Doctor Sponge

has very large practice, but it would be much larger if people only knew what an excellent physician he is generally, and how very moderate are his charges. Those who do know him thoroughly, couldn't be induced to give him up. He comes in all sizes and at all prices—you may buy a big, soft, spongy sponge for $1, and you may buy a tiny, soft, spongy sponge for 5c. You may also get soft, spongy sponges in different prices and sizes between these. Try one at your bath tomorrow—try one on the baby—use it for everything.

ILLINOIS DAY AT CANTON.

McKinley Given One of the Most Notable Demonstrations of the Campaign.

STREETS FILLED WITH THE MARCHING COLUMNS.

In Addition to the Thousands from the Sucker State, Vast Throngs from Others Come With Hearty Greetings.

GRAND OVATION TO THE CHIEF.

CANTON, O., Oct. 21.—When the history of the presidential campaign of 1896 is written, Wednesday, Oct. 21, will be recorded as one of the notable days. It will be recorded as "Illinois Day," but the record will also show a number of other visits of note. All day long the streets have been filled with marching clubs and the air with echoes of cheers and with the music of bands. Illinois people began arriving early and were still arriving at noon. In the afternoon a parade was held, in which local bands and local escorts joined, and the day being bright and pleasant all Canton seemed to have turned out to add to the demonstration.

Major McKinley reviewed the parade from a stand on the front of his lawn and when it passed the marchers counted in a mass around the stand for the speech-making. Four addresses were made on behalf of the visitors. General John McNulta spoke for the city of Chicago, Hon. W. J. Calhoun for the state of Illinois, Robert C. Givens for the Republican clubs and P. J. Minter for the representatives of the labor organizations of Chicago and vicinity. The Black Hussars, who brought with them their splendid black mounts, including "Midnight," the fine steed Major McKinley rode on the occasion of the opening of the World's Fair, previously called and listened to a short informal address.

THINGS FROM OTHER STATES.

The Illinois people gave Mr. McKinley a grand ovation. Before they reached the house, there had been visits of people from Poland township, Trumbull county, Ohio, where Major McKinley spent many of his boyhood days, with Judge Arrel of Youngstown, an old room-mate, as spokesman. The candidate responded. There had also been the Garfield club, of the old Nineteenth Ohio congressional district, which Garfield represented in congress. With this party came Captain William Wallace Warren, president of the club; Mr. Jones, lieutenant governor of Ohio; State Senator James R. Garfield, son of the late president, and Congressman Stephen A. Northway, who delivered the introductory address. Mr. Garfield was introduced by Major McKinley when he had concluded his address, and the senator spoke briefly.

As the major was leaving the platform after speaking to the Illinois people another delegation, coming from Green Springs, Ohio, and vicinity, appeared and an address was made to them. An impromptu address was made in the house to a delegation of workmen from Chicago and soon afterward a splendidly uniformed club, organized as the east end of the McKinley regiment, from Cleveland appeared upon the lawn, with F. G. Hogan as spokesman. This delegation was composed of seven companies of sixty men each. Mr. McKinley scarcely had time to get dinner when another delegation was in the yard—the McKinley Marching club of Massillon. They were addressed by the major, and then joined in the street parade. Governor McKinley's response to the various Illinois delegations was, in part:

ALL ARE CORDIALLY WELCOMED.

"It has been my good fortune and pleasure to greet several notable Illinois delegations here during the present campaign. All of them have been cordially welcomed, but I beg to assure you I have been made especially glad by this celebration of "Illinois Day" at my home, commemorative, I suppose, either of your admission into the Union in 1818, or some one of your many recent achievements. But whatever it commemorates, your presence here, with representatives from all parts of your state, testifies your devotion to the cause of our country, which is represented by the Republican party which a week from next Tuesday will be tried before the great tribunal of the American people.

"You are a mighty empire in territory, but mightier in achievements and mightier in grandeur of names. You have the immortal Lincoln. That is enough for one state. You have the mighty Grant, who filled the world with fame as he journeyed in the pathway of the sun. Then you had Logan, and I bid the constituents from Logan's home in Southern Illinois a hearty welcome to my home today. Then you have Oglesby—grand old Dick Oglesby—and you have Tanner.

"You have an area exceeding England and Wales combined, but not a single league of sterile land. Illinois is not simply the first agricultural state. Her mineral products are very large, employing in good times twenty-four to thirty thousand miners. In manufactures Illinois in 1890 was almost equal prominent with the first state of the Union and was exceeded only by New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

NO PROSPERITY WITHOUT WORK.

"The prosperity of one state is the prosperity of another; the prosperity of labor, the prosperity of the workingman is the prosperity of the nation, and you cannot have that if you have not work, and you cannot have work if you do your work with other hands on the other side, under another flag.

"Your vote in 1892 seems to have been much smaller than it ought to have been. Are you going to do better this year? I am sure, for it was announced from this platform that you have made the largest registration of any state in the American union, and that ought to mean the largest majority of any state in the American union for protection. You can only prosper upon honest principles, honest purposes, honest laws and public and private honor.

VICTORY FOR PALMER TICKET.

Only One Designated as Democratic on Nebraska Official Ballot.

WOULD NOT SHARE HIS WEALTH.

New York, Oct. 21.—H. G. Andrus, president of the Arlington Chemical company at Yonkers, was killed in his office by the explosion of a bomb today. He was alone at the time. The body of the victim was frightfully mangled by the explosion and death must have come instantly. Imbedded in the flesh of the dead man were several pieces of cast iron. Other pieces corresponding to these were found in the office. They were placed together and there was enough of them to show the bomb was a piece of cast iron six inches long.

On learning of the explosion and the death of his brother, John F. Andrus hurried to the police station and communicated with Captain Mangin. He said that the explosion of the bomb might have been the work of anarchists, as a short time ago he was accosted by a seedy-looking individual who took him by the arm and demanded that Andrus distribute a third of his possessions to the poor; that there was a way to compel him to do so. Up to the present no arrests have been made.

TALKING IN WISCONSIN.

General Bragg Goes on the Stump With Buckner.

WATERTOWN, Wis., Oct. 21.—Fifteen hundred people were disappointed at not seeing General Palmer when the train bearing his running mate, General Buckner, and General Bragg arrived. Both Buckner and Bragg made speeches, which were loudly cheered.

PORTAGE, Wis., Oct. 21.—General Buckner spoke five minutes this afternoon to a crowd of three hundred. He was introduced by General Bragg. Mr. Buckner said the effort to array labor against capital, to inflame class hatred, was as great a menace as the attempt to debase coinage. The National Democrats represented true Democracy; the Chicago platform discarded every Democratic principle for Populistic. Men in the crowd interrupted General Buckner, calling him an "old Confederate," "rebel," but were promptly hushed down.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 21.—Generals Buckner and Bragg and party arrived at 6 o'clock and were greeted by a salute of twenty-one guns. The theater was filled and not half could get in. General Buckner was cordially greeted. He spoke fifteen minutes, being followed by Mr. Bragg, who spoke for an hour.

DISASTROUS BLAZE AT AKRON.

Two Lives and $200,000 Worth of Property Wiped Out.

AKRON, O., Oct. 21.—The burning of Whitman, Robinson & Co.'s stoneware plant last night was of incendiary origin, and in addition to the destruction of $200,000 worth of property, two lives were lost. The body of an unknown man was discovered in one of the red hot kilns. Evidently he had crawled in to sleep. His body was literally baked. The remains of Francis Harrison, who slept at the works, have not yet been found owing to the ruins being too hot.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 21.—Mayer Brothers' pottery was destroyed by fire at an early hour this morning, entailing a loss of $100,000. During the fire a wall fell and five boys were buried in the debris. Two, named Reed and Walker, were perhaps fatally injured.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 21.—The Ironmongers flour mill at Mason City, Ill., burned tonight. Loss, $15,000; insurance one-half.

Reviewed by the President.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—The torchlight parade tonight in the sequentennial celebration took a humorous form. President and Mrs. Cleveland reviewed the parade from the stand. The night's festivities were brought to a close by a grand display of fireworks. Tomorrow morning Mr. Cleveland will deliver an address at the sequentennial celebration in Alexander Hall.

WATSON'S NAME STAYS ON.

Kansas Supreme Court Decides the Populist Candidate Cannot Withdraw.

DECISION MEANS MANY MORE VOTES FOR BRYAN.

Populist Elector in Georgia Resigns on Account of Fusion Failure and Will Support McKinley—The Others May Follow.

NAME GOES ON THE BALLOT.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 21.—By a decision rendered here by the judges of the state supreme court, Thomas E. Watson will not be permitted to withdraw his name from the regular Populist state ticket. The matter came up in the supreme court on a writ of mandamus against the secretary of state, Edwards, who had, in compliance with the formal demand filed by Watson, announced his intention of omitting Watson's name from the head of the regular Populist ticket. Justice Johnson dissented from the judgment of the court, declaring the opinion that the ticket as returned by the officers of the Populist convention was intended to deceive the voters of the state. It is conceded the decision means the addition of several thousand voters for Bryan in Kansas.

HE WILL SUPPORT M'KINLEY.

Populist Elector in Georgia Withdraws—Result of Fusion Failure.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 21.—A bombshell was exploded today in political circles by the publication of a letter from Dr. W. H. Felton, Populist nominee for elector, withdrawing from the ticket and pledging support for McKinley. His course is construed by many as indicating there will be a general defection to McKinley from the Populist ranks in Georgia on account of the treatment of the Populist fusion proposition by the Democratic state committee.

The Populist sub committee adjourned today until tomorrow after convening at 7 o'clock, without having taken action. The People's party paper in the issue for the current week given out tonight says the Populist electors in Georgia will probably be withdrawn entirely. The postponement is said to be for the purpose of learning the result of the Jones-Washburn conference in Chicago before taking action.

