CONTROL CHANGES HANDS.

L. G., S. R. and N. M. Kaufman Are Now Directors of the First National Bank.

HAVE BOUGHT OVER HALF THE STOCK FROM PETER WHITE.

There Will Be No Change in the Officers of the Institution and Marquette County Savings Bank Will Be Conducted on Same Old Lines.

IT WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1864.

The control of the First National Bank changed hands Saturday, passing from Peter White to L. G. Kaufman, S. R. Kaufman and N. M. Kaufman. These gentlemen participated in the deliberations of the regular annual meeting at which L. G. Kaufman, S. R. Kaufman, N. M. Kaufman, E. H. Towar and Peter White were elected directors. The officers for the ensuing term are: President, Peter White; vice-presidents, E. H. Towar and L. G. Kaufman; cashier, F. J. Jennison, and assistant cashier, E. S. Bice.

The transfer of the control of the institution will be accompanied by no changes. The bank will pursue its time honored methods and will remain under the management of Vice President E. H. Towar, who has had charge of its business since 1889, when he came to Marquette from Hancock and purchased a considerable portion of the stock. The only change in the offering of the bank appears in the election of the new directors and in the addition of a vice president.

Mr. White retains about 100 shares of the capital stock and it is understood that he will be connected with the institution, year in and year out, just as in the interval since it was opened to the public.

N. M. Kaufman, president of the Marquette County Savings bank, said Saturday that this institution will be in no way affected by the change in the control of the First National. It will be conducted along the same lines followed in past years by a corporation entirely distinct and independent of the interests which have just obtained the ascendancy in the First National.

ESTABLISHED IN 1864. The First National bank was opened for business in January, 1864, and its history from that day to this has been a record of continual success. Most prominent among the capitalists who took out its charter were Peter White, Ambrose Campbell and S. P. Ely, men who ranked high among the pioneer settlers of northern Michigan. Since 1864 Peter White has been directly associated with the management of the bank. He has been either cashier or president for the intervening period and he has also served on the board of directors.

From the first he was prominently identified with the management and to this far seeing and conservative business methods was due its continual growth. The First National made money from the first and today it is in the best possible financial condition. Mr. White severed his connection with the actual management in 1889, when E. H. Towar came to Marquette from Hancock and purchased a considerable interest in the institution, assuming the responsibility for its continued growth and prosperity. Mr. Towar followed the same conservative business methods which had held from the bank's organization and has demonstrated his rank as a capable financier by ten years of unusually successful management. Of course the scope of the bank has greatly increased during the past decade. Its growth has kept pace with the development of the upper peninsula and its business is now in the ratio of about one to four compared with its extent in 1889.

CONSUMMATED FRIDAY. The deal by which L. G., S. R. and N. M. Kaufman have obtained the controlling interest was only consummated Friday, although it had been under consideration for some days previous. No inkling of the prospective change got out nor was it generally known that Mr. White had disposed of the greater part of his interest until after the directors met Saturday afternoon. Of course the news caused considerable comment, the idea of the National bank existing without Peter White as the controlling stockholder and the leading spirit being rather hard to grasp on such short notice. However, it was the general understanding that the transfer would prove another fine day wonder and that after a short interval the new adjustment of the bank's control would be taken quite as a matter of course.

Messrs. Kaufman are to be congratulated on securing control of such a magnificent property as the First National. It is one of the pioneer banks of the upper peninsula while it ranks with the best of the strong institutions in this section. They are also to be congratulated in being able to place their interests in charge of such a competent management. The announcement that there are to be no changes at the bank will be generally welcomed in Marquette and it speaks well for the wisdom of the gentlemen now in control, as it would be difficult to better the present personnel of officers.

STORY OF CHARLAND'S DEATH.
He Was Killed at Helena, Ark., the Night of Dec. 25.

