IRELAND FOR M'KINLEY.

Noted Catholic Prelate Stands for Republican Platform and Candidates.

SAYS A GREAT PERIL THREATENS THE COUNTRY.

Speaks "for Nation's Integrity, for Social Order, for the Honor of America and Permanency of Free Institutions."

THE VIEWS OF THE ARCHBISHOP. ST. PAUL, Oct. 11.—Archbishop Ireland, in response to a written request from twenty-seven prominent business men in this state who are of all politics, gave a statement addressed to them to the Associated Press tonight. In part, the statement says:

"I am not unwilling in the crisis through which the country is now passing to speak for the integrity of the nation, for social order, for prosperity of the people, for the honor of America and the permanency of its free institutions. I stand by the platform and the presidential candidate of the St. Louis Republican convention; opposed to the platform and presidential candidate of the Chicago convention.

SECESSION DOCTRINES REVIVED.

"The days of the civil war excepted, at no time did so great a peril threaten this country as that which is involved in the political campaign of today. The question of the free and unlimited coinage of silver is of minor importance in the presence of other questions which have brought into the issue a movement which had its expression in the Chicago convention and which now seeks by means of popular suffrage to enthrone itself in the capital of the nation. It is in its logical effect against the United States; it is the secession of 1861 which our soldiers believed they had consigned to eternal death at Appomattox but which demands again recognition from the American people. This declaration in the Chicago platform has and can have no other meaning:

"We denounce arbitrary interference by federal authorities in local affairs as a violation of the Constitution of the United States and a crime against our free institutions."

"The words point to the act of Grover Cleveland in sending United States troops to protect national property and to enforce national laws during the Chicago riots in 1894. In those words there is the old secession doctrine that states are independent of the national government at Washington; there is annulment of the Union; there is notice served upon the flag of America that outside the District of Columbia it is without the power of self-assertion or self-defense. The president of the United States is told that to enforce national laws and protect national property he cannot march his troops into any state without the authorization of the governor of that state.

"The platform of the Chicago convention threatens the country with the destruction of social order, with lawlessness and anarchy. The personification of law and social order in America is in our courts, and the promise of safety to our free institutions is in the prompt obedience of the people to these courts. And, now, the courts are to be shorn of their power, and shorn of it in favor of mobs bent on rioting and the destruction of property. 'We especially object,' says the Chicago platform 'to government by injunction as a new and highly dangerous form of oppression.' Here reference is made to the action of the courts during the Chicago riots, without which action there is no calculating how much ruin should have come to the city.

WAR OF CLASS AGAINST CLASS.

"And now the convention speaks of the supreme court 'as it may be hereafter constituted,' intimating unmistakably an intention, if the party represented in that convention comes to power, an intention to so constitute the court by popular election judges, by shortening their term of office or otherwise, as to make it insensible to the stern voice of law and responsive to the passing whims of political parties.

"Worse to my mind than all this, is the spirit of socialism that permeates the whole movement which issued from the convention at Chicago. A war of class against class is upon us, a war of the proletariat against the property holder. No other meaning than this can be given to appeals to the 'common people,' 'to labor,' 'to the poor and downtrodden,' and to denunciations against 'plutocrats' and 'corporations' and 'money grabbers' and 'bankers.'"

"Many adherents of the movement do not perceive its full meaning; but let them beware they are lighting torches, which, borne in the hands of reckless men, may light up in the country the lurid fires of the 'commune.' America heretofore has been free from socialistic hatred and warfare; it has been a country of opportunities for all men and it has given to the laborer a livelihood higher and better than afforded him in any other country of the world. Is this all to be changed? Is social chaos gloating over ruins to be the method of social elevation of the masses?"

"There may be room in some things for peaceful amelioration through well-informed public opinion and orderly legislation, but class hatred and angry passion never led to aught but general misery and suffering. The people of America must today look warily around, guard against catch-words and misleading war cries, avoid giving any countenance to socialistic or anarchistic tendencies and know that the first condition of prosperity to any and all classes of the people is a peaceful commonwealth and an assured social order."

DEMOUNCES SILVER MOVEMENT.

The archbishop then took up at great length the monetary question and said:

"The free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 by the United States, independently of the other great commercial nations, into dollars which shall be made legal tender will disturb the whole business of the country and bring upon it a financial depression far beyond anything which we are now experiencing. The vast that the United States is able alone to whip England and the rest of the world into the coinage of silver at 16 to 1, or to force the value of silver up to $1.29 per ounce, is mere nonsense. We are great people indeed, but we have not yet grown to that commercial strength that our country means the commercial world. Our national pride may give us extraordinary dreams of our importance, but it will not do to build the business of the country upon those dreams.

"I am absolutely convinced the laboring classes will suffer most of all from free silver coinage. And, yet, the laboring classes are those that are most urgently appealed to in this free silver movement. They, above all others in the land, should today be on their guard against the silver movement. It is delusion to imagine that silver will circulate so plentifully that it can be had easily by all, and that the quantity will make up the lack of value.

"The craze for free silver as a cure for the hard times is inexplicable on the same theory that a man who has been a long time sick despite the attentive care of expert physicians will call for any quack who advertises to cure all the ills of humanity. Our hard times come from the general competition with the countries of the whole globe into which we are forced by the cheapness and facility of transportation, from over-production in past years, from extravagance during good times and from our own social and political agitations.

CONFIDENCE IS NEEDED.

"One of the chief causes of the hard times today is the agitation for a radical change in the currency of the country. If the American people put down by an overwhelming majority this agitation one of the chief causes of the hard times will be out of the way. Other causes may remain more or less. That general competition with all the nations of the earth must remain. It is confidence that is needed to-day far more than an increase in the volume of currency. Ninety per cent of all business is done without currency—by checks and drafts, of which the whole foundation is confidence. Those who suffer from hard times—and they are many—must hearken to reason, silence passion, turn away from delusive remedies, and the country will be again put on the road to prosperity."

PITIFUL PICTURES PRESENTED.
Chicago Labor Commission of Inquiry to Mexico Reports.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The committee of the trades and labor assembly sent to Mexico by that organization to investigate the condition of the laboring classes of that country has returned to Chicago, and submitted its report at a meeting of the assembly this evening. The report was adopted by almost a unanimous vote only two members speaking in opposition to it.

The delegates claimed in submitting their report, that they had carried out their mission in an unbiased and non-partisan manner and they simply pictured the low state of the working classes as it was without reference to political questions. There were many ejaculations of astonishment at the pitiful pictures presented and a motion to adopt the report called forth but little debate. The report confirms to the last particular the various reports on the condition of the Mexican workmen which have been published from personal observers and other sources.

The report was accompanied by tables giving rates of wages and prices of commodities in the sister republic, and says that this report is based "on facts that still exist and are ready to speak for themselves to those who will go and seek as we have done; and should they do so, they will feel as we do, that the American workingman is a prince compared to the workingman of Mexico; that in this country all stand equal in social and political life, and in that political right they should exercise with care the faithful discharge of their duties, unprejudiced and unbiased, by supporting such principles as will do the greatest good to the greatest number, irrespective of party politics or the machinery of either party who may manipulate conditions and measures for personal gain to the detriment of the whole people."

Killed by a Half-Breed.

ADMORE, I. T., Oct. 11.—Wyat, the former cattle king, well known in Chicago, St. Louis and the west, was murdered on the street here at midnight last night by Bud Watkins, a half-blood Indian. Some bitterness had existed between the two men and Watkins says he shot in self-defense.

Delegations Poured in So Rapidly They Almost Overwhelmed McKinley.

ANOTHER BIG CRUSH AT CANTON SATURDAY.

Forty Special Train-Loads of Enthusiastic Well-Wishers from Eleven States Visit the Mecca of Loyal Republicans.

GREATEST DEMONSTRATION YET.

CANTON, O., Oct. 11.—Each day is outdoing all records of enthusiasm and numbers in Canton. Forty special train loads of people came here yesterday. At 7 o'clock in the evening more delegations were coming. They began coming at 4:30 in the morning. They came in greater numbers than ever before. Merchants, workmen, hard-waremen, commercial traveling men, bishops, preachers, miners, evangelists, potters, bankers, railroad men, southern planters, iron operatives, molders and many other trades and professions each had special parties and processions. They came from Iowa, New York, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, West Virginia, Maryland and Ohio in large delegations. They came in small parties from a dozen other states. They crowded Canton's wide streets for miles as they were never crowded before. They marched and counter-marched with sound and music galore. They out-yelled the wondrous "rebel yell" from the Shenandoah valley of Virginia that kept up all Friday afternoon and evening. Indeed, so fast did the visitors pour in, that Mr. McKinley was almost "swamped" and was forced to cut his speeches in order to talk to all the delegations.

THE MONEY OF OUR FATHERS.

To the Maryland delegation, Mr. McKinley said, in part:

"It falls to the Republican party this year as in many other years of the past to carry the standard of national honor, and it shall never be lowered in their hands. They meet the crisis with their old time courage and if given power the whole world will know they will never permit the currency of the country to be debased or its financial honor stained.

"Our adversaries talk fluently about the 'money of the fathers.' I want to say for the fathers that their money was always good and honest. They insist that gold and silver constitute the money of the Constitution and the currency established by the early statesmen of the country. They would have us believe what history does not support—that gold and silver enjoyed equal privileges in the mints of the United States during all our history down to 1873. They assert that the stopping of the free coinage of silver in 1873 was 'the crime of the century' and is the cause of the present deplorable business condition of the country. They must know that prior to 1873 we had less than 9,000,000 of silver dollars in circulation. We have coined since that time nearly 500,000,000 of silver dollars and they constitute a part of the currency of the country.

"They do not tell us that when the coinage of both gold and silver was free in the United States that the per capita circulation in this country was less than it has been since the so-called crime of 1873. Why, under the free coinage of both gold and silver in the days of the fathers, we had in 1800 a per capita of $4.90. In 1833 it was $8.60, in 1852 it was $14.63. In 1872 before the resumption of specie payments and when we were doing business with an unlimited paper currency it was $18.19. In 1894, twenty-one years after the suspension of free coinage of silver, we had a per capita of $24.88 and every dollar was as good as gold in every part of the world. We have a greater per capita in the United States than the United Kingdom of Great Britain and a greater per capita than Germany. The per capita of the whole world is only about $5.15. The capita of the gold standard countries is $18, while the per capita of the silver standard countries, of which they want to make us one, is about $4.30.

OPEN MILLS—STOP IDLENESS.

"Even in the gold standard we have more silver per capita than they have in the silver countries of the world, the gold standard countries having a population of less than one-third of the world's currency. The United States has about 5 1/2 per cent. of the total population of the principal countries of the world, yet it has 32.31 per cent. of the banking resources and nearly 16 per cent. of the total money supply of the world. France has a higher per capita than the United States, but the banking deposits in the United States are 77.76 per inhabitant, or 43 greater for each inhabitant than the banking deposits of France. It must never be forgotten that the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 would not increase, but would decrease our per capita circulation. It would add nothing to it, but would rob us of the good money we now have and put us where the silver countries of the world are today—upon a silver basis alone.

