CITY AND COUNTY.

"Just as we go to press" we are having fair weather. It may be otherwise before we go to bed. That is, by to-morrow morning.

MONDAY the weather was like a poet's golden dream—and it was succeeded by weather similar to the same poet's awakening amid the dismal surroundings of his cheerless roost in an unfurnished attic.

A COMMUNICATION from our correspondent "tax payer," at L'Anse, is unavoidably crowded out of this issue because it came in too late in the week. Matter of that sort should reach us by Wednesday noon each week, to insure insertion. Will our contributors please make a note of this?

The senior editor of this paper and our local assistant are both away this week. Our readers are requested to pray for the speedy return of one or both—on our account and their own. We can't spare the time to do any wrestling with the lord—or any other man—till they're heard from. But we "hold the fort."

Our system of sewerage has been pretty thoroughly tried by the heavy rains of the past month, and found, generally, not wanting. Where defects exist repairs and improvements are to be made. Marquette is a remarkably well drained city, which circumstance no doubt contributes much to the healthfulness for which it is noted.

MARKWELL is selling an immense amount of fall and winter clothing this season, but daily arrivals of fresh goods keep his stock complete, despite the steady drain upon it. His establishment is headquarters for ready made clothing in Marquette—which fact is attributable to a habit he has of always giving his customers the best goods for the least money.

THE D. M. & M. company has moved its depot across the old street to a site fronting on the new, and much more conducive to the convenience of the company's patrons and employes. Many other improvements are taking form on its grounds, which we shall note and describe at length later, when they are farther advanced.

MR. GEORGE SCHICK informed our reporter that he had been suffering with rheumatism in his feet so badly that for weeks at a time he would be unable to leave his bed. He tried various remedies without relief, and concluded to see St. Jacobs Oil. It acted like magic. In two days he was entirely cured.—Saginaw Daily News.

SEAGREN & WINBERG'S new foundry, corner of Hampton and Marvin streets, is enjoying a fine run of patronage this fall. The proprietors give personal supervision to their business, and make it a point to do all work entrusted to them promptly and in a thoroughly workmanlike manner. They make a specialty of job work. See their card in another column.

PROF. FOHRMAN, of whose intention to establish himself here temporarily for the purpose of imparting instruction in music to those desirous of becoming proficient in the heavenly art we made announcement last week, will occupy rooms over Berdie's store, and make it a point to do all work entrusted to them promptly and in a thoroughly workmanlike manner. They make a specialty of job work. See their card in another column.

MARQUETTE is shortly to have a cigar factory of its own, where the soothing weed will be moulded into the form most favored by smokers. Herlick & Carter are the projectors of this enterprise, and their factory will be located, on Third street, near Frei's saloon. They propose to furnish the trade with a superior article, and certainly should, as we trust they will receive a good support.

POLICE reports are dull this week. A tramp was taken up and "fired out" of the city, and that transaction was about the only one that relieved the monotony of life at the justice dispensary. If the MINING JOURNAL were fond of recording breaches of the peace it would be disgusted; as it's not it is delighted, and only laments this pleasant state of things may last through to the holidays.

At the residence of the bride's parents on Wednesday Mr. David Gray and Miss Jennie Morgan spoke the vows that made the twin one flesh, Rev. Kerr B. Tupper, officiating. About forty invited guests witnessed the ceremony, and afterwards partook of an elegant supper. The young couple are amiable and popular, and the MINING JOURNAL adds its blessing to that pronounced by the clergyman who joined their loving hearts in hymeneal bonds.

The Hancock paper seems to be troubled with a haunting fear that Marquette county doesn't pay its share of state taxes. Bet a dollar it doesn't, if the county board can get out of it in any way. That economical body isn't even willing to pay for the publication of its own proceedings. If it were not for the MINING JOURNAL's enterprise the people would never know what their county legislature occupied itself with at those awfully solemn and mysterious sessions.

A CIRCULAR from the state superintendent of public instruction informs us that the teachers institute for this county will be held at Ishpeming, commencing on Monday, Nov. 14, and continuing until the following Friday, inclusive. Prof. H. Oletch, of that city, will have superintendence of the institute, which will undoubtedly enjoy, under his guidance, a session instructive and interesting to all who attend. Ishpeming is a hospitable town, and we may safely predict, will take good care of those who attend from abroad.

CINDERS.

There has something of a coolness grown up between the people of this section and the weather of late.

Why are rivers of the masculine gender? Because they frequently "get full," and wander from their beds on a protracted "tour."

Art concerts are the only musical entertainments that have been given here for months, and these, somehow, grow monotonous.

It is reported that the Russian czar is suffering from extreme nervous excitability. He is not entirely satisfied that his night shirt is bombproof.

Mr. Farnell's confinement seems to have had issue in a premature delivery. His "no rent" pronouncement certainly came considerably before its time.

Those ducks they are having down south serve to explain the collapse of the confederacy. It is supposed because the "chivalry" are such abominably poor marksmen.

Some of our punning contemporaries would let us up and assure us that we are sure they would let us down if they knew how to do it. No punishment in this.

The election of Davis as president of the senate has, it is conceded, immensely lessened the danger of Arthur's assassination. There isn't anybody in this country "crazy" enough to wait Davis in the presidency.

It has got so now that they make college presidents give bonds to keep out of politics. If the same policy should be made to apply to ministers it would be another step toward the pacification of the country.

Cinders is willing to edit the paragraphic departments of a dozen exchanges on condition that they contribute toward paying his salary. The proprietors he does for making these sheets readable. Put up the salary or shut up your shears, gentlemen. Cash or credit we must have.

All editors are not liars. In proof of which we cite the instance of one whose paper is published weekly with this explanation: "No space is given to editorial matter in this number that a large amount of interesting reading matter is crowded out."

A watchman on the railroad shops at Winona, Minn., undertook to fire up with turpentine the other morning. He fired himself out of a job. The shops are in ashes, and the company figures out a $10,000 loss. Dealers in kerosene should cut this out and paste on their customers' cans.

The success of the state fair at Fond du Lac is having a shocking effect upon Oshkosh. Since it took place two of the heaviest manufacturers in that city have gone bankrupt. We feared all the time that Oshkosh would fall terribly under such a displacement as has come upon her, poor thing.

The disreputable journalistic exercise to which Cinders alluded as an "abortion" last week acknowledges the application of the proprietor's pliers. He doesn't know what it means. Probably not. It was always our belief that the fell w never grows up, and the slanting of the junction, "Man know thyself."

An exchange prints a long article headed: "Dr. Thomas on his Orthodoxy." The paper is away off its base. Dr. Thomas has been turned out of the Methodist church for being off base, and just now he's got the other end of the newspaper's attention of the public, and should make it a point to be accurate.

New York is enduring a water famine, and with sublime resignation. If it were a whisky famine the mob would be quite apt to turn out and do something besides burning the public buildings. A citizen of that city can stand short rations of water, but if you want to wake him up, put a hose on him just out of his regular supply of whisky.

A young lady inquires of Cinders (by postal card, if she won't be a "pious No. 2"), "You will have to wait 'till 1884 before you can pop the question to that young man, and by that time you'll be an old maid, and he, if married to another, 's'got the 'other' nunnery," "girl, and no other Cinders with questions your almanac would answer."

A young doctor—who doesn't practice in Marquette—has made himself "solid" with the manna of his circuit and built up a fine business. He is particularly sweet on the "new" things when they have need of his services. Some time since he attended a pretty little six year old miss during a slight illness. His first treatment showed a charge of $15 for visits, with a deduction of $5 to the patient.

"For kisses." The little one's mother was greatly pleased with the "cute" statement of account, and showed it to numerous of her friends. One day a young lady, just convalescing from a severe attack, who had been under the same physician's treatment, visited the fond mother, and the precious bill was paraded as usual. She ran her eye over it carefully at first, then she flushed a rosy red. "I don't care," exclaimed she, "it's real mean of him." "Why, how can you say that?" queried the astounded mother. "Well, the bill he sent me was twice as large as that, and he never made a cent of reduction." And then something she saw in the bill, she caused the doctor to be brought in very fast for a minute, but the promise she extorted didn't keep the story from leaking out, and that's the way Cinders got hold of it.

