It is said that Oscar Wilde, the æsthete, doesn't look in the least bit like a poet. This goes to establish that the verses attributed to him are all his ownest own. They are so "ut-

There yet remains just two weeks of summer. Scintillate!—Appleton Crescent. If Cinders knows anything about the seasons, autumn and fall constitute the part of the year when one can sin-til-late to the most advantage. The nights are longer.

The surgeons who have been politely bounced from Garfield's sick room might try their hands on Gen. Denny O'Brien, the noted guerilla chieftain now confined in the county jail here. He has a builet in him the size of ar egg, 'tis true, but fears are entertained that he will survive unless the right kind of a surgeon gets hold of his case.

An eastern paper notes that "Bob Ingersoll is letting his hair grow long," whereupon a cute contemporary remarks that it is probably because judge Black had him where it was short in their recent controversy. Cinders knew that there was a good deal of hair-splitting in that affair, but didn't suppose that the polemical gladiators got right down to yutgar hair nulling. ulgar hair pulling.

Editor Reid, of the Appleton Post, was defendant in a horse case last week, in which judgment for the value of the horse -$175-and costs was rendered against him in favor of the jockey who induced him to purchase the animal, and the horse showed its opinion of the court by dying the same evening. Being de-nied language, it was the only way the poor brute could express its contempt for the justice's decision but volumes couldn't say more.

their visit was made known, the person called upon invariably put his hand in his pocket, and gave with a willingness which showed that his charity was of the kind that came from a genuine sympathy and desire to con-fer benefit. Up to Friday morning something over a thousand dollars in cash had been raised-an even thousand dollars of which was sent by draft to senator O. D. Conger, of Port Huron. Besides the cash, there were seven large cases of clothing, blankets, boots and shoes, etc., in the store of Mr. Stafford ready to be shipped this morning. There are many people in the city who have not had an opportunity to give to this fund, who really desire to do so. By calling on any of the above named committee, your subscription will be received and torwarded. Any persons having articles of elothing that they can spare, may leave them at Stafford's drug store, and they will be forwarded to the relief committee, and distributed by them where they will do the most good. The sufferings of this stricken people are great, and to render them immediate relief is a duty it pleases us to see so cheerfully recognized. The Lake Superior Transit company, through their local agent, have offered free transportation for supplies.

> Big Scare.—The schooner Montuak arrived in port last Monday with a cargo of coal and six tons of Hercules powder, the latter article of commerce being consigned to C. M. Wheeler. Upon learning the nature of the cargo the mayor informed Mr. Wheeler that he would not be allowed to unload his congealed lightning on the piers in the city, and also informed the railroad company that they would not be allow-ed to receive it within the limits. Fearful that his mandates would not be obeyed the mayor requested the marshal to keep watch and see that the powder was not unloaded on the dock nor taken through the city, and this officer, with a body guard of specials, sat up through the silent watches of the night and performed their duty. Rather than test the mat-ter of might by discharging the cargo contrary to the order of the mayor, and thus bringing the matter into the courts, the powder, on the following day, was placed on board the yacht Grace Ely, and that part intended for the iron district deposited on the dock at the mouth of Dead river, while the balance was taken to Houghton. The city charter is very explicit in the matmovement under certain restrictions. The United States statute, however, gives a municipality the right to regulate, or prohibit, in the matter of articles of inter-state commerce, their handling within the limits. In this seeming conflict of authority the MINING JOURNAL prefers to have nothing to say-it is a matter for the courts. The high explosives manufactured and brought into this county are a necessity to the successful operation of our mines, and were it not for their use the product of the upper peninsula mines would be reduced to one-half their present yield; but that the shipment of this powder through the city is necessary, or even good policy, we doubt. It has been done heretofore, but the common council at its last meeting authorized the marshal to enforce the ordinance in the future, and he will do it if he doesn't forget it. Only one explosion with like terrible conse quences of that of last week is needed to remind people that giant or Hercules powder is bad medicine, and that if handled at all it must be with care.

