PRESIDENT OF FRANCE IS DEAD IN PARIS.

Demise of M. Faure Late Last Night After an Illness of But Three Hours.

APOPLEXY STRIKES DOWN THE REPUBLIC'S GREAT MAN.

NEWS THROUGHS THE STREETS WITH EXCITED CROWDS.

Startling Event Has Its Aftermath in Grave Apprehensions, Notably in London, of Serious Political Troubles, and Possibly Revolution.

SCRAMBLE ALREADY FOR THE OFFICE.

Paris, Feb. 16.—M. Felix Faure, president of the republic of France, died at 10 o'clock tonight after an illness of but three hours. The president died of apoplexy. It has been known for some time that his heart was weak, but the first intimation that he was sick was given at half-past six this evening, when a message was dispatched to the premier, M. Dupuy, announcing that the president was ill. M. Dupuy immediately repaired to Elysee palace.

All medical efforts proved futile, and the president died at 10 o'clock. The members of the family, who had been summoned at 8 o'clock, were all present when M. Faure breathed his last. The flag on Elysee was immediately lowered to half-mast, and the news dispatched to all the officers and members of the cabinet. General Zurlinden, military governor of Paris, the grand chancellor of the Legion of Honor, the prefect of the Seine, the prefect of the police and the presidents of the senate and chamber of deputies promptly arrived at Elysee. The report spread rapidly through the city, and large crowds soon assembled in the vicinity of the palace.

CONTEST FOR SUCCESSOR.

The cabinet will meet tomorrow to fix the date for convening a national assembly at Versailles to elect M. Faure's successor. The national assembly, consisting of the senate and chamber of deputies, united in congress, however, will probably meet Saturday. It is expected the struggle for the presidency will be very keen. M. Dupuy, the premier, is supposed to have the best chance, and the contest is regarded as lying between him and Henri Brisson and M. Loubet. Other possible candidates are M. DeFreycinet, minister for war; Godfrey Cavaignac, former minister for war, and M. Quesnay de Beaufort. Under the present exceptionally exciting conditions, anything may be expected to happen. Much depends upon what General Zurlinden, military governor of Paris, as the head of the military element, may decide to do.

Nothing could have given an idea of the approaching death. Up to the very last M. Faure indulged in his customary habits, work and even his equestrian rides. He ate well and slept regularly. Nevertheless, several times recently he had been heard to exclaim, "How weak my legs are," "I can scarcely stand," or some such remark. When the president became ill Dr. Humbert was called. He did not consider the case serious, but on finding his patient did not revive he decided to inject caffeine. The president, however, apparently was aware of the seriousness of the attack, for he expressed a desire to see his wife and children. His wife soon came to him and he bade her an affectionate farewell. It was a touching scene. A few minutes before M. Faure died he lost consciousness.

Francois Felix Faure, sixth president of the third republic of France, was born Jan. 20, 1841, in Paris, and was the son of a cabinet maker. He was educated at a private commercial school and then sent to England for two years to learn the language and become acquainted with the English methods of business. On his return he settled at Havre as a commission merchant and soon became a leading ship owner. Later he became president of the Havre Chamber of Commerce, and during the Franco-Prussian war held the office of deputy mayor of the city.

In August, 1881, M. Faure offered himself as the Republican candidate for parliament in the Third district of Havre and was elected. He was appointed under secretary of state for the colonies in the Gambetta administration, and held the same office in the ministries of Jules Ferry, Brisson and Tirard. In May, 1891, he became minister for the marine in the Dupuy cabinet, and was appointed vice president of the chamber of deputies. On the retirement of M. Casimir-Perier, who resigned the presidency Jan. 16, 1895, he was chosen president by 430 votes, as against 361 given to Henri Brisson, the election taking place Jan. 17.

All who came into contact with M. Faure describe him as extremely winning in character as well as in appearance. In 1897 M. Faure went to St. Petersburg to return the visit of Emperor Nicholas, and while there the definite announcement of the treaty of alliance between France and Russia was made. He filled many important public offices, but in the midst of the almost general corruption he passed unscathed.

Ireland." The resolutions were telegraphed to the French government.

HASTENED HIS END.

The Paris correspondent of The Daily News expresses the opinion that the Dreyfus affair hastened M. Faure's end. "General Mercier had refused to play the role of scapegoat by leaving the country," says the correspondent, "and had determined to remain in France and bring down all of his colleagues with him if a crash came. M. Faure saw the abyss yawning before him and signs of a coming presidential campaign against him. He had long been menaced by revelations of family secrets and by the anti-Dreyfusites, and he was apprehensive of the effect of these things on the courts of Europe."

M'KINLEY DEEPLY GRIEVED.

Boston, Feb. 16.—President McKinley, upon being informed of the death of President Faure, expressed his surprise and grief. A suitable message of condolence will be sent tomorrow by the president through Secretary of State Hay. None of the members of the cabinet cared to express any opinion other than profound regret.

SEEK REFUGE IN MANILA.

TURN IN THE SENTIMENT OF THE BETTER CLASS OF NATIVES.

Manila, Feb. 17.—11:50 a. m.—United States ex-Consul Williams is in receipt of an application from a member of the insurgent congress at Malolos for a pass through the American lines for a family of twelve persons who are desirous of taking refuge in Manila. This is regarded as significant, as showing that the most intelligent rebels realize their families are safe only within American territory.

With the exception of a few shots fired into a small body of rebels who were attempting to destroy a railroad bridge near Calocan, all has been quiet along the line so far this (Friday) morning. Last night the heat affected the men in the open country to some extent, but otherwise the health of the troops shows marked improvement since the beginning of hostilities.

DRIVEN INTO THE JUNGLE.

Manila, Feb. 16.—A large body of the enemy were discovered on the right of General King's position, near San Pedro Macati, this (Thursday) morning. The entire brigade turned out. After an exchange of volleys the rebels retreated into the jungle.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The authorities here expect that the Americans will occupy Cebu, the third important city of the Philippines, by the end of the week. One of Dewey's ships will be sent to the extreme south of the archipelago to secure an alliance with the Sultan of the Sulu Islands.

SNOW BURIES MARYLAND.

WINTER STORM SWEEPS OVER A BIG SLICE OF THE STATE.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 16.—It has been snowing heavily here since noon. The storm is general in this section of the state. The fall is as great as that of Sunday and Monday, and there are grave fears the railroads in this neighborhood will be again completely blocked. Great apprehension is also felt that a flood in the upper Potomac will occur, because of the ice gorges and high water.

WAIL FROM COLORADO.

Aspen, Colo., Feb. 16.—It has been snowing for the past thirty-six hours here, and the conditions at the surrounding camps are further complicated. At Independence about a dozen people are still hemmed in with two teams, and the problem of their getting out is becoming serious. The miners at Ashcroft have not been heard from for a month. The snowfall in this camp has been the heaviest for fifteen years. In the spring of 1884 twenty men were killed by slides in the vicinity of Aspen.

ATKINSON BILL IS BURIED FOR THIS BALANCE OF THE SESSION

A NEW TAXATION PLAN THAT FINDS FAVOR IN THE SENATE.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 16.—Governor Pingree's legislative following has relinquished all hope of getting the so-called Atkinson railroad taxation bill out of the hands of the house committee. The house committee today decided to appoint two sub-committees of five each—one to frame a bill that will take in railroad, telephone, telegraph, express, vessel and such other property as they may see fit to include, and the other to frame a general taxation bill.

In the senate the Republicans decided to draft an entirely new bill, which will follow very closely the lines of the Merriam act (enacted at the last special session, which levies specific taxes to the amount of $946,000) which will nearly, if not quite, double this sum. A canvass of the senate seems to insure the latter bill's passage.

HISSES FOR WAR SECRETARY ALGER.

Boston, Feb. 16.—President McKinley arrived in Boston today to be the guest of the Home Market club. Secretaries Long, Alger, Gage and Smith, of his cabinet, accompanied him, together with Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio. The arrival of the presidential train this morning was the occasion for a great outburst of enthusiasm from the citizens who lined the streets on both sides from the depot to the hotel. The time after the arrival was spent in quietude until 4:15, when the president was escorted to Mechanics' Hall to participate in the reception and banquet of the club. Mr. McKinley tomorrow will visit the G. A. R. encampment, dine at the Algonquin club and hold a reception there, and then leave Boston in the evening. A feature of the reception to the party today was the many yells of derision and hisses for General Alger heard along the line of march and even amid the general cheering for the president. F. E. Taft died suddenly while sitting at the table during the banquet tonight.

GREATEST BANQUET YET.

The crowning event of the day, and the principal feature of the president's visit to Boston, was the banquet tendered him by the Home Market club at Mechanics' Hall tonight. It was the largest banquet ever arranged in this country, the exact number of persons who were served being 1,914. Besides, fully 3,800 spectators were in the balconies. The presidential party left the Hotel Touraine under a cavalry escort at 4:20 and proceeded through an immense cheering crowd direct to the hall. A reception was held in the Paul Revere hall, and for over three-quarters of an hour President McKinley and the other distinguished guests stood in lines and were introduced to and shook hands with fully twenty-five hundred persons.

At 6 o'clock the immense company marched into Mechanics' Hall. The hall was beautifully decorated with bunting, shields and electric lights. Large portraits of Washington, Lincoln and McKinley hung over the stage and underneath was the word "Liberators" in large letters. President McKinley sat at the front of the platform, and among those at his table were Bishop Mallahan, Mayor Quincy of Boston, Secretary Long, Secretary Alger, Governor Wolcott, Secretary Gage, Postmaster General Smith, Secretary Bliss, Governor Rollins of New Hampshire and ex-Mayor Strong of New York. The invocation was pronounced by Bishop Mallahan. There was great enthusiasm when the dinner had been concluded and some of the tables were taken away to make room for chairs. President Plunkett introduced Governor Wolcott and then Mayor Quincy, who made a brief address welcoming the president.

MR. M'KINLEY'S ADDRESS.

The president was then introduced and spoke, in part, as follows: "I do not know why, in the year 1899, this republic has unexpectedly had placed before it mighty problems which it must face and meet. They have come, and are here, and they could not be kept away. Many who were impatient for a conflict a year ago, apparently heedless of its larger results, were the first to cry against the far-reaching consequences of their own act. Those of us who dreaded the war most, and whose every effort was directed to prevent it, had fears of new and grave problems which might follow its inauguration. The evolution of events which no man could control has brought these problems upon us. Certain it is that they have not come through any fault on our own part, but as a high obligation, and we meet them with a clear conscience and unselfish purpose, and with good heart resolve to undertake their solution.

