A HITCH IN HER CALCULATIONS. This Story is About a Woman's Strategy a Hat and a Counterfeit Bill. "You know that lovely fall hat I was telling you about the other day," said the young woman in blue.

"I do," replied the young woman in green. "You got it, of course?" "Well, no, I didn't. You see, I—" "But I thought you had only to make up your mind as to the device by which you would coax the money out of your husband. Knowing that you had only been married a year, I looked upon the matter as settled."

"I—well, you see, it was this way: I made him a perfectly lovely salad and after he had eaten it I began to coax him for the hat. He said he couldn't afford it. I—I wouldn't have minded that so much, but he actually said I didn't need it!" "Mercy on us! Then the salad wasn't good, after all?" "Yes, it was; but he had eaten too much and it disagreed with him. Of course, I didn't give up the hat when he said that."

"Why, of course you didn't. You only—" "Set about planning another way to get it? Of course. He was busy at his desk, going over his accounts in that tiresome way that men have. I never thought Jack would turn out to be the least like papa."

"They are all like that after they are married, dear. But about the hat." "O, yes, the hat! While I was perfecting another plan of attack I saw him crumple up a lot of papers, a bank note among them, and fling them, with an exclamation, into the wastebasket."

"Then he had money, after all, and it was only meanness about the hat?" "I saw that in a minute. Well, I pretended that I thought he was through work and coaxing him to come into the parlor and hear me sing. He isn't usually so anxious for that, but he was so glad that I wasn't sulky about the hat that he agreed at once. You see, I was afraid he'd notice the money in the waste basket and—" "You meant to have it yourself? I see."

"Well, if he was so careless with money he deserved to lose it. Unfortunately, however, he had an economical fit and turned off the gas before we went into the parlor, so I couldn't slip back and rescue the money without attracting his attention." "O, well, you could wait, anyhow, until he was safely asleep."

"I did. Then I stole down into the library and rescued it—it proved to be a $20 bill. However, as bad luck would have it, I stepped on one of those horrid burglar alarms on the way back and roused the whole household. Jack came running down with a revolver and nearly shot me for a burglar!" "Gracious! How did you explain?" "Said I had heard somebody moving about downstairs and went to investigate. I wish now I hadn't told him that, for I shall have to live up to a reputation for bravery!" "I'm sorry for you. Still, you had the money."

"The worst of it was that I had dropped the money in my fright, and couldn't find it anywhere, though I got up at daylight to hunt." "Ishaw! Why didn't you offer the servants a reward? That would—" "I did. Offered them five dollars, and the housemaid found it before luncheon. I gave her the five dollars I had promised and telephoned the milliner to send up the hat. However, my conscience troubled me that afternoon, and I decided to tell Jack the maid had found it. You see, I knew he'd give it to me, anyway."

"So you told him? Well, what did he say?" "He said: 'That confounded old counterfeiter again! Is there absolutely no way of getting rid of it?'"—Chicago Tribune.

RIVAL MEETINGS PACKED.

Gold Bugs and Silverites Hold Forth to Crowded and Enthusiastic Houses.

TIM NESTER CHAMPIONS THE WHITE METAL CAUSE.

George W. Seeber Makes Some Bold Claims for McKinley—Gobbles Kentucky and Warns Democrats to Look Out for Texas.

SPEAKERS AROUSE ENTHUSIASM.

There is no such thing as a lagging interest in politics in this section of the peninsula. This fact is fully attested by the crowds that turn out to the almost nightly meetings held by one party or the other, and sometimes both.

Last night both the republicans and the silverites had their meetings going rival to one another and in full blast. Both drew well. This was especially surprising with the republicans as they have a big rally announced for tonight at which Hons. Don M. Dickinson and John L. Tomlinson will appear.

The gentleman's name is Seeber, not Seider, as mistakenly announced by the Republican managers on their posters. He is an ex-congressman from Ohio.

Mr. Seeber's address was in many points similar to the speeches of other campaign orators who have preceded him, but he enjoys the distinction of being the first speaker here to make such radical predictions of Republican victories.

He says the victory is already won. Chicago will give 80,000 for McKinley, and the rest of the state will swell this great plurality 50,000.

Mr. Seeber held his audience for two hours and aroused them to a considerable pitch of enthusiasm.

Since the last address was made in the rink the stage and seating arrangements have been changed for the better. The platform for the speakers has been put over on the other side of the hall, and those coming in the door do not have to pass up the aisle in full view of everyone to find a seat.