The party left for lower Michigan on the noon train. To a representative of the MINING JOUR-NAL the governor expressed himself as greatly pleased with that part of the D., M. & M. road he had been over. The track, he said, was smooth, the road bed hard, and the ride accomplished with the ease and comfort usually to be looked for only on the oldest roads. He would give the company a certificate of acceptance of the first section, but prefers to wait until the early part of November, when he will again visit the city, and, with the commissioner of railroads, go over the entire line to examine it with reference to that executive act. He very much regretted his inability to carry out his intention of remaining a few days in the county, but urgent telegrams from persons acquainted with the terrible suffering and destitution in that part of the commonwealth recently visited by disastrous conflagrations, had prompted him to an immediate return for the purpose of issuing a proclamation to the people to take action for the relief of the destitute in those localities. The governor showed us a telegram be had ust received from senator Conger, of Port Huron, which stated that the des-titution in the burnt district was even more appalling than any newspaper accounts yet published; that competent persons-men well acquainted throughout the district and competent to judge of the extent of the people's needs—had estimated that fully one million dollars would be required to place them be-yond want until they could provide for themselves. The governor is a pleasto be regretted that his stay among us was so brief. On his next visit we trust he will make up for it by a thorough inspection of this district, and thus become better acquainted with the part of the state that pays more THREE SHOTS WITH A RE-VOLVER.

Naturally, considering the nature of my calling, I have been always particu-larly attracted by the scores of stories tell of the ingenious plots contrived by rived, and had not even written my scoundrels to get possession of other people's jewels, especially diamonds. In many cases such stories are, of course, pure fiction. But as to those which profess to narrate facts, whether plain or colored, I have only too much reason, from personal experience, to suspect that the real owners of jewels have very after more to do with their have, very often, more to do with their disappearance than easily-imagined brigands, swindlers or thieves. Nevertheless, there is enough substratum of truth to make even purely invented stories of this kind probable. Mine is not an invented story; but my reason for telling it is not so much its truth as its supremely extraordinary character. Its like, in any single detail, never happened to anybody else in the world.

Were it not for this I would assuredly refrain from adding to the pile of jewel stories in which some jeweler's near stories in which some jeweler's agent plays the part of hero or victim. For I was myself agent to a very great firm of jewelers in London—I need not say to whom—when there happened to my self that terrible experience, terrible almost beyond the power of words to describe, which I am, for the first time in my life, about to tell in words.

I remember, as if it were yesterday, how one of our partners called me into his private room and said to me:

Morris, I must ask you to be good enough to start for Paris this very evening—that is to say, by the very first possible train. You know that parure of the Princess Mouranov that we had to put into new settings?"

"Of course I do."

"Well you know the princess is a she said. "I was be

"Well, you know the princess is a customer; she is rather flighty; but she's too big a gun for us to disregard her whims. The parure is just out of hand, and was to have been delivered to her in Portland place to-morrow morning; but—it's just like her—she's taken it into her head to set off on a voyage to America, and, an hour after she took the whim into her head, she was off, so I hear. It's just like her, anyhow. I believe she goes to Patagonia, where her diamonds—that is to say, her parure—she thinks, will be indispensable to her. I shouldn't have thought so myself, but I suppose she knows. Anyhow, she's going to spend the whole of to-morrow in Paris, and her diamonds must be delivered to her there, and paid for—you understand. there, and paid for—you understand. If we don't deliver the parure, she'll never forgive us; and if she doesn't pay before going off heaven knows where, why, we shall never forgive ourselves.

"Why?" asked I. "It all seems simple enough. I've only to give the hands, of course-receive the money, give and take a receipt, and come away. There will be no difficulty about the princess' money, I suppose? No. But, don't you see, I'm afraid you're still a trifle young, Morris. Those Monranov diamonds are as well known to all the diamond-hunters in Europeand they swarm abroad-as they are to you and me. Better than they are to you, by a long way. By some means or other, you may take your oath, one of these gentry will know you to have the charge of them. It's no good taking precautions against that; they'll know hearing of the telegram from my emonly a way of putting people on the trail. Take care you go to the right house, my friend. II. I had just ordered some refreshment after my journey before proceeding to Les Bosquets, when—asked one of the waiters.