As our readers are, probably, aware, the police have been in this morning, and are vigilantly enforcing the ordinance providing for the closing of saloons and business places after a certain hour on week days. We have heard of a joke on one of our citizens that he thought good enough to tell on himself, and which we think good enough to print. The fellow regularly takes a stroll after dinner on Sunday. Just as regularly it has been his custom to drop into a certain saloon by a private entrance, to add a little liquid refreshment to his other indulgence. Last Sunday his feet took him over the accustomed route and to the well known side-door, through which he entered, and strode up to the bar. There were several persons in the room, but his business being with the dispenser of drinks he bledily glared around as he walked toward the proprietor who was seated near the side door, but made no move to wait upon his thirsty customer. After standing at the bar a few moments the latter turned impatiently saying, "Look here, I want a"—"the look of consternation on the saloon man's face arrested him just in time, and the cocktail in his mind became a "clear" on his lips. For, towering over the frightened vendor stood city marshal French, who, it seems, had just found his way in by the same side door to warn the proprietor of the place that that sort of foolishness must be stopped. The untimely customer's presence of mind let the saloon man down easy on some statements he had been making in his own defense, but it was a close call—'t that cocktail!

J. Logan Chipman's name is a familiar one in this section of Michigan—especially among the aboriginal population, though years have passed since the relations existed in which that familiarity had birth. Mr. Chipman is a squawanted democrat, a good stump orator, and his party is accustomed to call on him whenever it is in need of campaign speakers. He is usually detailed for service in this region. In 1875, as our readers will recall, he addressed meetings at Marquette and neighboring points, coming from here to L'Anse, to which place he was chartered by one of our prominent democrats—whom we will christen Mr. Black, his real name being quite the other thing. In that campaign Mr. Chipman paid special attention to an illustration of how the people were being robbed that high officials might surround themselves with unnumbered injuries. While on the way to L'Anse Mr. Black suggested to the speaker that, as many of his audience at the latter point would be Indians and halfbreeds who never saw or heard of a hand, it might be well to call it a "buggy" in the speech there, to render the matter plain to that portion of his hearers. The hint was acted upon, and Chipman just more than rode that buggy over Williams, to the wild delight of his audience. The meeting, in no successful manner, audience cheering the speaker to the echo, and the speaker responding to their inspiring enthusiasm with splendid bursts of eloquence. Two years later—in the state canvass of 1877—campaign duty again brought our Marquette friend to L'Anse with another speaker in tow. The two gentlemen sat smoking in front of their hotel the afternoon prior to the meeting a sound of blanketed natives filed along on the sidewalk in front. One of them recognized Mr. Black. Muttering something to his comrades in a guttural tone, he stepped up to that gentleman, with a broad grin on his supple face, when this colloquy ensued:—"Hello, mister Black! You come to make 'noder meetin' here?" "Well, yes, John; we shall have a meeting here to-night, and some of our people speak 'bout him buggy." "He here now?" "No; this gentleman (indicating his comrade) will address the meeting to-night." "Um! Logo (Chipman) not here, eh? Where dat buggy now—Logo got him yet?"

MUCH as the people complain of the weather it is vastly preferable to that of one year ago. There are no indications of a general freeze yet, and though it is horribly wet it remains tolerably warm.

COL. WARD'S wood yard has been put in complete order again, all the damage caused by the freshest some weeks ago having been repaired. He is prepared to fill orders for wood of all lengths and grades just the same as if the angry floods had never torn a hole through his enclosure, or carried off his dam.

NEGOTIATIONS are all but concluded by which the Lutheran society will come into possession of the old Episcopal church building, which that society purposes fitting up and occupying as a place of worship. The Lutherans have held service there for some weeks, by courtesy of the present owners, and it meets their needs so well that the society has decided to purchase the property for church uses.

A LARGE gray owl that was indiscreet enough to go to roost in daylight on the roof of a front street block Tuesday was discovered and cleverly captured by a young man, who has caged the bird and is trying to make a pet of him. The owl fought well for freedom and claxed and bit his captor considerably before it was finally secured. It is a superb specimen of its kind, but we doubt of its native ferocity being subdued until the taxidermist gets in his work on its anatomy.

THE D. M. & M. company's new steam ferry boat Algoma has arrived at the straits, and is ready for business. She will find an abundance of it presently, when the cars and ice both come company running. Ferrying trains across the straits—a distance of four miles—in midwinter, and keeping a passage open at the same time, is no sinecure job. Competent judges pronounce the Algoma equal to the task, however. We trust she may justify their good opinion.

THERE will be no small amount of repairing done by house owners in this city before winter sets in, necessitating the purchase of dressed lumber, lath, shingles, etc. To all in need of anything in this line the MINING JOURNAL recommends J. H. Gillett as the man to deal with. He has a full supply of all grades of lumber, which he retails at a late, and as recounted in these columns, template bidding, or making improvements should call on him before closing contracts for what they require.

LARGE quantities of coal are forwarded daily to the interior from this point at present. Our neighbors inland are making wholesale preparations to give winter a "warm welcome," it would appear. The recollection of last winter dwells yet in their memories, and it doesn't surprise us to note that they are taking time by the banded hair this season in the matter of securing their winter rations of fuel. Coal is good property in this latitude for at least six months of the year.

THE tug Merrill successfully rescued Sam Handford's yacht, the Grace Ely, from the position on the beach at Grand Marie where she had been driven by a late gale, and returned to her owner's arms last week. The gallant little vessel was found to be in good condition, and rides once more the mistress of her native element. When the contract under which Mr. Weller is using the yacht expires Sam will have her brought here and thoroughly overhauled, to put her in readiness for another season's work.

MR. HENRY E. HALL'S health falling to show any improvement, and the duties of the office here proving too severe for him in its present state, he has resigned charge of the American Express company's business at this point and returned to his home in Fond du Lac. The MINING JOURNAL sincerely regrets this, as Mr. Hall was a gentleman whom we would be pleased to have become a permanent resident of Marquette. Until his successor is decided on the company's "old reliable" Mr. Sam Brown will preside behind the express counter and handle the big money packages.

SOMETHING of a controversy over what Ontonagon county has done to stir up the M., H. & O. railroad folks has sprung up between the Miner, of Ontonagon, and the L'Anse, and Michigan Bee. As far that has been done anywhere so far has taken form in the appointment of committees to wait upon the state board of control with reference to persuading it to coerce the road into building the desired extension, and as the board aforesaid declares it has no authority in the premises, the dispute between the papers seems rather inconsequential to outsiders. But we presume it amuses the papers—and the railroad company. It certainly should the latter.

SEVERAL Ridge street families were informally "called on" one day this week by a sooty Swedish laborer, very much the worse, except socially, for drink. He entered a number of residences in succession, sitting down and opening a conversation with the first member of the family he happened to meet, to the intense dismay of some of the ladies. The fellow meant no harm, but felt the need of a more elevating grade of social intercourse than he had been able to find where he got his whiskey, so he tackled Ridge street. As he was seen later dejectedly sipping astonishes and delights the husbandman, who has only to "tickle it with a hoe" to make it "laugh with a harvest." As an instance of the fertility of our soil hereaway, the MINING JOURNAL offers this: Last spring Mr. Thos. Kirby, of Maple Ridge, Delta county, planted eighteen bushels of Early Rose potatoes on his farm, and from that amount of seed he harvested this fall 600 bushels, and several fine bushels as fine "pratties" as ever gladdened the heart of an Irish cottier. He selected thirty-eight of the largest of these and they filled a bushel basket. Can any of the grangers below beat this? Iron mines are not the only things there is wealth in on the U. P. There's millions in our potato patches.

