DUMONTHIER'S AWFUL DEED
George C. Sheldon Expires from the Wounds Inflicted by His Coachman.

LATTER'S BODY NOT YET RECOVERED FROM THE LAKE.

The Murderer and Suicide Generally Thought to Have Been Temporarily Insane—Details of the Tragedy.

SHOCKED THE COPPER COUNTRY
As already reported in THE JOURNAL the copper country was startled and horrified Thursday evening by a tragedy resulting in the death of George C. Sheldon at the hands of Felix Dumonthier, formerly his coachman, and the subsequent suicide of the murderer, who ran to the Portage lake bridge and threw himself into the water below. Whether he wounded himself in any way previous to his fatal plunge is uncertain, though it is thought he must have done so as the body failed to rise. A party has been engaged and is still dragging the lake bottom, but up to this writing without success.

FOUR SHOTS TOOK EFFECT.
According to an eye-witness of the tragedy, Mr. Sheldon and Dumonthier met at the corner of John Voetsch's house on Main street, and Dumonthier asked when he could get his settlement for services rendered as coachman. Mr. Sheldon's reply was, "I have started a settlement with you at the office of Justice Brand this afternoon." Dumonthier immediately drew a revolver and rapidly fired five successive shots, four of them taking effect—one in the chin, one in back of the head, one in the right hip and one in the neck, which latter wound alone was sufficient to cause death.

The first physician to arrive on the scene was Dr. Anderson, who asked the sufferer who did the shooting. Mr. Sheldon replied that it was Felix Dumonthier. Drs. Jones and Wheeler were also on the scene almost immediately after the occurrence. Dr. Wheeler conveyed the sad news to Mrs. Sheldon, and Dr. Jones attended to the removal of the injured man to his residence, only a few blocks away. In addition to these physicians, Drs. Scallon and Gasser of Hancock were summoned. Everything that medical and surgical aid could do was done, and hopes were expressed that the terribly injured man stood a slight chance of recovery, but hemorrhage, internal and external, sapped his vitality so rapidly that he expired at 11:30 yesterday morning.

A FRIEND OF THE NEEDY.
Mr. Sheldon was a typical American. He was born in Walworth, Wis. in 1842, and came to Portage Lake when at the age of five years. On the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted in the army and served his country to the close of the rebellion. For valor on the field he was made lieutenant and later captain of the Sixteenth Michigan cavalry. Returning to Houghton after the war, he engaged in the real estate and mining business, in which he continued up to the day of his death. A more charitable man in a strictly unostentatious way the world seldom sees than was George C. Sheldon. There are scores of people in and around Houghton who will remember his many kindly acts as long as they live and who will mourn his loss as a friend in need as those nearer to him mourn it today. One of Houghton's leading merchants in speaking of his kindly nature, mentioned the fact that it was a common occurrence for Mr. Sheldon to bring needy persons into his store and furnish them with clothing and necessities of life.

Mr. Sheldon's unfortunate death happened when his daughters had left home within twenty-four hours and his brother, Carlos D., the morning of the same day went to Marquette; another brother, R. B. Sheldon, resides at Riverside, Cal. Mrs. Sheldon was the only member of the family at home at the time of the tragedy, and the terrible suddenness of the affair fell like a thunderbolt.

Of the past history of Felix Dumonthier, the slayer of Mr. Sheldon, but little is known further than the fact he came to Portage lake about fourteen years ago and for seven years after was an employe of the Sturgeon River Lumber company. For the past five years he had acted as coachman in Mr. Sheldon's service. He seems from all accounts to have been a very sensitive man, and felt deeply disgraced by the legal proceedings started on the day of the occurrence by Mr. Sheldon.

DONE IN TEMPORARY INSANITY.
In a state of mind which had been greatly excited ever since the altercation between himself and Mr. Sheldon, Dumonthier seems to have been wrought up to such a pitch that he resolved not only to take Mr. Sheldon's life but to put an end to his own. This, at least, is the charitable view taken by most people. The act was none other than that of a temporary maniac, and his subsequent suicide is only cumulative evidence that at the time of both deeds he was non compos mentis. He leaves a wife and five children to mourn his death. He often spoke highly of his employer, and it is known he was a good father and kind husband.

ON SNOWSHOES.
Our Three-Caribou Feast in the Barren Grounds.

Feeding the Dogs—Men Ate the Intestines and the Fat, the Animals Ate the Meat—Trying Experiences.