WATSON SPEAKS AT BIRMINGHAM.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21.—Hon. Thomas E. Watson reached here this afternoon from Atlanta. He comes to Alabama to aid Dr. Crowe and Congressman Howard in their candidacy for congress. Mr. Watson spoke at Capital park tonight to an audience of three thousand. He said he had not sought to lay obstacles in the way of Bryan and that the People's party can unite in Bryan's support, but not for Sewall.

IN CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO.

Jones and Washburn Discuss the Situation in Georgia.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Chairman Washburn of the western branch of the Populist national committee and National Democratic Chairman Jones today held a conference regarding the Georgia and Kansas situation, especially Georgia. Beyond stating that the conference resulted "as he expected," Washburn refused to discuss the matter. He was not surprised at the resignation of Populist Elector Felton of Georgia and thinks other resignations may follow, owing to the intensity of feeling among Populists in Georgia. Washburn said Watson's action "will depend entirely upon the result of my conference with Senator Jones."

THE DUTY OF ALL POPULISTS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Chairman Butler, of the Populist national committee, has received a letter from S. F. Norton of Chicago, favorite candidate of the middle-of-the-road Populists for the presidential nomination, advising Populists to assist in Bryan's election.

POPULIST DEMANDS REFUSED.

Tennessee Democratic Committee Turns Down Fusion Proposition.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 21.—The state Democratic executive committee today brought the correspondence between the Populist and Democratic committees concerning the fusion proposition to a close by refusing the Populist demands, which were four Populist presidential electors and they to vote as they please for the vice presidential candidates, and also one Populist congressional candidate. Democrats to be retired to make places for these Populists.

HAVE SECRETED THE BOOKS.

Bay State Gas Officers May Be Adjudged in Contempt.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 21.—In the United States court today an order was granted requiring J. Edward Addicks, Parker C. Chandler and Charles H. Kittinger, of the Bay State Gas company of Delaware, to appear in court to show cause why they shall not be adjudged in contempt. The allegation is that Addicks and the others have secreted books of the gas company, for which corporation receivers were appointed last week.

His Neck Was Broken.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 21.—William P. Scott, a wealthy retired farmer, aged seventy-two, while standing on the second floor of a shed he was assisting to tear down this afternoon, was thrown violently to the ground, a distance of eight feet. His neck was broken; death was instantaneous.

PINGREE BOLTS THOMPSON.

The fight between Pingree and Thompson waxed fierce. The latter addressed a bitter open letter to Mr. Pingree, which was published in the Detroit papers Tuesday, in which he charged that Pingree had been coquetting with the silverites, and had also attempted to defeat him (Thompson) for the nomination for state senator by forming a combination with the brewers and liquor dealers of his district. When shown the letter Mr. Pingree spoke very plainly about Thompson's record. The News gives this report of what he said:

"When the people of Detroit chose me as their mayor," said Mr. Pingree, "and when I took my oath of office, I assumed that they placed me, to some extent, as the guardian of their interests. I assumed the obligations. Now I want every man, woman and child in Michigan to know that Mayor Pingree is not supporting such a man as W. G. Thompson for any office. I know we have sent men to the penitentiary not half as bad as he."

At this point the mayor made several charges of immorality against the ex-mayor.

"Some people will say they do not know that those charges are true," continued Mr. Pingree, "and pass that man's character by, but their God knows that they know all about it. It is the duty of every church, and of every Christian, to denounce such a man. I say this as a citizen and mayor of Detroit. Any party that nominates such a man to make laws for their children is doomed to defeat. But the party did not nominate Thompson. That was the work of designing politicians, who wanted some of his money."

Continuing, the mayor recited a little deal Thompson tried to make with him two years ago, in the interest of Senator McMillan, which throws some light on the political history of that time.

"Thompson came to my office here, and in the presence of a witness, proposed a deal which I refused. He began with the statement:

"I presume you know that I am closer to Senator McMillan than any living man. He would get up in the middle of the night for me, and do anything I asked. You remember the time we were trying to elect Congressman Lord, when a campaign fund of $18,000 was raised, and I asked that it be placed in my hands. You were there. You remember how Senator McMillan demanded of the committee that the money be turned over to me, at my request, to be used for my memory how close I am to Senator McMillan."

"I told him," went on the mayor, "that I remembered quite a large sum for the campaign, to be used for legitimate purposes. Then Thompson made his proposition: 'If you will agree to Senator McMillan's naming the members of the legislature who go from Detroit, he will agree to bury the hatchet and support you for governor.' 'I replied to him that I did not want office had enough to enter into such a deal and would not agree. Then he began to argue with me.

"You are satisfied," he said, "that Senator McMillan will be elected as his own successor." I admitted that, and he then continued:

"He merely wants the Wayne county delegation solid as a matter of pride, as it comes from his home. You can fix that for him."

Mr. Pingree deserves credit for his refusal to support Thompson, who is unfit to receive the vote of an honest man for any office. Pingree will add to his strength with the people of Detroit, where Thompson is known, by openly fighting him, notwithstanding that Thompson is the nominee of the Republican party. Mr. Pingree is too honest a man to get along with the gang of plunderers who appear to have had control of the convention that nominated Thompson for state senator, and they, in turn, have no use for Pingree, for experience has taught them that they cannot either beguile or drive him into aiding and abetting them in their corrupt schemes.

A FAIR ADMISION.

The Washington Post, although a gold standard organ, has the fairness to say that the recent report of a trades assembly committee in regard to the condition of labor in Mexico contains nothing upon which to base an argument against free coinage. The Post remarks that skilled labor is well paid in Mexico, much better than in Italy, Spain, Germany or Turkey, and about as well as in England—all gold countries—whereas the performers of common drudgery rank about with the swarming toilers on the east side of New York city. The Post then says:

Of course, no workmen in Mexico get such wages as certain experts in places like Homestead and Bethlehem in Pittsburgh—$8, $10, $15, even $25 per diem—for the simple reason that there are in Mexico no such establishments as the Carnegie works, and therefore no opening for specialists of the kind referred to. But in the ordinary walks of labor we find that the Mexican prices compare reasonably well with our own, and when one considers how much more cheaply the Mexican workman can live—owing to climatic and other conditions—very little significance is to be extracted from the report. Those who work live fairly well, according to the value of their services, and the necessities of life they recognize. Those who are out of employment find existence much more tolerable in semi-tropical Mexico than in this country, where fires and warm clothing are, during a greater or less part of the year, indispensable. In both Mexico and the United States the very poor are wretched, but we doubt whether, from a hygienic point of view, the peon's adobe hut is any more squalid and unwholesome than the swarming tenements and sweat shops of New York city.

We cannot agree with The Post when it says further that the money standard has nothing to do with the condition of labor, but it is true that in such free coinage countries as Mexico and in such gold standard countries as Liberia a very large proportion of the people are not affected to any great extent by the monetary standard.

AN INEFFECTIVE "TRUST."

We are hearing a great deal these days about a "silver trust" representing hundreds of millions of dollars which is alleged to be backing Bryan for the presidency and putting millions into the campaign to elect him.

Now, as an exchange observes, "a trust is an organization for the purpose of increasing prices and controlling this market," and if there is a silver trust, such as the gold standard papers and speakers are telling about why doesn't it keep up the price of silver? The gold syndicates have no difficulty in keeping up the price of gold, for the purchasing power of gold has appreciated constantly since silver was demonetized, and was never so high as it is today.

The beef trust, the coal trust, the oil trust, the lead trust, the nail trust and all the other trusts, are all eminently successful in maintaining prices for the commodities in which they operate. Why is it that the silver trust alone seems powerless to control the market? Simply because it doesn't exist. It is a campaign bugaboo, evoked to scare voters with.

So with the story that the silver magnates have contributed fabulous sums to elect Bryan. There is no money backing Bryan and the managers of his campaign are known to have hardly enough to pay their postage and telegraph bills. Most of the speakers who are in the field for silver are paying their own expenses, the only exceptions being the labor speakers who have not the money to do it, and the laboring men themselves are putting up "the stuff" to keep these out, doing battle for Bryan and silver.

Up to a year ago the experience of Marquette in doing her own municipal lighting and selling lights at a low rate to private users was quoted all over the country in support of the proposition that the ownership and operation of their own lighting plants by cities was a good thing, and gave desirable results. Now, as will be seen by communications published in the Negaunee department, it is cited to show that municipal operation of such plants is a failure, owing to some degree to the uncertainty as to having their management kept in competent hands. THE MINING JOURNAL would like to challenge the statement of its contributors, but it cannot, in view of the money squandered on the city's plant during the past eighteen months, and the condition in which the improvement undertaken by the lighting board installed a year ago last spring is in. Not less than $15,000 has been wasted in useless work, from which no result can be expected. The present board is endeavoring to put the plant in good condition, but it is sorely handicapped by the blundering work of its predecessor, which has put the city in the hole to the amount, stated, if not more. It is a bad record for municipal lighting that Marquette's plant is now able to make, excellent though it was before an incompetent board took charge of it.

In an article published in the Hamburger Nachrichten Prince Bismarck, the great German ex-chancellor, makes the prediction that Russia is certain to do no distant day force England to a decisive struggle for supremacy in the east. England is aware of Russia's purpose, he declares, and is preparing for the mighty contest by seizing strategic positions by land and sea wherever she can do this. The two powers named are natural enemies, through their conflicting interests in the east, and the conflict between them, so long foreseen, cannot be much longer delayed. It is because of this that they, and the other powers of Europe, have been hoarding gold with such jealous care, and it is because her financial preponderance gives her an immense advantage over Russia that England is so desirous of having the gold standard retained, for while it is retained by the great commercial nations of the world she will have all the rest of the world under tribute—especially America, which is making her richer every day by paying the tribute to her that the gold standard enables her to exact.

