CROWD SAW BRYAN.

Silver's Great Champion Gazed Out Over a Sea of 7,000 Eager Faces.

Largest Political Demonstration of Any Party Ever Witnessed in Marquette.

Bryan Was Hugely Pleased With the Intelligent and Enthusiastic Reception.

His One Hour Speech Was a Witty, Sarcastic, Brainy Oratorical Masterpiece.

Encouragement by Cheers and Applause Punctuated Every Sentence in His Discourse.

THE GREAT SILVERITE HERE

Bryan, presidential nominee of three parties, and the greatest representative of the free silver idea before the American people today was in Marquette last night and addressed an enthusiastic, applauding, howling multitude of 7,000 as intelligent people as he has had the pleasure to appear before in his swing around the states. Mr. Bryan expressed himself as highly pleased at the enthusiastic reception he received in the city. It was a surprise to himself and party that a city of this size could turn out so great a portion of its population, and his managers regarded it as an evidence of his great popularity.

Mr. Bryan's speech was for him unusually long. He spoke a full hour, which is something he rarely does, as it would be a physical impossibility to make an hour's talk at every stand. When he attempted to stop, the crowd filled the air with vehement cries of "Go on! Go on!" till there was nothing he could do but proceed.

Despite the fact that it was nearly an hour after the schedule time when his special pulled into the station there were few indeed of the waiting thousands that ventured away from their places in front of the stand, so afraid were they that they would not be able to get back in hearing distance. Bryan's address was literally punctuated with applause. There was a cheer at every rhetorical pause, and sometimes where there was none.

At the conclusion of his address there was an appeal to the crowd for three cheers and a tiger. The like of those cries has never been heard in the city of Marquette.

It would have seemed that the cheers would have been exhausted, but when Mrs. Bryan stepped to the front of the platform and was introduced to the throng it went wild in its enthusiasm a second time.

The demonstration closed with a few remarks by lesser lights of the party and a handshaking reception by Mr. and Mrs. Bryan. Hundreds pressed forward to shake the hands of the man and woman whom they believed would be the first lady and gentleman of the land in a few short months.

From the platform the Bryans were escorted back to their special. They were surrounded with the same crowd that filled the street in front of the speakers stand, and everyone in the throng pressed about the cars as if loath to part with the city's most distinguished visitors.

They even climbed on the car steps as the train pulled out, and shook hands with the candidate and his wife over the platform gate at the imminent risk of neck and limb.

It was the greatest political demonstration ever given by any party in Upper Michigan.

Preparations for the coming of the great silverite began early in the morning. The committee, though divided in opinion as to the best location for the speaking, came back to its first choice, and the carpenters began to erect the stand on the sidewalk on the north side of Superior street in front of Carney's old saloon.

The platform was built the height of a man above the walk, so with the elevation the walk itself had an elevation of at least eight feet above the masses of the people who were to be addressed.

Bunting decorations were nailed to the front and sides of the stand and whipped merrily in the breeze. Above the front of the stand where the speaker was going to stand to address the crowd, a row of extra large, fifty- and seventy-five candle power incandescent lights were arranged. These when lighted up made everything on the stand brilliantly distinct, and even those who were too far away to hear well had the pleasure of seeing the man who aspired to the greatest office within the gift of the American people.

In addition to seats for Mr. Bryan and his wife, the stage was set with chairs for the members of the state committee who are traveling with the Bryans, and an improvised table on one side furnished the reporters and correspondents with the conveniences to do their work.

Across the street in front of the stand was the largest campaign banner that has been put up here this season. It was built on the fishnet plan, and contained the pictures of Bryan and Sewall, on either side of a decorative name piece.

Good positions for seeing and hearing were in brisk demand. Every window within a block of the stand was engaged, and some of them brought very fair prices at an advanced sale. One enterprising man built a stand nearly as large as the speakers stand in the middle of the Pendill lot just across the street. Accommodations were arranged in the room back of the stand for nearly a hundred lady friends of the leading silverites.

HANDLING THE CROWDS. In order to handle the crowd properly Marshal Emmons took the entire police force, and distributed the men around the stand and about the depot, deeming that there was some need for them there than on their regular beats.

The outside attendance was fairly good. Each of the afternoon trains brought in a fair delegation, and a much larger one came down on the 6:45. They all made enthusiastic additions to the crowd already assembled to greet the candidate.

With patience and good nature did the monster crowd wait for the appearance of the candidate here. People gathered about the speaking stand soon after seven o'clock. Eight o'clock came and found actually thousands standing in the street and filling windows and roofs of every building within earshot or eye gaze.

Short talks were made to the crowd by silver men while its vigil was kept. At last the welcome whistle of the special was heard. The crowd cheered lustily, and those on the outskirts, who had only an interior position to lose at best ran around to the other side of the depot to see the candidate, his wife and party arrive.

Mr. Bryan and party were escorted around the depot to the stand, a few hundred feet on foot. Tumultuous cheers were raised as Mr. Bryan mounted the platform.

As soon as the distinguished party, and leading local silver men had taken their seats on the platform James Russell stepped forward and very briefly introduced the candidate as "With the people and again the trusts, the next president of the United States William Jennings Bryan."

Mr. Bryan is a well built man of thirty-five of fully medium size. His dark complexioned, and has hair that shows but the slightest tinge of gray. He wore an overcoat and skull cap during his address. He seemed to be suffering somewhat from hoarseness, but his voice was rich and distinct and carried far out over the crowd. He said in part:

BRYAN BEGINS TO SPEAK.
"Ladies and gentlemen: I am glad to meet so many people who live in this northern peninsula. I am gratified to note the interest which you manifest in the campaign. You may well afford to be interested, because in no campaign known to us younger men have such great interests been at stake. In no campaign since the war have the people been so aroused to a sense of national danger as they are aroused this year."

"Our opponents tell us that the success of our cause would mean great injury to this country. We reply that twenty years of experience in their cause has been of incalculable harm to our country (Applause). They tell us that the free coinage of silver will bring trouble. We tell them that the gold standard has brought trouble (Applause and cheers). We place the experience of our people against the prophecies which they make. They tell us that the free coinage of silver may not be free from dangers. They tell us that it may not be a perfect system. We tell them that we do not have to offer a perfect system. All we have to do is to offer something better than we have had and it doesn't take a very good system to be better than that we have had (Applause and cheers)."

"My friends, in one sense our campaign is a defensive one. In another sense it is a defensive one. It is defensive in that we are defending our homes and our firesides from an enemy as dangerous as ever attacked the welfare of the people (Applause and cheers). It is an aggressive warfare in that we demand affirmative legislation. It is aggressive in that we are for something and know what we are for and how we are going to get it (Great applause). We propose a financial system. Our opponents, without proposing, simply oppose what we propose. We ask them what they are going to do and they say they are going to oppose us. That is all (Great applause and cheers)."

"We ask them what they want in the way of a financial system and they say they want what we don't want. That is about as near as you can get them to come and define their position."

"We say that we want free coinage; we say that we want unlimited coinage at the present ratio; we say we want it without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation on earth (Great applause). They say they want sound money. We tell you what we think will be sound money. They tell us they want honest money. We tell you what we think is honest money and what is a more honest dollar than the gold dollar is today (Wild applause and cheering). Now, I am going to assume that I am talking to men and women who desire to understand this question and who are willing to measure the arguments advanced by either side by those principles of common sense which govern us in every-day life. Let me give you a principle you understand, one you apply every day."

"Suppose you go into court and see a witness upon the stand and that witness answers questions without evasion and discloses what he knows in a straightforward manner and you will say that he is an honest witness. Then the next witness goes on the stand and he tries to conceal something. He tries to avoid. He shows that he is not telling all that he knows, and you say he is not an honest witness. You have a right to apply the same logic, the same principles, when you come to measure the issues presented by parties and the position they have taken on public questions."

PARTIES AND WITNESSES MEASURED ALIKE
"When you find a party which takes an open position and tells you exactly what kind of a financial system it desires, you have a right to believe that those who are in that party are honest in their convictions and are appealing to the judgment of the people. But when you find a man who wants a gold standard and dares not say so, but con-fuses you with terms used in a double sense, you have a right to believe that that man is not honest when he tells you what he advocates is good for you (Great applause)."