FIRE AT HANCOCK.—The Quebec house at Hancock, Mr. Girard proprietor, was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday night. The flames gained headway so rapidly that all efforts to save the building were unavailing. All the guests escaped uninjured, saving most of their personal effects. The furniture and portable belongings of the hotel were also nearly all rescued, but the loss is severe enough on the proprietor without its including these. There was no insurance on the building. We have not learned how the fire originated. One value of the building was estimated at about $5,000, and is, of course, a total loss to the owner.

TICKET AGENT FERRIS took a vacation for the first time in seven years last week, and he squandered it in a deer-hunting campaign out on the line of the new railroad, where he and some other Nimrods went into camp just in time to catch the spell of bad weather. They returned home Saturday, wet and weary, with a few strings of fish as the only trophies. Ferris says he feels happy because he is under no obligation to duplicate the experience for another seven years—by which time he is hopeful that the effects of the late rains will have disappeared. His appetite for venison is all gone, and he admits that he would sooner sell tickets to an excursion party the hottest day in June than chase the "swift bounding roe" in his native thickets.

JUDGE W. D. CONKLIN, of Fond du Lac, Wis., was in the city several days this week, on business requiring his presence at the land office here. The judge is at present city attorney of the "Fountain City," to which position—although a republican—he was re-elected by a democratic council last spring. The majority was the other way when the first Conklin first got in, but he made so faithful an officer that his political opponents decided against the party motto, "a change is necessary," when the time to make it found them with the power in their hands—a fact creditable alike to the party dominant in the council and the officer thus emphatically endorsed. He reports plenty of rain and unfavorable market down there this fall, and seemed to feel sorry over having to go back.

ONE of the first fruits to St. Ignace of the planting of that place of the D. M. & M. road is the establishment there of another newspaper, The Independent, published by Hombach & Conrad. The venture presupposes an enhanced business at St. Ignace from the new connection as its justification, but the place can grow to several times its present size before the support it could afford one paper would be rich enough for our blood. There are more than enough of half-starved newspapers in existence now, but we suppose their number will keep increasing until the advent of the millennium. Still, we wish the new paper success, just the same as though we imagined success possible. There is nothing mean about the benevolence of the D. M. & M. in telling the whole truth when a diluted solution of it would be more acceptable.

TALKING of prize cabbages, Murray & Robbins, the Front street provision merchants, got hold of one this week which was erected in a Marquette garden the past season that would put competition to the blush if there was only a fair with reach where it could be entered. For form, texture and size the agricultural editor of the MINING JOURNAL confesses that he never, in all the range of his experience, came across its equal. His opinion is that the specimen is partly a new variety, produced by judicious in-and-in breeding on the "Early Dutch," but on this point opinions differ. It is now in the studio of a city photographer, the photographer desiring to send a picture of the majestic production to La Due, ex-commissioner of agriculture, from whom the seed was obtained. If the retired commissioner had that cabbage to put in evidence before president Arthur in proof of what he has done for his country our conviction is that he would promptly re-instate himself as chief of the agricultural department.

SOCIAL circles in this city are in a gentle tremor of excitement over the impending nuptials of two of our most popular young people, which will take place Monday forenoon next at St. Paul's church. On that date Mr. Alfred Owen Jopling will lead to the altar Miss Mary Hewitt White, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter White. Eleven o'clock is the hour named for the ceremony in the invitations sent out. After it is concluded the young couple will start south, on an extended wedding tour. Though it may be somewhat premature at this writing, the MINING JOURNAL cannot refrain from wishing its young friends the fullest happiness in the sacred relation on which they are about to enter. Miss Mamie is one of Marquette's most amiable and beloved daughters, and the groom, though comparatively a stranger, is known as a young man of fine qualities, well worthy of the prize he will bear away on Monday from the home where she has been tenderly cherished and the social firmament to which she has given added brightness.

HENRY TAPKEN'S gun shop on Washington street was bargariously entered through a rear window Tuesday night by some son of Belial, who carried off seven of his best revolvers, a number of accordeons, and some minor articles. Mr. Tapken had just moved into the place, which adjoins Mack's provision store, and had but partially secured the fastenings, a fact of which the burglar was obviously aware. He suspects a man who has since been taken up for drunkenness and disorderly conduct of being his nocturnal customer, though his suspicions have not been confirmed by any subsequent developments. The fellow lounged around there persistently the previous day, but that may have been a habit acquired when it was a saloon, prior Henry's occupancy of the premises. The goods taken were worth about $100, which is a loss their rightful owner is none too well able to bear. The officers are on the watch for a clew by which the thief and goods may be found, and we sincerely hope they will be able to hit upon it.

"SOME POTATOES"—Outsiders have an impression that mineral wealth constitutes about the whole of the resources of the upper peninsula, but it is because they don't know much about us. The fact is we have some of the finest agricultural lands in the whole north-west, whose productive capacity astonishes and delights the husbandman, who has only to "tickle it with a hoe" to make it "laugh with a harvest." As an instance of the fertility of our soil hereaway, the MINING JOURNAL offers this: Last spring Mr. Thos. Kirby, of Maple Ridge, Delta county, planted eighteen bushels of Early Rose potatoes on his farm, and from that amount of seed he harvested this fall 600 bushels, and several fine bushels as fine "pratties" as ever gladdened the heart of an Irish cottier. He selected thirty-eight of the largest of these and they filled a bushel basket. Can any of the grangers below beat this? Iron mines are not the only things there is wealth in on the U. P. There's millions in our potato patches.

THE Chicago Times of the 23rd makes this announcement: "Mr. Jesse Shepard, the famous phenomenal singer, has proposed to give a series of grand concerts—which are indeed most remarkable—through the state of Michigan, for the benefit of the sufferers by the late terrible forest fires in some of the northern counties. We trust the benevolent citizens who are interested in measures for relief will forward Mr. Shepard's benevolent purpose. His concerts, aside from their benevolent aspects, are, of themselves, so wonderful as to attract the widest attention, and, of themselves, to afford the most gratifying amusement. His offer is magnanimous, and we do not doubt, but we are successful, and yield gladly to the relief fund. He is, beyond comparison, the most successful musician on this continent. Other, indeed, his music is phenomenal. He has the best possible testimonials of his ability to succeed, and to bear him in an event of one's life. To all which the Times bears witness; and it commends him to the good citizens of Michigan as a god-send in this time of need."

Here is an opportunity for our people to combine a further effort in behalf of the needy ones left homeless by the forest fires in this state with a rare pleasure for themselves. The MINING JOURNAL suggests prompt action by Marquette and her sister cities to give effect to the extremely generous proposition of Mr. Shepard. Will those of our citizens who are lovers of music and devoted to works of benevolence set in motion negotiations to secure him here?

MORE AID NEEDED.—Our people have done well in contributing to the relief of the forest fire sufferers, but benevolence should be content with itself with what has been done, and the cry for help still goes up, and numbers of the destitute ones are dying from exposure and starvation. Listen to what ex-governor Baldwin, chairman of the relief commission, reports: "More than 2,000 families, or 15,000 persons, were left homeless, losing all or quite everything they had except the land." * * * Not more than one-half the families have yet been provided with any kind of a house. This is now being done as rapidly as possible. It must be remembered that a long winter is before these people, and they can have no crop until next autumn. As yet little or no money has been distributed." * * * Concluding, Mr. Baldwin states that at least $300,000 in cash, additional to what has already been contributed, will be needed, and urges the people to further effort in behalf of these poor victims of the fearful disaster that has brought them to want, reducing the fruits of their years of labor to ashes. In view of these facts, and of the necessity that exists for additional relief, some of our people have conceived the idea of inviting Rev. Kerr B. Tupper to deliver a lecture the proceeds of which would go to the relief fund, and it meets with general favor. The gentleman has the matter under advisement, and will, we have no doubt, consent, if sufficient interest in the matter is manifested by our citizens. The MINING JOURNAL hastens to lay the project before its readers, trusting they will unite with it in cordially approving of the suggestion. Every means of raising money for the relief of our suffering brethren should be utilized at this time, and we know of none that promises greater or better results than that mentioned.