"In the prosecution and conclusion of the war the great majority of our countrymen of every section believed they were fighting in a just cause, and at home, or on sea, or in the field, they had part in the glorious triumphs. It was the war of an undivided nation. Every great act in its progress, from Manila to Santiago, from Guam to Porto Rico, met universal and hearty commendation. The protocol commanded the practically unanimous approval of the American people; it was welcomed by every lover of peace beneath the flag.

A DUTY WE CANNOT SHIRK.

"The Philippines, like Cuba and Porto Rico, were entrusted to our hands by the war, and to that great trust, under the providence of God, and in the name of human progress and human civilization, we are committed. It is a trust we have not sought; it is a trust from which we will not flinch. The American people will hold up the hands of their servants at home to whom they commit its execution, while Admiral Dewey and General Otis and the brave men whom they command will have the support of the country in upholding our flag where it floats, the symbol and assurance of liberty and justice.

"What nation was ever able to write an accurate program of the war upon which it was entering, much less decree in advance the scope of its results? Congress can declare war, but a higher power decrees its bounds and fixes its relations and responsibilities. The presi-

Almost Raised from the Dead by Dr. Coderre's Red Pills.

Some people would call the case of Mrs. Ferdinand Giguere a miracle—an intervention of Providence—but that would be a mistake. Her case simply shows the wonderful advance of medical science. It demonstrates the power of that most famous of all female remedies—Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women.

As long as breath remains in a woman's body, there is hope for her recovery. A thousand doctors may fail to help her. A thousand medicines may prove utterly worthless. But these pills will cure her. No woman was ever nearer death than Mrs. Giguere, and yet she is alive and well today. The priest who recommended Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women, said: "My case was hopeless. Six weeks I was kept in bed by constant hemorrhages. I was unable to walk. I was the shadow of myself, pale and thin. I received all the last sacraments of the church. One night the Sisters of Providence attending me thought I was dead and put a well on my face. The priest who brought me the communion suggested that Dr. Coderre's Red Pills be tried. I had not much faith in them, because I had tried so many remedies, but I took them, just the same. After six weeks I was completely cured."

Free professional advice in women's diseases will be given by our French specialists to all sufferers who write us. Send your name and address on a postal card and get a free copy of our book, "Pale and Weak Women."

Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are widely imitated. Beware of all red pills sold by the dozen, the hundred or at 25c. They are worthless imitations. Get the genuine at all honest druggists. They have them—always 50 Red Pills in a box for 50c, or 6 boxes for $2.50. Or you can send the price in stamps, or by registered letter, money order or express order to us. We mail them all over the world; no duty to pay.

Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, at 50c a box, last longer than liquid medicines costing $1. They are easier to take, more convenient to carry, and they cure. Address all letters to THE FRANCO-AMERICAN CHEMICAL CO., Medical Department, Montreal, Canada.

MARQUETTE, MICH., FEB. 17.

WILL GIVE CUBANS A CHANCE.

Advices from Washington state that the president has in contemplation the advisability of withdrawing most of the American garrison from Cuba and giving the people of the island an opportunity to prove their capacity for self-government by actual test. To provide them with the means required to carry on the government they will set up, an issue of Cuban bonds will be made, the United States guaranteeing the bonds in order to make it possible to float them. The new government will be conducted under an American protectorate, and its financial affairs will be confined to agents of the United States government for the time being, in order to ensure proper administration of its monetary affairs, in which we, as guarantors of its bonds, will have an interest.

Such a government as proposed would not be backed by an American military force, and would doubtless be given every chance to show what it could do to maintain order in Cuba. If it succeeded in doing this the United States would gradually withdraw its directing control and Cuba would become fully free and independent. But if the experiment should result, as we are compelled to believe it would, in failure, there could be no objection raised to having our government to assume entire control of the island and establish there a government suited to the needs of its people, and backed by a military force sufficient to compel obedience to its authority.

The scheme is a shrewd one, and if it is adopted there can be little doubt of what the final result will be. It will demonstrate to the world the incapacity of the Cubans for self-government, and enable the United States to obtain control of the island free from any reproach for breach of faith, and with universal approval of its course.

BERESFORD'S MISSION.

It has been said that one of the most magnificent declarations of the country was that of the English statesman when he said: "England will keep the ports of China open to the commerce of all the world." Now comes Lord Charles Beresford, admiral of the British navy, on this quest. He is in America today as the representative of the associated chambers of commerce of Great Britain, and his mission is to secure some endorsement of the open door policy in the far east.

The New York Herald has made a canvass of the chambers of commerce of the country on the subject of the future development of trade with the Chinese empire. The inquiry has developed all along the line the most profound appreciation of the advantages of the Chinese trade. Every American manufacturer seems to be alive to the fact that Hong Kong is the artery through which the needs of 80,000,000 of people may be reached—and millions more beyond that. They all seem to be familiar with the statistics of the Chinese trade—statistics to which France and Germany can turn with wondering eyes.

To the end that the visit of Lord Charles Beresford awakens the lively interest of the American manufacturer in our foreign trade his mission is a good one. Lord Charles believes in the preservation of the integrity of the Chinese empire and he wants it guaranteed by the following combination of powers: Germany, United States and Great Britain. He does not think that the commercial question can be separated from the political one. He wants to secure China from the encroachment of any land grabbing nation. What he wants is to guarantee unrestricted trade.

So far as spheres of influence are concerned the United States is not seeking any in China. It will, however, demand equal trade privileges with other nations. John Gilmer Speed, the well known lecturer, speaking of the decadence of village life, and trusts, says: "This concentration of capital has resulted in a cheapness of production which has enabled us to compete in the markets of the world, but it has also taken away from our people the variety of their employments. The effect on the small artisans, the individual workers of the country villages, is entirely definite. They have been cheapened off the face of the earth. What does it profit a man to have white bread to eat instead of corn meal mush, what good is it to him to wear shoddy tweeds instead of home-made jeans if the independent spirit of him be crushed and his ambitions circumscribed by ever-narrowing limitations of opportunity? I believe it has resulted in the making of a few very rich men and multitudes of very cheap ones." And this belief is growing. Public sentiment is the repository of all the power in this country. That sentiment is rapidly preparing to deal with trusts.

DAY OF SMALL THINGS GONE BY.

The Boston Transcript notes as a singular fact that though the country's production of pig iron in 1928 was the greatest ever achieved in a single year, more small plants had to go out of commission than in any previous year in the history of the iron industry. We were not aware that this was so until we learned of it from the Transcript, but if it is so it illustrates an inexorable tendency in the industrial economy of the day.

Everywhere the small plant is giving way to the large one; the small dealer to the big fellow who can command all the capital he needs; the individual tradesman to the great factory and the individual to the combination. What all this will eventually lead to there is no forecasting, but already is heard many a wish for the return of the good old times when we had less of vast accumulations of capital but greater opportunity for the man of modest means; fewer labor saving machines but more skilled and independent craftsmen; fewer big plants but more prosperous little ones in which the workman did not lose his identity and become a mere machine tender, tagged with a number as convicts are in a penitentiary for the purpose of having his records kept in the simplest manner possible on the books of a soulless and heartless combine.

The American Manufacturer's monthly report of iron furnaces in blast and their capacity shows a slight decrease on the first of this month, both in the number of active furnaces and their capacity, from the showing on the first of the preceding month. February 1st there were in blast 195 furnaces, as against 199 on January 1, the weekly capacity being 242,318 tons on January 1, and 241,828 tons on February 1. The number of charcoal furnaces in blast was the same on both dates, namely, 19, but with a decline in the weekly capacity from 5,486 tons to 5,271 tons. The number of mixed fuel furnaces increased from 33 to 35, their weekly capacity from 24,850 tons to 25,687 tons. There was, however, a decrease in the number of active coke furnaces, the number in blast on January 1 being 147, on February 1 144, the weekly capacity 211,932, as against 210,870. Taking the comparison back to the first of February last year, and we find that there has been a gain of four in the number of active furnaces and of 12,005 in weekly capacity. The Manufacturer predicts that its next report will show an increase in production, as several furnaces are to go into blast during the current month.

In his weekly financial circular Henry Clews, the Wall street banker and broker, states that within the past six weeks Europe has paid $70,000,000 of what she owes us on balance of trade, and that there is about the same amount still due us, as the accounts between us and our friends across the water show to date. Much of this liquidation was in the form of American securities sold back to us by holders abroad in whose hands they have been for years, but these are better than the actual money, for the securities bear interest and the money would not. If we are getting out of debt at that rate we will soon be loaning money to instead of borrowing from Europe. It is significant that latterly people who have promising projects to float no longer go to London to obtain the capital needed, all that is required being readily available in Boston and New York. Things have changed greatly with us within the past five or six years, and it would seem that we have been waxing rich without being aware of it.

The aggregate capitalization of thirty-two trusts incorporated under the laws of New Jersey to the end of the year 1928 was $1,208,866,300. New Jersey today is as great a scandal to the union as Louisiana was in the days of the Louisiana lottery. It is even a greater menace to the public welfare. The Louisiana lottery swindled the dupes who bought shares in it, but they were voluntary victims. The New Jersey incorporated trusts may or may not victimize those who invest in their shares, but their influence is not confined to the shareholders. The whole country is their prey.

AT THE DUKE OF YORK'S.

Miss Clara Thropp Played "A Doll's House" 600 Nights Running. Admirers of the great Ibsen will have an opportunity next Saturday evening, Feb. 18, of witnessing for the first time here his most remarkable play entitled "A Doll's House." No play of recent times has created half of the newspaper and public discussion that has this one and in fact it is the dramatic composition that established Ibsen as the greatest dramatist of his time.

The story of "A Doll's House" tells of the young and trusting wife who unbeknown to her husband, in order to secure money to repair the husband's health, ignorantly forges the name of her father to a note. This husband, a debtor almost in the light of a criminal. The money so secured by his wife is used to take her husband to sunny climes where he regains his health. In after years the husband grows rich and influential and upon discovering that his wife had secured this money and had forged her father's name upbraids her. It is in that remarkable scene between husband and wife that the latter suddenly realizes the shallowness of his nature, the ingratitude of the man, the deplorable instincts of his disposition in this regard, and comments on these qualities. She realizes for the first time the practical side of the business world and her ideals have been shattered. He tells her she is a criminal and she tells him that he is an ingrate, and they finally separate.

