KNOCKS OUT A PROP OF THE PROSECUTION.

Paris Figaro Exposes Another Forgery That Kills the Evidence of General Mercier.

NEWS OF IT CREATES A GREAT SENSATION AT RENNES.

COURT PROCEEDINGS YESTERDAY MUCH IN FAVOR OF DREYFUS.

Roget Is Driven Into a Corner and Colonel Picquart and Magistrate Bertulus Give Splendid Testimony on Behalf of the Defense.

LABORI ABLE TO LEAVE HIS BED.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—M. Labori was able to leave his bed for three hours today and walk thrice across the room. Tonight the doctors think he will be able to be present at next Monday's session. Madame Labori has received a number of menacing letters. One today said the writer was sorry the would-be assassin had not killed not only M. Labori, but his wife and children.

Paris, Aug. 17.—The Figaro today exposes another alleged forgery in the Dreyfus case by publishing the following telegram from Enns: "Letter of Nov. 30, 1897, attributed to me and reproduced in The Figaro Aug. 16, 1899, is a forgery. (Signed) Schneider."

The letter referred to is one from Schneider, Austrian military attaché at Paris, in which he was alleged to have said that Schwartz and Panizzardi, of the German and Italian embassies, were trying to make out that it was not Dreyfus who gave them information and admitting he had no belief in these protestations.

GIVES ROGET THE LIE.

Paris, Aug. 18.—The Figaro has received from Panizzardi, formerly Italian military attaché in Paris, a declaration denying General Roget's statement in the evidence that he (Panizzardi) addressed a report to Signor Resman, formerly Italian ambassador to France, to the effect that Colonel Schwartzkoppen, former German military attaché in Paris, had relations with Dreyfus. Panizzardi adds that he never heard the name Dreyfus until the latter's arrest, and that he makes this declaration through an official channel on his honor as a soldier and gentleman.

KILLS MERCIER'S EVIDENCE.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—The publication by The Figaro of the Schneider telegram exposing another alleged forgery caused a great sensation here tonight.

The general impression is that Schneider's disavowal has dealt a severe blow to the prosecution, killing the only point in General Mercier's evidence that was dangerous to Dreyfus.

It is expected that the matter will be brought up in court tomorrow by M. Demange, who has a splendid opportunity to drive a nail into the coffin of the prosecution.

PROGRESS OF THE TRIAL.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—General Roget resumed his testimony today. He dwelt upon the alleged devices of Dreyfus to procure information from the various bureaus regarding the mobilization and concentration of the troops. The witness also went over a large amount of ground touching on the actions of Colonels Picquart, Paty De Clam and Esterhazy which had little or no bearing on the case. Dreyfus' counsel picked several of his bubbles with well-directed questions, causing the witness to squirm.

At the conclusion of General Roget's testimony Dreyfus rose and emphatically denied he had ever traced on a map any plan of concentration or mobilization or that he ever had any knowledge of the details of these movements or of any plan for the distribution of the various units through the departments.

TWO SPEAK OUT FOR DREYFUS.

The next witness proved a splendid reinforcement for Dreyfus. It was M. Bertulus, examining magistrate, who received Colonel Henry's confession of forgery. He earnestly asserted his belief in the innocence of Dreyfus. He said in part this was based on the documents in the secret dossier, which he had seen, but above all was the entire absence of motive which could have tempted Dreyfus to commit such a crime. At the conclusion he was confronted with Mme. Henry, who declared that he had acted the part of Judas towards her husband. Bertulus declined to answer her, saying she was "only a woman."

Colonel Picquart was next called and also proved a good witness for Dreyfus. He declared that "beyond the bordereau, there is nothing against Dreyfus, absolutely nothing." Before he saw the dossier he had an impression it contained frightful evidence against Dreyfus. When he became acquainted with its contents, however, he found his earlier impressions entirely wrong. Subsequently the witness had examined the bordereau, and he declared that some of it could not have been disclosed by Dreyfus. Colonel Picquart said that when the bordereau was discovered the department where the information mentioned in it was being prepared was the one which should have been searched; that department was Du Paty De Clam's, especially De Clam's "private room, where he worked quite alone." This statement caused a sensation, and the court very soon afterwards adjourned until tomorrow.

AS SEEN BY MRS. CRAWFORD.

Rennes, Aug. 17.—[Copyrighted, 1899 by the Associated Press.]—General Roget, M. Bertulus (investigating magistrate), the widow of Colonel Henry and Colonel Picquart were on the stand today. Madame Henry, after M. Bertulus had deposed, asked leave to speak. She wanted to contradict what M. Bertulus had said regarding the friendship of her husband and Count Esterhazy. What she said was a tirade learned by heart, scarcely evidence. She wanted to show that M. Bertulus could not possibly have wrung an avowal from Colonel Henry that he and Esterhazy had formed an association of traitors. So far from Bertulus appearing to suspect Henry, she said he even embraced him when the latter was taking leave. She jumped to the conclusion that falsehood lay behind the kiss, and that M. Bertulus was a Judas. This idea she then developed in a passionate peroration. Bertulus felt that it never would do to argue with her, for tears were standing in her eyes and the judges were looking sympathetic. So he said that he preferred saying nothing to a lady whose grief he respected and angry excitement he pardoned.

General Roget again today showed extraordinary forensic ability. Mercier is wonderful in verbal facility. Billot not inferior, but Roget is the superior of both in forensic skill, acumen and suggestiveness. Dreyfus seemed tortured by his arguments and points made. Finally he could stand it no longer, and starting up with eyes gleaming with anger he cried: "You deal only in argumentation. I have listened to you for hours without hearing a single fact."

