VOTERS should bear in mind that the registration this year is de novo; that each man must see to it personally that his name is on the list before election day, or he will lose his vote, the boards of registration having no power under the law providing for this registration to enroll voters of their own volition. Upon further inquiry, the MINING JOURNAL learns that the rumor current here last week charging Hon. J. A. Hubbell with treachery to other parties interested with him in the Houghton & L'Ause railroad, in selling that property to the M., H. & O. railroad company, had no foundation whatever in fact, the sale being made with the entire concurrence of those parties. It is very much the fashion just now to lie about Mr. Hubbell, and it is probable that this unwarranted report originated in the same manner as have numerous others designed to prejudice the people of his district and the state at large against that vigorously abused gentleman. The MINING JOURNAL gave the rumor for merely what it was worth in our announcement of the transaction last week, and takes pleasure in being in a position to publish an emphatic contradiction of it in this number, on the authority of the parties atleged to have been "sold out" by Mr.

Nearly two years ago the Jackson Iron Co. began extensive improvements in their furnaces at this place; both stacks were enlarged very materially, new hot blasts were built, and bell and hoppers were added; the cost of these improvements was large, amounting to nearly | ger will be imminent for weeks yet. Dr. H. S. $30,000. For over a year after they were put Taft, the regular mine physician, was assisted if known by him to be voters, the board may in blast the stacks worked very poorly, and by Dr. Duckett in the first dressing of their were run at a great sacrifice. Everything was done that could be to find out where the trouble lay, and when one stack was blown out it was tound to be nearly choked up with a heavy lining of soot and debris. The trouble was attributed to the coal used, it being principally of soft wood and inferior in quality. This spring arrangements were entered into whereby nothing but the best of new hard wood coal should be used, but no improvement to speak of was noticed after several weeks' trial. The shape of the stacks, dams, etc., was then discussed, but these being the same as used by successful furnaces elewhere, the theory that the fault lay in these was found to be untenable. After trying everything else the agent directed his attention to the bell and hopper. This was the dernier ressort. The bell was enlarged so as to spread over a greater surface, and, as if by magic, the furnace jumped from fifteen and eighteen tons a day to thirty and forty: since which time she has been doing splendid work-the best in her whole history. Now smiles illumine the countenances of many who, but a short time ago, looked the picture of despair. Thousands and thousands of doltars were lost during that year of experiments.

The Jackson Iron Co., large as are its interests, is not the only industry on the shores of Big Bay de Noquette. Two lumber companies have erected within a year large and extensive mills, which will successfully compete with any in the upper peninsula. Van Winkle at Garden Bay, and the Bay de Noquette company at Sturgeon River have mills capable of turning out over a hundred thousand feet of lumber each per day. At some future time, perhaps, I may be able to give a complete description of these milis and their surroundings.

Garden Bay is growing rapidly. There are three general stores-Capt. Olmsted's, A. Delosia's and Van Winkle's-two lumber mills and one small flouring mill, two hotels, besides severa' boarding houses, two saloons, one temperance saloon, and a Temple of Honor hall, The town has lately been laid out in regular village plat style, and lots are being speculated upon. Many new residences are going up in substantial form, and everything is booming. The Garden Bayites look upon their place as a future county seat.

Capt. George Saunders & Co. have an extensive fishery near Sack Bay. They employ about fifteen men, and have about $20,000 invested in the business. They have five pound nets, with over a mile of "lead" running to them. The fish must either go in the pound or a long way around to escape the traps. They also have one of the finest fishing tugs on the lakes, a schooner to carry fish to market, and everything complete to carry on the business successfully. They are lifting immense quan tites of the finest whitefish and lake trout.

Capt. Feltus, who is engaged in the same ess on a smaller scale off Fayette, is sendties of sturgeon to market.

Capt. McBride, who was making preparation to engage extensively in the same pursuit off Garden bluff, was drowned Sunday last on his return trip from Escanaba. The wind was owing almost a gale, and in one of the lurches of his little tug he lost his balance and fell overboard. His body was immediately secured (not having sunk), but life was extinct. The remains were sent to his home in Whitehall, this state. The captain was a genial man, whose death will be sincerely mourned.

When about half-way up it ddenly took a retrograde motion, making for the bottom at a great rate of speed. It is said, but with how much truth we don't know, that if the engineer had had presence of mind just then he could have prevented the car from aking its full run by simply applying the rakes. Of the truth of this we can say nothing, as we cannot get at the precise facts in the sached the level from whence it started, and ith such force that it burst through the floor of that level and crashed down a sixty-foot per shaft situated underneath, carryg earth, rock and debris in considerable quantitles along with it. Quite a murderous affray occurred here Wednesday night, which came very near costing Henry M. Atkinson his life. It seems that one Con. O'Neil, who has been employed by Atkinson as a laborer on the Erie extension, applied stay to him for payment, claiming that he was too slow of pay. Mr. Atkinson told him to wait until the board bills came in and he would settle with him, whereupon O'Neil drew a knife and commenced operations. By-standers, together with Mr. Atkinson's natural ability to care for himself, prevented serious bloodshed. O'Neil was arrested, and may be bound over to

Awards at the Cincinnati EXPOSITION.

DETROIT, MICH., OCTOBER 9, 1882.

In justice to our patrons and the line of goods they sell, we are proud to inform them that Garland Stoves and Ranges were awarded two first premiums and two medals, at the Cincinnati exposition, one medal being the only gold medal offered to manufacturers of cast iron stoves, and consequently the highest award in this class; the other a silver medal, which of itself is equal to the highest award received by our competitors, clearly vindicating the position taken that Garland Stoves and Ranges carried off the highest honors of the exposition, over all the leading manufacturers of the country, proving incontestably that Garland Stoves and Ranges are immeasurably superior to all their competitors; the same has been proven in all parts of the Union. Wherever Garland Stoves and Ranges have been exhibited, they have been awarded first premiums, where offered, including all the leading expositions, state and county fairs throughout the country. They received six first premiums at the California state exposition, and the only first premium at the Minneapolis exposition, etc.

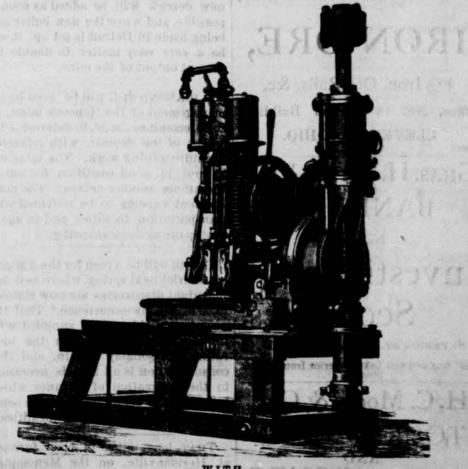

It was admitted by the visitors at the Cincinnati exposition, that our display of Stoves and Ranges was the finest display ever made there. We have had the same photographed, and are now figuring for copies to be sent to all our customers, which, if carried out, will be sent as promptly as possible.

tive from this congressional district, the democrats who assembled in convention here yesterday did all that lay in their power, as a representative body of that party, to achieve success, if success be possible in the present status of the parties in this district. Their candidate has been identified with the territory embraced in the district since its earliest settlement, is familiar with its needs in the way of legislation, and devoted to its interests. His efforts in its behalf in the past have contributed in intestate. no small degree to its wonderful development and present prosperity, and constitute the best possible guarantee for the use he will make of his position, where the welfare of this region is concerned, if the nomination of yesterday's convention should be endorsed at the polls. So well is Mr. White known to the people of the district, indeed, that he stands in no need of either introduction or eulogy from the MINING JOUR-NAL. Perhaps the upper peninsula does not contain a man more generally acquainted with its people, more uniformly esteemed, or who enjoys in an equal degree the warm regard and perfect confidence of all classes. When the republican convention named his opponent, some weeks ago, the MIN-ING JOURNAL bore hearty testimony to the excellent choice made by that convention. It subsequently advised the democrats to refrain from making nomination against Mr. Breitung. After witnessing the work of yesterday's convention, it now concedes that the wisdom of the party is superior to that which inspired us to say, too, without retracting a single ment of the republican nominee. Every word then uttered of Mr. Breitung is doubly an argument in favor of this district has no man combining so many qualities that would adorn the office for which he now stands before his fellow-citizens as a candidate. With such candidates as are now in the field for representative, the district is certain to be ably and faithfully represented in congress, no matter how the election results. Is there

Ar the Detroit mine, about 75 tens of ore is being raised daily, with the aid of a single derrick and a working force of less than a dozen miners. A new derrick will be added as soon as possible, and when the new boiler now being made in Detroit is set up, it will be a very easy matter to double the present output of the mine.