The platform is better built than the old one was and is neatly trimmed with bunting. At the back is a monster American flag, and pictures of McKinley and Hobart.

TIM NESTER SPOKE. There was a short notice meeting at the Bryan headquarters, but the hall was packed to the doors just the same.

Every chair was filled and the benches along the sides were crowded. Many stood up.

The speakers of the evening were Nester and Mapes. It was known but a few hours before the time for meeting that the Hon. Tim could be present, and there was no time to get out posters or advertise the meeting except in a very limited way.

Mr. Nester's fame for argument and gesture was such that it drew a full house. He spoke for an hour and a half, and provoked great enthusiasm.

Mr. Mapes followed with a shorter, but still effective address.

Huckleberry Shanty Burned. George Drolet's huckleberry shanty along the tracks half way to South Marquette burned last night.

What started the blaze is not known. The first that was seen of the fire was by some small boys who notified an engineer who blew for the fire, and then someone turned in an alarm from box 22.

The shed was a new one story pine affair about 30x15. It burned like a match box and was well on the road to a total loss before the fire company got on the ground.

This was not the fault of the company though, as both truck and hose cart were blocked at the Genesee street crossing by a freight train, and detained for nearly five minutes. The building was a cheap affair and was not covered by insurance.

CITY BREVITIES.

Weather forecast: Showers and colder. Yesterday's temperature: 7 a. m., 40 degrees; 12 m., 53 degrees; 7 p. m., 54 degrees; maximum, 57 degrees; minimum, 36 degrees.

School Commissioner J. B. Montgomery of Champion was in the city yesterday.

A sign of approaching winter is the store awnings which are coming down all over town.

Warden Van Evera entertained ex-Congressman Seeber who spoke at the rink last night.

The Dead River will be closed down yesterday. It will not be in operation again this season.

Hons. Don M. Dickinson and John L. Tomlinson will be the guests of Hon. Peter White while in the city.

Mrs. C. H. Morse left last evening for Chicago, where she will attend the wedding of her friend, Miss Alice Wood.

Superintendent Kern has been busy for a fortnight fixing up the hydrants, locating leaks and getting the water system in shape for the winter.

Today being the Festival of St. Simon and St. Jude, there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in St. Paul's Cathedral this morning at 10 o'clock.

Judge H. H. Mildon of Ishpeming passed through the city yesterday on his way home from lower Michigan where he has been attending the meeting of the I. O. O. F. grand lodge

WATCH THE PROFESSOR.

How to Get Rid of the Drawing-Room Juggler.

The drawing-room juggler having slyly got hold of the pack of cards at the end of the game of whist, says: "Ever seen any card tricks? Here's rather a good one; pick a card."

"Thank you, I don't want a card." "No, but just pick one, any one you like, and I'll tell you which one you pick."

"You'll tell who?" "No, no; I mean, I'll know which it is, don't you see? Go on, now, pick a card."

"Any one I like?" "Yes." "Any color at all?" "Yes, yes."

"Any suit?" "Oh, yes; do go on." "Well, let me see, I'll pick—the ace of spades."

"Great Caesar! I mean you are to pull a card out of the pack." "Oh, to pull it out of the pack! Now I understand. Hand me the pack! All right—I've got it."

"Have you picked one?" "Yes, it's the three of hearts. Do you know it?"

"Hang it! Don't tell me like that. You spoil the thing. Here, try again. Pick a card."

"All right, I've got it." "Put it back in the pack. Thanks." (Shuffle, shuffle, shuffle—flip.) "There, is that it?" (Triumphantly.)

"I don't know. I lost sight of it." "Lost sight of it! Confound it, you have to look at it and see what it is."

"Oh! You want me to look at the front of it." "Why, of course. Now, then, pick out a card."

"All right, I've picked it. Go ahead." (Shuffle, shuffle, shuffle, flip.) "Say, confound you, did you put the card back in the pack?"

"Why, no, I kept it." "Holy Moses! Listen. Pick a card—just one—look at it—see what it is—then put it back—do you understand?"

"Oh, perfectly. Only I don't see how you are ever going to do it. You must be awfully clever." (Shuffle, shuffle, shuffle, flip.)

"There's your card." "No, I am sorry. That is not my card. But won't you try it again? Please do. Perhaps you are a little excited—I'm afraid I was rather stupid. Won't you go and sit quietly by yourself on the back veranda for half an hour and then try? You have to go home? Oh, I'm sorry. It must be such an awfully clever little trick. Good night!"—N. Y. Truth.