"If our opponents believe the gold standard is a good thing, why don't they say 'gold standard'? Look at the mottoes they carry in their parades and what do you find? 'Good money,' 'honest money,' 'sound money.' Why don't they say gold money? (Great applause.) Because they know that none of you have any gold (Great applause)."

"My friends, there are two things necessary for money, quality and quantity. It doesn't do you much good to have the quality if the quantity is absent, my friends. Suppose I am hungry and some one makes a speech to me and convinces me that a certain kind of food is the very best food in the world, and I should say, 'Where is it?' They would answer, 'Haven't got any' (Great applause). I will still be hungry, my friends, after I have heard the speech (Great applause). But if he is like the average advocate of the gold standard, after he describes this good food and has told me that he hasn't any, and I ask him what I am going to do about it, he says, 'Just have confidence that you have eaten it' (Great applause)."

"My friends, no matter how good you may think gold is, if there is not the gold to furnish the money to the people, it is not a good standard to have (Great applause). Now, my friends, isn't it strange that people can be deceived into loving a financial system that denies them the things which they are expected to worship? Isn't it strange that men will tell you that gold is the only good money and they couldn't find twenty dollars of it if it were necessary to save their lives? (Applause and laughter)."

"More than that. Our opponents are making contracts payable in gold, and are insisting upon the right to make contracts payable in gold. Suppose you do make your contracts payable in gold. Where are you going to get the gold to meet those contracts with? You go to the bank and ask them for gold and they will tell you they would be able to furnish it but that the silver craze is so near dead now that the agitation has driven it away (Great applause and laughter)."

"They bury the silver cause every few days (Laughter). There has never been a cause in this country that has been buried as often as the silver cause, and when you see it today you understand why it takes so long to get the gold to meet those contracts with? (Applause and laughter). They raise the silver cause from the grave every time they get alarmed about it."

"Go into one of the banks, where one of the gold bugs presides, and ask them what they think about the silver cause and they will tell you—dead, dead, entirely dead. They will say there is no danger. Every time there is a rise in prices they tell you the people have confidence and that it is dead. Ask them where the gold is. They will tell you it will come out again as soon as the agitation stops (Great applause)."

"If it were not so serious it would be very amusing. This idea of having a financial system based on a metal that runs the first time anybody says it is not good for money because there is not enough of it (Applause). If they really wanted to prove it was sufficient you would see more of it (Applause). But whenever you complain that there is not enough gold, then gold, as if it were alive, will get out of the way and prove that you are telling the truth."

"You can't build a house without a foundation, and you can't build a commercial system with a gold foundation when you haven't the gold."

"The money brokers fatten on their gold bonds and their Rothschild contracts. They protect the treasury from the raids of foreign financiers for a price and call it patriotism. If that is patriotism I had rather some other government had it. There is the kind of patriotism that saves the government every few months at so much a save."

"If we silverites have never done another thing we have protected the government since the campaign started without the cost of one cent. They didn't dare issue bonds. It wouldn't have done for the gold men to have had an issue of bonds, so they have kept the treasury reserve fund up, and they will keep it up till the end of the campaign and after that Cleveland will be compelled to make another bond issue."

NOMINATION SCARED THEM.
"If a mere nomination of a free silver man by three parties has been sufficient to so scare the great financiers, what will they do when the election day comes? (Voice in the crowd—'They'll drop dead!') (Great cheering.)"

"I have been making no promises of what I would do if I am elected; but I will say that I will have a secretary of the treasury who will not be dictated to by the money power, but one who will tell these fellows they must do, just as they have been telling the treasury what it must do. Think of my treasury being just as different from the present one as you can, and you will have it (Cheers)."

"The choice of metals for paying debts should belong equally to the debtor class as to the creditor class. It should belong to the government too. What right have the money lenders to dictate to the great debtor class the money they shall be paid in?"

"So far back as my political recollection runs I can remember but once before when a great party steps in and takes the platform of its rival, to which it was opposed in a former campaign, and says that if it is given the power it will continue this policy. This is what the Republicans have done."

"You hear a great deal about the silver dollar being ultimately redeemable in gold. Under bimetalism there is no swapping of one kind of dollar for another. They are each equally good."

"When the Sherman law was repealed the Republicans said they repealed it because it was driving all the gold out of the country. It enabled the European bankers to drain the country by an endless chain. But the gold went faster after the appeal of the OPPERDOM BREVITIES. Saturday, Oct. 31, will be registration day at Hancock.

The one-year-old son of Joseph Olski of Calumet died Tuesday. Funeral this morning. Mr. and Mrs. David Cavan of Atlantic returned yesterday from a two weeks trip to Chicago.

The four-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Oliver of Hancock died Monday night. The funeral was held from St. Joseph's church yesterday morning.

W. D. Condon, for a number of years secretary and treasurer of the Sturgeon River Lumber company, has resigned his position and has been succeeded by John M. Wagner of Hancock.

A vote for presidential favorites has been taken among the employees of the Lake Superior Smelting works, resulting as follows: At Hancock, McKinley, 49; Bryan, 39; Palmer, 23. At Dollar Bay, McKinley, 57; Bryan, 16; Palmer, 2.

Final arrangements have been completed for the fair to be given by the Sacred Heart church of Calumet, opening tomorrow evening. The real interest in the fair centers in the voting contest for a handsome gold watch, the contestants being the Misses Schwartz and Lynch.

Since his defeat of Boone in the five-mile bicycle race at Calumet last Saturday, the friends of Leary, as well as those of Boone, are anxious for another race in which no handicap is to be allowed. Leary's work on Saturday was far ahead of that in any of his former contests and in a scratch race with the Montana champion there are many who think he would win. It is expected a match will be arranged between these riders before long.

John Biscomb, agent of the Hancock & Calumet railway at Dollar Bay, was arrested Tuesday morning on a charge of assault on complaint of Maud Vezina of Lake Linden, who claims he took improper liberties with her. Mr. Biscomb stands well in the community and his friends and superior officers are loath to believe him guilty of the charge. The case is set for Saturday morning before Justice Brule of Lake Linden. Larson & Le Gendre of Calumet will defend Biscomb.

COLLECTING FADS. The Horrible Custom of Getting Belles of Murderers. A foreign paper is responsible for the statement that the late Lord Randolph Churchill had a choice private collection of teeth of noted criminals to which he was constantly adding up to a short time before his death, says Temple Bar. The competition for the Deemling relics at the Antipodes is too recent and too revolting to be enlarged upon, but it may be mentioned that the ax and knife with which this unmitigated villain murdered his victim fetched $4 15s, and the spade with which he dug her grave brought a guinea. His clothing was eagerly competed for, even down to half a dozen pairs of patched socks. Indeed, the collectors of "criminal" curios are extremely numerous all over the world, and these mementoes range from Tyburn halters to pipes which murderers have smoked and pots which famous thieves have tossed in honor of past and future triumphs.

It has remained for a Nebraska collector to gather locks of hair shaved from the heads of noted criminals when they enter the penitentiary and these he labels and indexes with great care. Superstition sometimes accounts for the fancy prices offered for such ghastly relics. Frenchmen obtain them as charms against ill-luck. A piece of a hangman's rope is considered a potent spell against evil in some parts of France. As criminals are there guillotined such ropes are difficult to get and so fetch high prices. They are sometimes mounted in gold and worn in lockets.

HE SAT ON THE BABY.

A New York Lawyer Forgot That He Was a Proud Papa. Mr. D— is an extensive real estate owner in one of the suburbs of New York, says the New York Times. He is also an insurance agent and a general adviser on matters of law and equity and, in addition to all this, he is the proud father of a three-weeks-old baby. The other day Mrs. D— took the little treasure into the parlor and, after a half hour's cooling, lulled it to sleep. Then she laid the child on a sofa with a pillow at its feet, darkened the room and went about her household duties, just as any good housewife would. All this time Mr. D— was busy in the garden. Presently a neighbor happened along and stopped for Mr. D—'s opinion on a law matter and was invited into the darkened parlor. The visitor went straight for the sofa. He could see the pillow, but did not observe the child. He was adjusting the pillow to make a nice comfortable seat, but Mr. D— insisted that he should sit in the big arm-chair, a sort of seat of honor for all guests. He acquiesced and Mr. D— took his seat on the pillow.