"There is nothing in our present currency status, therefore, to disturb us

ABOUT THAT STONE CONTRACT.

A couple of Detroit newspapers are tremendously worked up just now on account of the action of the Wayne county board of supervisors at a meeting of the board held Friday of last week in changing the specifications on which bids for construction of the new county building are called for. The change of specifications has in view having the stone dressed in Detroit, in order that Detroit labor shall do the work, instead of having it done elsewhere.

The papers referred to assume that the supervisors were corruptly influenced in the matter, and that their action is designed to open the way for having the bid of the Kerber-Jacobs Redstone company finally accepted. It is charged that the price made by this company covers a margin of some $52,000 which is to be used in obtaining the contract, the "boodle" to be divided between the supervisors who vote to have the Lake Superior stone used and others who have a "pull" with the board. In support of this charge one of the papers which is vociferously crying "stop thief" makes this statement: Many of the aldermanic members of the county board are hard up and need money for the coming election, and it is said that $7,000 or $8,000 has already been drawn by board members who insisted on having their $700 in advance.

Further evidence of the clumsy manner in which the deal has been worked is shown by the fact that the lowest bid for the variety of stone in which the combine is interested exceeded by no less than $90,000 the bid for Berea stone or the Bedford stone, which was selected by the government as the material for the new postoffice. There will be required for the building 175,000 cubic feet of stone, and the Lake Superior stone is figured in at eighty-five cents and upwards in the bids submitted for its use in the structure. However, it is found on investigation that five cents per cubic foot is a price which on this large amount of stone would still leave great profits to the sellers.

The Toledo school board recently received two bids for comparatively small amounts of this stone for a new school house. Kerber, Jacobs & Co. bid fifty-five cents and the Portage Entry Quarry company sixty cents for the stone. The First Congregational and the First Presbyterian churches of this city are built of this stone and the cost a time when the market price was higher than now was only sixty cents.

In the excessive price of thirty cents a cubic foot over what the stone is really worth has been found the $32,500 from 175,000 feet of the stone which is to be spent in corrupting the board.

A local officer of the Kerber-Jacobs company asks THE MINING JOURNAL to deny this statement absolutely for himself and his company. As evidence of its falsity in respect to the alleged offer of the company to supply stone for the school building at Toledo, he exhibited the price list for stone furnished all the company's agents, and this shows that the price for the stone delivered in the rough at Toledo is, and has been, eighty-five cents per cubic foot, just what the company offers to furnish it for at Detroit. Furthermore, he says that his company did not bid on the Toledo contract and furnished no stone for the school building mentioned.

The Lake Superior stone is higher priced than the Bedford or Berea stone because of its greater beauty and strength, and if it should be used in the construction of the new county building at Detroit there will be more than the difference in the cost of the stone in the value of the structure by reason of its better appearance and durability. The Lake Superior stone has a recognized place in the market and its price is fixed. It commands a higher price than the two other varieties named because it is better than either, and the bid made by the company is an honest one, and leaves no margin for a "boodle fund," as charged.

The paper from which the extract given above was taken alleges that thirty-five out of the fifty-five members of the board are in the deal to force the contractor to use the Kerber-Jacobs company's stone. He should be obliged to use the best material if the building is to be what the supervisors design to make it, a model of beauty as well as possessing the quality of durability in the highest degree. And if stone dressed in Detroit, home labor being employed on the work, should come a little higher, yet it would seem to be good policy for the board to have this work done there, where the people who will be taxed to pay for the building will derive the benefit, instead of a community that will never be called on to put a cent for the structure. Papers that use their influence to deprive their own people of work can hardly be regarded as being influenced by a proper regard for the welfare of the places that support them.

There is some reason to suspect that the howl of "boodles" in connection with the latest procedure of the board which these Detroit papers have raised is not inspired by regard for the public weal as much as by a venal interest in having some other of the competing quarries obtain the contract for furnishing the stone for Wayne county's projected new county building.

A FRUIT DIET.

Very Often Prevents Recourse to the Use of Medicines.

Descanting upon the value of a fruit diet on account of its antiscorbic action, a medical writer offers some suggestions and makes some statements which may well be repeated and emphasized. He says: "This lemon-juice cure for rheumatism is founded on scientific facts, and having suffered myself from acute gout for the last 15 years, I have proved over and over again the advantages which are obtained from eating fruit. Garrod, the great London authority on gout, advises his patients to take oranges, lemons, strawberries, grapes, pears, etc. Tardieu, the great French authority, maintains that the salts of potash found so plentifully in fruits are the chief agents in purifying the blood from these rheumatic and gouty poisons. Perhaps in our unnatural, civilized society, sluggish action of the bowels and liver is responsible for more actual misery than any other ailment. Headache, indigestion, constipation, haemorrhoids, and a generally miserable condition are but too often the experience of the sufferer, and to overcome it about half the drugs in the world are given in all sorts of compounds. But bring in your fruit and the whole scene changes. If we go through the back streets of our large towns how many pallid-faced, listless-looking people and children swarm about us, and they have, as a rule, plenty of food.

"As a medicine I look upon fruit as a most valuable ally. When the body is in that breaking-up condition known as scurvy, the whole medical profession look upon fruit and fresh vegetables as the one and only known remedy. I believe the day will come when science will use it very much more largely than it does now in the treatment of many of the everyday ailments. Impure blood means gout, rheumatism, skin diseases, rickets and other troubles. As it is proved that fruit purify and improve the quality of the blood, it must follow that fruit is both food and medicine combined. In fevers I use grapes and strawberries, giving them to my patients in small but frequent doses—orange and baked apples, if the others are not obtainable. For rheumatism plenty of lemons are invaluable. White girls with miserable, pallid complexions want a quart of strawberries; where these are not obtainable, bananas, which contain much iron, are a good substitute. Probably of all fruits the apple stands unrivaled for general purposes in the household; either raw or cooked it can be taken by nearly everybody, and it contains similar properties to the more delicate fruits. To my mind the pear is more easily digested than the apple, and for eating uncooked is superior to it. Dried fruits should be used when green cannot be obtained. If soaked for a few hours before cooking, they make a capital substitute for fresh fruit, and they come cheaper to the consumer."—Good Health.

A RESULT OF A FLOOD.

BY FANNIE WILLIAMS.

"Hi, Marse John! Dat ar Pelto boy's huntin' our hogs ag'in." John Hartwell, who was busily hammering at some piece of boyish carpentry in his father's workshop, turned a pair of kindling blue eyes toward the excited young darkey who rushed in with the above information.

"What's that you say, Tom Pete?" Tom Pete repeated his statement, adding the remark that the Pelton boy was "a-heavin' sticks at 'em, an' makin' 'em run like de ole Nick!"

John put down his hammer and exclaimed: "I'll see if I can't put a stop to this business, once for all!" As he spoke, he strode out of the workshop and started across the cornfield, with such an air of angry determination that Tom Pete, running after him, kicked up his heels and grinned, in high glee at the prospect of a collision which was sure to bring the Pelton boy to grief.

John Hartwell and Tracy Pelton were foes of long standing, though neither of them could tell exactly how their feud had first arisen. The Peltons owned a small plantation on the Sunflower river, and the Hartwells had come from the north some years before and settled on the next place.

Tracy and John, who were nearly of the same age, became acquainted and were peaceable enough for a time, though they had occasional disagreements, like all neighbors' boys. But some difficulty more serious than usual had led to ill-feeling between them, which had broken out at last into open warfare; so they were now declared and downright enemies. It was a pity, for they were both fine boys, each in his way.

John was a stout young athlete, quick-tempered, quick-witted and merry, always ready for work or play, and throwing himself into both with equal energy; while Tracy was of a quieter disposition and did not get angry or enthusiastic in a moment, but was slow to alter his opinions after they were formed.

"Obstinate as a mule!" John said, not stopping to think that Tracy's affection was even more deep and lasting than his wrath; that he could be a very constant friend as well as an obstinate enemy. John was in an exceedingly belligerent frame of mind when he reached the edge of the field which bordered on the Pelton place, and beheld his father's fine drove of hogs rushing pell-mell through the corn-stubble, pursued by a slender, dark-eyed boy, who was vigorously pelting them with sticks, clods of earth, or whatever he could lay his hands on.

"You stop that, Tracy Pelton!" shouted John, imperatorily. "Mind your own business and keep your hogs at home!" retorted Tracy, as he bombarded the hogs with a lively shower of cornstalks.

"I should think this was my business, and I'll attend to it in earnest if you don't look out!" cried John, bristling with wrath and resolution. "If you hit one of those hogs again I'll hit you!"

Accepting this as a challenge, Tracy promptly threw a short stick, which took the largest of the hogs behind the ear and sent the whole drove scurrying tumultuously toward their owner's premises.

John snatched up the stick and hurled it back at Tracy, striking him on the shoulder with force enough to make him very angry, if it did not hurt him much.

He flew at John with doubled fists, and John, nothing loath, received him in the same manner. The result was that Tracy got whipped, as usual; for the two boys had had several battles already, and, though Tracy invariably came out second best, he never shrank from a fresh encounter with his stronger foe.

As for John, though he returned home after the battle flushed with triumph and greatly admired by Tom Pete, yet he was perfectly aware that his victory had not settled anything. It was quite certain that Tracy was still determined to chase the hogs and otherwise annoy his enemy whenever he got a chance.

However, during the days that followed neither of the boys had any time to waste in fruitless hostilities. They were sufficiently occupied with the business which was now demanding everybody's attention—that of saving their persons and property from destruction by the waters of the river, which, after rising rapidly for three days, had overflowed its banks and was fast inundating the whole region.

Water from other streams poured in to swell the torrent, cattle were drowned and buildings were swept away. And still the flood rose higher day by day.

People were obliged to move into the upper stories of their houses; then, as the water crept up higher, to take refuge on the roofs; and, at last, they were forced to flee for their lives to the high ground, at a distance of many miles.

Mr. Hartwell had built a sort of flat-boat, or scow, as he called it, which proved extremely useful to himself and his neighbors in this perilous time.

It was constantly in use, conveying people to the hills, picking up valuable floating property and taking off the sheep and cattle which were huddled in crowds wherever some bit of high ground formed a tiny island in the very midst of the flood.

One day, when Mr. Hartwell had taken off a number of cattle, as many as the scow could safely carry, he started with another man to paddle them to a place of safety, leaving John and Tom Pete on the housetop, which was still out of water.

heavily loaded, the boys volunteered to remain behind and wait for his return.

In the meantime they amused themselves by fishing for driftwood and such floating property as the waters brought within their reach.

There was a strong current setting past the house, and anything which happened to drift into this eddy was borne along so swiftly that a quick hand was required to capture it; but the boys had a long rope and a pole with a hook at one end, and by means of these implements they hauled in quite a collection of miscellaneous articles.