"Cardinal" Called Down. TO THE EDITOR:—"Cardinal" charges that, in a communication in your pages Monday, I was guilty of misrepresentation and misstatement. I shall leave the decision of that question to those who heard Bryan's speech in Marquette and read my article. It is hard to follow the Populist mind in its wanderings, and the advocate of the free coinage of silver does not always make himself perfectly clear. Consequently, I am not sure what "Cardinal" means when he asks certain questions about the Wilson bill and the McKinley bill.

It is quite true, in my opinion, that the panic of 1893 was not caused by the Wilson bill, quite true that it began while the McKinley bill was in force. People differ as to what did cause the panic. Some Republicans claim it was fear of a democratic administration, and of threatened changes in the tariff. I believe that it was very largely, almost wholly, the result of an excessive coinage of silver in this country, coupled with a growing agitation in favor of its unlimited coinage.

Foreign nations began to doubt our ability and our willingness to keep our silver equal to gold. A run upon the United States, exactly similar to a run on a bank, took place, and the usual result followed.

Now, it is entirely immaterial, so far as Mr. Bryan is concerned, which of these positions is correct. He denies both propositions. He says all our troubles are caused by our not coining silver enough; that words fail him to describe the sufferings of this nation during the past twenty years under a gold standard.

Therefore, I say, it is monumental cheek in him who, only four years ago, urged free trade as the cure-all, to tell us he was wrong then but is right now. Yet "Cardinal" asks me to tell him where Mr. Bryan said "free trade was wrong, but free silver is the real simon-pure cure-all." Bryan has said it, in effect, every time he has described our sufferings and told his remedy.

"Cardinal" sees in the fact that our governmental revenues for three years have not equaled the expenses proof that we have not been prosperous for the past twenty years.

Cannot he see, then, that in England a surplus of $125,000,000 this year, from a revenue bill intended only to provide for necessary expenditures, must mean all that I claim for it?

Germany and Sweden have also largely recovered from the hard times of 1893. The United States, which has soonest recovered from similar previous depressions, alone waits for a revival.

This revival will come, Bryan and the "Cardinal" say, when silver is restored to its constitutional parity. "Parity" means equality. To make silver equal to gold, at the ratio of 16 to 1, is the miracle Bryanites are to perform, and if we wait for a revival of business until they have performed that miracle we shall wait till the crack of doom.

The "Cardinal" appealed to Blaine's speech of Feb. 7, 1878. This speech has been the favorite source of quotation for Populists who invariably misrepresent the speaker. Let "Cardinal" and other Populists read a few selections from the same speech:

The following is one of the things he said in answer to the possibility of legislation bringing silver to a parity with gold: "Assurances from empirics and scientists in finance that remonetization of the former dollar will at once and permanently advance its value to par with gold, are worth little in the face of opposing and controlling facts."

This is what he said of the effect of coining an inferior silver dollar: "Unless we expect the inevitable experience of other nations to be in some mysterious way suspended for our peculiar benefit, we inevitably lose our gold coin. It will flow out from us with the certainty and with the force of the tides." Space forbids further quotation, but what I have given shows that, what ever else he may have been, he was not a fool, and didn't believe in government miracles, and if alive now would not believe the expectation of gold to be the result of a conspiracy.

"Cardinal's" explanation of how the workingman is to be benefited by free coinage is unique. He says: "When money can be no longer hoarded at a profit, it will seek legitimate business channels, a market will be created for labor, and hence increase the chance for employment."

You can be dead sure, when a Populist undertakes to talk of money, will either prove he don't know what money is, or conceal his knowledge, if he has any.

Profit in hoarding money! Listen to that, workingman. If there is one thing known to everyone, it is that hoarded money gives no profit. Think of it for yourselves. If you put money in a stocking, hide it away, shut it up in your safe, you hoard it, and it gives no profit. It can only afford profit when put in circulation.

If you destroy confidence, every man who has money fears to invest it in business, to even loan it. No great business can be carried on without constant borrowing and when confidence is gone, industry languishes, nor will it be revived by a miracle. I make this plain proposition: That money is best for everyone which is best for the workingman; that it is an absurdity to talk of a money good for the employer and bad for the employed. The free silverites claim that free coinage is a good thing. If someone of them will show the process by which the workingman is to be benefited by which it will agree to vote for Bryan, although I confess myself a believer in the single gold standard. When the free silverite says that business will pick up under his system, I can only look around me and learn what those who are engaged in business think, and I find the business men almost unanimously opposed to it. I conclude that business men know more about business than the Bryanites, and, if there were any good in his theory they would know it and favor it. "POP." Oct. 01, 1896.

SYLPHLIKE EFFECTS.

Some Things That the Stout Should Always Avoid. If you are stout, avoid checks as you would avoid the plague. If you are stout do not let the most seductive bargainer in stripes, the most persuasive orator among modistes, induce you to wear a gown with horizontal lines. On these two commandments hang at least half your hopes of beauty.

If you are stout shun the primary colors. Nothing makes a woman of portly proportions look quite so gigantic, quite so hopelessly heating as reds, clear violets and orange hues. There are colors which can be used effectively, only in small quantities. Let white and cream color severely alone. They may make you look statuesque, but statues require a gallery for a background, and are out of place in a modest home.

Unless you are a wise woman, as well as a stout one, you will occasionally fall into the error of thinking that strong lacing strings are your best friends, and that the more tightly you can gird yourself the more sylphlike you will appear. It is a delusion. Tight-fitting gowns merely accentuate your defects.

You begin to suggest smotherings, strangulations and other unpleasant conditions. Superabundance of curves may be hidden beneath kindly folds and beneficent fullness. They are only made the more conspicuous by attempts to reduce them by main force and corset steels.

The corset of the stout woman, by the way, is something to which she should give great attention. Only the "low" ones should be worn. High ones, which crowd the bust into the neck so that chin and chest meet, are the ones to which most stout women fly with a fatuous blindness.

Skirt trimmings, which take from the apparent height, are also to be avoided. Broad belts, which decrease the effect of length, are also among the tabooed articles. In fact, the woman blessed or cursed with "embonpoint" must be exceedingly wary in the matter of belts. She must, whenever it is possible, wear those of the same color as her bodice or her skirt. The former adds to her waist length and the latter to her length of limb. Belts which are slightly curved over the hips and pointed in the back and front are among those which she can wear with excellent effect.

The high collar should be another of the stout woman's aversions. She frequently has a pretty neck as one of the small compensations granted by Providence for an ugly figure, but the high collar hides and spoils it. The fichu was particularly intended for her; so were the falling over lace frill and the rather narrow ribbon bands. Fluffy feather and lace boas belong to her only when they are long and when instead of coming under the chin they fall in long lines down the front of the gown on either side.

In short, the stout woman's sartorial salvation lies in a conscientious adherence to the "long line" principle. Whether they are stripes worn in the material or folds laid by the dressmaker, they are her only means of giving the effect of graceful height.—St. Louis Republic.

YELLOWSTONE PARK IN DECAY.

No Improvements Made for a Year—Some Suggestions Offered.

An important report on the condition of the Yellowstone National park was made to the secretary of the interior recently by Capt. G. S. Anderson, Sixth cavalry, acting superintendent of the park. Capt. Anderson says the park has received no improvement the last year, because the Northern Pacific railroad, the principal stockholder in the park association, has been unable to spend money on it. He says there is a great need of new hotels and lunch-houses to accommodate the class of visitors who have abundant means. There is a large class of visitors who go through the park in camping parties in charge of licensed conductors. The authorities in charge of the park confess that these parties annoy them not a little. They are careless about their camp fires and continually threaten serious damage by fire. Another thing that ought, he thinks, to be consolidated under one control is the Yellowstone lake steamboat franchise. The present stakeboat company desires to rush tourists through the park, as it receives the same pay whether the stop-over privileges are granted or not. The hotel people, on the other hand, would like to prolong the stay of the visitors. Thus there is a clashing of interests. Although the area of the park is greater than that of the state of Connecticut, but $30,000 has been for several years allowed for its protection and improvement. This year $35,000 is available. Capt. Anderson thinks $100,000 ought to be appropriated for about two years, and then the roads could be completed and surfaced with stone. This, he supposes, would anticipate and stop the demand for trolley roads.

Poaching has gone on during the year as usual. Ten carcasses of buffalo were found last summer. One man was caught with four buffalo heads in his possession. Four arrests were made and the parties fined $50 each. All kinds of game, except buffalo, are increasing in the park. A herd visited the corral provided for their shelter last winter, but wandered off again. Scattered bunches have been seen and it is possible that there are 50 in all in the park. Capt. Anderson says it is a doubtful problem whether he will be able to save them. Nature and man are both against them, he says.

In his recommendations Capt. Anderson suggests putting another company of troops in the park.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Reinforced. Wiggles—Well, did you make him take his words back, as you said you were going to do?

Waggles—Yes, he took them back, but he used them over again more emphatically than he did before.—Somerville Journal.

THE BARTERING INSTINCT.

A Case in Which It Was Strongly Developed and Persistent. There was a wistful expression on his face as he strolled up to the box office of the theater. He stroked his beard with an assumption of nonchalance and said to the young man who was selling tickets:

"Be ye goin' ter hev anythin' goin' on here to-night?"

"Yes, sir," was the answer. "We have a performance here every night." "Crowded houses?"

"Oh, I guess we can find a place for you if you want to go in."

"I wouldn't want anythin' very expensive. Most any place 'ud do fur me."

"We can sell you a seat for 25 cents." "That's rock-bottom prices, is it?"