A DIAMOND drill will be used by the management of the Hancock mine, on the Menominee range, to determine the extent of the deposit, with reference be put in good condition for active operations another season. The management expects to be provided with transportation facilities and in shape to ship ore early next spring.

THERE will be a rush for the Agogeebic district next spring, where new and to be of weekly occurrence. That the new iron field will be supplied with transportation facilities in the near future is reasonably certain, and that consummation is all that is necessary to the realization of fortunes which hitherto have been considered, in some quarters, at least, "barren idealities."

THAT long talked of blast furnace at Hermanville, on the Menominee range, is to be put in shortly, we are assured. A joint stock company to any act, omission, misfeasance or negligence of said first parties, or any or either of them build and operate it will be organized at an early day, with C. J. L. wners and their employes are passed upon by the decision of the supreme court in the case of Samuelson vs. The Cleveland Iron Mining company, rebelow in full for the information of that large class of the MINING JOURNAL'S readers. We have before given a histohere. The opinion is by justices Cocley, Marston, Graves and Campbell, and pared with great care to cover the questions raised in this litigation:

This action was instituted to recover damages of the defendant for negligently causing the death of John P. Samuelson, the plaintiff's

The declaration avers that defendant, on June 10, 1879, and for a long time prior thereto was owner of an iron mine in Ishpeming, in which was a certain underground pit called pit No. 5: that the intestate on the day named and for a few preceding days was employed therein as a common miner under Selwood & Williams, who, under and by the direction of defendant, were working said pit and employing men for the purpose; that the defendant assumed and had entire charge and control over all safety arrangements in said pit and in the mine, directed the placing of all pillars, bad the care of timbering and bracing therein, when necessary, and the determination of all questions relating to the safe condition of said pit, and the duty devolved upon said company to said intestate in his said employment to see at all times that said pit was safe, and that examinations were made for that purpose from time to time, and that defendant assumed all risks to said intestate, in his said employment arising from dangers occurring in said pit which might be remedied by care and skill; that the root of said pit was of soap stone. which was a dangerous rock for roof support, crumble and fall, and that the roof in question required constant care, attention and examination in order to keep the same in a reasonably safe condition and to prevent the same from falling on the workman below, and that supports and timbers ought to have been placed under it to make it safe, but defendant neglectoffer it such counsel-and this it can ed and refused to place them; that on the day named while intestate was at work in said pit word of what it then said in endorse- a large quantity of rock fell from said roof, without any fault or negligence of said intestate, but by and through the fault and negligence of defendant, which struck and killed the intestate. And plaintiff aver that the the election of Mr. White-than whom | death was caused by the wrongful conduct, carelessness, negligence and default of defendant, and she claims damages therefor. The circuit judge was of opinion that no case was made for the jury, and accordingly directed a verdict for the defendant. Liability on the part of defendant is claimed on two grounds: First, that defendant being the owner of real estate which it was unsafe to venture upon, invited the intestate and others upon it without apprising them of the danger, and that the death occurred in consequence: another district in the state that can and second, that the defendant owed a duty to say as much? 20016 3-311 all persons employed in the mine to be vigilant in guarding against dangers and that this duty

Johnson & Co., and the party of the second part The Mining Company. "The quality of such ore shall be satisfactory to the superintendent (for the time being) of said second party, and shall be delivered in shipstock piled at the option of said superintendworked in a careful, prudent and good workmanlike manner, to the entire satisfaction of said superintendent, and in case it is not so said first parties, and retain the costs thereof, essentially a dangerous business, where acciany mining at such place, or ore making any place where they are workto future mining work. The mine will to report such dangerous place to said super intendent, to the end that he may supervise the removal of the dangerous rock, or take such other steps to make such place safe: an iron, or other underground mine.

"The parties of the first part, in consideration their employes all risks of danger or accidents no matter from what cause the same may ly and prudently worked and no negligent arise and all precautions taken against the only furnishing the place to mine- the making of it safe hereby devolving on said first parties under the supervision, advice and direction of said superintendent, for which po

MANY points of interest to mine- clse of proper care, ought to have been known and if in consequence a miner who was brought there in ignorance of the danger was killed, the defendant should be held responsible. Every man who expressly or by implication invites others to come upon his premises, assumes to cently rendered, and which we print all who accept the invitation the duty to warn them of any danger in coming which he knows of, or ought to know of, and of which they are not aware. This is a very just and very familiar principle. Southcote v. Stanley, 1 H. & N., ry of this case, and will not need to 247; S. C., 38 Et. & Eq., 295; 1 C. P., 274; and L. consume space with a repetition of it R. 2 C. P., 181; Francis v. Cockerell, L. R. 5 O. B., 184; Elliott v. Pray, 10 Allen, 378; Coughty v. Woolen Co., 56 N. G., 124, S. C. 15, Am. Rep. 387; Tobin v. Portland, &c., R. R. Co., 59 H. 183; shows evidence of having been pre- Nathan v. Roach, 72 III., 179; Gillis v. Penn. R. R. Co., 59 Penn., Lt. 129; Maione v. Hawley, 46 Cal., 409; Deford v. Keyser, 30 Md., 179; Pierce v. Whitcomb, 48 Vt. S. C.; 21 Am. Rep., 120. But we search in vain in this record for any evidence that the defendant is chargeable with negligence in inviting miners into a dangerous mine. That the mine was at no time a place of absolute safety is conceded; but the danger was not peculiar to this mine, and by itself raised no presumption of negligence. The contract with Johnson & Co. truly affirmed that mining was intrinsically a dangerous occupation. The question is whether defendant, at the time of delivering possession to the contractors, had neglected any precaution which ought to have been taken to guard against danger. We find no evidence of such neglect. The roof remained in place during the season of 1878, and the tendency of the plaintiff's evidence is to show that the freezing of the following winter and the filtration of the water through it were chargeable with the disintegration and ultimate fall of the rock. The negligence, if any, must on this showing have consisted in the failure to inspect the roof frequently, and to bar down any such rock that seemed likely to detach itself and fall, or to erect timbers to prevent the fall.

But plaintiff insists further that, this duty of supervision and care at all times rested upon the mining company, and was not devolved upon the contractors by the agreement made with them. This is the point on which the plaintiff chiefly relies.

It is not pretended that the mere ownership of real estate upon which there are dangers will render the owners liable to those who may receive injury in consequence; some personal fault must be involved, or neglect of duty, before there can be a personal hability.