MEADS' LATEST CURIOSITY.—A rare bird is now on exhibition at Meads' rare museum, it being a cormorant which was caught by Capt. Elias, of the Montpelier, on his way up the lakes two weeks since. It hovered over the vessel some time in the evening, as though rather tired, and finally lit on the gunwale, when the captain grabbed it by the neck, thinking it was a goose. How it came to be so far away from its native haunts is somewhat singular, but possibly it strayed from the far north with a flock of geese and cared not to follow them farther inland. It was quite savage, as several of the captains can testify who attempted to handle it when brought ashore, one having a piece bitten off his thumb. The cormorant, however, is easily tamed, and quite dextrous in catching fish—having the power of staying under water a long time—and the Chinese utilize them for that purpose. In natural history it is also called the sea raven. It is very voracious, and will devour large quantities of fish, and is a terror to almost anything that comes within its reach. It is, certainly, a rakish looking bird, having a long beak with a sharp hook at the end that would not be pleasant to come in contact with. In color it is much like a dark brown otter, is very much like the fur of an otter skin about the neck, and is prettily mottled on the back. Mr. Meads has the wanderer's body adorning a showcase in the "museum," where it attracts attention that nothing but the absence of life prevents it from returning in a way the curious gazers would find anything but pleasant. This specimen is a rare addition to his collection of curiosities, and, probably, the first of the kind that ever came to land on this shore of Lake Superior.

A STUPID STOCK.—The metropolitan character of our city is not more distinctly observable in any one business establishment of Marquette than in the elegant crockery store of Stafford Bros., corner of Front and Washington streets. This handsome store—always well-filled with fine and costly goods—is now fairly resplendent in the glories of the most superb fall stock, embracing everything new, rare and beautiful known to the trade. Connoisseurs can spend a delightful hour inspecting the assortment of statuary in Faience and Aparian marbles, elegant vases, odd decorated wares in all designs, and the numerous articles of household use or adornment embraced in their immense stock—and if they don't spend some money in possessing themselves of things that please their fancy it won't be because they don't find them there. The variety and extent of their line of lamps, among which are some charming things in vase lamps that will please the ladies, is quite bewildering. In cut glass ware, genuine Canton China, cups and saucers all kinds, dinner, tea and chamber sets, and all the staple goods, their stock is full to repletion, and one can see at a glance that it was selected with artistic taste and scrupulous attention to the needs of this market. The MINING JOURNAL awards to Stafford Bros., the palm for the finest crockery store in the northwest, outside of the large metropolitan cities, and requests its hosts of readers to visit the establishment and judge for themselves if its opinion is not abundantly warranted by the facts. Doing an immense business, the firm is able to make prices on their goods that no small dealer could think of marking them at, and customers can rely not only on getting the very best goods in the market at Stafford Bros., but they may have the further pleasure of knowing they can get them fully as cheap as they would in the larger cities.

BITTEL'S SAD FATE.—The last sad chapter in the checkered career of W. W. Bittel, late agent of the American Express company, and telegraph operator, at this point, may now be written. The habits against those destroying influence he was either unable or unwilling to make the fight required for their mastery have hurried him to an untimely and miserable death—whether by his own act or through pure accident none may ever know. Our readers are familiar with the late and recent difficulties in which these habits involved him here—how the Express company first and the telegraph company later withdrew their business from his hands, in consequence of his persistent misconduct. Since losing these positions, Bittel's course has been so reckless that the rumor which spread on the street last Saturday, to the effect that he had committed suicide by throwing himself into the water from a lake vessel in which he had taken passage, created much less surprise than regret that a young man once popular and respected here had brought his life to so wretched a close. Not until Thursday did the facts regarding Bittel's end become fully known here. The Kate Winslow, fully known here, decked went to meet death in the bosom of lake Huron, reached this port on that date, and from captain Besseant, of the vessel, the MINING JOURNAL obtained these particulars: Bittel left here on the Winslow Sept. 13th, bound for Cleveland, to which point captain Besseant was instructed, through pity for him, to promise the returning young man a passage. Prior to leaving he had been drinking heavily, and was in a pitiable state of nervous prostration when he went on board the vessel. On Saturday, the 15th, the vessel reached Sault Ste. Marie. Here Bittel went ashore, remaining off the boat no longer than to take a walk on the shore. The captain warned him to be careful, but he was unable to bring himself to do as he was warned, and it is known that Bittel visited a drug store there and procured some preparation, the effect of which on his system was torturing, and he was absolutely crazy during the afternoon, the crew having to watch him closely to prevent him from throwing himself overboard. Late in the evening he was seized, but less violent. Some time before midnight the captain retired. Bittel was then in his state room, raving wildly. The night was a dismal one, quite a gale blowing and the waves running high. Some two hours later captain Besseant got up, and noticing that the state room door was still open, some passenger had been assigned to search for him, but he was nowhere to be found. In the darkness of the night, and with the moaning of the waves and the shrieking of the blast sounding his requiem, the wretched young man had gone to his doom, either throwing himself, or being washed overboard. When his vessel reached Cleveland the captain reported the facts as stated, and the first news of the occurrence that reached here was through the telegraphic columns of the daily papers, which briefly announced the event that closed the earthly career of W. W. Bittel. The deceased has a married sister and other family connections residing at Ripon, Wis. His effects, consisting only of some articles of clothing and a watch, were brought back here by captain Besseant. The MINING JOURNAL is not addicted to moralizing, but it cannot dismiss the tragic story of this mournful affair without reminding other young men as bright, genial, and full of life as the subject of this notice once was that habits which they gaily foster and encourage brought disgrace and death to him, and will fill many a dishonored grave yet while humanity has to struggle with the temptations that beset it in this weary world of ours. To those who are treading the same paths his fate would be a warning, and he will not be less wholly in vain if the lesson it teaches turns their feet aside from ways that lead down into the valley of death.

AN AGREEABLE SURPRISE.

On the 3rd of September, to her infinite chagrin, Mrs. Boyne finds herself in London. It happens in this wise. For the last month she has been paying a series of visits. On the 31st of August she was due at a delightful house, Wales. On the 30th she received a telegram announcing that her intended hostess was attacked with a mild form of scarlatina. Mild or severe, the result to the guests was the same—the party was put off. Now this, of all others, was the reunion from which Mrs. Boyne had anticipated the most pleasure. It was a charming house; one who was always amused there—always met the right people; and the fair lady of whom I write had looked forward to meeting one person who is even more right than all the rest. Not that there is what is euphemistically called any "harm" in her; if she is a little talked about sometimes, what woman with a vestige of good looks is not? She is quite discreet, and perfectly well able to take care of herself. She is a handsome young woman of twenty-six; men like and admire her extremely; it pleases her to be liked and admired, especially by the person before alluded to; her husband is at Aix; he was to have joined her on the 7th in Wales, she would have had a week's start. Now her anticipations and her realities are ruthlessly dispelled; everything had gone wrong; everything is wretched, miserable, disappointing—all, in the eyes of poor Mrs. Boyne, is for the worst in the worst of all possible worlds. She has, perforce, returned to town. Where was the girl in Wales, alone to spend money, of which she has not too much, and to be bored into the bargain? She is too clever a woman to invite herself to a friend's house. She hates strange hotels; and she is really too good looking to go about alone. So she came home. Home is a charming place when she is established there, but at the present moment, it is quite unlike itself. The carpets are up; her own bed-room is being painted and papered; workmen are about; the butler is away for a holiday; so is the coachman; and her horse is being taken care of by the vet. She cannot drive, a recreation of which she is particularly fond. To add to her vexation, last night her maid, who has been with her five years and who makes dresses that get the credit of coming from Worth or La Ferriere, announced—with a smile on her face, the wretch!—that she is going to be married as soon as Mrs. Boyne could suit herself with another maid. The poor lady could have cried. She could not help saying to the girl that she hoped she might be happy but feared very much to the contrary; as marriages in that class of life seldom turned out well and a young woman from being comparatively a lady became a wretched drudge. She was sure to have a great many children and it was more than probable that her husband would beat her, as men of the lower order invariably did. And, then, nineteen out of twenty drink. Mrs. Boyne, taking an interest in her, thought it right to warn her; but the maid smiled, and Mrs. Boyne fancied she detected a little ironical curl about the corner of the girl's mouth.