When we killed caribou the dogs were fed on the spot, and the little meat remaining was divided among the sledges, to be carried for them against the days we were not so lucky. We never were lucky enough to kill before this little supply was exhausted. Had we been, we (the seven Indians and I) would have eaten meat. As it was, we ate the intestines and fat and the dogs ate the meat, because there was not nourishment enough in the intestines for the dogs. Before we left Resolution Beniah and I had a thorough understanding on this point. Many of the Indian expeditions to the Barrens are crippled by loss of dogs from starvation, and I knew the loss of our dogs meant failure, so we decided if there was any starving the greater part of it should fall on us, realizing, of course, that if the worst came we could eat the dogs. Beniah held to his agreement and forced compliance from the others, and to his wisdom in this direction, in fact, is due much of our success in getting out of the Barrens.

When it is remembered that the ordinary meal for a dog train—i. e., four dogs, that are traveling 30 or more miles a day—consists of a caribou hind and fore quarter, that we had 28 dogs, and that we never got more than a caribou or two at intervals of several days, the reader may understand why the dogs were like wild animals, and why we ate the intestines and grease and saved them the meat.

When we killed musk-ox we first cut off meat for a day or two's dog feeding and then turned the dogs loose on the carcasses, over which they worried and snarled and fought the livelong night. When there were no carcasses they were fed out of hand from the slender supply on the sledge, and then they fought us and worried the weaker among themselves into dividing the frozen chunks that were tossed to them.

This dog feeding was a trying experience. All the trains were fed at the same time—when we camped at night—and such a scene cannot be duplicated anywhere on earth. As we emerged from the lodge with the tiny feed rolled up in the skirt of our capote, there was a rush by the dogs that pretty nearly carried us off our feet, and frequently knocked down the lodge. We always tried, but never with success, to steal a march on the dogs and get away from the lodge before the rush, but the moment one of us showed his head they gathered for the assault, and there was nothing to do but to scramble out as best we could, otherwise they would have poured into the lodge and torn it and our clothes to pieces in their crazy hunger. So we would bolt out in a body, heads down, and hugging the meat to our breasts with one hand, use the whip vigorously with the other, while the dogs jumped into us and on top of us in their frantic endeavors to tear away the little scrap of meat we held. Gradually we would separate, and each man attempt to gather his train by lashing those that did not belong to him, and calling by name those that did.

When, after much fighting, each had gathered his own, the actual process of feeding began, and this again demanded much activity and some strategy to insure every dog of your train getting its portion. I never had time to notice how the Indians did it, but my method was to run each dog in turn a few yards from the other three, quickly toss his meat to him before the others caught up, and then stand guard over him while he ate it.

The eating did not occupy much time—there was only a growl, a grab, and a gulp, and the meat was gone. It was necessary to be expeditious, for the dogs that had swallowed their meat ran from group to group seeking those that had not, and woe betide the poor beast that attempted to masticate his morsel! Two of my train, Flossie and Finnette, were very timid, and gave me no end of bother. It was only necessary for another dog to start toward them, and they would drop their meat and run off. I found it necessary to hold them by the scruff of the neck while they ate, and I laid my whipstock over the heads of the dogs that fought around me.

Feeding animals in the Zoo isn't a circumstance to feeding dogs in the Barrens. Our three caribou feast of that morning—our third in the "Land of Little Sticks"—was the last. I like to dwell on it even now. First the legs of the caribou were cut off, stripped of their sinews and flesh, and the bones cracked open for the marrow; then the heart and kidneys and two unborn calves; then the tongues and the eyes and the ears; and all the while ribs were roasting, stuck upon sticks about the fire, and a kettle full of what was left from the dog-feed hung suspended from a tripod over all. I confined myself to the marrow and ribs, and simply marveled at the quantity those Indians ate. When we started on again there was not left a great deal of the three caribou to load on the sledges, but the Indians were in good humor.—Caspar W. Whitney, in Harper's Magazine.

Cats Around the Farm.
Rats infesting the granaries and cribs on the farm have always been a source of a great deal of annoyance and only occasionally do we see the receptacles for corn and grain so constructed as to be rat proof. To make them so requires a good deal of extra effort. We believe plenty of good cats are preferable to rats. A supply of female cats will keep the farm rid of rats, and they need not be kept about the house either. They can be taught to stay where they are needed.—Coleman's Rural World.

Remarkable Cure of a Boston Man who was Afflicted with Salt-Rheum and Rheumatism.

BOTH PROMPTLY CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE.