Elmer E. Wentz has received a letter from George Charland setting forth the facts in connection with his father's death, which occurred as a result of a shooting affray at Helena, Ark., the evening of Dec. 25. Charland was once a resident of Marquette, having been employed at the Dead River mill. He is well remembered here where the news of his violent end was received with great regret. The text of the letter follows:

"Friend Elmer—I have received your letter and I would say that the sad news you heard is all too true. The shooting occurred at about 11:15 o'clock the night of Dec. 25. Father had worked all day. As usual we went home to supper together. After supper he went down town to see the sawyer of the mill who had been on a tour for some time. Father did this, at the manager's request, to endeavor to get the fellow straightened out so that he would be able to work the following day.

"He stayed at the sawyer's house for a couple of hours. The fellow appeared to be all right and as he wanted to walk down town Father accompanied him. They stepped into a saloon and got a drink. Then they walked around, finally stepping into a second place. Just before they entered this saloon they ordered a lunch in a restaurant. While they were getting a cigar the engineer of the company's locomotive and his brother came in and joined them. The party left the saloon together, and entered the restaurant, which was just getting dark. They all sat down on the high stools at the lunch counter. As the space was limited they were huddled close together. Father sat on the last stool towards the back of the restaurant, with his companions on the right.

"They had just got nicely settled down and were laughing and talking when a pistol report was heard and Father dropped forward on the counter with a bullet in his head. It struck him in the right temple and went down and back, lodging behind the right ear. He paralyzed his brain and he never knew what struck him. He did not regain consciousness, death occurring at about 1 o'clock.

"It was about fifteen minutes after the shooting occurred when I reached the restaurant. If any man knows what hard night it is I am he. A jury was summoned without much delay and an inquest was held. A verdict of accidental homicide was returned. Father's revolver was picked up near the lunch counter. One chamber was empty. The gun was not in his hand when the shooting was done for no person saw the shot fired and there were all of a dozen persons in the restaurant at the time. We have questioned and examined everyone whom we can reach but, search as we may, we are unable to find anyone who saw the shot fired. The affair is enveloped in great mystery.

"We could get no satisfaction from the police here so we sent to Pine Bluff for the chief of that place. He investigated the matter and likely arrived at some determinations but I am not well informed as to their nature although I know very well that no apparent progress has been made up to this time. We expect to put a first-class detective at work and he may be able to do something to fix the responsibility for the shooting.

"There need be no wonder because Father's revolver was employed in the shooting as he always carried it in his outside overcoat pocket, which is a universal custom here, where everyone carries a gun, as you probably know.

"They smooth killings of this description over very quickly in this country. The sooner they can get them tucked out of the way the better they are pleased. The jury that conducted the inquest in father's case was composed of a lot of drunken fools, the first bumpers who could be picked up anywhere about the streets or saloons. It was a regular Arkansas jury and the verdict was of a kind with all the other verdicts rendered in this country.

"I don't know whether I will stay in this country or not. The company offered to let me have father's place. I told them I did not want it but they shoved me in anyway so I suppose I will hold the job as long as I stay here. My mother and sister have not been as well as I would like to see them but they seem to be gaining now and they may be all right shortly."

"HELLO BILL." It Will Be Presented at the Opera House Thursday Evening.

Fun fast and furious will serve to amuse the patrons of the Marquette Opera House Thursday night, when the new farcial comedy "Hello Bill" will be presented. This play has met with an unmeasured amount of success in most of the popular cities of the country. Had it happened to be under the control of the big theatrical syndicate, we would have probably heard of it enjoying a run of several hundred nights at some leading New York theatre, but as it is a private enterprise conducted outside the pale of the trust, it had to be content with a mere paltry fifty performances at the Bijou, theater, New York. It contains no specialties, no horse play, no twaddle, but is a sparkling, bright comedy, full of ingenious complications, witty lines, and containing that element of spontaneity, capable of producing infectious laughter.

Neglecting Weak Kidneys

is resignation without cause. Strong kidneys don't need medicine, but weak kidneys DO—and badly at that. Proper attention to weak kidneys means strong kidneys again. Neglect of weak kidneys means long suffering—or often early death.