On the afternoon of the 3rd of September, then, Mrs. Boyne, in despair, set out for London, in a hack. She strolled into the Row and took a chair. It is indeed true that a sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembered happier than crown of triumph.

What cheery hours has she spent in this deserted waste! What pleasant talks she has had! What incipient, full-fledged, warring flirtations she has enjoyed here! Now she may fancy herself Alexander Selkirk—there is not even a man to take the penny for her chair. Even that does not afford her the slightest consolation. If her fellow guest who was to have been at Llewellyn (I am not positive that I have spent the name correctly) had been reduced to the same straits as herself, they might have consoled each other; but a man has always fifty places to go to—particularly a man so good-looking and so desirable in every way as Sir Colin Kilbratt. Lost in melancholy meditation, Mrs. Boyne fixes her handsome, mournful eyes on the tropical plants in the distance, which, however, she does not see, so preoccupied is she with unpleasant thoughts. Presently she is aroused by the crunching of gravel and, turning her eyes in the direction whence the sound proceeds, she sees, coming towards her, with a jaunty, swinging step, the figure of a young and well-dressed man. As he approaches she recognizes him to be Dick Bryan, a tolerably intimate acquaintance. The joy depicted on his frank yet somewhat reserved face on catching sight of her must have been flattering to any woman. He held her hand for quite half a minute; he feasted his eyes on her face as though he had not seen a good-looking woman for at least a fortnight, and he told her three separate and distinct times how awfully glad he was to see her. Mrs. Boyne's spirits went up at once; she felt better already; in five minutes she had told him all her troubles; her disappointment at her put-off visit; the discomfort of her domestic arrangements; the criminal ingratitude of her maid in marrying. The only thing she forbore to confide in him was her chagrin about Sir Colin. Then Dick in his turn imparted his woes to her; the wonderful shooting he was missing; and the desolation and stagnation of which he had been the victim for the past three weeks; and they talked and sympathized until both almost forgot they had a grievance at all.

"I wish I could ask you to come and dine," says Mrs. Boyne regretfully, as she thinks of bidding her companion good-bye; "but the carpet is up, and my butler is away, and—"

"Oh, I shouldn't mind that a bit," answers Dick, who would have been content to dine on the front door-step in her delightful company, and then a sudden inspiration seizes him.

"I say, Mrs. Boyne, why shouldn't you dine with me at the —" naming a popular restaurant, "and do a play afterwards?"

His eyes and tone are eager. The idea is a tempting one. Mrs. Boyne hesitates. A month ago he might as well have asked her to go over to Paris with him for a day or two; but we all know that crime only becomes crime by being found out, and there is not a soul in London, why not? it would be extremely pleasant, and she can guarantee perfectly that there will not be the very slightest harm in it. Dick pleads so earnestly that she smiles and consents.

"We had better dine at 7," he says as they part. "I will call for you in a hansom at ten minutes to, and I will get a box for —" mentioning a new play. Mrs. Boyne's spirits are agreeably exhilarated as she dresses. There is a slight element of excitement in the fact that she is doing something a little bit risqué. Her maid inwardly resents this display of cheerfulness, and makes bitter mental reflections on the ingratitude of ladies.

Punctual to the moment, up dashes Dick's "Lowther." Mrs. Boyne takes the precaution to throw a black lace scarf over her head, with which, if necessary, she can partially conceal her face. When they enter the dining-room only three or four people are there, recognized cousin-like looking folk; certainly no one Mrs. Boyne ever saw before. Dick has selected a table in a corner, sheltered by a pillar, with Mrs. Boyne's chair presenting its back to the rest of the company. Dick is young, but he knows what he is about, and has ordered a thoroughly recherché, though unostentatious, for dinner. Both he and his fair guest are in the highest spirits—the spirits of ill-bred people, to whom noise and loud laughter are not essential. A grouse, with a delicate froth bubbling on its breast, has just been put on their table, when a lively party enters the room with a considerable amount of luggage. There are two ladies in tremendous toilets, glittering with diamonds, accompanied by two gilded youths, whose shirt-fronts alone are a guarantee of their social status. As a matter of fact they belong to the Third Life Guards, and Mrs. Boyne is perfectly well acquainted with them; the ladies she does not recognize.

This is rather a bore. She certainly does not want them to see her there with Dick because the world is uncharitable. Young men are worse than uncharitable; they talk and they have an objectionable way of smiling. After one glance Mrs. Boyne turns her back assiduously to the party. She sees Dick nod, which means that they have recognized him, and, of course, with the acquisitiveness of their species, they will want to know who he has got with him. She is quite sure, however, that she can trust Dick not to betray her; she has her lace scarf and there is a door by which she can leave the room without passing them. She is a little bit ruffled, but she does not mean to have her evening spoiled by a man in the presence of two other men who know you, and going off with him in a hansom afterwards. I shall leave home in half an hour and go straight to my lawyer. You had better consult yours."

This is turning the tables with a vengeance. Mrs. Boyne is dreadfully frightened and uncomfortable. She runs very far short of her own. Another couple have just entered. The man is—her own husband! Ye gods! what Nemesis is this? The husband whom she firmly believed was at Aix! But when the first agonized sensation is over a worse thought comes: Who is his companion? She is small; she is distinctly pretty; she wears the most fashionable toilet imaginable of brown and the new shades of orange—a dress similar to one I heard a man call a haricott-mutton gown; she has a shrill voice, which is distinctly audible the moment she has taken her place.

"By Jove!" gasped Dick, looking at Mrs. Boyne. The situation is too horrible. If Captain Boyne had come in and he believed he had been doing nothing, they would have welcomed him to their table and could have explained their rencontre with a very fair grace. But who is this lady? Who indeed! For there is no suggestion in the minds either of his wife or Dick that Captain Boyne's tele-a-tele can be as harmless or as spontaneous as their own. Mrs. Boyne is white and trembling. Her impulse of fear or embarrassment has given place to furious anger. She feels herself cruelly wronged and insulted. Never, never has she imagined her husband capable of such treachery toward her. In London, and not in his own house! In London with a creature! Her heart beats to suffocation. She hears the shrill voice, the low laughter; she sees, through her back is turned, the rainbow-colored garments. And her husband, who hates or professes that he hates to hear a woman's voice raised in public, and who thinks every woman ought to dress in black! The hypocrite! the traitor! she cannot think of a name bad enough for him. For the first time in her life she comprehends the instinct that makes low-born women (children of Nature) fly at a man and try to tear his eyes out.

Poor Dick sits there the image of misery sympathizing deeply with her and cursing his unlucky fate for having innocently brought about this dreadful catastrophe.

"This is very embarrassing!" says Mrs. Boyne at last, forcing a laugh. Her manner does not deceive Dick. "What is to be done?" he whispers. "Shall we stay here until they finish dinner and are gone?" "No; certainly not. That might be another hour and a half, and that dreadful woman's voice goes through my head. Really, I wish I could—I would have given my husband credit for better taste!"

"So should I," assents Dick eagerly, though in his heart he thinks Boyne has got hold of a deuced good-looking little woman.

"I will put my lace over my face and if I go out directly behind you it will be impossible for any one to recognize me," says Mrs. Boyne.

So five minutes later she walks out behind the shelter of Dick's broad shoulders, looking neither to the right nor the left, and unconscious of the inquisitive glances of the Life Guardsman and the lady in the haricott robe.

She tears it open; it is from Captain Boyne. "Have just arrived; shall be home again as soon as you get this. Her heart almost stands still at the magnitude of his treachery and effrontery. She literally grinds her teeth. Wait till she covers him with confusion! A quarter of an hour later the monster marches smiling into her room. She draws back from his proffered salute with icy coldness, but she does not seem to notice the strangeness of her manner.