"Yes," said I, though wondering not, I am inclined to think, always based upon actual occurrences—which name on the list of persons staying in the hotel. Was my "Yes" a piece of imprudence? I hardly know to this

But I could not very well reference. fuse to see her; indeed, it might prove important that I should see her. And certainly no harm could come of my seeing her in a large and crowded hotel.
"Madamoiselle waits in the salon," said the waiter.

So to the salon I went, more curious than anxious about who the young lady might be who expected me in Paris and who knew my name so well. Paris and who knew my name so well.

She was a stranger—a young Frenchwoman, rather pretty and exceedingly well dressed, and yet with something about her that showed that she did not belong to the beau monde, it that be the right term to use, for I den't pretend to be a French scholar.

"M. Alfred Morris, from London," asked she, in precisely the same words as the waiter, but in a voice and accent which made the words sound very differently indeed, and made the girl herself look really instead of passably pretty. Indeed, hers was one of the sweetest voices I had ever heard.

"At your service, mademoiselle, She smiled; and her smile was very weet indeed. "I am truly fortunate," she said. "I was beginning to fear you

"Ah!" sighed I, a little disappointed.
It was no adventure then—only the affair of the parure, after all. Still—well, considering everything, that was, perhaps, all the better. Adventures, till the receipts were exchanged, would certainly be mal a propos.
"Yes, of Mme. la Princesse de Mour-

"Madame received a telegram from London from your firm, saying you would be here to-day. It was why, we shall never forgive ourselves. You'll have to be sharp, for it doesn't follow that she'll stay in Paris a whole day because she says she will; and you'd better avoid having to follow her, if you possibly can."

"Naturally. Where is Madame to be found?"

"At a place called Les Bosquets. It's outside Paris: but here's the address written down. I needn't tell you to be cautious—"

"Whe?" asked I "It all some a careful telegram, monsieur, and that was well. It is not prudent to let all the world know what you carry—without doubt nearest your heart, monsieur? Have I not reason—I? But madam has changed her plans—that is the habitude of madam. I always know what madam will do next, for it is always what she shall not say. She was for America last night; to-day she is for Biarritz. But she will want the pa—the affair monsieur knows of—all pa-the affair monsieur knows of-all the same-all the more. "It is many years since I believed in Bogy, mademoiselle."
"Bien. It shall not be long." And she was gone, closing the door behind her, if my eyes told me truly. Without believing in Bogy, it is not a pleasant thing to be left alone in a strange room in the dark, all the same fancies will come into one's head, especially when the seconds grow into minutes without counting themselves on a visible watch face, and when one has on one's person diamonds worth many thousands of pounds. Every-thing was all right, of course; and yet I could not help wishing that the Princess Mouranov had received me at Les Bosquets by the light of at least one candle, if not of day. And, though I was but a tradesman's employe, com-mon French courtesy should not have kept me quite so long waiting for a light, even though a fine lady might not be ready to see me the very instant I arrived. I felt my way to a very comfortable sofa, on which I sat down, and waited on, waxing impatient, and feeling rather like a prisoner condemn-ed to the dark cell. Manners forbade me to doze or whistle, and-

But impatience was soon to change into something more.

Was that sound of voices in the room or not? If not in the room, close to the room it must have been, for I heard them plainly-sometimes darkness itself will strangely sharpen our ears, and there are certain words which once heard sharpen them yet more I heard three voices. One was Mlle.

"But for the rest," said Mile Lenoir, "what ought one to do? If he goes back to England"—

"He will not resist," said Mlle Lenoir. "And if he does"— I thought I heard a sigh, so sharp had my ear grown. But from whom came the sigh? Whether from Mile. Lenoir or the other woman I could not tell.