From the Herald, Boston, Mass.

Those who have had the misfortune to be afflicted with salt-rheum, more especially when it has come in early childhood, can appreciate what it is to "doctor" for this almost incurable trouble.

Mr. Freeman's case is a case of the kind which has proved able to conquer such a consensus of bodily powers, and to put the man into a condition of vigor as a substitute for one of a most disheartening outlook.

In view of the circumstances it is not surprising that many in Boston, especially those of the railroad men, who have been familiar both with the individual and the attendant circumstances, should make so much comment on the cure wrought in the case of Mr. James Freeman, for a number of years past employed as a brakeman on the Old Colony Division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

Mr. Freeman's case is a case of the kind which has proved able to conquer such a consensus of bodily powers, and to put the man into a condition of vigor as a substitute for one of a most disheartening outlook.

"I am so satisfied," he said, "as to the true results which the Pink Pills have brought me that I can readily give an affidavit before a Notary to that effect."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves.

The ground under the Chicago & Northwestern tracks near the Volunteer mine, Cascade range, which has caused the railroad people so much annoyance during the past six months is caving again.

Both companies will likely take immediate steps to fill in the hole as the tracks are used considerably.

The ground on either side of the opening is so situated that the tracks cannot be moved without entailing a great deal of work.

It is sure enough. It is not as large as the Mississippi, indeed it is quite small, but it is a most interesting stream for all that.

When through with this beautiful painting process, these waters again come together and then, as if full of mischief like a pack of small boys trying to play hide and seek, dive down and remain under the ground for a space of two miles and then flow out from the mouth of a canyonista as one of the clearest, most beautiful, green streams I have ever seen.

But you ask, where is it? Where can I see it? It is in Yellowstone Park at Mammoth Hot Springs. It is one of the lesser, mind you the lesser—wonders of this land of wonders.

DRUMMERS ROYAL HOSTS.

Lake Superior Traveling Men Entertain Their Friends With a Monster Ball.

TWO HUNDRED COUPLE WERE ON THE FLOOR.

Judge Stone Gives Negaunee's Council a Black Eye—Electric Light Plant Can't Be Built Unless People Consent.

ENTERTAIN THEIR CUSTOMERS.

Hotel Superior was ablaze with light and adorned with beauty last night. The occasion was the first semi-annual hop of the Lake Superior Commercial Travelers' club.

From every standpoint it was a success. In numbers it was almost an embarrassing success. The reception committee was quite overwhelmed with the number of the guests as they entered the doors of the big summer hostelry. Eight hundred invitations had been sent out, but from hardly more than a quarter of these were responses expected as the recipients were scattered in every town in the upper peninsula.

It was not the intention of the travelers to make their party a society event. They wanted to show to their customers and others from whom they had received favors that they appreciated the courtesies, and to make some return. Invitations were accordingly sent to the trade of the various members of the club, each member furnishing the secretary with the list of those whom he wished to invite. In this way the list was compiled. There was no invitation list available, and the boys fear that some may feel slighted who had reason to expect an invitation and did not get one. To these they wish to say that it was an oversight, not a slight.

From the invitations sent out two hundred couples responded. About fifty of these were from out of town. Even this crowd, however, did not fill the spacious hotel uncomfortably full. The scene was one of beauty and animation.

The main dining room had been transformed into a ball room, but this was not large enough to accommodate all the dancers, so they overflowed into the music room adjacent and tripped the measures to the strains of the Ideals as they floated out of the main dining room where the orchestra was stationed. The dance program began with the grand march at 8:15. This was led by Frank Horton, of Escanaba, and Miss Millicent Pascoe of Republic. From that hour till after midnight the dancers made merry tripping the dances of the following unique program:

- ORDER OF THE DANCE.

Elegant refreshments were served in the hotel ordinary. This room would seat at table about twenty at a time and though serving began at ten it was hardly large enough for convenient handling of the guests. The committee men were profuse in their apologies on this account, but when they made their arrangements they did not expect near the number they had to serve, or, with the recognized liberality of their profession, they would have made more ample provision.

Among the many guests present from abroad were: Misses Mamie Carey, Republic; Millicent Pascoe, Republic; M. Collins, Ishpeming; W. H. Grover and wife, Escanaba; S. F. Miller and wife, Green Bay; J. H. Wallace and wife, Champion.

Messrs. W. J. Dawson, Detroit; R. E. McLain, Escanaba; H. F. Emerson, Menominee.