"Hi! look dar!" cried Tom Pete, suddenly. "Dar's de Pelton boy's doghouse a-comin' down de stream. Is you gwine to ketch dat?"

"No! let it go," said John, with a scowl. "I'm not going to save his old doghouse for him—yes, I will, too!"

And impulsive John reached out his pole and drew in a gaily-painted kennel, which he had at once recognized as the habitation of Tracy's favorite hound.

It was a cumbersome article to manage, but the two-boys contrived to get it on the housetop by dint of stout tugging. As John straightened up after the lift, he remarked, with an apologetic accent:

"It cost Mr. Pelton three dollars to get the old thing painted, and I haven't got anything against him!"

"Dar's a hull raft ob stuff a-comin' down fm Pelton's place," he said. "Sunfin's done busted ober dar!"

"Must be their ginhouse; father said he was afraid it wouldn't stand," replied John, gazing regretfully at the mass of boards and timbers which came swiftly down the current. "I hope all that lumber won't come bumping against this house," he added, with a look of apprehension.

"If we do, we'll bust up, too, fo' sho'," said Tom Pete, sagely. "It ain't a-gwine to hit us, dough—it's gwine to pieces."

In fact, the mass of timbers began to fall apart and drift away separately, and John got ready with his pole to pull in the boards as they were sweeping past. All at once, with a great start, he exclaimed:

"Tom Pete, there's somebody hanging on to that board out yonder!"

"It's dat ar Pelton boy!" cried Tom Pete. "He'll get drowned, sho'!"

Before Tom Pete spoke, John had become aware that it was Tracy Pelton who clung to that drifting board, and his whole generous heart went out to his helpless foe in a moment.

"Tom Pete, you hold onto the rope," he said, hastily twisting a coil of it around his arm as he spoke. "We can't reach him with the pole, and he don't know how to swim. I'll have to go after him."

"Is you gwine to drown 'o' self fo' dat kin' ob a feller?" Tom Pete demanded, with strong disapproval.

"Of course not. I'm going to save him."

"He ain't wuff savin'," declared Tom Pete, contemptuously.

"What are you talking about," said John, with flashing eyes. "He's the pluckiest feller to fight that I ever saw. Do you suppose I'm going to let him drown because he doesn't happen to be the best friend I've got? What do you take me for, anyhow?"

"Don't take you fo' nuffin'!" said Tom Pete, with a seared look, and hastening to clutch the rope, as John impetuously added:

"Hang on to that rope now, and help me haul him in. If he gets away I'll pitch you after him."

And John, with a shout of encouragement to his imperiled foe, flung himself into the water, and struck out to Tracy's aid. He was a sturdy swimmer, and in a few moments he came alongside of the board to which Tracy was clinging, and fastened his rope to it.

Tom Pete began to haul in the rope with great zeal, while John, putting one arm under Tracy's shoulder, and swimming with the other, aided in propelling him to the housetop, where they quickly drew him up, wet, weak and shivering, but by no means devoid of the courage and "pluck" which John so much admired.

"John Hartwell, you're a good fellow," said he, clasping John's hand, with a look that spoke more than his words. "I thought I was gone when the gin-house went, and I can tell you I was glad when you called out to me. You have saved my life, and I shan't forget it."

"How came you on the ginhouse? I thought your folks had all gone to the hills," asked John.

"Father and I came down to feed the stock over on the high knoll," answered Tracy. "I thought I should be safe enough on the ginhouse, while he went over there with a boatload of corn and hay. But it gave way, and went over like a pile of chips. This current was too much for it. It will cost father a pretty penny to build a new ginhouse," he added, ruefully.

When Mr. Hartwell came back to get the boys, he was very much surprised to find Tracy Pelton in their company; and when Mr. Pelton discovered what had happened, he was too grateful for the rescue of his son to complain about the loss of his ginhouse.

When the waters had finally subsided, so that people could return to their homes, the two planters, like all their neighbors, found themselves much poorer for lost stock and injured property; the flood had one good result for John and Tracy—it had made them friends.—Golden Days.

—Since the beginning of this century the use of the Italian language has greatly increased; in 1801 it was spoken by 15,070,000 people, and in 1890 it was used by 33,400,000.

—So rapid has been the change in the English language that the English of to-day bears no more resemblance to the English of 1,000 years ago than it does to German.

Sour Stomach

Stomach, sometimes called waterbrash, and burning pain, distress, nausea, dyspepsia, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This it accomplishes because with its wonderful power as a blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla gently tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, invigorates the liver, creates an appetite, gives refreshing sleep, and raises the health tone. In cases of dyspepsia and indigestion it seems to have "a magic touch."

with severe pains across my shoulders, and great distress. I had violent nausea which would leave me very weak and faint, difficult to get my breath. These spells came oftener and more severe. I did not receive any lasting benefit from physicians, but found such happy effects from a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I took several bottles and mean to always keep it in the house. I am now able to do all my own work, which for six years I have been unable to do. My husband and son have also been greatly benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla—for pains in the back, and after the grip. I gladly recommend this grand blood medicine." MRS. PRIMATE OF ENGLAND DIES.

Archbishop of Canterbury Is Seized With Apoplexy in the Hawarden Church.

SUDDENLY COLLAPSES IN THE GLADSTONE PEW.

He Is Removed to the Library and Medical Attendance Summoned But Efforts to Rally Him Are Unsuccessful.

EXPIRED IN A FEW MINUTES.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The archbishop of Canterbury was seized with apoplexy this morning after service had commenced at Hawarden church.

The archbishop of Canterbury arrived at Hawarden Saturday evening on his return from a visit to the north of Ireland. He appeared to be in robust health. He arose early today and attended early communion with his wife and others. The weather was bitterly cold, and Mr. Gladstone did not attend church, but at 10 o'clock the archbishop and Mrs. Benson, Henry Gladstone and Mrs. Gladstone and Mrs. Drew and Dorothy Drew went to this morning's service. The whole party occupied Mr. Gladstone's pew.

Directly the service began, the archbishop was seen to twitch in the arm and then collapse altogether. He was carried into the library, adjoining the rectory, and doctors were summoned. All efforts to rally the distinguished patient proved vain and he died in a few minutes. The official medical announcement of the death stated it was due to apoplexy. Reference was made to the death of the primate of all England in many churches in the kingdom tonight.

The Most Rev. Edward White Benson, archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England and metropolitan, son of Edward White Benson, Esq., of Birmingham heath, was born near Birmingham in 1829. He was educated at King Edward's school, Birmingham, and Trinity college, Cambridge. In December, 1876, he was nominated by the crown, on the recommendation of Earl Beaconsfield to the newly restored bishopric of Truro. In December, 1882, Dr. Benson was appointed by the crown, on Mr. Gladstone's recommendation, to the archbishopric of Canterbury, in succession to Dr. Tait.

THE FREE COINAGE PLANK.

John R. Proctor Says It's in Violation of Democratic Principles. WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—John R. Proctor of Kentucky, chairman of the United States civil service commission, has made public an article reviewing the history of the Democratic party's position on the question of a gold standard. Mr. Proctor says he has been at some pains to collect authentic information regarding coinage laws of the past, which satisfies him that the framers of the Constitution and founders of the government were united that the coin value of our gold and silver money should correspond with the market value of the bullion contained. This, Mr. Proctor says, is demonstrated by writings of Jefferson, Monroe and Hamilton. He quotes many high Democratic authorities in support of his position, and concludes by saying that many others might be cited to show the free silver plank in the Chicago platform is a violation of Democratic principles, and that no man advocating fiat money has the right to call himself a Democrat.

OVERWORK INDUCED Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 11.—Thomas E. Watson is quite ill at his home at Thurston, suffering from his throat and lungs. He is under treatment of Dr. Harrison, his family physician. Mr. Reed of Brunswick, chairman of the national Populist finance committee, is with him, but no other visitors are allowed. Mr. Reed is in consultation with him relative to Mr. Watson's candidacy and telegrams have been exchanging today between Reed and Senator Marion Butler.

IMPORTANT MEETING CALLED. WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Senator Butler, chairman of the Populist national committee, has sent out telegraphic notification for a meeting of the executive committee Tuesday next at the Sherman House, Chicago. It is understood matters of importance pertaining to the campaign are to be considered.

BRYAN WENT TO CHURCH. Spends the Day of Rest at St. Paul—Speaks at Minneapolis Today.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 11.—This was the usual Sunday of rest for Candidate Bryan. In the morning, in company with Mrs. Bryan, who joined the party today, he attended services at the Central Presbyterian church. In the afternoon the candidate kept close to his room and rested. He had a few callers, among them Ignatius Donnelly, Senator Tillman and C. A. Towne, the free silver Republican and Democratic nominee for congress in the Duluth district. Tomorrow there will be no speaking by the nominee until in the evening, when he will address three audiences at Minneapolis. Tuesday he will take the train for Duluth.

THREE SAILORS DROWNED.

American Schooner Is Wrecked on the Delaware Coast.

LEWES, Del., Oct. 11.—At daybreak the American schooner Luther A. Roby, from Schierville, Nova Scotia, for Philadelphia, struck near Cape Henlopen while a terrible gale was prevailing. The vessel was pounded to pieces before the life saving men could get a line to her. Three of the crew lost their lives and the other five were rescued after an awful experience with the elements.

A severe gale is raging along the Atlantic coast tonight accompanied by rain. There is every prospect that unless the storm abates there will be other disasters to shipping.

FIELD INTRENCHMENTS IN WAR.

Modern Armies Must Learn to Throw Up Works Speedily.

Hasty intrenching, as far as America is concerned, originated with the Indians, and was used by our soldiers in the revolution, but it was only perfected in our civil war. It came to be imperative, as rifle fire increased in range and accuracy, so much so that Col. Francis Greene tells us that Gurko's troops carried heavy picks and shovels, by individual preference, through the Balkan campaign; this, too, when they were freezing, starving and had their feet done up in rags. All the European armies are now provided with intrenching tools, concerning the relative value of which there is endless discussion. Various ones have been tried experimentally in our modern army, but none adopted. This is a bad business.

The drill now is to take the knife bayonet and the top of the Russian meat tin, with which every soldier is provided, and while loosening the dirt with the knife to scoop it out with the tin. This might be difficult in frozen or hard ground, and is bad for both tin and knife. When I saw it tried the ground consisted of loose loam, and within a few moments Capt. Fogger's company in infantry were out of sight in the flat prairie. They had literally sunk into the earth, and so dry and light was the dirt that it was almost invisible at 200 yards; to a casual sight it might have been gopher diggings.

The enormous penetration of modern bolts makes soldiers throw the dirt forward for nearly four feet in order to afford any protection, and modern infantry must, in the face of an enemy, go about the country like a mole—just under the sod line. With the command to "Halt!" the digging begins.

Our national guard could not dig up armor floors, but they could do this drill at the state camp, and, aside from cooking, outpost work and shooting, it is most important to a soldier to know how to get out of sight quickly.—Harper's Weekly.

in Persia.