CALL IS ISSUED FOR VOLUNTEERS.

Ten More Regiments of Infantry Are Wanted for Active Service in the Far East.

BRINGS THE TOTAL STRENGTH TO ALMOST 100,000 MEN.

NEW COMMANDERS ALL TO BE REGULAR ARMY OFFICERS.

Policy of the War Department Secretary Root Declares to Be the Furnishing of All the Troops Necessary to Speedily Stamp Out Insurrection.

FILIPINOS AGAIN REPULSED AT ANGELES

Manila, Aug. 17.—Eight hundred insurgents attacked Angeles this morning, but the Twelfth regiment drove them into the mountains. No Americans were injured; the insurgent loss is not known.

Washington, Aug. 17.—An order was issued today directing that ten additional regiments of infantry volunteers be organized for service in the Philippines, to be numbered from thirty-eight to forty-seven.

The colonels and lieutenant colonels of these new regiments are all named. They are regular army officers. The majors and company officers for the regiments are being chosen from among the volunteers called out in the Spanish war. The officers will be distributed as equitably as possible among the different states, but efficiency and record will govern to a great extent in the selection.

It appears from today's orders that the new regiments are to be mainly recruited in New England and the Middle Central and Western states. Kansas and Pennsylvania apparently have been selected as the best field for recruits. Today's action increases the total strength of the army to 95,045.

"The policy of the war department," said Secretary Root this afternoon, "is to furnish General Otis with all the troops and supplies he can use which are necessary to wind up the insurrection in the Philippines in the shortest possible time."

DEWEY TO ARRIVE SEPT. 29.

New York, Aug. 17.—Admiral Dewey cables the local committee agent his return as follows: "Will reach lower bay bay without fail Friday, Sept. 29, ready for the parade Saturday morning."

Washington, Aug. 17.—Admiral Dewey writes the secretary of the navy under date of Naples, Aug. 5, giving his plans as follows: "I propose to remain at this port about a week, then proceed to Leghorn for a week and then to either Genoa or Villefranche for about the same period. It is then proposed to proceed to Gibraltar for coal, etc., and leave that port about the middle of September." This is contrary to the report that Dewey intended to go to London before returning to the United States.

DEFENSE FROM GERMANY.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The Cologne Gazette today in an evidently inspired article on the Dreyfus court-martial says: "As it is impossible to cause shame upon France by believing that witnesses who have held the highest offices of state are prejudiced ruffians, their obstinate disregard of publicly stated facts can only be explained by the firm conviction that the facts in the bordereau were communicated by an officer of the general staff. That officer could not have been Dreyfus, and suspicion involuntarily points to the late Colonel Henry, who resorted to forgery to strengthen the legend of the guilt of Dreyfus."

GUERIN STILL BELLIGERENT.

Paris, Aug. 17.—General Jacquy and General Lague, who interviewed M. Guerin this evening, say that he declared he would resist to death. The house is now guarded by Republican Guards. The cabinet will meet tomorrow to consider the situation.

Paris, Aug. 18.—According to The Figaro, the government has decided not to use force, but wait until Guerin issues forth.

Paris, Aug. 17.—A dispatch from Villefranche today announces that a priest named Viel has been arrested, charged with being connected with the plot to change the form of government.

M. Lasserre, Anti-Semite deputy, after a consultation with his colleagues of the "national defence" group, has decided to send a circular to all deputies asking them to join in a demand for the reopening of the chamber of deputies.

RIOTING IN PARIS STREETS.

Paris, Aug. 18.—There was rioting last evening on the boulevard De Magenta between Nationalists and Anti-Semites. Four persons were seriously injured.

FLOOD HAVOC IN CANADA.

SASKATCHEWAN RIVER RISES FORTY FEET IN 24 HOURS.

Winnipeg, Aug. 17.—An Edmonton dispatch tonight says that the Saskatchewan river has overflowed, rising forty feet the last twenty-four hours. The loss will be great. The historic steamer Northwest, of the Hudson Bay company, broke from her moorings, struck the middle pier of the bridge and is a total wreck. The river is still rising and is full of drift, miners' shacks and the like.

BATTLE FOR EIGHTEEN HOURS.

RESULT THE COMPLETE ROUT OF THE VENEZUELAN REBELS.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Minister Russell, at Caracas, reports that the insurgent faction in the state of Los Andes, Venezuela, under Castro, has been completely defeated by the government troops in a bloody battle lasting eighteen hours. The insurgents lost 800 men killed and wounded and the government 300. This ends the disturbance.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Surgeon Irwin, of the Marine Hospital service, has been ordered to Oporto and Lisbon to make a report of the bubonic plague.

THE WEST PROSPEROUS. A Wall street man who has just returned to New York from a trip through the west which covered sixteen states in that portion of the union reports having found everything making for prosperity in these states. Merchants whom he questioned concerning trade were found satisfied with the business they are doing and sanguine as to the future, while the farmers are well pleased with their crop returns and the prices they are getting for their surplus products. He heard no talk of poor yield in the wheat growing districts, and noted that an immense amount of farm machinery is being sold, a sure indication of good times among the farmers.

HIGH PRICES. Many of our newspapers have fallen into the habit of noting the advancing prices of all kinds of commodities in a deprecating way, as if this were something to be deplored. What do they want? Low prices, with wages for labor and profits in trade to correspond? It would seem that we had these conditions long enough during the years of trade and industrial depression which lasted from 1893 until times began to improve in 1897.