"We can't give any discount on that." "Wal, I dunno. Would ye sorter do me a pushal favor?"

It was a dull day and the man in the box office was a little lonely, and he kept the conversation going he answered:

"Yes, if you don't ask me to pass you into the show for nothing."

"I wouldn't make no sech request as that. I'm willin' to pay fur my amusement, or go without. But would you take two five-cent stamps in part payment?"

"Yes. We can use them." "An' I've got a dime with a hole in it. Would ye jes ez soon let that go in fur eight cents? That's a discount of two cents on account of the hole."

The ticket seller was thoroughly amused by this time, and he answered: "Yes. Let's have it."

"That'll make 18 cents. I reckon you'll want seven cents more."

"I'm afraid I will."

"Wal, here's the 18 cents. I'll come around ter-night an' set down anywhere ye put me, an' when ye think I've seen 18 cents' worth ye kin send one o' yer hired men around an' notify me. I'll git right up an' go out, an' there won't be any disturbance whatsoever."

"We can't do anything like that. You'll have to buy a ticket for the whole show or not go in at all."

"Wal, there's only one thing I kin offer ye. Ye kin take yer choice. I'll give ye this here jackknife that I paid a quarter fur less'n a year ago, an' which only hez one blade out o' the three broke. Er I'll give ye this ten-cent piece of chevin' terbacker which I was goin' ter take home ez a present ter the hired man."

"I—I don't see how we can do anything like that."

"It 'ud be a great accommodation." "All right," said the amiable ticket seller. "Hand over the jackknife." And he threw him out a ticket.

"I know ye ain't runnin' no junk shop," the applicant said, as he passed over the cutlery, "an' I'm much obliged ter ye fur makin' this exception. I hated ter go 'way without seein' a the-ater show, but if I was ter hev paid real money out an' I don't think Mehitable would ever forgive me fur it. But the postage stamps 'ud likely hev got lost before I got a chance ter use 'em, an' I couldn't pass the dime, an' I've got another jackknife. So ez long ez I jes' traded in fur it I kin enjoy the actin' with a clear conscience an' go home an' tell Mehitable all about it."—Detroit Free Press.

IN IGNORANT CIRCLES.

Education Does Not Always Make One Safe in an Egg Trade. I was sitting on a keg of nails in a West Virginia mountain store, watching a native dickerer with the merchant over a trade of a bucket of eggs for a calico dress. After some time a bargain was closed, the native walked out with the dress in a bundle under his arms and I followed him.

"It isn't any business of mine," I said, "but I was watching the trade and I was surprised to see you let the eggs go for the dress."

"What for?" he asked, in astonishment, as he mounted his horse. "How many eggs did you have?" "Basket full."

"How many dozen?" "Dunno. Can't count." "That's where you miss the advantage of education. With knowledge you might have got two dresses for those eggs."

"But I didn't want two dresses, mister," he argued.

"Perhaps not, but that was no reason why you should have paid two prices for one. The merchant got the advantage of you because of his education. He knew what he was about."

He looked at me for a minute, as if he felt real sorry for me. Then he grinned and pulled his horse over close to me.

"I reckon," he half whispered, casting furtive glances toward the store, "this education ain't so much mor'n mine ez you think it is. He don't know how many uv them aigs is spiled an' I do," and he rode away before I could argue further.—Albany Argus.

SEVEN YEARS TO SINK IT.
Red Jacket Shaft Will Soon Go Into Active Commission.
The Union Bridge company has been delayed somewhat in the construction of the Red Jacket shafthouse owing to delay in the shipment of the material. However, all of the iron is now on the ground or enroute and it is expected the building will be completed about Nov. 10. With the completion of the shafthouse the deepest shaft in the world will practically be ready to go into active commission. This shaft was begun in 1889 and it has taken seven years to sink it, showing an average progress of 700 feet annually, nearly all of which has been in blue trap rock, one of the most refractory of minerals. The conglomerate carrying copper is claimed by scientists to have been the bed of an ancient sea, and it is composed of pebbles and gravel worn by the action of the water. The Red Jacket shaft is 15 1/2 by 25 feet in size, inside of the timbers, and contains six compartments, being fully equal in working capacity to half a dozen mining shafts of ordinary size. The shaft is solidly timbered. The frames of the rock renders it secure for all time to come, the timbers being merely to carry the traffic of men and mineral, of water and electricity, which surges between the sunlight and bottom. In four of the compartments will slip up and down the ponderous cages, carrying ten ton loads of rock, at the speed of express trains. Up and down these cages will also ride the men who mine the rock from the old sea bed. In one compartment will be the great iron pump pipes, and down another descend the steady current of compressed air which runs the drills a mile below the engine house. Bunched in slender cables are copper wires which convey electricity to light the recesses of the mine and threads of wire that afford telephonic communication from the most remote drift to any portion of the property, for the Calumet & Hecla has a telephone exchange of its own. In addition to this, there are fire alarm wires and other devices tending towards the safety of the miners. The temperature of the rock at the bottom of the shaft is 87.6 degrees Fahrenheit, a gain of eight degrees in the last 500 feet sunk.

Boiling River
It is not as large as the Mississippi, indeed it is quite small, but a mighty interesting stream for all that. It issues from the sides of a mountain in a thousand tiny rills, more or less, and of almost as many colors. These gather themselves into pools and lakelets on the mountain's side, covering an area of about 30 acres. Overhanging their boundaries they slowly trickle down the sides of the mountain forming small cliffs, the most wonderful in the world. From a distance one can hardly believe what the eyesight reveals—white, black, orange, lemon, terra cotta, green, blue, red, pink, separate and in manifold combinations stand out before him. It is a bill of painted cliffs on the side of the mountain that rises high above. And the odd part of it is that each of these exquisite colors represents a different temperature. Does that startle your credulity? Even so it is true.
When through with this beautiful painting process, these waters again come together and then, as if full of mischief like a pack of small boys trying to play hide and seek, dive down and remain under the ground for a space of two miles and then flow out from the mouth of a canyon, as one of the clearest, most beautiful, green streams imaginable. Where these waters emerge from the mountain into the little lakes they are hot, boiling hot. During their dark underground journey they fall several hundred feet and also many degrees in hotness, so that when they again see daylight they are much cooler. This then is boiling river, an underground mountain stream of hot water.
But you ask, where is it? Where can I see it? It is in Yellowstone Park at Mammoth Hot Springs. It is one of the lesser, mind you the lesser—wonders of this land of wonders. Go there and see it by all means, but first send to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent, Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn., six cents for Wonderland '96, that tells all about this renowned region. (7-34)

THREE MONSTER MEETINGS.

Candidate Bryan Gets an Enthusiastic Reception at Fort Wayne.

WINDS UP A SERIES OF DEMONSTRATIONS THERE.

Commencing at Greenville in the Morning. He Talks at Many Points in the Hoosier State During the Day.

INDIANA CROWDS HEAR BRYAN.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 21.—Mr. Bryan addressed three monster meetings tonight in Fort Wayne. The first meeting was at Wayne Hotel and when Mr. Bryan spoke from the balcony of that hostelry the big double block in front was packed to such an extent that windows were broken in by the crowd. The next meeting was at Princess rink and the large edifice was packed to the doors. The last speaking-making was at Saengerbund Hall and here again was he met with a magnificent reception.

In Princess rink, Mr. Bryan said, in part: "I want you to make a business of politics for one day this year. Our opponents make a business of politics all the time, and because they do so they have been able to control legislation, manage our finances and take care of themselves, while the rest of the people suffer because they have been negligent in the performance of their political duties."

RICHMOND, Ind., Oct. 21.—Candidate Bryan began speaking this morning at Greenville. A large crowd listened to him.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Oct. 21.—At Richmond Mr. Bryan made two speeches. Yellow badges and shouters for McKinley were numerous at both meetings. At Cambridge the nominee spoke to a crowd of several thousand for three minutes.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 21.—Candidate Bryan spoke to several thousand people at Rushville for fifteen minutes from a platform in a vacant lot near the center of the city to a large and enthusiastic crowd. There and at New Castle many McKinley badges were worn in the audience.

There were counter demonstrations at Muncie today. An hour after Bryan reached town, William D. Bynum was to speak to the gold Democrats and in the evening the Republicans were to listen to W. J. Campbell, ex-president of the Glass Blowers' association. It was distinctively a McKinley crowd in the city and just as distinctively a Bryan crowd that listened to the nominee at the ball park. It was a magnificent demonstration. On the way back to the train the demonstration for McKinley was renewed but was checked to a great extent by the shouting of the crowd of silverites who marched as a guard of honor about the vehicle.

Several thousand people welcomed the candidate at Anderson. On the open prairie a stand had been erected and a crowd which would have done credit to a city of much greater size was present. In his speech, Mr. Bryan said, in part:

QUOTES BEN BUTTERWORTH. "I want to say to you that the division we make in society between the money changer and the wealth producer is a difference that has been made by all public men who have spoken in this country in the past. I could cite what Blaine said, could quote from Sherman, might quote from Carlisle, might go on quoting any number of men, even Mr. McKinley himself, but I want to read you from what Benjamin Butterworth, Republican ex-congressman from Ohio, said only last spring in a letter which was published by order of congress:

"Is it not folly to suppose that the capitalists of England, and they are the capitalists of the world, will be easily persuaded to agree or consent to binetism? How is it to their interest to do so, while we consent to make it to their advantage to refuse? They have doubled the value of their credits by demonetizing silver and thus, in effect, double the interest received by them. The United States blundered into that trap and beggared a million of her citizens, and if we adhere to that blunder it will beggar five millions more and double the burden of every debtor and of every burden bearer in the land."

"Thus you find a great Republican denouncing the gold standard, pointing to the fact that the creditor nations of the world are seeking to keep it because they make money out of it."

