BRITISH IN A TRAP.

Ominous the Situation in Natal, Despite Victories Claimed.

GEN. YALE FALLS BACK.

Boers Advancing on Ladysmith, Where White, Cut-Numbered, Is Hemmed In.

PRISONERS ABANDONED.

London, Oct. 23.—The parliamentary secretary of the war office, George Wyndham, made a statement in the house of commons today, saying:

Lord Wolseley sums up the position in Natal early this morning, as follows: "In the battle at Elands-laagte, Oct. 21, two guns were captured from the Boers, who lost heavily. "A large column of the enemy appeared, advancing from the north and west on General Yule, who, consequently, has fallen back from Dundee and is concentrating at Glencoe Junction. "In this operation we gathered in the wounded, and medical attendants were left at Dundee. "General White is in position at Ladysmith, and is being reinforced from Pietermaritzburg. "The enemy appears to be in large numerical superiority."

London, Oct. 24.—No news yet received tends to dispel the apprehension caused by Lord Wolseley's brief summary of the situation. A Pietermaritzburg dispatch says the Boers are sending no messages to be sent from the front. Other dispatches represent the Boers as boasting that Dundee is absolutely cut off, and assert that, despite the British victories, the situation is still uncertain.

LUCK WITH THE ENGLISH.
The Pretoria dispatch giving the report of General Joubert to the government, given below, evidently refers to the first battle at Glencoe, and the reasons why Commandant Erasmus failed to come to the assistance of Commandant Meyer cannot be fathomed. Had he done so, the British victory might have been still more dearly bought.

It appears certain, however, that the brilliant victory at Elandslaagte was productive of no effect for the relief of Glencoe, and the very reticence and brevity of Lord Wolseley's communication is only too ominous.

It seems to be to prepare the public for bad news, and it is only too likely that General Yule has been compelled to abandon the wounded and prisoners at Dundee because his force was too weak to hold the four and a half miles separating Dundee from Glencoe.

BOERS SWARMING IN.
It is expected that Commandant Erasmus has by this time joined Commandant General Joubert, and that the combined columns amounts to ten or eleven thousand men, while the Free State Boers are now threatening Ladysmith from the east, and the column reported as coming through Zululand must also be reckoned with.

In short, General Sir George Stewart White has been unable to follow up his successes and is obliged to remain at Ladysmith without being able to restore railway communication, which probably is broken at other points besides Elandslaagte.

It is quite evident the war office has news which has been withheld from the public and if the situation as here stated, is confirmed, Boer divisions may be expected at other frontier points.

COLESBURG HEMMED IN.
A dispatch to The Times from Colesburg, Cape Colony, says: "The situation today (Monday) is grave. The Boers are 250 strong and will be reinforced from Driekop. No defence is possible. The town guard will retire on Naauwpoort on the appearance of the enemy. The Driekop force is estimated at fifteen hundred men. A report of the fighting at Glencoe has been placarded at Bethulle, a Free State frontier town on the East London line, as a brilliant Boer victory."

TRANSVAAL VERSION.
Pretoria, Oct. 21.—[Delayed in transmission.]—The Transvaal government received this morning a dispatch from Commandant General Piet Joubert, as follows:

"Commandant Lucas Meyer has had an engagement at Dundee. He made a plan of campaign with Commandant Erasmus by messenger. Erasmus, however, failed to appear. It is estimated the British lost heavily. Our forces suffered, but owing to the mist it has been impossible to get all the details. It is reported ten of our force were killed and twenty-five wounded."

GLENCOE NOT ATTACKED.
London, Oct. 23.—The war office has received the following dispatch from General Sir George Stewart White, British commander in Natal, dated at Ladysmith camp, 4:45 p. m. today: "General Yule telegraphed me yesterday evening that the wounded at Dundee were doing well." This relieves the anxiety regarding

KRUGER TO SURRENDER.

SUCH THE REPORT THAT REACHES OTTAWA AND LONDON—ACCURACY DISCREDITED.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 23.—The governor general of Canada, Lord Minto, has received a cablegram from South Africa, dated this afternoon, to the effect that President Kruger has decided to surrender.

RUMOR REACHES LONDON.
London, Oct. 23.—A Cape Town special cablegram today says:

Advices from Pretoria are that President Kruger favors unconditional surrender. It is expected the executive council will meet Monday or Tuesday to discuss the advisability of such step.

The report is not credited in London, however.

AS CAPE TOWN HEARS IT.

Cape Town, Oct. 23.—[Afternoon]—News is received from Dundee to the effect the Boer disaster at Elandslaagte staggered the Boers completely, rendering an attack upon Dundee unlikely. Therefore there is no cause for anxiety.

BOER GENERALS CAPTURED.

COMMANDERS VIJJOEN AND KOCH AMONG 200 PRISONERS MARCHED INTO LADYSMITH

Durban, Natal, Oct. 23.—An official dispatch from Ladysmith says that about two hundred Boer prisoners have been marched into town, including General Ben Viljoen, General Jean Koch and Colonel Schiel.

HARD-FOUGHT BATTLE.

London, Oct. 23.—Fuller accounts of Saturday's battle at Elandslaagte emphasize the splendid gallantry on both sides and the superiority of the British in a pitched battle.

The Manchester, Devonshire and part of the Gordon Highlanders regiments, the Johannesburg Imperial Light Horse and the Natal field artillery formed on front and flank of the Boer position, which was strongly held on three hills, with artillery, and then the advance was made with utmost steadiness in spite of the heavy work of the Boer cannon and concealed sharpshooters, from the effects of which many British dropped.

The Manchesters and Gordons, riding towards the right, gained the top of a ridge, outflanking the enemy's flank. At 6 o'clock the bugles sounded "Charge," and the British swept ahead. The Boers fought to the last, only attempting to escape when further fighting was hopeless. In the meantime the Devonshires were pressing steadily up the left, although strongly opposed, and carried the position by a brilliant charge, "Cease firing" then being sounded.

BRITISH LOST HEAVILY.

Among the casualties of the Boers are the following prominent officers: Generals Viljoen and Koch and Koch's son, killed, and Colonel Schiel (German) and Commander Pretorius wounded and prisoners.

The British casualties were: Officers killed five, including Colonel Scott Chisholm, one major and three lieutenants. Officers wounded, thirty, including Lieutenant Colonel Conyngham, two majors, eleven captains and fifteen lieutenants. Non-commissioned officers and men killed, thirty-seven; wounded, 175; missing, ten. Total casualties, 257.

The British bivouacked on the captured position Saturday night. Some estimates place the Boer losses at five hundred, but this is probably exaggerated.

BRavery OF THE SCOTS.

RIDGE AFTER RIDGE CARRIED BY GALLANT HIGHLANDERS.

London, Oct. 24.—The Daily Mail publishes the following description of the battle at Elandslaagte from its special war correspondent, G. W. Stevens, filed at Ladysmith:

"The battle was a brilliant, complete success. The Boers numbered from twelve hundred to two thousand, and probably had about a hundred killed and 150 wounded. The fight itself was like a practical illustration of the handbook of tactics, each arm represented doing its proper work to perfection.

"The Gordon Highlanders in their attack advanced in magnificent order. They are immediately saluted with a heavy fire which told from the first. Their maoor fell with a bullet in his leg, but as he lay where he fell he lit his pipe and smoked placidly while the advance continued.

"As man after man dropped supports were rushed into the firing line, our men darting from cover to cover, splendidly led, and ever advancing. Yet as ridge after ridge was won, the Highlanders still found a new ridge confronting them, and thus they fought with nearly every officer down.

"Then, slamming every available man into the firing line—the Manchesters, Devonshires and Light Horse all mixed—with the bugles chanting the advance and the bagpipes shrieking, our men, yelling, swept forward, and the position was won.

"Meanwhile the squadrons of lancers and dragoons lapped round the Boer left flank, catching the enemy as they retired in disorder, goring and stamping them to pieces."

BURGHERS SURPRISED.
Other interesting and graphic accounts are also supplied by the war correspondents of the battle at Elandslaagte, from which the following are extracts: "The Daily Telegraph says: 'General French commenced the action at 6:30

KIMBERLY ASKS RELIEF

ENEMY'S NUMBER GROWING

British Victory Alleged at Mafeking—Gen. Cronje a Captive and 500 Boers Killed.

FAMINE IN BECHUANALAND

London, Oct. 24.—The Daily Mail this [Tuesday] morning says it understands that a message was received in London yesterday from Cecil Rhodes, dated Kimberley, Oct. 19, declaring in substance that the inhabitants of Kimberley desired to draw the attention of the government to the need of speeding reinforcements there, as the town was being surrounded by increasing numbers of Transvaal and Free State Boers. The matter, according to The Daily Mail, has been submitted to the cabinet.

ALL O. K. SUNDAY.

London, Oct. 24.—The Times has the following from Cape Town, dated Monday: "The censor's official report says all was well at Kimberley on Sunday." Kimberley, Oct. 20.—[Delayed in transmission.]—All well here, and there is no fighting in progress.