The governorship of a state is held yearly by the man who gives the shah the largest present; during his period of office he collects from the people the taxes, the present he has given the shah and a good substantial sum into the bargain for himself. Absolutely pitiless, his men will often seize the last sticks of an old man, and if the people, seeing starvation staring them in the face, resist, they are liable to be put to death by torture, if what was in the mouth of every one was true. In the old days it was necessary to make a frightful example of a few caravan robbers to keep the road through the Kotabs safe. In a country where it is customary to commit suicide in a fanatical way, as, for instance, when wives throw themselves on their husbands' funeral pyres in India, an outcry often is made in England, and yet in a country full of Europeans men are taken out in broad daylight and cruelly murdered by the roadside.

A Grim Corporation. The African Lakes company has become so careful that it compels its agents to pay their own funeral expenses. So many agents died that an order was actually issued compelling the agents to die at their own expense. For a long while the company has enjoyed a monopoly of trade.—Century. —Great Britain's trade in tea is being rapidly transferred from China to India and Ceylon.

HAD TO CUT HIS SPEECHES.

except to defeat the party which proposes to debate it. It is the proposition to debate it, our currency standard that has created consternation in every business center of the country, has made the times hard, has driven money from active industry and put it behind barred doors where it will be kept until confidence is again restored. The people will not consent to a decrease of their circulating medium, nor a debasement of that medium of exchange. If by your votes this menace to the money and credit of the country be dispelled and by the same votes you restore the American protective policy that will stop deficiencies in the treasury and will protect American industry and courage, and confidence will come back again. Open the mills and the mines of the country by a judicious protective tariff and you will stop idleness and distribute the rank of labor and you cannot restore it in any other way."

OPPORTUNITY TO LABOR. Major McKinley's speech to the Republican clubs of Lebanon county, Pa., and Lansing, Mich., was, in part, as follows:

"The best thing in this world next to liberty is labor, and the best thing for labor is an opportunity for which we are all striving this year and which we hope, through a change of policy in the administration of the government of the United States, to enjoy to a larger degree than we have done in the past three and a half years. What we want more than anything else in order to grant this opportunity to labor is a restoration of confidence. With confidence shaken, money seeks its hiding place and goes out of the channels of business and legitimate investment and away from farming, manufacturing and mining enterprises.

"I do not know of a better illustration of the value of confidence to the country than is found in our own experience during the last twenty years. You will remember that this country resumed specie payments Jan. 1, 1879. We had outstanding then as we have now $346,000,000 of what is commonly known as greenback currency. Every dollar of that from that date was redeemable in gold upon presentation at the treasury of the United States. So great was the confidence of the people in the ability of the country that from 1879 to 1893 but $46,000,000 were presented for redemption and the gold taken out; $46,000,000 in fourteen years, and yet in the same period the country resumed specie payments Jan. 1, 1879. Since since confidence has been disturbed more than $900,000,000 of greenbacks have been presented to the treasury of the United States for redemption and the gold taken out.

"Now if confidence had existed, if the holders of these greenbacks had not been fearful, and they were only made so because the treasury of the United States was not collecting enough money to pay its bills, that the revenues of the treasury were inadequate for public expenditures, and alarmed as they were, they sent the greenbacks in for redemption and took the gold out. The gold reserve, therefore, was encroached upon and from time to time we have been compelled to sustain it, to borrow money to put gold into the treasury of the United States.

NO SHORT DOLLARS WANTED. "Now the Republican party believes that it is the duty first to raise enough money to run the government. We do not want any deficiencies in the public treasury and if we have no deficiency we will have no debts, and if we have no debts we will have no bonds, and when we have no deficiencies everybody will have confidence in the solvency of the treasury of the United States.

"But, my fellow citizens, we not only believe in raising enough money to run the government, but we believe in having a tariff upon foreign competing products high enough to protect American labor and American manufacturers. We believe it is the first duty of the government to protect and defend its own citizens. It is the poorest policy on the part of the government to give work to the labor of other nations while we have idle men in the United States. Now, when we have once accomplished that, when we have protected and defined the good money, we have in this country. We do not want any short dollars any more than we want light weights. We are in favor of a good round 100-cent dollar with which to pay the laborer of this country and measure the exchanges of the American people and we will have no other kind."

To the missionary board of the Evangelical association in response to Bishop Thomas Bowman, Major McKinley said, in part:

"It is the proud boast of our American institutions that every citizen beneath our flag can worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience in every corner of this great country, and I am always glad to meet a body of men who have dedicated their lives to the improvement and betterment of humanity, for as you better its condition, you elevate citizenship, and when you elevate citizenship, you have exalted country."

PROTECTION AND SOUND MONEY.

Major McKinley's address to the delegations of pottery workers, the River-side iron workers and the Tariff Champions of Wheeling, W. Va., in part, was as follows:

"The thought in every man's mind here today is how can I better my condition? How can I improve the condition of my family? The answer comes almost with one voice, the way to do it is to protect American industry and defend American labor. Let us do our manufacturing here in the United States. Let us make our iron and steel, our own pottery, our own glass—and when we do that, then we will employ every idle man in the United States and bring hope and happiness to every American home. I believe in that policy of protection to home industries and to the energies of the American people. I do not believe anything is cheap to the American people that imposes idleness upon a single American citizen. What you want is work and wages. Do you believe free trade will aid you? Do you believe protective tariffs will do it? Yes, yes, every time." Then vote that way. [Loud yells and cries of "You bet we will!"]

"Protection never closed an American factory; protection never shut an American mine, protection never put American labor out on the streets. I wish I could say as much for partial free trade, such as we have experienced in the last three and a half years. More than that, my fellow citizens, we not only want an opportunity to work, but when we get that opportunity, we want to be paid in honest dollars, worth a hundred cents each. We believe neither in free trade nor in free silver. The one debases the labor and the other the currency of the country, and more than that. You gentlemen, I know, are in favor of the maintenance of law and order."

CANTON, O., Oct. 11.—McKinley feels well after his record-breaking week just closed. He went to the morning and evening services at the M. E. church. In the afternoon he accompanied Mrs. McKinley on her usual drive. He also paid his accustomed daily visit to his mother and then received a few visitors and read the papers, an occupation in which he particularly delights.

Blunders. Few attributes of character are more charming than the faculty of gracefully acknowledging one's errors. The man who makes a blunder and sticks to it is a person with whom argument or controversy is impossible. The trouble and time spent in attempting to convince him of the truth are completely wasted; for he will still believe that what he has advanced must be right, even in the face of actual demonstration that it is wrong. On the other hand, the action of one who will admit with frank and ready courtesy that he has been mistaken, it may be said that it "blesseth him that gives and him that takes,"—it covers his own retreat with gracefulness, and gives his adversary a pleasant memory of an encounter with a generous foe.—Detroit Free Press.

THE IRON LIFE-BOAT. CHEESE AND CHAMPAGNE.

Trials of Joseph Francis in Trying to Perfect the Life-Saving Appliance.

But such work as this, successful as it was, was only what we might call amusement—there was far more serious work to perform. From 1830 to 1840 the young man was spending all his spare time and money at work upon a boat which should not only save lives but which could not be crushed on the rocks when the waves were hurling themselves shoreward. His cork-lined boats were successful, and were giving him a world-wide fame as an inventor and philanthropist; but he felt that unless he could invent a boat of some other material than wood his object was but half attained.

He resolved to try iron. Those of his friends who knew of this step looked upon him—as many an inventor is looked upon in our own day—as little less than a lunatic. Iron for a boat? Why, it would take such a vast amount of wood to float the iron that it would be impossible to propel the boat—to say nothing of having it breast the waves of a furious gale and go out through the storm to a wrecked ship! The idea, they said, was simply preposterous. The young man acknowledged the apparent force of the argument, but he believed there was a way out of the difficulty. He started in the path alone. He found many cruel and disheartening difficulties in the way, but he bravely met all trouble, and he nobly maintained his high purpose, and won at last a magnificent victory, not only for himself, but for all mankind.

In his later years Mr. Francis loved to tell of the trials of that critical time. Amid his later honors he never forgot the days when at one moment he seemed so near to success and at another so near to the saddest of failures.

It was now the year 1841. He had taken his family—for he was married—to a country place where he could live more cheaply than in the city. He had the use of a room in a house on Anthony street, in the city of New York, in which to carry on the work of his inventions, by the favor of Myndert Van Schoick, a gentleman who was much interested in the outcome of the matter. Here, shut in from all the world, in some poverty, he worked for 12 months, a long, discouraging, weary year. The end to be gained was to make iron float on water, something which his best friends thought the dream of a lunatic. Day by day and night by night he worked ceaselessly. He denied himself all luxuries, all comforts. He met with failure after failure.

He found himself one day at the close of the year reduced to actual want—and his object not attained. He had but a pittance in his pocket. He was hungry, but he needed one more piece of iron to make one last supreme effort. He went out to a junk shop with his last 25 cents. He bought his piece of iron for 13 cents. With the rest of the money he bought bread and molasses. All that night he worked. In the morning he found that the rats had stolen the piece of bread which he saved for his breakfast, but the labor of the night had brought victory. He had solved the problem! He had conquered in the fiercest battle of his life. He had achieved the success he sought, and this victory meant the saving of the lives of many thousands of his fellow-men.

The corrugation of iron, forming ridges in lines along the sides of the boat, had been invented. By this he was enabled to make the iron float, for he could bend it and shape it to the curved form of a boat, and the bendings or ridges in the sides took the place of all stays, supports, ribs and timbers, furnishing in themselves the support and strength, while nothing was added to the weight. The metal was put under great pressure to do this, but it stayed in place, and the victory was won.—W. S. Harwood, in St. Nicholas.

Sneak Thief Caught. There is a saying that nothing is lost if you know where it is. But this doesn't help Landlord Hogan of the Merchants' Hotel any. A sneak thief stole an overcoat from him and sold it to a man on a boat. The thief has been caught, but there is no way of recovering the garment.
A man registering as Charles Whitney, who had been stopping off and on for a few days at the house, settled up his account and left Saturday morning. Soon after the departure of the fellow Mr. Hogan discovered that his overcoat was gone. He was suspicious of his late boarder and hurried in pursuit. Overtaking him in a saloon he accused the man of the theft. It was denied, and Hogan having no way of proving it didn't press his assertion.
The man told him that he had not even worn an overcoat in two years. Finding later in the day that this was a lie, Hogan went for the fellow again to have him make a confession and return the coat. Whitney, or Lowe, as he afterwards gave his name, was stubborn. He said he knew nothing of the coat, and if the landlord thought he did to go ahead and prove it. This Mr. Hogan proceeded to do by calling in an officer and having the suspect arrested.
When arraigned before Judge Byrne the man pleaded not guilty, but Sunday in his cell he broke down and confessed that he had taken the coat, and gave the added information that he had sold it to a man on a boat for $2.50. The fellow will have another hearing this morning and get a sentence.