There were short stops at Alexandria, Summitville, Marion, Bluffton and Fairmont and at each place Mr. Bryan received flattering receptions.

TWELVE SPEECHES MADE BY HIM YESTERDAY.

POPE WILL CHOOSE THE RECTOR.

Catholic University Directors Select Three Names for Submission.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The board of administration of the Catholic university today selected the names of three priests to submit to the pope from which to choose a successor to Bishop Keane as rector of the university. They are Father Conaty, president of the summer school at Plattsburg, New York; Father Riordan, St. Elizabeth's church, Chicago, and Father Mooney, vicar general of New York.

At 4 o'clock the ceremony occurred of receiving the gift of $50,000 from the Ancient Order of Hibernians for a chair of Celtic language. Cardinal Gibbons, in responding to the presentation speech, spoke of the generosity of the Irish people, who, while not overrich and in a time of financial distress, gave this handsome gift for the study of the Celtic language. They did not hope to restore Celtic to the spoken tongue, for the English language was accepted as the living language of this country, but it would preserve the ancient Celtic from extinction. The cardinal said this gift would be recognized by the pope as a response to his wish that the university receive generous support. After the ceremony the directors of the university resumed in private session and at 7 o'clock adjourned sine die.

THE BANOCROFT MISSION.

Ambassador Terrell Denies She Was to Force the Dardanelles.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 21.—(Copyrighted by the Associated Press.)—Hon. A. W. Terrell, United States minister to Turkey, has given to the Associated Press the first explicit and authorized statement from an official source regarding the mission of the United States steamship Bancroft in the Levant, directly refuting the wild and unfounded statements circulated in the United States and telegraphed here that the Bancroft was instructed to proceed through the Dardanelles to Constantinople in spite of whatever protest might be offered by the Turkish authorities.

BATTLE BETWEEN STUDENTS.

Sophomores and Freshmen at Brown University Come to Blows.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 21.—In the field day came rush of Brown university, which has for several years been prohibited by the faculty, a sophomore and freshman were knocked senseless and a score of others had their clothing torn into shreds in the desperate class battle. For upwards of an hour it raged and was only stopped by Acting President Clarke, assisted by members of the faculty and a squad of seniors. The affair will be the subject of a rigid investigation by the faculty.

Settles the German Question.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Oct. 21.—The Illinois grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias devoted today to the trial of Germania lodge of Chicago on the charge of violating the supreme law forbidding the use of any language except English in the ritual. The lodge was found guilty and its charter revoked. A petition from sixty members for the restoration of the charter was then received and granted, only those members who willfully violated the law being left out. This is regarded as the final settlement of the German question. In the afternoon officers were elected.

For an Eight-Day Session.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 21.—The fifteenth annual national meeting of the board of managers of the Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church convened this morning for an eight-day session. Twenty-one states are represented, with 140 delegates. Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Woodruff for the city, Elder Smith for the district, Pastor Havighorst for the church and Mrs. S. Bullars for citizens and homes. The response was by Mrs. Fisk, the president.

Spoke at Michigan's Capital.

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 21.—The Alger party spoke today at Charlotte and Jackson. The general's train arrived here on schedule time and the party was given an enthusiastic reception. General Sikes made a patriotic address. All of the party, excepting Corporal Tanner, made short talks.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 21.—The Alger party remained here but fifteen minutes. Several members spoke to three thousand people.

Fatally Injured in a Runaway.

LAMONI, Ia., Oct. 21.—Mrs Bertha M., wife of Joseph Smith, present head of the reorganized church of the Latter Day Saints, was buried today. The stores were closed and business stopped generally. Mrs. Smith was thrown from a buggy several months ago, but apparently recovered. A few weeks ago the team ran away again, throwing her upon a pile of wood. Her injuries were internal, proving fatal.

Miscellaneous Wreck a Train.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 21.—Unknown persons wrecked a passenger train on the Memphis route last night by placing an iron plate on a rail at a curve. The track was torn up a considerable distance and the engine and baggage car were derailed. Charles George, the fireman, was badly hurt. The passengers escaped with a shaking up.

Defaulter Rambusch Suicides.

FREDERICKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 21.—W. P. Rambusch, the defaulting banker of Juneau, Wis., shot himself in the head last night in this city, dying instantly.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Wheat was active and nervous within a 3/8c. range, closing 3/8c. above the lowest and 3/8c. lower than yesterday. The early news was all bullish. Cables were higher; San Francisco advised that another cargo had been taken for Calcutta; Portland, Ore., said twenty-six vessels were in port chartered for grain. But cash grain was weak; northwestern receipts were very heavy; New York reported free selling for foreign account; cash was offered by Minneapolis; a report was received that an had been a corner in southern Russia, which was now over, with some inquiry there from India, with lower prices abroad quoted in later cables. Longs unloaded generally near the close, adding to the weakness.

Corn was active within a 1/8c. range, closing at the bottom and 1/8c. lower than yesterday. Leading factors in the decline were the action of wheat, liberal receipts and weakness of cash corn. Oats were active within a 3/8c. range, closing 3/8c. above the lowest and 3/8c. lower than yesterday. The decline was due to the weakness of the cash, and the fact that there had been a report of tight money; free general selling and the slump in other grains.

The leading grain futures ranged as follows:

Table with columns: Opened, High, Low, Closed. Rows: Wheat Dec, Corn Dec, May.

CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat, easy; No. 2 spring wheat, 73 3/4; No. 2 red, 75 1/2; No. 3 white, on track, 22 1/2; No. 3 white, on track, 17 1/2; No. 3 white, on track, 17 1/2.

MOVEMENT OF GRAIN.

RECEIPTS.—Flour, 15,000 bbls.; wheat, 350,000 bu.; corn, 848,000 bu.; oats, 699,000 bu.

SHIPMENTS.—Flour, 8,000 bbls.; wheat, 131,000 bu.; corn, 471,000 bu.; oats, 684,000 bu.

Landslide of Long Wheat.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Bulls lost their grip on wheat today and there was a decline in prices that wound up with a net loss for the day of 3/8c. The market was fairly active during the session and the market was fairly active during the session and the market was fairly active during the session.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The stock market displayed irregularity on fairly large aggregate dealings. Business, as was the case yesterday, was well distributed, with railroads commanding their full share of interest. Initial prices were mainly a fraction above yesterday's closing figures and under heavy buying for both accounts prices rose all round. The recessions subsequently made on unfavorable influences were most severe in high priced industrial shares. The market was dull at decline and railway shares became less prominent, grainers yielding about a point from best prices. The closing was steady at slight net changes.

The following were the closing prices of United States bonds and railroad stocks, etc.:

Table with columns: U.S. regular, U.S. 4s, U.S. 5s, U.S. 4s reg, U.S. 4s cp, U.S. 4 1/2 reg, U.S. 4 1/2 cp, U.S. 4 1/2 reg, U.S. 4 1/2 cp, U.S. 4 1/2 reg, U.S. 4 1/2 cp.

METAL PRICES.

Pig, quiet; Southern, $10.25@11.25; Northern, $10.75@12.50.

COPPER STOCKS.

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—The following were the closing prices of copper mining stocks: Allouez, $50.00; Atlantic, 17.00; Boston & Montana, 84.75; Calumet & Hecla, 131.00; Centennial, 10.00; Franklin, 10.00; Kearsarge, 11.87 1/2; Osceola, 113.00; Quincy, 86.00; Tamarac, 86.00; Wolverine, 7.00.

Rev. Dr. Morrison Made Bishop.

ETIQUETTE NOTES.

Some Points on Good Form for the Young Ladies.

It is very bad form to go abroad with one's handkerchief saturated with cheap perfume and one's clothing reeking with the same. It shows lack of consideration for the feelings of other people. Perfumes having musk in them are sickening when they are stale, and nauseate delicate persons. Cheap perfume and rank tobacco are on the same scale of vulgarity and indecency.

The dress of young girls in the most refined society in this country is simple; the materials may be of the most costly description, but there is no great elaboration of trimming. Jewels are not worn, unless it may be something very simple; flowers are considered best form for young girls, and one or two choice buds or blossoms with their foliage, sufficient display.

Paint and powder are distinctly bad form. A girl who appears in public with paint on her face is at once condemned either as ignorant or fast. Visible powdering is also bad form; powder if applied at all, when it has absorbed perspiration and taken the shining effect from the skin, should be wiped off. For no other purpose is it allowable in good society.

A low-cut gown should never be worn in daylight; it is full dress, and full dress is intended for the evening and night. A bonnet is strictly for day wear; it is not worn for evening dress. When one is in evening dress one must not wear a bonnet.—Ladies' World.

DYEING AND CLEANING.

Persons having clothes that require either dyeing or cleaning should remember that we make a specialty of that business. This is a good season of the year to look after your winter clothes and have them in good shape to wear when the cold weather gets here. Gentlemen's suits and overcoats made to look like new. All work done is guaranteed to please and is done on short notice when required.

A.O'LEARY, M.D.

May Be Consulted during his Lectures Daily from 2 to 5 P.M. only.

In regard to the treatment of Chronic Diseases, and those blemishes, defects and deformities that require the nicest surgical skill, such as Straightening Cross Eyes, Removal of Cataract, Pterygium, Albigo and other affections of the Eyes, and Polyps from the Nostrils, Ears &c.; the cure of Catarrh, Deafness, Dullness of Hearing, Noises in the Head, Running Ears, Coughs, Consumption, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys and Uterus; Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Hare Lip, Club Foot, Necrosis of the Bones, Tumors, Moles, Naevi, Mother's Marks; all operations in plastic surgery.