High prices are not hurtful when they come in response to a healthy activity in trade and our industries. They do no harm to anybody when the people who buy are able to pay them. Besides, prices are only comparatively, not abnormally, high. Iron and steel are bringing much better prices than they did a year ago, and so are copper and lumber, but they have been much higher when there was a vastly lighter consumption of them. Provisions, leather goods and textile fabrics are higher than they were for years, and the same is true of household furnishings, tools, and almost every product of the shop, field or factory, but they are so because the people have plenty to do and are able to buy much that they had to deny themselves when work was scarce and labor poorly paid. There are worse things than high prices, as we have had a chance to learn. Let good prices continue so long as they come from heavy consumption and the increased ability of the people to buy. The person who longs for low prices with the conditions which produce or attend on them is like the foolish boy who quarreled with his bread and butter.

RECIPROCIITY TREATIES NEED-LESS.

There was much rejoicing recently over our successful negotiation of a reciprocity treaty with France, but it is doubtful if it is of much value, save as evidence of the friendly feeling existing between the two countries. As the New York Press observes, "the commercial position of this country has been so enormously and uniquely strengthened within the past two years that reciprocity treaties are of comparatively little moment." The paper named sets forth its reasons for this opinion quite lucidly and strongly in a presentation of the matter from which the extract here given is taken:

This country presents the prodigy of a land so endowed with natural resources as to supply practically all its own wants, and at the same time so blessed with superior mechanical skill and commercial genius as to be able to push its wares even upon unwilling peoples. Germany has gone near starving her workmen to keep out American meat and has harassed American trade in every manner known to a starved bureaucracy, inspired by a narrow-minded oligarchy. But American goods of all sorts have poured into Germany in a flood. Canada has made solemn professional to her mother's house and sacrificed a 25 per cent preferential, recanting meantime the heresy of the late Mr. Laurier, "an American dollar is better than an English shilling." But, despite all this pomp and circumstance of glorious commercial war 72 1/2 per cent of the imports into Canada are still American and 17.10 British. It will be a long time before the daughter's return greatly enriches the mother's house at this rate. The story is the same everywhere, in Asia as in America and Europe. The Dingley tariff was to have ruined our trade with the east, but a sample nine months of the fiscal year 1898 shows $23,000,000 exports to Cathay where the same period of 1897 showed $28,000,000. It is the same in Oceania, a rise from $17,000,000 to $21,000,000; the same in Africa, from $13,000,000 to $14,000,000; the same in South America, even from $25,750,000 to $26,134,000. Everywhere is an increase in our exports, mainly of manufactured goods, and yet no reciprocity treaties—save last year's unimportant convention with France—have gone into effect and few have been negotiated. Thus it seems that all the world practically is so far compelled to take more and more of our goods. Their excellence and cheapness override all barriers. How long this may last we know not. Continental Europe may combine against us yet at home and in China. But this is the present condition. On the other hand, we are compelled to take practically nothing of other folks' wares. We import nearly all our sugar, but an isothermal belt stretches across our continent from New York to Oregon, dipping down to New Mexico on its way, where all our sugar can be raised and will be just as soon as the American farmer learns enough of sound business and agricultural methods. Even our coffee we can raise in Porto Rico and the Philippines. Perhaps the most effective use of his reciprocity powers that the president can devise is to put the punitive three cents duty on the product of Brazil. We are independent of all the world, though out of our riches we buy much of the world's wares. But all the world is to some extent dependent on us.

Such a condition makes waste paper of all preconceptions as to trade relations and trade propagation. Our industrial sufficiency to ourselves long ago demonstrated the entire inapplicability of free trade principles to our system. But our newly evident necessity to otherwise seem to demonstrate also the desirability of reciprocity practices in our system. We may have to use them liberally in the future. At present their general employment would be a mere gratuity to our rivals.

A "HISTORIC AIM" ATTAINED.

The Russian czar has issued a proclamation announcing that, through the wise friendliness of the Chinese government, Russia has obtained the use of two Chinese harbors, with a large tributary territory, this giving the Siberian railway an outlet to the Yellow Sea and accomplishing a "historic aim" of the Russian empire. One of the ports, Taitien-Wen, is declared free to the commerce of the world, and a new city is to be built in its neighborhood.

The czar further announces that railways now in course of construction will closely unite Russia and China, and he professes to see in this the promise of great advantage to the commerce of the world, but we venture the guess that time will show Russia to be the principal gainer by it. Since the Japanese demonstrated the weakness of the Chinese as a fighting nation in the late war between the two countries, it has been apparent that the dismemberment of the ancient empire is near at hand. This has set the great commercial nations of Europe to scheming for a share in the division when it is sliced up, and in the scramble Russia is managing to get decidedly the best of it. Her statesmen appear to have foreseen what was coming and to have prepared to take advantage of what has come to pass in that quarter of the world with rare tact and judgment. The construction of the Siberian railway was well timed to fit into the plans of the Russian government, as it enables Russia to proceed without interruption to carry out the program of Russifying a large section of China, while the other nations of Europe must content themselves with concessions that are, for the present at least, of very little value.

Russian audacity backed by Russian statesmanship has achieved a notable triumph in China. Russia has other "historic aims" which she cherishes as fondly and is seeking to accomplish as shrewdly and assiduously as that on the attainment of which the czar congratulates his people, and who will say that these, too, will not be attained in time?

L'ANSE NOTES.

Charles S. Hebard and wife left for Chestnut Hill, Pa., this week for a short visit.

N. G. De Haas, of the Pickands Coal Co., of Marquette, is here taking orders for future delivery.

Thomas Lang, the Houghton representative of the Standard Oil Co., was here yesterday doing business.

The tug Cora Sheldon of Houghton was here Wednesday taking a scow of poles and timber to the copper country.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Collins died Sunday last. The funeral was held Monday from Sacred Heart church.