As between landlord and tenant the party presumptively responsible for a nuisance upon the leased premises is the tenant: Todd v. Flight, 9 C. B., 377; Swords v. Eager, 59 N. Y., 28; S. C. 17, Am. Rep. 295

But this might be otherwise if the lease itself contemplated the continuance of the nuisance, for in that case the personal fault of the landlord would be plain: Smith v. Elliott, 9 Penn., 8 v 345; Hellwig v. Jordon, 53 Ind., 21; Grady v. Wolsner, 46 Ala., 381. In such a case the party injured might treat both landlord and tenant as wrong doer. Irvine v. Wood, 51 N-3, 224, S. C., 10 Am. Rep. 603; Pillsbury v. Moore, 44 Me., 154; McDonough v. Gilman, 3 Allen, 264; Morris Canal etc., v. Ryerson 27 N. J., 457. And where the duty to keep premises in safe condition is upon the owner, it is no excuse that the danger is attributable to the personal fault of a contractor or of any third person, it is sufficient to charge him that he has negligently failed to guard against it. cellar, and a traveler fell in. The defendant was held liable. The ground of liability is briefly stated: "The defendant employed the coal merchant to open the trap in order to put in coal; and he trusted him to guard it whilst the employer though done through the agency and the fact of his having entrusted it to a the principle that a party upon whom a clear owner had given another person permission to place materials in a private road across the land, and he was very properly held responsi

Co., 110 cases in which cities have been held liable for hereby created between the parties hereto, is to guard against all accidents and to make good all damages; but he was nevertheless held liable to one who had fallen into the excavation. But the ground of the liability was stated by one of the judges to be that the ex-

The owner may rent mine, resigning all charge and control over it. and at the same time put off all responsibility abundant resources and tireless energy, all responsibility for the care and safety of the who will carry the project through to mine was upon the contractors, and that they any third person. If instead of leasing he the principal stockholders in the com-stand that he is caring for their safety, and that they may rely upon him to guard against negligent conduct in the contractors and others, his moral accountability for their safety is as broad as it would be if he were working the mine in person; and his legal accounts bility ought to be commensurate with it.

But we do not find that in this case there was any such retention of charge and control, or that the arrangement between the contractors and the mining company gave to workmen any assurance that the company would proteet them against the negligence of the contractors and their servants.

The terms of the contract are very full and specific in their negation of any such assurance for the contractors expressly assume all risks themselves: and any workman made aware of the terms of the contract would understand that the mining company had taken special precautions to relieve itself of the duty upon a supposed breach of which this action is based. If, notwithstanding the contract, the duty of protection still rests upon the mining company, it is because no stipulation in the contract, however carefully worded, could pre-

If the terms of the contract were such when all its stipulations were considered as to leave the charge and control of the mine and its operations in the hands of its owner, we should agree that it must be responsible for the negligent failure to guard against dangers, and that any stipulation to the contrary would be futile. We are to judge of an arrangement by its substance, and not by what it is called in the papers of those who make it. If a man is principal in a transaction, he cannot relieve himself of the obligations of a principal by stipulating that he shall only be known and considered as an agent or servant. Nothing that is black can be made white by simply calling it so. This is as plain in law as it is else-

But in the case of leasing this mine there was nothing to preclude the contractors assuming the complete control if they saw fit to do so. The question is whether they have done so in fact. Upon this no controversy could arise were it not for the provision in the contract that the making the mine safe should be under the supervision, advice and direction of defendant's superintendent. This the plaintiff claims is conclusive.

If this clause could have no office except to retain control in the hands of the mining company while professedly repudiating it, and would be otherwise idle and meaningless then the argument which is made for the plaintiff upon it would appear unanswerable. But other reasons are both apparent and cogent. Aside from any consideration of humanity which might incline anyone to delivering over to another a dangerous property to stipulate.

for some personal oversight, the mining company had abundant reason in its own interest. Negligent management might not only expose lives to peril but might ruin the mine itself. Daily vigilance was important to preclude such a disaster, and the owner who had been working and was familiar with it would understand the weak points better and know better what was required to protect them than any persons new to the mine The owner would also be more interested than another in being wary and vigilant. There is ample reason in these facts for demanding and insisting upon some right of supervision. But the supervision does not make plain that a duty owing to him was being negected. The company had not promised to protect him or to indemnify him for injuries; on the contrary, it had expressly stipulated that privilege of intervention for its own protection was reserved; but the neglect of one's ties. Reidie v. Railway Co., 4 Exdi., 244, is in point here. The conclusion is that the plaintiff has no right of action. Whether there was negligence on the part of any one we do not consider. The judgment must be affirmed.

THE Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel Association, an authority in its way, prints this concerning Mr. Swineford's last Annual Review, also his projected history of the upper penin-

THE Carp River Iron company has shipped by lake and rail, 10,320 tons of pig iron the present season, up to date of the 25th.

A NEW and important find of ore is reported to have been made at the East Champion. In sinking in the bottom at the east end of No. 8, where the ore appeared to have been exhausted, it will comprise about 500 pages of full historical, was again found at a depth of only a few feet. The ore is of a very fine quality, the lens where struck being about 8 feet in width. Of course the assure the Bulletin that none of the extent of the deposit is not yet definiteworks sent out from this office are ly known, but the indications are that published at a loss, the demand for it is one of goodly dimensions. The MINING JOURNAL has argued all along that the bulk of the ore at the East Champion would be found at a much greater depth than has yet been reached by any of the shafts, and this new find, taken together with the recent important discovery at the old Champion, only a short distance to the west. would seem to prove its theory the correct one. In consequence of this new development the East Champion stock is held firm at a considerable advance over the price asked a week or two ago.

THE ore at the Forest city is not panning out as well as was anticipated. Very little clean ore is found in the shaft-just enough to warrant the off, in search of which a drift is now | rineworth, good-bye! being run to the north. This drift, the superintendent, unless otherwise ordered by the company, will continue until the whole of the ore bearing Labricia, the jail-breaker, and the Port adformation has been cross-cut. That vises its readers to "keep an eye open" for good results will follow is very proba-

The republican senatorial convention held at Ishpeming on Wednesday was not a harmonious body. The action of the chairman of the committee in adopting (without consult-ation with the other members of the commit-tee) a new ratio of representation, and of the Marquette county convention in dispersenting. tee) a new ratio of representation, and of the Marquette county convention in disregarding established rules of representation, was severely animadverted upon, and the result was that the convention split into two bodies, each of which made a nomination—Samuel M. Stephenson, of Menominee, being the candidate of one, and Henry W. Seymour, of Chippewa, that of the other. It was the last trick of the machine to secure support for Hubbell, and it rent the party in twain. We shall see whether it succeeds in defeating the will of the majority.

Very evidently, the editor of our valued contemporary was not present at the convention that he comments upon as above, and obtained the information on which his article is based changing conditions-and the ratio of representation as specified in the call was not fixed by the chairman "without consultation with fishing tug Boss, a well-known sailor and fishother members of the committee." The chairman communicated with the other members, we are credibly informed, in relation to calling the convention, giving them ample opportunity to make any suggestions that might occur to them as promising to conduce to the welfare of the party in the district. None were made bearing upon the ratio of representation to be adopted, whereupon the chairman fixed the basis as set forth in the call under which the convention assembled-that being in his opinion, (as it was in fact), one entirely equitable and just, as between the counties composing the dis rict. Nor would there have been any "kick" from the Stephenson delegations if Marquette county had not chosen to exercise its right of selecting a nearly solid delegation adverse to Stephenson, in disregard of premature "pledges" given that gentleman by certain parties in Marquette county who promised him its vote in the senatorial convention, but who were "short" some eighteen votes of the stipulated number on "settlement day." Mr. Seymour, the regular nominee of the only convention properly organized and having authority to nominate, being fully as pronounced a Ferry man as Mr. Stephenson, we fail to see how the movement to secure him the nomination was a "last trick of the machine to secure of the Ishpeming convention, it was Stephenson's ambition and the subserviency to him of the Delta and Menominee delegations that did it, not the efforts of Hubbell's friends to secure the regular convention-which was neither participated in nor attended by the editor of that paper—we quote from the St Ignace Republi can, whose editor, Mr. P. D. Bissell, was a dele gate in attendance from Mackinac county, and who is an ardent supporter of Ferry for the U.

Mr. Stephenson was fairly beaten in the convention. In an evil moment he listened to bad advisers, and with the 17 votes of the delegates from Delta and Menominee, went into an upper chamber and had himself nominated. These men, conscious of defeat, bolted in advance. They are without excuse.