"That Boy." Presbyterian church was well filled last night to hear the Rev. D. B. Spencer speak to the Boys' Brigade and its friends on the subject, "That Boy."
The pulpit platform had been festively decorated for the occasion by the boys themselves. On either side of the speaker was a stand of arms, and behind him was the American flag draped against the front of the choir rail.
Mr. Spencer, who is an enthusiastic believer in the Boys' Brigade movement, spoke of the scope and progress of the work. Its purpose, he says, is to make men, not soldiers, and that it does it by presenting to a boy those ideals which appeal to him between the ages of twelve and seventeen. Before that age he says they are children, and after that they are beginning to be young men. The chief purpose of the brigade is as an adjunct to Sunday school work. It keeps the boys in the classes at that period which has always been the despair of the Sunday school worker. The movement was inaugurated by a young man named Smith, in Glasgow, Scotland, thirteen years ago. Since then it has made wonderful progress, there being brigades in all the British empire and in the United States as well. All told there are a hundred thousand boys enrolled. The states have 325 companies, and Michigan has nineteen, of which eight are in the upper peninsula.

Fire the Devil. Geo. D. Sammons of Rapid River, who made such a spectacle of himself last Wednesday evening, has opinions on what is the matter with THE MINING JOURNAL, and he voices them in the following "rich" letter to the editor:
Having arisen from the dead I hasten to inform you of how I came to be crucified and who did it. I understand that the devil who wrote those able and well-directed periodical monomaniacal heart-breaking woe-filled "medical parables" was no less a man than the man who is in the immediate management of your own beloved sheet and I think he is quite capable of doing it to me. I understand he is to vote for the mod. n. Napoleon on the man on horse back, (Mark Hanna) and I honestly think that a man with an unprejudiced heart after reading carefully and consulting the supreme ruler of the humble and impartial creator of all things both great and small and most especially the man on horse back is quite capable of crucifying Jesus Christ let a lone a poor innocent boy like myself.
Now my dear Mr. Editor let me tell you something: For the sake of the people and your dear sheet and especially your own character please chase the devil out of your office. It is a sin your loving reporter, Geo. H. Sammons, in medical parable. Personal—Please publish in large type.

Uncle Tom. When will the time come when "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will lose its charm to the rising generation? Judging by its present freshness, its alluring powers will be perennial. There is something in the skilled combination of the pathetic and the humorous that never fails to fascinate, and the story that it tells of the suffering of the poor slaves appeals directly to the finest sensibilities of the human soul. Such plays are better than sermons. They point a moral and adorn a tale. They teach us lessons in thoughtfulness and charity. They impress on our minds the precepts of the golden rule. Mrs. Stowe's book is one of the greatest books of literature, because it deals with questions of immeasurable human import, and the play itself is one of those master-pieces that can never die. If it does no more than to keep alive the memory of the rise and fall of one of the greatest iniquities that history deals with, it was not written in vain.
The Cook Twin Sisters colossal Uncle Tom's Cabin Company will appear at the opera house Wednesday next.

Physical Culture. W. J. Dwyer, professor of physical culture, has established himself firmly in the good graces of all who are interested in athletics in the city of Ishpeming. He is the originator of a system of physical development that requires neither dumb bells, horizontal bars, boxing gloves or any of the usual accessories of a gymnasium. He is fortified by credentials from the leading business and professional men of Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit. He is physically the finest exemplar of the system that he teaches, and advocates that has so far adventured in the upper peninsula for the encouragement of athletics. Professor Hardy of the Ishpeming High school has taken a warm interest in his work. Mr. Dwyer has three large classes in Ishpeming and those who attend and go through the exercise are enthusiastic in his praise.

It is Mr. Dwyer's intention to visit Marquette within the present month and open a class here. It will be an opportunity that doubtless a mass of the young men of Marquette will gladly avail themselves.

Quite a scene was created Sunday morning in two fashionable churches by George H. Sammons, the Munising crazy man who has been in the city the past week trying to talk on politics. In both churches his request to speak was refused, and in one when the organist would not shake hands with him he left disgrusted.

ROAMING HORSES.

What to Do with Such Numbers is at Present a Puzzle. Imagine a herd of horses aggregating 125,000, for which no practical use can be found. Stockmen of the northwest are to-day considering what disposition can be made of this immense number of animals.

This great herd roams the prairies of Montana, North Dakota, Washington and northern Idaho. They are grazing upon grass that is required for the sustenance of cattle and sheep, and are practically worthless for any purpose. The cause of this condition is due to the bicycle and to street car systems operated by electricity and by cable, the use of which within the last few years has so largely done away with the employment of horses. In some of the districts named the horses are increasing so rapidly in numbers that they are actually crowding live stock, used for supplying the meat markets of the country, off ranges where they find grass on which to subsist.

The men who own this vast number of horses, ranging, as they do, over such a large expanse of territory, can devise no means of relief, and they are practically helpless. Excellent horses, unbroken, can be bought for from $3 to $15 a head, but even at this low figure no buyers can be found, while the horses, too valuable to be destroyed, and at the same time too expensive to keep alive, continue to multiply.

This surplus of 125,000 horses consists not alone of bronchos or cattle horses, but in it may be found such stock as coach and Clydesdale horses, nearly all of which, however, are unbroken. Among them are the descendants of some very high-priced stallions. One rancher near Walla Walla, Wash., has 3,000 horses on his range, all of which are finely bred. These he is willing to sell at ten dollars per head, "big and little," as the saying is among cattle men, which means colts as well as the grown animals. He can find no purchaser for his stock.

The question which is now agitating these stock men is: "What can be done to rid the ranges of this immense number of horses in order that pasturage may be provided for the large herds of cattle and sheep?"

In 1895 an experiment was tried with a view of providing a way out of the trouble. A plant was established at Portland, Ore., for the purpose of slaughtering horses and canning the meat for export to France.

The plant was operated less than one year, however, but it did not succeed. Horsemen then sought to induce beef slaughtering, packing and rendering establishments in the United States to take horses for slaughtering purposes, but the attempt failed. The packing house owners absolutely declined to add horse slaughtering and canning to their beef slaughtering industry, on the ground that if it became generally known that they were canning horse meat the sale of their canned beef would be materially affected, if not entirely destroyed.

Proprietors of rendering establishments refused to go west and buy horses "from the range" for the reason that they were able to obtain in the cities a few dollars per head, or at the slight cost of hauling them from different parts of the cities to their establishments. Horse owners in the west were thus again disappointed in finding a market for their stock in large cities, as they had expected.—San Francisco Chronicle.

GIANTS SURVIVED THE FLOOD. Tradition Declares That Others Besides Noah's Family Were Saved. Among the many queer stories related in the old Jewish Talmud is one concerning the action taken by the great race of giants at the time of the deluge. According to Rabbi Eliezer, when the flood broke upon the earth, the giants exclaimed: "If all of the waters of the earth be gathered together they will only reach to our waists, and if the fountains of the great deep be broken up we will stamp them down again." The same writer, who was one of the compilers of the Talmud, says that they actually tried to do this when the flood finally came. Eliezer says that Og, their leader, "planted his foot upon the fountain of the deep and with his hands closed the windows of Heaven." Then, according to this same queer story, "God made the waters hot and boiled the flesh from the bones of the haughty giants." The Targum of Palestine also says that the waters of the flood were hot, and that the skin of the rhinoceros lays in folds because he was not allowed to enter the ark, but saved himself by hooking his horns under the sides of the vessel and floating with it. But the water which was directly under and at the sides of the ark was not hot—the rhinoceros loosened his skin swimming from a mountain peak to the side of the vessel. One account says that Og and another giant named Lami also saved themselves by taking refuge in the cool water under the edge of the ark's hull, along with the rhinoceros. One rabbinical authority quoted by Gould in his "Patriarchs and Prophets," says that Og saved himself by climbing upon the top of the ark, and that when Noah discovered and tried to dislodge him, he swore to be a slave to Noah's family forever, if allowed to remain.—St. Louis Republic.

THE DIVINE NAME.

The Ineffable Word That is Never Spoken by Many Israelites. Rev. Dr. Wise, president of the Hebrew Union college at Cincinnati, has given his view of the ancient Jewish rendering of the name of the Deity, reports the New York Sun. He says that the term "Jehovah," the ineffable tetragrammaton, is never pronounced by many Israelites. They use the word "Adonoi," which signifies "the Lord." The translators of the Bible followed this custom, rendering the word "Jehovah" as "Lord." In ancient times the Pharisees replaced the tetragrammaton by Shem; they used "Shemo," which is also Biblical, as the sacred name, and this name is yet retained, to some extent, among the Jews. But it would appear from passages in the Psalms that Adonoi, or Lord, for Jehovah was more ancient even than the times of the Pharisees. It thus occurs eight times in Psalm lxxxiv. It also appears in the book of Exodus, where "Jehovah" had been used in the original Hebrew. This substitution would seem to be older than any other, and it is yet common among all Jews. Dr. Wise says he has found that the ancient translations testify in favor of "Adonoi." Looking at the English translation of the Old Testament it will be found that the name Jehovah appears in the books of Genesis, Exodus, Judges, the Psalms and Isaiah. It is not in the New Testament.

This Happened in England. The church, in the person of the wife of the bishop of Winchester, has taken to cycling, says the Lady's Pictorial. Rev. E. Husband, by the way, the well-known vicar of St. Michael's, Folkestone, preached a special sermon to cyclists recently, in which he not only followed some of the old divines by seeing no harm in taking a punning text—"They toll not, neither do they spin!"—but further remarked he firmly believed that had velocipedes been in existence in ancient days, the sacred writings would have contained approving references to them. It may interest the excellent vicar to know that in a country church of which I have heard a cyclist figures in a stained glass window.

PREPARING PRESCRIPTIONS.

Doctors Request Druggists Not to Repeat on Them.

The Practice Might Be Regarded as Wrongful, But the Doctors Think It Perfectly Legitimate—Druggists Differ.

People who are predisposed to frequent attacks of slight indisposition of an ordinary nature, and who have been in the habit of having their ailments prescribed for by a physician, will look with askance upon the methods adopted by a number of physicians of late in instructing the druggist who fills the prescription not to refill the prescription without an order from the physician. This arbitrary ruling is in the nature of a mild form of highway robbery when viewed from the standpoint of the patient, but from the physician's point of view it is merely a legitimate method of adding to his professional income.

This rule, which happily has been adopted by only a small percentage of reputable physicians in the city, has many obnoxious features, while it has few good points to recommend it to favor. One of the many objections made to it is the fact that it works a hardship upon the poorer class of patients, who comprise by far the largest proportion of the clientele of the medical profession. A large number of the patients who call upon the members of the medical profession are suffering from only a slight indisposition, which, while it may be chronic, is, at the same time, not of a serious nature, and one which a prescription calling for a simple remedy will either cure entirely or temporarily relieve the sufferer. In such cases, where relief is obtained through the prescription given by the physician, the patient, upon a return of a similar attack, would naturally desire to have the efficacious remedy refilled by the druggist without calling upon the physician again. With this rule adopted by the physicians, however, he would be unable to obtain the remedy a second time before obtaining a prescription from the physician, and paying another fee, unless the druggist saw fit to disregard the request made by the physician.