"If he does," said the man, "be it on his own head, whatever comes. You understand me, my friend. I do not like too much blood; but if there be recistance there must be what there resistance there must be-what there must be. He must not trace the dia-

It had all passed through my ears to Some plot, invented and carried out with fiendish cunning, had brought me into a den of robbery and murder. I was to wait for death in that lonely house and that horrible dark chamber

What in the name of heaven, in the name of desperate helplessness, was I to do? The voices grew confused, then ceased altogether. I was alone. No-body knew me in Paris; nobody would miss me there. If I did not return my employers would surely set me down as having run off with the jewels, my mother and sisters would believe me guilty, and break their hearts and starve. Could I escape from the house? Impossible-through unknown pas-

I don't think myself less brave than other men, yet I could not help a groan of despair at the thought that I was about to be murdered so helplessly, so hopelessly. How soon would it be?

I drew out my revolver, and in doing so a little fusee-box with a few wax matches in it, fell on the floor. One moment's light would be something, though the last gleam I was ever to see. I groped for the box, found it at my feet and struck one of the matches. Heavens! what met my eyes? The gleam of flame had indeed come not a moment too soon.

Straight in front of me, coming towards me through an open door, was as evil-looking a ruffian as I had ever seen; a murderous ruffian if everthere

These gentlemen furnish a superior rod, and put it up in strict accordance with scientific principles; hence are not afraid to guarantee their work in the most binding manner. They come well recommended, and an inspection of their work and method of doing business convinces your reporter that they merit the endorsements they show from leading citizens of other up country towns where they have been operating. While they are here our people should not fail to secure protection for their buildings against damage by lightning. They put up the best rod we have ever seen.

THE MINING JOURNAL was last week innocently made the medium for promulgating a falsehood of the basest kind, for which it is now anxious to make all possible amends. It will be remembered that in the last issue we married C. W. Doton, of Green Bay, Now, having learned that we were the victim of an outrageous lie, we are placed under the necessity of unmarrying him by saying that the statement was a false one. Having given publicity to a mean fabrication, involving the name of a gentleman whom we consider a particular friend of the MIN-ING JOURNAL, and a young lady whom GENTS FURNISHING GOODS we are not acquainted with, it is meet that the public should know who it is 686 that started the story. The simple, unvarnished facts are as follow: One day last week a conductor of a Pullman'car, named Barnes, accosted the writer and told him that Mr. Doton was married. Barnes is an individual whom the writer would not believe under oath, (and it is doubtful if any one else would), so we took no notice of what the fellow said. Seeing that we considered him unreliable as a source of information, Barnes brought another to his assistance in giving the story publicity-a person who ought to have been in better business. On the evening of the same day the writer was called by Barnes to a table at the Nelson house, where sat the latter and the DRY GOODS, well known dandy passenger conductor who was to verify it, which the latter did. The writer thereupon put the question point blank to the d. c., and received an answer in the affirmative. With the remark that "if Doton were really married the MINING JOURNAL must make mention of the fact," the writer asked the d. c. to give him the name of the lady and the date of the marriage, whereupon the individual in the superb garments gave the information which last week appeared in the paper. The writer didn't for a moment doubt the story after that, as he imagined that such a handsome, gallant man, who wears such well fitting clothes and brushes his hair so carefully, in fact a man of such pretensions as that, would not, could not, stoop to so contemptible an act as to promulgate a false-hood about a lady. Well, there is a great deal of deception in the world, but the writer is not liable to be de-ceived by that individual again; he

THE MINING JOURNAL.

NO PAPER SENT TO ANY ADDRESS UNLESS PAID FOR IN ADVANCE.

Subscribers ordering their papers transferred from one address to another should be careful to give the name of the postoffice to which the paper is being sent at the time, in order to secure prompt attention, as otherwise the mail clerk may have to search through the entire list to find the name. JOURNAL will not be sent to subscribers after the expiration of the time subscribed and paid for unless the subscription is renewed. Subscribers can always know when their subscription expires by comparing the number of the printed address on their papers with the corresponding number on their receipts.