About this time Mrs. D—, whose maternal instinct had asserted itself, peeped in to see how baby slept. She saw her husband sitting where she had left the child. As she asked in an alarmed tone where the baby was a muffled cry came from beneath the pillow and Mr. D— jumped up. He had been sitting on the precious little thing and the timely arrival of his wife properly saved the child's life. A few moments more and it would have been suffocated. "Lucky for the child that I did not sit on it," remarked the visitor, who is a man of generous proportions. The child is all right now, but Mr. D— does not take his clients into the parlor any more.

OLDEST KNOWN BIRD.

Prof. F. G. Seeley Tells of It in a Recent Publication. "The Solenhofen slate of Bavaria," writes Prof. F. G. Seeley in his recent little volume, "The Story of the Earth in Past Ages," "makes known numerous insects and other forms of terrestrial life of this period, including the oldest known bird. "A bird is known by its feathers; though there is no reason why the covering to the skin should not be as variable in this group of animals as among reptiles or mammals. It is, therefore, remarkable that the oldest-known bird, the Archaeopteryx, has feathers as well developed as in the existing representatives of the class and similarly arranged. The animal is an elegant, slender bird, which is chiefly remarkable for showing teeth in the jaws. About 12, short and conical, occur on each side of the upper jaw. "The bird was larger than the robin in its body and had a tail of which there was a bony core some six inches in length. The wings were quite as well developed as the legs and there are some evidences that the former could be applied to the ground as are the fore legs of quadrupeds, although the feathers show the wings to have been constructed on the same plan as the birds of to-day. "The Solenhofen stone, in which so many of the remains of fishes, reptiles and insects are found, is the same as that used for lithographic purposes, being of exceeding close texture and of remarkable smoothness when prepared for its work."

SHE SAVED HERSELF.

And Broke the Impact of That Wild and Rushing Cyclist. A lady protected herself against the rushing advance of a cyclist in Brompton road, London, in an original and commendable fashion, says the London Telegraph. The cyclist was rushing along at his best pace and the lady was crossing the roadway. Instead of making a detour to avoid her, the man simply rung his bell and rushed on without abatement of speed, considering that he had done his duty to society. Pedestrians on the footpath and busmen on their perches saw that a collision was inevitable. So did the lady, who braced herself for the ordeal and resolved on offensive tactics. Giving her body—not by any means that of a pigmy—a rapid swing, she brought the stronger part of her figure into contact with the front wheel of the machine and the bicyclist himself and sent them both sprawling into the roadway. Then, giving her skirts another swing, just to prove that she had suffered no damage, she finished her journey across the road and turned around and laughed with others at the unhappy cyclist as he picked up himself and the disjecta membra of his once perfect machine. He made his way to the curbstone, where he sat down to contemplate the damage, and finally put the thing on his shoulder and carried it away.

The Basin Diskboat.

The new disk steamship, the invention of M. Bazin, was launched at St. Denis dockyard. Admiral Coumbaud, who has a high reputation among French naval authorities, is said to be a firm believer in the possibilities of this new invention, and he has computed that only one-twenty-eighth of the power required to drive an ordinary boat is needed for a Bazin craft of the same size and speed. The diskboat of M. Bazin is by no means the first attempt to apply the roller principle to navigation, but heretofore the rollers have been made to perform the duty of paddle-wheels, or propellers; in the new boat they are merely devices to overcome friction, and the report of M. Bazin's experiments indicates that he has been markedly successful.

Child Marriages in India.

In India there are 100,000 boys and 627,000 girls under the age of 14 who are legally married, while 8,600 boys and 24,000 girls who have not attained the age of four are under marriage bands as arranged by their parents.

MORE WORK IS OUR NEED.

McKinley Makes a Strong Plea for the Restoration of a Protective Tariff.

OPEN AMERICAN MILLS TO AMERICAN LABOR.

Says That Policy and Honest Currency Will Bring Back Prosperity to the Land—No Shifting Dollars Wanted.

TALKED TO MANY CALLERS.

CANTON, O., Oct. 14.—A special train arrived about noon with an enthusiastic party from McDonald, Pa. The delegation was composed largely of railroad men and farmers. Major McKinley's address to them was constantly applauded. The nominee said he was glad to welcome them "as valuable allies in the great contest in which we are engaged for public honor, public morals, good currency and a protective policy that shall preserve the interests of the American people."

A delegation from Cumberland, Md., followed. Mr. McKinley made a strong plea for a protective tariff, and said: "Having restored that policy, which can only be done by your votes connecting with the votes of your fellow countrymen, let it be recorded by the same vote that the people of this country are in favor of honest dollars with which to measure our exchanges, and not shifting dollars, the value of which is to be ascertained by consulting the market reports in the daily newspapers. When you perform a good, honest day's work you want to be paid in good, honest dollars. You want to be paid in staying dollars, good not only when you receive them but good for all the time, because they rest upon an inextinguishable and inherent value, recognized the world over."

Seven carloads of employees of the Cleveland City Street Railway company this afternoon paid their respects to Major McKinley. In the course of his address, Mr. McKinley said: "Of the things that we will settle three weeks from today is that this is a government under law and by law, and that this is a government of honor and integrity; that it would spurn to repudiate any of its obligations, public or private; that it would spurn to establish a currency that was not good and sound in all commercial transactions in every part of the world."

"Then we will settle another thing this year, and that is whether we are to continue the policy of tariff reform, or free trade, in the United States or whether we will discontinue it. We have had nearly four years of experience under it and we know something of its results. We have had nearly four years of unprecedented business depression, the hardest times within the recollection of men who stand about me today. "Now I believe the policy ought to be reversed. I think we ought to go back to a protective policy, under which the people have always been prosperous and the homes of American citizens happy and the treasury of the United States instead of being deficient has had a surplus and plenty of money to meet all its daily expenses."

STATEMENT WAS PREMATURE.

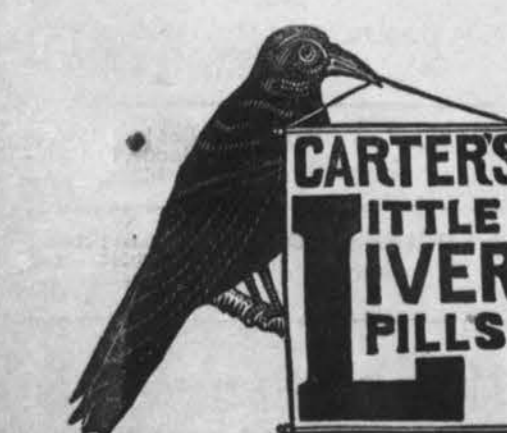

No Decision Yet Reached by the Venezuelan Commission.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Secretary Prevoist of the Venezuelan boundary commission today authorized the following: "The statement that the commission has come to a decision sustaining the claims of Venezuela in the boundary dispute between that country and Great Britain is without foundation. The commission is not yet in possession of all the facts necessary to form a definite judgment and will not be until the return of Professor Barr from Europe about the end of this month."

A BARROOM BRAWL.

It Results in Killing of Three and Wounding of Two Men.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 14.—Three men are dead and two seriously wounded as a result of a barroom brawl today. J. A. White and his nineteen-year old son murdered two policemen and wounded two other men who attempted to arrest them. The murdered officers were Richard M. Adams and William Jackson. White became involved in a quarrel in the barroom and Adams and Mayfield summoned him to appear on a charge of disorderly conduct. White and son, armed with rifles, shot down the officers on the street. Policeman Roberts went to White's house and as he stepped inside was fatally wounded by a ball from White's gun. The entire police force and a large number of armed citizens then went to arrest the Whites. A shot from the house wounded one of the party. Then six officers broke down the doors. As they sprang in White fired, wounding Sergeant Pickett. White attempted to break out, but half a dozen bullets were put through his body. His son escaped to the Alabama side of the river, pursued by a posse.

than before. They want the treasury notes and greenbacks withdrawn from circulation, and say that if this is done the endless chain will cease to work and the drain on the country stop. The trouble, I tell you, is not with the money. It is in the bond issuing government. "Supposing you do retire the treasury notes. They'll present the silver dollars and get them paid in gold, and you'll have another endless chain established. Then you have nothing in the country but a handful of gold, and the bank notes which the financiers have power to contract and expand at will. What will be our condition then? There will be only one thing for the people to do. Bend their backs a little lower."