As may be imagined the entire play is full of terse lines and powerful situations. In the argument between husband and wife the wife explains that why she forged her father's name. It was because she loved him and exerted every desperate effort to save his life. He is skeptical and says that no man would stoop to dishonor simply for the sake of those he loves. He would not permit his heart to break for such a cause, to which she replies that millions of women have done so.

Miss Thropp has been conceded by both English and American critics as being the greatest living exponent of the character of Nora in this play. She portrayed this character over 600 nights at the Duke of York's theater, and has renewed and multiplied her triumphs in this wonderful play in this country. She will be supported here by a carefully selected company of dramatic artists who have had the valuable experience of having appeared in "A Doll's House" a great many times.

To every lady attending the performance there will be presented a souvenir leaflet of some of Rudyard Kipling's poems, among them being the Recessional and the Truce of the Bear. It may be stated in this connection that during the performance of "A Doll's House" Miss Thropp will sing Kipling's famous ballad song, "On the Road to Mandalay," as well as in the one-act farcical play that follows the presentation of "A Doll's House" each evening, "My Honolulu Lady."

CONGRESS OF MOTHERS.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The National Congress of Mothers met in this city today. Mrs. Theodore W. Birney, president, delivered the address of welcome. She spoke of home influence, asserting that the lay of the only solution to the problems that confront the world. Mrs. Mary E. Green responded, saying the congress had gathered to consider the oldest of arts or sciences—the science of motherhood. It was necessary that women should learn many things in order to manage their households properly and rear their children. Horace Fletcher spoke on the education of children from an economic standpoint. Dr. G. Stanley Hall delivered an address, in which he pointed out that children should not be forced into maturity. Childhood should be kept alive in the human race as long as possible. All history, he said, teaches that precocity leads to the fall of empires.

IOWA COAL RATES.

Des Moines, Feb. 16.—The state board of railway commissioners today handed down a decision in its coal investigation, based upon the Porter resolution passed at the last session of the legislature. They announce that the testimony taken revealed the very opposite of what was promised by Mr. Porter, namely: That the coal rates in Illinois were higher than they are in Iowa, the same distance considered. For that reason, the commissioners decide to allow the present rates, fixed and promulgated by the board, to remain standing until shown that they work an injustice. The further fact is presented that the coal industry in Illinois is on the decline.

BADGER EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

Milwaukee, Feb. 16.—The seventh annual convention of the state Epworth league opened at the Grand Avenue Methodist church tonight and will continue in session for three days. About 400 delegates are in attendance. This evening was given over to a reception to the delegates. Rev. C. P. Masden, D. D., delivered a short address of welcome and President F. W. Hall of Madison responded. Mr. Hall spoke of what constituted the league and its rapid growth during its existence.

BEEF TRIBUNAL MEETS.

THE RAISING OF "RED" McLANE.

"You ain't broke—what's the matter with you? You ain't got any sand—that's what. You're got plenty of stuff in the bank at Pueblo and you know your check'll go with Johnston here. You're afraid, that's all, Jim Melville." "Red" McLane cut a huge slice from a plug of tobacco, taking his Fourth of July breakfast in one mouthful, and with the scorn of a superior personage turned away from the young man whom he had addressed.

The poker game at the "Head-Gate" had been a warm one and McLane had won everything in sight. Sprague, the town-site boomer; old Judge Stillwell; Griswold, the "cantaloupe king"; and Mr. Kinney, the Canal company's surgeon, with McLane and young Melville, the superintendent and engineer of the construction company, comprised the players after midnight. Early in the evening a Denver drummer and a ranchman from up the river had contributed to the stakes on the table and retired. By sunrise the other players had dropped out, leaving McLane and Melville alone in the game.

There was an old feud between Melville and McLane. They had grown up together back in New York state, where they both fell in love with the same girl. While the younger man was away from home at college McLane betrayed the girl, who killed herself from remorse, and he disappeared. No one in the Colorado town where the two men appeared to meet each other several years later understood the cause of the enmity, but it was generally known that the young superintendent cherished an intense hatred for McLane, the gambler.

Had some one else won the money that he had lost that night Melville would have quit in New York, but it was calling to be defeated by "Red" McLane, so he continued playing, with the dogged determination to vanquish his enemy. But "Red" won steadily as before. When Melville's last chip was swept away, he pushed his chair back from the table and announced that he was through—and "broke."

The "Head-Gate" never closed down. Day and night, winter and summer, dry season and wet, irrigation went on. There was always a supply for those who had the price. The ditches of its patrons were continually full. On this Fourth of July morning when Johnston, the prospector, went on duty at 7 o'clock he found an unusually large crowd in his place. One man was still slumbering comfortably on a billiard table, several were asleep in chairs, but there was a collection of wide-awake railroad men and ditch hands, with a few herdsmen and punchers who had ridden to town early for the celebration. They had not journeyed far and hard to hear the oration of Judge Stillwell, or the declaration of independence read by the elocutionary daughter of Murphy, the section boss. It was not that their souls were dead to their native land; but they could dwell on patriotic thoughts out on the range there was no holiday and where there was no drink but water.

The crowd had become interested in the little play being enacted at the table and momentarily forgot its thirst. Melville offered no reply to "Red's" taunts. His face was gray; he gazed absently at something far away; he seemed to see or hear nothing around him. He was thinking that he had been a fool—should he stop where he was or take one more chance to redeem his fortunes and then redeem himself afterwards!

McLane arose. Picking up his pack of cards he slammed it upon the table. The action recalled Melville from his reverie and he looked at McLane, who was saying: "I'll tell you what I'll do, I've got about $500 worth of it and play you a game of freezeout for $1,000. There's a chance to get your money back and $500 of mine on top of it. You needn't put up any talk about not having the 'dough.' Tom Johnson'll cash your check."

Some one back in the crowd whispered audibly: "The tenderfoot ain't got no nerve. I'll bet he don't call 'Red.'"

Melville remained silent. He took from his pocket a bunch of yellow papers, poured some tobacco into one of them and rolled a cigarette. After a couple of deep inhalations of the smoke he arose from his seat and went behind the bar and forward to the proprietor's desk. He laid out two checks for $500 each and handed them to Johnston. The proprietor unlocked his safe, and counting out the money, gave the bunch of bills to Melville. The curious crowd had faced around to watch Melville, and as he returned to the center of the room all eyes followed him. He walked up to McLane, who was waiting by the card table, and spoke for the first time. There was no other sound in the room. Melville's tones were low but distinct, but there was a look of determination on his face. "Let me take your gun, please," he said.

McLane hesitated, and the young man added: "You needn't be afraid. I don't intend to shoot you."

His words and manner reassured the gambler, who drew his Colt from its holster and passed it over to Melville without further question. The engineer glanced at the weapon, walked to the rear of the room, and opening the back door, fired five shots in rapid succession into the ground.

"Put up your money," he said, addressing McLane as he returned to the card table. The gambler sat down and counted $1,000 in bills and gold, pushed the pile to one end of the green-covered table, and looked up inquiringly at Melville, who was still on his feet. The latter placed his money on McLane's, saying: "That is for the winner."

He threw open the revolver, displaying five empty shells and one loaded cartridge. Closing the weapon he set the hammer for the remaining load and laid the revolver beside the money. "And that," he added quietly, "is for the loser."

McLane turned pale. "What?" he asked, his voice shaking.

The young man repeated: "That," pointing to the money, "goes to the winner, and that," pointing to the revolver, "goes to the loser. Do you accept?" He was as cool, apparently, as if he were proposing a game of cards for the drinks. McLane moved uneasily in his chair, making no response. Melville spoke again. "You have called me a coward. Let these gentlemen here see who shows the white feather. Now, put up or shut up." There was a solemn hush in the room.

The crowd stared admiringly at the tenderfoot and then expectantly at the gambler, whose eyes had dropped. Old "Dad" Grayson, who stood in the front row, broke the silence:

"The kid's seen your bluff, Mac, and raised you. You got to call him. He's dead game all right."

McLane studied for a moment, and finally said, huskily: "I'll go you."

The tenacity that had held the crowd relaxed, and there was a confused mingling of voices as one turned to the other in comment.

Melville called the proprietor. "Bring me a drink of Hennessy, Mr. Johnson, and please send over to the drug store for a box of new cards. We will have a fresh deck for each deal."

The chips were counted, and the play began. Melville was much the cooler of the two. He smoked very little and drank nothing during the night, while his opponent had "braced" himself repeatedly and had smoked incessantly, leaving his nerves shattered.

McLane's luck did not desert him, and as he gradually lowered Melville's stack of chips, notwithstanding the latter's cautious play, he became aggressive and confident. He called for whisky, frequently, but Melville drank no more. He won occasionally, but his losses exceeded his gains for a long time. Then he drew a big hand and won back all that he had lost. The chips were coming to his side of the table now.

The awed spectators were gathered around the table, watching as the two men played—in silence. They had stopped to see a stiff poker game. Instead they were witnessing a duel.

It was Melville's deal. There were several raises before the draw, and then McLane took two cards. Melville tossed the deck aside and said: "I'll play these." Stacking up his chips he shoved them to the center. "I'll tap you," he said. Without a moment's hesitation the gambler put in his pile and called his opponent.

"I guess I've got you," he said with assurance. "Straight flushes don't go here, and I reckon that's good," and he turned over three kings and two aces. Melville looked straight at him and without a word spread out his hand—four queens and a small card. The gambler, who was leaning over the table eager to sweep in the chips, dropped back in his chair and gasped:

"My God, I'm a dead man!"

"This belongs to me, I believe," said Melville, rising from his chair and picking up the money. "And this," picking up the revolver, "goes to Bob McLane. But as the proposition was mine and since I have won, I shall take the liberty—"

He pointed the six-shooter at the ceiling, pulled the trigger and handed the empty weapon to its owner.—Lawrence (Kan.) Gazette.

THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN.

According to a publication just issued by the treasury bureau of statistics two-fifths of the land surface and one-third of the entire population of the earth are included in the colonies, protectorates, dependencies, and spheres of influence of the European powers. In his latest contribution to the poetry of imperialism Rudyard Kipling calls upon us to "Take up the White Man's Burden! Have done with childish days, The lightly proffered laurel, The easy, ungrudged praise. Childish days, indeed! Does the laureate of the Jingoos think that the subduing of a continental wilderness, the building of nearly half a hundred states and thousands of cities, and the work of linking them together with bands of steel were tasks unworthy of full-grown men? Mr. Kipling is so intensely British that he cannot see that our labor was quite equal, quantitatively and qualitatively, to that accomplished by our kin beyond the sea. England's share in the burden of transmarine empires is greater, to be sure, than that of all other powers combined, and she has been compared to Atlas staggering under his load. As a true Briton, therefore, the poet (not unnaturally) would be gratified if America should bend her lusty shoulders and help carry the weight sustained by her weary titan sister.