The annual Indian camp meeting will be held at the mission grounds back of Pequaung for one week, beginning Wednesday, Aug. 30.

Ben and Charles Brink took a farewell ride on the yacht Morgan to Houghton Sunday last to call on friends there. They returned by rail.

Six or seven teachers from different parts of the county are here attending the examination which began yesterday and continues today.

Charles M. Turner and wife of Lansing are rusticated at the Thomas House for a few days. Charley says he has a claim on some of the large brook trout at the head of the bay and has come after them.

Jessie C. Cogan of Milwaukee, who is putting steam heat and electric light plants in several new buildings in the copper country, was here this week looking over the court house and jail with a view to getting the job of fitting them with steam heat.

Mrs. Thomas Shaw, of the Mission, died Monday after an illness of two years duration. The funeral services were held at the M. E. Mission church, and were conducted by Rev. John M. Shank, and the interment was in the Pinery cemetery.

Dr. J. G. Turner, of the Arcadian mine, was at Pequaung Tuesday night in consultation with Dr. Zellen of this place, in the case of Mrs. LaTondress, who has been suffering from peritonitis and is still very seriously ill. Mr. Hebard sent his tug to Houghton to convey Dr. Turner to Pequaung.

Charles Hebard has sold his steamyacht "Morgan" to Allen Rees and S. Goodell of Houghton, who were here this week. They took the boat home with them. The Morgan is a very neat yacht, having a speed of ten or twelve miles an hour, and being a good sea boat. She contains a cabin and two state rooms nicely furnished.

conference held at the Mission last week, signed by all the prominent church leaders of L'Anse, Pequaung and the Mission, asking that Rev. John M. Shank be retained here another year. Mr. Shank expressed his thanks and willingness, and as Elder Frazer had no objections it is quite probable that Rev. Shank will be with his flock here for another year.

UPPER PENINSULA NEWS.

Eugene Houte, of Nathan, lost $80 at the Marinette Chautauqua during the pickpocket visitation. There were others.

Governor Pingree recently appointed Dr. J. F. Deadman, of the Soo, a member of the new state veterinary board which consists of three members. Dr. Deadman was appointed for a term of two years.

Lars Astrup, ex-sheriff of Delta county, and his brother, Harold, Astrup of Fisher, have been notified that they have fallen heirs to a legacy of 400,000 crowns, equivalent to over $100,000, by the death of an uncle in Norway. Identification papers will be sent to the old country at once.

Hans Abrahamson, a professional diver from Escanaba, arrived at Iron Mountain Wednesday to search the river for the bodies of Mathias Swanson and Carl Rylander, drowned last Sunday. Citizens raised $500 to defray the expenses of recovering the bodies. Abrahamson is to get $60 per day and all expenses.

Monday night at 11 o'clock or thereabouts fire was discovered in the old planing mill at the foot of Delta avenue, at Gladstone. Before the fire was seen it had such a good start that the fire company could not get control of it and the entire plant was burned to the ground. The building was owned by David Narracong & Co. of Gladstone and was valued at $3,000. There was no insurance.

Captain Silas J. McGregor, commanding the Iron Mountain state military company, forwarded his resignation Monday to the adjutant-general. Business reasons are given as the cause. Captain McGregor commanded Company E, Thirty-fourth Michigan volunteers, during the late war and served in Cuba. The company has decided to fill the vacancy by electing Major Peter D. MacNaughton, present surgeon on Colonel Petermann's staff.

The Green Bay Fishermen's association, organized in Menominee last winter, and which handles nearly all the catch in that vicinity, also on the east shore, held a meeting Monday afternoon, and after a general discussion on the prospects for fall business, the price was advanced to $1 a package for salt herring. This is an increase of 5 cents over summer prices. The price will be advanced still higher before the fall catch is put on the market. The association has made some large sales lately to eastern parties, and now has 10,000 packages on hand.

Mr. Rylander, whose son was drowned Sunday in the Menominee river along with Mathias Swanson, tells a story with a supernatural setting. He says that as they floated down the river Mr. Swanson pointed to the shore and said he saw a woman in black standing there. The boy also saw the woman but Rylander says he could see nothing. He thinks this was a warning of the fate that was so soon to befall the two who saw the woman. He also makes the statement that both of the parties who were drowned called his attention to it but that he could positively see nothing.

Fred Wise, an employee of the Ludington, Wells & Van Schaick Co.'s mill, Menominee, made a desperate attempt to end his life Monday morning. He jumped into the log slip below the mill, but was rescued by one of the workmen on the booms just at the point of death. About 9 o'clock a workman near the mill saw a man struggling in the water, and reached him just in time to save his life. He evidently changed his mind, if he jumped into the mill pond with suicidal intent, as he was making a desperate attempt to get out again, when rescued. When asked what tempted him to make the attempt upon his own life, Wise replied that he was unconscious of what he did. The man will live.