All letters of a business character, such as advertisements and communications intended for the columns of this paper, should be ad-iressed to "THE MINING JOURNAL," and not to the editor personally, as is often the case.

Only letters of a personal or confidential nature should be addressed to—A. P. SWINEFORD. All advertising sent from abroad must be paid for in advance, whether coming direct from the advertiser or through an advertising agency. Orders from advertising agents will not be accepted, or receive any attention whatever, unless based on our regular rates, less the usual commission and accompanied by the cash. This rule is imperative, and will not be departed from under any circumstances.

According to an analysis just made. Little Commonwealth ore contains 66 per cent. of metallic iron, but is too high in phosphorous to be available for Bessemer purposes.

A DIVIDEND of $75,000, payable Oct. 15th, has been declared by the Osceola Mining company. This, says the Hancock Journal, makes $610,000 disbursed to its stockholders by that companya remarkably healthy showing.

DURING the quarter of the current year ending June 30th thirty-three furnaces went out of blast in England, chiefly in the Midland and Welsh districts. The wonderful development of the iron industries of the United States is rendering it impossible for the weaker producers in England to run with profit, and they are forced to shut down.

WE learn that "Hobe" Sacket, the ex-cranberry king of Wisconsin, has made what promises to prove a valuable find on the st set section 17-40-18, Wisconsin. As far as explored the deposit of ore appears to be quite extensive. The quality is said to be good. The MINING JOURNAL is pleased to note that the wisdom of Mr. Sacket's move, in transferring his attentions from cranberries to iron, bids fair to be made promptly apparent.

A CONVENTION of American iron masters and steel manufacturers will be held at New York in November, to act with reference to procuring from the next congress legislation in the direction of a revision of our present tariff laws. There is, certainly, room enough for improvement in these laws. and now is a good time to move for securing it. There is no national election pending, to afford demagogues a chance to mix the question up with the issues separating the political partiesthus rendering wise and statesmanlike action by congress impossible to be had in relation to it.

ARTICLES of association of the Garfield Mining company have been filed, and an organization of the company was effected by the incorporators last week at Norway, when officers and a board of directors were chosen. The incorporators constitute the board of directors, these being Messrs. Bartley Breen, Thos. Breen; Jas. S. Dickie, N. W. Crane, Chas. T. McElroy and James Nicholson. The officers chosen President-N. W. CRANE; Vice President-B. BREEN; Treasurer-Thos. BREEN; Secretary=C. T. McElroy.

The capital stock of this company has been placed at $500,000, divided into 20,000 shares of $25 each. Its property is located on section 13-39-29, east of the East Vulcan, being the nw 2 of the nw t of that section, and is held on an option from the canal company. Considerable work has been done on the property during the past two years by the Messrs. Breen and Dickie, and the developments are such as to warrant

For years Minnesota has been trying to relieve herself of an old railroad bonded indebtedness without paying it in full, and last winter's legislature devised a scheme for wiping it out at the rate of 50 cents on the dollar, which it was hoped would work. A tribunal was created and empowered to settle with the bondholders on that basis, but before the time named for its sitting the supreme court was applied to by opponents of the scheme for an injunction restraining the tribunal from taking the contemplated actionwhich application was based on a state law, enacted in 1860, providing that no settlement of that indebtedness should be made until its terms had been ratified by a vote of the people. A decision has just been rendered by the supreme court, granting the writ, while at the same time pronouncing the law of 1860-on which the application for it was grounded-unconstitutional and void. This may fairly be denominated a "sweeping" decision, inasmuch as it wipes out the machinery created by the last legislature to settle the long standing debt, and also the restriction upon egislative authority in the premises contemplated by the law cited to the court. The end of it all will be that Minnesota must pay the debt in full. All the bondholders have to do now is to buy up a state legislature and secure the necessary legislation.