MINING CIRCLES AMAZED. GRAHAM POPE'S CLEVER COUP.

FRANKLIN AGENT GETS BACK AT INSURANCE COMPANIES WHICH TOOK THEIR POUND OF FLESH AUTHORIZED BY A LAW WHICH SHOULD BE REPEALED.

The destruction of the old Franklin mill by fire occurred on Nov. 27, and Wednesday Graham Pope was paid the last of the $33,000 of insurance carried on the mill. After the adjustment of the loss the insurance companies offered to settle at sixty days or for cash with a discount of 6 per cent. Mr. Pope immediately notified them that the funds of the Franklin were drawing only 3 per cent. interest in the banks, and as the mine had some $200,000 in its treasury he knew of no way in which it could earn 6 per cent. more easily than by waiting the sixty days for the cash in full for the settlement, and on the representation that he would have to wait then he came back at the insurance men with the statement that the Franklin would re-insure with those companies which first settled their losses with it, and that the last to settle would get no further business from the mine.

True to his word, Mr. Pope yesterday directed his clerks to have canceled immediately all the insurance written upon the Franklin mining property and also upon the buildings, stock and personal property of Graham Pope by the three companies which took until Wednesday, the 15th inst., to settle their losses on the mill, and his instructions were promptly carried out.

The affair has served to call attention in the copper country to a system of legalized robbery practiced by fire insurance companies in this state, and through some others in the settlement of their legitimate losses by the insertion of a clause which permits them to take sixty days' time in paying up or else to exact a 6 per cent. discount for spot cash. Take the instance noted above; had it been a merchant doing business on a narrow margin of personal credit or a poor man who was burned out of his home just at the outset of a Lake Superior winter, instead of a mine with $200,000 in hand, the case offer must necessarily have been accepted and through the very necessities of the individual who had already lost more by fire than his insurance would come to he would have been mulcted an additional 6 per cent., the alternative being financial ruin in the one case or great personal hardship in the other while awaiting the pleasure of an insurance company perfectly able to pay its losses and recognizing also its full liability by the very offer of settlement less the 6 per cent. discount.

It is true that there are companies which pay promptly and waive in most cases the discount allowed them by the terms of their policies, and the more widespread their reputation in this regard the larger the business which comes to them; but, on the other hand, there is many a great company with its hundreds of thousands and even millions of dollars of assets which does not hesitate to gouge its pound of flesh out of its already unfortunate policyholder in the shape of a discount at a rate of interest which in these days of cheap money is everywhere regarded as exorbitant. In the life insurance business the company which has a clause in its policy permitting it to hold back its death settlements six months is pointed to as a relic of the dark ages, and it is the proud boast of the greatest companies in the country that they pay all claims concerning which there is no question on the very day they are presented. It should be so with a fire insurance company, for when a man loses his stock of goods or his home by fire, especially in this country, he wants his insurance and he wants it quick.

The agitation of this subject has been considerable in the copper country in the last few days, and it is probable that Representative Rulison will take steps to secure legislative action in the matter. It is altogether probable that a bill, sanctioned by the present able and vigilant commissioner of insurance, Hon. Milo D. Campbell—the first real insurance commissioner Michigan has ever had, by the way—will be introduced which will compel fire insurance companies to settle all losses as soon as they are adjusted. There is no desire to interfere with the just and equitable adjustment of all claims, but when once satisfactorily adjusted the loss should in every case be paid promptly in cash.

BOOKED FOR A BOOM. Rockland and Greenland, in Ontonagon county, are rapidly awakening and both towns are preparing for a boom when the snow leaves the ground this spring. The boom will strike Rockland in full force this summer and will also affect Greenland appreciably, but the latter town is expected to make its big jump next year. The Jeffs estate, which owns much of the lands in and about both Rockland and Greenland, is preparing to plat ten acres of land a little east of the center of the first named town and will replat a couple of acres of the old plat, while in Greenland it will plat twenty acres adjoining the Mass and the Adventure Consolidated. The lots will be placed on the market at reasonable rates and will do much to check the injury which might result to both towns from an undue elevation in real estate prices. A good deal of building is already planned, and the work will be started just as soon as the snow goes off.

except to run the train, sign the train orders and attend to all details upon the arrival and departure at the stations along the run. Mr. Cavan wears a conductor's cap, with "Traveling Auditor, D. S. S. & A. R'y." upon its front, and is expected to be upon the road in this capacity two weeks out of every month, alternating with Joe Seifert of the D. S. S. & A. audit office—an old copper country boy, by the way—who, in turn, checks stations and performs the regular duties of the traveling auditor while Mr. Cavan is in charge of train collections.

The new scheme was evolved by General Manager Fitch, and the checking of the various runs by the company's traveling auditors is intended to end completely the expensive connection of the road with the famous St. Louis outfit of "spotters" which operates over most of the roads in this part of the country. This run was the first upon which it has been tried and next month another run will be taken and so on, the work of checking the various runs on the road taking up the whole year. From the general averages thus deduced it is believed that a much better check can be kept on conductors than by the system heretofore in vogue, while the saving in expense is also considerable.

ALL IN A NAME. SENATOR BAKER ON HIS NAMESAKE, AUTHOR OF MINING TAX BILL.

Senator Fred K. Baker, the astute Menominee politician and chief wheeler of the Republican coach in his part of the state, is having a world of troubles "all his own" just now, his constituents having made the unforgettable mistake, to the Hon. Fred of the Thirtieth senatorial district, of mixing "those Bakers" up. Hon. Fred A. Baker of Detroit is the author of the bill taxing copper a cent a pound and whacking it to iron ore at a rate variously stated as from 16 cents to 60 cents a ton, and now comes the erudite Tuten, of the Iron Mountain Tribune, who, with his accustomed perspicacity, attacks the Menominee senator in these terms:

Fred K. Baker, of Menominee, is credited with being the author of a bill which proposes a specific tax of 1 cent a pound on copper and 60 cents a ton on iron ore. Senator Baker is an upper peninsula man and is presumed to know something about upper peninsula industries. His proposition is manifestly absurd and unfair.

The Hon. Fred K. comes back at the Iron Mountain organ and also at the Hon. Fred A. of Detroit in these resolutions, which, according to the Detroit Journal, he introduced in the senate Wednesday afternoon:

Whereas, much mental anguish and bodily pain have been caused a member of this senate by the aforesaid newspaper [the Iron Mountain Tribune, whose article is quoted in the first "whereas"], which has been widely copied by the unfeeling press of the upper peninsula, grievously to the detriment of the aforesaid member; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the name of the said Fred A. Baker, of Detroit, be and is hereby changed to William Jennings Baker for the period of six months from date.

COPPERDOM BREVITIES.

Jos. Croze, Jr., departed yesterday for Chicago on a business trip.

Hon. J. F. Hambitzer left yesterday for Marquette on a short business trip.

J. H. Lewis, the genial proprietor of the Hotel Marquette, was in Houghton between trains yesterday.

Miss Ella Hamilton, who has been the guest of her uncle, Andrew Weir, at Houghton for the past two months, left yesterday for her home at Fife Lake, Mich.

Hon. J. H. Jacobs, Marquette's ex-mayor and the Portage Entry stone magnate, is "doing" the copper country. He will visit the Kerber-Jacobs quarry at Redruth before returning home.

The Elite Lady Minstrels entertained an audience at Red Jacket again last night. Portage Lake people are becoming somewhat impatient to see this famous aggregation, but it seems to stick resolutely to its native heath.

"Copper Stox" has made a hit everywhere men and women (especially women) are trying their luck in coppers. Copies will be found on sale at the Douglass for 25 cents each. Must be bought and paid for, as they are not being sold on "margin."

"Tom" Smith, who has long had charge of the ore yards of the D. S. S. & A. railway at Ishpeming and Negaunee, is now acting superintendent of the Mineral Range and Hancock & Calumet divisions of the South Shore during the illness of Superintendent J. C. Shields.

The thaw which has succeeded the intense cold is rapidly settling the snow in the copper country and people were busy shoveling off roofs and porches yesterday to keep from being inundated. The rain which began about noon intensified the trouble and altogether the day became what is known in Lake Superior parlance as a "weather-breeder," the hot sun later in the day setting everything afloat.

T. E. Foard, or just "Tom," as he is known to railroad and expressmen all over the peninsula, took his first run out as route agent of the Western Express company Wednesday, making the modest little jump from Sault Ste. Marie to Lake Gogebic. It is suspected that Traveling Auditor Joe Seifert was playing a little low down on Tom for a starter when he selected that station, of all others on the line, to be first "checked up."

AN INSURANCE MAN'S STORY.

A well known insurance man was sitting in the rotunda of one of the downtown hotels last evening telling a few friends some of his interesting experiences during early days in the northwest, says the Minneapolis Tribune. "It was before the paid fire departments were as common as they are now," he began, with a reminiscent smile, "I was appointed by a large combination of eastern companies to inspect a town not more than a thousand miles from here for the purpose of adjusting a schedule of rates that all the companies would abide by. I went carefully over all the business blocks, examined the water works and then made arrangements with the 'board of public safety' to turn in an alarm from an inconvenient part of the city at a late hour of a certain night, to test the speed of the fire department.

"At the appointed time the board was on hand. It was raining frightfully, but that made no difference to the members of the board. They were proud of their department and wanted to show me what they could do, and they all wanted to see it themselves. The alarm was turned in, and a hose company came tearing down to the place at which we were waiting, in pretty good time. Then a general alarm was turned in, and every hose company in the city came out in the rain, and there were some pretty mad men in the lot when they found it was a false alarm. The mad ones said we might at least have picked out a decent night for an exhibition, and a lot of other real mean things, for a volunteer fireman has a lot more license to use his tongue than a paid fireman. But there was one member of the board of public safety who had looked for such a demonstration, and was prepared for it. He ran a wholesale liquor store, and was agent for a big brewery. He invited the boys down to his store, where he had a large number of sandwiches and any amount of beer and other things on tap waiting for them to dispose of. The old volunteer fire departments were made up of a large percentage of men who would appreciate just such a joke as this last one, no matter how much they resented the first one.