Sol. Frost sowed a small quantity of sugar beet seed last spring on his Birch Creek farm, and the result is he will have fully 100 bushels of the finest beets ever raised in this county. They are good-sized and fine-looking, and Mr. Frost is delighted with the results. He thinks this the greatest sugar beet county in the state. His crops generally look well, and during the past week he has been harvesting his oats, which promise to yield a large crop. Menominee county farmers are generally prosperous, and much of this prosperity is due to the excellent road system. The county road is in perfect condition just now, in fact it is a better and smoother road than any paved street in Menominee.—Menominee Herald.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my adviser to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at The Stafford Drug Co. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. THE END OF THE WORLD. Scientist Figures Out That It Is Three Billion Years Off. A scientist has attempted to calculate how soon we may expect the judgment day, and he has prepared a paper on the subject which he expects to read before the American Association for the Advancement of Science when it meets next month in Columbus. Starting with the total amount of energy stored in the sun and the fact that the orb of day is continuously distributing energy equivalent to the work of seven men for each area of the earth's surface of the size of the human body, our statistician calculates that it will require 3,375 millions of years of outpouring before a sensible diminution of the quantity of energy given out can be detected. Up to this distant period mountains will stand, rivers will run, plants will grow, and animal life will exist very much as it does today. If you realize that solar energy as soon as used reasserts itself in some other form, either as sound, electricity or simple motion, it is easy to see that this estimate is too small rather than too great. At any rate the world is not liable to stop going for a few years yet, according to his reasoning. Some idea of the vastness of the force that is meted out to us from the physical source of earthly life may be gained, this scientist says, by considering that if the energy of the sun gives to earth in a single day could be bottled up and directed against Niagara Falls it would cause that great body of water to dash back again up hill for 4,000 years. If turned into a single blast of heat it would cause every living creature instantaneously to blight and wither; the ice around the poles would be melted in one and three-quarter minutes and in another 11 seconds all the oceans would be turned into steam. If transmitted into electricity a spark would flash from the earth as far as the planet Jupiter. If collected into a single sound the vibration thereof would not only break every ear drum in the world, but would uproot the giant trees of the forest, and even level mountains. If changed into a momentary flash of light its burst would be so blinding as to penetrate the walls of the deepest dungeons and destroy the sight of every living creature. In brilliancy this flash would exceed the brightness of the sun itself over a million times. For one man to expend an amount of energy equivalent to that which the earth receives from the sun in the tenth part of a second he would have to work hard continuously for 87 million years. This calculation is remarkable in that its result differs by more than 3,374 million years from the period when scientists generally believe that the world will come to an end. Such experts as Darwin and Huxley believed that it could not sustain life two million years hence.—New York Herald. HOW'S THIS? LAWTON'S BRAVE SCOUTS.

The General Relates Instances of Their Heroic Work in the Philippines.

A dramatic story of the Philippine campaign is told by Major Grant, of the Utah artillery. General Lawton told the story to Major Grant as they sat in the general's headquarters at the front, near Candaba. General Lawton referred to the campaign then in progress to the north and east of Manila and said:

"The work of my men during this campaign has been simply wonderful, and much of its success is due to the gallant work of the scouts. Soon after leaving Malolos, I entered the enemy's country, and was greatly annoyed by the sharpshooters. One morning I had ordered a halt to make a reconnaissance. In front, sitting on a log, some distance to the front of where my staff and I were, I saw a man in civilian dress coolly watching operations. I asked who he was, and one of my officers replied that he did not know, but he had seen him on the firing line many times.

Although he had been frequently ordered to the rear, he had disobeyed the order. "The lieutenant said: 'He has been continuously in front of our lines under fire, but the men can't keep him away.' Now, if there's anything that angers me, it is to see a brave man needlessly expose himself. So I ordered the stranger sent to me. He approached, and I was much taken with his appearance. I said, 'Who are you, and what are you doing out there?' He replied: 'I am an American citizen, and my name is Young. I have been a scout in the Indian campaign of Montana and the Dakotas, and I thought I would come out here to try and help out the boys a little.'"

"I recalled his name as one of the men who had done gallant service against the redskins. I asked him if he could pick twenty-five men like himself from the North Dakota regiment. He said he could, and I at once appointed him chief of scouts, at a salary of $150 a month. He accepted, and the next day was ready for business. During the campaign these men did gallant service. They would leave camp with only rifles, canteens and ammunition, and be gone sometimes for four days.

"On the way to San Isidro the enemy had crossed the river on our approach and fired the bridge. Then Young's scouts showed their mettle. The brave fellows waded into the water on either side of the bridge, and using their campaign hats to dip up the water, they put out the fire on the bridge. Young and a man named Harrington, his lieutenant, armed only with big army revolvers, stood in plain sight on the bridge, covering their men. Whenever a Filipino put his head above the trenches a revolver bullet ended his career. The brave officers held the bridge amid a storm of bullets until finally Young fell, shot through the knee.

"Harrington ran to his wounded leader, and with pistol in each hand stood over the fallen man, shooting at the Filipinos who tried to pick him off. He held his position until the soldiers came and carried Young to the rear, and later sent him to the Manila hospital. Our men crossed the bridge and drove out the rebels.

"A few days later Harrington took his men to the front, and after a hard march stopped for supper at 5 o'clock. He sat down, leaned against a bank of earth, and waited for mess call. He did not respond when the call came, so the men went to look for him. They found him leaning back, his head resting on his breast, with his rifle lying by his side. He was dead. He had fallen asleep and a stray Mauser bullet passed through his neck, killing him. Next morning I sent this personal message to Young at Manila hospital:

"Harrington died 5 o'clock last night. A few hours later I received from the chief surgeon in the hospital this dispatch: 'Young died at 5 o'clock last night.' "So the two brave men had closed their last campaign at almost the same moment. Too high praise cannot be given to these fearless scouts."

SHALL WE DISPUTE.

The Opinions of Scores of Our Fellow Citizens?

Residents of Marquette like other American citizens, if making an investment want to be sure of getting the worth of their money. They want to know all the whys and wherefores and in a direct ratio to the value of the investment, the burrow and ferrow until satisfied with the collateral. Take an instance in the realm of proprietary articles. If we know of a friend who has been cured, we have some faith in the preparation; if we know of two or three our faith increases. If the cures reach scores, all well known citizens, and anyone who still maintains that there is nothing beyond ordinary merit in the said preparation can safely be left to the care of his fellow tax-payers.