This testimony should be accepted as conclusive by the Port as to the rights of the contesting candidates if it is open to conviction If not, argument is lost upon it- in which case its further support of Mr. Stephenson's candi-

How are republican campaign docu-ments to be printed and circulated without money, and how is the money to be obtained if those who owe their offices to the republican party do not subscribe? These are among the conundrums which the persons who cry out against political contributions fail to answer. So observes an "organ" that deems itself called upon to offer something in justification of the plan of bleeding federal employes to raise a campaign fund for its party. Its "conreason that they are based on unwarrantable the campaign documents issued by either of the political parties, and if these are to be inflicted upon the people, those who conceive them to be necessary should stand the cost. To saddle it upon others is both unmanly and dishonest. Such documents are really nothing more than special pleas on behalf of the politscheme to make the people of the country or their servants stand the expense incurred in printing or circulating them is, therefore, manifestly unjust, and should be discountenanced by all persons who desire to see the parties brought before the voters on an equal thing for poets to write jingling verses about,

That was before the Ohio election, the result of which denotes that the national bossy, in turning around, ineautiously planted a prodigious hoof on the eloquent (but not always chastely so) Butterworth. Anyway, he is a sadly crushed politician since that contest, and will pull at a teat of the "great national cow" no more forever, after expiration of his presbelief that the main deposit is not far ent term in congress. ### FUN WITH THE BOYS.

ESCANABA.-A reward of $250 is offered for him. If any of them should happen to see the fugitive it will be well not to invite him to throw up his hands until he can discern that same open eye glancing along the barrel of a serviceable revolver. Labriola is a vicious character, and the person who tries to take him without a precaution of the kind mentioned will find him "bad medicine."

The Port doesn't care a farthing how people in that county vote on state or county officers, but it wants an unanimous "yes" on the questions of the court house bonds and constitutional amendments. Which isn't asking any

Campbell as first officer, and made her first trip under the new management last week. As an example of what a Delta county farm As an example of what a Delta colliny larm will produce when properly cultivated we may instance the crop of oats harvested by L. J. Perry on his farm in Baidwin township -53 bushels to the acre. He sowed one-half acre to Russian wheat (all he bad seed for) and gathered 22 bushels therefrom. More farms, nore farmers, is the need of our county. The Port of the 21st has particulars of the drowning of Capt. Jerome McBride of the erman, just outside the harbor at Escanaba the previous Sunday. His home was at Montague, Muskegon county, whence he had recently come with a complete outfit to engage in fishing in the Big Bay de Noquette. On the Sunday mentioned Mr. Bowen, a book-keeper for the Chicago Lumber Co., Manistique, reached the bay on his way to Kansas to be married, and got Capt. McBride to take him to Escanaba in his tug, there being no other means of reaching the Sunday train south, which he was anxious to catch. The casualty occurred on the return trip, when the captain was thrown overboard by a lurch of the craft. His body was picked up as soon as the tug could be got around, but life was extinct. The remains were forwarded to his home for inter-

Our slightly trascible friend of the Port insists that Escanaba has a "village organization," and that those street lamps actually give the place a "metropolitan appearance." All right, neighbor-we're downright glad to hear it. Rather sorry, though, that your metropolitan aspect is only an "appearance."

FLORENCE.-The county convention of the republican party was held last week, when the following nominations were made, as we the News of Saturday: Sheriff, Michael McGehan; treasurer, Geo. A. Walters; clerk circuit court, G. E. McIsaac; county clerk, H. A. Woodford; district attorney, Chas. E. McIntosh; superintendent of schools, Jno. S. Penberthy; coroner, Michael Bush; county surveyor, Robt. F. Andrews. The ticket may be republican in name, but it carries some staunch democrats, and isn't any the worse for that feature, either.

Some soulless "pot-hunters" are hunting deer with bounds in that neighborhood, and the News warns them to "call off their dogs"if they consider them worth saving from sudden death at the hands of true sportsmen. That kind of hunting should be made as unpleasant and unprofitable as the law allows for both men and dogs engaged in it.

There is vague talk of a brick block, to be put up some time next year by parties whom the News declines to "give away." We see no reason why they should be ashamed of being

ST. IGNACE.-From the Republican we learn that the marble shaft to mark the last resting place of Father Marquette arrived last week, and was placed over the grave of the illustrious Jesuit. The shaft is in six pieces, and cost $200. The workmen engaged in digging a hole for the foundation unearthed a portion of the birch bark coffin and exposed some of the bones of the pioneer of the upper peninsula. These were placed in a recess in the foundation, together with a list of the subscribers to the fund raised for the monument, and a history of Father Marquette, written by Father Kilian Hass. This monument was erected by the citizens of St. Ignace, and is a fitting, though tardy, tribute to the memory of the famous missionary.

The democratic legislative convention for the countles of Delta, Chippewa and Mackinac Horatio Crain, of Mackinac, nominated Wm. P. Preston, and that gentleman was chosen as the candidate of the convention by acciamation. Mr. Preston is well known throughout the district as a man of sterling merit, and, if elected, will work hard for the best interests of his constituents.

The Sunday school of Christ church, Detroit, has presented the Episcopal church of St. Ignace with an altar, lecture and reading desk. The Marquette church also contributed an elegant lamp and pair of vases.

The Republican is agitating the question of applying for a city charter at the next session of the legislature, and suggests that the place be divided into three wards, each to be represented by two aldermen and four council-men, the one body to watch over the other. The village must be in hard shape if not able to elect officers who don't need supervision in

THE DEMOCRATS. - On Thursday afternoon, pursuant to the calls of the senate district democratic conventions. considerable. It had been some time since the democracy of Marquette county had met in convention, and, although all were aware of their minority relation to the body politic of this section, yet they seemed to feel that they had a reason for the faith they held, and that it was good to come together; at any rate it would so appear to an outsider, if he had taken notice of the hopeful and pleased countenances of the various delegates from city and

The county convention was called to

That gentleman responded gracefully, when, on motion, Mr. Joseph H. Primeau was made temporary secretary. A committee of three on credentials was appointed, consisting of M. H. Maynard, L. McCloskey and John Mulvey, and that committee, after being out a few moments, showed by their report delegates and proxies present from all the make his own and bet on it if he cities, and also all the townships of the county except Negaunee and Michigamme. A motion authorizing delegates from cities and towns to cast the full vote of their precincts, as entitled to representation, was passed, and the temporary officers were made the permanent officers of the convention. On statement from the chair that the convention was ready to proceed to business, Mr. Swineford, of Marquette, arose and stated that, for the purpose the subject, he would offer the follow-

for the best interests of the party. In explanation, Mr. Swineford stated that the subject of a democratic coalition with the republican bolters had been discussed; the democrats represented the minority, but they had much better represent that respectable class than join forces with sore-heads from the opposition; he wanted a stalwart democratic county ticket, or nothingbut thought it wise to refrain from making a county ticket, thus leaving democrats free to use their own discretion; with the nomination of strong candidates for both branches of the legislature he thought the democrats in to-day's conventions would have done good work. Mr. D. F. Wadsworth's views seemed to coincide with those expressed by Mr. Swineford-he wanted no mixture of sore-heads in his'n. Mr. M. H. Maynard also spoke eloquently in the same strain and in favor of the resolution, and Hon. Jno. Mulvey thought so too, when the resolution was put and carried unanimously. On motion, a committee, consisting of A. P. Swineford, M. H. Maynard, Jno. Mulvey, T. F. Donohoe and Dr. Felch, was appointed to present a list of twelve names for senatorial and congressional delegates. The committee, after a session of a few minutes, reported the names of Dr. Felch, D. F. Wadsworth, John Mulvey, L. McCloskey, Chas. Crowley, T. F. Donohoe, D. McVichie E. C. Anthony, M. H. Maynard, F. M Moore, Chas. McNamara and Jno. Bastido, who were thereupon authorized by the convention to act in that capacity. A recess was then taken till four

