ROBINSON FOR STATE SENATOR. Almost Certain He Will Get the Republican Nomination.

It is very probable that Hon. O. W. Robinson of Chassell will receive the Republican nomination for state senator for the Thirty-second district. The delegation from Houghton county is instructed from Houghton and it will have a controlling vote in the convention tomorrow at Bessemer.

In point of population, industrial resources and valuation Houghton is fully entitled to the office. The friends of Mr. Robinson say that owing to his eminent fitness for the position and the further fact that he was an avowed candidate long before the names of Messrs. Dunstan and Sheldon had been placed in nomination, there appears to be no good reason why any sentiment as to locality should interfere with his candidacy.

An Unfortunate Runaway Accident. A runaway accident occurred Monday afternoon on the Portage lake bridge, which resulted in the loss of a valuable horse, the property of Geo. C. Sheldon of Houghton. Mr. Sheldon was driving to Hancock and while passing the draw Charles Heinsan, who was driving along behind, attempted to pass Mr. Sheldon's rig.

The Copper Situation. The Boston News Bureau has this to say of copper: "A careful review of the copper situation cannot fail to impress everyone with the strong statistical position of the metal.

COPPERDOM BREVITIES. C. D. Sheldon of Houghton arrived home on yesterday's noon train.

A meeting of the Monetary club will be held at Olson's Hall, Calumet, this evening, when the following questions will be discussed: "Will the Coinage of Silver at a 16 to 1 Ratio Be Beneficial to the Producer?" and "Will Declining Prices Benefit the Wage-Earner?"

Madame Puda Finch, formerly from Paris and continental cities, has opened rooms in the Hall residence, West Houghton, where she would be glad to see the ladies of Houghton and vicinity, and where she has on hand an exquisite line of dress goods, in wool and silk, with a large assortment of trimmings, which she received from the best houses in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and London.

A SNAKE FANCIER.

Tells About Harmless Snakes and Says Some Are Useful.

Small Serpents Could Rid a Farm of the Army Worm-The Rattlers Sometimes Commit Suicide.

"It's a shame to kill those harmless little snakes," said Rattlesnake Pete, when a reporter told of a recent trip to the country, where he saw a farmer kill several garter snakes. Pete had just finished placing 13 new snakes into the case adjoining the den of rattlers, which has long been the pride of his heart.

"As soon as anyone commences talking snake," said Pete, "I'm right at home. How many snakes have I in all? Oh, about 75. Those in that side are all poisonous, but these are not known to be very bad."

At this the snake fancier took from a bunch of reptiles a light brown snake with dark spots on its body. Pete explained that it was a spotted adder, and was one of a new lot that he had just received.

"The spotted adder can bite," said Pete, "but there is no poison. As he said that he opened the snake's mouth with his fingers and exposed a dangerous-looking tongue, but there were no fangs such as the rattlers and other poisonous snakes have.

The new snakes received the other day were contributions from friends of Pete's in Miami, I. T. The box in which the snakes came was marked: "114 pounds of snakes, 85 cents a pound." There was no other writing on the box other than the address of "Pete Gruber," which is "Rattlesnake Pete's" more formal name. The box contained snakes of the following species: Cottonmouth snakes, copperheads, chicken snakes, copper-bottom and mud snakes.

It will be seen that most of these snakes are very poisonous. The cottonmouth snake is similar to the rattlesnake in every way excepting the lack of rattles. It is said that these snakes are more poisonous than rattlers, but Pete, who has had considerable experience nursing snake bites, does not believe it.

The chicken snake is a black snake, with red spots dotted here and there on its body, and is quite pretty. As Pete took one of them from the case and examined him thoroughly, he remarked that he guessed there wasn't much poison about it. The copper-bottom snakes are similar to the snakes found in Florida and other southern states. Pete also handled them with great readiness, but, in taking the cotton-mouth, copperhead and mud snakes from the box, he used more caution.