"They went after the refreshments as though they were going to a fire. They simply had a glorious time. By midnight half of them were under the tables, and the other half went home in a condition that was a sure antidote for insomnia. "About 3 o'clock the fire bell rang, and it rang awful loud, and long and hard. The man who was ringing it was a Methodist, and the Methodist church was on fire. But there was no more fire department in that town than there was in an Arizona desert. There wasn't a hose cart on the ground for thirty minutes, and when it did come it was pulled by a lot of Methodist brethren who didn't know which end of the hose to hitch on the hydrant, and the church was reduced to ashes.

"There were some pretty mad Methodists in that town next day, and some of the deacons were going to do a lot of severe things, until the church treasurer made public the amount of insurance on the building, and it was found to be about twice what it was worth—enough in fact to build a much better place of worship, and then the deacons all shook hands with the member of the board who had given the entertainment.

"I was the sorest man in the outfit, for one of my companies had $5,000 on the risk, and I had just sent in a beautiful report, telling what an efficient fire department the city possessed."

A STORY OF A FRENCH SERVANT.

Marie Anne de Boret, in talking about the absolute hopelessness of trying to reason with servants, tells a good tale that I am sure every woman with any sort of a servant will appreciate.

A friend of Mile. de Boret's, who wrote very clever novels, was trying to explain to a new femme de chambre that she must not come and interrupt her at every moment, as she was fond of doing.

"Now, when you are sewing," she said, "and you are called away from your work, you can go back and take it up just at the stitch where you left it. But if I am disturbed in my writing, I can't pick up again the thread of my thought in that way. You understand, don't you?" The girl said she did and went off. Pretty soon she was back again.

"What is it, Marie?" asked her mistress. "Well, madame," said the maid, fumbling awkwardly at her apron, "if I don't know how to do anything but sew, it's because I was never taught to do anything but sew. If I'd been taught to write books, I could write books."

The writer of novels said no more.—Katherine de Forest, in Harper's Bazar.

REQUEST FOR AID.

Benevolent Society Needs Material If It Is to Continue Its Work.

The charity committee of the Benevolent Society makes an earnest request for immediate contributions of old clothing and material for carpet rags.

There is constant inquiry for trousers, overcoats, dresses and underwear. It is hard to have to tell the women who ask for these things that the society has neither the garments to give nor any employment to offer.

The order to get means for further employment of the committee would like to sell its supply of aprons, towels, baskets and other useful articles now on hand and would look upon it as a special favor if the ladies would come to a sale on Saturday afternoon, between 2 and 5 o'clock, at the sewing school house corner of Front and Arch street.

A SANDSTORM.

Graphic Description of a Fierce Desert Simoom.

"Sand, sand, sand, sand everywhere," writes a correspondent from the scene of the British operations on the Nile. "Beating down upon this arid plain is the fierce sun, which gives a temperature of 120 degrees in the shade. The heat and glare are intolerable. At midday one lies sweating and gasping under a coating of sweat and sand, eyes, ears and nose choked with dust, while flies, gnats and ants seek out the tenderest parts. There is no escape from these conditions.

"At first one sighs for a breath of wind to cool the burning air. When it comes the effect is disastrous. A blinding, suffocating cloud of dust springs from the earth, sweeps over the camp and searches out every nook and cranny in hut and tent. It penetrates the most secret recesses of trunks and boxes, mingles with food and drink, and makes a sticky compound of sweat and mud under which the skin smart and stings. Evening and morning are numbered among the delights of the desert. Under normal conditions they are too often attended in these parts with violent storms of wind and sand devils. These "devils" are whirlwinds of dust that gather volume and force as they sweep along, cutting fresh particles from the matrix of sandstone rock and driving their myriads of atoms to swell the dust of the desert. During the last few days we have had several opportunities of observing this process of nature. Last night my blankets were spread under the veranda of the tent. It was a beautiful night. The air was calm, the sky was clear and the moon cast dark shadows of palm and mimosa on the white plain. Under these soft influences of light and sound the desert lost its terrors, and one looked dreamily on the picture until a solemn silence fell upon the camp and sleep sealed the eyelids. A moment later and the scene was changed. A breath of hot wind as from a furnace, brought every tented sleeper to his feet with a gasp. Instantly the camp was alive with sound and motion. The rush of the storm mingled with the neighing of horses, the grunting of camels, the bleating of goats and the flapping of canvas. The moon was hidden behind a cloud of sand. Sand filled the air—a whirling, rushing hail of atoms.

SALE OF RESERVED SEATS AND BOXES BEGINS TUESDAY MORNING, FEB. 14. PRICES: 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00.

As it swirled around and above the tents, straining ropes, dashing against canvas, tearing tent pegs out of the ground, one began to realize how fragile was the roof overhead, and to be even thankful that it was not more substantial. The sand devil raged for half an hour without damage, save to tent pegs, which flew about rather dangerously. Every moment I expected the tent to collapse and go scudding before the storm. But it held fast, and, covering my head with a blanket, I lay down, smothered in dust, while the struggle between canvas and sand went on with growing fierceness. The servants, who lay on the sand, slept undisturbed until aroused by their masters.

Then active operations began and the sharp click of mallets falling on tent pegs was heard throughout the storm. The tent next to mine was the first to go. It fell or rather, glided to the ground, and presently there emerged from the wreckage three figures. Finding the position untenable I made a virtue of necessity and struck my tent before further damage could be done. Having made fast the canvas over my baggage and furniture I drew my bed into the open, and wrapping myself in a blanket, lay sylvester and choking until the storm abated. At dawn we were able to remove the traces of this experience. The tents were soon pitched, furniture, clothes and boxes were dug out of the sand, and presently Abdul Hassan, Mahomet and the other servants were "making kitchen" and lighting fires under cover of some dead bushes.

NEW CRUSHER ORDERED.

THE LAKE SUPERIOR IRON COMPANY HAS CLOSED A CONTRACT WITH THE GATES IRON WORKS FOR A MAMMOTH NO. 8 MACHINE.

Before navigation opens in the spring the Hard Ore mine of the Lake Superior company's workings will be equipped with a crusher of the largest size manufactured by the Gates Iron works of Chicago. The contract for the delivery of the machine has been closed and work on it is already under way. It will be in operation at the mine before the first boat leaves Marquette. Up to date there has been no crusher in use at the Hard Ore mine and most of the ore has been shipped just as it has been taken from the mine, but when the new crusher is in place every ton will be treated before it is sent away.

Last year a small part of the ore mined was taken to the crusher in use at the Section 16 mine, and was crushed before it was placed in the cars for shipment. It was deemed advisable to install a crusher at the mine before the opening of navigation, so that the entire output can be put in satisfactory form for use in the furnace. It has always been necessary to crush the hard ore before it was treated in the furnace, but for a long time the consumers of the ore have been doing the work at their own expense. Latterly, however, they have protested against the expense thus entailed on them, and now they insist on having the ore reduced to a certain fineness before it is shipped from the mines.

There is no question as to the success of the new crusher, as it is almost an exact duplicate of the one that has been in successful use at the Section 16 mine for the past year. The only difference between the machines is in the concaves. In the crusher which has been in use at the Section 16 mine they are made of chilled iron, while in the new machine manganese steel has been substituted in the construction of this part. The new construction is much stronger and will stand in this respect, the machines are identical, and as the crusher at the Section 16 mine has been an unqualified success the new is certain to work satisfactorily.

The No. 8 crusher is the largest machine the Gates Iron Works manufacture. In all ten sizes of the Gates machine are produced at the factory but the No. 8 is the giant of them all, and it is only employed in the heaviest and hardest mining work. This machine is also the largest crusher manufactured in the world, no other comparing with it in size. The new machine and the one that has been in use at Section 16 are the only Gates crushers in use in this vicinity. The other hard ore mines are using other makes.

The way the machine at Section 16 has handled the ore has induced the Lake Superior company to install a second of the same make. The machine in use has fulfilled every claim made by its manufacturer. Its capacity has been very great and it has been an easy task to crush the guaranteed amount of ore per hour. The machine can treat 200 tons of ore an hour without taxing its capacity in the least. When the mine is running two shifts it can crush 4,000 tons of ore a day if worked continually.

There are three shafts at the hard ore mine, Nos. 2, 3, and 6, and the new machine will handle all the ore hoisted from them with ease. The amount of ore that will be taken from these three shafts will not suffice to keep sufficient ore from the stock piles at the mine to keep it in continual operation. A system of skips such as is now employed at the Section 16 mine will be installed, which will convey the ore now lying in stock to a point where it may be treated by the new crusher. In this way it is figured that the month's work will be kept busy steadily.

Considerable work will have to be done in the vicinity of the mine before the ground is ready for the machine. A house will have to be built for its reception and the system of skips which will carry the ore from the stock piles will be employed in making the preparations necessary from now until the crusher arrives. Very heavy timbers are required to make a foundation for the crusher, but they have been ordered and will be here before they are needed. The contract calls for having the machine working perfectly before navigation on the lakes is open, and it will undoubtedly be ready for use before ore shipments begin. This addition to its equipment will put the Lake Superior company in fine condition at its hard ore workings, and the ore will be sent out in a condition to satisfy purchasers.

AN ENJOYABLE MEETING.

About a hundred members of Ambrose tent, K. O. T. M., of this city united with the visiting members of the Marquette and Negaunee tents in a most pleasant meeting Wednesday evening. The purpose of the meeting was particularly to exemplify work under the new ritual to the members of the order. The degree team from Marquette had charge of this part of the program and the ritual was exemplified in a finished manner. About thirty strangers were up from the Queen City and a number from Negaunee.

During the evening various musical numbers were rendered and the evening passed very quickly until about 12 o'clock, when the lodge men adjourned to Prince's restaurant, where they discussed a banquet which had been prepared. After satisfying their appetites with the good things provided the members again returned to Anderson's hall, where the program was resumed. The assemblage did not leave the hall until it was time to send the Marquette visitors home on the early morning train. Every person present voted the meeting a most pleasing success.

A COMMEMORATIVE MEETING.

ADMIRERS OF THE LATE MISS FRANCES F. WILLARD WILL ASSEMBLE IN HER HONOR NEXT SUNDAY.