He treats also Nervous Diseases, Loss of Manhood and of Sleep, Melancholia and Affections of the Heart, such as the authors and books say can not be cured. They say it only because they don't know how to do it. The matter is easy enough when one knows how. His unprecedented success is to be attributed to his long, careful, and thorough study of the Laws of Health, and guiding his patients in such habits that they naturally get well, when they wonder that it was not done before. He treats almost entirely those who have tried other physicians and contrivances in vain; Electricity, Massage, Electric Belts, Laying on of Hands, Faith Cure, Christian Science, Baths of every kind, visits to the Hot Springs and Spas of Europe, and physicians of great names in the large cities at home and abroad. He hears the one sad story over and over, and over every day many times, that the patient tried all these in vain, and paid out so much; that they all promised to cure, and yet did no good, and that he has lost all hope and faith in doctors, and is afraid to try any more, and fears his case is hopeless. It is practically only on such material as this Dr. O'Leary works. The results may be inferred from many thousands of letters that speak of revived hopes and restored health, and from great numbers of tokens of gratitude of all imaginable kinds, both of which are constantly increasing. He does not travel to practice medicine, but to deliver lectures, that are a source of large revenue, and of great value to the people, adding vastly to their health, comfort and longevity. He has rarely delivered a course that has not added thousands of years to the aggregate length of the lives of those that attended it.

He has good reason to believe there is no physician anywhere in this or other land but would be glad to travel, could he draw and hold such audiences, admiration and attention. It is a great cause for pride and gratitude as it is to know that he makes life more sweet to vast numbers, who daily thank him and declare themselves and their families more healthy, serene, and secure, since hearing the lectures long before. This is a great satisfaction to him also, and for this he leaves a large practice at home, more than one man can attend properly, and much more than he ever attempts while on the road, where he devotes to it only 3 hours daily, from 2 to 5 P. M. The rest of the day he is very busy shipping off medicines and writing patients, many of whom he never saw, whose friends urge them to apply to him, saying he is their only hope. Of late years physicians also consult him in the treatment of chronic cases of their patients, of members of their families, and even of themselves. All this keeps him more busy than he wishes. He travels only for the lectures. When they are done he leaves, no matter how many may wish treatment. He only goes from one crowd to another anyway, glad to rest a few hours between.

He has written several books on Hygiene and kindred topics that readers deem very valuable. They are for sale at the lecture room and office.

TERMS: PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS FREE. This includes only such examination as is made in talking. In it he always tells prospects of a cure and the time likely to be required, and the expense, and advises the patient to consider the matter, and if treatment be desired, to call again. Thus no expense is incurred without due thought and preparation, and no snap bills. Instrumental examination of the chest, heart, lungs, uterus, etc., with verbal advice and opinion, $1.00. The same with written, $2.00. Treatment of chronic cases, which always includes all necessary examinations, and a month's medicine, and whatever instruments needed, as inhaler, etc., $10 to $20. Where necessary to continue longer, the rate is reduced. Few require more than a month's medicine. Surgical operations in proportion to difficulty, delicacy, and responsibility. Cookran's Coming Doubtful.

Bourke Cookran's coming to Marquette is doubtful. This news will be a disappointment to voters of all parties who would like to hear the greatest champion of the yellow metal on the stump, and especially to the Republicans, who hoped that his visit to the upper peninsula would help on the propaganda.

It has not been positively decided that Mr. Cookran cannot come, but his visit is very problematical as will be seen from the following telegram to Hon. Peter White from Hon. Don M. Dickinson.

DETROIT, Mich., October 21. Hon. Peter White, Marquette, Mich. I am doing the best I can. The campaign and the nation of large demand constant attention, and I am doing nothing else. Cookran doubtful. Hot this week. DON M. DICKINSON.

O'Donnell and Dunstan Tonight.

Owing to arrangements that have been made elsewhere the R. Republicans have been obliged to change the O'Donnell and Dunstan date and hold it one day sooner than was announced at the rally in the rink. This will bring those two speakers here tonight. Every effort will be made to pack the rink with a crowd that will tax the capacity of the building.

CITY BREVITIES.

Major C. B. Sears came down from Duluth yesterday.

Miss Ida Sutton arrived home from the copper country Tuesday evening.

Hon. O'Donnell and Dunstan will speak to the Republicans tonight in the rink.

Men were at work yesterday repairing bad places in the Main street viaduct.

Ed. O'Brien is still selling tickets for his revolver raffle which will be held in Shea's Saturday evening.

Miss Agnes Ellison arrived home yesterday from a visit in London and Windsor, Ont., and Detroit.

Dennis Green and Thomas Nevins, Ishpeming bad men, are locked up in jail to answer to the charge of burglary.

The officials of the land office took testimony yesterday in a contest case between Charles Born and Thomas D. Butts.

The steamer M. M. Drake, en laden, went aground in the east channel of Munising Bay in a heavy snow storm yesterday morning. The Chris Grover has gone out to lighter her.

W. A. Brown's horse indulged in a lively runaway Tuesday evening. It was caught at the corner of Third and Ridge, when it had lost all but the two front wheels of the vehicle to which it had been hitched.

Dr. O'Leary delivered his lecture on "Love, Courtship, Marriage and Divorce" to a good audience in the opera house last night. He gives a private lecture to the ladies tonight, and one for men only Friday night.

Ladies of the Degree of Honor, A. O. U. W. will celebrate the first anniversary of the installation of their order tonight. All members of the Grafton lodge, No. 111, with their families are cordially invited to be present.

MIDLAKE AND HARBOR GOSSIP.

The Colaba is in with coal.

The Alaska was in going up yesterday.

The schooner Morning Star was sold by the United States marshal for $315.

Port list: Arrived—Columbia, with coal. Cleared—Andaste, pig iron, Erie.

The City of Marquette left on her run to Skandia and the Salmon Trout yesterday afternoon with a fair load of freight.

The harbor looked nearly deserted yesterday as all the fleet which had been lying in for shelter took advantage of the good weather and got out.

The steamer Egyptian, loaded with ore, had to return from Lake Erie on account of the heavy sea, which rolled her port stack over. While rounding to she struck some obstruction in the middle of the river and is hard aground abreast of Amherstburg.

Captain W. H. Rounds, for thirty-eight years engaged in active service on the lakes, either as a navigator or an underwriter, died Wednesday night, aged seventy-three. He was born in Sackett's Harbor in 1823 and commanded many well known boats before he went with the Actua Insurance company as its lake representative, which position he has held most of the time since 1866.

JUDGE THOMPSON'S YARNS.

Three Good Stories by an Author of Erudite Legal Works. Judge Seymour D. Thompson, the author of those erudite legal works, "Corporation" and "Negligence," is a prime story teller. He conveyed a party of friends into Thatcher's restaurant recently, and as he noticed the multiplied reflections of their faces in the mirror-lined walls, he said:

"How much you look like your brothers, gentlemen." Then he went on: "That reminds me of good old Judge Amasa Redfield, of the Vermont supreme court. He and his brother Isaac, who was also afterward on the supreme bench of Vermont, were as like as two peas. People frequently mistook one for the other, but they managed to preserve their identity with each other until Judge Amasa was passing out of the dining-room of a Burlington hotel one evening when he saw his brother approaching him.

"Why, Isaac, I didn't expect to see you here. How did this happen?" Then the judicial light found out, for his head had come into violent collision with a mirror. Isaac had disappeared, and in his place was Amasa, very much abashed. He never could keep a joke on himself, however, and he told the story once in his inimitable dry way.

"Tell us about 'Handsome Davis,' judge," said one of his companions. Judge Thompson protested. "I have told that story at least—" "Never mind. Let us have it again." And, like the courteous gentleman he is, he yielded.

"When I was in San Francisco," he began, "a tall, good-looking old man used to come to the office to see one of the stenographers in my employ. I learned that he was her uncle, and that he was one of the California pioneers. He told me one day of his experience with Judge Lynch. 'I've had a grudge against my name (Davis) ever since it came near hanging me,' he began. 'You see, I wasn't so tough a looking customer in those days as now, and when one of the mining camp fairies christened me 'Handsome Davis,' to distinguish me from the numerous other Davises thereabouts, the name stuck. Well, one day I was out prospecting north of the city and I suddenly found myself surrounded by 20 armed miners.

"What's yer name?" said the one who seemed to be the leader. "Davis," I answered. They exchanged glances, and the spokesman said: "Well, Davis, git ready, we're going to string you up for killin' Jack Flynn. That was a cowardly, sneaking trick, and you've got to pay for it." He led the way to the nearest tree, and I followed, between two of the biggest miners. "You've made a mistake, men," I said. "My name's Davis, but you have the wrong Davis. I never heard of Jack Flynn," I protested. "Maybe not, but you shot the daylight out of him just the same. Come along." They threw a rope over a limb and told me I had two minutes in which to say my prayers. Instead of praying, I expostulated. "I am from San Francisco," I said. "Oh, yes; maybe you are, and you are wanted there bad, too, but you can't go. You've got to take the train to kingdom come. Hurry up and say your prayers." Just then a man mounted on a mule rode up the knoll. He was tall and slim and had a pointed hat and beard. "It was a Yankee doodle beard," parenthetically explained the judge. "Just like that beard of Tom Carter's."

"Mr. Yankee doodle rode up to us, and transferring a monstrous quid of tobacco from one cheek to another, said mildly: "What are you goin' to do, boys?" "You just wait a minute and you'll see what we're goin' to do. This man put buckshot into Jack Flynn and we're goin' to swing him for it."

"Yankee doodle looked at me reflectively, then reminiscently. "You've got the wrong man, fellers," he drawled. "The feller that plugged Flynn is Sam Davis, and this here one's 'Handsome Davis.' He's from San Francisco. I've seen him there." Yankee was evidently an authority among the fellers. They held a little conference and concluded to let me off. "We'll let you off if you treat the crowd," was the announcement. I agreed."