STARVATION THREATENS NATIVES IN BECHUANALAND.

SUCCESS AT MAFEKING.

BRITISH SAID TO HAVE CAPTURED GENERAL CRONJE AND KILLED 500 BURGHERS.

London, Oct. 24.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Durban, Natal, says:

An official of the Banana mine, who has just arrived from Pretoria, declares that while there he heard that Colonel Baden-Powell, British commander at Mafeking had captured General Cronje and thirty other Boers and killed five hundred.

THINKS VICTORIES EXAGGERATED.

DR. LEYDS TAKES LITTLE STOCK IN THE STORIES OF BOER DISASTERS COMING VIA LONDON.

Brussels, Oct. 23.—Dr. Leyds, diplomatic representative of the Transvaal in Europe, is quoted in an interview today as saying it is difficult to give an opinion on the battles fought at Glencoe and Elandslaagte, as the dispatches all emanate from British sources. He is said to have added:

"My own dispatches have not arrived, probably owing to censorship. In the meanwhile, I do not consider the situation as bad for the Boers as made out by the British telegrams, which are intended for the English public and the market and are probably too optimistic. The fact that the Boers retired in order to re-form later does not imply defeat. That is part of their tactics and does not prove they suffered seriously."

IRISH M. P. SUSPENDED.

CHAMBERLAIN'S HANDS BLOOD-STAINED, DECLARED O'BRIEN, AND THE HOUSE OUSTED HIM.

London, Oct. 23.—During the course of today's proceedings in the house of commons, while discussing the report on the supplementary estimates, Patrick O'Brien, Fenianite member for Kilkenny City, declared that the hands of the British secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, were as much stained with blood as those of any murderer who ever mounted the scaffold. The speaker, William Court Guiley, called upon O'Brien to withdraw his remark, but he refused to do so, whereupon the house, by a vote of 216 to 25, resolved to suspend him, and he left the house remarking: "You had better bring up another army corps, unless you want it somewhere else."

The cup that Sir Thomas Lipton spent a million dollars in trying to "lift" cost originally only $500. In view of all the money British yachtsmen have squandered in the endeavor to secure it, the amount was most excellently invested.

Mayor Maybury's re-nomination by the Democracy of the city of Detroit was accomplished with great enthusiasm and by an unanimous vote, and the indications are that he will receive a hearty support from his party.

Speaking of the chivalrous manner in which Sir Thomas Lipton accepted the Shamrock's defeat, the St. Paul Dispatch indulges in this flight:

When, four years ago, Dunraven sailed and withdrew, the standard of British sportsmanship was trailed in the dust. Lipton has taken it up and not only restored it, but placed it higher than ever. It seems trite to say he is a gentleman and a sportsman, but he has shown us in its fullness that great Anglo-Saxon spirit of pluck and courtesy which proclaims the dominant race of the world.

Only Sir Thomas isn't a bit "Anglo-Saxon." He is an Irishman of the right kind, and not a bit ashamed of the country of his birth, as was shown by the name he chose for the yacht with which he hoped to win the American cup.

Americans generally will agree with this expression of the Detroit Tribune, the great international yacht race which added one more victory to those previously won by American yachts in similar contests.

During the last two or three weeks the American humorist was unable to resist the opportunity to have more or less good-natured fun with Sir Thomas Lipton; but now that the thing is over, it might be worth while to say a little something serious about the square sportsman that has come to us from across the water within the memory of this generation.

Although he has announced that he will support the Republican ticket in his state, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts is not converted to the policy of the administration relative to the territory taken from Spain by us, regarding which he is quoted as saying:

There is a wide defection among the members of the Republican party over the policy into which the administration is permitting itself to drift. The dissatisfaction is so great as to endanger the success of the Republican ticket next year. In fact, if the administration continues this policy and the Democrats nominate a man who can cement the various elements of the Democratic party I will fear for the success of the Republican ticket.

Supporters of the administration's policy may scoff at the statement of the venerable Massachusetts senator as they will, but the fact remains that the defection he speaks of exists, and would menace the success of the party in the elections of next year were the Democrats in condition to take advantage of it. But they are not. The Democratic party is apparently undergoing a process of re-alignment on so many great questions of public policy that the bulk of its voters have no clearly defined convictions on any of these, and cannot be depended on to "stand up to be counted" next year as was their custom in former national elections.

It strikes us that among the afflictions Ireland has to stand up under, the character of a portion of its representation in the British parliament, as it is now constituted, can be ranked as holding a first place. The men composing it miss no chance that comes their way to perpetrate a blunder. Redmond's action in protesting against voting the money asked for by the government for prosecution of the war against the Dutch republics in South Africa, and insisting that it should be spent in Ireland instead, to relieve the necessities of the people of that country, was simply and purely an exhibition of his incorrigible asininity.

Whatever the motive of the British government in forcing war on the Boer republic may be, the British people approve of standing by the government in conducting it to a successful issue, and the objecting Irish members of parliament are only injuring the cause of their country by ostentatiously voicing a sympathy for the Transvaal Boers which, in addition to being wholly ineffective and useless, is, we are compelled to believe, assumed largely for the purpose of irritating the people of England. Then, too, this constant parading of the woes of Ireland is doing much to destroy sympathy for Ireland abroad, and tends to justify the British charge that the Irish are, as a people, constitutionally dissatisfied. The charge is a false one, and the fact is that England has persistently and stupidly refused to treat Ireland fairly, but it is given color by the course pursued by certain of the Irish representatives in parliament, who seem to have cultivated a capacity for whining with such painstaking assiduity that they have lost that of standing up manfully for what they have a right to demand and taking all the consequences of so doing.

The owners of ore carrying vessels on the great lakes are to be congratulated on the events of the past week and the very considerable addition thus made to their income for next year. But whether the more remote consequences of the transactions of the week will be like cause for congratulation is much of a question.

WHAT IT WILL LEAD TO. The Iron Trade Review has this comment on the action of the Rockefeller interest in forcing an advance of 25 cents a ton in the rate for lake transportation of iron ore for next season's business:

The owners of ore carrying vessels on the great lakes are to be congratulated on the events of the past week and the very considerable addition thus made to their income for next year. But whether the more remote consequences of the transactions of the week will be like cause for congratulation is much of a question.

GLORIOUS NEWS Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is excellent."

The "Plover Boy Preacher," Rev. J. Kirkman, Bell River, Ill., says, "After suffering from a lung trouble for ten years, I was cured by One Minute Cough Cure. Women are astonished sometimes when Dr. Coderre's Red Pills cure them so quickly. Here we have the case of Mrs. Louis Millette, who was sick ten years, yet the pills cured her in a few days.

Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are a cure for Pale and Weak Women. They simply supply what the system lacks. They tone up the stomach, make the blood rich, red and pure, and bring refreshing, natural sleep, regulate the menses perfectly.

The opinion was called forth by the superintendent's refusal to receive a girl who had been convicted of willfully setting fires and burning buildings.

Charles Jones, a young farmer of Berrien township, Berrien county, became suddenly insane last week and informed his wife that he had been authorized to kill his family. The case was so sudden and violent that Jones was taken to custody by the sheriff, who had intended the action of the court in order to get him in the asylum at Kalamazoo.

The scheme of the Upjohn Pill & Granule Co., of Kalamazoo, to supply its employees with groceries and other necessities at prices less than the local retailers has brought the wrath of the latter on the heads of the pill company, and the merchants threaten to boycott certain Chicago and Grand Rapids firms which are furnishing the Upjohn people with goods.

The Bay Mining company struck a vein of coal three inches thick Friday in a new shaft being put down on its coal lands in Frankenlust township, Bay county. The shaft in which the seam was encountered will be the largest yet sunk in the coal district, its dimensions being 8 feet ten inches by 18 feet four inches. The mine will be provided with a spur track and twenty-five cottages are to be built for the employees.

A young woman of perhaps twenty years of age deserted a two-months old baby at Jacob Schor's hotel at Port Huron Saturday. The unnatural mother went to the hotel during the afternoon, and without registering took a seat in the parlor. Subsequently she left the place unnoted, leaving the babe lying on the couch soundly slumbering. Provision for its immediate care had been thoughtfully made by the leaving of a nursing bottle and two bottles of milk. The police were notified of the find, and the babe was turned over to the care of police matron, Mrs. Carey. There is no clue of the identity of either mother or child.

Eugene Crowley of Lansing met a horrible death at Bowling Green Saturday morning by an explosion of dynamite. He was blasting holes for telephone poles for the United States Telephone Co., and was looking into a hole when a blast had failed to explode when the charge went off. His head was blown off his body and nearly every bone in his body was broken. The deceased was fifty years old and had recently been married to a young woman. They were living in a tent. She had urged him not to work at the business telling him he would be killed. She was standing watching him when the horrible accident occurred.