The members of the Presbyterian, Episcopal and Methodist congregations of this city will unite in holding a service in commemoration of the late Frances F. Willard at the Methodist church at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. Miss Willard's admirers in this city are to be found in all classes and in all congregations and a meeting such as that proposed cannot fail to prove enthusiastic and successful. All who wish to participate in the service are cordially invited to be present at the church and the promoters of the affair hope that the edifice will be crowded to the doors. The following program has been arranged for the service:

- Opening song, "How Firm a Foundation"..... M. E. Choir.
  - Prayer..... Frances Willard.
  - Archdeacon Robinson..... "Some Glad Day"..... M. E. Choir.
  - Loyal Temperance Legion.
  - Miss Willard's pledge for boys..... In Concert.
  - Solo, "Wanted a Boy"..... Mrs. Berryman.
  - Address, "Miss Willard as an Organizer"..... Rev. M. M. Allen.
  - Song, "Vital Spark"..... M. E. Choir.
  - Address, "Lessons from the Life of Frances Willard"..... Rev. Polkborn.
  - Solo, Selected..... M. E. Choir.
  - Miss Teckla Farm.
  - Song, "How Beautiful To Be With God" (Last words of Miss Willard)..... M. E. Choir.
  - Closing address, "Miss Willard's Advice to Young People"..... Miss A. Home.
  - A freewill offering.....
  - Doxology.....
  - Benediction.....
- The service promises to be most interesting and a large attendance is looked for.

A SPRING DAY.

The facility with which the temperature has changed from away below zero to a point which marked the balmy spring weather enjoyed yesterday quite surprised the people here. Only a week ago the temperature stood many degrees below zero throughout the day and there was no sign of a let up of the cold. Yesterday was a typical spring day and the snow thawed freely about the streets and rendered walking and sleighing very disagreeable. It was a relief that was generally enjoyed, as people here were very tired of zero weather. It is not probable that the warm spell will endure as it is rather early for warm weather to set in permanently.

The snow left the ground at a rapid rate yesterday and sleighing was materially injured in the course of the day. A short period of similar weather would completely destroy it. The day was generally devoted down town to clearing the snow and slush from the sidewalks and toward evening the streets were in good condition.

Frank Sherwood was down town today, the first time since he had his tussle with cholera morbus. He says he drove thirty miles after he was taken, and never came so near dying in his life. After this when he goes out in the country he will take a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him.—Missouri Valley (Iowa) Times. For sale by The Stafford Drug Co.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

D. J. Nolan of Ewen was here yesterday. H. R. Harris was up from Marquette Wednesday. L. Karger was down from Houghton Wednesday. The Lake Superior company paid off its men yesterday. H. F. Nickerson was here on a business mission yesterday. George Henderson of Swansey was in the city yesterday. He is regularly employed as a landlooker at Swansey. Persons desiring copies of "Copper Story" will find them on sale at the Nelson House. Price, twenty-five cents.

News has been received here that Miss Rachel Schryer's father, died at his home at Flint last Sunday. She was called to his bedside early last week. He was very ill when Miss Schryer was sent for and his death was expected. Miss Schryer is expected back next Sunday.

The report of the firemen has left the hands of the printer. It is a very handsome pamphlet of eight pages and is gotten up in very pretty style. It is decorated with engravings of the department and of the various equipment in use, and will be religiously preserved by all the firemen.

Michael Cudahy, who was in this city Wednesday in attendance at the funeral of his uncle, Mr. Patrick Small, returned to his home to discover that his mother had died in his absence. She was ailing when he left home but nothing serious was anticipated. P. F. Small will leave for Lake Linden today to attend the funeral.

The copper market continued strong yesterday, and interest in it was keen among speculators here. The feature of the quotations that is noticeable at present is the prominence the curb stocks enjoy on the quotation sheets. For a long time a close search was necessary to discover what the little stocks were selling for, but they are quoted every hour. The course of the Copper Range stock is being followed with a great deal of interest here.

P. C. Hetzel, the traveling man who is usually designated "the mackintosh man," had quite an experience with a big dog here the early part of the week. It was the first warm day of the present spell and Mr. Hetzel was feeling so good because it had finally warmed up that to relieve his feelings he attempted to fondle a large dog that he met in his

FORESTS OF STONE.

They Exist in Various Parts of the World.

Old forests are apt to get into the most impossible places and to turn into the most preposterous shapes. All our coal-fields are ancient forests far underground, then crushed and cooked into a hard mineral substance. They are forests of plants which once grew as mighty trees, for outside of fairyland who would ever imagine a majestic woodland of club moss, and reeds, and the little sand weed called the horsetail?

In Greenland, right under the icefields, a buried forest has been found in which the plants were all palms and tropical creepers, proving that once the Arctic regions were as hot as the Indies.

In the Wash, between the counties of Lincoln and Norfolk, there is an old forest under the sea, with stumps of fallen oaks and elms still visible in places when the tide is low. This was all dry land in the days of the ancient Britons.

Out in the deserts of Arizona there is a dead forest on the surface of burning rock and driving sand, where no plant save the cactus can now find any water. When the place was first discovered a negro cook thought that it would be excellent for camping. So he took an ax and delivered a mighty blow upon the fallen trunk of a big red pine.

His ax-head was ruined, the haft smashed, and his fingers so badly hurt that he sat down and howled. For that tree was changed to massive rock, which looked as fresh as though felled but yesterday. The whole prostrate forest of big timber had been changed into valuable and beautiful onyx, jasper and agate.

THE NAVAL ENGINEER IN BATTLE.

If you were sealed up in a heated iron tank floating on the sea and hammered at by missiles which now and then let in light and splinters, you would get a dim idea of the lot of the engineer's men aboard a battleship in action. But the engineer's men have to work in the hurly-burly, and you would go mad in your tank. The enemy's shot pounds the ship, but the engineer and his men know not where the enemy is or where the ship is heading. And they can't stop to think about it. Keep that bearing cool, smother it in oil, down it in water; keep it cool, or the game's up! The men on deck can let the splinters lie where they fall, but the men in the engine room have to keep the splinters out of the machinery. Steam pipes are pierced. Mend 'em. Crawl behind the boilers, and stop that steam leak. Impossible to shut off anything. Scalded? Never mind. It's all in the day's work. Don't let the water down. Pass the coal lively. And, while you're about it, put out the fire in the bunkers. In the lower engine rooms the thermometer shows 136 degrees in front of the ventilating blowers; in the upper engine rooms, 190 degrees.—Engineering Journal.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY ALWAYS PROVES EFFECTUAL—There are no better medicines on the market than Chamberlain's. We have used the Cough Remedy when all others failed, and in every instance it proved effectual. Almost daily we hear the virtues of Chamberlain's remedies extolled by those who have used them. This is not an empty puff, paid for at so much a line, but is voluntarily given in good faith, in the hope that suffering humanity may try these remedies, and, like the writer, be benefited.—From the Glenville (W. LANSING NOTES.

R. C. Williams went to Ontonagon this week on a business trip, looking after his interests in lands in that county.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brink and their son Charles returned this week from a month's visit with eastern relatives and friends.

The addition to the M. E. church choir of Mrs. W. D. Manness, violinist, and E. A. Mack, cornetist, is appreciated by the people of that congregation.

The ladies of the church of the Sacred Heart gave a progressive pedro party and luncheon in the dining room of the town hall Tuesday evening last, which was highly enjoyed by the large number of people who attended.

Miss Lotta Vokes died Wednesday noon after an illness of several weeks. She had been suffering from pneumonia and was taken with a relapse which carried her off. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the M. E. church. The deceased leaves a mother, two sisters and two brothers to mourn her untimely demise.

George DeGogne, Sr., who came here about three months ago to visit his son George, who is running a lumbering camp a few miles south of town, died Sunday last from the effects of a cold. He was seventy-four years of age. The remains were forwarded Tuesday for interment to Three Rivers, Canada, where the deceased had resided for many years and has several children living.

Mrs. Victor Peterson, whose death occurred Saturday last, was buried from the M. E. church on Monday. A large concourse of relatives and friends attended the funeral. The deceased was a member of the Lady Maccabees and the lodge took charge of the funeral arrangements, as well as taking care of her during her illness. Besides an invalid husband, the deceased leaves two daughters and two sons.

A very agreeable change has taken place in the weather here. A week ago it was 30 degrees below zero, yesterday it was 45 above, and raining. Had the cold weather continued much longer the town would have had to resort to the old "Demgen" system of hauling water in barrels from the lake, as the intake pipe in the reservoir is only down about three and a half feet from surface and ice had formed to a depth of three feet of that, leaving only six inches of free water above the mouth of the pipe. A day or two of this weather will raise the water in the reservoir sufficiently to supply the town until spring.

WORK WELL ALONG.

BARNEY GOODMAN'S VARIOUS LUMBER OPERATIONS PROGRESSING SATISFACTORILY.

During the present season Barney Goodman has carried on more extensive lumbering operations in the woods in this vicinity than in any previous season since he engaged in lumbering work. For years past he has had quite a number of men employed in getting out timber but has not operated on so large a scale. The work at the different localities where he has had men cutting has progressed finely and the season has been a most successful one. He has his contracts well along toward completion and this year's cut will be away beyond former records.

Mr. Goodman has only operated a couple of camps himself, the rest of the work being given to jobbers. The camps that have been working under his own direction are at the mouth of the Salmon Trout river above Marquette. The work at these camps is nearly finished. The main part of the year's work has, however, been in the hands of independent jobbers, and this part of it is also well along toward a successful finish. Some of the men were slow about entering the woods in the fall and are consequently backward in the work, while others are nearly through with their contracts. The amount of timber that will be received from these sources will be quite large. Just how large Mr. Goodman does not know for certain, at this early date, but the cut will run beyond the figures he made early in the fall.

The jobbers have been out all along the line of the Northwestern and D. S. S. & A. roads. Some of them are beginning to ship part of the winter's cut and the timber will be received steadily from now on. Two grades of timber have been cut this year. A large quantity of timber has been taken out to supply the mines, but the major portion of the cut will consist of board timber. The mining timber will be shipped direct to the mines that require it, but all the other logs will be shipped to Marquette by rail, or will be rafted down from the Salmon Trout. The timber will be sold there and shipped from there.

The winter has been very favorable for lumbering operations. During the early part of the year when the cutting was being done the woods were comparatively free of snow, and this greatly facilitated the work. About the time when cutting was finished the spell of cold weather that has prevailed for two months set in, this coming just right for hauling.

It has been no light task to keep track of the different parties who have been cutting for Mr. Goodman, and he has devoted the entire winter to it. This has kept him moving continually up and down the line to the various places where his men are at work. He has been assisted in the work by his son Bernard, who has also been on the road the greater part of the time.

The year's operations will be the most successful ever conducted by Mr. Goodman. He has been the largest operator in this vicinity this season.

RENOVATING THE BREITUNG.