Before dinner was over the judge was prevailed upon to tell the story of another hairbreadth escape. "This was in Canada," he said, "and the hero, a brawny Scotchman named McNab, who was a fellow-colporteur of my father, Rev. Seymour Thompson, before he entered the ministry. The two became separated for some reason on the night of McNab's adventure. The Scotchman was riding through a forest unarmed. He had a package of Bibles on one side of his saddle, and on the other a string of frozen sausages, which were to be thawed and cooked for his breakfast. A highwayman stopped McNab's pious reflections and his progress at the same time. The Scotchman was frightened. He never denied that. He had a little money in his boot, and he leaned over to remove the boot and satisfy the demand of the robber. His hand struck against the frozen sausages. He bethought of these and hoped they might propitiate the gloomy neighbor and save his money. He broke one of the sausages in two, and was about to offer half to the highwayman, when he found himself alone and heard the clatter of a horse's rapidly retreating hoofs. Badly frightened as he was, McNab laughed. The robber had mistaken the crackling of the sausages for the cocking of a pistol and fled.

"It is too late for another," said the judge, rising from the table, "but some evening between sips of sauteerie, I will tell you how McNab killed a witch with silver buttons."—St. Louis Republic.

Chocolate Pudding. Beat one egg, a half cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and a teaspoonful of cocoa together until very light. Then add a small half cupful of milk and a large cupful of flour in which has been sifted a teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat well and bake in a square pan half an hour. Serve with sauce. The quantity may be doubled and a portion used for the pudding and the rest baked in gem pans.—Ladies' World.

LADIES' FASHIONS.

New Articles of Dress That Are Just Coming Into Vogue. Out of ten costumes imported for handsome day wear that were recently opened to view seven were made with either a bolero jacket or else simulating one by the arrangement of fabrics and trimmings on the bodice front. This jacket fad is likely to increase as the season advances and to last, in some guise or other, through the entire winter.

The lovely tea-rose tints on pink and yellow will be highly favored for handsome evening toilets for autumn and winter, both in heavy silks, brocades and satins, and in the beautiful diaphanous textiles. The lighter, daintier dyes will be first choice, but the deeper colors in buttercup, jonquil, maize, and even orange will be in evidence in the yellow tones, and jacque and damask rose shades, geranium and carnation will rival the softer cameo, canary, honeysuckle and lemon tints in yellow.

A charming model for an evening toilet is of canary-colored silk batiste over a pink and yellow chameleon taffeta silk underskirt and bodice. On the front is a bolero jacket of point de Venise lace, with a crush collar and girdles of pale yellow satin held by buttons of pink pearls intermixed with tiny French brilliants. Between the fronts of the lace bolero shows a full blouse of the shot satin, veiled with pale yellow tulle and banded with pink-pale passementerie.

The hardy Scotch tweeds will have a favored place among the season's popular textiles. The materials will be much used for cycling, tennis and traveling costumes. The patterns are very handsome, many showing a fine rich mixture of heather colors. The durability of these goods is almost endless, and for general utility wear they rank well with English chevot and the pretty cravettes that have a special value in being entirely waterproof.—N. Y. Post.

Fish Pudding Made with Rice. Boil one cup of rice for ten minutes in plenty of salted boiling water. Drain. Take one pound of fish (cod, whitefish or halibut), wipe and saute in hot butter. The fish should be fried golden brown, but only cooked sufficiently to allow of its being broken into flakes. Peel and chop one small onion, and saute in the same pan. Grease a mold, and fill it with layers of the rice, fish and onion, highly seasoned with salt and pepper—the first and last layers being of rice. Steam 45 minutes, and serve with any appropriate fish sauce.—N. Y. Ledger.

Ginger Gems. Beat two tablespoonfuls of butter to a cream. Heat lightly half a cupful of molasses. Add to it a quarter of a cupful of boiling water. Take all from the fire and add a good pinch of baking soda. Pour over this the butter. Add one teaspoonful of ginger and flour to make a batter—less than a cupful will generally answer. Add a little cinnamon and a teaspoonful of baking powder, and bake in gem pans in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.—Ladies' World.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS. (CITY CONTROLLER'S OFFICE, Marquette, Mich., Oct. 22nd, 1896. Pursuant to resolution of the common council of the city of Marquette, notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at this office until 4 o'clock p. m., November 2nd, 1896, for furnishing all labor and material required to make the following street improvement, in accordance with the specifications therefor on file in my office, viz: To grade, curb and macadamize Division street from the north line of Sandstone street to the west line of section twenty-five (25), township forty-eight (48), north of range twenty-five (25), west.

Proposals for said improvement must be in sealed envelopes marked "Division Street Improvement" and must be accompanied by two bonds, with two good sureties, each for a sum at least twice the amount of the bid, one condition for the faithful performance of contract, if awarded, and the other conditioned for the payment of all labor and material claims arising under such contract. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids. FRANKLIN E. BAY, Controller. [10-23-16]

MUNICIPAL LIGHTING. A Couple of Communications Bearing on the Proposition to be Submitted to the Voters Tomorrow.

Experience of Other Cities, Marquette Among Them, Cited as a Warning to the People of Negaunee.

To THE MINING JOURNAL.—The effort of the mayor and Mr. Rae to justify their proceedings to saddle upon this city a lighting plant shows only "surface exploration."

Why don't the mayor and his friends in the council go to Marquette and learn of the experience of our progressive neighbor that the reports of so-called electrical experts are not "all they seem?"

Buchanan, Mich., defeated a proposition to buy an electric light plant because the electors found on investigation that such a plan in almost all cases was a source of expense and not profit.

Gladstone, Mich., lost a plant by fire. Ontonagon found it a failure. The following is a significant advertisement in The Electrical Trade Journal of April, 1896:

Wanted.—Position as superintendent of electric light plant owned by private corporation. Am at present superintendent of a plant owned by the city, but is too much of a political job.

In Hamilton, O., the municipal electric light plant proved a "white elephant." At a meeting of the common council held last December the city clerk rendered an alarming financial statement showing increase of cost and loss of money, and recommended the immediate turning over of the plant to private parties.

Crystal Falls, Orid and Escanaba, all Michigan towns, have had similar sorrowful experiences. The reports of the cost of electric lighting under municipal control in Detroit show that the cost to consumers would be much less under private ownership and that many citizens and property owners who could not afford to pay the electric light tax would pay for it.

These are enough to impel every voter in this city to vote against the scheme. But it is now contended by the large taxpayers owning outlying land in this city not improved but valued at large sums on our assessment roll, that such lands are not liable for taxation for the support of municipal charges, like light, water, police, etc.

THE "BIKE" AND THE DOG. Facts Point to the Belief That the Wheel Is Exterminating the Canine. Advertisement for a bicycle, featuring an illustration of a bicycle.

Every breed of dog has been affected, from the big Newfoundland to the twisted-tailed pug. It is common gossip in sporting circles that a prominent dog dealer formerly doing business on Beekman street was driven out of it through loss of trade occasioned by the constantly increasing use of the bicycle.

Another interesting proof of the fact that the canine race must succumb to the "silent steed" is found in the statistics of those cities where bicycles have to be registered. In Rochester, N. Y., the city clerk's last report showed that the number of machines registered was 21,130, as against 2,819 dogs.

Aside from the fact that many people do not care to go to the expense of paying a high price for a high-bred dog, the majority of wheel-owners appreciate the fact that a dog has a natural antipathy toward wheelmen and wheelwomen, and a consideration for the feelings and comfort of their fellow cyclists has caused many owners of wheels and dogs to dispose of the latter.

Now the value of the dog has so decreased that when he runs away no attempt is made to find him, and once in the hands of the experienced dog-catcher his days are surely numbered. The bicycle is evidently to blame, for were the dog's owner not too busy with his wheel he would find time to go, as in the past, to the pound and redeem him, but as it is owners of lost dogs now often regard the pound as an easy and humane way of disposing of their one-time pets.—N. Y. Journal.

MAMMOTH OF THE MOUNTAINS. Vertebra of a Prehistoric Monster Forty-Four Inches in Circumference. Advertisement for a mammoth vertebra.

The great Cripple Creek district, during its history of but a few years, has been prolific in surprises to the delvers after hidden wealth. The district seems to be able to produce anything from a nugget of gold to the petrified remains of the mastodon. The discovery made by a party of prospectors the other day on Thirty-nine Mile mountain will certainly prove most interesting to scientists, and the "find" will prove to be as great a curiosity as is the nerve of the heads of certain of our municipal departments. Woolly elephants, the megatherium and other mastodons, relics of a prehistoric age, are rather out of our line, but we can produce them if demand should arise. Boundless are the resources of the great gold camp, and if the world doesn't see what it wants here, all it has to do is simply to ask for it.

A few days since a party, consisting of C. S. Witherspoon, J. W. McBeth, W. White and T. Burge, was prospecting upon the northwestern slope of Thirty-nine Mile mountain. Wishing to find water to drink, Witherspoon started up a shallow gulch running up the side of the mountain. The eye of the prospector, long trained by experience, the closest of observation of the earth over which he passed, was caught by what appeared to be an unusually large bone. Mr. Witherspoon at once cleared the debris from his find, and to his great amazement discovered that he had unearthed a section of the vertebra of some gigantic animal, far exceeding in size anything which to-day treads the surface of the earth.