A delegation representing a German colony of 100 families, living in Canada, has been prospecting in Bay county for the past week in search of land. The visitors first visited the three sugar factories and three chicle mills, then went into Garfield township, where they were so well pleased that they decided to locate there. They said they will bring over the entire colony, about 400 persons, so as to begin farming at the opening of the spring of 1900. There is a great demand for farming land in Bay county since the sugar factories started, and while the transfers of farms this year have been greater than ever before, it is expected those of the year 1900 will show even greater activity in real estate transactions of this kind.

Labor Commissioner Cox has been canvassing Michigan business men and merchants generally concerning the condition of trade and is obtaining highly encouraging reports. A very large majority of those heard from say business is more satisfactory than it was in 1898, and that the outlook is good, money being easier and collections better. Out of 100 dry goods men canvassed, only 2 claim that prospects are poor, while "good" and "fair" are reported by 97 of them. Twenty-two and a half per cent represents the estimated increase in sales over 1898 in the dry goods trade and the grocers say sales have increased to some extent over those for 1898. The pessimistic merchants give poor crops department stores and catalogue sales as the cause of their poor business.

WHY THE SAILORS WENT DRY.

Captain Had to Have His Fresh Water Bath Every Morning.

Louis, an old sea dog from Austria, who has sailed the briny deep from Buffalo's bay to No Man's land, enjoys comparing his present position in the American marine service to that he once occupied when sailing in an East Indian man from Liverpool to Calcutta. The vessel had been becalmed and the water supply ran short during a terrible hot spell. The crew had to exist on moldy sea biscuits, while the captain, a big bully of an Englishman, lived in luxury. The crew did not object to this until one day, when every man was almost prostrated by the heat and lack of sufficient water, they discovered that the captain, knowing the sufferings of the men, had been taking baths daily in fresh water in a tub in his cabin. Almost an open mutiny broke out, and a squad of the tars, headed by Louis, was sent aft to take the captain about getting some more drinking water.

He told the captain frankly that they knew of his taking baths daily in his cabin in fresh water, and that every instinct of humanity dictated that he should forego his fresh water baths until he reached port and give the crew the water which he would otherwise have used for his ablutions. The captain became livid with rage at the "audacity" of the men.

"What?" he shouted. "You blooming lubbers want to take away from me my morning tub? Not ye says I. I can't do without me tub, so I can't, ye know. Do ye think I can give ye all the drinkin' water ye want? Not me, says I. Get tell out o' ere!"

That evening he gave each man an extra half pint of water, but he had a fresh water bath each morning, nevertheless.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Gents:—Yours of the 20th ult. received and you may think that I had forgotten you the reason of my being so very slow. Well the fact is we did not receive the 400 until about two weeks ago and I did wish to send you my candid expression of the merits "professionally," as I told one of our M. D.'s here that it was all right. Now I don't have having a large run of "typhoid fever" patients here and I have used the 400 with three cases and three without by the use of other brands and with the 400 had a better pulse with less material. As these cases were all of the same physical powers and age it was a fair test. I consumed the three cases by those two bottles, I did not even taste of same. I used one or two ounces by the hypodermic work and no abscesses resulted from its use, therefore I can endorse the 400 all right. As you did not send the price of same I will now ask you and will consider your proposition by cash lots. I suggested to the city hospital to use it. With many thanks for your kind remembrances I remain yours truly.

Copper Country Department MARSHAL FOLEY OUT. RUNS LIKE A TOP. HOUGHTON OFFICER RESIGNS TO ACCEPT A POSITION WITH THE COPPER RANGE ROAD. Martin Foley, who has been marshal of the village of Houghton since 1891, rendering most efficient service, has resigned that position and yesterday took up the duties of yardmaster on the Copper Range road at Houghton. He is succeeded temporarily, as marshal by Louis Voetsch.

AT DETROIT TOMORROW. DR. DICKENS AND MISS LAURA ROBERTSON WILL WED. Tomorrow, in Detroit, Dr. L. M. Dickens, son of the late Lou M. Dickens, well-known as one of Lake Superior's pioneers and Ontonagon's oldest citizens, will be wedded to Miss Laura Robertson of that city. The doctor, although a resident of Houghton for only a year, has a legion of warm friends who join with The Mining Journal in wishing the couple a long life of happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Dickens are expected to arrive here Monday next on the return from Chicago and Milwaukee, where they go after tomorrow's happy event.

TWENTY MILES READY FOR RAILS. COPPER RANGE CONNECTS ITS LINE FROM HOUGHTON TO THE ATLANTIC MINE. The Copper Range railroad connected its line from Houghton to the Atlantic mine late yesterday afternoon and the switchback is now a thing of the past, as from the crossing of the Atlantic southward ready for the rails and it is now impossible for the rail gang to catch up with the graders at any point. The engine just received from the Northern Pacific has been sent up onto the line and the rail gang is now pushing westward as fast as possible. McGillis, the bridge and trestle contractor, has transferred his force to a ravine about 3,000 feet east of the steel bridge across the Flint and Fire Steel rivers, where he has a trestle 85 feet high to put in. The Phoenix Bridge company is making good progress on its 1,700 feet of steel bridging across the Fire Steel, but will undoubtedly delay the passage of through trains for some time after the road is completed. The Shaller & Schreigau company has finished its dock contract for the Copper Range railroad, having put in twenty-two cribs in all.

PREMIER OF THEM ALL. NOTHING IN THE WEST WILL TOUCH THE "BOARD OF TRADE" CAFE AND PALM GARDEN. Sackrider & McKenzie's Board of Trade at Houghton is now in their own hands to receive its furnishings, and as the plans of the gentlemen interested are unfolded it becomes evident that nothing in Milwaukee or Chicago will surpass the new palm garden and cafe. J. H. Roberts, vice president of the Phoenix Furniture company, of Eau Claire, Wis., manufacturers of fine bank, office, church and store fixtures, is in Houghton to superintend in person the equipping of the new resort, and the materials are either already here or are arriving daily. Six thousand pounds, or three tons, of Georgia creole marble has arrived, and will form the base board about the entire sample room and palm garden. The floor will be laid with inlaid inlaid tile pattern, and on entering at the front the visitor will find himself in a smokers' lobby, in which will be a plate glass cigar case eight feet long and behind the same a wall liquor case with a French place beveled mirror recessed in the center. On the left will be a handsome screen forming a private office at the front, and two feet from the main entrance will be another screen extending clear across the room and with a vestibule entrance surmounted by a dome fitted with art glass in colors. Both this screen and the office screen will have chipped plate art glass set in oxidized copper frames. The furniture and fittings throughout will be of quarter-sawn golden oak, polished to a regulation piano finish. The bar will be thirty-four feet long, and behind it will be two mirrors set in one, each 8 by 14 feet in size and forming a bar glass 8 by 28 feet in dimensions. Two heavy oak columns, with carved capitals, will support a heavy cornice above this mirror, the frame having handsomely carved wreaths upon its faces. The walls of the sample room will be wainscoted to a height of seven feet and four inches, with French plate beveled mirrors set in the oak wainscoting. The palm room, in the rear, with its large arched windows and its beautiful staff-decorated ceiling, will be the glory of the place and will also have a wainscoting three and a half feet high about its walls, while two small card rooms lend variety to one side. A full carload of growing palms has been ordered from Chicago for this room. The ceiling and walls will be decorated to harmonize with the wood work, and a magnificent mantle and fire place will adorn the north side. Another mantle is found in the main dining room, under the palm garden, while at the east side are two private dining rooms. The kitchen and service rooms are on the west side, all of these rooms being above the surface level of the ground and having a separate entrance from Isle Royale street. The cellar in front is now being divided off into store rooms, etc., and a large ice box, 8 by 12 feet in size, is being built under Mr. Roberts' direction. Mr. McKenzie has arrived at Houghton, and from now until the opening day in November the energies of both members of the firm, and of Mr. Roberts as well, will be directed toward finishing the equipment of the new resort at the earliest possible date.

NEW NORDBERG PUMP FOR THE OSCEOLA AND TAMARACK MILLS NOW IN COMMISSION. The new Nordberg pump for the Osceola and Tamarack mills, second only in the United States in point of size to the great Calumet & Hecla pump, was put into commission yesterday morning and started off as smoothly as if it had been running for months. The pump is of the same general type as the pump at the Arcadian mill and also the Tamarack's water plant on Lake Superior, although much larger. As all the connections were not complete the pump was running only on one side, the pistons of the intermediate and low pressure cylinders being disconnected from their pump plungers. The high pressure cylinder of the engine is 22 inches in diameter, the intermediate 42 and the low pressure 62, the stroke being 52 inches. The pump is calculated to lift 40,000,000 gallons of water eighty feet in every twenty-four hours. It was making twenty-five revolutions a minute yesterday and was pumping, with two pumps disconnected, at the rate of about 10,000,000 gallons a day. It is calculated to make thirty-five revolutions a minute when running to its full capacity. Mr. Nordberg was present when the pump started and was highly gratified at the smooth way in which it ran from the start. He says that the Tamarack pump at its station on Lake Superior is built to pump against a pressure of 350 pounds, in forcing the water up from the lake to supply the Tamarack boiler houses and location at Calumet, while he is now building a pump for the Tiger mine in Idaho which is to force water up over 1,500 feet out of the mine.