It will be seen from this statement of facts that the real motive for the action taken by these physicians in asking druggists not to refill one of their prescriptions or to give a duplicate to a customer lies in the fact that it will add materially to their incomes. The physicians themselves, however, deny that they are actuated by such a mercenary motive, and claim that their purpose is to prevent the possibility of any of their patients coming to harm by reason of having a prescription refilled which may contain some powerful poison. Very often, they say, they write prescriptions which contain a poisonous ingredient which if taken oftener than prescribed would seriously endanger the lives of their patients. It is to prevent any such contingencies that they have taken these precautions.

Without the cooperation of the druggists, however, these orders of the physicians not to refill any of their prescriptions would be unsuccessful. While a very small proportion of the druggists about town express themselves in favor of obeying the instructions of physicians in this regard, by far the majority of them admit that they disregard them on every occasion, except in those instances in which they know that the prescriptions asked for by their customers contain a dangerous poison. The druggists generally argue that a prescription which one of their customers has paid a physician to secure belongs to the customer, and that if he wishes to secure a duplicate or to have it refilled he has a perfect right to do so. Many of the druggists say that even if the physicians gave them orders to refuse a duplicate prescription they would ignore it.—St. Louis Republic.

Has Many Horses.

Probably the empress of Austria spends more than any other woman in Europe on horses for her own riding. A really first-class hunter commands almost any price the owner likes to ask for it, but let it once hesitate at a fence or show signs of temper and it is never ridden again by her majesty. When the empress is hunting and the meet happens to be from her residence she generally drives to within a short distance of it in a brougham, wearing ordinary carriage attire. With her majesty are two ladies in waiting, whose duty it is to see that everything required for the empress' wear on horseback is brought by the dressers, who follow in another carriage. The coachman has orders to drive up to any gentleman's house which happens to be in the neighborhood of the meet, when the footman alights and requests that a room may be placed at her majesty's disposal to dress in. Naturally a good many people have been somewhat taken aback at thus being suddenly asked to accommodate an imperial guest, and this was especially the case in Ireland when the empress was hunting there a few years ago, for they were not accustomed to such an honor. However, she did there as she always did at home.—Chicago News.

Gunpowder History.

Granting that the origin of the manufacture of gunpowder is lost in the remote past, it is known that about 1265 an English monk, Roger Bacon, was the first to suggest its use in engines of death. Soon after his time the suggestion was taken up and guns constructed, the first by binding iron bars together with hoops to form a tube; then by casting a tube out of brass, with one end closed. Stones of suitable size were used for shot, and the powder was shoveled in at the muzzle. In spite of these drawbacks, very large guns were built. Mahomet II. against the Greeks in the siege of Constantinople in 1453, using a gun throwing a 600-pound stone a mile.—Philadelphia Press.

THE FUSION TICKET.

It Was Placed in Nomination at Ishpeming Saturday.

Democratic, Union Silver and People's Parties Join in Putting It Up.

The conventions of the Democratic, Union Silver and People's parties, which met to place in nomination a county ticket, held an animated session Saturday in Andrews' hall. The delegates who attended the conventions think they have put up a ticket that the Republicans will have a hard time to down. The complete ticket is as follows: Probate judge—Matthew Wasley, Ishpeming. Sheriff—Andrew Peterson, Ishpeming. Treasurer—William Coad, Ishpeming. Register of deeds—Shields McCarthy, Marquette. Clerk—John Dumond, Marquette. Prosecuting attorney—Edward J. Carey, Marquette. Circuit court commissioners—Frank P. Midlam, Marquette, and F. Huber, Champion. Coroners—August Muhlbauer, Marquette, and Uriah Blight, Ishpeming. Surveyors—Ira A. Clark, Negaunee. Representatives—Eastern district, Thos. H. Roberts, Negaunee; western district, O. A. Sinclair, Ishpeming.

Both conventions were called to order at 11 o'clock at Andrews' Hall on West Division street. The Union Silver party occupied one side of the room and the Democrats the other. The Democrats organized with John R. Rood presiding and D. J. Cavan, of Marquette, presiding and J. Gillett, also of Marquette, as secretary. A committee on credentials was appointed, and submitted its report before dinner. The report was accepted. A committee to confer with the Union Silver party, to determine what nominations should be given to each party, was named. It consisted of Michael Shea, Martin Higgins, A. G. Johnson, Dr. A. Desjardins and R. P. Byrne. The organization of the Union Silver party was perfected with John R. Rood presiding and O. A. Sinclair acting as secretary. The report of the committee on credentials showed a full delegation present. The committee appointed to confer with the Democrats was made up of Phil. Hogan, A. O. Sinclair and M. J. Griffin, of Ishpeming; Ira A. Clark and R. C. Treloar, of Negaunee.

Both conventions adjourned until after dinner. The joint organization was perfected at 1 o'clock with John R. Rood acting as secretary and John R. Rood acting as secretary. On taking the chair Mr. Desjardins addressed the convention briefly. He said he hoped the convention would be harmonious and that a ticket which would meet the approval of all classes would be made up. He hoped as strong men as had been put up by the opposition would be nominated. He expressed the belief that if the laboring men stood by the ticket an easy victory would be the result. Mr. Desjardins' remarks were warmly received.

In calling the convention to order the chairman called for a report of the conference committee. Ira A. Clark, secretary of the committee, read the report, which was to the effect that the Democrats were to be recognized by the nominations for register of deeds and judge of probate; the Union Silver party to receive the balance of the nominations. Representatives of the People's party present expressed approval of the report. It was understood, however, that in case any of the nominees on the ticket were elected the deputyships should be liberally divided among members of the People's party. The report met the approval of the convention and was unanimously adopted. E. J. Carey then addressed the convention, expressing the hope that a strong ticket would be named, one that the laboring men would stand by. In speaking in his own behalf he said that if the delegates thought any other candidate for the office for which his friends were pushing him could draw one more vote than he could he would be pleased to see them nominate that man. He believed the best men should be put to the front and that the convention should work with that object in view in every nomination made.

The nomination for the office of sheriff was the first taken up. The names of Andrew Peterson and William Coad were placed before the convention. An informal ballot was taken, giving Peterson 35 votes and Coad 9. While the ballots were being prepared Mr. Coad advised a number of his friends that he did not want the office but would take the treasurership. This account for the small vote he received. The ballot was made formal and Mr. Peterson was declared the nominee. Mr. Coad was then nominated for the treasurership by acclamation. When the name of John Dumond was presented for county clerk Wm. Andrews called a halt. He said he believed some mistake had been made. He had in mind the agreement reached by the conference committee. As Mr. Dumond is a People's party man, Mr. Andrews could not understand why the Democrats wanted him for clerk. After a short conference Mr. Dumond's name was withdrawn. Shields McCarthy was then named for the office. A friend of the latter stated that he would not accept the nomination for clerk but was willing to make the run for register of deeds. T. Gariepey of Republic was also named for the place. He also declined. After another brief conference the Union Silver men agreed that Mr. Dumond should be given the nomination. His name was again placed before the convention and his nomination was made by acclamation.

Several names were proposed for the office of circuit court commissioner in the eastern end of the county. John R. Rood, G. A. Brown, Rush Culver and Mr. Shaal were among those mentioned. Frank P. Midlam was finally nominated, assurance having been given by one of the delegates that he would accept. The nominations of Messrs. Midlam and Huber were by acclamation. Both coroners and the surveyor were nominated by acclamation. The names of John R. Rood, Theophile Gariepey and Matthew Wasley were placed before the convention for judge of probate. An informal ballot was taken, giving Wasley 27, Rood 13 and Gariepey 13. The ballot was made formal and Mr. Wasley was declared the nominee. John R. Rood was made chairman of the Union Silver county committee. The convention then adjourned. The representative delegates from both ends of the county organized and nominated candidates for representatives in the state legislature. The eastern district appointed A. Desjardins chairman and John R. Rood, secretary. The nomination of Thomas H. Roberts, of Negaunee, was by acclamation. The nomination of O. A. Sinclair, from the western end, was also by acclamation. Charles Roberts presided over the latter meeting and Matthew Wasley was secretary. At the conclusion of these meetings the senatorial delegates of the Union Silver party from the Thirty-first district convened with Charles Roberts presiding and P. F. Small acting as secretary. The nomination of Robert Blehmhuber of Marquette, for state senator, was endorsed by a unanimous vote.

The Silver Rally.

The most enthusiastic gathering that has ever assembled at the Ishpeming Opera House was addressed Saturday night by James A. Prout, the "Cornish Cyclone," and Peter Witt, the Populist moulder, from Cleveland, O. The speakers held the crowd from 7:40 until 11 o'clock. Every chair in the opera house was occupied and the standing room was also taken up. Mr. Prout was the first to speak. He reviewed the history of money, illustrating his discourse by charts containing figures showing the amount of gold and silver coined for several years back, also giving other information of more or less pertinence. He maintained that if this country votes for free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1 the other nations of the world will not bring their silver bullion here to be coined, as by so doing they would lose from two to four cents on every dollar, owing to the difference in the ratio as compared with their own. When speaking on this point a commercial traveler who sat in the rear of the hall began asking the speaker questions. The debate lasted a short time and finally the speakers became so worked up—the Silverites holding up Prout and hooting down the traveler, and the Republicans present shouting for their man—that Prout dropped the argument and again resumed his explanation in his own way. The real cyclone of the evening came when Peter Witt took the platform. Before he finished his talk he had a majority of his auditors wild with excitement. He roasted the Republican and Democratic monopolists alike and eulogized the Populist platform. He scored Mark Hanna unmercifully. He also touched up McKinley but spoke favorably of Bryan. At 10:45, when Witt concluded his discourse, the crowd stood up and yelled for him to continue. He responded for fifteen minutes longer, during which the excitement was intense. Witt asserted that Hanna had offered him $5,000 to keep silent during the campaign, but the Moulder's Trade union, to which he belonged, paid him $15 a week, which he said, was better to him than Hanna's thousands. Witt spoke last night at Escanaba. Prout addressed another crowd at the opera house yesterday afternoon. He spoke on the monetary question from a religious standpoint.

Old Residents Die.

John Lane, an old citizen, aged seventy-three years, died Sunday afternoon very suddenly. Heart failure was the cause of his demise. He leaves a family. Mrs. Alice Sullivan died Friday night at Lake Angelina in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jerry Harrington. She was seventy-three years old. Mrs. Sullivan's funeral will be held this morning in St. John's church.

For Sound Money.