On Saturday last the funeral obsequies of Archbishop Henni attracted an immense attendance to the cathedral in Milwaukee, where they were celebrated, the funeral sermon being delivered by Bishop McMullen, of Davenport, Iowa. Although a heavy rain was falling at the time, crowds gathered around the cathedral and patiently waited until the solemn ceremonies were over. The deceased prelate was one of the pioneers of his church in the northwest. He was highly respected and esteemed by members of all denominations, and deeply beloved by his own people, for his kindness of heart, sincere piety, and many christian virtues. His death took place on the preceding Wednesday, after a long illness borne with uncomplaining patience and resignation.

When his turn came to be placed on guard Saturday he discharged his piece at the prisoner as narrated, sending a bullet through the window, but without any injury to him further than a thorough scare. Since this affair Guiteau has been transferred to another quarter of the prison, where a repetition of the attempt on his worthless life will be

Subsequently a party of white neighbors of the girl undertook to lynch the moke, but were overpowered and driven off by a body of his colored friends who rallied to his defense. These are now guarding the jail, and their success has rendered them so insolent that it is feared a collision between them and the whites will ensue. The authorities will be powerless to preserve the peace if the threatened outbreak occurs.

-A saloon-keeper at Detroit, Tom Keenan, whose reputation is not the best, shot at an officer who complained of his place Tuesday night. The officer returned the fire, and a lively fusilade ensued-which drew a big crowd but no blood. Keenan is an ex-convict and a hard character, of whom the police force stands in considerable awe. He had not been arrested for his assault on the officer at last reports.

Several of the ore fleet, among them the David Vance, Thomas L. Parker and H. H. Brown, were aground in Chicago creek last week and were detained and put to expense. That creek needs dredging, badly.

When noticing its organization the Port spoke rather doubtfully of the Escanaba & St. Paul railroad company, but learns from the officers thereof that "business is meant," and built. There is an abundance of "right of way"

The Port is informed by a resident of that locality that the grain crop of the eastern towns of Delta county will crowd 40,000 bushels. The schooner Planet, from Benton Harbor to Escanaba with fruit, was dismasted sixteen ONTONAGON.-The Miner states that specimens of vein rock brought in from the Stevens mine give promise that explorations now in progress will show it to be a valuable property. It is in the copper range west of the Ontonagon river, on section 33-50-43. The vein now being explored and opened is thought to be the Minnesota vein. Test pits are being sunk across the property, and the old shaft of the Hartford mine on it is being cleaned out and retimbered to put it in working condition. The property was purchased last winter by Mr. W. F. Stevens, a veteran in copper mining, who has faith in its value and expects to de-

The Miner queries: "How is it that a small boy can get outside of a watermelon equally as large as himself?" The conundrum explains itself. You start out with a "small boy," put him outside of the melon, and then he's "large" as himself-and deucedly uncomfortable. Should cramps in the stomach ensue you're liable to have no boy at all in the final summing up. In demonstrating this proposition always use a borrowed boy. The melon may

The new apportionment should give the upper peninsula a member of congress of its ewn. It will, on the first of January, 1882, contain a population of not less than $5,000.

And if it should, its voters ought to choose one who isn't the property of a land grabbing | plain to see that a much larger variety of samsyndicate of railroad sharks. Unless we can ples can be displayed than it is possible to pack have a representative who can be relied on to defend the interests of the people, a whole congressman would do the upper peninsula no more good than it realizes from the fractional part of one-which now represents it in the national bear garden.

Slabs and edgings are now shipped from Saginaw to Chicago for fuel purposes. The amount of this kind of material destroyed in our burners daily would supply a large city with wood right along. Thousands of cords of edgings are consumed with the other refuse every season which if it could be "dropped". every season, which, if it could be "dropped" in a city like Chicago, would keep thousands of families in fuel the year round. It seems too bad to waste so much wood in order to get

HANCOCK.-The Mineral Range railroad is doing a rushing business, according to the Journal's account. The road is taxed to its utmost to move the freight passing over it. Some freight trains that leave Hancock require three locomotives to haul them.