Andrew Seass has just started men at work on the improvements that he intends to make in the arrangements of his hotel. His plan for the work is very comprehensive and includes a complete renovation of the building. The work will be done gradually by a small force of men and one room will be fixed at a time, so that no inconvenience will be experienced by the guests. At present the office is receiving attention. The interior is being painted in light tints and when the decorating is finished it will be very attractive. When the office is finished the men will begin on the dining room, which will also be completely painted and decorated. Every room in the lower part of the building will be fixed up, even to the kitchen, and when the improvements are completed the force of men will be placed on the upper floors, which will be gradually repainted and papered. The bed rooms will be taken in hand singly and it will be a long time before the painting is completed. Mr. Seass also intends to purchase new furniture for some of the rooms and is just about to close contracts for a number of iron beds. When all the work is finished the Breitung house will not have a superior on the peninsula. Mr. Seass feels that the business prospects of the city warrant the improvements, and is certain that the changes will be appreciated by his patrons.

A CALENDAR THAT STAYS.

The calendar crop is never short, as the postoffice people will testify. We always get our share, and begin the new year with a great assortment, but the one we select "for keeps" is that of N. W. Ayer & Son, the keeping everlastingly at it advertising men of Philadelphia. This one spends the whole year in our company. It is a piece of fine printing, but its good looks do not constitute its sole charm. It is clear and plain. Utility has been put first. He who seeks the date can find it; he who writes may read. The matter on it interests more people every year, but the edition is limited. While they last a copy can be obtained postpaid by sending 25 cents to the publishers.

A MISCONSTRUCTION.

TRANSFER OF THE LUCKY STAR PROPERTY NO INDICATION OF THE VALUE OF UNDEVELOPED LANDS IN THIS VICINITY.

A gentleman familiar with the facts takes exception to the statement that the sale of the Lucky Star tract goes to prove that undeveloped lands in this vicinity are supposed to contain iron which has a high intrinsic value, and are in a rule assessed low for the purposes of taxation. He informs The Mining Journal that in the deal announced in this department yesterday the Lucky Star property cut very little figure, the $50,000 paid for the property transferred being mainly for the interest of Mr. Rees in the fee of the Blue mine. Not only that, but this interest was purchased more with reference to getting the fee of the Blue in the hands of parties who would be willing to meet the lessees of the mine fairly in the matter of the royalty charge so that the mine would be wrought this season than with regard to its value. The deal was negotiated and had in view, he states, composing conflicting interests in the fee of the Blue, in the hope that this would be followed by an arrangement as to the royalty which would ensure steady working of the mine, and he considers it very unkind and unjust to construe it as an evidence that idle lands in the vicinity of the city are assessed away below their true value.

It is true that the Lucky Star has proved no bonanza for those who have sought to work it in the past, and much surprise was expressed when the announcement was made that it had been sold for $50,000 that it should have brought such a price. The explanation given The Mining Journal puts quite another aspect on the matter. There was about one hundred acres of land involved in the deal, and as this covered the Rees interest in the fee of the Blue it is plainly obvious that the value of the Lucky Star was not rated so high in the transaction as many here had been led to believe.

LOCAL LAOCINCS.

Dr. Will Van Iderstine was up from Marquette Wednesday evening.

John Haecken left Wednesday night for Chicago and St. Louis on a business mission.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucas was attended by a large number of friends and relatives Wednesday afternoon. She was widely known and her death is much regretted.

Louie Rose has arrived here from Muskegon to aid in disposing of the Quinn stock, which is now controlled by Rosen Brock. He takes the place vacated by Abe Rosen.

O. S. Green and State Secretary Flynn of the Catholic Order of Foresters will go to Marquette next Sunday to work in the interests of the Foresters' lodge it is proposed to establish there.

Silas Hewitt, whose death was announced in yesterday's issue of this paper, was generally known here to the old settlers. He engaged in business in this city before he went to Ishpeming.

The Finn who was confined in the city lockup Tuesday night was removed to Marquette yesterday, where he will be held pending examination as to his sanity. Two friends accompanied him, and he went along very quietly, but he manifested an insane fear of the night watchmen at the lockup who guarded him Tuesday night.

The temperatures recorded Monday and Tuesday mornings were above zero. Monday morning twelve above was registered and yesterday morning the thermometer registered thirty-five above. A week ago yesterday twenty-one degrees below was recorded. It has warmed up appreciably and it is probable that the worst of the winter is over.

Ben Trevalle and his step-son, John Olds, who left this city about six weeks ago to take positions at Aspen, Col., returned the early part of this week. They had endured of the Colorado climate and were glad to get back to Negaunee. Both had good positions but the weather was altogether too rigorous for them. They describe the amount of snow in that state as something unheard of. They have been occurring in Colorado and for a time their friends were alarmed for their safety. All work at Aspen has been suspended for some weeks on account of the snow and cold and it has been impossible to get supplies in. Altogether, they were pretty well disgusted with the country and they were perfectly willing to leave. They will be here for some time.

About Four Hundred Baltimore Rye from Petoskey's Most Prominent Physicians.

Reycraft & Reycraft, Physicians and Surgeons, Office over Postoffice, Petoskey, Mich., Jan. 21, 1899.

The Crown Distillery Co., Cincinnati, O. Gentlemen: Having thoroughly tested your Four Hundred Baltimore Rye whiskey, we believe as a remedial agency it is one of the best of its kind, and we recommend this brand in every case where a stimulant is indicated. It is perfect in stimulation. Mellow, well matured and peculiarly adapted as a medicant in typhoid and other low types of fever. We always take pleasure in prescribing and recommending its use when a tonic or stimulant effect is desired. Very truly,

UPPER PENINSULA.

Escanaba has a high school monthly called Orange and Black.

The citizens of Escanaba are raising a big roar over the proposed location of the new state normal school at Marquette and will file a protest with the legislature.

This week the Sault Ste. Marie Land & Improvement Co. sold to Mr. Ferron, of Perronville, 720 acres of land near Perronville. The consideration is $7,100. Some of it is timber land.

Buyers at Menominee are offering $16 per thousand for hardwood, a price unprecedented in the history of lumbering. There is plenty of stock and some sales are reported. Buyers are plentiful and some claim the prices are held too strong.

Ira Carley is putting in 2,000,000 feet of logs for his mill at Ingalls, while 2,000,000 more are being got out by other parties to be sawed by him this year. He has only about 400,000 feet of lumber in stock, and is selling lumber as fast as his mill can cut it. Shingles are not bringing as good a price as they ought to and his sales are, therefore, slow just now. Mr. Carley predicts a good year's lumber business.

Tuesday night, says the Escanaba Mirror, a tall "lumber jack" thought to amuse himself by kicking a little dog that a small boy had harnessed to a hand sled. The big chump only succeeded in getting in one kick, however, before he measured his length on the sidewalk as the result of a blow delivered by a young man who happened along and was disgusted with the actions of the big brute.

The Lindsley Bros. Co. was incorporated at Menominee Wednesday morning. The incorporators are B. L. Lindsley, Edward A. Lindsley and A. L. Lindsley, three brothers. The capital stock is $25,000. The company is engaged in the cedar business. They are among the largest operators on the Michigan side of the river. The company owns yards at Menominee, Goll, Wis., and McAllister, Wis. It has several big contracts in which thousands of dollars are involved. The probable officers will be: President, G. L. Lindsley; vice president, A. L. Lindsley; secretary and treasurer, Ed. Lindsley.

The management of the St. Paul is perfecting a new log train service to be put in effect next week. Four log trains will be run, two to Menominee and two to Marinette. These trains, with the regular wharf freights which bring logs, will increase their capacity greatly. This additional service is necessitated by the demands of the mill companies for speedy landing of their logs. After next week over a hundred carloads of logs will be brought to the twin cities daily. The company will lay four miles of steel rail on the Menominee division near Ellis Junction in the spring. This will complete the laying of ninety pound steel on this branch. The tie train running between Ellis Junction and Channing began work this week. Fifty men are employed picking up railroad ties along the line.

A Lansing special says: "Senator Baker rose to a question of personal privilege in the senate Wednesday afternoon and presented a preamble and resolution, which was referred to the committee on military affairs. It is as follows: "Whereas, The Iron Mountain Tribune, a reputable and influential paper published in Iron Mountain, on Feb. 11 did publish the following editorial: "Fred A. Baker, of Menominee, is credited with being the author of the bill which proposes a specific tax of 1 cent per pound on copper produced and 60 cents per ton on iron ore. Senator Baker is an upper peninsula man and presumably knows something about the upper peninsula industries, and this proposition is manifestly absurd and unfair," and

"Whereas, Much mental anguish and bodily pain has been caused to a member of this senate by the said editorial in the aforesaid newspaper, which has been widely copied by the unfeeling press of the upper peninsula, greatly to the detriment of the member aforesaid, therefore, be it resolved,

"That the name of said Fred A. Baker, of Detroit, Mich., be and is hereby changed to 'William Jennings' Baker for the period of six months from this date."

TRAGIC SCENE AT AN EXECUTION.

Le Figaro of Paris reprints from a Belgrade journal a strange and dramatic story, the scene of which was a Servian village near Prokuplje, where a Greek priest named Ilie Javrem was recently murdered. His wife and her lover were condemned to death by shooting for the crime. The hour of the execution arrived, and the two criminals were placed before the firing party in full view of thousands of spectators, who were kept back by troops. The man broke down and howled for mercy, but the woman was cool and cynical, and remarked: "See how famous we are! If I had died a simple priest's wife not ten people would have followed me to the grave." The firing party had raised their rifles and were awaiting the final order to shoot when a messenger on horseback broke through the crowd and handed the commanding officer a sealed letter. The condemned man and woman embraced each other and shed tears of joy at their supposed reprieve, but it soon transpired that only the man was pardoned while the woman had to undergo the extreme penalty. "As her lover was led away the woman clung to him, begging for one more look and one more word from him, but he repulsed her pitilessly and went away without even glancing at her." After this affecting scene the death sentence was carried out.—Ex.

In a recent letter from Washington, D. C., to an old friend, Major G. A. Studer, for twenty years United States Consul at Singapore, says: "While at Des Moines I became acquainted with a linen known as Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I found excellent against rheumatism as well as against soreness of the throat and chest (giving me much easier breathing). I had a touch of pneumonia early this week, and two applications freely applied to the throat and chest relieved me of it at once. I would not be without it for anything. IRON PROPERTY LEASED.

Carnegie Secures the Michigan, on the Menominee Range, from Wilkinson Estate

ALFRED MEADS & SONS OPEN A MINING BUREAU HERE.

Second Meeting of the Backers of Captain Daniels' Sauks Head Prospect—Movement of the Copper Stocks Yesterday.