FOR SALE. Two thousand five hundred acres of first class farming lands in towns 41 and 42, range 23 west, and town 43, range 24 west. These lands are covered with large elm, maple and birch and have never been cut over for timber.

JURY CLEARS DUNLAVY.

No Direct Connection Between Tagler's Death and the Navvies' Brutal Assault.

PROSECUTOR SENDS DRUNKEN WITNESS TO THE LOCKUP.

Big Gold Buses Speak Tonight—Silverites Make Claims Too—Sidnaw's Welcoming Program—McKenzie Concert.

DEATH FROM NATURAL CAUSES.

According to the verdict of the coroner's jury Jack Dunlavy was not responsible for the death of Charles Tagler, whom he assaulted a week previous.

This was the only verdict which could be returned in the light of the evidence. The man had chronic Bright's disease and chronic heart's disease. One or the other of these maladies would in the course of time have caused his death. He was in such a condition that it was impossible to trace the sudden end directly to the assault by Dunlavy.

LOOKING FOR THE CAUSE.

The entire investigation of the death consumed parts of three days. The morning of Tagler's death the coroner swore in its jury and had it view the remains. As Prosecutor Young could not come down till Tuesday the inquest proper was postponed. Sunday Dr. A. K. Thiell held an autopsy to see what light science would throw upon the death. Yesterday the inquest was held, and all the witnesses examined, the doctor among them.

The first to take the stand was Jim Cameron, cook at the soup house Tagler ran. He told the most connected story of the fight.

According to him Tagler, after asking Dunlavy what he hit the old man for, and receiving the reply that he had good cause to do it, opened up hostilities by striking the navy with a poker. Dunlavy took the weapon away from him, threw it in the street and slugged him. The fighters clinched, and both went down to the sidewalk together as Officer Clendenning came up. The officer started to take Dunlavy, who resisted, and was assisted in the act by Fraser. At this Clendenning turned on the last comer and put him under arrest. Tagler was just rising to his hands and knees when Dunlavy kicked him in the face and in the body. Tagler made another effort to get on his feet. Just as he straightened up he was tripped and slugged, and fell heavily a second time, sliding about six feet down the sidewalk.

The witness said that Tagler didn't complain much that night about the assault, but that every day after that he complained about his face, side and arm. Friday night, the one before he died, he asked the cook to stay in his place as he didn't feel like working. He admitted having seen and talked with Dunlavy two days afterwards in Shea's saloon, but either couldn't or wouldn't remember any of the conversation.

Officer Clendenning told the story of the arrest and the resistance. The only new point brought out by him was that he had cautioned the gang several times before in the evening, as they were all rather noisy.

WITNESS WAS DRUNK.

Charles Peterson was in the restaurant eating a bowl of soup when the fracas started. He saw some of the fight. He was not, however, at all anxious to tell what he knew, and in addition to this he was drunk. The prosecutor soon tripped him up on contrary statements he made on the stand, and threatened to have him taken off to the lockup till he was in condition to testify. After another effort to get his testimony this course was resorted to. After about an hour in the cooler he was brought back, but all that could be got out of him was that he saw Dunlavy and Tagler scuffling on the sidewalk. He claimed he didn't have curiosity enough to stay to see the end of the fracas, but went back into the restaurant and finished his soup.

Tom Deegan, the man who heard Tagler gasping in his room was called on to testify next. He told how he ran in and found him in a dying condition, and called for help. Tagler never spoke after Deegan came to him. Patrick Griffin, who responded to the call for help corroborated the details of Deegan's story.

Mrs. Griffin told of the complaints Tagler had made since the assault. She said he complained of his arm and head but said nothing of his side. In the year he had worked for her he seemed to be in usually good health.

SHE SAW THE FIGHT.

Mrs. Frank Hargren whose living rooms are over a saloon only a few doors from where the fracas occurred saw part of it. She saw the men clinch, and saw Dunlavy throw Tagler to the sidewalk, and afterwards kick him. She wasn't exactly certain where he was kicked, but thought it was in the face. She saw Dunlavy knock Tagler over when he rose to his feet, and remarked how hard he fell.

Mrs. T. M. Donovan described how she dressed the wound in Tagler's face. Every day from the time of the assault till his death he was over to her house several times, and always complained of his hurts. She said Tagler didn't know exactly how he was hurt, whether he was kicked or struck with brass knuckles.