SMELTING ATLANTIC ROCK. NO. 2 FURNACE AT THE HANCOCK PLANT IN BLAST AGAIN. No. 2 furnace of the Lake Superior Smelting works Hancock plant went into commission last night after several days delay in heating it up after the more than a year of idleness of the plant since the company decided to do all its smelting at Dollar Bay. The first charge was put in last night, and the first cast of mineral is used and it is the intention to keep this furnace of the Hancock plant running as long as navigation continues, to help out the big Dollar Bay plant.

OLD DOMINION. Old Dominion is producing from its single shaft about 800,000 pounds of copper per month. Its construction account is not yet closed, and it has many things to finish before beginning dividends, but as the construction money will be supplied by the shareholders on the forthcoming subscription dividends are in contemplation for next year. Patience and both more poor ground and more rich ground are needed for this property. The more poor ground has recently been purchased. If the Old Dominion makes a profit of 6 per cent per pound on its present output it should be earning at the rate of $4 per share on its 150,000 shares per annum, says the Boston News Bureau.

MOHAWK. Underground developments at the Mohawk mine continue encouraging. No. 1 shaft is now down 204 feet; No. 2 is down 285 feet, and No. 3 ninety-eight feet. No. 1 shaft is sinking in an excellent coppery lode. Drift south from shaft is also in good copper ground. The lode in No. 2 shaft is of a rather hard nature but contains considerable copper. The several drifts also look very well. As the opening progresses the confidence of the management in the successful future of the property is more and more confirmed. All surface work is moving along as fast as the mechanics can accomplish it.

WYANDOT. In the recent shake-up in the lower priced copper stocks, a broker was given an order to sell 800 shares of Wyandot at market. He offered the stock down to $2, when it was discovered by another broker that the company must have at least $2 per share cash in the treasury.

INSPECTED THE MENDOTA. J. Mayhem Wainwright and Ransom Turnball of New York, who have been in the copper country for some days looking after the 10,000 acres of land in Keweenaw county in which they are interested through inheritance, the property including the copper country's only copper ore proposition in the Mendota, left for their homes in New York on the late train Sunday night.

HIGHER MARKET PREDICTED. "An ultimately active and higher market is universally accepted as a forgone conclusion," is the cheerful statement made by the Wall street banking house of Henry Clews & Co. in their weekly circular setting forth the state of trade and finance. It will be very acceptable when it comes to quite a number of people who got caught between wind and tide in their speculative investments.

BOSTON & MONTANA. The Boston & Montana dividend of $15, all told, just declared, makes the fourth so far this year and an aggregate of $38 per share. The total of dividends to date is now $14,325,000. Last year the company paid $16; in 1897, $12; in 1896, $10; in 1895, $7, and in 1894, $2 per share.

ARCADIAN. The Boston Post financial says: "I have it on official authority that the Arcadian rock from the actual mill runs yields 14 to 15 per cent. mineral, mineral that shows at least 85 per cent fine copper."

NEW QUINCY PUMP HOUSE. The steel frame work of the new Quincy pump house at the Quincy mill is up and complete and the brick walls are now going up.

COPPERDOM BREVITIES. N. M. DeHaas left for Marquette yesterday. Senator Maitland of Negaunee was a copper country visitor yesterday. Stephen E. and Will Cleaves went down the line yesterday on business. H. M. Thomas and Frank Taunton of New York are the latest students to enter the College of Mines. Sheriff Lean leaves today for Newberry with the insane man recently sent up to Houghton from Dollar Bay. M. Wallace, the Houghton liveryman, and A. R. Richey, the barber, are the latest to join the Western Union's time circuit, their orders having been taken yesterday.

MARQUETTE MINNETTES.

Yesterday was such a warm day for the season that that old gag, "Is it hot enough for you?" actually had some point. It is not often that an Indian summer is warm enough to incubate the conditions keep up long Marquette will have to give up her claims to consideration as a summer resort and set her net for the winter tourists.

If someone of Marquette's enterprising merchants wants a window design which will attract attention the thing for him to do is to get a barber chair, a barber and a victim and put the combination in his show window. There is nothing like it for drawing a crowd.

Last evening about supper time the sidewalk in front of the First National bank was blocked with people, a full half of whom were women. Investigation showed that the attraction was a man in a barber chair in the shop below. He was lying there with a wet towel over his face while the barber with a small pair of pinchers was removing some ingrowing hairs.

One of the instructors of the Marquette normal—it would be unfair to say instructresses because there are only two of them and the question of identity would be narrowed down so—is fond of taking long walks on country roads.

Sunday afternoon this instructor of youth went out for a stroll and found something. The "something" belonged to the mineral kingdom and weighed about six pounds. Next morning she proudly displayed it at her boarding table with the information that it was natural amethyst and that she had broken it off from a piece out in the country which must have weighed half a ton.

It was a mean thing to do but some of her ultra-practical fellow boarders couldn't help telling her that it was slag. The lady says they are real mean men but says that anyhow their jibes don't apply because she is not the teacher of geology, and one can't be expected to be up on two solid subjects like pedagogy and geology at the same time.

WORK WELL ALONG.

IMPROVEMENTS ON ST. JOHN'S CHURCH WILL BE FINISHED IN TWO WEEKS.

The progress on the work of renovating St. John's church has been such that Rev. J. M. Langan was able to announce to his parishioners Sunday that it will be finished in two weeks, at the expiration of which time the regular services will again be held there. The neighborhood of the church has been the scene of great activity since the improvements were started. Many men have been employed by different contractors. The major part of the work has been finished, however, and the decorating will all be done before the end of this week.

A visit to the church edifice yesterday morning showed that the Associated Artists of Milwaukee, the concern which was awarded the contract, are doing a very fine piece of decorative work. The interior of the church has been retouched in every part. The color scheme is admirable and the tints so harmonize as to give the interior a very artistic appearance. A noticeable improvement is the substitution of neat iron pillars for the massive wooden columns which formerly supported the upper part of the structure. The view of the altars from the pews is now unobstructed. Formerly these pillars interposed, and destroyed the value of some seats.

The church is to be fitted with new stained glass windows to replace the old fashioned ones which have been in place for many years. The exterior of the structure has also been given attention. Wherever there were evidences of decay the boards showing it have been removed and replaced with new. When the necessary renovating has been done the church will be given a fresh coat of paint which will improve its appearance. The contractors are now installing the heating plant and it will be ready for operation very soon.

The grounds of the church will receive attention in time. Now they are littered with rubbish, resulting from the alterations made to receive the heating plant. This will be cleared away and the grounds improved. Just now, however, every energy is being directed to getting the church ready for occupancy at the earliest possible date. As a result of the work the congregation will have a place of worship practically as good as new, and the expenditures will foot up only a small part of the sum which would have been required to rebuild the old church or build a new one.

AN IDEAL DAY.

The weather sharps were bothered yesterday to account for the ideal weather. The day was all but perfect. It was a typical Lake Superior autumn day, and coming after several weeks of rough and tempestuous weather it fairly caught people here by surprise. As a result of the mildness of the atmosphere ladies donned bright colored, light clothing and the streets had the appearance of a summer day. All who could possibly spare the time spent most of the day in the open. The gold links were a popular resort and many members of the club made the round in the course of the afternoon. Every fair day is utilized by the players now, as they realize that snow will put an end to their favorite game before very many weeks have past. One enthusiast insists that he is going to backen his balls and stick to the sport in spite of the weather. The plan may be all right, but winter play would be very hard on the caddies.

YELLOW FEVER IN THE ARMY.

It isn't the number of men that yellow fever kills that frightens you, but the unexpected suddenness of its attack and the rapidity with which it kills. A man is well and hearty at 3 p. m.; at 4 p. m. he is deadly ill; at 6 p. m. he is dead, and at 8 p. m. he is buried. In much the same manner men will work day after day in apparent health, and then will suddenly appear a general weakness. The body is giving out. It needs something to strengthen it, to drive away the impurities of the blood, to tone up the stomach and assist digestion. For this purpose Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly recommended. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, malaria, fever and ague.

IRISH LACE.

Nearly every known variety of lace is now copied by Irish workers, and the industry is a source of large wealth to the cottage women. The revival of this work in the green isle dates from the potato famine of 1845-46. Harriet Martineau says that the emigrant girls of Ireland were so quickly trained and so deft of finger that the year after the famine 400,000 of them were earning no less than $400,000 to $500,000 a week. At the present day one great mercantile firm pays out to the Irish peasant women over $100,000 a year for lace. The stuff ranges from the cobwebby Limerick lace to solid raised needlepoint in patterns, like old Venetian point lace. The very charming and uncommon sort of lace known as "Carrickmacross," which has for its special feature to apply a pattern in fine cambric on to net, with the aid of many lovely stitches, owes its establishment to the late Marchioness of Bath; but so many names deserve mention that it seems almost unjust to single out even this important example. Government aid, too, has been given to Ireland in this respect; considerable grants from the science and art department have been awarded for the best designs for the use of the Irish lace-workers. But, after all, the nuns in the convents have been the main agents in the introduction of this industry to Irish women.