The senatorial convention was held during the recess of the county convention, and was organized by the election of M. H. Maynard, as chairman, and F. M. Moore, as secretary. The committee on credentials reported 25 as representing all the counties of the district except Chippewa and Schoolmade the permanent ones and the convention then proceeded to the business in hand. A delegate nominated John Power, of Escanaba, as a candidate for the state senate, and another delegate named Mr. S. S. Curry, of this city, as being supported. On motion, an informal ballot was taken with the following result: S. S. Curry, 10; Jno. Power, 15. A formal ballot was taken, when John Power received 14, and S. S. Curry 11, whereupon the chair decided and announced that Mr. Power, having received the majority, was the nominee. Then the nomination was made unanimous, and in such a hearty manner that there was no cause to apprehend a bolt. A senatorial committee of one from each county in the dis-

This leaves the democracy of the representative district without a candidate to date. What further action will be taken towards providing Mr. Adams with an opponent we can only guess at, and as our guess isn't any better than other person's on a political conundrum we leave the reader to wants to.

THERE occurred what was called a

'mass conference," in Gylling's hall, this city, last on Monday afternoon, the same being composed of about one part democracy to two of sore-headed republicans, or bolters. The person most suspected of being the father of the meeting is Mr. Wm. Rowland, the present county clerk, although he was not present in person. Early trains brought to the city from Marquette, Negaunee, and up-road locations, certain well known dissatisfied members of the dominant party, as well as several democratic kickers against the call for the regular convention of Thursday. These spent the forenoon in hunting up like-minded persons in this city, and when one was found he was added to the gang and all turned to and "took suthin." After dinner the crowd, numbering between 30 and 40 persons, gathered at the hall and effected an organization by the election of Mr. E. A. Maas, of Negaunee, as chairman, and W. A. Jellison, of Marquette, as secretary. The subject of nominating a people's county ticket, independent of party, was advocated by several in the audience, when a motion to proceed to such work was made and carried unanimously. The meeting thereupon proceeded to nominate with the following result: For clerk and register of deeds, Wm. Rowland; for treasurer, Moses B. Toutloff; for prosecuting attorney, E. J. Mapes. The nominations for offices of lesser importance were the same as those made by the regular republican convention. For the office of treasurer, the meeting first nominated Mr. A. A. Anderson, but as there was a question in the minds of some as to whether that gentleman would accept, a committee was appointed to inform him of the action of the meeting. On being notified of his nomination, Mr. Anderson flatly refused to accept, and Mr. M. B. Toutloff was placed on the ticket instead. The latter gentleman also refused to become a candidate, and the ticket is still incomplete. The meeting passed a resolution endorsing Mr. S. M. Stephenson for state senator, and Mr. Breitung for congress. A TROUPE of colored jubilee warblers, styling themselves "Tennesseeans," are to appear in Austin's hall next Monday and Tuesday evenings. Tennessee and Georgia have produced more colored vocalists to the acre than all the other southern states combined; music seems to be indigenous down there, but we have a sort of an idea that if some of these troupes would ocdelegates present entitled to vote, and casionally hail from Arkansas or the tar forests of North Carolina, they would find their drawing capacity to craft. The temporary officers were be much greater. The people bave been wearied by Georgians and Tennesseeans who are all on the sing, and would not begrudge the price of two admissions for the sake of hearing music from some other part of the footstool. This troupe, however, barring a second candidate, both nominations the name, is said to be way up in the profession, and competent to belch forth melody that is really cultured. People who have heard them down in Wisconsin say their entertainment is good, and it would be a mighty mean man that would lie about anything so small as a jubilee troupe. Well spoken of by the press, and "endorsed by the clergy," there seems to be nothing in the way of a big house on the occasion of their visit here. MR. JOHN MENNIE, a carpenter of

OCTOBER, 1882.]

S. M. STEPHENSON, the late go as you please candidate for the state senatorship from this district, was with us Tuesday night.

NEGAUNEE.

THE democratic caucus for the purpose of choosing delegates to the county and senatorial conventions, was held at the fire engine house on Wednesday evening.

A FULL stock of politicians, of all grades, has been on exhibition in this city during the week. Some have been "sold out," but the stock is yet full-in the convivial rather than commercial sense of the word.

ROBERT DYER has arranged to run a daily stage between this city and Cascade during the coming winter, and to that end has just had built, by Mr. J. C. Funston of Ishpeming, a fine pair of suitable vehicles.

KRÆMER breaks out this week with a great clearing sale announcement. His argument is that he has a larger stock than prudence would seem to dictate is wise to carry, and he therefore will convert it into cash-getting whatever price the goods will bring.

THE Breitung house bar has a new clerk in the person of Mr. A. G. Wigdahl, late of Ishpeming. It is said that Wigdahl can sell whisky fluently in several different languages, and that as a conversationalist he'll hold his own against a whole room full-he was formerly a life insurance agent.

EACH evening of the coming week, after Monday, will be held in Winter's hall a fair for the benefit of the Catholic church. The ladies of the denomination have long been occupied in preparing articles to place on sale at the coming fair season, and we predict a most pronounced financial success. Everybody will want to attend the fair.

THE attention of our readers is called to the double column announcement of Marsell & Co. in this paper. This well known and popular dry goods establishment is literally jammed full of new goods and the stock has been marked down to the lowest selling price. Mr. Marsell calls especial attention to his full line of felts, crewel wool, and applique patterns for fancy work, articles that cannot help but interest the ladies.

lished in these columns at the time,

THE entertainment of the jubilee singers in Winter's hall on Thursday evening drew out a very large audience, and the verdict of all who attend ed is to the effect that the entertainment was all that was promised-a first class concert, in which the individual singers were each and all possessed of finely cultivated voices. This troupe is wholly unlike the free-and-easy jubilee warblers that have afflicted our people during the past several seasons, and is fully abreast, in point of artistic merit, of any itinerant company we have seen in late years-be its complexion white

OUR people should not forget that on Monday evening next, in Winter's hall, the Negaunee amateur dramatic club will appear in "A Soldier of Fortune." The tickets are already on sale at Kirkwood's, and we are pleased to note that very many seats have already been secured. The association is composed wholly of well-known young people of this city, and persons who on former occasions have contributed to our entertainment, and this fact alone should be sufficient to fill the house; but the additional fact that the proceeds of the entertainment will go to the Catholic church of this city will further tend to ensure a fine attendance.

HON. JNO. L. BUELL, of Quinnesec, spent Wednesday in the city, and during his stay took occasion to talk with the boys on the political situation. As a political situation seems to be the sort of a job most of the people are looking for just now, of course the talk of the Hon. John was quite appropriate. He was not here in the interests of S. M. Stephenson, at least we don't believe that Stephenson would think so if he could have heard the oration we did, and we only heard the peroration. But even that was burdened with language eloquently expressed, and interspersed with dashes, that would go to any other than the credit side of Stephenson's political account.

THIS is the season of the year when the small boy buildeth his plans for a cabbage campaign on the front door of his neighbor's dwelling. Hallow'een, that most fruitful of all night pienics for the kid in short pants, is upon us, and from the amount of mysterious whisperings we have noticed going on the back yard of the hotel, we awoke among the little lambs of the street during the week, we would suggest to men of family the propriety of each and every one fencing in his respective first we were inclined to take his word kids on that night—if they do not, take about the "casket," but he kept it up so have got worms, and need rest.