"It has come to such a pass now that one who dares raise his voice against the money power is called an ignoramus, and if that doesn't silence him he is called an anarchist. If the banks were able to do it it would be made a penal offense for anyone to criticize the money power. "Republican voters of the upper peninsula. I want you to think about it. Shall the country have a financial system of her own or shall she continue under the present system of the London financiers? For it is London clear back of all. Back of your local banker stands the Wall street financier, and back of him are the great financiers of London. When your banker tells you you must vote for gold or have your store closed tell him he has received his orders either directly or indirectly from London."

"Jefferson said that banks of issue were more dangerous than standing armies, but the banks of today say that money making is a function of the banks and the government ought to go out of the business of making money. The banks ought to go out of the governing business!"

FOUND HIM DEAD IN BED.

Ex-Senator Ferry Expires from Paralysis at Grand Haven. GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Oct. 14.—Ex-United States Senator Thomas W. Ferry died last night suddenly from paralysis. Mr. Ferry had been in splendid health, except attacks of sudden dizziness, until three days ago, when he took to his bed. Last night the family sat up with him a short time when he seemed to be asleep. This morning they found him dead.

ARRESTED FOR INTIMIDATION.

A St. Louis Merchant Who Discharged Free Silver Clerks. ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of the senior member of the firm of D. Crawford & Co., leading drygoods merchants, on the charge of intimidation in discharging twelve clerks because they announced their intention to vote for Bryan and free silver.

The Postal Revenues.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The annual report of the third assistant postmaster general for the past fiscal year shows the total expenditures for the year were $90,626,296 and the receipts $82,499,208, leaving a deficiency of $8,127,088, or a reduction of $1,679,958 less than the preceding year. The expenditures do not include the cost of carrying mails over subsidized Pacific railroads, $1,500,000.

Lowered Four Records.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Michael, the Welsh rider, took four world's bicycle records at Garfield Park this afternoon in a practice spin of five and one half miles. He lowered consecutively the two, three, four and five-mile marks. He made two miles in 3:35, three miles in 5:29 4-5, four miles in 7:35 and five miles in 9:17 1-5.

A Train Hold-Up in Utah.

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 14.—Last night near Uintah the east bound passenger train on the Union Pacific was held up by robbers. They broke open the express and mail cars, but failed to open the safe, however, and all they secured was a few sacks of mail. The passengers were not interfered with.

Forecast of the Weather.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—10 p. m.—The weather bureau reports the following as its forecast for the next twenty-four hours: For upper Michigan: Fair, followed by local showers during night; fresh and brisk winds, shifting to northwesterly; cooler in western portion.

Republicans Endorse Breckinridge.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 14.—The Seventh district Republican convention today nominated W. C. P. Breckinridge as that party's candidate for congress. Colonel Breckinridge has already been nominated by the "National" Democrats.

His Creditors Mourn.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 14.—Advisers from Juneau, Wis., state the liabilities of W. T. Rambusch, banker and financial agent, who disappeared Saturday and for whom a warrant has been issued, will amount to $200,000. An investigation of his accounts is now being made.

Murder and Suicide.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Harry Sollars of Cripple Creek shot and fatally injured Cleo Russel and then committed suicide tonight. The circumstances indicate the pair agreed tragically to end their troubles together. Sollars left a check for $500 for the funeral expenses.

Duluth Bank Fails.

DULUTH, Oct. 14.—The Marine National bank has suspended. Inability to make collections rapidly enough to meet withdrawals is the cause given. There is no statement of the assets and liabilities. The bank has a capital of $250,000.

Married on the Stage.

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—Miss Eloise Mortimer, prima donna of the Wilbur Opera company, was married tonight to Louis F. Schmidt of Rochester, N. Y., on the stage at the conclusion of tonight's performance.

people. We use more money than any other country. "But we won't have to take all the silver of the world if we adopt free coinage. We must only coin what can't be taken by other nations. The silver countries must still buy silver for their coins, and the gold countries, too, must buy silver for their subsidiary coinage. "I am frequently asked, 'Isn't it possible to have an enormous increase in the production of silver?' I answer yes, it is possible. Silver could be sold for a cent an ounce. It is possible such a gold mine might be found in, but it is not probable in either case. "Every time we have a shower it is possible it may never stop, but drouth stricken people still continue to pray for rain and chance it. They chance it for in the last six thousand years there has been but one flood, and in all history there has never been too much money, so you see there is one chance more of a flood than a flood of silver. The dark ages came from a scarcity of money. No nation ever suffered from too much. "Even if there were danger of a flood sometime in the future I don't believe in people having too little now to avoid the danger of sometime having too much. If my children are alive when this crisis comes I trust they will at least have the intelligence I have, for I have always been able to take care of all that came my way."

POOR PROPHETS THESE.

"The gold standard advocates never yet have made a prophecy that has come true. They have told you that the legislation they were passing would hurt them, they could see it, but they were willing to endure it because it would benefit you. But it has always turned out that it has hurt the others and helped the men who made the laws. Let's give them free coinage on the same principle. They say that free silver would be good for them, but bad for the people. They have been sacrificing for twenty years, if we can believe what they say, for our benefit. Now, isn't it about time that we were doing something for them? Let us take them at their word and give them free coinage. I am always suspicious of a man who wants to give another man something the other man doesn't want, because it is good for him, and when the man who don't want it, insists in cramming it down his throat anyhow."

JUST LIKE A B. C.

"The money question is not complicated. Why is it that an advocate of free coinage will always admit that there is good in it for him, while the gold man thinks it is good for him too, but will hurt somebody else. The farmer wants free silver because he thinks it will increase his prices. The laborer wants free silver because he thinks his wages will go up. The gold standard makes it harder to get a job because it is more profitable to hoard the money than to invest it in business enterprises. The eastern financier says he wants the gold standard because it will be good for somebody else. When the farmer gets a dollar will it be a good one, when he gets it. Then he draws himself up to his full moral height and says, 'I will ram the gold standard down their throats because I am too good to stand by and see them injure themselves.' The speaker paused here as if he were going to take his seat, but cried like a fox in a trap, 'Go on!' urged him to continue a few minutes longer. Continuing, he said: "My day has been well spent. I think I have earned the right to be called a laboring man in this campaign if never before. I never knew before what a great consolation there was in the song, 'You Can't Keep the Workingman Down.' "I want the people to think. I don't expect they will think altogether disinterestedly. It will be good deal like an election in a town down in Illinois where I once lived. It was a very exciting election. The issue was on cows running at large. You could go along the street and hear arguments on either side. If you heard a man say that he favored having the cows run in the streets because they ate the grass which would otherwise go to waste you could set him down as a cow owner. If you heard another man saying that it was a shame that they were allowed to run at large because they got in yards and gardens and ate up things you could set him down as not owning a cow. And so when they came to vote they were pretty evenly divided according as they owned cows or not. A man's judgment may be likewise influenced on the big financial issue."

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLE FORGOTTEN.

"It seems strange that those who uphold the gold standard should leave their inlets at home every time they start to argue on the question. They seem to forget that the fundamental principle underlying money is that a dollar's value is dependent on nothing else but the scarcity of them. "They tell you now since 1873 till 1890 silver has increased three times as fast as gold, but they do not tell you that in the last five years more gold than silver has been produced. "They tell you silver is falling in price because of over-production, that price is governed by supply and demand, that legislation cannot affect it. India closed her mints. Silver immediately fell. Was that over-production? That was a clear case of legislation effecting the price of silver. Immediately following the passing of the Sherman law silver rose to $1.21 an ounce. Harrison's secretary of agriculture, Secretary Rusk, pointed out in his report the improvement noticeable in prices after the passage of the Sherman bill, and predicted better times because of it. Harrison too predicted better times. Harrison too predicted better times, and said that the prosperity we were then enjoying was not due to the McKinley law but to the purchase of silver under the Sherman act. "We have free coinage of gold. We want free coinage of silver. We want equal rights to the holders of both metals. Our mints are open to the coinage of gold. It can be brought from all over the world, coined and spent among us. The fifty-three-cent dollar they are trying to put in circulation is worth a dollar. That is the value of the bullion market value, not the price it would get to if the mints were opened to it. I will illustrate. Suppose a farmer figures in the fall that he will have about so many pounds of butter during the week all winter. He looks around the town and he gets a number of customers, enough to take what he thinks he will have, and sells it at a contract price of twenty-five cents. In the spring he finds he has a good deal more butter than he thought he was going to be able to sell, and he takes it to the grocers and sells it for what it is worth. He gets fifteen cents. Now is that the real worth of that butter to the people who want to use it on our tables? That is just the condition of silver today. "This campaign some merchants have been sending down in Mexico and giving away Mexican dollars to their customers with purchases to give them an object lesson of how we would be fixed under free silver. They tell you that Mexico is a free silver country with a fifty cent dollar, and they tell you that the Mexican dollar is not received by the government in payment of all taxes and dues as the United States dollar is. You can't get rid of them till you can find a merchant who has gone into the business of teaching school. Under bimetalism they would have no time to fool with Mexican dollars. "If there is any man who puts this country up beside Mexico and he says because Mexico can't keep her silver at par we can't I am not sure but that I want him to vote the Republican ticket. But no, I'll take that back. There is still a loop hole for him. Perhaps he is willing to admit that the United States and Mexico can do what Mexico alone had failed to do. Mexico cannot take all the surplus silver because she is not big enough. This country is ten times the size of Mexico. We are seventy millions of enterprising, industrious spending