SURVEY IS COMPLETED.

THREE MONTHS OF GEOLOGICAL WORK ON THE LANDS OF CLEVELAND-CLIFFS COMPANY FINISHED UP.

J. R. Finley and Jerry Weld, who have been engaged the past three months on a geological survey of the lands of the Cleveland-Cliffs company in the immediate vicinity, have completed the actual field work and are now busy with the reports and findings of the survey. Mr. Finley superintended the survey but the most of the field work was done under the direction of Mr. Weld. Charles Walker of Marquette was employed as surveyor.

All of the lands of the Cleveland-Cliffs company in four townships adjacent to Ishpeming and Negaunee were surveyed. The total of the acreage looked over is about equivalent to two townships. The work was done thoroughly with a view to giving the company an exact record of the geology of its lands which will be useful in connection with possible explorations for ore. The idea is somewhat novel but it is generally conceded that a survey of the nature of that just finished will be valuable to the company.

Messrs. Finley and Weld will not leave until their records for the Cleveland-Cliffs company are completed. They will take up a survey for the Michigan Land & Iron company on tracts of its land lying west of the city. The object will be the same as in the case of the survey just finished, to ascertain if the geological conditions give promise of the existence of ore bodies on the lands. There is a very large acreage in the tract belonging to the Michigan Land & Iron company and it is expected that the work will last through the winter months. Mr. Walker has not decided whether he will remain for the winter's work or go into the woods in northern Wisconsin.

ISHPEMING IN BRIEF.

A. R. Bennett was up from Marquette Sunday.

Charles Wenzel of St. Ignace was here Sunday.

R. A. Manhard of Marquette was yesterday.

E. F. Bradt was up from Iron Mountain yesterday.

H. F. Nickerson was down from Houghton Sunday.

Fred Schulthes of Marquette was a visitor here yesterday.

Miss Ada Mapes of Marquette spent Sunday here visiting friends.

The White Spear Medicine company is continuing its engagement at the opera house all this week. The performance given brings out a good attendance nightly.

The final session in the coroner's jury in the Cashen murder case is set for tomorrow. The jury men will finish hearing the testimony and arrive at a verdict without loss of time.

G. G. Johnston's Canal street residence is now in the hands of the painters, who are refreshing its outward appearance. It is being painted with considerable taste and will be wonderfully improved in looks as a result.

T. F. Gill has bought out W. A. Campbell, who has run a carriage works in conjunction with his blacksmith shop the past few months. Mr. Gill intends to run the carriage business in connection with the shop, managing it himself.

Attention is called to the announcement of the first of the series of Gaynor dancing hops. These parties and classes have been popular entertainment features the past few winters, and they will be more freely patronized than ever this fall.

A large number of outing parties took advantage of the unusually pleasant weather Sunday and spent the day in the woods or driving. There was a very heavy demand for livery turnouts and the local stablemen had every conveyance fit for use in commission. The fine weather continued yesterday, which was an ideal autumn day.

Hub Wright did not get into the lineup against Yale last Saturday when the Wisconsin team put up its magnificent battle against the sons of old Eli. The Madison men were in fine condition and played the game through without calling on substitutes, so Herbert had to content himself with witnessing the contest from the side lines.

The Houghton football team which was so greatly disturbed about a game with Ishpeming a few weeks back fell down before the Calumet aggregation Saturday with a sickening thud. The Calumet team cancelled its scheduled game with Ishpeming a few weeks back because it was too disorganized to play the henaffe boys. It looks bad for Houghton to be signally defeated by such a team.

Recorder Small and the other deputized persons are prepared to take the affidavits of the local simrods who will hunt deer this fall. The affidavits and fees are sent to Marquette and the licenses are returned immediately. The fee for resident hunters is only seventy-five cents but it costs parties from outside the state $25 for permission to hunt deer. Many applications for licenses have already been received here.

Upper Peninsula News.

Gene Gaden, for many years a resident of Escanaba, died of pneumonia last week.

The Perronville Shingle company has filed articles of association in the secretary of state's office, with a capitalization of $15,000.

Application has been made for a new postoffice at the Victoria mine, with Ray Everett as postmaster. A star route will be established between Rockland and the mine.

Escanaba's jail facilities are inadequate. The state jail inspectors have just recommended that a new building be erected. The present cramped quarters prevents the proper separation of prisoners according to grades and ages.

Escanaba is figuring on a new hotel which will cost $50,000 and have accommodations for 150 guests. The plans for the building were received last week. An effort will be made to organize a local stock company to back the enterprise.

An electric light plant is being put in at the Michigan mine, and will soon be in running order. A line of wire has already been run to Rockland and one or two buildings will be lighted by electricity as soon as everything is completed.

The Salvage Association of North America is making an effort to recover $15,000 worth of copper ingots which were dumped overboard from a steamer in distress a week or two ago. The sunken cargo is supposed to be only 400 feet from shore.

Manning's proposed furnace may not be built after all. The reason is that bids for constructing the plant were too high, and the company can't just see its way clear to making anything from such a big investment as would be necessary to erect and operate the plant.

According to upper peninsula newspapers winter is coming along very tardily. The Ontonagon Herald says that one David Burns picked his second crop of raspberries the fore part of last week. Mr. Burns also laid a few mayflower vines, just about to blossom, on the editorial table.

At its meeting last week the Delta county board of supervisors increased the equalized valuation of property throughout the county by about 20 per cent over last year's figures. This action was made necessary through the fact that more money is required to meet current expenses.

S. M. Stephenson has received word from United States District Attorney Covill, of Grand Rapids, that as far as he is concerned the title to the Manomete postoffice site is clear. The abstract has been forwarded to Washington and the department of justice is scrutinizing the document. It is expected the formal acceptance will be announced in a few days.

The vessel loaders of Menominee and Marinette have increased the price of loading boats to fifty-five cents per hour. This is an increase of five cents. The new price is already in effect and the vessel captains offer no complaint. There are nearly 400 men in the union. The increase is made proportionate with freight rates. The lake freight rates have increased nearly fifty per cent.

The Upper Peninsula Educational association will hold its fourth annual educational rally at Ironwood from Jan. 25 to 27, inclusive. The president has sent letters to all the teachers of the upper peninsula, in which he requests them to state topics which they wish to have discussed at the meeting. This association is rapidly becoming recognized as one of the leading educational gatherings of the state.

Sault Ste. Marie is to have another handsome church edifice added to its already splendid collection of houses of worship. At a meeting of the parish of St. James' Episcopal church, at the church last week, it was decided to erect a new church building to take the place of the old one at the corner of Spruce and Division streets. The estimated cost of the proposed structure is $15,000. Plans submitted by Charlton, Gilbert & Demar were accepted. The style of architecture will be gothic, with clerestory.

Escanaba has captured the meeting of the Presbyterian synod for 1900. Rev. Dr. James Todd of that city, who was present at the late synod meeting at Saginaw, is quoted in the Escanaba Iron Post as saying that the lack of knowledge of the upper peninsula possessed by lower Michiganders is something appalling. Dr. Todd says that not one per cent of them know anything of the upper peninsula outside of Marquette and imagine that the rest of it is composed of mining camps and backwoods shanties filled with barbarians.

Miss Gerski, a young woman about twenty-four years of age, is probably dead in the woods near Crystal Falls. Friday night a homesteader named Gerski, who resides a few miles from Crystal Falls, came to that city and reported that his daughter had been missing for over a week. He said that the girl had been keeping house for him for some time and that recently he had his arms broken and the girl was compelled to do all the work. She was dissatisfied and one evening about eight or nine days before stated that she was going to her home in the city and started.

The Water Works company of Escanaba has served notice on the street railway company of that city that it will not supply it with power after Nov. 1. This is causing the street car people to get a hustle on to complete their power house before that date. This power house will be one of the best in the country, capacity considered. It will not only furnish power to operate the company's cars, but will supply power to others about town. The company announces its intention to run the cars through the winter and will build or buy a snow plow which will enable it to keep its tracks clear. It is likely the company will secure a contract to carry the mail and express between Escanaba and North Escanaba, the Soo line connection.

QUESTION ANSWERED.—Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sample bottles at the Stafford Drug company.

TEACHERS MEET HERE.

BUT THE DATES FOR THEIR ANNUAL COUNTY INSTITUTE REMAIN TO BE FIXED.

Some time within the next two or three weeks the school teachers of Marquette county will assemble in this city to attend the annual county institute. This meeting alternates between the three principal cities of the county from year to year. It is due at Negaunee this fall, having been held at Marquette last year and at Ishpeming the year before. Next year it will go to Ishpeming. It was the original idea to have Marquette hold the institute this year instead of Negaunee, but that has been abandoned and the teachers will assemble here. The local school authorities would have preferred to have postponed the local reception of the institute until next year but the Marquette committee was not favorable to taking up the large amount of work connected with the institute for the second consecutive year. County Commissioner of Schools Davis is arranging for the meeting. He has had many things to contend with and it is impossible to announce the dates when it will be held at this time. The decision of the Marquette committee against holding the institute at the Queen City was hardly expected, and somewhat interfered with completing the plans as expeditiously as was expected.

