A MARQUETTE MINUTIE. Old Judge O'Keefe has the reputation of being one of the best men who ever sat on a justice's bench in the upper peninsula. There are old residents living here who swear they'd take Judge O'Keefe's opinion in preference to that of the supreme court any day.

It seems the judge set a time for a case and impanelled a jury, but when the time came only one juror showed up. He was a man named Rhodes, who worked in the old M. H. & O. shops.

Both parties to the case were on hand with their lawyers and each side was anxious to have it go on trial. Both of the litigants wanted a jury, but each expressed his willingness to have Rhodes serve in lieu of the usual six.

So many things were left over which could easily be turned into cash by prolonging the sale that the ladies who are managing the fair have decided to hold it one day and evening more this week, and have decided on Tuesday for the purpose.

Middle and Harbor Gossip. The Traverse was in last night going up. The Wawatam is unloading coal at Pickard's dock.

It is quite probable that several of the harbor tug companies around the lakes will soon be figuring on additions to their fleets and the boats to be built will undoubtedly be steel tugs of the largest type.

The American frigate Yantic, Captain Moore, from Boston to Detroit, via Quebec, Montreal, the lakes and canal, collided with the American transportation company's steamer, the Canadienne, Captain Masson, at Point Au Pizeau, six or seven miles above Quebec.

Still the steady weather holds on and the insurance companies rejoice thereat. Their losses thus far this season have been comparatively trifling. The fall so far has been the quietest the lakes have known for years.

but the great loss to the insurance men is not caused by disasters of that kind. They have little concern about the old-timers, for they have been so discriminated against and their values have so shrunken under the pressure of the test put upon them by the insurance men that their passing out will be of little moment.

OUT WITH THEIR NETS.

Closed Season for Whitefish Begins Today and Fisherman Can Catch No More.

CUTS TWO MONTHS OFF THE SEASON AT MARQUETTE.

Disparity in Michigan and Wisconsin Laws—Deputies Are Overcharging for Deer License Affidavits—What Ross Will Do.

MATTERS OF PROFIT AND SPORT.

Today is the first day of the closed season for whitefish, and it will go hard with any tug or sailboat crew which raises another net before Dec. 15. This is the law which was passed at the last session of the legislature. The effect of it will be to cut the fishing season short eight or ten weeks, though the work at this time of the year is said not to be so profitable as earlier in the season on account of lost time from bad days. Some of the fishermen do not feel very pleased with the law, as they claim it was passed in the interests of the large packing companies to enable them to sell their Canadian-bought fish, which are cheaper and which will afford them a larger profit. Saturday's trip was the last which the fishermen will make out of here this season, for it will not pay them to begin operations after the first of the year even should the lake chance to be open. Today the crews will begin laying the boats up for the winter. In Wisconsin, where the season closed fifteen days earlier than it did here, the fishermen are feeling even more dissatisfied than those in Michigan. It is reported from Sheboygan that the suspension of fishing operations under the provisions of the state law has made 100 men, with families numbering 400 persons, idle for the six weeks fixed as a close season. The eight tugs engaged in fishing are laid up and the law is strictly observed. A strong desire is expressed to raise a protest against the inconsistency of the law of Wisconsin and Michigan, however, that may lead to a memorial to the legislature at its next session. The law of this state provides for a close season beginning Nov. 1 and continuing until Dec. 15, while the Wisconsin season is two weeks earlier. The grounds of the fishermen on both shores are in midlake, and while Wisconsin nets were kept off the grounds the last two weeks in October, those of the fishermen of this state were filled nightly. Wisconsin fishermen, therefore, sit with folded hands and see their neighbors fish through two weeks of the spawning season in the very beds they are prohibited from using. While obeying the law, they deem it a hardship that the acts of the two states do not conform in the opening and closing of the close season.

Some of the deputies who were appointed by the county clerk to take affidavits for hunters' licenses have been gouging those who have gone to them to make their affidavits and have been charging them more than a proper fee. The appointments of deputies for this purpose is merely a matter of convenience. There is no provision made for them in the law. They can charge what they please, but the county clerk has a check on them, and if they exact more than is reasonable he can bring them up with a short turn. "I have been informed," said County Clerk Ross, "that on account of the excessive charges of some of the deputies who have been taking affidavits, the issue of licenses will be smaller this year than usual." "Now while I have no power to say what the deputies may charge I feel that the people must be protected, and if the fees are not reduced I will set apart a day or part of a day for each of the principal places in the county and will visit them myself for the purpose of taking affidavits. When I determine to do so I will give notice through the newspapers." If the fees are not reduced and Mr. Ross makes good his threat he will knock the business of the deputies cold. Under the law he is obliged to take the affidavits free, the only charge he can make being the seventy-five cents for the license. The hunters will naturally go where they can get their permits the cheapest, and the deputies will find that they have done themselves out of a nice little perquisite by their own cupidity.