CHICAGO MARKETS.
CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Wheat was active within a 1/2c range, closing a shade above the lowest and 1/2c lower than yesterday. The market was strong early on strong London and Berlin cables, large sales of flour at Minneapolis, good exports at the seaboard and reported sales of six cargoes for Australia at San Francisco; it declined on lower Liverpool cables, free selling by commission houses supposed to be acting for a prominent trader, heavy local realizing, small cash demand and free offerings in Kansas.
Corn was heavy in trade, within a 1c range, closing 1/2c above the lowest and 1/2c lower than yesterday. Favorable weather, heavy receipts and the weakness of wheat was the cause of the decline.
Oats were active within a 1/2c range, closing 1/2c above the lowest and 1/2c lower than yesterday.
The leading grain futures ranged as follows:
Wheat: Dec. 70 3/4, 71, 69 1/4, 69 3/4
Corn: May 28 3/4, 28 3/4, 27 3/4, 28

On the produce exchange the butter market was firm; creamery, 12 1/2c; dairy, 11 1/2c; eggs, 15 1/2c.
NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The stock market was more active today, especially in the industrial group. Manipulation was again the distinct feature of the operations. The exchange market developed further. Lackawanna rose 3/4c. Cotton and Oil (preferred) 1/2c, and Metropolitan Traction & Tobacco slumped to 7 1/2c on a drive by bears. The bulls retained control of the market until early in the afternoon and worked Sugar up to 109 and St. Paul 7 1/2. Other shares displayed net gains of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 per cent. In the last hour an advance in call money rates to 10 per cent, precipitated heavy selling all around, which caused the loss of most of the early gains.

DESJARDIN'S PHARMACY, THIRD STREET, between Arch and Michigan. (4-25-47)

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble. When men meet, the greeting usually is 'Well how are you?' That develops health talk. The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity. Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They work as if their bodies were made of iron and their brains of steel. They eat as if they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by, overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles, health goes and strength goes. It is really wonderful how much abuse the human body will stand! It is equally wonderful how quickly it will recover from abuse if one helps in a rational, natural way.

It was to give just such help that Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets were prepared. They are for constipation and torpid liver, and in curing those derangements cure many complications and resultant diseases, such as sick and bilious headache, indigestion, sour stomach, loss of appetite, dizziness, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, 'heartburn,' pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. They are mild in action—merely supplementing nature. They are the result of years of study and experience, and there is nothing else like them—nothing so effective. If your druggist tries to sell you something else he is either ignorant or makes more money out of the other thing.

A MISSED KISS.

The Reason Why Two Ambassadors Lost Their Places. Two ambassadors have lost their places through their failure to take advantage afforded them to kiss the hand of the czarina, says the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. Count Montebello, the French ambassador, lost his place. It is not made known whether he only obeyed orders or not, but he had to suffer the penalty. It was very unfortunate for him that when the French people through their government had undertaken to show their friendship for Russia by a most lavish display of ostentatious ceremony and the expenditure of many millions of dollars the entire effect should be lost by the failure of the chief functionary to press his lips to the imperial hand.

The other ambassador who lost his position is Prince Radalin, the representative at the Russian court of the German empire. No reason is given for his omission to observe a customary act of homage. He had not the excuse of being the minister from a republic. He represented a court where such ceremonies are strictly observed and an imperial master who is as strict in requiring observance of court etiquette as the Russian emperor. These punishments should be a warning to all men never to lose a favorable opportunity to kiss a lady's hand. Many a man has lived to regret that he has not seized a suitable occasion to snatch a kiss; there seems to be more danger in being too remiss than in being too bold. Where the danger lies and how great it will be either in abstaining or acting is a matter for individual judgment. But it is sometimes worth risking, it would seem.

Coffee in 1708. It is recorded in a "New View of London," published in 1708, that "one James Fair, a barber, who kept the house (which is now the Rainbow) by the Inner Temple Gate, one of the oldest in England, was in the year 1657 presented by the Inquest of St. Dunstan's for marking and selling a sort of liquor called coffee, to the great nuisance and prejudice of the neighborhood." And who (adds the author) could then have thought London would ever have 3,000 such nuisances, and that coffee would have been, as now, so much drunk by the first quality and physicians?—Chicago Inter Ocean.

—Workmen putting in a telephone at Springfield, Mo., accidentally made a connection with the fire-alarm wires, and when they tested the instrument the department was called out and the firemen were unable to tell what the trouble was.

—Unusual facilities for matrimony are offered at Americus, Ga. Justice Graham, while walking on the street one evening, was approached by a negro man and woman who asked to be united, and he joined them in the solemn bonds then and there.

—A gray wolf was killed recently at Cave Hills, Wyo. The creature is said to have measured five feet eight inches from the tip of the nose to the top of the head, and was 34 inches high. From the point of the nose to the tip of the head was 12 inches, and the hide and head bone weighed 20 pounds.

—A Georgia man who lives in Cochran catches alligators in a novel way. He ties a rope around his foot and lets a man stand on the bank and hold the rope while he goes down into the 'gator's hole and catches one by the tail. When he gets his hold he gives a kick and the man on the bank pulls him up and he pulls the 'gator up.

—The largest permanent store of coined money in the world is in the imperial war treasury of Germany—a portion saved for emergencies from the $200,000,000 paid by France after the Franco-Prussian war, and locked up in the Julius tower of the fortress of Spandau. It amounts to the value of $80,000,000.

—England's five new battle ships, the contracts for which were recently given out, are to be called after famous old war ships: The Canopus and Goliath, which fought with Nelson at the Nile; the Ocean, Collingwood's flagship in the Mediterranean; the Glory, which shared in Lord Howe's victory, and the Albion, which fought at Algiers and at Navarino.—Military Gazette.

—Cincinnati has consolidated her street car lines and claims that she is going to have the finest street railway system in the world. The company will be required to make improvements which will cost $2,500,000 during the next 18 months. The revenue to the city from the company will be $175,000 a year. All light cars, free transfers, illuminated signs, lower steps and other improvements are guaranteed. The list of routes occupies 2 1/2 pages in the Cincinnati Enquirer.

ANTARCTIC POSSIBILITIES.

Borchgrevink Dreams of a Future for Commerce in the Ice Land.

The recent Antarctic expedition was a commercial one, and commercially it was a failure, because we did not find the right whale so valuable for its whalebone. The Antarctic was fitted out for the hunt of that peculiar kind of whale. Nevertheless, I have no doubt that the commercial results of the expedition would have been much better had we worked under more favorable auspices.

I do not by any means consider the fact of our not having met with the right whale in these seas as conclusive proof of their non-existence in the bay at Victoria Land. The Antarctic found the right whales at Campbell island in the winter time; the boats fastened to five of them, of which, however, only one was caught. Now to me it does not seem improbable that these whales go south to the bay at Victoria land, where Rose saw them in the summer, and return north in the winter. It would seem incredible that a man of Sir James Ross's standing, supported as he was by the able scientists and experienced whalers, should have made a grave error when he said this valuable whale was to be found in large numbers in those latitudes.