Negaunee Council Knocked Out.

Mayor Kirkwood and the council of Negaunee received black eyes in the circuit court yesterday. Judge Stone made permanent the temporary injunction which prevented the council from going ahead and building a municipal electric plant.

Negaunee's council is now in a pleasing predicament. It has signed contracts amounting to nearly $10,000 on its hands, and is estopped by the action of the court from having the work done called for in the contracts.

Argument of this case consumed nearly the whole afternoon yesterday. The complaining taxpayers were represented by Hayden & Young of Ishpeming, and the interests of the city were looked after by its attorney, Mr. Bell, assisted by F. O. Clark.

Judge Stone in his remarks continuing the restraining order touched several times upon the peculiarities of the Negaunee charter. While he was willing to concede that it might be construed as granting power to the council to erect a lighting plant which should light the streets, alleys and public places, he did not believe that it would permit the council, without submitting the question to the people, to furnish light to private consumers and derive revenues therefrom. If the intention were to light the streets, alleys and public places alone, he said, he might refuse to continue the injunction. But the defendants contemplated more than that.

They had, he held, gone far beyond the provisions of the charter in contemplating to furnish light to private parties. He thought it proper, and thought the general tend of legislation was to encourage municipalities to own their own public works, but with a charter like that of the city of Negaunee there was nothing to do but to follow the provisions of the general act, and submit the matter to the people.

This, he held, should be no hardship, as it was never contemplated that the council should make an expenditure of $9,000 or $10,000 without the consent of the taxpayers.

If the court should be wrong no great hardship had been done, as the supreme court was now in session, and if the city's representatives had enough faith in their position to take the matter up, the supreme court could order the injunction of the lower court vacated.

If this were not done, the judge pointed out, the city authorities would have to follow the general statute and submit the question to vote. This could be done either at a general or special election for which provision was made in the charter.

Form a Permanent Club.

A score of Lake Superior traveling men met yesterday afternoon in the office of W. C. Brown, and organized themselves under the name of the Lake Superior Traveling Men's club.

This organization is an outgrowth, or rather a development, of the informal association of travelers who gave the party last evening at Hotel Superior. When the party was first proposed the scheme was to have it given by Marquette travelers alone, but there were so many good fellows who wanted to share in the pleasures and responsibilities of host that the organization lost its distinctively local character, and when it came to forming a permanent club it was decided to take into membership seventy-five or a hundred commercial travelers in the Lake Superior region.

The purpose of the club is to promote social intercourse among the crummers themselves and with their customers. To this end it has been decided to give two parties a year. One will be held here and the other in the copper country. As nearly as may be these will be given at intervals of six months. The funds for giving these events are to be raised by a membership fee and an assessment of $5.

The following were elected to office, and will hold their positions for one year: President, W. C. Brown; vice president, Alec Simpson; secretary and treasurer, A. F. Wixson; board of directors, J. R. McKeand, F. G. Truscott, H. C. Work, W. R. Smith, T. J. Gregory, Walter Fitch, F. S. McCurdy, Frank Horton.

Silverites Hold Forth.

Last evening the new Bryan club headquarters in the L'Hullier block were opened with silver meeting addressed by local orators. Mr. Beadle of the Soo had promised to be on hand, and was advertised liberally, but for some unknown reason was not present. In his places addresses of ten to fifteen minutes in length were made by John R. Rood, Rev. F. J. Mallett, James Russell, E. D. Cox, Kash Culver and others. The crowd of at least three hundred which was present gave flattering attention to the remarks of each speaker, and frequently broke out with rousing cheers and applause.

Jacobs Revoked It.

The alleged "scientific" anatomical museum did not open its doors yesterday to a morbidly curious public. It was not the fault of the management. It was to the credit of Mayor Jacobs that he revoked the license yesterday morning as he had promised to the night previous. The waxwork representations of noted criminals, exhibited as a sort of free show attachment, are certainly not of enough artistic merit to furnish any guarantee of the scientific qualities of the rest of the collection.

It's Time To Think about heavy underwear. A set of warm flannels often saves the cost of a fall overcoat. Your money will buy more warmth here than anywhere else. It will buy underwear which is made of fine material, carefully and neatly. We mean every word we say. We know that if we tell you what is not so that you will not come here again. We want to sell to you more than once.

With every 50-cent purchase we give a ticket which entitles the holder to one chance on the $100 bicycle—a "Fowler"—which we give away on October 30 to the holder of the number drawn.