While the reporter was talking to Pete, a long box arrived by express which was immediately opened. It contained a large, bright-colored snake which is known as a coach whip. It was seven feet long, and came from Chadwick, Mo. The man of many snakes took the reptile and threw it in with the others and locked up the cage.

As he locked the door he pointed to a four-foot snake which was curled up in one corner of the cage. He was a copper-bottom from Florida. He had just swallowed a field or garter snake, measuring about three feet in length. Another snake in the same cage had just been fed 16 small mice and one kitten a week old. In order to prove that the snakes would eat anything, Pete opened the den and placed an ordinary egg in front of one of the largest reptiles. His snakeship was not long in encircling the egg, and when he swallowed it he was seen to tighten the body as if to break the shell.

The attention of Rattlesnake Pete was called to a statement which was published from Cleveland, which stated that the army worm, which had been doing much damage in the northern part of Ohio, had an enemy in the rattlesnake. Pete stated that not only did the rattlers devour the army worm, but all snakes were fond of them.

"If the farmers only knew when they were well off," said Pete, "their garden truck would be much better if they allowed the small snakes about the garden which are generally killed to live, that they might devour the insects." Pete has known for a fact where snakes have gone through gardens and picked bugs off the vegetables. Hence his appeal for the harmless little creatures."

In speaking of the nature of snakes in general, Pete wound up the conversation by describing the attitude of the black snake toward the rattlers, and in fact all others, but particular the former. Pete has a large number of black snakes and rattlers in the same cage. When one of the rattlers starts to devour a smaller snake or anything that the black snakes want, the latter twists around the body of the rattler and squeezes so hard that he cannot swallow the object.

The result is that the rattler invariably chokes up whatever he has started to eat and moves slowly away. They never attempt to strike at a black snake. Rattlers often strike at objects which they miss and happen to bury their fangs in other snakes, but in all his experience Pete has never had one of these cases which proved fatal.

However, he claims that suicide is a common thing among rattlers, as only the other day he had a large rattlesnake die from a wound self-inflicted. It appears that about a week ago this big snake turned slowly around when Pete was standing in front of the cage and struck at himself. Its fangs were buried deep into his skin, and in the morning he died.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

EFFECT OF HEAT.

The Human System Can Become Used to a High Temperature.

No one can tell how high a temperature man can endure until he is subjected to the trial. The effect of an intensely-heated atmosphere in causing death has been but little studied.

In the Turkish baths higher temperatures than this have been noted, but there is reason to believe that serious symptoms have been occasionally produced in persons unaccustomed to them.

Death from sunstroke, when it is not immediately fatal, is preceded by some well-marked symptoms, such as weakness, giddiness, headache, disturbed vision...

A PROPER DIET.

Avoidable Errors Are Responsible for Many Diseases.

The nature and quantity of an appropriate diet must depend largely upon one's age, individual constitution, occupation, habits of life and, to some extent, upon the climate in which one lives.

In health, the appetite may be taken as a fair guide, and the child will seldom eat too much if he is taught to eat very slowly, and thoroughly to chew each mouthful.

Throughout the school years the growth of the body is continually going on, and, therefore, if a proper development is to be maintained, the food must be abundant and of a character to furnish new tissues and to yield energy in the form of heat and muscular activity.

So great is the force of habit over the different organs of the body that the stomach and intestines will usually reject undigested the contents of an occasional excessive meal, whereas with habitual overeating they become accustomed to appropriating large quantities of food, which are absorbed, but which cannot be eliminated without severely taxing the organs of excretion.

It is no exaggeration to say that avoidable errors in diet are responsible for more than half the disease which embitters the middle and latter part of life.—Youth's Companion.

WAGES TO BE REDUCED.

Cleveland Cliffs and Superior Iron Companies Will Make a Cut.

Otherwise the Mines Would Be Closed Down for the Entire Winter.

That the Cleveland-Cliffs and Lake Superior Iron companies will not fall in line with the Pittsburg & Lake Angeline company and close down their workings is now certain...

The scale of wages to be announced to the men prior to the first of the month will be the same as was adopted at the settlement of the strike a year ago.