The institute will probably be held next week or the week following. It is subject to arrangements to be made with the educational people who will be obtained to assist in conducting it. Popular and well known educational specialists will be obtained and as they are in great demand it is with some difficulty that arrangements are completed for their services. A great deal of work will fall on the local committee as the institute will be numerous. Accommodations will have to be provided for the teachers from Marquette and other points in the county. The Ishpeming contingent will attend the sessions daily, by using the street cars from their home city.

Marquette is destined to be the headquarters of the county institutes through the location of the upper peninsula normal there. It will be conducive to the success of all educational meetings held at the Queen City. Principal Waldo of that institution has had much experience in institute work. He has already participated in several county meetings on the peninsula and will appear in Negaunee at the Marquette county meeting.

ORGANIZED A LADIES' GUILD.

The ladies of St. Paul's Catholic church met Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Joe Sues and organized a Ladies' Guild among the members of the congregation. The guild is officered as follows: President, Mrs. Joe Sues; vice president, Miss Gertrude Kruse; treasurer, Miss Frances Winter. The ladies will hold their first meeting next Wednesday at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. D. Mass. The guild has been organized for the purpose of taking a lively part in all work for the benefit of St. Paul's church. All church entertainments will be pushed by its members and it is expected that it will realize considerable sums which will be applied to good works. At present the ladies will do a lot of fancy and useful needle work in preparation for a bazaar which will be held for the church's benefit at a future date.

WILL HUNT DEER.

Captain Jack O'Connell has left the city for a three day visit with his folks at Rapid River, Mich. He will return to Negaunee before the deer season opens, when he will take out a license and go after game. He should be able to shoot his five head without trouble, as he is a crack shot. Indications point to the issuing of several deer licenses here to outside parties. Justice Trathen is already receiving the affidavits of local sportsmen who want licenses. He forwards the affidavits and fees to Marquette and the licenses are returned by the next mail. Local parties will go to the woods in greater numbers than ever this fall and indications point to a good sport. The deer are plentiful in this vicinity.

DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN.

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest test, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hammick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at the Stafford Drug company. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

A LIMA MAN'S TESTIMONY. "I have obtained excellent results from the use of Foley's Kidney Cure. It relieved my backache and severe pain over the hips. It toned up my system and gave me new vim and energy. I regard it as an honest and reliable remedy for all Kidney diseases. It makes no false claims but does what it says when given a fair trial. I certainly recommend it. Wm. Finn, 447 E. 14th St., Lima, Ohio. The Stafford Drug company.

LOCAL LAONICS.

John Seaby of Republic was here Sunday.

John Donoghue spent Sunday at Marquette.

Mrs. Frank Koob was reported feeling much better yesterday morning.

Ika Rosen is absent in Chicago on a purchasing trip, his second tour this fall.

Nick Laughlin, Sr., has been quite sick the past few days. Sunday he was very low.

Miss L. Condon of Ann Arbor was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Haidle here Sunday.

The traffic between Ishpeming and Negaunee was very heavy Sunday. Many people used the street cars and rigs also carried parties.

Burt Spear returned from the copper country, where he has been working, Sunday and he will probably remain here. He reports copper production booming and states that an immense amount of building is being done at Calumet.

Many flocks of geese have been observed passing over the city on their way south. The older residents insist that the southern migration of the birds is the sign of a change and they are looking for bad weather.

Work at the new shaft of the Negaunee mine is progressing favorably. Every now and then a bolt is encountered which fills the shaft with water and quicksand but the level is quickly reduced and the work goes on.

A gentleman from Turin reports that deer in that township are damaging the potato crops. They get in the fields and root the tubers out with their feet. The farmers stand too much in awe of the game warden to shoot the deer and thus stop their depredations.

Sunday was one of the finest days of the fall. Outing parties took advantage of it. The demand for livery rigs stripped the local stables early in the afternoon and a turnout could not be rented. The day was spent in the woods by many parties. Yesterday was also marked by delightful weather after the fog that prevailed in the morning had passed away.

THE MISTAKE ABOUT JIM EGBERT

James Tinsington Egbert has come to Melrose under unfavorable circumstances. Called by the sudden illness of his father from the college on the Pacific coast, where he had passed three happy years, he found himself suddenly confronted by the rude emergencies of a side of life of which he knew nothing. His father's life hung in the balance for weeks, and when he began to mend the physicians recommended his removal to some quiet place where the busy roar of the world of commerce could not so suddenly subside. And the father himself had suggested Melrose. It was there that he had met and wooed James' mother, and in the hour of convalescence the memory of the place seemed very dear to him.

So James brought his father to the quaint college town and rented a cottage on one of the most quiet streets, where with a kindly housekeeper, who admirably forestalled the invalid's wants, they passed the summer days in closer communion than the widely separated father and son had known for years. And the elder Egbert's affairs had been sadly involved at the time of his sudden stroke of illness, but enough had been saved from the wreck to place father and son on a comfortable financial footing.

Every day the boy realized that there was a gradual improvement in his father's condition and he blessed the wise head that had suggested the rest and retirement of the pretty town. As soon as they were settled in their cottage James determined to enter the Melrose college. This was in accordance with the wish of his father, who deeply regretted the necessity that removed the boy from the California university. The fall and winter term had just begun when the name of James Tinsington Egbert was added to the college rolls, as a member of the senior class. Melrose was an old college, but never a large one. It had been handsomely endowed, and was well equipped, but its attendance did not exceed 300. Both the social standing of the students and their scholarly requirements, however, were unusually high.

It seemed as if James Egbert failed to make a good impression on his fellow students from the start. Care and anxiety had made him preoccupied. He was pale and haggard from much watching. His only thought after recitations was to get back to his father. He made no friends, largely because no friendly overtures were made to him. In a week's time his fellow students called him "Tissie" behind his back, a condensed form of his middle name that seemed to carry a suggestion of effeminate approach.

Yet there was nothing effeminate about Jim Egbert. He was a little above middle height, well put up, with a springy tread, a firm jaw and a naturally bright eye. At times he felt his fellow students' neglect keenly, but he was too proud to wear his heart on his sleeve, and, besides, he felt that all his spare time belonged to his convalescing father. So September wore along, the elder Egbert growing weaker daily, and the younger lessening in no particular his devotion to his parent; becoming, perhaps a little more ignored—if that were possible—by his fellow students, as day succeeded day. None of the latter cared to inquire into the particulars of "Tissie's" daily life, and if such inquiry had been made it is doubtful if it would have roused any violent display of sympathy. Boys of that age are not prone to tender thrills.

It was different with the students at the women's college. Perhaps it was intuition, perhaps it was merely a romantic feminine interest in the alien and the outcast, but it was certainly true that these girls believed in Jim Egbert. And after pretty Jennie Pangborn's adventure they believed in him still more. Jennie was coming home one evening from a call on a girl friend. It was a moonlight night and she had no fear. Then suddenly three town loafers came from the gloom of a tree shaded corner and barred her way. No doubt they simply meant to frighten her, and they succeeded admirably, for she gave a vigorous shriek. It was promptly answered by the appearance of a youth who dashed across the street and without a moment's hesitation faced the trio. They had only meant to scare the girl, but they were quite willing to fight the man. They advanced on him in a body, and the youth nimbly retreated. At this one of the bad lot darted ahead of the others and was received with a swing of the stranger's right fist that tumbled him headlong over a low fence and on to a convenient grass plat. Then the youth dashed at the other two and with a blow here and a vicious kick there put the surprised pair of scallwags to hasty flight. When the scamps had gone the youth approached the girl, who was leaning against a fence, scared and yet delighted, and suggested that he would see her safely home. Which he did, there being no further danger, with quickness and dispatch. And when she asked the identity of her rescuer, he had said it was of no consequence, and hurried away.

"And, girls," Jennie had cried to a knot of her cronies the following morning, "I'm just sure it was James Egbert, and he's a lovely fighter."

She laid in wait for James that very day and when he came up with his right hand wrapped in a handkerchief she leaned forward and said:

"Thank you again, Mr. Egbert."

Whereat James had bowed stiffly and looked annoyed.

And the girls kept this precious secret to themselves. They didn't tell it to the boys. They knew they wouldn't be believed.

September wore along and the heart of Philo Chance was filled with foreboding. Philo was captain of the Melrose football eleven and it seemed to him that life was just one long series of football mishaps. Brisbin didn't come back to school and Timmons had a bad ankle that grew no better, and Jasper had fallen off shamefully in his punting. There were men enough, and enthusiasm to waste, but Philo felt with a sinking heart—especially when he thought of the great annual game on Thanksgiving day—that the Husky eleven and its high priced eastern trainer—that the material at his disposal was very far from satisfactory.