ARTHUR DELF, a young man for whom we have the profoundest admiration (sixty-five cents, please) has this week returned from southern California, a land flowing with milk, honey, oranges, wine, and everything else but industry and the dollars of our daddies. Arthur went out there last summer with a view to uniting his fortunes with those of some appreciative community, but he got left, or they did, and now he returns to us before it is everlastingly too late; while his clothes are good and his friends don't have to meet him in the rhubarbs of the city with blankets. We are glad to welcome Arthur back, for he's one of those industrious young men that any comwill, for any corporation here will be glad of his services if in need of a hand.

THE new, or remodeled, residence of Capt. H. Merry, which is now almost ready for occupancy, makes one of the elegant modern homes of the county, and as such deserves more than passing mention. The house was originally built in 1863, and at that time was considered complete, but the ideas of home comfort entertained now are somewhat more advanced than then. Since its construction additions have been made at two different times, but last fall the captain determined upon a radical change in its arrangements, and he accordingly consulted an architect who prepared a plan, the carrying out of which necessitated the removal of the additions above referred to, thereby allowing an enlargement and remodeling of the main building in a manner conforming to modern style, and more conducive to the comfort and convenience of its occupants, besides enhancing the beauty of its external appearance. Under the entire new part of the residence is a basement eight feet high, in which has been placed a large furnace, and part of which is set aside for a coal room, vegetable and storage cellar and a cistern. The first story of the new part has a sitting and dining room, each 15x20 feet, also a kitchen, laundry, bath-room and pantry-all roomy and well-lighted. On this floor is a side entrance through a Metropole, of Paris-Assetts, $1,338,853. vestibule to a large hall. The second Traders, of Chicago-Assetts, $1,031,598. THE case of Henry J. The eleven to one in favor of a verdict for exterior of the new part has been made the plaintiff. The odd juror was a rail- to conform to the old building, the aim being to make all parts of the house, when completed, appear as of one and the same design. How successfully this has been done can be seen at a glance, it being difficult for those not familiar with the house to tell which is the old and which the new part. The tower was given a mansard roof and surrounded by a neat iron cresting. A gas apparatus, under ground in the yard, will supply the dwelling with gas. The residence as it now stands is in every sense a convenient, comfortable and substantial, as well as commodious, modern home, and is a credit to the architect and superintendent, Mr. Wm. Farrel, of Ishpeming. Byrne & Block-

> A song-FIEND worked himself into the Breitung house as a transient guest one day this week, but it is only just to the hotel management to say that, had his true character been known. his name would never have been traced on the hotel register unless written in b-lood; but of course when a man once gets into a hotel, and pays his bill without grumbling, he's privileged to torture the other guests by indulgence in any pet habit of self amusement he happens to carry with him. This song fiend was a tall, fat man with a stomach shaped like the side entrance to the Presbyterian church, and as his clothes fitted him remarkably well and his manner of speech was smooth, it's not strange that Seass took him in: though we have reason to believe the house will be full when he comes again. The fiend was a regular twochange hand organ of a songster, and was certainly wound up for six hours. We first met him at the noon hour up in the main hall, when he was sitting at the rosewood square grand piano, thumping a beastly accompaniment to, "Empty is the baby, give it milk," which he sang in a far-away, melancholy sort of voice; reminding one of the late panic-when music was so cheap that it lost its charm. The fellow enjoyed his work, for he stayed by it all the time the other guests were eating dinner. Later in the afternoon we heard him pacing up and down the corridors singing the same song. The third edition was given out at the supper hour, and the last thing we heard at night was "Empty is the cradle, baby's gone. In the morning, just as the golden sun was visible in and a new song greeted us; it was—"I've a casket at home," etc. The voice, however, was the same. At

If they want | climb into our pants and render ouran explanation of your conduct tell self presentable for breakfast he them you are inclined to think they changed off onto the cradle song again. We didn't use any profanity just at that moment, but if we go to hades for saying it, we'll still think we heard a man in the room adjoining us remark something like "damadamfool anyhow!" After breakfast we decided we'd get rid of the fiend, so we took our writing material down into the office, and had but just got to work when the door opened and-"Empty is the cradle" hit us right in the ear that we reserve for telephonic purposes only. The fellow sang all the forenoon, we are told, but we'll take our oath we didn't hear him-in the afternoon he went in search of other communities to torture. If he's alive he's singing yet, but we doubt if other people would be as long suffering as the inmates of the Breitung house, and therefore munity is glad to contain. We hope it is quite likely he's an apprentice in also, that he'll stay, and we think he the choir "beyond the smiling and the weeping;" but if not, and he takes offense at this article, he can get satisfaction by calling at room 4-turn to

THE RESULT OF PERSEVERANCE .- A representative of the Times-Democrat was present at the office of the Louisiana state lottery company when Mr. D. P. Blair, of Columbus, Miss., received a check for $15,000, as the lucky holder of one-lifth of the capital prize ot $75,000, on ticket No. 42,101, and asked: "Did you not feel elated when favored by fortune?" "No, not at all. I had an idea I would win. I had been taking tickets-well, now it must be for nearly two years, and I was biding my time, for I felt my turn would come soon. I never hurried the lottery company up, but waited, taking my tickets regularly every month, and now I've hit them." "What do you intend doing with the money?" "Well the night I believed I had won, I mentally distributed it. I have children, and I propose to invest a portion of the money for them. The plans I made on that night I intend carrying and I felt on that occasion by intumade on that night I intend carrying out. I felt on that occasion, by intuition, it would almost seem, that I had won. The feeling, of course, is impossible to describe." Thus he bided his time. The next drawing will occur November 14th, and any information thereof can be had on application to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La.—N. O. Times-Democrat, September 16.

INDUSTRIAL AND SCIENTIFIC

During the 9 months of 1882 ended September 30, 8,075 miles of railway were built in the United States-the largest mileage of new road ever constructed in any consecutive 9 months of our history. Of this total, 1,399 miles were built in September. The largest mileage for any single state is to be credited to lows, which reports 154 miles for the last month. It is already patent that the record of 1881-grand though it was in the matter of railroad building will be exceeded by that of the current year; the three months yet to be heard from being for the most part available for the work of railroad construction.

Experiments looking to the substitution of steam for horse power on street railways have been in progress for several years in Paris and other large cities, but thus far without any encouraging degree of success. In Paris, within five years, 21 different styles of steam motors have been tried and cast aside as unsuited to the purpose, and the companies have generally returned to horse power as, on the whole, the safest and most economical The chief objection to employing horses for this service in Paris arises from the circumstance that after a horse has been pounded by a street car driver for any length of time the animal's fiesh is rendered exceedingly tough, and not so valuable as an article of food. This has spurred French inventive genius to seek diligently for some substitute, but nothing satisfactory has yet been found. Here is a chance for some Yankee inventor to erown himself with glory, make a fortune, and at the same time confer a blessing on a nation to which our own is to no small extent indebted for its very existence. Can't we produce the

The Phœnix Iron Works claim that the wrought iron columns recently made by that concern for the Albany bridge are largest ever wrought. In length they are 53 feet, 3% inches. Each is composed of eight segments, the iron of which is 1 9-16 inches thick. Each column requires 894 steel rivets, and the weight com plete is 18,806 lbs. The square inches of a section are 104. The eight columns therefore contain 150,806 lbs of metal and 7,152 rivets.

An engineer furnishes these directions for the management of a boiler in which the water is discovered to be dangerously low from any cause: If the water gets low in the boiler while a hot fire is on, bank the fires with ashes or with fresh coal as quickly as possible, shut the damper and ash-pit doors and leave the fire doors wide open; do not disturb the running of the engine, but allow it to use all the steam the boiler is making; do not, under any circumstances, attempt to force water into the boiler. After the steam is all used and the boiler cooled, sufficiently to be safe, then the water may be admitted and brought up to the regular working hight; the damper opened and the fires allowed to burn, and steam raised as usual; provided no injury has been done the boiler by overheating.