The difference in the appearance of the blue whale, as we found it there, and the right whale in the method of spouting is so striking that even the most casual observer could not easily be deceived. Very possibly, had we penetrated further into the large, open bay, discovered by Ross in the vicinity of the volcano peaks, Erebus and Terror, we, too, would have found the right whale in great numbers. We saw many blue whales, but had not the appliances to take them.

As I remarked at the international geographical congress, we found few seals. They increased in number, however, in number as we worked eastward; they seemed afraid of the land. All the seals that we met on the shore showed much uneasiness and speedily made for the water, a fact which strengthened my belief in the existence in a large enemy of the seal on the continent. I do not doubt that the seals congregate together in large numbers at some places on the bay.

I consider the guano beds which we discovered of great commercial importance, and they ought to be well worth the attention of enterprising business men. The specimen which I brought back with me contains a large percentage of ammonia.

Furthermore, from the analysis of the specimen of rock which I brought back with me, the possible and probable presence of valuable minerals on the continent is proved, although the lava and volcanic extent of the coast line do not speak favorably for the presence of heavy metals near the surface.—Century.

Ishpeming and Vicinity.

GREAT CROWD GREETED HIM.

Candidate Bryan Given an Enthusiastic Reception in Ishpeming.

There were very few Ishpeming people who did not turn out last evening in honor of William Jennings Bryan. Fully an hour before Mr. Bryan arrived people began to congregate about the streets. Among those who came early to get desirable seats at the hotel were several leading Republicans. They were as anxious as any silverite in the city to see and hear Mr. Bryan. At 6:10 he was almost impossible to find standing room on the Nelson House veranda or even on the street directly opposite the hotel. The store windows, roofs of the buildings and all available space within the sound of the speaker's voice were occupied. Mr. Bryan was enthusiastically cheered on his arrival and his speech was received with great enthusiasm.

In order that Mr. Bryan might not speak in the dark, the electric light company strung a line of arc lamps in front of the Nelson House, from the veranda of which he spoke. The illumination was such that the place was nearly as bright as day. All the flags were hoisted from the public buildings of the city, also from the big pole near the Nelson House in honor of the visit of the silver champion. A brass band escorted the party from the train to the hotel.

Matrimonial Events.

Mr. William Nichols and Miss Ceina Murray, two well known and popular young people of Ishpeming, were united in marriage last evening at St. John's church parsonage. Rev. J. M. Langan, the pastor, officiating. At the conclusion of the ceremony the happy couple and a number of their most intimate friends repaired to the home of the bride's parents on West Johnston street, where a reception was held. The young couple will begin housekeeping at once.

Mr. Samuel Berryman and Miss Mary E. Harris will be married this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed at the residence of the bride's parents on East Ridge street by Rev. C. W. Clemon, pastor of the Division Street Methodist church. A number of friends of the contracting parties have been invited to attend the ceremony and also the reception following it.

The Night School.

The night school which will be conducted at the Ishpeming High school building for the next twenty weeks under the direction of Professor Hardy opened up Tuesday evening with nearly 100 young men and women enrolled. The list will undoubtedly be considerably increased within the next couple of weeks, and the school promises to be a great success. Bookkeeping, penmanship, reading, industrial art, stenography, arithmetic, civil government and such other studies as may be desired will be taught the pupils. The school sessions will be from 7 to 9:30 o'clock on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of each week. Nearly all of those attending the school work during the day.

A Busy Place.

The clerks at F. Braastad & Co.'s dry goods and clothing departments have been kept very busy the past week in unpacking and marking the new goods which have been arriving daily. The counters and shelves are now literally filled with new goods and still the stocks are coming in. The firm has never before put in such a complete line of goods as this fall. The latest styles in clothing, furnishings and cloaks are included in the line. The cloak stock has never been as complete or large as this season. The firm is offering special bargains in cloaks, capes and jackets.

Football Saturday.

The Ishpeming high school football team will meet a picked eleven from Negaunee Saturday afternoon at Union Park. While the Negaunee team has not had a great deal of practice, having organized less than a week ago, it is certain that they will play a strong game. The team is made up of as good material as can be found in the upper peninsula and the players will enter the contest with a determination to win if possible. The game will be called at 3:30. The admission will be twenty-five cents for adults and fifteen for children.

Will Appeal the Case.

The jury in the case of The People vs. William Hoar yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of guilty, and recommended that he be fined $1 and the costs of court. The charge against Hoar was assault, preferred by William Coad. Justice Roberts thought the time was insufficient and added $24 to the amount. Mr. Hoar refused to pay the fine and announced that he would appeal the case to the supreme court. The trial attracted considerable attention, the court room being crowded with spectators.

Miner Injured.

James Rafferty, a miner employed at the Cleveland Lake shaft mine, fell about twenty feet Monday night and received injuries which will keep him from working for a short time. He was putting some lagging in place when a chunk of dirt came down and knocked him off the scaffold on which he was standing. Rafferty was quite severely shaken up by the fall.

Church Bazaar.

The members of the Swedish Lutheran church society are making extensive preparations for the bazaar which they propose holding next week at the Young People's society hall. The bazaar will open Monday afternoon and will continue every afternoon and evening for the four succeeding days. Business men and others have donated articles, which will be sold at reasonable prices. A fine collection of fancy, ornamental and useful things will also be on sale.

During the four evenings of the bazaar a musical entertainment will be given. The program will be changed each evening and will consist of eight or ten members. An admission of ten cents for adults and five cents for children will be charged each evening. The ladies will serve refreshments to all desiring them.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

Treasurer Fay of the Lake Superior Iron company arrived in the city yesterday.

G. R. Watts, the piano tuner, is in Ishpeming today at Girzi's jewelry store.

Fred Karinen and wife of Red Jacket arrived in the city yesterday on a brief visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ormsbee of Marquette returned home yesterday, after spending a couple of days with W. H. Johnston and family.

Mrs. Robert Bruchus of Escanaba, who has been in the city visiting relatives for the past four weeks, returned home yesterday.

Miss Nellie M. Mildon has gone to Ann Arbor and the east. She will be absent a few weeks, returning by way of Detroit and Chicago.

The fifty boys and girls comprising the chorus at the Ishpeming High school will attend the inspiration institute at Negaunee this evening.

The Cook Twin Sisters Uncle Tom's Cabin company will be here tonight. The parade, which will take place at noon, is a novel one and will worth seeing.

The seven-year-old son of Mr. Holberg of Fifth street, died Tuesday morning from diphtheria. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon. Another child of Mr. Holberg is ill with the same disease.

Postmaster O'Leary and Joe Weismiller of Hancock spent yesterday afternoon in the city. They came down to see and hear William J. Bryan. They left for Marquette on evening train.

PRIMITIVE WOMAN WAS NEW.

Indian Relics Prove That the First Potter Was a Woman.

The discovery near Maurice river, in the neighboring state of New Jersey, of large numbers of stone implements used by Indian or other tribes in the long-gone centuries brings into notice the primitive woman, says the New York Tribune. In New Jersey, as everywhere else in the world, she appears to have been industrious and energetic and ingenious. Among the implements discovered which she employed in prehistoric New Jersey were flint knives, with which she cut meat and probably vegetables; flint scrapers, with which she cleaned the skins of deer and bear, wildcat and other animals, preliminary to drying and smoking them for use as wearing apparel; clay pots and pans, pipkins and dishes, which she made in primitive potteries, at first the sun drying them and thereafter burning them in hot wood fires. The pottery shows here and there artistic yearnings on the part of the unknown makers, more uncouth and rudimentary than those of the ancient cliff-dwellers, but nevertheless they disclose the artistic sentiments and confirm the long list of examples collected by Prof. Mason, of Washington, showing that the first potter, the first modeler, the first sculptor and carver and the first artist was a woman.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. WASPS' NESTS.

How the Insects Proceed with Their Construction.

Social wasps have two principal modes of nidification. Either the combs are enveloped in a covering of simple leaves of generally slender paper, analogous to that which serves for the cells; or the covering is of cardboard, composed of only one layer of material, of a consistency at times extraordinarily thick and resisting, at others slight and supple.