If he wishes to pick a quarrel with them on the question of their judgment and veracity, he has ample opportunity in Marquette to do so. Begin with this case: Mrs. Wm. Warren, 220 Jackson St., says: "I had constant pain through the small of my back, at night was very restless, could find no position to lie in that was comfortable and consequently rose in the mornings feeling tired and worn out. The secretions from the kidneys were unnatural and greatly in excess. I also suffered from persistent headaches and had intense thirst, feeling as though I could not drink enough. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended so highly for just such troubles and I procured them from the Stafford Drug Store. The treatment promptly relieved me of the trouble."

STORIES OF HEUREAUX.

Character of the Assassinated President of San Domingo.

Many interesting stories are told of the late President Heureaux, of San Domingo. It was observed that when the first announcement was made of his assassination the consul who represents the San Domingo government in the United States, at New York, said that he would wait official confirmation of the report before saying anything about it. This statement by the consul recalls the fact that some years ago Heureaux, who was an absolute dictator instead of a president, went out into the country somewhere, two or three days' distant from telegraph lines, and caused the report to be sent that he had been assassinated. The result was that his enemies, including the army officers and people of influence in his household, were jubilitating and celebrating the event with great glee.

He took this method of finding out just who were his enemies, and who were his friends, and the result was that he had every person who was jubilating over his death, whether a personal friend or enemy, killed when he came back.

Another story is told of where he suspected a regiment of being disloyal to him. He ordered this regiment out on parade and surrounded it with the rest of the army. He thereupon made a speech to the soldiers, saying that all the officers of this regiment were found to be disloyal, and accordingly ordered the men to kill the officers. This was done very promptly, the men knowing that their only hope of life was in obeying the order. He then told the men that the non-commissioned officers were disloyal and ordered them shot, which was done by the regiment. He then divided the regiment up into squads, and had one squad kill another until the entire regiment was destroyed. This regiment had joined a slight rebellion raised by some opponent of Heureaux, and he had taken this method of ridding himself of it. It is needless to say that the balance of the army, either through fear or affection, remained loyal to him after that.

An officer of the United States government was some years ago a visitor in San Domingo, and became acquainted with President Heureaux, and relates interesting conversations that he had with him. This visitor asked him if he did not expect that he might be assassinated some time on account of the method of his government. He replied that probably he would be killed some time,

THE PACE THAT KILLS.

It would seem that as the ironclad departs from the original ship form she grows more dangerous to the people in her, because the naval constructor never seems to provide that she shall be accountable for her behavior in stormy weather. He sends something to sea, and Jack, half stifled, is under water in it. A turret is visible awash; frightful pieces of ordnance point long and leanly to the sky; add a pole mast and a military top, and call the whole a man-of-war. The theory of the naval constructor moves at a costly figure in this extraordinary departure. He would secure the sailor's life against the shot of an enemy by clapping him up in a ship which threatens at every lurch in a moderate sea to go to the bottom.—Pall Mall.

Men to Make Us Room!

See Below:

Some few months ago, before the manufacturers boosted their prices because of the increased cost of material, we purchased a large line of fall goods. They are coming now—sooner than we figured on—and we find we must make room for them. To do this, we have inaugurated a grand clearing sale, cutting the prices on all summer-wear goods to just about actual cost; for instance, $4.75 buys a man's all-wool suit that formerly sold at $6.00 and was cheap at that. A call will, we think, convince you that this is a bonafide sale—not an advertising dodge.

"MAJOR" BROOKS DEAD.

HE PASSED AWAY AT THE ISHPEMING HOSPITAL EARLY WEDNESDAY EVENING.

There is hardly a person in this city who will not hear with regret of the death of "Major" William Brooks, which occurred at the hospital Wednesday evening. After a long struggle with a cancer in the stomach he finally succumbed, breathing his last quietly shortly after 6 o'clock. His death had been expected for some time, as it was known that the cancer had a fatal grip on the old man.

Brooks was a man of 66 years of age at the time of his death. He had been in this section of the country for the last twenty-five or thirty years, spending some of that time in the copper country but the greater part of it in Ishpeming. In his day he was a skilled miner. Before his disease became so virulent that he had to stop work he was employed as a brakeman at the Lake Angeline. Through his long residence here he was widely known and through his kindly disposition he gained for himself a circle of friends who will hear of his death with deep sorrow.

The "Major" was nothing if not eccentric. He entered the hospital on the 6th of July. He was in bad condition when he was received and it was apparent that his death would follow in a few weeks. Being informed of this, he received the news without emotion, even with a certain satisfaction, and forthwith began to make arrangements for the settlement of his affairs. He manifested a great interest in his funeral and ordered a solid oak casket with an accompanying oak rough box. Of the casket he was proud and had it photographed. He was accustomed to show his friends the pictures of the coffin when they visited him.

The old man was quite cheery while in the hospital and was visited by numbers of his friends. Inquiries as to his condition have been made right along and it was vainly hoped that he might pull through. He was a widower and resided at 633 Pine street. The funeral arrangements were not completed yesterday, but the funeral will be held Sunday.

A special train on the L. S. & I. road carried a big party of Ishpeming people to Presque Isle Wednesday evening where an enjoyable time was passed. The party was given by Mrs. Barbour in honor of her guests.

Jack O'Connell has located his gallery on the vacant lot next to W. A. Meyer's store. He will give exhibitions of his skill nightly. He is connected with the Winchester Arms company and uses his guns in his wonderful shooting.