A marked advance in the carrying capacity of freight cars has taken place within a few years. Until very recently ordinary cars were not rated as being safe for anything over 19 tons; now but few eight-wheel cars are built whose carrying capacity will not run up to 20 tons, or over. The advantages and economies secured by increased capacity are such that a committee of the Master Car Builders' association has recommended the building of 25 or 30ried in 30-ton cars with as much safety and

A Connecticut mechanic has made a trial of rotary files for finishing plane surfaces. He is of the opinion that quicker and truer work can be done with these than with hand files, and that the surface is in better shape for truing with the scraper. His experiments have been confined to the planer, but he believes that his device may be properly and economically adapted to the lathe and milling machine.

The forthcoming report of the state bureau of labor will show that Illinois is second only to Pennsylvania in the production of coal, and that the output has increased from 6,000,000 tons in 1880 to 9,000,000 tons for this year. Forty-six of the 100 counties produce coal, and the aggregate value at the mines has been nearly $14,000,000.

Traction engines are gradually coming more and more into practical use. The use of such engines for hauling logs is just now becoming quite popular in comparatively level lumbering districts. They are beginning to be quite extensively used for such purposes among southern mill men. Where the nature of the soil and evenness of the ground will permit, these engines seem destined to take the place of all other methods for this purpose, and there

A sulphur mine in Sicily was recently set on fire in a very curious manner. A wagon loaded with sulphur was being drawn up an incline. when the rope supporting it broke, and the wagon rushed back into the mine at a frightful speed. The rapid motion developed heat enough to set on fire the highly combustible ore, and the flames spread so quickly through the mine that thirteen workmen were unable to escape, and thirty or forty others were seri-ously injured.

No Atmosphere in the Moon. - At a recent meeting of the Photographic Society of France, M. Janssen handed round a magnificent proof of the late partial eclipse, and said a few words upon the long-discussed question of a lunar atmosphere. In speaking upon the subject he said: "Suppose for a moment that the moon is surrounded by an atmosphere, what would be the result if we took a photographic view of it during an eclipse? The lunar disc would be sharp enough, but there would be a gradual decline in density, as in a vignetted portrait. This is exactly the contrary of what took place, as the proof will show. The lunar disc is very sharp, and the negative is rather intensified near the disc, probably from refracted light." M. Janssen appears to doubt the existence of a lunar atmosphere.

OXYGEN IN IRON AND STEEL .- Prof. Lederbur, of the School of Mines, has conducted some interesting experiments concerning the quantity of oxygen contained in various samples of iron and steel, and the results arrived at may not be without interest to our readers. He gives the following examples of the quantity of oxygen in various samples of iron and steel: Oberhausen open-hearth steel, 0.935 per cent.; Bochum Bessemer steel, 0.047 per cent.; basic steel, before complete dephosphorization, 0.068 per cent.; basic steel, after complete dephosphorization and before addition of spregeleisen, 0.111 per cent.; Gute Hoffnungshutte wrought iron, 0.515 per cent.

STEEL PLATES FOR BOILERS,-Some years ago the French congress of engineers refrained from rendering a definite decision on the relative value of steel and iron for boiler plates, on the ground that the subject was not far enough advanced to warrant such action. At the fifth congress, however, which recently met in Lyons, the following report was submitted: Two boilers ordered by the Midi company of the Fives-Lille Works burst at the trial, and the company consequently decided not to use steel plates, notwithstanding that Creusot offered every guarantee for its boilers. The Forges et Chantiers de la Mediterrane have likewise excluded steel place for boilers.

Krupp has also given up at el, and the experiments made at the fustame of the Surfish admiralty have shown that steel corrodes more quickly than teen. This corrosion is all the thioner than iron plates. Mr. Webb, of Crewe, notwithstanding, still adheres to the application of steel plates for the engines of the Northwestern railway.

The engineers of Rouen also employ steel plates; on the ground, presumably, that they would prove more homogeneous in case of over-heating. But this advantage is, according to M. Roland, of too small account compare i with the great drawback that they are very liable to tear and burst at the ends and in the rivet holes, either during manufacture or during use. He cites in support of his views the case of the eight boilers made for the Lavadia, three of which burst at pressures of from 3% to 6% tons per square inch, resulting in the rejection of all the boilers. The prevailing opinion of the congress was expressed by M. Cornut, who stated that at present steel plates do not offer sufficient safety for the construction of boiles, and that it would be advisable not to employ them. It was further stated that an amount of care would be required in the manufacture of steel for this purpose which few makers would be inclined to exercise, and that the many failures observed in this department of the use of steel must be ascribed to this circumstance.

Though on her cheek there lay a tear.

"Since I have found the daisies here."

THE BURNING TRANSPORT.

AN ENGLISH NAVAL OFFICER'S STORY. The fleet lay off "North Fleet Hope," awaiting the flag of Rear Admiral Coffin, who had been appointed to succeed the gallant Collingwood, and, a heavy gale prevailing at the time, the ships were riding to the wind, regardless of tide when night closed around

Some thirty sail of merchantmen, under convoy of one of our fastest frigates, were anchored in the entrance of the Downs, and between us and them lay two convict ships, while a fleet of transports, with troops for the East Indies, were anchored just astern of us, the largest—the Wellesley—being anchored on our starboard quarter, and scarce three cables' length distant.

Being senior passed midshipman of the old Sovereign at the time, I was honored with supreme command of a whole anchor watch, and having first watch that night, enjoyed the happiness (?) of strutting the quarter deck exposed to the wind and rain, while my more humble, and consequently more fortunate, watch-mates sought shelter in the lee of the bulwarks; or, shelter in the lee of the bulwarks; or, stowed snugly away beneath the guns, whiled away the dreary watch with yarns of dangers and battles passed.

It had just struck three bells, and save the measured tread of the sentinels on duty, the pattering of the driving rain, and the deep breathings of full 600 sleepers, scarcely a sound broke the silence reigning throughout the vast hull of the old Sovereign. Even I halted, half deeming our dreary watch halted, half deeming our dreary watch at an end; and, half supported by the cabin skylight, was indulging in vis-while standing thus, with face averted from the driving storm, a deep red gleam illuminated the darkness on our starboard quarter, increasing so rapidly that, ere a minute elapsed, the upper works, lower mast, and yards of the Wellesley were plainly defined in the red glare. In an instant the truth

It was our signal gun, and kept continually loaded, so that my order was obeyed in an instant, while I followed up the report with the order, "Bo'sen's mate, pipe all hands to quarters."

The first lieutenant was at my side ere the sound of the mate's shrill whistle had ceased reverberating on our main gun, and betth decks, when

In an instant all was bustle and preparation, and ere a lapse of two minutes the report of "messenger passed" was followed by that of "boats all ready;" when Captain Wilmer, who had gained the deck, shouted: "Officers in charge of boats, to your stations! Bo'sen, pipe all boats away!" I sprang from the rail, grasping the yard tackle, and in an instant later landed in the launch, of which I had command. We then fell off, and in a few moments were scudding swiftly toward the burning ship. It is almost needless to add that our example was followed by the various commanders in the fleet, and on dropping alongside the Wellesley we mustered a fleet of some sixty boats, capable of accommodating at In an instant all was bustle and boats, capable of accommodating at least nine hundred hands, a larger number, fortunately, than were placed in peril.

The moment the first boat reached the transport the work of debarkation commenced, but, owing to the tremendous gale and heavy sea, progressed but slowly, while the rapid advance of the fire drove numbers from the deck to seek safety in the sea, from which they were rescued as promptly as possible.

It was truly a thrilling scene. The hull of the transport was evidently converted into a perfect volcano, while from each of her hatches leaped a tongue of flame, which, seizing on her fresh-tarred rigging, transformed the whole mass into a delicate tracery of fire and speedily consuming it left of fire, and, speedily consuming it, left her taut spars to tumble, one after another, over the stern, killing and wounding numbers in their descent.

The catastrophe, although resulting in death to some proved a means of safety to many others who might otherwise have perished, as it established a direct means of communica-tion with many of the boats which trayed the fact of her restoration by loudly demanding her child.