The common paper-makers build in the open air, on trees or bushes, under the roofs of outbuildings, on a beam, or in some such situation; the construction corresponds with that of the ground wasps, but the texture of the foliaceous envelope, which is fabricated with perfect art, has all the appearance of shell-work. It incloses an infinity of cells arranged in many tiers. A nest is invariably built from above downward. The start is made by accumulating on the determined site a good supply of paper, forming it into an umbrella-like canopy. To the under side of this cap—the ceiling, so to speak—the first comb is attached, and the rest of the work consists in prolonging the canopy more or less in an egg-shape, and in establishing additional combs, free, as a rule, only pendent to columns of paper, which pass from the upper surface of each comb to the comb immediately above; entrances is obtained at the lower end. Toward the summit of the envelope is a thickened cellular mass, but this portion excepted, it is made up of a number of separate leaves or layers of paper, limited in size and imbricated, and in contact together merely at the points of imbrication, leaving large cellular spaces between the sheets; moreover, the points of fusion of two successive sheets never fall one over the other. Each sheet therefore lies on a stratum of air, with the result that the exterior layers may be soaked with rain without seeping in the least the ones beneath. Two wasps increase the size of the combs by cutting away the inner layers of the envelope, taking care to add layers externally so as to maintain, and even to slightly augment, the thickness of the walls, in proportion to the greater magnitude now assumed by the edifice.—L. N. Badenoch, in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

DESIGNED FOR SPEED.

Some of the Strange Ideas in Marine Construction.

A curious vessel was finished last June, and lay at a private wharf in Virginia for some time. She was named the Howard Cassard and nicknamed the "Razor-back." With a length of 22 feet, she had only 16 feet beam. Her equilibrium was maintained by an extremely heavy keel and some 80,000 pounds of machinery below the water-line. The razorlike sharpness of the boat gave it a curious look, and it was expected that when moving through the water the sharp prow would cut like a knife, thus reducing the resistance to a minimum. The narrowness of her beam necessitated some economy in her interior arrangements, but this was successfully overcome by adopting somewhat the idea of a sleeping-car. But the Howard Cassard was an experiment that evidently has not been successful, as the claim of the designer to cross the ocean in three-fifths of the time now required has as yet not been fulfilled by his odd craft.

Probably one of the strangest ideas in marine construction was that of the man who proposed placing in the stern of a vessel a number of compressed-air cannons. These were to be fired one after the other, the force of the air striking the water and driving the vessel forward. Somewhat similar is the idea of another engineer and inventor. It is to run a series of hollow pipes through the entire length of the keel. The pipes are to receive the water at the bow and carry it to the center of the vessel, where it is shut off. Then a powerful pressure of compressed air is brought into play, and the separated body of water is shot out of the pipe in the stern, the power of the contact driving the vessel forward. As the water is to be received and discharged alternately, there would be no jerking motion.—Harper's Round Table.

SPONGES.

The Past Dozen Years Have Brought a Great Reduction in Price.

There has been a great change in the price of sponges during the last dozen years, and a good-sized bathing sponge such as formerly cost five and six dollars, may now be purchased from $1.25 to $1.50. A very fair bathing sponge can be bought for 75 cents. A great many sponges come from the Mediterranean. Many of the ordinary sponges in our market are brought from Florida and the Bahamas. As everyone knows, the sponge is a low form of animal life. After the sponges are taken by harpooning or by dredging they are exposed to the air on the hot dry sand until the animal matter they contain is decomposed and only the skeleton, which composes the sponge of commerce remains. The sponges in this condition are ordinarily floated in iron cages until they become thoroughly clean before they are offered for sale. Physicians generally warn customers against buying the snowy-bleached sponges sold by peripatetic sidewalk vendors, because they are often collected from the refuse of hospitals and other places where they have been in use, and cleaned and bleached again for sale. A physician usually selects a rather dark sponge, that shows no signs of having been bleached. The finest silk sponges come from Turkey and the east, and are always costly. A sponge in use should always be wrung out and hung in the open air, where it will dry as quickly as possible after it has been in use. If a sponge is shut up in a tight box while it is still damp, it soon becomes foul in odor, and it cannot be cleaned without the use of chemicals that injure the texture.—N. Y. Ledger.

A LITTLE GAME OF HEARTS.

Trumps, However, Were Held by the One Least Expected. "Mercy, how tired and sleepy you look," said the girl in the sailor hat.

"I am tired," said the girl in the bicycle suit, "but I'm in such a rage that I couldn't go to sleep if my complexion was at stake."

"Fell off your wheel, perhaps?" said the girl in the sailor hat; "well, never mind your bruises if they don't show. Of course nobody would ever choose the time to have the measles or a fall, but I think my luck is worse than anybody's when it comes to—"

"Don't talk of luck," groaned the girl in the bicycle suit. "You know Marie and Clarence had a quarrel about a week ago, and he has been coming to see me twice a day ever since."

"Seems to me that is Marie's ill-luck if it's anybody's," said the girl in the sailor hat. "She's been paying you so many compliments that I know she is furiously jealous."

"I hope so. Well, he asked me yesterday if I wouldn't go for an early ride this morning. I hesitated at first, for I doubted if we'd meet anybody who would tell Marie."

"She isn't so friendless as all that," said the girl in the sailor hat. "Perhaps not. Well, I knew that I could let her know somehow, and it would be worth an hour or two of sleep to know how furious she would be, so I finally agreed to go with him."

"And did she find it out?" "She wouldn't have, but I told her myself when she came in to ask about a freckle lotion—said I'd be sure to know of one if anybody did."

"And what did she say about the ride?" "I said I'd go, but that I hated to wake her up so early. She insisted that she didn't mind that a bit, so I went, for I wanted to have her version of the quarrel."

"And did you?" "No, I didn't, and she was so nervous and absent-minded that it was only half fun to tell her the nice things Clarence had been saying to me of late."

"Oh, you told her, did you?" "I—I felt it was my duty. I was sorry afterwards, for she seemed so anxious for a clear morning as if she was going somewhere herself. She said she never could wake early, and I was so anxious lest I oversleep myself that I was awake nearly all night. Clarence and I were to start from the house at half-past seven, so I had to get up at six. Marie got up and made me some coffee—said she'd told her mother she was going to do it. Then she actually hurried me off, lest I keep Clarence waiting."

"I should have suspected a reason for such amiability myself," said the girl in the sailor hat. "Should you? Well, I didn't. Not only was Clarence nowhere in sight when I reached home, but I sat on the front steps for an hour without his putting in an appearance. Finally at half-past eight a messenger boy came along with a note for me."

"From Clarence, of course; he was late and—"

"It was not from Clarence; it was from Marie. It was written in a very shaky hand and it said: 'Dear Kate: Thank you so much for waking me this morning. Clarence and I made up yesterday just before I saw you and decided to take an early train for Milwaukee. I don't believe I'd have been ready in time but for you, and I'm sure I couldn't have gotten out without mamma knowing it if I hadn't had you as an excuse. Yours, lovingly, Marie.'"

A Brave Seaman.

A sailor, an Englishman, this time, has received the Albert medal for bravery. He was captain of a steamer which was wrecked in the Red sea. She began to sink, but another steamer hove in sight, and with great difficulty, owing to the darkness and the heavy sea, the passengers and crew were rescued.

The last boat to leave was loaded heavily, and a call was made for the captain, who, in such cases, is always the last to leave his ship. This time the captain refused to leave unless the boat would also take an injured and helpless fireman. The boat's officer claimed that there was no room, and as the wrecked steamer began to settle, the boat was pulled away. In a few minutes down went the ship, but to the surprise of everybody the heroic captain came to the surface, holding the fireman in his arms. Fifteen minutes elapsed before the rescuing boat could reach him, but eventually the captain and fireman were picked up.—Golden Days.

Common Sense.

In the midst of a stormy discussion a gentleman rose to settle the matter in dispute. Waving his hand majestically, he began: "Gentlemen, all I want is common sense."

"Exactly," interrupted another; "that is precisely what you do want." But Sir Edward Clarke's retort in the Jameson trial is still more to the purpose. The attorney-general had argued against Sir Edward Clarke's points as being contrary to common sense.

Sir Edward objected: "Then you think," said the lord chief justice, dryly, "that common sense has nothing to do with a legal point?" "No," replied Sir Edward, with that quickness and felicity which never fails him. "I am only of Archbishop Whately's opinion, who said that 'common sense is an authority to which everyone appeals on any subject he does not fully understand.'"—London Household Words.

"THE BOSS" DANDELION PULLER. Patented Oct. 8, 1895.