The headquarters of the Ishpeming McKinley and Hobart club was packed to the doors Saturday evening with voters who turned out to hear George W. Hayden speak on sound money. The speaker occupied the platform for about three-quarters of an hour. He began by stating that it was the first time he ever had the pleasure of addressing a Republican audience, having always been on the other side. He said that there were many old time Democrats who felt as he did and there were many of them who would vote for McKinley and sound money. Mr. Hayden gave a very clear explanation of the monetary issue and all present were pleased with his talk. President W. G. Mather, of the Cleveland-Cliffs company, was present and was called on to address the assemblage. He responded and gave a very sensible talk in which he plainly expressed his views on the financial question. Switchman Assaulted. Ed Timmons, a switchman in the yards of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railway company here, was assaulted by two unknown men Friday evening near the Cleveland mine. He was about to turn a switch when his assailants jumped from behind a car near by and struck him in the face with a hard weapon. The blow stunned him and he fell staggering to the ground. The two men were about to go through his pockets when the engine came along, so they ran away, escaping in the darkness. Timmons' nose is broken in two places, and his face is otherwise disfigured. It is quite certain that robbery was the motive of the assault, as Timmons had drawn his pay that day. Dates for the "Cornish Cyclone." Jas. A. Prout, the Cornish orator who is now stamping this district for Bryan and Sewall, will address meetings as follows for the next two weeks of the campaign: Republic, Oct. 12; Baraga, Oct. 13; Houghton, Oct. 14; Hancock, Oct. 15; Red Jacket, Oct. 16; Lake Linden, Oct. 17 and 18; Bessemer, Oct. 19; Ironwood, Oct. 20; Hurley, Oct. 21; Iron River, Oct. 22; Menominee, Oct. 23; Gladstone, Oct. 24 and 25; Manistique, Oct. 26.

George Sheldon, aged about fifty-five years, died yesterday morning at the residence of his sister, Mrs. A. S. Christian, on Euclid street, of acute pneumonia. Just before the hour for leaving for Duluth Friday night the Ishpeming football team received a telegram advising them that the game had been declared off. Bad weather is thought to be the cause. AFTER GAME IN AFRICA. Large Hunting Party Organized with Science as a Side Show. Parties of 20 or 25 men on the lookout for big game, and ready to go to the ends of the earth in search of it, are not an everyday spectacle in this country. There is at present, however, an expedition of this kind under way, the members of which hope to start from America for the Dark continent. There, in the haunts of the elephant, gorilla, chimpanzee, hippopotamus, and deer, they expect to do their best in the way of decimating the native fauna. The expedition is not to be entirely for sport, however. Science usually has its share of the best nowadays, and this party is not to be without its representatives. Two men, at least, will go whose main object, instead of slaughter of the gulleless gorilla, the earth-shaking elephant, and a score of minor beasts, will be to further the progress of science. Frank Hegger, photographer, one of the party, said: "Prof. William Garner, who made himself well known through his long and novel sojourn in a cage in the heart of an African jungle in study of the language of the gorilla and chimpanzee, expects to be one of the party. He is on cordial terms with the government officials and the traders along the coast, and is thoroughly familiar with the country, the natives and the haunts of the game. According to our present arrangements, the voyage will cover a period of four months and a distance of about 17,000 miles. It will include a visit to the Canary Islands, Sierra Leone, the Gold Coast, Gaboon and a trip up the Ogowe and the Congo. "By this plan the party is assured of at least one month of the finest hunting in the world. If any of the party wishes to prolong this hunting period to seven weeks, he may do so by omitting the trip up the Congo, without any additional cost. The hunting field to which the party will be taken abounds in all sorts of game. Within a radius of 20 miles are scores of elephants, hundreds of buffaloes, herds of deer and vast numbers of wild hogs. There are hippopotami, leopards, panthers, bush cats, civet cats, porcupines, armadillos, crocodiles, schools of monkeys and the gorilla and chimpanzee. In addition to all of these animals there are plenty of pheasants, quail, ibis, curlew and marsh-bou."—N. Y. Tribune. Bucklen's Arnica Salve. SPECIAL ELECTION ORDERED.

Council Decides to Submit Proposal to Install a City Lighting Plant to the People.

At the adjourned regular meeting of the city council, held Friday evening, the question of submitting the proposition for installing a municipal electric plant to a vote of the people was favorably considered. Mayor Kirkwood and eight of the ten aldermen were present, the absentees being Aldermen Wiggins and Matthews.

A resolution calling a special election for the purpose named, to be held on Friday, the 23rd inst., was adopted with but one dissenting vote, Alderman Gaffney voting against it.

The recorder was instructed to issue notices of the election at once. The boards of registration in the several wards will be in session on Thursday, the 22nd, from 8 o'clock in the morning until 8 in the evening. The election will be conducted the same as a regular city election. Two ballots will be provided, one favoring the proposition and the other opposing it. The registration and polling places in each ward will be as follows:

- First ward—Mrs. Joseph Rogers' residence on the west side of Barn street. Second ward—City hall. Third ward—E. C. Anthony's office on West Iron street. Fourth ward—D. McDonald's house on Clark street. Fifth ward—No. 2 hosehouse.

James L. McClear, Edward J. Carey and Frank A. Bell, were chosen election commissioners.

A bill from Frank B. Rae, the engineer who furnished plans and specifications for the electric lighting plant, covering his expenses while here and railroad fare to and from Chicago, was allowed. The $100 for Mr. Rae's services was laid over until a future meeting. The amount allowed for his expenses was $34.

The Adelphi roller rink has been secured for practice meetings. An effort will be made to arrange a game with the Ishpeming High school team for next Saturday afternoon. The Negaunee team should be a good one, as the members are picked from among the most active young men in the city. Their average weight will be about 160 pounds. Mr. Krogman is the lightest man in the team, his weight being 145 pounds.

Death of Eva Barabee.

Eva Barabee, aged twelve years, daughter of Antoine Barabee, died Saturday morning at 9:15 o'clock of heart disease. She had been ill for some time past and during the last six weeks she suffered a great deal. Her pain was so great that she could not rest in any position. Death did not come unexpectedly so that all the members of the family were present when she passed away.

Among the relatives present from outside were J. C. Maynard and family of Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Archambeau of Marquette. The funeral will be held today from St. Paul's church.

A Silver Rally.

The silverites of Negaunee will hold their first big rally next Wednesday evening, when two prominent speakers—Hon. Henry W. Seymour of Sault Ste. Marie, candidate for congress on the Democratic Union Silver ticket, and Hon. D. F. Glidden of Detroit, will be here. It is also possible that Hon. Martin McGinnis, an ex-congressman of Montana, will also be here on that date. The meeting will doubtless be a lively one.

TOBACCO IN WILLS.

Klaes, the merchant of Rotterdam, was called the king of the smokers, from his devotion to the gentle weed, and he had a right regal funeral. By the terms of his will, every smoker who chose to attend it was presented with ten pounds of tobacco and two Dutch pipes, on which were engraved the name, arms and date of the decease of the testator. All his guests were invited to be careful to keep their pipes alight during the funeral ceremonies, and to empty their ashes into his grave. His oak coffin was lined with the cedar of his old Havana cigar boxes, and a packet of old Dutch tobacco was placed at the foot of his coffin. His favorite pipe was laid by his side along with a box of matches, as well as flint and steel and some tinder, as he had expressed an opinion that "there was no knowing what might happen." Some anti-tobaccoists of the period seem to have wickedly remarked that these precautions about preparing a light would be found superfluous.

The courts recently set aside a clause in the will of an anti-tobacco leaguer in Ireland. This gentleman had a prejudice against smoking, perhaps because it made him sick, and inserted this paragraph in his last testament: "I have told my sons, John, Richard and Samuel, that if they indulge in the habit they would forfeit £500 each, to be divided among their sisters, and should they at any time begin this habit, their sisters may sue them each for £500."

LONGS TO BE A SLAVE.

Southern Negro Who Wants to Go Into Bondage Again.

Some of the letters that Mayor Thatcher gets are curiosities in their way. People from out of town who wish to find out anything in the city of Albany invariably write letters to the mayor. It doesn't make any difference what the information desired relates to, the mayor, they think, ought to know, says the Albany Argus.

A letter was received from a negro away down south, who, Mr. Monahan says, has been dead for 30 years—not literally a corpse, but deceased so far as his grip on hustling, progressive nineteenth century life was concerned. This man believes that slavery is still an institution in this great land, and is ignorant of the glorious fact that the master's whip hasn't cracked for 30 years. He never heard of the president's proclamation, never knew that the north had whipped the south, and that a million lives had been sacrificed to free the slave. In his letter to the mayor this colored man asked to be brought north and sold back into slavery. There is no question that he found it impossible to live in the south, and longed again for the irresponsibility from self-support of slavery days, which he thought still flourished in the south.

Hood's Pills are easy to take.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Mr. Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors, who finally gave him up, saying: "Your boy won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial bottles free at E. Farnham's Drug Store.

TO SAVE HUMAN LIVES.

The Government to Experiment with a New System.

House-Boats Will Be Used Off-Shore—Some Interesting Details of the Methods to Be Adopted.

The government life-saving station service is about to try a new idea, from which great results are expected. It is undertaking to apply the house-boat principle in the saving of life at sea.

Perhaps it is not very clear just how a house-boat is going to be of much service in an angry ocean storm. But the government officials have figured out a use for it that is new. This life-saving station will be off shore, just outside of the line of breakers. In this new station the life-saving crew will live, and from there they will board their boats.

The most difficult part of the life-saving work is getting a boat launched in a wildly-beating surf and working it out beyond the breakers. In fact, a very large proportion of the upsets, the delays and the difficulties in reaching a stranded or distressed vessel are due to it.

The proposal is to build a boat 100 feet long, 33 feet wide and six feet deep, and strong enough to defy for years the fiercest storms. The new craft is to be fashioned very much like an old-style flatiron, cut off square at the stern. It will be anchored firmly, and, of course, will always present a head to the wind.

There is to be a curious cut in the stern of the boat that is to be called the "harbor." This is an opening 30 feet in length and 17 feet in width. It is surrounded by a walk six feet wide, upon which the boats may be hauled. The upper deck extends the whole length of the boat, covering over the top of the "harbor" as well.

Thus, with her head always to the wind, the "harbor" will offer easy ingress and egress to small boats. The hardest, most disagreeable and most dangerous part of the work which life-saving crews have hitherto had to put up with, the launching of boats through the surf, will thus be entirely done away with.

In the "harbor" also will be moored two naphtha launches for the use of the life-savers, and a surf-boat will hang on davits near the end.

As a whole, despite its odd shape, the craft looks a good deal like the traditional house-boat. It is to be built in the most durable manner, heavily bulkheaded, and the main deck, which is to be ten feet above the level of the sea, will contain abundant room for the crew of eight men and the captain who will man the vessel. There is to be abundant room for comfortable living, and the boat is to be fitted up with kitchen, dining-room and sleeping compartments.