"My child! my child! Where is my little Edward?" she demanded, in tones of thrilling anguish. "Tell me, for the love of heaven, if any of you have seen my child!"

"Merciful heaven! what do I hear?—

"Oh, Hunter, my child, my Edward, and my husband-" "No, madame, Captain Clifford must be safe," rejoined the man, hastily. "I saw him myself actively employed in removing the insensible forms below, and he may have saved the child."

"May have," she repeated; "but you are not certain, Hunter? Oh, you are not certain, and this suspense is worse than death!" And the poor bereaved mother groaned in her anguish, and clasping her hands over her eyes, sat rocking her body to and fro, and uttering that deep, convulsive sob, which betrays so fully a breaking heart.

"And she interceded so eloquently in our behalf that my Susan might accompany me!" murmered the soldier, in an pany me!" murmered the soldier, in an audible tone, as he resumed his seat and his former burden, on the pallid brow of which he pressed a fond kiss, adding, "My poor wife! Would to heaven you had remained with my parents; you would have escaped this suffering, and, perhaps, death!" And the gallant fellow bowed his head, concealing his face in his hands, probably to hide the tears which were an honor to his manhood, since called forth by the suffering hood, since called forth by the suffering and probable fate of one who had for-saken friends and home to follow his uncertain fortunes.

A minute later we rounded to under the counter of, and received a line from the Delmar transport, alongside of and into which one boat was already discharging her freight of rescued.

"Ship ahoy! Can you accommodate twenty more?" I demanded, as my bow man made fast the line. "Ay, my lad, a hundred!" was the trumpet-toned reply. "Haul up, haul up at once, and clear the track for others!"

We obeyed, gaining with difficulty a position beneath the gangway, when the debarkation of our freight commenced, the insensible wife of the young soldier being the first attached to the whip by which the helpless were taken on board. Mrs. Clifford was the second, the soldier having devoted himself to her as soon as he beheld his wife in safety; while I, seizing upon flashed upon me—she was on fire—and bounding to the skylight I shouted:

"Forward gun of the starboard forward division on the spar-deck! Fire!"

"You must be quiet, madam," responded I, gently. "It is impossible to learn anything regarding them just now, or indeed before this gale subsides, when I have no doubt you will find them are any sound. They was find them safe and sound. They may have reached some other vessel ere this. Indeed, 'tis more than probable that they have done so, since to my certain knowledge but few of the Wellesley's company are lost."
"Bless you!" said she. "May heaven

Yet I apprehend the worst. Do you suppose they have reached this ves-

"Probably, madam, but I will ascertain," I replied; and, advancing a few paces with the trembling woman still clinging to my arm, I was about to ask if any of the rescued answered to the name of Captain Clifford, when the young soldier elbowed his way through the crowd, exclaiming, "Mrs. Clifford! Mrs. Clifford! I have found him!"

"Found whom? she demanded, wildly. "Whom have you found?"

"Captain Clifford, your husband, band, he will tell me all."

The young soldier guided her through the crowd in silence; while deeply interested in the meeting about to take place, I followed to where a gentleman in the undress of an infantry officer lay, partially supported by a half-naked soldier, his countenance expressing at once the keenest physical anguish, and a supreme degree of mental happiness. "Thank heaven you are safe, my beloved Lucy; but where is—"

"Edward! Oh, Father of Mercies! I come to you, my husband, for tidings of our boy. Can it be that you are as ignorant as myself?"

"I never saw him but once after the alarm, Lucy, and then he was in the nurse's arms. She was seeking you; and I, deeming him safe with her—Oh! my child, my child! and I disabled, and can not search for him!"

and can not search for him!"

"In the nurse's arms!" repeated the young soldier. "Why, that was Susan. Did you mean," said he, "you saw Master Edward with my wife, captain?"

"Ay, Hunter," was the reply.

"Where is your wife? The child must be with her."

Scarce a minute elapsed ere the Delmar's gig was down, and five of my men, the soldier and myself safely seated on her thwarts, when an unre-strained use of our knees served the Colonel Ross was inexorable, until his daughter—the young wife of Captain Clifford—espoused the cause of the anguish-stricken Susan, and ventured to intercede in her behalf. He could deny his daughter nothing, so he consented, providing she should take Susan into her service, by which means he would be spared the charge of suspending an established rule in her case. In this manner had the youthful soldier and his young wife been spared the pain of separation, and in return for that kind separation, and in return for that kind intercession he was now proving his gratitude.

At length we reached the burning wreck when a new difficulty presented itself. How were we to board it? To attempt such a feat to leeward was worse than folly, for the wreck, reliev-ed of its top-hammer, rode partly to the ebb, which was now setting down strong, heaving the dismantled hull into the trough of the sea, which made frequent breaches over her, retarding the progress of the flames and preserving almost entire her starboard side.

An attempt to board to windward would have been equal madness, and we were debating upon the feasibility of an attempt to board by the wreck of the mizzen topmast, which hung drooping to the surface from the stern, when Hunter demanded: "How near can you go with safety,

"Nonsense! You couldn't!" responded I, startled by the proposition.
"I have accomplished feats as dangerous for a less momentous object," said he. "I'll try it. I can but fail."

"Give away gently, men!" said I, avoiding a reply for a moment in order to consider the proposal in all its bearings when the boat, losing headway and being to the windward, began to close with the wreck close with the wreck. We were three boats' lengths when he dropped his oars and was about to spring, but I restrained him, saying: "Hold on! You will have a better chance by that spar over the stern, but how can you reach the boat if you are fortunate enough to find the child?"

"Let me but find it," he exclaimed,

"and I can afford to trust for safety to Him who rules the wind and waves."

We were stern to, and within a boat's length of the wreck at the moment, when, signing to the crew to give way, I exclaimed: "Go then, in His name, and here's to

And the next instant we were both struggling in the hissing brine. A minute later and we were clambering up the top-mast, from which we passed on deck, where we were obliged to pause, our passage being cut off by destruction of the main deck from the

"If the child lives, unrescued, it is there sir," said Hunter, indicating a portion of the foremast, with a heap of smoking canvas which lay along the weather-side, just forward the chess-

"It was here I found my wife; and, thank Heaven, the child is here alive!" he exclaimed, as the faint wail of an infant saluted our ears.

It was but the work of a minute to clear away the mass which concealed the infant, whom he found lying beside the wreck of the spar, where the charred weather rigging had fallen in such a manner as afforded it protection against injury from the feet of those who must have passed and repassed the spot in the hurry and excitement of abandonment.

Next he walked around the room, stopping at the fireplace. "Same old mantlepiece!" Then he got to the closet and turned the handle. "Same old—" He had just opened the door when he caught the flutter of a petticoat and suddenly closed it. "Ah!" we had made the passage to the Delmar in the short space of four minutes, but our passage from her to the wreck consumed four times that period and tenfold the exertion, while in a few words the young soldier informed me the cause of his daring.

He had married without the consent of his colonel, and the regiment being church deacon residing in an interior petticoat and suddenly closed it. "Ah!"

Detroit, and the place being an easy one and the pay good, the man was well pleased and took a great interest in his employer's welfare. Some six weeks ago the church to which the deacon belongs had to send three delegates to meet three from another church to arrange for a picnic. Daniel heard the deacon remark that he would like to be one of the delegates, and that was enough for him. There was to be a meeting of the congregation in the evening to select the three, and a score of people had scarcely got together when Daniel walked in, slammed his hat down, and remarked: "Gintlemin, this caucus will now come to ordher, and, by your lave, I will act as chairman until a bigger man is appinted."

The people were of course dumbfounded, but Daniel felt as if he were

"Gintlemin, we have met to nominate three diligates, and it will be in ordher for somebody to mintion the name of daycon Blank as the first."

Nobody did, and Daniel's dander be-