MINING NEWS AND STOCK NOTES.

With prospects ahead for a series of good years in the iron trade iron mining properties in the peninsula are beginning once again to command the attention of capitalists.

The latest mining deal is one which gives Andrew Carnegie a larger interest on the Menominee range. He already has a foothold there but the Gogebic and Mesaba are his principal fields of operation.

Following hard on the announcement that he had secured the Queen mine at Negaunee comes the news that he has secured a leasehold of the Michigan property, which is located near Amasa, in Iron county. The title to this property is held by the Wilkinson estate. The papers leasing it to Mr. Carnegie have just been signed.

The Michigan was opened up just before the last panic and its workings are said to have given considerable promise. But the mine had scarcely begun to ship ore when the hard times came on, and the men who were operating it, there was no organized company, were compelled to suspend work.

Passing into the strong hands of its new holder there is a good prospect that it will develop into a large and paying property and become one of the most valuable assets of the Wilkinson estate. It is believed to be the intention of the lessee to work the mine on as large a scale as it will stand and put it at once into the list of active producers.

The Michigan is a producer of soft ore, in character similar to that of the Hemlock mine, which is located near it.

Alfred Meads and his sons Alex and George have opened an agency for the sale of mining and timber properties and a bureau of general information concerning mines and mining in the upper peninsula, especially the Ontonagon copper properties, which are now coming into such prominence.

The firm title will be Alfred Meads & Sons. Offices have been secured on the second floor of the Savings Bank building in suite 209.

Mr. Meads is well equipped for conducting an office of this kind. He was for thirty-seven years a resident of Ontonagon, but removed from there immediately after the great fire and came to Marquette. For twenty-eight years he was publisher of the Ontonagon Miner, and during a large part of this time devoted himself to dealing in mining properties as well as conducting his paper. Mr. Meads has a thorough knowledge of mining matters in this part of the state, but he is particularly well posted on the Ontonagon properties.

Besides making sales of properties the firm is prepared to make special investigations, carry out mining commissions of all kinds and furnish maps.

There will be another meeting Saturday night of those who are interested in Captain Daniels' mining prospect on Sauk's Head. Since the meeting held a week ago Thursday Captain Josiah Broad of Ishpeming has been up to the property and made a thorough investigation. The meeting is called that the stockholders may hear Captain Broad's report and decide on their course of action. It will be held Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the office of Button & Culler on the second floor of The Mining Journal building. Captain Daniels is particularly anxious to have all who are associated with him in the venture attend the meeting and hear the report read.

The coppers looked well yesterday, and out of nine stocks which fluctuated a dollar or more seven advanced. Boston & Montana was the feature. It made a jump from 358 to 375, the highest point it has ever touched, and twenty-five points higher than Broker Lawson's of pink and bear fame said he would send it.

The list of the stocks gaining or losing a dollar between Wednesday and Thursday's closes is: Arcadian, 73 to 75; Atlantic, 42 to 41; Boston & Montana, 358 to 375; Butte & Boston, 89 1/2 to 92 1/2; Calumet & Hecla, 780 to 785; Centennial, 46 to 48; Old Dominion, 37 1/2 to 39; Osceola, 98 to 99; Quincy, 179 to 178.

Arnold was among those making fractional drops. It fell off three-quarters on the day's trading and closed at 11 3/4. Baltic also went off a half and was at 22 at 3 o'clock.

Copper was off yesterday. It opened ten shillings lower than it was the day before and closed at the same price. Hayden, Stone & Co. quoted the London market: "Opened 73 and 5; closed 73 and 5; closed Wednesday, 73 and 15."

None of the brokers received bulletins yesterday.

PINGREE'S CHANCE.

Picture of the Federal Push Taken in Innocent Slumber.

Hon. John Jones, known all over the peninsula as a member of the federal push, was the recipient of a unique valentine to which hangs a tale.

When the legislature first convened Mr. Jones went below to assist in the obsequies of Albert Pack, who was Pingree's candidate for senator against Julius Caesar Burrows. The funeral came off as per the Burrows program, but Mr. Jones and the other grave diggers were well nigh exhausted by their labors when they had thrown on the last shovelful of earth.

The upper peninsula statesman went home with ex-Speaker Gordon to spend a few days recuperating before coming north. One day after dinner the two politicians retired to the library and soon the pair of them dropped fast asleep.

Now the ex-speaker has a daughter and the daughter has a kodak. Attracted by the snores of the pair she peered

STORIES OF THE STREET.

Marquette People Are Talking About It On Every Corner.

It is sometimes an easy matter to fool the public, but you can't keep it up very long, they are sure to find you out; and every time a man is fooled, another skeptic is made. Skepticism is allowable when reading in a home newspaper about some incident occurring in San Francisco or Maine, but the circumstances are entirely different when it refers to someone right here at home, friends and neighbors, people you know, whom you can see, and with whom you talk it over. This is the kind of evidence at the back of Doan's Kidney Pills—home statements by home people, and the astonishing local work they have been doing has caused more talk among our citizens than the doings of any other modern wonder. Read the following:

Mr. Chas. Parr, of 118 E. Jackson street, foreman on Pickands' coal dock, says: "I can very highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone troubled with kidney disorder or pains in the back and loins. I was bothered a good deal for a long time with backache, often very severe. In looking after and keeping my hoists in working order, I often have to do a great deal of climbing on the derricks, and I must have strained myself. I let it go for a time, thinking it would wear off, but instead it became more persistent. I then began to look for some remedy to give me relief and seeing Doan's Kidney Pills so highly recommended, I procured a box at the Stafford Drug Co., and began using them. I had taken but a few doses when I felt the pains were leaving me. Since I finished the treatment I have had no indications of a return of the trouble." Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Posters-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

into the library. Without disturbing them she hastened out, got her camera, and snapped them both.

This was all Mr. Jones knew about it till Valentine's day mail brought him a picture. The picture shows the upper peninsula statesman stretched out full length on a lounge, coat off, lying on his back, and his hands behind his head. Mr. Gordon is a little more in the foreground sprawled out in a big arm chair. His hands hold a large whip, which Mr. Jones explains is for the chastisement of a very bad dog owned by the ex-speaker, but which appears to be emblematic of the gad with which he whipped the doubtful Burrows voters into line.

Beneath the picture the young lady has inscribed the words: "Pingree's only chance. The federal push's asleep."

SCHOOL NEARLY FINISHED.

Fine Structure Has Been Erected for the Catholic Youth of the Queen City.

BUILDING AND FITTINGS WILL COST CLOSE ONTO $10,000.

Increasing Numbers of Parochial School Children Make the New Building a Necessity—Description of the School.

WILL SOON BE READY FOR OCCUPANCY.

The new Catholic boys' school which has been in process of erection this winter on the convent lot is now nearly finished, and can easily be made ready for occupancy by the spring term.

The masonry and carpentering work in it are finished and the painters will be through the interior work this week. After that the furnace is to be installed, a cement floor laid in the basement and the school furnishings put in. When the weather moderates there is a little outside painting to do, and the lot must be graded, then the building will be complete and ready for occupancy.

The new building is made necessary by the large and growing number of parochial school children, who are now so numerous that they test the capacity of the convent school, where both boys and girls are at present being educated.

When it became evident that another building was necessary for the successful continuance of their school work the church authorities determined to build a separate school for the boys and give over the present convent school entirely to the girls. A site was selected on the convent property at the corner of Fisher and Fisher streets and the erection of the school begun.

It is a handsome and commodious structure, well adapted to school purposes, and when completed will cost close onto $10,000.

The building is of brick, on a stone foundation and with light stone trimmings. It has two stories and a basement and is topped with a small spire. There are two school rooms twenty-seven feet square on each of the main floors. The basement will have a large play room for use in wet and cold weather, a furnace room, coal rooms and toilet rooms.

There are large halls both up and down stairs, and each fitted with places for hanging overcoats and storing rubbers, overshoes and packages. Wide stairways leads from each end of the lower hall to the second story.

The four school rooms are precisely of a size, and every one of them is airy and well lighted. In each of them there are six large windows, the light being secured in two of them from the north and west, and in the other two from the south and east. The upper and lower halls are lighted by two windows each, on the east side.

The two school rooms in the second story are connected with large folding doors, making it possible to throw the two into one to use them for lecture and assembly purposes.

The woodwork both up and downstairs is of pine, which is not painted, but simply varnished, thus preserving its natural coloring and giving the entire interior a light and cheerful look. The rooms are plastered and ceiled in white hard finish.

Heat will be furnished by a furnace located in the north half of the basement. The wiring is in for electric lights. The building is also equipped with city water.

Charlton, Gilbert & Demar are the architects of the building. The masonry and carpentering contracts were taken by C. C. Van Iderstine. J. A. Tretheway has the painting contract, and W. A. French will lay the cement work.

"AND THE NEXT DAY IT RAINED."

First Rain Storm of the Season Came Yesterday Forenoon.

Marquette was treated to the first rainstorm of 1899 yesterday forenoon, when for an hour or more it rained quite briskly. The city has just passed through a seige of remarkably cold weather, and the climate seems now to be showing its capacity for lighting changes.

Yesterday's rain and high temperature combined to make great inroads in the snow and the streets ran with water. A few more days of such weather will ruin the sleighing, not only in town but in the woods. If the threatened break should prove to be a genuine thaw the lumbermen who have still considerable timber to get out will be heavy losers.

LOST HORSES.

Reports come from Chocoma that a number of the farmers down that way suffered severe loss by the recent protracted spell of cold weather. A number of them lost one or more head of horses from the intense cold. The farmers say they always lose more or less stock in very cold times, but the length of the recent period of cold made their losses greater than usual.

Farmers are coming in again with wood, and the good dry article is now plenty at $1.75 a cord. A week or ten days ago wood was hard to get at $2, and even green wood was bringing that figure.

THE MODERN WAY commends itself to the well-informed, to do pleasantly and effectually what was formerly done in the crudest manner and disagreeably as well. To cleanse the system and break up colds, headaches, and fevers without unpleasant after effects, use the delightful liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs. Made by California Fig Syrup Co.

Notice—Life insurance companies will reduce the rate 33 per cent. to all who agree to take Rocky Mountain Tea. A wise measure. Stafford Drug company.

All the healing balsamic virtues of the Norway pine are concentrated in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Nature's own remedy for coughs and colds.

Consumption Cure—Warner's White Wine of Tar Syrup, the best cough remedy on earth, cures a cold in one day if taken in time. 25 and 50c's.