On the deck is to be a large pilot house, seven feet in height, which will be used as a lookout. The station is to be fitted with anchors, but no masts, machinery or steering gear. If it ever broke loose it would go where it liked, but for the most part its movements will be directed by a tow line.

The new craft has just been completed at a ship yard near Noank, Conn., and was designed by Assistant Superintendent of Construction Henry E. Davis. The total cost of the boat is about $7,000, and it will be towed to Boston at once, where it will be stationed off City Point as the Boston bay floating life-saving station.

The government officials will watch the career of the life-saving house-boat with a great deal of interest, and if it proves the success they hope similar stations will be established along the entire coast of the United States. It is probable that in time the boats will be provided with connections with the shore, and either the whole crew of the station will be transferred to the house-boat or else the latter will be used as an adjunct to the shore station.—N. Y. Herald.

Tombs That Will Tell No Story.

If in our funeral customs we thought of posterity, the practice of honoring the dead with flowers—which in some recent funerals has prevailed on so extensive a scale—would give way to some more enduring tokens. "The flower fade," and, indeed, generally, how empty our tombs will be of archaeological interest to the antiquarians of future centuries. It is curious to reflect how much of our knowledge of antiquity and how many of our recovered treasures of ancient arts are the result of the practice of burying trinkets and utensils with the dead. Ancient tombs are thus full of information—and, we may add, of puzzles—for the meaning of those exquisite little Tanagra figures found in Greek cemeteries has not yet been convincingly explained. The tombs of the modern world, when they are dug up by the curious of after ages, will contain no buried history, no buried art, no buried treasures. To the archaeologist they will be full only of emptiness; which, however, will itself carry its lesson with it—the lesson of the greater spirituality of the faiths of the modern world.—London News.

One-Four-Millionth of an Inch Thick.

One dollar's worth of ordinary commercial gold leaf, it is said, is sufficient to cover an area of 900 square inches. In other words, that 900 square inches of gold have been pounded or beaten out of a lump of the yellow metal which weighed no more than a gold dollar. This gold leaf, thin as it is, is thick when compared with that which is now being made by a recently discovered process. By this process the "yellow metal" is deposited with electricity in a bath upon a highly polished sheet of copper. In this manner a film only one-four-millionth of an inch in thickness may be produced. When mounted on glass this new kind of gold leaf is perfectly transparent.—St. Louis Republic.

HER HAPPY DAY.

A CHARMING STORY OF MEDICINE AND MARRIAGE.

Two Open Letters From a Chicago Girl—How Happiness Came to Her.

Among the tens of thousands of women who apply to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and are cured, are many who wish the facts in their cases made public, but do not give permission to publish their names for reasons as obvious as in the following, and no name is ever published without the writer's authority; this is a bond of faith which Mrs. Pinkham has never broken.

Chicago, Jan. 15th, '95. My dear Mrs. Pinkham—A friend of mine, Mrs. —, wants me to write you, because she says: "you did her so much good." I am desperate. Am nineteen years of age, tall, and in consumption, and wants to take me to Florida. Please help me! Tell me what to do, and tell me quickly. I am engaged to be married in September. Shall I live to see the day? * * * * *

Chicago, June 16th, '95.

My dear Mrs. Pinkham—This is a happy day. I am well and gaining weight daily, but shall continue the treatment and Vegetable Compound during the summer, as you suggest. Uncle knows nothing about what you have done for me, because it would make things very unpleasant in the family. I would like to give you a testimonial to publish, but father would not allow it. * * * * * I shall be married in September, and as we go to Boston, will call upon you. How can I properly thank you? * * * * *

LUCY E. W.

Just such cases as the above leak out in women's circles, and that is why the confidence of the women of America is bestowed upon Mrs. Pinkham.

Why are not physicians more candid with women when suffering from such ailments?

Women want the truth, and if they cannot get it from their doctor, will seek it elsewhere.

BRYAN HERE WEDNESDAY.

Tri-Party Presidential Candidate Will Make His Main Address in Marquette.

THOUSANDS SURE TO COME TO HEAR HIM.

Pleasure Driving Again On Presque Isle—Clergymen Fill the Churches—Burning Tree Killed Duchene—Disordered Minds' Work.

GREAT SILVERITE IS COMING. William Jennings Bryan, the famous orator and candidate of the combined silver parties, will be in Marquette the evening of Wednesday Oct. 14.

Mr. Bryan's swing around the states is probably the greatest feat of campaigning ever attempted by a presidential candidate. He is admitted, even by his opponents, to be the best political orator on the stump this year, and voters of all parties will come hundreds of miles to hear him.

According to the program of his managers one day is to be devoted to the upper peninsula, and Marquette is fortunate in having a greater proportion of that day than any other town in northern Wisconsin or upper Michigan. He will arrive here on a special shortly after eight Wednesday evening, and will remain till 11:30. The speech at Marquette will be the last and principal address of the day.

There is no hall in Marquette which will be large enough to accommodate the thousands who will throng to hear him, so while it may be hard on the speaker he will be obliged to make an open air oration.

A number of the silver managers met Sunday afternoon in the office of S. E. Byrne to make the preliminary arrangements for the coming of their great leader.

By unanimous consent F. M. Moore, chairman of the city Democratic committee, will act as chief director of arrangements. It was decided to build a stand for the speaking on the north side of Superior street, about a hundred feet west of the depot in front of the large vacant store. The location is convenient for the train and will furnish standing room for more people than any other which could be selected. As the plan is now there will be no procession, and no reception. When the special pulls in Mr. Bryan will be met and greeted by a committee of the leading silver men, and placed in a carriage and driven to the speaking stand. When his address is finished he will be escorted back to the car.

LOW RATES BY RAIL.

Mr. Bryan's trip through the peninsula is as comprehensive as a one day's flight can be made, yet with the best figuring it was found necessary to leave the wealthy and populous copper country without a visit. For the benefit of these people, as well as for those in other towns, the D., S. S. & A. will make the following excursion fares to Marquette and return for the above named event:

DEMOCRATIC SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

Pursuant to call the senatorial convention of the Democratic party for the Thirty-first senatorial district assembled at the Hotel Marquette at 11 a. m. last Saturday and adjourned to meet at 3 p. m. at the office of Samuel E. Byrne on Washington street.

At 3 o'clock the delegates reconvened and organized the convention by the election of Henry Russell as chairman and Webster Dock secretary. The nomination for state Senator and the reorganization of the district committee for the ensuing year being the only business to be transacted, were quickly disposed of.

It having been understood that if the People's party supported the nomination of Henry W. Seymour by the Democratic and Union Silver parties for representative in congress the two last mentioned parties would support the People's party nominee for state senator, and the People's party having carried out its part of the compact, it was moved that Robert Biemhuber be nominated by acclamation for the office of senator for the thirty-first district. The vote was unanimous.

The district committee then organized by the re-election of Francis M. Moore, of Marquette, as district chairman for the ensuing term. Webster Dock was elected secretary for the term. The convention then adjourned.

Presque Isle Drive Passable.

After being in a state of chaos nearly all summer Presque Isle drive is now in fine condition for pleasure riding and driving. This good news spread rapidly, and Sunday afternoon there were more carriages passed over the drive than there has been in the past month. The drive lacks less than a day's work of actual completion. Street Commissioner McIntosh has had a gang of men, eight teams and the roller at work on it all last week. The coarse rock, out of which is made the foundation of the road, has been laid all the way from the ice house to the second bridge, and the top dressing has been put on till within a hundred feet of the first bridge. This has been rolled down as well as it was possible to do it when the road was dry, but it can be considerably improved by rolling after a heavy rain. This is what the commissioner intends to do. The distance between the end of the finished road and the first bridge will be top dressed today and rolled. Between the bridges the top dressing will be of ashes, which will be put on as the city has run out of the fine rock that is used for top dressing. Mr. McIntosh declares that it is even superior to the rock.

Since the dock teaming has been finished, and the road left in an almost impassable condition it has been under repair as the street force could get time with its other work. Almost a mile, the part worst cut up, has been made almost as good as new. This is all that will be done this season. Next year the street committee intends, if it can get the consent of the council, to go ahead with the work and improve the road from the icehouse to the town.

A new feature of the road is the seawall which protects it from the waves of the lake, which in former years have caused some trouble by washing up and carrying away part of the road or covering it with sand. The wall extends for three thousand feet along the most exposed parts of the drive. It is built by sinking posts into the ground at distances of five or six feet, and stringing a 6x6 beam along the top, and by spiking slabs against this, and sinking one end in the ground. This wall has been built at the low cost of eleven cents a foot. The particular kind of wall is an idea of the street commissioner and the first section of it was built by him subject to the approval of the committee. The committee went over the road the latter part of last week and expressed its gratification at both drive and wall.

While the improvement of Presque Isle drive has been going on Lake street has not been forgotten. The work on it is practically done, and there is now a good stone roadway from the shipping office to Shaw's store.

"Yankees of the Orient."

Every sitting in the Methodist church last night was occupied and considerable standing room utilized by an audience that had come out to hear an address by a Japanese divinity graduate. The speaker was Rev. Thomas A. Tamama, who graduated last June from Albion college and is now on his way to his native island empire to take charge of a missionary field already assigned him. Mr. Tamama is not only a highly educated gentleman himself but springs from a family reputed for its scholarship for ages. His father was professor of political science in the university at Tokio. The first part of his discourse was historic and descriptive and dwelt largely upon the causes of the Japanese-Chinese war. He manifested a genuine Yankee disdain for the conquered people of that war, rating one Jap as the equivalent of ten Chinese. The unprecedented development of Japan was illustrated by the fact that although the bars to foreign nations had been let down but a quarter of a century nearly all the customs and fashions of Europeans are in vogue and Japanese institutions have attained quite as high a standard of perfection as the model institutions of the most advanced nations where civilization is centuries old.

But the greater portion of the address was personal and related directly to his own experiences, detailing the manner of his conversion to Christianity and his persistent efforts against almost insuperable obstacles to obtain such an education as would enable him to be a most effective missionary force. This portion of his address was by far the more interesting and was brightened by flashes of brilliant wit and genial humor. It is easy to see that the young scholar, despite his arduous toil, is an optimist of the most pronounced type. Indeed, he vouches for the Japanese as the happiest people on earth.

The great need of Japan he maintains is more spirituality in religion. Converts to Christianity are multiplying at the rate of half a thousand every month and but a few years, at the same rate, will be necessary to entitle Japan to a leading position as a christian nation.

Met a Peculiar Death.

One of the most peculiar deaths that has ever been reported in this part of the country befell a man named Ed Duchene Saturday.

The woods have been afire all last week in the vicinity of Wetmore. Saturday Duchene was passing through a place where the fire was burning scintillatingly. A birch tree was burning along the line of his path. Just as he got in range this tree, having burned so far in the trunk as to become weak, fell and struck him on the head, fractured his skull and causing instant death. While a severe injury was likely the blow probably would not have been fatal had the tree not so fallen that two knots struck him on the head.
