ferdinand Gerald, while Arthur Morris sustained the comedy role of Larry very acceptably.