It is now quite likely that the Cleveland-Cliffs and Lake Superior companies will continue operations during the winter. In speaking of the reduction in wages yesterday, Acting Agent A. J. Yungbluth of the Cleveland-Cliffs expressed the opinion that his company at least would not make any great reduction in the working force.

When President Mather of the Cleveland-Cliffs was here a short time ago he advised the local managers of the property that a shut-down or a cut in wages was certain, owing to the prostrate condition of the ore business.

Boiling River

It is sure enough. It is not as large as the Mississippi, indeed it is quite small, but a mighty interesting stream for all that. It issues from the sides of a mountain in a thousand tiny rills, more or less, and of almost as many colors. These gather themselves into pools and lakelets on the mountain side, covering an area of about 200 acres.

When through with this beautiful painting process, these waters again come together and then, as if full of mischief, like a pack of small boys trying to play hide and seek, dive down and remain under the ground for a space of two miles and then flow out from the mouth of a conyonia as one of the clearest, most beautiful, green streams imaginable.

A WONDERLAND.

Facts and Guesses About the Roraima Mountains.

A Mysterious Country Near the Schomburgk Line in Venezuela—Surmises as to the Flora and Fauna of the Region.

Perhaps one result of the Venezuela boundary commission's work will be the solving of the most remarkable geographical enigmas in the world and the exploration of what is regarded as a unique natural wonderland.

The region is called by the Indians "Roraima," but the several isolated areas are known by distinctive names. Each consists of what might be called an isolated mountain, but is really a table-land, comprising an area of 100 or more square miles, elevated several thousand feet above the surrounding country.

Because so little is known of the condition of these table-lands occasion is given for all manner of speculation as to what exists there. That the vegetation is quite different from that on the plains below the telescope shows; and that it should be so is quite natural, as the table-lands are 2,000 or more feet higher than the plains.

Of the geology of the region this explanation is given: This part of South America rose slowly from the sea, through successive and remote ages. The Roraima mountains were formed precisely as was the rest of the land, and are not the result of volcanic action.

Hence they must have been above the ocean before the surrounding plains appeared. They stood 2,000 feet above the level of the sea when the neighboring tops were but islands in the ocean. In the course of a period difficult to appreciate the adjacent valleys and plains appeared above the water and became covered with vegetation and animal life.

The cascades falling from the summits are among the highest in the world. One is 2,000 feet high and is broad enough to be visible 30 miles away. It falls sheer, without a break.

One of the plateaus, known as Nukenham, which is better situated for observation than any of the others, is estimated to have an area of 200 square miles or more. The smallest, which bears the name common to the group, Roraima, is estimated to contain 80 to 140 square miles.

The story of the mysterious region is not new, at least to British Guiana. It is many years since any scientific men were in the region, but chance travelers and gold prospectors happen there at odd times, and when they return to Demerara they add their little store of information and mystification to the rest.—N. Y. Sun.

PLAYED WITH A HUMAN DECK.

Rehearsals have progressed finely for the living whist entertainment and to-night there will be a dress rehearsal at the opera house at 7:30.

The game opens with a grand march introducing the four players and the pack of cards. The cards are then shuffled, when Miss Grylls proceeds to cut them, and is followed by Mrs. Boyer, who does the dealing. After the cards have been dealt to the different players the trick dances follow, the dancers taking their places according to the side winning the trick. There are thirteen tricks in all and each is represented by a different dance performed by four cards. The finale is a quick march.

With the music, bright costumes and pretty dances it forms a pleasing entertainment that must be seen to be appreciated. The whole company is in sight of the audience throughout the evening, adding greatly to the effect.

There are fifty-six people taking part in the entertainment, four players and fifty-two others who represent the cards of the deck. The players are Mrs. Boyer, Miss Grylls, E. A. Wetmore and M. J. Sherwood. Miss Grylls cuts; Mrs. Boyer deals. Hearts are trumps.

Those who represent the cards according to their tricks are:

Institute Begins Today.