Building in West Hancock has already commenced. The Journal predicts that this will make one of the most attractive suburban additions of the place.

A slab carrier just put in by the Sturgeon River Lumber company does its work like a hired man. It takes the slabs from the saw in the mill, carries them up the hill and drops them near the railroad track. From there they are hauled to the Osceola mill yard, the latter company having contracted for all the slabs the saw mill can supply.

JOHNSON'S Patent Force Pump

Has been adopted as a

FIRE EXTINGUISHER

by the War Department, Har-vard and Amherst Colleges, also Pacific Mills, Lawrence, Merrimae and Boot Mills, Lowell, and many others. Several towns and fire departments are using them to put out the small fires so as to prevent large ones. This pump costs only ten dollars, and will extinguish as large a fire as any portable chemical FIRE EXTINGUISHER that costs fifty dollars and upwards. 1 It has no equal for washing windows and carriages, forcing passages in clogged water pipes, watering gardens, sprinkling sidewalks, house plants, lawn shrubs, sprinkling liquids on trees, shrubs and plants in greenhouses, etc.

ten years, throwing a continuous stream of water a distance of forty feet or more, from five to six gallons per minute, and will come into frequent use by every farmer, merchant or mechanic in the community, and ought to be in every dwelling and every other building exposed to fire in the land.

The undersigned, having been engaged in the introduction and sale of the Johnson pump the last four years or more—a time sufficient to test its utility and durability-would continue to call the attention of the public to the merits of the "Little Engine," as adapted to the many purposes named, and particularly as an efficient and available "Fire Extinguisher." For let it be borne in mind that it is the timely and proper APPLICATION of water upon a fire (whether charged with carbonic acid gas-as in the Babcock and other extinguishers-or not) that is essential, in a majority of cases, rather than its QUANTITY. It has been estimated by those who ought to know that eighty per cent. of the fires that occur are discovered in their incipient stages, half of which, at least, have their origin inside of buildings and in places usually that cannot be reached with water from large engines or buckets without opening doors or windows, perhaps breaking walls, floors or roofs, thereby admitting air to feed the flames, speedily endangering the whole structure. But with the Johnson Pump, exactly adapted to the purpose, water can be applied through small openings and crevices at once, and directed to the spot, without such exposure, and without deluging the house and contents thereof with an excess of water through a large engine, and therewith often causing more damage than the fire.

Essential as are lare engines for the saving of property in case of a big fire, it is unwise to WHOLLY neglect other and more ready means for the extinguishment of the little fires. Many a fire which has destroyed its thousands was so small, when first discovered, that half a pail of water, applied with this little annihilator, would have extinguished it. WAR DEPARTMENT, QUARTER-MASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE, Washington, D. C., April 25, 1878. Sir:—Lately the Chemical Fire Extinguishers in this office, five in number, were tried. The result was very unsatisfactory. A copy of the report is herewith transmitted. The trial shows that none of these can be relied upon, under ordinary actual conditions of service to be effective in case of a sudden fire, and it is only in case of a sudden emergency that they are wanted.

The Johnson Force Pump, which has been extensively distributed, is always ready, and if a supply of water in buckets is kept with it it is believed it can be relied upon, and that it is the best. The Extinguishers in this office are the Babcock, Champion, American, one each; and Bates and Pinkham, two. Unless these Extinguishers are frequently emptied, thoroughly cleaned, and refilled, they are unreliable. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, [Signed] M. C. MEIGS. Quarter-Master General, Brevet Major Gen. U. S. A. G. A. MARINER.

The ceremony was performed at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, after which hearty congratulations were tendered and a sumptuous repast was indulged in, when the young couple took their departure on their wedding tour, after affectionate farewells and amid the blessings of the whole party. The presents given to this estimable pair by their many friends were numerous and costly, and were greatly admired by all present. The union of these two loving hearts is a matter of enduring joy to themselves and the occasion of the heartiest good wishes for their future in the every day of their wedded life be as happy as was the first one, is the fervent wish of the MINING JOURNAL.