The party at once began a series of explorations, and was rewarded by turning up a large portion of the remains of the prehistoric monster. At the time when D. S. Hall left the party 20 sections of vertebra had been uncovered. When it is stated that one of these sections of backbone measured 44 inches in circumference, the hugeness of the mastodon is obvious. One thigh bone was unearthed which measured in length 49 inches and 40 inches in circumference at the hook joint. One of the bones of the lower foreleg was 39 inches in length, while the tarsal point was 36 inches in circumference. One section of rib was found to be 39 inches in length and 12 inches in circumference.

The discoverers will continue the search until all that remains of the gigantic fossil has been brought to light. They expect to cause it to be mounted, when it will be sent to either a state or national museum. It is probable that this relic of bygone ages will be exhibited to the Cripple Creek public previous to its consignment to its ultimate resting place in one of the educational institutions.—Denver Times.

BETTER THAN GOLD. The Most Valuable Metal—A General Invitation. Advertisement for a metal product.

The uses to which iron is now put would make a list to fill every column in this paper. For almost every imaginable purpose, useful and ornamental, is this most valuable metal adapted. And human ingenuity has made the most of what there is in iron, so that, turn where we will, we see articles made from it. Iron is exceedingly durable, strong, clean and durable. It is made into railings, guards, fences and all sorts of inclosures. It is stamped and figured in the most artistic manner. As wire it serves a thousand purposes. A visit to the factory of E. T. Barnum, the well-known art iron works at Detroit, Mich., will open the eyes of many, however, who may think they are familiar with most of the various uses of iron. This long-established house is chief in Michigan in its line. It manufactures every description of pipe and iron work for exterior and interior use, and has a special and well-known trade in railings, fences, guards and stable fixtures. A large quantity of brass goods is also turned out. Retail dealers are invited to call on the city offices, 100 to 105 Shelby street, and to visit the factory from time to time. Those who cannot call are requested to send for the fine descriptive catalogue of the house, which will reply perusal.

Headaches from Eye Strain. Dr. S. Weir Mitchell says there are many headaches which are due directly to disorders of the refractive or accommodative apparatus of the eyes. In some instances the brain symptom is often the most prominent, and sometimes the sole prominent symptom of the eye troubles, so that while there may be no pain or sense of fatigue in the eye, the strain with which it is used may be interpreted solely by occipital or frontal headache. The long continuance of eye troubles may be the unsuspected source of insomnia, vertigo, nausea and general failure of health. In many cases the eye trouble becomes suddenly mischievous, owing to some failure of the general health, or to increased sensitiveness of the brain from moral or mental causes.—Medical News.

Clovis F. Duval, a French tailor with a shop under the Nester block, committed deliberate suicide by asphyxiating himself. The coroner's jury thinks he did the rash act while temporarily insane through excessive drinking. Family troubles are alleged by others to have combined with this cause.

Duval has been drinking heavily for a week back and threatening suicide as he was wont to do when he had on his drinking spells.

His wife worked with him in the shop. At seven o'clock Tuesday night she quit work and went home, expecting him to follow as soon as supper should be ready. When an hour had come and he did not come she went down town to look for him. She saw from the sidewalk that the shop was dark.

This led her to suppose that he had lain down and gone to sleep, as he did frequently, especially when he was drinking heavily. It was nothing unusual for him to sleep all night in the shop, and there have been periods of five or six days at a time when he would not come home. Knowing his habits she supposed he had lain down and would sleep off his intoxication there as well as anywhere. She turned around and went home without a suspicion of anything wrong.

It could have been only a few minutes after his wife's departure before the tailor determined to carry out his frequent threat of suicide, because when William A. Anger, who is custodian of the McKinley and Hobart club on the floor above, came back from supper he smelled gas. He and Thos. Meads who was also in the room thought it came from a leak in the pipes. They searched, but could not find a trace or a leak. Before eight o'clock the room was locked up while the Republican rally was in progress at the rink. Anger came back at ten o'clock and the gas smelled stronger than ever, but he could not locate the leak.

In the morning the odor was still worse and Anger sent for Lester Clark, the gas man. He soon convinced himself that the gas was not escaping in the club room, but in the tailor shop below. He and Anger and one or two others went down. There were half a dozen ineffectual attempts made to break the door open, and finally Anger was successful. He backed across the entryway, took a running jump at the door and carried it in.

A cloud of gas poured out that nearly suffocated the little knot of invaders. Anger, however, did not stop, but rushed across the floor to the lounge where the body was lying. One touch of the hand showed it to have been cold in death many hours. He shut off the three jets of gas in the room, which were pouring out their fatal fluid full head.

The gas had so far overcome Anger by this time that he could hardly see. Still he could hear, and feel the rush of a stream of gas from some place near the body. Men standing in the door who were less blinded by the gas than he was shouted to him to shut off the pipe which fed the little stove which kept the tailor's room hot. He could not see the stop, but he managed to find it by feeling for it and turned it closed.

When enough gas had escaped from the room so that the party could look around, they found that in addition to turning three large burners on full blast he had disconnected the rubber tube that led from a three-quarter inch pipe to his little stove, and had drawn the tube up on the lounge and laid it along his body so that the orifice came about to his thigh. The gas rushed out of this almost in the suicide's face. He was lying on his back with one leg on the lounge and the other stretched out so it struck the floor. His mouth was wide open.

His family and the coroner were notified. Judge Cray impaneled a jury which reached the conclusion that the disease came to his end by deliberate suicide while suffering from dementia brought on by too heavy drinking.

Didn't Get Their Deserts.

If the notorious navy Jack Dunlavy and his associates, Billy Bushel and Alec Fraser had received their just deserts they would not have been let off with paltry fines.

These three men who assaulted a harmless old French cook, and afterwards resisted the officer who tried to arrest Dunlavy, were taken before Judge Meads for trial yesterday morning. It was not the fault of the judge that the sentences were so mild. He lectured the trio sharply, and fined Dunlavy $20, and the other two $10 apiece.

The blame is to be divided between H. O. Young, Marshal Emmons and Officer Clendenning. Clendenning originally made sworn complaint against all three of them on the charge of resisting arrest, which is a state prison offense. The friends of Dunlavy, the ringleader and worst of the three, joined together and brought pressure to bear upon the officer, the marshal and the prosecuting attorney. Officer Clendenning is probably less to blame than either of the other two for changing the complaint to plain assault, for up till a short time before the time of trial, he refused point blank to change the complaint, saying that if he did so he should consider that he had gone back on his oath. Influence was more successfully brought to bear on the attorney and the marshal, and through them on the officer, who received anything but the support he should have got from his chief.

Marshal Emmons said yesterday afternoon that he thought Dunlavy had been thoroughly scared, and would give the officers no more trouble in the future. He seems to have forgotten that Dunlavy has been dealt leniently with once or twice before on account of his family and the scare that he received has been noticeable only for the short length of time it lasted. By not standing behind officer Clendenning and insisting that he stick to his original charge Marshal Emmons has branded himself and the new police force a gang of soft marks, with whom the toughs and the thugs can do what they please. He does not do justice to the officers because he lessens the wholesome fear and respect which the disreputable element otherwise would have for them, and he does not do justice to the citizens because they are not getting the protection they pay for.

The marshal was moved by the heart-broken condition of Dunlavy's mother, and by the deplorable condition of Fraser's family. He forgets that if these same fellows had been moved by their mothers hearts, or the destitute condition of their families, they would have kept within the limits of the law, and not been in a state's prison scrape.

Should Consult the Wardens. Firewarden Manhard was discussing the troubles of the firewardens in their efforts to have the building regulations observed.

"People who want to build," he said, "should show us their plans and specifications before they go ahead, and let us pass on them. We'll tell them if they are the right kind of buildings to put up."

"Then I suppose you would have no buildings like the Pickands coal warehouse, or the Wetmore sheds?" interrupted a listener.

"We wouldn't have any like the warehouse, but we can't touch the shed. The law says you can build an open shed twelve feet or less on the front, and it's all right so it isn't closed up. But we haven't had any peace since that Pickands building was up. The property owners around there have been going for us every day."

"How long will it be before it is covered with fireproofing?" he was asked.

"The recommendation which we sent to the council, and which was adopted says it must be covered at once. If they don't do it within a reasonable time we'll serve them with a legal notice to do so."

Spoke for a Medal.

Eight temperance boys and girls contested for a silver medal last evening in the Presbyterian church before a crowd that nearly filled the edifice.

Each of the young orators spoke selections from the platform eloquence of noted temperance champions. The speaking with the fine musical program interspersed seemed to be enjoyed by all.

At the conclusion of the speaking, and during the last musical number, the judges compared notes and awarded the first prize, a beautiful silver medal, presented by the W. C. T. U. to Miss Ella Mahar, whose oration was "The Woman's Crusade," No. 2 on the program.

The winner of the first prize has been three years president of the senior legion, and during that time she had the remarkable record of never missing a meeting. She is now superintendent of the junior legion.

Rebecca Celebrated.

The anniversary celebration of the Rebecca held last night in Fraternity hall was a most enjoyable affair attended by upwards of 300 guests.

The hall was prettily decorated with the lodge colors, pink and green. At the front was a pavilion for the officers, and at the rear was the well, typical of the one from which the first Rebecca drew the water for the thirsty camels of her Hebrew suitor.

The literary and musical program was most excellent and of considerable length. It embraced quite a variety of talent.

After the program had been completed the party enjoyed a supper, of which the ladies had brought a bountiful supply in boxes, in which their gentlemen friends gladly purchased half interests at a quarter of a dollar each.

Again the Rollers.

Yesterday afternoon John Helmert signed the lease for the Armory Hall. The time for which the lease is drawn covers all the winter months, and Mr. Helmert proposes to run a roller skating rink in first class style.

So long as the rink is under his management, he says, he will run it so that it will attract the best class of patronage. He reserves the right to refuse admittance to any one, and will not admit persons whose reputations are not the best. In support of this promise he points to the record he made before while running the rink.