Month in the Schools.
The school board met in its regular meeting Saturday to handle the business that had come up in the public schools in the past month. Miss Chandler sent a communication to the board calling its attention to the need of vocal instruction in the high school. She said that the pupils had been given some drill by the teachers and that all evinced interest in the work, so much so that she thought it ought to be continued with the assistance of a competent music teacher, who would come in and give the instruction at set hours or times. The board laid the communication on the table for one meeting, but it was the sense of those present that her suggestion had best be followed, and it is likely a committee will be appointed to take up the matter next meeting. The superintendent also sent a list of about a hundred books to the board, which she asked that body to purchase for the use of the school. All or nearly all of the books are in the public library, but they are books that should be read in connection with the studies of the scholars, and if they were kept in the school the teachers would be sure the pupils drew the books when instructed to do so. This list occasioned quite a discussion on the board. Moderator Niedhart was in favor of asking the library board to send up a chest of books (those on the list) to the school, as is done in Detroit and Grand Rapids, but said he was aware there would be objection to this by the library authorities, who feared the books drawn at the school would not show as patronage of the library and thus hurt its record. A plan was suggested by which this could be overcome and the books show in the statistics as if drawn from the library itself. Trustee Clark favored having the children draw the books from the library where they are under greater restrictions and greater responsibilities, and Trustee Johnson thought they had enough to do with their regular studies without being obliged to do outside reading. No action was taken on the matter, but one of the members was instructed to send the list to a publishing house and see what it could be filled for, so the board would have the price in case it chose to order a purchase at its next meeting.

Assessor White, who is chairman of the truancy committee, reported a sad case of juvenile depravity. A month or six weeks ago the truancy officer found two boys, aged ten and fourteen, who were unable to go to school for lack of proper clothes. He brought them down to Mr. White, who asked the boys if they would go to school regularly if he would take them out and buy them complete outfits. Both agreed. A clothing merchant fitted the pair out from top to bottom for the very modest sum of $11.75. A haircut, badly needed by the elder boy, brought the total expense up to $12. They went away with beaming faces and reiterated promises to begin school the very next morning. But they never went near a school, and the truancy officer hasn't been able to find them since!

Moderator Niedhart called the board's attention to the fact that the coming distribution of the primary school interest fund would be the largest in its history. The amount the Marquette schools receive will probably be greater than heretofore, in spite of the fact that the school population fell off forty-four in the past year.

Hung a Stuffed Man.
Halloween's celebration in Marquette spread over both Saturday and Sunday nights. The boys were out with jack lanterns and tin horns, and as far as older people were concerned, made nuisances generally of themselves, but there were no serious depredations. Some boys who wanted to have a good time on an elaborate scale made a dummy, about the size of a sixteen year old boy and ran it up nearly to the top of the high school flagstaff, where they fastened it securely. The dummy is hung by a noose around its neck. The figure is so well made and at the height looks so lifelike, that a stranger might be excused for thinking that he had happened on a lynching.

All Saints' eve, or Halloween, originated in Rome in the seventh century, at the time the Pantheon was converted into a Christian place of worship. The principal part of the Halloween ritual formerly consisted of lighting a fire before the door of each household. Halloween is a relic of Paganism, and of the time when spirits from both worlds were supposed to walk on earth. And to this day though we may not believe in fairies and witches, if there is any night of the year when the imagination may indulge in all sorts of wild fancies it is the last night of October. This is the charmed night of all the year for the young people who are desirous of looking into the future and of divining the probabilities of marriage. It is an old belief that children born on this night are supposed to be able to see and converse with supernatural beings.

Tight as a Drum.
There was a rumor in active circulation the latter part of last week that the Sunday closing fight would take a new turn yesterday. It was said that one of the saloon keepers, to test the present action of the mayor, would keep his saloon wide open all day Sunday, in defiance of the order. A few bets were offered that this would be done. Among outsiders the move was regarded as a useless test but a good thing from a speculative point of view. The one saloon would certainly have done a land office business, and under the law its proprietor could have been arrested but once. If he escaped with the usual fine of $50 there would have been profit in the venture. If any one of the saloon men had serious intention of keeping open yesterday he changed his mind, for there was not a one of them who had his front door open, and there seemed to be an even better observance of the back door order than on any Sunday since the closing was enforced.

ONE WOMAN'S WORK.

The Hard Life of Toil Experienced by the Indian Woman Seems Incredible to Their White Sisters of To-day.

Perfect Health Gave Them Power.

Their Knowledge of Disease and How to Cure it the Secret of Their Health and Their Ability to Accomplish Wonders.

The Indian women were proverbially strong, healthy and hearty. Such diseases as are common with women of today were unknown to them. They were worthy, indeed, to be the mothers of a race that has become known to history as possessing lives of great duration free from pain and sickness. The reason was due simply to the then great knowledge of the Indians as how to cure disease by the aid of Nature's remedies. The Kickapoo Indian squaws, for any derangements of the female organs, used what is to-day known as Kickapoo Indian Prairie Plant, and to it they attribute their long life and perfect health. Kickapoo Indian Prairie Plant is identically the same to-day as it was when used by the Kickapoo Indian women, and can to-day be had for $1 a package. It is quick in its action, giving almost instant relief, and is positive in its effect, having accomplished many cures that seem nothing short of miracles. The following letter, in this connection, will explain itself:

"Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Gentlemen: I have used your Kickapoo Indian Prairie Plant now for three weeks. I find it has afforded me the greatest relief. I have spoken of it to several of my friends who have been troubled in a manner similar to myself, and they intend to purchase it at once. Your grateful, Mrs. Hester Miller, Kevere, Mo."

To sufferers who are not exactly sure of the cause of their trouble we would advise sending for our pamphlet entitled the Kickapoo Indian Doctor, which is filled with useful information. It will give you particulars in regard to various symptoms of diseases and their cure, mailed free to any address by the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Company, New Haven, Conn.