"So you crossed over last night?" she asks looking fixedly at him. "Yes," he replies briskly; "it was a lovely night. We had a capital crossing."

"At this Mrs. Boyne can no longer contain herself. "Oh!" she cries, growing scarlet, "you were not dining at the — last night, perhaps, with a painted creature in an orange-colored gown?"

"What do you mean?" he says, looking her full in the face perfectly unabashed. "I mean what I say," cries Mrs. Boyne with flashing eyes, and she repeats her statement with great emphasis.

"Whoever saw me, or thought he saw me, must have made a mistake," he says, "since at that moment I was in a railway carriage."

"For an instant Mrs. Boyne feels like one petrified. Could he eyes have deceived her? She had only cast one hurried glance at him. But no, impossible; it was he! This is only the most shameful effrontery on his part. "It is needless to tell any more lies," she says icily. "I saw you myself."

With this Captain Boyne's look and manner changed at once. He frowns as his wife has very seldom seen him frown, and looks positively awful.

"Oh, very well," he says. "I thought perhaps you might have the good sense to be discreet and say nothing, and I was prepared to second you. But since you have not you must take the consequences. You pretend to me that you are going on a visit in Wales. I come home unexpectedly and find you dining in a public restaurant alone with a man in the presence of two other men who know you, and going off with him in a hansom afterwards. I shall leave home in half an hour and go straight to my lawyer. You had better consult yours."

This is turning the tables with a vengeance. Mrs. Boyne is dreadfully frightened and uncomfortable. She runs very far short of her own. Another couple have just entered. The man is—her own husband! TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.—The state superintendent of public instruction has ordered the holding of a teacher's institute for Marquette county. It will be held at this place, and will last a week, beginning Monday, November 14th. Prof. Olcott has been appointed superintendent of the same. The professor received official notification this week, and has set about making the necessary preparations for holding the institute. The last institute was held at Negaunee, where the citizens took it upon themselves to entertain the teachers, and did it very creditably. The teachers attending the institute here should certainly be received and cared for as hospitably as they were in our sister city. It is to be hoped that our people will interest themselves in the matter. Quite a large number of young ladies will likely be present to attend the session of the institute, and arrangements should be made for their accommodation.

brash. "The heaviest tax-payers" will kick—no question about that. But there is a belief up the range that "Sam" and "Bob" don't own that part of the county, and the people there aren't as much in dread of their kicking as are the citizens of poor, jackass-ridden Menominee. Now, the MINING JOURNAL isn't at all concerned in the matter, but it knows a thing or two about the way Menominee is "run," and the movement for a division does not seem unnatural to it in view of the situation in that county. The Herald should silence its local popguns before throwing down the gauntlet to neutrals in this "ompleasantry."

The democrats of his district have nominated "Jase" Wright, of Marinette, Wis., present register of deeds of Marinette county, as their candidate for member of the assembly. His opponent on the republican ticket is Geo. W. Delano, of Penuaukee. If "Jase" doesn't get a "solid vote" in Marinette county we mistake the character of the population in that bailiwick. And if he should be elected—as the writer hopes and believes he will be—the district will be represented by a man who was a gallant soldier in the Union army during the late war, and has been a valuable citizen ever since—a man of brains and energy far in beyond the average of members of the legislative body for a seat in which his friends have made him a candidate.

Plainly the end of the railroad war is at hand. The roads are raising their freight and passenger rates—a sure sign that the quarrel among themselves is practically over, and that operations against the common enemy—the public—will now be resumed with vigor. Well, the public has had its summer of enjoyment, and should be prepared to endure its winter of hardship without repining.

The Michigan battalion reached home from Yorktown Monday, landing at Jackson from two special trains. The boys came home covered with glory and dust—chiefly dust—acquired on the historic ground made sacred to liberty by the surrender of Cornwallis. The battalion bore itself and its honors creditably on the great and gala occasion.

Mrs. Garfield has rented a residence at Cleveland, and will spend the winter in that city. The Mentor place was rented for a term of years to her brother Rudolph when Gen. Garfield became president, hence will not be occupied by the Garfield family for some time to come. The widowed lady, the public will be gratified to learn, is enjoying fair health.

A Parnell indignation meeting at London the other night brought together an attendance of 50,000. The dispatches say "the police did not interfere with, or attempt to disperse, the assemblage." Wise police! They always know when to exercise judicious moderation.

A shrewd exchange observes that "if Arthur doesn't want Blaine to remain permanently in his cabinet he had better not ask him." Arthur appears to understand this. Probably Conkling whispered the caution in his ear in time to avert possible mistakes.

The Mutual Union telegraph company is laying its wires underground in Chicago, and expects to have the work done by Dec. 1st. The company binds itself to deliver all city messages free forever in consideration of being permitted to put down its wires.

over and lodging in his wife's shoulder. Finney was a rich farmer worth about $80,000. He had lived as a bachelor with his mother until August last, when he married a Miss Mary Griffey, who had borne him a child the previous spring, subsequently commencing a suit against him for bastardy and breach of promise, in which she obtained a judgment. The litigation ended with the marriage, of course, and the couple appeared to live happily together since, but it is believed that the homicide is in some manner connected with the prior torts. No arrests are reported.

Burlington, Iowa, was raided by burglars Saturday night, who broke into nine stores, securing some money and considerable goods. The work was done by foreign talent.

Tracklaying is under way on the narrow gauge railroad to connect Saginaw City and East Saginaw.

Memphis enjoyed her first frost of the season last week.

An incendiary attempt was made on the night of the 21st to fire the episcopal residence of bishop Mullen, at Erie. Lighted rags saturated with kerosene were thrown into a room through a window. The attempt was discovered in time to prevent any serious damage.

Mrs. Hickok died from the effects of chloroform while seated in a dentist's chair undergoing an operation Sunday. She was a married woman, and leaves a family, consisting of a husband and five children.

Leman Logan, who robbed the postoffice at Assumption, Ill., has been sentenced to imprisonment in the Joliet penitentiary for three years.

Henry Stewart, a negro octogenarian, who had $125,000 insurance placed on his life by speculators, died at Harrisburg Saturday night. It is alleged that policy holders gave the saloons orders to supply the old man with all whiskey he desired, that being the only consolation the old fellow received in return for carrying this immense load of insurance. His friends have notified the companies of the facts, and urge them not to pay the insurance.

A prize fight for $100 a side was fought Sunday morning near Hoboken, N. J., between Frank McGowan and Dennis Lyons. McGowan was declared winner of the match on the seventy-ninth round. Three hundred persons witnessed the mill, which was doggedly contested, both men being badly punished before Lyons gave in.

The Michael Reese hospital at Chicago, erected on the lake shore under the auspices of the United Hebrew Relief association, was dedicated Sunday. Charles Ehrhardt and wife will be warden and matron, and patients will be admitted at once. The heirs of Mr. Reese gave $30,000 toward the building and $50,000 for its support.

The ropes of an elevator in Spaulding & Co.'s manufactory at Hastings, Mich., broke Saturday, letting it drop three stories. Robert Brown, a workman, was caught by it in its descent, and instantly killed.

Keeley gave an exhibition of his improved motor at Philadelphia last week. It is pronounced as much a failure as ever by mechanical experts.

A lawyer named Thiers at Kenosha, Wis., has carried on a systematic course of swindling for years by means of forged securities on which loans were negotiated, and in other ways, until his operations aggregated over $100,000. Last week his character was discovered, but not until he had made his escape from that place to Chicago, where he successfully eluded the officers and made his way to Canada, as is believed. His victims are not only residents of Kenosha, but business men of Milwaukee and Chicago were bitten as well. His apprehension is almost certain to be effected, and if he is taken conviction and a long term in the penitentiary surely await him.

A head of cabbage to town the other day that the colonel measured and weighed. It was fifteen inches in diameter and weighed sixteen pounds. Whereupon the editor retired chagrined to the sanctum and hid his own diminished head in the waste basket.