The first session of the second annual farmer's institute will be called to order this morning at 9:30. A committee was at work all yesterday afternoon preparing the assembly room in the city hall for the sessions of the institute. The stage is hung with bunting the room suitably decorated.

After the great success which attended the first institute the farmers are looking forward to deriving a great deal of good from the second. They will have possibly even better instruction this year than they had last, because Superintendent Butterworth was so highly pleased at the number that turned out, and the interest shown in his institute here that this year he has sent the very best speakers available. They are guaranteed by him to be a fine lot of instructors.

Local people interested in farming and the branches that naturally go with it have taken hold quite as well as they did last year. Everybody likes to be in on a success, and the people seem to regard the indications quite as flattering as they were for last season's institute.

Henry Vandenoorn is the local speaker at the Wednesday morning session, and his topic, "The Farm Dairy," is one on which he is thoroughly posted. George Freeman, one of the most enthusiastic local chicken cranks, will give the audience the benefit of his experience in poultry keeping at the afternoon session. His paper will be followed by a discussion.

A leading address at the evening session will be by Professor H. H. Frost, the new principal of the high school. His topic, "Education" should afford him with an opportunity for some interesting remarks. This being Mr. Frost's first public address since coming to Marquette there will be no doubt a number who will embrace the opportunity to hear him.

The last speaker announced on the evening's program is L. J. Lavoy of Chocolay, secretary of the institute. Those interested in the cultivation of small fruits will find his topic an exceedingly practical one. Mr. Lavoy also delivers an address the next forenoon on a somewhat similar topic.

For the Thursday evening session there are three local speakers. Mrs. G. L. Hanawalt will talk on "House-keeping." L. J. Lavoy will speak on the horticultural topic, "Trimming or Pruning of Currents and Trees; Planting the Strawberry," and the Hon. F. O. Clark will make a twenty minute address upon the "Progress of Our Country."

Music for the institute has been in the hands of a committee composed of Rev. G. L. Hanawalt, Webster Dock and A. M. Loudy. The program the committee has gotten up consists of a variety of vocal and instrumental numbers. A pleasing feature will be the part taken by the pupils of St. Joseph's academy in the exercises the last evening.

The speakers from abroad arrived on the 11:30 train from the east last night.

Deaths and Funerals.

The remains of Frank Stone, who died in California, arrived in the city yesterday forenoon. The funeral services will be simple, and held from the house at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Bishop Williams will officiate. The following gentlemen will act as pallbearers: Messrs. Hill, Klein, Grylls, Phelps, Miller and Stevens. In addition to these there will be an escort of ten high school boys, as follows: George Hodgkins, Albert Jacobs, Bert Richardson, Henry Reynolds, Charles Wheeler, Perry Pendill, Guy Moore, Arthur Powell, Robert Fowle and Frank Russell.

Herman Meyers, an old citizen of Marquette, died at his home on Michigan street yesterday after a brief illness. The deceased was sixty-eight years of age. His funeral will be held Thursday from the house at 2 p. m. going thence to the German Lutheran church at 2:30. Park cemetery will be the place of interment. Mr. Meyer was a member of the German Aid society Germania.

Higgins Then Booth-Tucker.

Salvation Army officials have observed pretty strict rank in the order of their visits to the Upper Peninsula this summer, and they bid fair to continue in that fashion. Coming Friday evening are Commissioner Higgins, Dr. Nice and Major Gifford. Sometime during the late Fall or Winter they will be followed by Commander Booth-Tucker, who succeeded the popular Ballington Booth in command of the American forces. The local officers by persistent advertising are making every effort to have the Friday night meeting in the Baptist church well attended.

Lively Meeting Ahead.

According to a member of the board of supervisors there is a lively gathering ahead for that body when it next meets. Said he to a reporter:

"You want to be around to the supervisors the next meeting. I guess its going to be pretty lively. There's the election for director of the poor for the second district, and there's the salaries of the county officers to fix. Marquette and Houghton counties pay the highest salaries of any counties in the peninsula, and there may be some cuts."
