The Wear and Tear of Bank Notes and Greenbacks-Identification of Burned Notes - Expert Counting - Catching the Counterfeits.

[New York Post.]

When the national bank notes have tramped about the country until they have become ragged and vagabond, and have reached to lowest depths of degradation, they are fundled up and sent to the freasury department for redemption. Many millions of these vagrants are receive! at the department each year. They have to pass in review torough the national bank redemption agency, where those that are utterly depraved and good for nothing are sentences to be chewed up, and those that have got in through the f ree of association, but are still not so far gone that some good may not be got out of them, are sent back into the service. In the place of those that are condemned, nice, new notes, crisp and clean, are sent out. The experience of these notes is varied, and in some cases very novel and interesting, but their tale is told only by great gun works on the Neva. After n their ragged and dirty appearance when they get back to the department

The average length of time that a new note can keep up a respectable appearance is about three years. Some have been found at the end of twenty years to be as crisp as on the day of their issue, but these are exceptional cases, where they have fallen into the hands of people who made pets of them they expect to have no trouble in finding an and carefully guarded them from rough usage. The wandering note soon becomes a tramp. It rapidly goes to pieces if it starts out for the west, stopping along at the crossand falls in with low company. Bad habits tell on a bank note very quickly.

Ose lady in the comptroller's office in this case has charge of them, and they are sent to her for identification before they can be redeemed. Her name is Fitzgerald, and she is said to be very expert, seldom failing to identify a note, giving its proper name, date ani classification, no matter how badly burnt it is. Sometimes packages of several hundred, done up to be expressed, are sent as it rolled and gyrated about the marble in all stuck together and burnt clear through floor.