An employe of the Ford River Lumber company got caught in the mill machinery last week, and had his right thigh broken above the knee. It was a compound fracture, and the flesh was badly bruised, but the doctors hope to save the limb.

SAULT STE. MARIE.—We get the information that the government is building an iron light house on the end of the south canal pier from the News. The light house department directs its construction.

A number of Chippewa county farmers have purchased horses in Canada this fall—securing fine teams.

The Transit company is no longer governed by its time tables, formal notice of their suspension for the balance of the season having been given, and much irregularity in the arrival of the mails is complained of.

Charlie Eaton got "mashed" one day last week, but 'twasn't a girl that did it. A six hundred pound iron fell on his right foot, totally mauling him for pedestrian service for the time being. The accident will bar him out of walking matches for some weeks, but he will suffer no permanent bad results.

Seymour's mill closed down for the season on the 19th, in consequence of Mr. Gallagher's failure to get down logs contracted to that mill. He has between two and three million feet hung up, that will not be got down before next spring, which entails serious loss on him.

The Exchange hotel will change hands Nov. 1st. Mr. John H. Ruehle has purchased the property and will enter upon its management on that date.

CLAMOR.—The presence in that place of a representative of Harper's Monthly is noted by the News. He is inspecting the copper mines and their environments with reference to a possible series of illustrated sketches descriptive and illustrative of copper mining on Lake Superior, to appear in that periodical another season.

Hat lamps are to take the place of candles in the Calumet and Hecla mine. The wonder is that they have not done so long since.

'Tis but a few short weeks since those who had potatoes to sell in quantities were offering them to storekeepers at 75 cents per bushel. Now the price has advanced to $1.25, with prospect of an increase, and those who were so anxious to sell are now holding back. We know of one man who has 1,000 bushels snugly stowed away in his cellar, in anticipation of seeing the price go up to $2.00 per bushel ere the winter is over.

If the News editors know where that cellar is we advise its owner to buy a bull-dog. Kelly is a Noble hand at foraging, and when potatoes run up above a dollar a bushel the only way a country editor can get any is to steal 'em.

The village lock-up was the theatre of a queer affair some nights since. For some misdemeanor committed at Red Jacket, Stephen Lowney, a young man, was placed there. Some hours previously a drunken Finlander had been "run in," and when Lowney was incarcerated the fellow was sleeping off the effects of his potations. After a time the Finlander awoke and inquired of his comrade in durance vile what business he had there? The latter, who was talking to acquaintances through a grated window, turned and explained that the honor had been rather urgently forced upon him by minions of the law, then resuming his conversation with the parties outside. The Finlander next made a hostile demonstration towards him, whereupon Lowney cried out that he was stabbed, and begged the outsiders to run for the watchman. When that officer arrived the young man was released from his critical position. He was found to be seriously cut in several places. His wounds were dressed, and his savage companion of the lock-up searched for the implement, but he stolidly denied all knowledge of the affair, and the closest search failed to discover a knife on his person or in the cell, though Lowney swore positively that he had one when the assault was made, and that he inflicted the injuries with it. There is a mystery about the transaction that the officers are at a loss to unravel. The Finlander was fined for being drunk and disorderly, and discharged on payment, there being insufficient evidence in support of Lowney's complaint to warrant the justice in taking cognizance of it.

FEIBISH & Co. are in daily receipt of new stock. These are anything but lively times to all but the merchants who advertise.

JOHN SCHIFF has moved his saloon to of dot nice new buildings at I shoost was pulled me.

Mrs. PATTEN and family, of Milwaukee, are visiting at the residence of R. H. Purcell.

At the Wheat and Pittsburgh & Lake Superior mines they are looking for more ore with Bullock diamond drills.

SPORLEY & KLINE, (if that is the name of the new firm), have started their new hardware store, and are receiving their stock.

RALPH BAGALEY, Esq., of Pittsburgh, who has been stopping at the residence of J. Kirkpatrick the past week, returned home Tuesday.

J. N. FOHRMAN has fitted up elegant music rooms above Marsell & Co.'s store, where he teaches the charming art of soothing the savage breast.

OUR national emblem still flaps and flaps from the big flagstaff, in the breeze, though there is less than a single stripe left to indicate its faded significance.

IF the MINING JOURNAL had any desire to chronicle street or saloon rows, it would not wait for a good supply of healthy items for this week's issue.

THERE is one street corner near the M. H. & O. depot not occupied by a larger beer saloon. Where is Negaunee's enterprise? Such a rare opportunity ought not to be neglected.

ED. LOBB now occupies his new house near the M. H. & O. depot, which he designates as the "Railroad House." It is a handsome saloon, and decidedly "handy" for those who get dry on the trains.

STANDING around the depot at train time is becoming very uncomfortable enjoyment just now, for all of which the railroad employes may be duly thankful, as it gives them the necessary elbow room.

FLAMING posters were out since the beginning of the week advertising a dance which was given last night by an organization calling itself the Negaunee Social Club. The "fandang" took place at Winter's hall.

WHILE many of our dilapidated old stores and structures have either been overhauled and repaired or torn down, there are some which stand in need of like attention. There are a couple that need tearing down very much.

SPORLEY'S hardware stock being moved out of the Sterling building, Chris. Fox has the whole first floor of the building for the display of his fine stock of harnesses and robes. His store has an improved appearance.

THE man who bets that a Negaunee girl can't take a kiss with good grace, even from a Marquette man, is sure to get left, as the one was the other day. To lose your money and have the other man get the kiss is hard luck, indeed.

AND now, wonders upon wonders, it does seem as though M. T. Gaffney's house will be completed after all—but hold, there is a good amount of work to be done on it yet, and there is opportunity for several postponements of a decade each.

TED GAFFNEY, the night watchman of the city, resigned his important trust last Tuesday, and the mayor appointed a man named Gordon Murray (not the captain) in his place. One of the principal reasons for Gaffney's resignation was the evident fact that it was wanted by the mayor.

ACCIDENT AT THE MCCOMBER.—Two miners at the McComber came very near losing their lives by being caught by some falling ground Thursday afternoon. A large piece of rock fell near them and rolled over on to them before they could save themselves. One of the men, Thomas King by name, was quite seriously injured. He had one leg broken and received a severe gash in his head and had his skull slightly fractured. His injuries are not considered dangerous. The other man, a Swede, escaped with some painful contusions.

WE learn—and with pleasure—from the Marquette Eagle, that W. C. Olcott, book-keeper of the Marquette Iron Works company, has resigned his place in its office to accept a similar position with F. W. Read & Co., of the Eagle Mills, between here and Marquette. The Eagle Mill's people secure a capital good fellow and a competent assistant in Mr. Olcott. He slings an artist's quill, and hasn't that unconquerable aversion to fun with which members of his profession are apt to be afflicted.

G. L. KUHLMAN, the boss grocer, comes before the public in the columns of the MINING JOURNAL this week, and his advertisement should be as a guideboard to all consumers of groceries. In reading Mr. Kuhlman's advertisement it must be remembered that he does all he advertises to do, and much more. He keeps unquestionably the finest grocery store which ever was opened for business in Negaunee, keeps the largest and cleanest stock, and the most of it. If there is any business place in the world that should be kept clean it is a grocery store, and this one is certainly a model of neatness. His stock is always fresh and of the best quality. All the delicacies of the season are always to be found at Kuhlman's as early as they can be brought here, and Negaunee housekeepers should aim to see what he has in stock when they want something extra good for the table.

IT WENT OFF.—There is a boy at Wettstein's jewelry store who found out, last Thursday, that a revolver will sometimes go off when you least expect it, when the only reason that it does not kill somebody is because there is nobody in the way of the bullet. The boy was cleaning revolvers at the time, and was under express instructions not to touch the loaded chambers. He thought he would put one of these in place, however, just to show that he could handle them, when it went off, of course. The bullet crashed through the front window and went buzzing across the street. It lodged in a dry goods box on the opposite sidewalk. Alderman Quinn was leaning on that very box, and when it was hit he looked around to see "who threw that stone." Everything being quiet, he resumed his position on the dry goods box under the impression that he must have been mistaken, little dreaming how near he came to being shot.