October wore along with Philo getting his men into the best shape possible, but still painfully conscious that it wasn't the eleven he had fondly hoped to lead to victory. One day, it was the second week in November, he called his men together and showed them a letter he had just received from Ford Baxter.

"Ford is an old Melrose boy," he said, "and what he doesn't know about football isn't worth mentioning. He graduated from Leland Stanford university last June and after a trip to the Hawaii is on his way east to go into business with an uncle in New York. I wrote him to stop over here and help us out with his best advice and all the pointers he can spare us. And he says he will, and what's more, he ought to be in Melrose tomorrow."

The next morning as James Egbert was plodding his way across the campus he heard a wild yell. He looked up in time to see a six-square young man break away from a group of students at the gymnasium door and come bounding towards him. James tossed aside the books he was carrying and met the onslaught by suddenly stooping and catching the stranger about the legs and lifting him high in the air.

"Why—why, it's Ford!" he cried with a little blur in his voice.

"Old Jim, how are you?" shouted the newcomer. And then they beat each other upon the chests and suddenly clasping hands gave a weird and long drawn yell.

"Come here, Jim," cried Ford, as he dragged him to the astonished group at the gymnasium door.

"Philo," cried his friend, "what did you mean by not telling me you had this?" And he gave Egbert a thrust in the ribs.

"I—I didn't know Mr. Egbert was a friend of yours," slightly stammered the confused captain.

"What difference did that make?" cried Ford. "Here you wrote me a hard luck story one long whine over the weakness of your team and never said a blessed word about the fact of having Jim here."

The captain looked helplessly at his associates.

"Hold on, Ford," said Jim in a low voice, "I can explain this. You mustn't blame Captain Philo. He isn't aware that I ever handled a football."

"What?" shouted Ford. "Not know that Jim Egbert plays football? Jim Egbert, the best all round man on the coast! Oh, say, give me air!"

And seizing Jim by the arm he walked him swiftly away, leaving the stupefied captain and his associates to stare after their rapidly retreating figures.

In an hour Ford stalked back alone and drew Philo to one side.

"I've got the whole story from Jim," he said, "and a wretched story it is. Here you ignoramus have been boycotting and ignoring the very best fellow in your whole blasted school, bar none. He's a right. No, Jim didn't accuse you of anything. That wouldn't be like Jim. But he's felt awfully sore over your studied neglect. But let it go—you can't recall it—and listen to me. I went home with Jim. I told him he must put on the Melrose uniform. I said the success of the team depended on his playing. He demurred and looked towards his invalid father. I appealed to the father. He took my side and Jim will play. But there is a condition. No allusion is to be made to your recent strained relations. He wants that all sprung out, and a fresh start made. You see, Philo Chance? Let the men on the team treat his appearance among them as a matter of course. That's all he wants. He cherishes no hard feeling. He is going to play for the honor of old Melrose. He's going to play because he is one of the best fellows that ever walked a campus."

"But is he really such a fine player?" queried the dazed captain.

"Fine player," cried Ford. "Do I know a fine player, or don't I? Am I a man to be goldbricked by a fumbling duffer?"

of Ford Baxter. Ford himself with his big cane decked with purple and white trotted between the grand stand and the lines, an inspiring figure for anxious Melrose eyes with his confident air and his cheery claims.

The Melrose girls sat together a huge flower bed of purple and white, and their expressions of loyal approval were fully as marked as those of their stronger lunged associates.

It was a great game. Has its story not been told—like the tale of Troy—a thousand times? Ramsay had never put in the field such an eleven. The Melrose team was a matter of doubt. Could it stand up before those heavy plungers?

It could and did. Under Ford's directions the Melrose team played strictly on the defensive. "Get them confident," was his oft-repeated advice. It was a beautiful defense. When the Melrose line gave it gave slowly and with dignity. Thrice in the first half it gained lost ground.

As for Fullback Egbert, he was here, there, everywhere. He backed the weak spots. He blocked the trick plays. He was alive and going every blessed minute.

"Good boy, Jim!" cried Ford Baxter. "You can't catch our Jimmie napping." At the end of the first half there was no score and the ball was at the Melrose ten yard line.

The second half opened with a series of terrific plunges by the visiting team, but the Melrose lads withstood them gamely. They were forced back, it is true, but the lads were not great. Back they came, however, step by step, until the ten-yard line was reached and passed.

Then as a sharp cry from Philo and his brass band, in vain the Ramsay heavyweights pounded at them. The ball was Melrose's.

Then all at once Jim Egbert whirled under the mass with the ball tucked under his arm and sped away for the Ramsay goal. There was but one man between him and success. The fullback swooped down on him. He swerved away, he swerved back and brushed the confused man aside like a fly.

What a roar went up! And how it was duplicated when Jim kicked goal! As he plodded back past the stand where the Melrose girls were massed a clear, sweet voice came from the fluttering throng.

"Thank you again, Mr. Egbert," it cried, and Jim reddened to the temples. The Ramsays were whipped. They struggled gamely for the few remaining moments and then time was up.

Jim looked around. He saw his father standing bareheaded on the bench and yelling like a wild man. A thousand throats were shrieking "Egbert!" His fellow players lifted him to their shoulders and ran with him down the field. As they passed the girls' stand a figure he had learned to know turned about on the lowest row of seats and waved her slender hand at her schoolmates. Instantly sixscore voices chanted as one:

"Thank you, Mr. Egbert, again and again!"

His eyes blurred a little. It was a happy moment for this idol of the hour. Did it make amends for those weeks of unkind neglect? He was a healthy boy in mind as well as body. He told himself it did.—W. R. Rose, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HIS PHILIPPINE HOME.

Lieut. George Ball is Stationed in Calamba in the Province of Laguna.

HIS COMPANY ASSIGNED TO GUARD DUTY IN THE TOWN.

Delightful Trip Up the Pasig River—Description of His Quarters—Natives Think "Hot Time" is an American National Air.

OFFICERS' LIFE IN NEW POSSESSIONS.

Mrs. D. H. Ball has just received a second letter from her son Lieutenant George Ball. In it the young officer gives a good description of life and scenes in the new American possessions.

"Dear Mother:—We disembarked last Monday and had to remain in town until Wednesday as there was no boat up until then. That is the only means of communication with Calamba now as the country is mostly under water.

Laguna de Bay is higher than the water ever came before since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. It has been estimated that there is ten feet of high water on the lake, and as Calamba is on low ground, part of the town is under an inch or two of water, except back from the lake on the high ground, where it is comparatively dry.

DINING AT THE CLUBS.

"I had a fine time in Manila. I met Morrow of my regiment, of whom I have written once or twice before, and two or three other officers in my regiment, and we went to the Army and Navy club and spent the evening.

"I forgot to say that I did not get ashore until late in the afternoon. The next day I went and called on young Denby and he took me for a ride on the Luneta. It was late in the afternoon and everybody was out driving according to their custom. That evening I went to dinner with four or five officers and a civilian who was giving the dinner at the Bohemian club, inside of the walled city. We had a fine dinner and I ate all I could hold because I expected to eat hard-tack and bacon for some time, but I have been agreeably surprised.

"I can't begin to tell you about all the things I saw and did because it would fill a book. I will have to write every day of what happened because there are so many little occurrences that I can't remember them from day to day.

PASIG RIVER A BUSY STREAM.

"We had a delightful trip up the Pasig river, which, by the way, has more shipping on it in proportion to its size than any other river in the world. The current is very swift and it takes a long time to run up it. Of course we were towing a casco (native boat) loaded with supplies and sixty-seven recruits for our regiment. We left Manila at 11 in the morning and arrived at Calamba at about half past 8 or 9 p. m. All of the way up the river we passed old Spanish ruins probably hundreds of years old. I am very sorry that I didn't bring my camera so that I might send you some pictures, but I expected to be in the field where I couldn't use anything of that sort, and where it would be a nuisance, so I left it with my baggage in our store house in Manila.

HIS QUARTERS ARE FINE.

"I was quite surprised when I got here to find what fine quarters we had. My captain, Bailey, and I live together in a very fine house for this country. It was evidently some notary public's house or the house of some other important official. It is built of boards with a bamboo floor and rests upon stilts about four or five feet from the ground. We have plenty of air as the floor consists of bamboo strips with an interval between them so that you can see the ground underneath. It is very comfortable though, and I enjoy this very much.

"The heat is not so very great, either. At any rate I don't notice it. Of course I can't race around without perspiring, but I don't mind that.

"There has been no firing here since I came, and the people are gradually coming back. The report is that the insurgents are leaving this section of the country.

NATIVES SING POPULAR AIRS.

"This afternoon I was walking around the town with my captain when we came to a hut where a native girl was playing on a harp and singing "After the Ball." That and "Hot Time," or as a Spaniard translated it, "It will be warm in the city this evening," are very popular with the natives, and they think that "Hot Time" is one of our national airs. I don't know what words they are singing the song as they sing in Tagalog, but it sounds very sweet, and this girl had a very sweet voice. Some of the natives are very friendly, and as they pass our door, give us a smile and a "Buenos dias Senor Captain" or "Senor Jefe."