THE LAST DAY'S SPORT .- The

weather, which seemed determined to interfere with our race meeting, caused the postponement of the last day's trotting at the driving park until Monday. And on that day, though the weather was fine, there were occasional showers, interfering more or less with the trotting. The race which took place on that afternoon was the "free for all," for the result of which the sporting fraternity was on the qui vive. There was a large turn out at the park from this place and Negaunee, but very few outsiders. The first heat of the race was won by Nellie, and the next three were taken in succession by Fleet, which gave him the race and closed the trotting meeting. THE proprietors of the driving park are moving in the matter of having another turf meeting in the city before many days. Besides other improvements lately made to the track and HARNESS grounds, the large restaurant building and dwelling which stood close to the track has been moved away in order to widen the track at that point, thereby rendering the turn easier to make. "LINDSEY'S BLOOD SEARCHER"-the great medicine for fever and ague, malaria, and all blood poison. Don't fail to use it.

It is again stated that there are about 50,000 more women than men in Massachusetts, which goes to prove that men sooner fall victims to early cul-

ALL bachelors would like to shake hands with the man named Morse who recently got married, and four weeks later applied to the legislature and had his name changed to Re-Morse.

SCARCELY any disease to which human beings are subjected, is so thoroughly discouraging as Fever and Ague. The periodical return of alternate chills, fever and sweating, is terribly depressing. Ayer's Ague Cure is the only remedy known which is certain to cure permanently, by expelling the malarial poison which produces the disease. It does it surely, and leaves no ill effect upon the system.

"What! Twenty-five cents a pound for sausage? Well, I can get 'em down at Schmidt's for twenty cents," said a customer. "Vell, den, vy didn't yer?" asked the dealer. A HEAVY SWELL.—Jacob H. Bloomer, of Virgille, N. Y., writes; "Your THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL cured a badly swelled neck and sore throat on my son in forty-eight hours; one appli-cation also removed the pain from a sore toe; my wife's foot was also much inflamed-so much so that she could not walk about the house; she applied the Oil, and in twenty-four hours was entirely cured.'

In the classic shades of Deadwood the average native is not very choice in selecting the language used in advertising a ranaway wife. The notices are usually written and posted in the postoffices and saloons, where they will catch the eyes of a majority of the population. A recent one reads as follows:

Reporter .- "Were your various trips accompanied by much danger. Capt. Boyton.-"That depends upon what you may call dangerous. During my trip down the river Tagus in Spain I had to "shoot" one hundred and two waterfalls, the highest being about eighty-five feet, and innumerable rapids. Crossing the straits of Messina, I had three ribs broken in a fight with sharks; and coming down the Somane, a river in France, I received a charge of shot from an excited and startled huntsman. Although all this was not very pleasant, and might be was not very pleasant, and might be termed dangerous, I fear nothing more on my trip than intense cold; for, as long as my limbs are free and easy, and not cramped or benumbed, I am all right. Of late I carry a stock of St. Jacobs Oil in my boat—(the Captain calls it "Baby Mine," and has stored therein signal rockets, thermometer, compass, provisions, etc.)—and I have compass, provisions, etc.)—and I have had but little trouble. Before starting out I rub myself thoroughly with the article, and its action on the muscles is wonderful. From constant exposure I am somewhat subjected to rheumatic pains, and nothing would ever benefit me, until I got hold of this Great German Remedy. Why on my travels I have met people who have been suffering with Rheumatism for years; by my advice they tried the Oil, and it cured them. I would sooner do without food them. I would sooner do without food for days than be without this remedy for an hour. In fact I would not attempt a trip without it."

The Captain became very enthusiastic on the subject of St. Jacobs Oil, and we left him citing instances of the curative qualities of the Great German Remedy to a party around him.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.