If the root of the dandelion will not be extracted it will grow again. The tool is introduced by the root and augur around the root of plant or weed, and when buried deep enough in the ground, by an upward spiral movement of the tool, the weed foliage and root will be removed without cutting the roots, thus effectually cleaning a lawn or other surface from any objectionable plant. The tool is strongly made of 5-16 crucible spring steel, nine inches long, in two sizes, 1/2 inch core for sandy soil, 3/8 inch core for heavy soil.

HATCH TROUT AND BASS.

Scheme to Give Huron Mountain Hunting and Fishing Club Fine Sport.

HATCHERIES WILL BE PUT IN NEXT SEASON.

Silverites Won an Easy Victory—Prout's Exploit at L'Anse-Kenton Ladies See Bryan and Are Made Happy.

WILL ESTABLISH HATCHERIES.

An effort to better the already fair fishing on the preserves of the Huron Mountain Shooting and Fishing club will be made next season. Hatcheries will be established for trout and bass.

J. M. Longyear has been making investigations in the hatcheries at the Soo and at Cascade Springs, the latter near Grand Rapids, and has returned convinced that that it will be an easy matter to establish the like for the club.

"I was surprised," he said, "at the simplicity of the hatcheries. There is almost no outlay at all save for labor. We expect to put in a plant that will hatch out half a million bass and half a million trout fry each season. Our plant will be a little more expensive than some, because our stream is so much larger. A little stream or brook is best. Where the stream is big it cannot all be used, part of it has to be fenced off.

In answer to the question how much help would be needed to operate his hatchery, he replied:

"One man ought to be able to attend to 500,000 of each trout and bass, with possibly a little extra help in the season for stripping the eggs from the trout."

"What you need for your outfit is a pond for your stock fish, smaller ponds adjoining with gravel bottom for spawning beds, and a trough to put the fry in till they are ready to plant."

"After the fish have spawned the eggs must be collected from the gravelly bottom of the pond with a small, special dip net, and transferred to the trough where the fry are kept till the food sac has been absorbed and they are ready for planting."

"The plan is to start the bass pond next spring, as that is their spawning time, and then the trout in the fall. We shall keep on hatching and planting fish year after year till we have the best fishing at the club to be found in the United States. We will see a difference, that is, a visible improvement in two years."

"I wish people in this county who have brooks on their lands would take up fish raising. There is nothing difficult about it. The only thing to learn is how to strip the trout, and the hatchery at the Soo will be glad to show anyone who comes there. The government tries to teach people to do things like fish hatching for themselves."

At the club another experiment for the benefit of sport is being tried, and is now in its second year of trial, with fair success. This is the raising of English pheasants. The club's success has been fair, but with a view to having better luck Mr. Sullivan has now gone east to look over several pheasant farms and get pointers on raising the birds.

Highschool Coinage Debate.

Silver got there over gold at the rate of sixteen to one or better in the debate held at the highschool yesterday afternoon. The contestants in the debate were chosen two each from the silver and gold clubs.

John Egan, president of the gold club, presided over and called the clubs to order at 3 p. m. The rules by which the debate was to be governed were then read.

The silverites were allowed the first speech, and Raoul W. Vannier, president of the silver club occupied the rostrum for five minutes. Leo Rose, leader of the gold faction followed him with a speech ten minutes long.

Frank Russell, colleague of the first silver speaker, followed in a fifteen minute address filled with facts and sarcasm. Adolph Carlson, second of the gold speakers, occupied the platform for fifteen minutes, attempting to reach by argument an opposite conclusion from the one who had preceded him.

Leo Rose used the second allotment of this time, five minutes, endeavoring to refute the points made by the silver speakers. He was followed by Raoul W. Vannier, who assayed a like role during the balance of his speaking time. He closed the debate.

For judges there were Hon. Peter White, Superintendent Anna M. Chandler and Miss Susie Heffernan. The political complexion of the judges board was yellow, but this did not prevent it from awarding the contest to the white metallists.

The silver club announces its intention to challenge the gold club again. This time the debate will be for girls. The rivalry between the two clubs is sharp and good natured.

Did Him Up.

Two Baragaites who were in town last evening to attend the Bryan demonstration tell the following tale of politics down that way:

Through a mistake there was a conflict of dates at L'Anse for Hon. Frank Plumley of Vermont and J. A. Prout, the Cornish cyclone. Mr. Prout was at Baraga the afternoon of the day he was to lecture at L'Anse. Hearing how the land lay he and the chairman of the Democratic committee extended a challenge to the Republicans to have Mr. Plumley meet Prout in joint debate. Plumley declined, for reasons surmised.

When the hour for the meeting came the Republican forces were first in the hall. Prout and his followers sat quietly in a body in the room till Mr. Plumley had finished his address. At the end of the meeting, say the Baragaites. At the close of the first address Mr. Prout took the platform and proceeded to tear Hon. Frank's argument into tattered shreds. Mr. Plumley didn't wait to witness the destruction of his fabric, but he and other Republicans left the hall. The balance of the audience sat through an hour and a half's speech from Prout.

Have You Registered?

The last of the month, the 31st, is the day for registration for the general election. Contrary to impression in certain quarters this is not an entirely new registration. Only first voters, those who have newly come into the state and town, and those who have changed wards, will be required to register. A general registration is required by the statute under which Marquette is chartered every four years, but it falls between the presidential campaigns. Connected with the official registration call of every ward, which is just being issued, is printed a list of the properly registered voters in every ward. Those whose names are not on the list, and who are entitled to a franchise, must register again. The places of registration in the various wards are as follows:

- First—Vandenberg building, Champion street.
- Second—City building on Spring street.
- Third—Hodgkin's livery.
- Fourth—City Hall.
- Fifth—Mrs. Gregory's building, 439 Washington street.
- Sixth—Martin Board's store, Third street.
- Seventh—John Q. Lewis' office, third and Magnetic.
- Eighth—Howard Moore's building.

Will Sing in Marquette.

A musical affair that will no doubt create great interest will be the appearance here of Miss Rebecca McKenzie, Tuesday, Oct. 27, at the Presbyterian church. This young brilliant soprano will sing at Montreal, Canada, Friday, Oct. 30, in the annual Caledonian concert and is on her way there. Professor Muhlbaur has induced her to stop over for one night. Few singers have in so remarkably short time made the brilliant success that she has done. Unknown and unheralded she entered into the professional world in October, 1895, at the head of her concert company, and soon won herself a name through her magnificent voice and artistic singing. Instead of making a tour of ten weeks, as originally intended, it became a tour of ten months, extending to the Pacific coast, appearing in several cities as often as four times in a few months, creating everywhere great enthusiasm, and it can with full justice be said that there is only one opinion regarding her voice, and that is: "One of the most beautiful and sympathetic voices ever listened to." During her short but brilliant career she has sang in opera, oratorio and concert with equal success.

They Saw Bryan.

Mesdames J. L. Stambaugh and Harriette Mings of Kenton, accompanied by their pastor, Rev. W. Poyssier of the Congregational church, came to the city last evening to hear and see Bryan and get pointers for a "Political Candidate Social" which the ladies are planning to give in their church next Friday evening. On the way down they took a straw vote, selling ballots on the candidates for ten cents each, and raised over $20. Mrs. Stambaugh, who is a silver woman, peddled the Bryan votes and disposed of between fifteen and sixteen dollars worth of them, while even in a Democratic crowd Mrs. Mings managed to find enough McKinleyites to sell $7.75 worth of tickets.

Both ladies had the pleasure of shaking hands with the candidate and his wife and went home highly elated with their trip.

Incandescents Were Out.

At 7:30, a few minutes before the hour advertised for Bryan's arrival in the city, the incandescent lights all over town went out and they remained out till after 11 at night.

This was not accident. This was design. There was not enough water to run both the incandescent and the arc circuits, and as Mr. Van Evert of the electric light and power commission thought it would be more noticeable if the streets were not lighted than if the stores and residences were dark, he ordered the incandescent circuit to be turned off instead of the arc circuit.

The man of many hats is to be pitied. He evidently can find no thing to suit him for any length of time—and he evidently hasn't been in to see us. There's only one fault we find with our hats—they are so good, they give such genuine satisfaction, that their wearers don't like to part with them even when it's time.

We want men of fastidious hat tastes to examine our stock.