J. R. MacDonald of South Lake Linden, who has succeeded C. F. Sundstrom in the deputy collectorship for eight counties of the peninsula, has been here the past few days. He has met many Ishpeming people, and they express themselves much pleased with the new official.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

Joseph Sellwood left yesterday for Bessemer. Charley Hanck was up from Marquette yesterday. K. S. Baker of Marquette was here yesterday on business. An organ grinder was in evidence about the streets yesterday. Fiering and Glaw, the professional bike racers, were here yesterday. Charley Moores, who has been taking a vacation of a few days, is back on his run on the C. & N. W.

The pay days occurring this week have made business quite brisk. Trade is quite good and everyone is busy. Many people from here are in the woods yet gathering blueberries. The crop is not yielding well. It has been much better in past years.

Eric Berquist has finished fixing up his saloon in the Milton block and is ready to open it for business. The place presents a bright appearance. Joe Hooper is about to complete a deal with J. P. Outhwaite by which the latter's residence property at 604 Third street will be transferred to him.

James Donnelly of Oshkosh is in the city visiting Horace Outhouse. It is Mr. Donnelly's first visit to this section and he will look over its industries while here. Jack O'Connell, the crack shot who has been touring this section, is about to establish a gallery here. His shooting is wonderful and will attract much attention.

The Scandinavian people of Ishpeming will hold a picnic at Pearce's grove tomorrow. A large crowd is expected and everything possible has been done to insure the pleasure and comfort of those who attend.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Hawes will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Division street M. E. church. Her death was most sad, as the six children whom it leaves motherless are quite young.

A special train on the L. S. & I. road carried a big party of Ishpeming people to Presque Isle Wednesday evening where an enjoyable time was passed. The party was given by Mrs. Barbour in honor of her guests.

Jack O'Connell has located his gallery on the vacant lot next to W. A. Meyer's store. He will give exhibitions of his skill nightly. He is connected with the Winchester Arms company and uses his guns in his wonderful shooting.

J. R. MacDonald of South Lake Linden, who has succeeded C. F. Sundstrom in the deputy collectorship for eight counties of the peninsula, has been here the past few days. He has met many Ishpeming people, and they express themselves much pleased with the new official.

SAILORS' SUPERSTITIONS.

They Believe a Ship That Is Unlucky at First Will Always Be Unlucky.

When the Columbia stuck her nose into the slimy mud of Bristol harbor a few weeks ago and refused to be budged the news was spread broadcast, yacht racing sailors shook their heads and whispered that the craft was sure to be unlucky. One of the men in the vicinity of Tebo's basin went so far as to say that such an exploit so soon after the launching was a sure indication that the Shamrock would win. Nobody threw this human collection of superstitions overboard because his hearers also lived in glass houses. When the Shamrock was launched she, too, went on a nautical spree and tried to sink a passing barge. South Brooklyn heard this and also said: "She, too, is sure to be unlucky," but none would commit himself as to which would win.

This superstition of sailor folk has existed so long that not only landsmen, but bandsmen on warships believe in the signs and tokens. Some of the yacht-racing sailors are so foolish in the belief in hoodooed vessels as were the Polynesian fishermen who made sacrifices to Veranautomau and Tori for a good breeze. The modern fishermen still make sacrifices of a horse to their fish gods. Among the things still considered unlucky are women, cats and sky pilots or ministers on board ship, and recently a crew mutinied on being asked to go to sea with a bride. Hundreds of miles of articles have been printed to show that a vessel unlucky at birth remained so through her career, when in reality it is the other way. There are numbers of instances cited to prove the truth of this statement.

The present Defender was a double-act, finely riveted, 18-karat success at getting into a most horrible mess from the time the Herreshoff workmen began to weigh her up for launching until she defeated the Goulet's Vigilant, and finally won from Valkyrie III. She did more than any cup defender from the days of the Magic, the first boat to defend the trophy that the schooner yacht America won in England; for the Defender went so fast that Lord Dunraven was willing to accept any excuse to leave the country. It may be recalled that the Defender while being launched stuck on the ways at Bristol, and it became necessary to block her up again before she could be lowered to her natural element. All the old cronies, some of whom wouldn't walk under a ladder or step out of bed left foot first in the morning, held up their hands in horror and shouted: "She's hoodooed." Even tars who believe that wind always comes when one whistles predicted all the disasters along the beach to the poor, misguided racer, and took aboard fresh cargoes of water-front rum as a sort of I-told-you-so habit when the Defender met accidents, until, on Aug. 22 of the year in which she was launched, she met with her eleventh and ran aground near the southwest end of Hog island at the entrance of Bristol bay. As a lucky craft since that time, nearly four years ago, the Defender has been remarkable. She grounded at New Rochelle a few times since then, but won from the Valkyrie III, as she liked, and if there be anything in sailor superstition no unlucky boat could have done that, no matter how great her speed.

Another boat put down in the book of superstitions as an unlucky racer was the schooner Columbia, the first of that name to make a bid for America's cup. All the predictions on the list of untimely endings were put down for her in 1871, when she belonged to Franklin Osgood. She and the Sappho were known to be the two fastest schooners in the world, but J. Livonia didn't think so and challenged for the America's cup. The Columbia sailed like a witch in those days, but if there was a sandbar or other obstruction within hailing distance she was sure to cultivate its acquaintance. Racing sailors gave her a wide berth and predicted a sudden and possibly unprovoked death for her crew when she was finally chosen to meet the Livonia for the blue ribbon of the sea. The Columbia won the first two races with ease, but on the third became disabled and had to finish under head sails, the Livonia winning. The Sappho, which was owned by W. P. Douglass, stepped in, it being impossible to repair the Columbia in time, and made even shorter work of the Englishman than Osgood's schooner had done. Lester Wallace acquired the Columbia after that and sailed her for fifteen consecutive years without paying marine doctors a penny for any "unlucky" exploits.