THERE is nothing like it in appearance, or will cure a cough, bronchitis, asthma or weak lungs, as quick as White Wine of Tar Syrup. Price 50c. Sold by John Crowley.

D. 1878, by which the power of sale therein contained became operative, made and executed by Ann Kieley to Angelino Nobis, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Marquette county, state of Michigan, in Liber " " of Mortgages, at pages 147 and 148, on the twentieth day of February, A. D. 1878, and which mortgage was subsequently assigned by said Angelino Nobis to John P. Dousselman, as of record in the office of the register of deeds of Marquette county on the thirtieth day of December, A. D. 1877, in Liber " " of Mortgages at page 365, on which said mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of five hundred and twenty-six dollars and an attorney fee of thirty dollars provided for said mortgage to be paid in case of this proceeding, and no proceedings either at law or in equity having been taken to enforce said mortgage or to recover the money secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that by virtue of the power of sale in such mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, on Monday, the 26th day of October, A. REPUBLIC.—During a brief visit of the MINING JOURNAL representative to Republic, the early part of this week, he was able to glean the following interesting items:

Business men, one and all, report good trade, and people of every branch are enjoying prosperity.

It requires a full day for a person, from any part of the county, to spend two hours at Republic.

E. Dunghy's new residence, opposite the depot is nearly finished. It will make a roomy and comfortable dwelling.

One great drawback to travel from shipping or Marquette to Republic is the present method of getting there. Between unexpected delays and the infernal jolting received while on the branch, it is seldom that one can reach Republic in anything but a pleasant frame of mind or body.

A good dinner awaits the weary traveler over the Republic branch upon his arrival at the Ely house, however late he comes.

Republic is big with expectations and future prospects, and her expectations are well grounded, too.

J. H. McCabe now occupies his new store, which is a handsome and commodious one, and well located. Between unpacking new stock, getting his new quarters in trim and selling to his increased number of customers, he is kept on the jump most of the time. Mr. McCabe runs a first-class hardware store.

Edwin Stearns, superintendent of the poor, came here Tuesday and seized upon the property of Ed. Slaughtery, on the complaint of his wife, who charges him with failing to support her. Slaughtery refused to live with his wife or furnish her with money to live on, hence the action of the poor superintendent. He has three children who also suffer from this desertion.

J. A. Kirkwood opened his new drug store this week. It is located next door to Zosman & Ford's store, and is a neat and well furnished place. When James gets his full stock in he will have a first-class drug store, which will be a credit to the town. His place promises to be quite a public resort, as "Jimmy" makes it pleasant for all who call.

Verran & Godshall have the building for their furniture store nearly completed, and will open up for trade in a week or two. Their building is a neat and substantial one, and will add greatly to the part of the town it is located in.

The railroad company is making some much needed and substantial improvements on its premises here, which will be highly appreciated by the traveling public and our citizens generally. The old passenger depot is being entirely rebuilt and enlarged to three times its former size, and more commodious offices and waiting rooms fitted up. The present unfinished state of the building makes it rather uncomfortable for people waiting for the trains, but when completed the depot will be as comfortable as any on its line of road. Larger platforms are also being added, and everything done to conduce to the accommodation of the traveling public.

The Republic waltz club gave its first dance of the season last Thursday. The club will have dances at regular intervals during the winter, and our people will enjoy themselves as usual, which is to say, hugely.

Will the literary society revive the coming winter, or is it sleeping the sleep that knows no waking? The Republic literary society was the most successful one ever organized in Marquette county, and it is to be hoped that it will hold its regular meetings again this fall and winter.

About two weeks ago a young man named Albert Shipman lost a package containing $1,000 between his home and the office of the Republic mine, whether he was sent with the money by his father, who wanted it placed with the company for safe keeping. The loss is a hard one for John Shipman, the owner of the money, the sum being the savings of many years. The loss was advertised, and $100 offered for its return, but no clue was found to the money of the finder until last Saturday, when a railroad brakeman named McDonald was arrested at Humboldt on suspicion of having the money. McDonald had been at Humboldt recently on a protracted spree, during which he let fall words which led to his being suspected of knowing something of the lost money. He came back to Humboldt from Clarksburg, where he had been around Friday, spending money and continuing his drunk, and going into Pelmar's saloon, told the bar-keeper that he had lost $950. This seemed to prove that he was the man who found the $1,000, and he was at once arrested and brought here. The money was not found on his person, though there seems to be no doubt of his having had it. He was to have been examined Tuesday, but he waived examination and was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of $1,500. Not being able to give bail he was taken to jail to await trial. While there is every prospect of McDonald being convicted from the evidence at hand, there is, unfortunately, less likelihood of Shipman getting back his money.

Postmaster E. S. Rowland is authorized to collect all bills for the MINING JOURNAL at Republic, and persons wishing to pay their subscriptions can do so at the post office.

HOCKING VALLEY NEWS.—In the absence of anything startling or terrible—politics and the exploits of the army worm excepted—news from this delightful valley will not prove nerve-rattling. However, an item of very great importance to many people is communicated by Mr. E. Harrington, wholesale and retail druggist of Logan, who thus writes: Mr. Alex. McClurg, Union Furnace, states that his wife had been afflicted with rheumatism for the last twenty-five years, being unable to walk without canes or other help the most of that time. Has now used two bottles of St. Jacobs Oil and walks not only about the house but also in the fields without any help.—Logan (Ohio) Hocking Sentinel.

OUTRAGE AT MANISTIQUE.—Manistique, Schoolcraft Co., comes to the front with another outbreak of lawlessness, details of which we glean from the Pioneer. On Tuesday night four brutes, Ed Nutt, Ed. Murphy, Frank Face and Tom Kelly, all being under the influence of liquor, went to the house of an Indian family by the name of Williams, for a vile purpose, and demanded admission. This being denied, they broke in a window, thus effecting an entrance. A dastardly assault was then made on one of the females of the family. One of the latter managed to get out of the house and notified the officers of what was going on, and constable Rockwell, accompanied by Justice Clemens, proceeded to the place and ordered them to leave. The scoundrels drew revolvers and drove the officers off, continuing their outrageous conduct. Warrants were sworn out for their arrest next day, and the entire gang were in custody and undergoing examination at last accounts. Murphy and Nutt were bound over for resisting the officers, and on the charge of attempted rape and arson the paper states that all but Kelly will be held. The evidence elicited showed that the Williams girl, who was the object of their assault, fired at the miscreants several times, and at last succeeded in driving them off at the point of her revolver. The fellows are deserving of a severe handling by the authorities and we hope to chronicle their rigorous punishment for the infamous outrage.

I have used them myself with best results for torpidity of the liver; and in the case of a friend of mine suffering from dropsy, the effect was marvelous." BRUCE TURNER, Rochester, N. SWEET'S PATENT Common Sense Sleigh. The Strongest, Most Durable, AND MOST PERFECT SLEIGH IN USE.

I RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of Lumbermen to this cut, showing Sweet's Logging and Supply Sleighs. We are now making eight different sizes, suitable for all kinds of work, both double and single, and of any width of track desired. It is a well-known fact that these sleighs will draw larger loads, with more ease of draft, than any other sleigh produced. They are built loose jointed, so that each runner will act independent of each other, and will not tip over in bad places, as the common stiff-jointed sleigh is sure to do. They also have a Patent Shoe, Concave Heel, so as to prevent the sleigh from slewing or sliding sideways, so that the sleigh is bound to keep the track, which is a large item to every man that drives a team. I keep on hand all sizes of Logging, Light and Heavy Teaming and Delivery Sleighs, all warranted to give perfect satisfaction. Parties will please send their orders in time for the coming winter, and not wait until the rush comes. All orders promptly attended to. SOLD CHEAP FOR CASH. T. MORGAN, Sole Agent for Marquette, Menominee and Delta Counties, MARQUETTE, 685m6 MICH.