Arthur Williams, the night man at the main restaurant, over which the dead man lodged, said that he complained of pain in his arm and side every night, and described the last time he saw him in life when he went to wake him Saturday morning.

AS SEEN BY AN EXPERT.

On the testimony of Dr. A. K. Thiell hinged the finding of the jury. Had he from the autopsy discovered that death was directly due to the assault and so testified the jury would have had no course honestly but to have decided that the dead man came to his end from the assault.

This the doctor was not prepared to swear to. He found things which were probably the result of the assault, and may have had a bearing on the death but the man also had chronic heart's disease and chronic Bright's disease, either of which might have carried him off at any time. The immediate cause of death was a clot of blood which lodged in the pulmonary valve and extend three quarters of an inch into the pulmonary artery.

Speaking privately of the case to a reporter Dr. Thiell said two years of life was about all Tagler could have reasonably expected anyway, as his Bright's disease would have killed him in that time. But he said further that if the man had died after a fall instead of an assault, he thought no doctor would have hesitated to say the fall was indirectly the cause of his death, and believe it in his own mind, yet there was not that absolute certainty in his mind which would warrant him in making such a statement when the liberty of a man was at stake.

In closing his evidence he told the jury that he was not prepared to say the assault led up to the death.

A verdict was rendered in accordance with this testimony.

The body was shipped last night by Hager Bros. to a sister of the deceased in Detroit.

Miss McKenzie's Recital.

The concert held in the Presbyterian church, at which was starred Miss Rebecca McKenzie, the Scottish-American soprano, was fairly well attended by an audience of people whose tastes are musically inclined.

In Miss McKenzie the audience did not, perhaps, find all it expected. Her voice is clear, sweet and pure. She takes the high notes in her register with ease, but she is affected in her style and has some marked mannerisms that detract from the pleasure of listening to her. Her voice seems better adapted for ballad singing than for the operatic styles of music she apparently aspires to. She invariably received more applause from the rendition of her simple Scotch ballads than from her other selections.

The evening's program was helped out by a number of other selections. Mrs. A. E. Brown's organ solo was good. "Life's Lights and Shadows" was excellently rendered by Ed Wilkinson. He gave as an encore Nevin's "A Fair Good Night."

The piano, violin and cello trio by Miss Grace Kemp, and Messrs. Muhlbaur and Fohrman was well received. Prof. Muhlbaur himself gave as a violin solo a Fantasia by De Beriot. It was finally rendered and provoked many complimentary remarks. Mrs. E. J. Steele and Carl Lonnerblad rendered effectively the duet from Il Travatore.

Big Rally Tonight.

Tonight the Republicans will hold a big demonstration in the rink. The speakers will be Hon. Don. M. Dickinson and Hon. John L. Tomlinson. Mr. Dickinson is well known in the upper peninsula and especially in Marquette. Mr. Tomlinson is the law partner of Hon. Bourke Cockran, and like him is a gold Democrat who believes that the best way to secure sound money is to vote for McKinley. He is reputed to be a fine orator.

The Republicans are making efforts to have tonight's demonstration on a big scale. Excursion rates have been made on the railroad and the home crowd will be swelled as much as possible by those from the copper country and up-the-road points. Music will be furnished by the band, and the bicycle brigade will turn out as an escort to the speakers.

Silver in Sidnaw.

A Sidnaw man who was in town yesterday says that Sidnaw is the hottest silver town in the upper peninsula. According to this authority the place now aspires to the name "Silver City." Tonight Rush Culver and Tim Nester are billed to speak there, and the white metalists in the little town have prepared a celebration that is more like a Fourth of July blow out than a campaign demonstration. They have raised thirty or forty dollars which they will spend on red fire and cannon crackers.

The voracious silverite who tells this tale further says that a 3 o'clock in the afternoon the only McKinley and Hobart flag in the town will be pulled down to half mast and the Bryan and Sewall emblem be hoisted in its stead.

How Good Is That Poll?

Few of the silverites are inclined to concede the accuracy of the Republican poll. The tone of the assertions among the white metalists is that one half of it is guess work and the other half can't be relied upon. There are numerous instances of single men who were not visited in wards claimed to be carefully polled, and there is a man who runs a boarding house where twenty men live, who says that not a canvasser has been near the place.

President Diamond of the Bryan club goes right in the teeth of the canvass, and asserts that the silverites will carry the town by a big majority.