"My company, 'F,' is on guard in town and while the work is not heavy it is exacting. Everyone must be off the streets at 7 and the natives obey the orders. We have no trouble with them, but of course we never relax our vigilance.

"Where I sit now I can see across the country towards the north for over a mile. It seems queer to think that in these woods a mile away our friends the enemy are lying.

END OF AMERICAN LINES.

"Two companies of our regiment are stationed at a little place called Los Banos, about two miles from here. There is a fine Spanish hospital there and some sulphur springs. I have been told that it is a very fine place. This is the farthest point toward the south that we hold so far, and the rainy season has hindered the field operations so that no advance has been made for some time in this direction.

"I suppose you picture Calamba as a little country village such as we have at home. Well, don't do it any more. In the heart of the town is the church, and near it are the old Spanish barracks, and the alcalde's palace, which is really the finest house in the place, and as you pass down the two streets in the town, you see only the nipa huts of the natives through the trees. Each house is surrounded with a grove of banana trees and small palms, and other tropical vegetation, until from a distance the houses are invisible.

COULD START A BEER GARDEN.

"We have a fine little grove of banana trees in our back yard and Captain Bailey says that all we need are a few Japanese lanterns, an orchestra and some beer to make a first class beer garden. But as we have none of those indispensable adjuncts we will have to give up the idea. We have some first class boiled water and a few bottles of Apollinaris, and that is as near as we can come to alcoholic beverages. I drink almost no water at all. In fact, I have had no water since I have been here. I had one glass of Apollinaris this noon, and at meals I drink coffee or cocoa so that I run no risk from the water. My Captain advises me to train myself to get along without drinking except at meal times, and I am succeeding admirably so far. Of course I get very thirsty occasionally but I soon forget about it and then I am all right again.

"The captain says that he is going to take some pictures of our house and when he does so I shall send you one so that you may see how finely we are living. I don't mean that sarcastically at all, because we have very pleasant quarters.

FIRE FLIES AND CHAMELEONS.

"When you get to the river which flows through the town you have to get off the launch and paddle up the river in a banca, a native boat which resembles our dugout. As we came up the river last night the trees along the bank were filled with fire flies and were one blaze of light. It was a very pretty sight.

"We have some little pets here. Every evening a small colony of five or six chameleons comes out of the cracks in the wall and chase flies and bugs around the ceiling. They even come down on the table, and just now as I was writing this a little fellow climbed up on the table and picked up a small white miller right beside my hand and then darted away.

"The captain and I are going to get some fishing tackle from Manila and do a little fishing. The river and shore of the lake have plenty of fish and we intend to vary the monotony of our fare. Speaking of fare reminds me. Eggs are worth five cents apiece here and, by the way, everything is figured on a Mexican basis. When we speak of five cents Mexican we mean two and a half cents American, or gold. The currency of the country is Mexican or Spanish silver.

"The natives don't know what the American money is. We get the most delicious bananas and oranges here. The oranges have a green skin but are very sweet and nice. The pine apples and mangoes are not ripe yet, so we don't get any of them. I understand that the mangoes are just getting ripe, and we can have some very soon."

ROOFED IN A FORTNIGHT.

Contractor Gregg Says Normal School Will Soon Be Under Cover.

Lipsitt & Gregg, the contractors, are going steadily ahead with their work at the new normal. Mr. Gregg said yesterday that they expect to start putting the roof on the building the latter part of this week and to have it completely under cover in a fortnight.

Work on the normal has been somewhat delayed on account of the inability of the builders to get material. The masons were idle Saturday and yesterday, and may remain so today because there is no stone ready. If they are able to start tomorrow Mr. Gregg says he thinks they will nearly or quite complete the masonry work on the building this week. Though it was started two weeks later the school at Neagaunee, which is being built by the same contractors, is much farther ahead. It is already under cover, but then the same hindrances have not been experienced.

Lipsitt & Gregg also have the contract for the hospital building at the branch prison. The foundation for this was laid about six weeks ago but nothing farther could be done as they were unable to get the iron necessary to use in the construction of the building. One car of it was reported to have arrived yesterday. If this is the case the masons will be taken over there as soon as they finish on the normal and the work on the hospital continued as long as material lasts.

WILL SOON BE HERE.

New Machinery for Lake Shore Iron Works Expected Next Week.

Manager C. H. Blomstrom of the Lake Shore Iron works got back Sunday morning from Chicago, where he had been a week or ten days purchasing several thousand dollars worth of new machinery to install in the establishment, particularly in the gas engine department.

It was expected that a part of this machinery would have to be built to order and as the factories are all rushed now a considerable delay would be caused, but Mr. Blomstrom said yesterday he was fortunate in securing all but one piece. This machinery has been shipped and is expected to arrive here next week. Mr. Blomstrom says the machinery he has purchased is as good as the market affords and that the iron works' equipment will be a fine one.

The work of making ready the big south room of the plant for the reception of this machinery is going right along. The white washing, which was a big job, is finished, the arcaway has been built, the short windows cut down full length to give more light, the old floor has been taken out and a new one is being laid in its stead. The shafting will probably be in place before the new machinery arrives.

THEY ARE FALLING.

Coppers Start This Week No Better Than They Ended Last.

The new week gives evidences of no improvement in the copper share market. On the contrary the weakness which prevailed last week is still evident, and yesterday nearly every stock which moved at all closed lower than it opened.

Arcadian opened at 41 and closed at 38. Baltic closed at 22, which was 2 1/2 less than the opening of 24. Boston & Montana opened at 34, advanced to 35 and closed at 34. Isle Royale lost two from its opening at 39. Calumet & Hecla opened at 75 and closed at 74. Centennial was the sole exception on the board and gained a point. Its opening was 23 and its close 24. Old Dominion closed at 27 1/2, being a point and a half down from the opening. Quincy dropped off on the last quotation to 154, a loss of one. Tamarack opened at 215 and closed four lower. Utah closed at 35, two under its opening.

London copper continues dropping. Hayden, Stone & Co. quoted the opening at 274, 78, 6d, and the close at 273, 15s; the previous close was 274, 17s, and 6d. Yesterday's close is the lowest figure the metal has sold at for a good many weeks.

Paine, Webber & Co. said in their letter to the local branch yesterday: "Boston, Oct. 23.—Coppers are weak under the lead of Standard Oil stocks. Although spot lake copper has sold at 17 1/2c for some outside holdings the market is now quoted a little firmer with 18c named for lake brands. Offerings have become more restricted and a better tone is apparent among sellers. Exports of copper last week were 1,433 tons, and since Oct. 1 foot up 6,088 tons."

Wheat rallied yesterday. December opened at 69 1/2 and closed at 70 1/2, its highest mark. May opened at 73 1/2 and closed three-quarters better.

HIS QUARTERS ARE PLEASANT.

Judge Stone's Room in the Court House Has Been Fixed Up.

When Judge Stone came back to the city at the end of last week he found a very agreeable surprise awaiting him. During his absence his private office, across the hall from the court room, had been repaired and fixed up till it looked like quite another place.

The principal improvement is a fine new hardwood floor, which replaces the old pine floor. The walls and ceiling have also been repapered, the paper on the walls being of a solid, light terra cotta tint. The border and ceiling are covered with a light figured paper. The room has been thoroughly cleaned and the woodwork re-grained and varnished. The floor, which is tiled and as slippery as a skating pond, is covered by two handsome rugs.

Judge Stone expresses himself as being very much pleased with the changes which have been made in his absence. While the other court houses on the circuit are newer and handsomer than the one in Marquette county he says none of them are more convenient or furnish more comfortable quarters for himself.

WEDDING DELAYED.

Houghton Divine Kleeks on a Marquette Marriage License.

A Houghton paper says that two young people of this city who went up to the copper country to be married found themselves in an unpleasant predicament and on account of it were obliged to postpone the ceremony a day or two.

Both of the contracting parties reside here but for some reason desired to be married in Calumet. The groom took out the license in Marquette. When they presented themselves before a minister for the ceremony and handed in the Marquette license as authority the good man questioned the legality of the proceeding. The groom went out to find an attorney, but as the hour was late his quest was not successful and the wedding could not be performed that night.

POLITICIANS COMING.

Party of Republican Wheelhorse Touring the Peninsula.

A party of Republican leaders headed by Senator McMillan and reported to include ex-Governor Rich and a number of other prominent politicians of the state have come into the upper peninsula to tour it on one of those political journeys generally referred to as "fence-building" trips. The party will arrive here from the east at 2:50 this afternoon and will spend a couple of hours in the city. While here it will make its headquarters at the Hotel Marquette. Invitations have been sent out to the faithful to call. At 5 o'clock the party will take up its journey again and move on to the next stand, Ishpeming, where it will spend several hours, then move on to the copper country.