In the merchant marine, as well as in warships and yachts, the galley yarn of "unlucky at birth, unlucky at death," has been knocked in the head. The White Star line steamer Britannic has no rival in the world at money-making, unless it be her sister boat, the Germanic, and yet the Britannic was in trouble at her launching. She had an encounter with her mate, the Celtic, since known as the America, of the Thingvailla line, in May, 1887, when she came together in a dense fog 350 miles east of Sandy Hook, and she made up for that in towing the Celtic, badly disabled, into port, and during her time the Britannic has made $100,000 where more "lucky" ships have not realized $1. On Jan. 13, 1898, a story was printed showing the Britannic to be a wonderful ship, and an examination of this article shows that up to that time she had carried a total of 57,489 saloon and 165,800 steerage passengers, and 1,000,000 tons of freight, with a total in earnings of more than $14,000,000.

The Britannic commenced running in the Liverpool and New York service of the company in 1874, and traveled 1,750,000 miles without a renewal of engines or boilers; was under steam 114,000 hours and under way 106,800 hours; burned 513,000 tons of coal, and her engines up to that time had made 350,000,000 revolutions. Pretty good for a ship originally pronounced unlucky, and so good that her record has never been equalled. And the Britannic is running yet. The luck of a ship, good or bad, depends more or less on those who are running her.

The Daphne was slated as another unlucky boat, and sailors wouldn't go in her for a time. She was an English steamer and capsized the day of her launching, drowning 134 persons. She could not have done much worse if she went down in the middle of the ocean, but she was raised, and is now known as the Ellen. She is as tight and comfortable as a drumhead today and hasn't had an accident in years.

The pilot boat Summer N. Smith was considered another hoodoo, because on her launch she misbehaved, on Memorial day, 1896. Mrs. Margaret Plant, widow of the steamship man, was chosen to christen the vessel, then on the ways of the Newport News Shipbuilding company. The port listed to port in going overboard and the water poured into her deck, and many jumped overboard in fright when the craft careened. Two persons were drowned. It was the first and last mishap to the boat, which has been earning money ever since.

The launching of the 12,950-ton English battleship at Blackwall on June 27 of last year was attended with the drowning of twenty-seven spectators, who were swept away by the back water that surged against the eighty feet of staging on which they were standing. So it is in any number of cases, even to a Fall river liner. The modern sailor does not believe all the yarns he hears, and is not nearly as superstitious as his old-time shipmates. Unlucky ships at the start are no longer feared, and if anything, make the most fortunate vessels in the end.—New York Mail and Express.

EXAGGERATED RESPECT.

Is Paid by the Sultan's Fawning Ministers to the Emblem of Uncle Sam.

In the discordant martial music incessantly produced by the European sympathy concert is heard the rattling thunder of the diplomatic bass drum that is ferociously beaten by the sultan of Turkey.

He has never felt the impact of Uncle Sam's big fist in his solar plexus, but he has read enough to be convinced that he is a hard hitter.

As an illustration of the respectful spirit for Uncle Sam has been instilled into his subjects, the following incident is quite apropos.

HOW THE CLOCK IS SET.

One of the duties of astronomers is to give us the correct time. Every day at noon an electric signal is flashed from the national observatory at Washington.

Most persons have a vague notion that our standard time is obtained from observation of the sun.

The stars perform their nightly march through the heavens, from east to west, with a perfectly regular movement.

This interesting fact has just been revealed by an instrument invented by Prof. A. G. Webster, of Clark university.

The astronomer charged with the duty of setting our clocks has only to observe the meridian passage of one or more of these stars in order to obtain the exact time.

When a sound, however slight, enters the resonator, or receiver of the instrument, the diaphragm, and consequently the small mirror, vibrates backward and forward.

NAPLES OF THE NEW WORLD.

Rev. F. C. Pillsbury So Characterizes Marquette in His "Land of Hiawatha."

SPLENDID PICTURES OF UPPER PENINSULA SCENES AND SCENERY.

Longfellow Took Liberal Advantage of Poet's License--Various Epochs Through Which This Interesting Region Has Passed.

FIRST OF TWO ILLUSTRATED LECTURES.

Rev. F. C. Pillsbury of Port Huron, former pastor of the Methodist church of this city, lectured here last evening on "The Land of Hiawatha," throwing on the screen as illustrative of his talk over a hundred fine views, most of them representations of the scenic beauty of the south shore of Lake Superior.

It was a very hot evening which perhaps accounts for the fact that the church was not more than half full. Certain it is that much inferior attractions have had much larger audiences.

The series opened with a picture of the poet Longfellow and a view of his home, following with pictures of typical Chippewa Indians and the residences of both Chippewa and Iroquois. While these were on the screen he discussed the poem and the sources from which Longfellow derived the information he made use of in the Song of Hiawatha.

ITS EPOCHS ILLUSTRATED. Remarking that his subject was not the poem, but the land in which its scenes were laid he proceeded to throw a series of views on the screen illustrative of the different epochs through which the region has passed.

The first was the missionary period and the first picture he threw on was that of Father Marquette. Associated with this period was what he termed the mythical fur trading days. The pictures shown in this series were those of voyageurs in their batteaux, refuge places along the coast, and Mackinac island, which was 200 years ago the great fur trading station of the northwest.

Next came a series of views illustrative of the development of the great mining industry. Pictures of both iron and copper mines were shown here together with views of the wonderful and gigantic machinery in the copper country.

THE SHIPPED INDUSTRY WHICH has grown to such enormous proportions was also pictured with a number of views, some of them taken in Marquette. On account of the familiarity of his audience with these scenes the lecturer passed over them rapidly as he did those of the locks at the Soo.
